BELGIUM.—The Evangelical Society or Belgian Missionary Church, of which Rev. K. Anet is the efficient secretary, celebrates its Jubilee this year.

DUELLING IN GERMANY.—The Kirchenfreund, of Bâle, relates that a German officer having refused on principle to fight a duel, was tried by a "Court of Honour," and sentenced to be expelled the Army.

REV. J. T. VINE.—Many were brought to the Lord in Brooklyn, at the Central Baptist Church during the month Mr. Vine preached there. He is now preaching at the People's Baptist Church in New York City.

UGANDA.—The Church Missionary Society has received a letter from Bishop Parker, of Eastern Equatorial Africa, giving interesting news received by him from Uganda. The news of Mr. Stanley's expedition reached Uganda from Zanzibar on June 26. Great alarm was occasioned, notwithstanding the explanations offered by Mr. Mackay, who had much trouble in convincing King Mwanga and his chiefs that Mr. Stanley was only going to the relief of Emin Pasha, and that his Congo route would keep him far away from Uganda. The hostile Arabs at the Court urged that if Mr. Stanley and Mr. Mackay met, they would together "eat up the country," and to allay the panic Mr. Mackay agreed to leave Uganda and go across the lake Victoria Nyanza to the south, the king promising to receive instead Rev. E. C. Gordon, a nephew of the late Bishop Hannington, who has been waiting at the south end of the lake for an opportunity to enter Uganda. Mr. Mackay accordingly left Uganda on July 21, and crossed the lake in the mission boat Eleanor, and on August 10 Mr. Gordon sailed in the same boat for Uganda.

SPANISH & PORTUGUESE CHURCH AID SOCIETY.

ITS OBJECTS

Are to aid the native Reformed Episcopal Churches in Spain and Portugal in the FAITHFUL PREACHING OF THE GOSPEL, and generally to help and encourage them in the great work of Evangelization, in which they are actively engaged.

ITS NEEDS

Are great and pressing. In the village and country towns the people are eager to listen to the glad tidings of the Gospel, and the openings for Evangelistic work are very numerous. But our brethren in Spain and Portugal are unable to take advantage of the open doors which the Lord has placed in their way, as it is only with great difficulty that they maintain their own position. They are few, and poor and weak—a handful in the midst of many enemies. Surely it is a small thing for our Saviour to ask us to make a little sacrifice in order to help those who are working faithfully and bravely for the salvation of their beloved land. The Rev. F. Palomares, of Seville, writes :—"We have indeed many trials, but, come what may, we must preach Jesus." This is the spirit in which the work is carried on. Who will help, lovingly and liberally, in this, the hour of need? The work must not be allowed to fail through our lukewarmness and neglect.

WHAT IS BEING DONE?

In SPAIN there are organised congregations under the care of native Pastors (some of whom are ex-Roman Catholic Priests), at MADRID.

VILLAESCUSA.
SAN VICENTE.
SEVILLE.
SALAMANCA.
VALLADOLID.
MALAGA.
MONISTROL.

In SEVILLE there are three Churches, all of which have been rescued from the Romanists. In connection with most of the above Churches, there are well-conducted Day and Sabbath Schools. These Churches are centres of missionary effort, and the Pastors, in addition to their ordinary duties, are frequently engaged in visiting the adjacent villages, which would otherwise be altogether cut off from Christian teaching. The Pastor at Malaga, for instance, went to Puerto del Torre, and so great was the desire to hear the Gospel that over 200 persons were unable to gain admission to the room where the meeting was held. A permanent congregation has now been established, and there are 64 communicants. A similar work is being done by many of the other workers.

In PORTUGAL, there are Churches at LISBON.

RIO DE MOURO.
VILLA NOVA DE GAYA.
OPORTO.

In LISBON there are three Churches—all engaged in energetic and successful work: indeed, the whole Portuguese work is full of encouragement. An earnest Christian young man has just been engaged to work as an Evangelist under the direction of the Rev. James Cassels, of Oporto.

The Reformed Spanish and Portuguese Churches are essentially

MISSION CHURCHES.

New openings are constantly presented for active labour, but, with our present limited means, it is impossible to respond to every call. We herefore earnestly beg the fervent prayers and liberal support of all who are sincerely interested in the progress of the Gospel in Spain and Portugal.

"IT IS FOR US," said the good EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, "TO GO ON AND CARRY OUT THIS MAGNIFICENT CAMPAIGN."

THE MOST REV. LORD PLUNKET, Archbishop of Dublin, who is the Chairman of the Executive Committee, says:—"HAVING TWICE VISITED SPAIN AND PORTUGAL FOR THE PURPOSE OF TESTING THE REALITY OF THE WORK, I KNOW IT TO BE A GENUINE ONE."

All information about the work will be cheerfully supplied by the Secretary, who will also send copies of the quarterly periodical, "Light and Truth," and other publications, on application.

At the present moment we are without any Funds in hand to meet the Grants now overdue.

WHO WILL HELP?

WE WANT £1,000 AT ONCE.

Contributions should be sent to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.; Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or to the Secretary, Rev. L. S. TUGWELL, 8, Adam-street, delphi, W.C.

FREELY YE HAVE RECEIVED, FREELY GIVE.

MANUFACTURERS to HER MAJESTY the QUEEN.

Wm Polson's CORN FLOUR.

The Original and First Manufactured in Great Britain.

UNRIVALLED FOOD OF HEALTH, for Children and Invalids; THE BEST KNOWN MATERIAL for PUDDINGS, CUSTARDS, CAKES, BLANCMANGE, and a variety of delicious Preparations for the Table.

Every Packet is Warranted Pure, and its genuine qualities are certified by the highest medical authorities in the kingdom.

The Lancet affirms:—"It is preferable to most descriptions of Arrowroot, on account of its sweeter flavour." Dr. Lankester, Superintendent of Government Food Collection at Kensington, in a note to the Manufacturers said:—". . . I am so well satisfied with your Corn Flour that I have given directions for its use in my own family."

Wm. Polson & Co., Paisley and London.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING · AND · FANCY WOOLS

Trade-Mark. Registered

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
MERINO WOOLS
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters
Prices and Patterns of which on Application.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.

If any difficulty is found in obtaining apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

& GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886. &

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies', Children's, and Gentlemen's Dress. Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value. The Immense Variety of Patterns comprise Specialities to suit all Classes, all Climates, all Fashions, and all Purses, from 10½d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

NEW PATTERNS
FOR WINTER, 1887

Any Length of Material Sol

Carriage Paid on Order of £1 in value to an Railway Station in th United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES

All Orders are executed direct.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide).
Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES,
CURTAINS,
BLINDS,
DRAPERIES,
SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

FOR PUDDINGS, BLANC-MANGE, CUSTARDS
CHILDREN'S AND INVALIDS' DIET,
AND ALL THE USES OF ARROWROOT,

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

HAS A WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION, AND IS DISTINGUISHED FOR UNIFORMLY SUPERIOR QUALITY.

NOTE.—Purchasers should insist on being supplied with BROW & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR.
Inferior kinds, asserting fictitious claims, are being offered.

DEWHURST'S SEWING COTTON

TRADE MARK.

THE "THREE SHELLS BRAND,"

Strong, Even, Elastic, and free from Knots.

Dewhurst's Cottons have been awarded PRIZE MEDALS for general excellence of quality wherever exhibited.

LATEST AWARDS—

GOLD MEDALS—AMSTERDAM, 1883;

LINEN FITTED SHIRTS

UNDRESSED FROM THE FACTORY.

2s/3d

A Clergyman in Banff says "I am well pleased with the Shirts and will call upon you again."

A Gentleman in Aberge says "I am very much pleased with the Shirt sent. It is without exception the cheapest I ever saw."

A Medical Man in Perth says "The sample Shirt gives every satisfaction, a perfect fit. Please send me a similar ½ dozen."

No1. Quality 2s/3d each, 3 for 6s/6d; 6 for 13/-.
No2. Extra Heavy 2s/11d each, 3 for 8s/6, 6 for 17/-.
By Post 3d Extra For 1, 4d for 2, 6d for 3, 9d for 6.

HENRY BLYTH 19 & 24 Earl Grey St EDINBURGH.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.

No. 928.] LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1887. REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

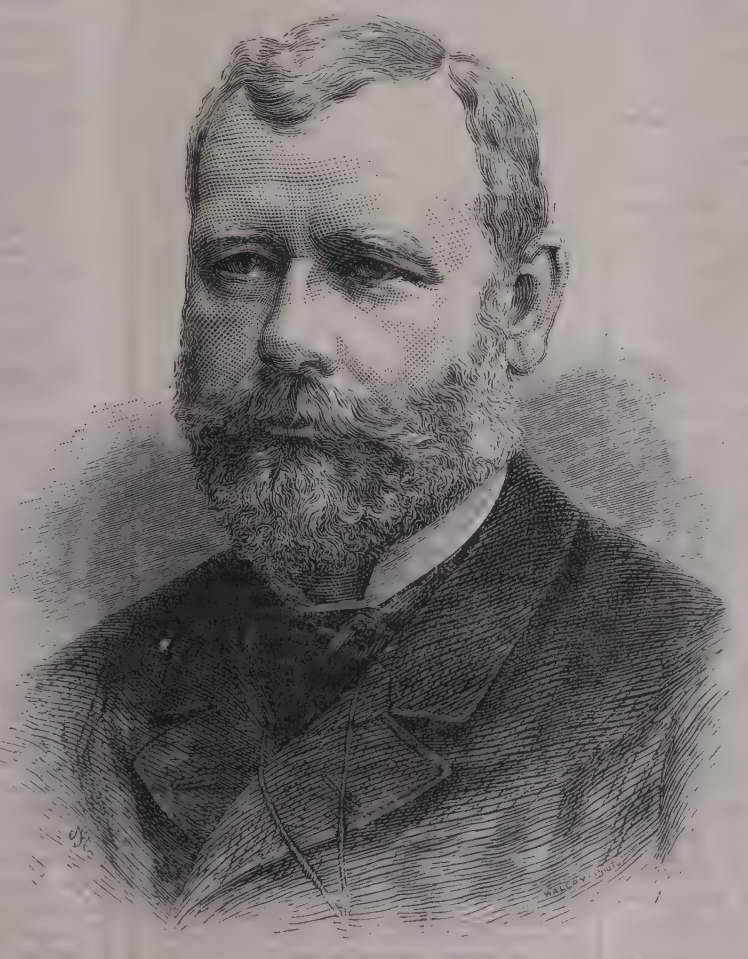
REV. JOHN MACKENZIE:

Missionary and Statesman.

IF proof were needed of the many-sided nature of foreign mission work, and the diversified gifts sometimes required in its performance, the history and character of the eminent missionary whose portrait we give to-day would amply supply it. While saying this, we fully admit that comparatively few missionaries are called on to adopt the course which Mr. Mackenzie has pursued, with such credit to himself as a Christian man, and such benefits to those for whom he has worked so nobly and endured so much.

JOHN MACKENZIE was born at Knockando, N B., in 1835. After a course of study at the London Missionary Society's Institution at Bedford, he was appointed to the mission which Dr. Livingstone proposed to establish among the Makololo, on the banks of the Zambesi river. Having married Miss Ellen Douglas, of Portobello, N.B., he sailed for Africa on June 6, 1858.

He is a man worth looking at. The closer you scrutinise his honest, manly face, and note the goodly proportions of his figure, the more you become impressed with the wisdom which selected him for African mission work, where ability and great powers of endurance are essentials to success. Every line of that seared brow tells of patient toil. Those watchful eyes shine with a calmness quite judicial, while his general attitude bespeaks a determination to suspend judgment until the subject under consideration has been thoroughly examined. Such a presence naturally inspires confidence. It is not a matter for wonder that the Bechuana chiefs should seek his aid in administering justice among their tribes, and that the people should willingly submit; or that when stronger races surged across their borders, and by craft settled on their land, that this missionary, who for twenty-five years had been moral guide and spiritual father, should be appealed to for help and protection. It is from his action in helping the people to whom his life has been devoted, that an impression has arisen among many Christian friends that Mr. Mackenzie is a politician first and a missionary afterwards. The following references to his mission work may serve to correct this mistaken view of the matter.



(From Photograph by Mr. Walery, Regent-street, London, W.

The feelings of the young missionary as he first entered upon his work, are best described in his own words:—

> In our quiet moments, when our minds were calmed and our souls hushed, a Presence stole upon us, and a Voice addressed us,...Those words thrilled our hearts as fresh and real utterances of the present: "Preach the Gospel to every creature; lo, I am with you alway" "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me."

Events were not propitious to the commencement of the proposed missions among the Matebele and the Makololo. The Transvaal Boers had been fighting the natives on their borders, and their Government sent a letter warning Dr. Moffat not to establish those missions until he had received the sanction of the President of their Republic. Before the Makololo Mission could be started the tribe had to be persuaded to migrate from the swamp in which they lived to the other side of the Zambesi, whence they had been driven by their enemies. Some of the brethren thought it right not to take their families until this was done. Both expeditions started: that for the Matebele under Dr. Moffat, and the other for the Makololo, led by Mr. Helmore; whilst Mr. Mackenzie was left in charge of Kuruman Station, and to take up supplies the following year. The year spent alone was eagerly used for active mission work; the language was mastered, and a further knowledge of medicine obtained.

The time soon came when supplies should be taken to the Makololo Mission, and Mr. Mackenzie left Kuruman on May 25, 1860. All the people were heartily sorry at his departure. The journey northwards was most trying. At several places he found traces of Mr. Helmore's expedition, and also heard rumours of disaster, which he refused to credit. The Bushmen and other desert tribes tried several times to divert him from what seemed to them a useless and dangerous journey. At length the Bushmen of Mokantse at Maila held a long conference, and by an astute manœuvre led Mr. Mackenzie to the River Zouga. There he met his colleague, Rev. Roger Price, with two of Mr. Helmore's children, the only survivors of the expedition, and learnt from his lips the sad story of fever and death. He also learnt that the Makololo were unwilling to do as Dr.

Livingstone expected—viz., remove from Linyanti to the north bank of the Zambesi.

They partly retraced their steps to Cape Colony, and Mr. Mackenzie was appointed to Shoshong, the largest native town in Africa, where he spent fourteen years in active, eventful service. Attacks from the Matebele, and intrigues and fights between the chief Sekhome, his sons, and other chiefs, were of frequent occurrence. But the work of enlightenment went on apace. Through evil report and good report the steadfast missionary pursued his way.

In 1863 Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. John S. Moffat visited the wily old chief Moselekatse, at Inyati. This Matebele Mission had been established by Messrs. Sykes and Thomas, who went there in 1859 under the guidance of the veteran Dr. Moffat, for whom Moselekatse had a great regard. An interesting account of this people may be found in Mr. Mackenzie's book, "Daydawn in Dark Places," published by Messrs. Cassell & Co. We regret we cannot closely follow this part of Mr. Mackenzie's career, or make more than passing mention of the Christian chief Khame, now the most powerful of the Bechuana chieftains. He has been called by Sir Charles Warren "one of nature's true gentlemen."

In 1872 Mr. Mackenzie commenced to train candidates for a Bechuana native ministry. This class of students was, in 1876, removed to Kuruman, where buildings have been erected for them, and called "The Moffat Institution." Mr. Mackenzie was appointed the Tutor, and also the Pastor of the Kuruman Church. He felt leaving Shoshong very much, and writes:—

> In my retirement I craved that wherever the lessons which I ventured to teach in the name of Christ fell short of what He Himself would have given at Shoshong, He would mercifully forgive and lead his servant into full obedience to his will,

Mr. Mackenzie, with his family, visited England in 1867. He again returned on furlough in 1882, when the course of public events compelled him to champion the cause of the natives against the freebooters and Boers, who were land-grabbing as fast as possible in Bechuanaland, in the absence of a regular government. It is a noteworthy fact that Mr. Mackenzie was the first to write about the praiseworthy traits in the Boer's character. Doubtless the success which has attended his policy owes much to the moderation and fairness with which he has urged it forward. This policy was that the whole of Bechuanaland should be taken under the protection of England, and that the same legal and political rights should be given to the black population as were enjoyed by the white men. It had the approval of all the missionary societies and of the Christian churches in South Africa; many members of the Episcopal Church being his strongest supporters. The policy of those who oppose this is, step by step, to disfranchise the coloured people, and to create two hostile parties in South Africa—a black and a white one.

A British protectorate was proclaimed, and Mr. Mackenzie was appointed by the British Government Deputy Commissioner in Bechuanaland. In March, 1884, he left England to carry out his peaceful projects. How far he succeeded, and the way in which he was thwarted, has been most ably told by him in the book, "Austral Africa: Losing it or Ruling it," recently issued by Messrs. Sampson Low & Co. In consequence of the objections raised by the Colonial Ministry at Cape Town, and the Government of the Transvaal, to Mr. Mackenzie being retained as Deputy Commissioner, he resigned that position in August, 1884. A Special Commissioner, Sir Charles Warren, was then appointed by the British Government, and an armed force placed under him. Sir Charles succeeded in making his military expedition one of peace. In this he was assisted by Mr. Mackenzie, whom he had wisely asked to join him.

We rejoice to know that progress is now being made in those territories where for so many years Mr. Mackenzie and his brethren have laboured as messengers of the Gospel of peace. The natives also are glad to hear the new law proclaimed—viz., "The prairie lands are the Queen's, but the cultivated lands remain the possession of their native owners." Mr. Mackenzie affirms that the chief Khame spoke the views of all his followers when he said:—

> In that case the white men are welcome; let them come and bring rain with them; for we, too, shall be the children of the Queen, and she will give us sleep.

Who will venture to say, after reading Mr. Mackenzie's books, that he has in any sense turned aside from the way of God? He has preached the Gospel to the heathen, and taught them how to tell it to their neighbours. He has defended the weak against the strong. He has protected the native from the unjust aggressor, and, having done with all his might the work set by God for him to do, we know it is with "a conscience void of offence" that he says, in closing his latest book: "I have addressed myself to the humanity and love of justice, the wisdom and conscious strength of a great nation. I sow in good soil what I know to be good seed; and now leave its fructifying to Him from whom all growth comes." On a succeeding page we give some further notice of this valuable work.

WOMAN'S MISSION TO WOMEN.—Mr. F. A. Bevan, 54, Lombard-street, E.C., writes:—The disgraceful condition of our streets at night, and the ever-increasing amount of juvenile prostitution must cause shame and sorrow to every Christian in the land. None can shut their eyes to this terrible state of things; but while there may be a difference of opinion as to the causes of the evil, there can be none as to the importance of providing, if possible, a remedy for this plague-spot of immorality. The "Female Mission to the Fallen," after an experience of twenty-nine years, continues to send forth its missionaries night by night, as the committee is more than ever convinced that so far as the rescue of individuals from a life of sin and shame is concerned, no method is so successful as the personal influence of loving, devoted, Christian women. In faith, hope, and charity, the missionaries toil on, not without real encouragement. May I earnestly appeal to you to help the committee to maintain and increase this Christlike work of seeking out and saving the lost ones.

UNDERTONES.

When the cloudless sun of summer
  Pours a flood of liquid gold
On the blue and glassy ocean,
  On the green and flowery wold;
When the bee hums round the blossom,
  When the bird sings by its nest,
Underneath the joyous throbbing
Breathes a smothered tone of sobbing—
  Weary sobbing after rest.

For these sunny skies shall darken,
  And the sea's wild billows flow,
And the leaves shall fall and moulder
  In a shroud of winter's snow;
And the voice of song shall falter;
  So there's sighing in the breast
Of a world in blindness praying
For a beauty undecaying,
  And a true abiding rest.

And, however well we love them,
  Those dear faces young and hale
In the breath of time must wither,
  At the touch of death must pale;
Soon we leave them, or they leave us—
  These, our beautiful and best!
For the doom of death has bound us;
There are tombstones all around us,
  And this world is not our rest.

Hark! responsive to this wailing
  Comes a tender voice from One:
"I can meet this world-wide longing,
  Change life's bitter undertone."
It is Christ, the nations' Healer,
  And the balm for souls distressed;
For the craving heart, perfection,
For the dead, a resurrection,
  For the weary spirit, rest.

And his witnesses are crying:
  "Now the blood of Christ can save,
And communion with his Spirit
  Is the bliss you blindly crave!
On his breast, for sinners bleeding,
  When your bleeding soul is pressed,
You re-enter Eden's portal,
And regain the tree immortal,
  And the rapture and the rest."

Here our skies may change and darken,
  But there's cloudless light before;
Here our friends and we must sever,
  But we'll meet on yonder shore.
There foundations never totter,
  And no partings wring the breast;
And the beauty fadeth never,
And the song is sung for ever
  In the home of endless rest.

Donemana, Ireland. J. K.

◆

PARIS CITY MISSION.

This Mission is to Paris what the City Mission i to our own metropolis, so far as this is possibl with the great disproportion between the numbe of missionaries employed. In all the city o Paris there are only eight! and some time sinc it was necessary to discontinue the services o two for want of funds. When it is remembere that Paris does not possess a tenth of the evan gelical privileges which London enjoys, the dis proportion becomes greatly magnified. Th missionaries are appointed to aid pastors wh are willing to contribute a third of the expense and it is painful to state that eight application from pastors have been long deferred—one o these for seven years.

Last year nearly eight thousand visits wer paid by the missionaries to the homes of th people; while 1400 meetings were held, with a attendance of over 100,000. And this besides large distribution of tracts and Gospels, as wel as Bibles and Testaments, many of which latte were sold. The report, and all other informatio can be obtained of Mr. J. M. Weylland, hon sec., 31, Carlton-hill, St. John's Wood, S.W.

WHAT HINDERS THE BLESSING.

By Rev. ALFRED NORRIS.

AN ADDRESS TO MINISTERS,

Delivered at the Hammersmith Conference.

The name of our hindrances is legion. To all of them we are all more or less subject. Some of the most common may be classified thus:—(1) What we find in ourselves. (2) What we have to face in our churches.

I. What we find in ourselves:

(1) There may be a want of fidelity in prayer.—It is not that prayer is neglected or disesteemed. But there may not be that continuance in prayer which, like Jacob wrestling, wins the blessing. Nor that opening of our natures in prayer, which enables God "to search us and see if there be any evil in us," as the sunlight searches the field, or the wind the deep places of the forest. Even in prayer we may keep doors closed upon a secret sin, and refuse to let Him cast it out, and "lead us in the way everlasting."

(2) There may be a want of fidelity to conscience.—We may refuse to listen to the finer whispers and monitions of God's vicegroy in our bosoms. We may blight and pervert our moral sensibilities in their tenderest places; and so hinder their full growth and fruitfulness. We may forget Paul's word, "To him that esteemeth anything to be unclean it is unclean." And again, "Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that which he alloweth."

(3) There may be want of fidelity to the Scriptures.—Biblical criticism may have disturbed our faith, or, at least, caused us to suspend our opinions, on the authority of this or that portion. But the Word of God is still there. And the will of God is still there. And the salvation of God is still shown there. Woe unto us if we preach our own fancies, and opinions, and theories, and not the Gospel.

(4) There may be want of fidelity to ourselves.—What different men we may be in the pulpit and in the home. In the one hopeful and buoyant; in the other gloomy and despondent. In this one full of saintly counsels; in the other full of ill-temper, tyranny, peevishness, and spite. If our wives, and children, and servants, told out all they knew of us, would our congregations afterwards esteem us so highly, or accept us as such reliable leaders in life and teachers of truth?

(5) There may be want of fidelity in our subjects of private conversation amongst our people.—They will talk readily enough to us about art, science, literature, and the new things of the ever new day. And this is well. God forbid we should lose our interest in this. But are we sufficiently on the alert to catch opportunities for a word on religion? Are we sufficiently interested in the people to esteem their spiritual interests as being ever supreme. Are we always eager enough or brave enough with the "word in season" which is so good?

(6) There may be attempts to do most, that for which the Holy Spirit has not fitted us most.—"There are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit." "God hath set some in the church apostles, prophets, teachers, helps, governments." We may over-esteem conversion and under-esteem edification. There is a closer connection between edified saints and converted sinners than perhaps we think. One helps the other. Let us understand what our gift is and exercise that. "One man soweth and another reapeth." We shall thus all help the harvest.

(7) There may be an undue and exaggerated care for our families.—On many ministers' hearts there must lie a heavy burden as to how they shall find food, raiment, education for their children; how secure some adequate provision for their wives. Many of our churches are verily to blame here. Still, if we be faithful to our Lord in our work, may we not appropriate the old promise, "Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive, and let thy widows trust in Me." And, if we ourselves presently find our only refuge in the workhouse, the memory of good work and the presence of the loving Master will enable us at least to bear its ghastliness and its gloom.

II. What we have to face in our churches:

(1) The late hours of labour, and the intense devotion to pleasure.—The first is the peril of the poorer people; the second is the peril of the richer people. They are both exhausting and paralysing to the spiritual nature. Many forget that they have spiritual natures and spiritual destinies. They come to church outworn by the work and pleasure carried on all the week and till so late on Saturday. They have no ear for God's Word, no heart for God's message. How in such assemblies can "the Word of God have free course and be glorified"?

(2) The extreme attention now paid to mere personal, sensual comfort in places of worship.—How easy are the hours, how soft the seats, how warm the air. The music must be without a mistake. The sermon, whatever its subject, must be short. If it is "beautiful" no inquiry is made as to whether it is useful. The old idea of meeting together to worship God is giving place to the new idea of hearing man. And this must be a change for the worse.

(3) The treatment that Sunday now receives at the hands of its friends and foes.—By semi-use, mis-use, non-use, it is in peril of passing from us. The whole world is being given up to clamour of toil, whirl of pleasure. For many there is no pause in which, like Elijah, they may hear the "still, small voice;" no seclusion in which, like John, they may be "in the spirit on the Lord's Day."

(4) The excessive newspaper and magazine-reading which distinguishes our day.—This tends to over-load and enfeeble the mind; to dissipate its reasoning powers; to indispose us to graver and more sustained efforts of thought.

(5) There are unbalanced and inharmonious marriages.—I mean by this the union of men and women of different religious trainings and convictions. The evils of such unions between Protestants and Roman Catholics are manifest enough. The evils of such unions between members of the Free Church and the Established Church ought also to be manifest. It means sometimes that religious worship is given up altogether. Or that conviction is given up to convenience, and that one agrees to accept the church of the other—generally the church selected being the most favoured and influential. Or that they separate on Sundays, man and wife each going their own way; or that they agree to a compromise and attend, say, the Established Church in the morning and the Free Church in the evening. All of this is weakening to the moral nature, casts a slight upon the august properties of religion, trifles with personal responsibility, and prevents that individual and family devotion which is so helpful in our churches.

(6) There is the isolation of Christians and the reticence of speech upon spiritual matters among themselves.—People will talk together eagerly and earnestly about art, science, travel, trade. How shy they are about religion. They have a knowledge of God and of his goodness; but they hoard it as misers their gold. Surely such knowledge is for spending. How many a young man might be saved from unbelief if his employer spoke to him. How many a young woman might be saved from temptation by vile men if her mistress spoke to her kindly and wisely, and lived what she said. How many a mother of a family, crushed to the earth with cares, might be lifted up by a word of spiritual comfort. How many a business man on the verge of suicide might be helped to healthier thoughts by a word in season, in the railway carriage, or the counting-house. "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another." "Exhort one another daily whilst it is called today."

(7) The blessing often is hindered because we nourish false expectations of what it really is and where it may be found.—It is spiritual and not material. Internal and not external. Yet how eager we are after material and external things. We desire money, fine clothes, fine houses, accomplishments for our children, personal rest and retirement for ourselves in old age. But none of these things are promised to the saints and workers of the New Covenant. To be born again, to have our spirits strengthened so that they shall govern the flesh, to have our spirits fertilised so that they may bring forth fruit, to have our spirits instructed so that we may win our fellows into the kingdom of God and the Church of our Saviour Christ—in the power for this, and the delight in this, the blessing shall be found.

In our respect for fashion and custom we are in danger all of us of forgetting that "the fashion of this world passeth away," "but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever." In our possession of so much safety and certainty for life in travel and trade we are in danger of forgetting to say, "if the Lord will, we will do this or that," and that, "our life is but a vapour that appeareth for a little while and then vanisheth away." In our eagerness to see fine pictures and great people we forget that the prime blessedness, after all, is that of "the pure in heart, for they shall see God." In our childish mourning over misfortune and loss, or narrowed circumstances, we forget that although "the foxes have holes, and the birds of the air nests, yet the Son of Man had not where to lay his head;" and that we, too, like all who preceded us, are "but pilgrims and strangers upon the earth."

Is not this devotion to the material, and absorption in the external, one of the commonest and chiefest hindrances to the blessing that, if we were wiser in our ambitions, would most surely come?

EASTBOURNE.—The death is announced of Rev. H. Paddon, incumbent of Emmanuel Church, Eastbourne. The loss of this Christian man is deeply felt by his devoted congregation; and it is earnestly hoped that, through the appointment of a minister of decided evangelical views, the work may be conducted on the same lines as hitherto.

TRACTS FOR CENTRAL AMERICA.—Rev. Anton Arbeiter, Moravian Missionary, Blewfields, Moskito Coast, will be glad of a supply of tracts for distribution. He writes, "It is a real pleasure to distribute them. When I do so in the street, so many persons immediately gather round that I could hold an open-air service." The fact that large numbers of infidel papers from the United States are being circulated in the country makes the necessity for good evangelical Gospel literature the more urgent.

SCOTTISH MINISTERIAL TRAINING.

Dear Sir,—It has long been a source of concern to many, how it comes about that so large a proportion of the earnest evangelistic work of the present day is done outside of the church as assembled in organised bodies. Now where there is an effect there must be a cause or causes, and to inquire into some of these is the purpose of this letter.

First, then, I would notice there must be something about the modern system of organisation at fault, for the Apostolic Church appears to have been quite fit as a body to conduct evangelistic enterprise, as we read in Acts viii. 4, "They that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the Word."

Any candid person will acknowledge that were one of our average modern churches to be "scattered," preaching the Word is what probably not one of the members would attempt, although in some of the best churches there might be one or two who would do so.

But, further, it is not only the ordinary members who are outside this soul-saving evangelistic work, but a vast majority of the pastors are quite as much so. This latter statement may appear rather strong to some, but the writer is not speaking at haphazard, but from a long experience. If proof is needed, let any Christian capable of dealing with spiritual things visit a village that has not come within the sweep of modern evangelism, one that has been wholly left to the "ordinary means."

In such a village I could almost guarantee he will scarcely find a single young man a Christian; very few of the people who take almost any interest in spiritual things; and probably not more than one or two who have anything like assurance of salvation: in some cases not one of the latter class.

He would also generally find there was no real prayer-meeting in the place; in some cases not even a form, in others a meeting at which the minister preaches a short sermon and engages in prayer; but anything like a real, united waiting upon God will seldom be found.

Now, sir, I do not think the faults are wholly the fruit of a bad system or systems, as, during Apostolic times, there was a Laodicean individual church, as there is at present a widely spread laxity. Nevertheless, two points in our modern system strike me as being awfully out of joint, and until these are reformed I believe that matters will remain as they are, and that real spiritual work must continue to be carried on outside the organisations; this state of things being prefigured in Exodus xxxiii. 7, when "Every one which sought the Lord went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation which was pitched (at that time) without the camp."

The first point I refer to is the admission of unconverted people into membership. So bad is the state of things, that many churches consist almost wholly of these spiritual corpses, with a mere sprinkling of Christians.

I ask, what general would go to battle with such a proportion in the ranks of dead men, or enemies rather, for every unconverted person is certainly an enemy to God. The second point is the professional manufacture of ministers. A person said to an earnest evangelist, "I am going to make my son a minister." Said the evangelist, ironically, "And I am going to make mine a poet." In nine cases out of ten, the "making a minister" is as successful as the proposed making of a poet would have been. Going to college, &c., no doubt, may teach a man how to spin religious yarns, as the sailors would say, but it will never make a man a real spiritual worker. The whole system of "minister making" is wrong from the foundation, and until it is reformed the mass of the so-called ministers will remain, so far as spiritual work is concerned—useless.

Notwithstanding what I have written, I believe that many truly converted young men seek the ministry for the sake of serving God, and not for mere professional ends, and it is just with these that the greatest havoc is wrought by the present system. Many such go into college with earnest desires, and come out mere professionalists. The reason of this is that the training is all of a theoretical kind, whereas it should be mainly the other way; the practical, spiritual work should be first, the intellectual culture second.

My experience is, that earnest young men, whatever their talents may be or may not be, if properly handled, all turn out soul-winners, but the training most in vogue turns them into mere professionalists.—Yours very truly,

William Gourlay.

P.S.—My experience with regard to the state of villages has been mainly in Scotland.

Bellwood, St. Allan's-road, Edinburgh.

◆

REVIVING AT NEWPORT.

A Christian friend, writing from this Monmouthshire town, says:—

You will be glad to know that the Nonconformist ministers of this town, having felt for long that much spiritual torpor lay upon the churches, resolved to meet together for prayer and humble confession of their and their people's sin and failure, and to ask the Lord to send revivings. The week ending October 29 was set apart for this. From 12 to 1 each day they met alone, and experienced that "the Lord was at hand." They then convened a united prayer-meeting of all Christians for Saturday at the close of the day's services in the Albert Hall. It is said the audience numbered nearly nine hundred, and this in face of heavy rain showers. It was a truly blessed season—the Lord was there. For about an hour and a half the earnest and believing cry went up that the Lord would make bare his holy arm in the sight of all the people, and revive us again, that we might rejoice in Him.

The immediate outcome is that in three chapels a week's special Gospel services began on October 31, we ask prayer that much blessing may descend, that consecrating and converting grace may abound, and that our thanksgivings, which now go up for the former rain, may also go up for the latter rain.

In a subsequent letter our correspondent says:—"Very earnest Gospel services have been held in three of the chapels during the past week, when the pastors sought to stir up their flocks to more consecrated service for God, and to arouse the careless and indifferent."

MEDICAL PRAYER UNION.—The annual meeting of this Union was held at the Memorial Hall, on October 28. The chair was taken by Dr. Herbert Watney. The annual report having been read by Mr. C. F. Harford Battersby, the chairman introduced Major Owen Hay who gave a most helpful and earnest address on the words, "Out of his fulness have we received grace for grace." Surgeon-Major Lachford, Rev. — Forman, Dr. George Saunders, Dr. Heywood-Smith and others, also spoke briefly. There were about eighty medical men and medical students present, including several gentlemen who hold appointments at the Metropolitan hospitals. This was the most successful meeting that has been held for many years.

F. A. Pring, Hon. Sec.

London Medical Mission, 47, Endell-st., W.C.

AMERICAN NOTES.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Philadelphia, that sedate city of homes and families, is just now in a whirl o excitement over the aggressiveness of a new Order called "The Personal Liberty League." The Presbyterian Synod o Pennsylvania in its present session explains, in its preamble and resolutions, the object of the League:—

> The Personal Liberty League, whose organisations are now found in most of our large cities and towns, is simply a new form of organised effort t dethrone the Bible and all the sanctities of ou religion. It is infidelity in disguise. Under th plausible pretext of "personal liberty"—whic must ever be subordinated to the public welfar and obedience to law—it proposes the most unrestricted licence in questions affecting the best interests of the Church and the nation. Its avowe object is two-fold: (1) To expunge from th Statute Book of our Commonwealth and the natio —by public opinion and State legislation—th great law of the Sabbath. (2) To repeal by th same methods the law recently enacted, an presently in force; and to resist all other legislation restraining the manufacture and sale o intoxicating liquors.

* * * *

On a recent Sunday the pulpits of th city rang with protests and appeals. A the ministers' meetings on Monday morning the League was the subject of discussio and of resolutions. In fact, the religiou people are thoroughly alarmed at th daring assumptions of this most recen development of lawlessness. Enrolle under the banner are brewers, and liquo dealers, distillers, and drunkards, many o whom are extreme Anarchists, while Socialistic theories are universally held. Th few decent politicians are also frightened as the League will vote for no man who wil not support and carry out their purposes They have abundant means with which t purchase legislation, and there are Statesmen found whose hands are ever open t proffered gold.

* * * *

These facts call out the supreme indignation of all worthy citizens, while th churches are awakening from the dream self-satisfaction that the Millennium ha already dawned upon the country. The now begin to realise that unregenerat human nature, in its awful developmen under Satanic influence, is close at han in terrible forms of unappeased ferocity.

* * * *

The Synod referred to above has passe the following resolutions:—

> (1) That we recognise in the Personal Libert League a new form of organised effort for th destruction of the Sabbath and the enthronemen of the saloon.
>
> (2) That the avowed purpose and defiant spiri of this organisation should awaken the solicitud of Christian people and all good citizens, and cal forth their best efforts to resist its encroachment.
>
> (3) That we counsel the people under our ca to exert their influence for the right and to stan by our heritage of civil and religious freedom.

* * * *

Rev. J. S. Woodside, of Northern Indi one of the missionaries of Lodiana wh originated the week of prayer, is again o our side of the water. During his visit i London he had been presented, on thre different occasions, in company with th Indian princes, to Her Majesty the Quee There, also, he was called to part with hi beloved wife, who had given her life t Christian work in India. Our brother path is truly lonely. Mr. Woodside is devoted missionary, a man of singular consecration, of extreme modesty, and witha of unflinching loyalty to the Gospel. Soon again he hopes to return to the fields abroad, which he has sought to cultivate for forty years. These are the men the King delights to honour. May God sustain his bereaved servant, and fill his hands with the fruits of his labours.

* * * *

"Our Country," by Rev. Joseph Strong, and Dr. Pierson's "Crisis of Missions," are creating new interest in home and foreign evangelisation. We have been told by a reliable brother, that a friend of his hopes to purchase 100,000 copies of Dr. Strong's book for gratuitous circulation among preachers and people. The Secretary of the Southern Baptist Board of Foreign Missions would prefer these books to scatter throughout the South, on behalf of home and foreign missions, than a gift of £20,000 to the Board. When evil agents are so intensely active in spreading literature which destroys both soul and body, surely the people of God should also be on the alert, and scatter broadcast every helpful book which tends to stimulate thought, comfort the heart, and enlighten the understanding.

◆

A CHEERING MESSAGE.

DEAR SIR,—Having been a subscriber and constant reader of THE REVIVAL (now THE CHRISTIAN) in this far-off land for the last eighteen years, I need not say how often I have got my soul blessed whilst perusing its interesting pages. I have thought it might be interesting and also cheering to you to let you know a little of some conversation I had with a man lately employed at one of the lighthouses in Bass's Straits, on the route from Tasmania to Victoria, &c.

I supply several of the men at the different lighthouses in the Straits with provisions, and have made it a practice of enclosing, in their cases of goods sent, a copy of THE CHRISTIAN, thinking and praying that its perusal might be made a blessing to some on these isolated spots in the Southern Seas. Speaking to this dear man about his soul and what provision he was making for another world (he had come to town on leave), his reply was, "Well, sir, you remember in a certain month sending my supplies down, you put a copy of THE CHRISTIAN in the case." I said, "Yes." "Well, through reading some of the articles in that CHRISTIAN on that lone island, I decided there and then to give my heart to God. Since then I have enjoyed a peace that I never enjoyed before, and, thank God, the world cannot rob me of that peace." And so we rejoiced together. For intelligence, he is above the ordinary stamp of men that go as lighthouse keepers. I thought this might not be uninteresting to you and many of your readers.

Spiritually, things are not over cheering here, still we have cause for thankfulness. Dr. Dale, of Birmingham, has just spent one Sabbath in Hobart on his way to Adelaide; his preaching was listened to by large and appreciative congregations. It is a treat to us to hear some of those English divines.—Yours,

GEO. HIDDLESTONE.

Elizabeth-street, Hobart, Tasmania, Sept. 7.

LADIES AND RAILWAY-MEN.—A ladies' auxiliary has been formed in connection with the Railway Mission, the members of which agree to pray for railway-men and their families, and to send regularly some Gospel literature to a railway station in the United Kingdom every month. This will cost, with postage, only a few pence monthly. Mr. D. Spencer, the secretary, is anxious for volunteers for this interesting and simple work, which occupies very little time per month. Many who are thus engaged speak in warmest terms of the joy which it gives them. The address of the Mission is 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

OUR SOUTH AFRICAN EMPIRE.*

"LOSING it or ruling it" is the question propounded and answered by Rev. John Mackenzie in two volumes which are full of the most varied and soul-stirring information. In reading them you are conscious of being carried through important questions by a vigorous mind which has thought long and deeply upon this great land and its inhabitants. His conclusions are enforced by the consideration that he has had unequalled opportunities of learning the facts, and that few, if any, have the same extensive acquaintance with the subject.

The name "Austral Africa" means that portion of the continent which lies south of the Equator, but Mr. Mackenzie applies it to the land south of the great river Zambesi. The publication of this book marks a distinct epoch in the history of South Africa. Here we have laid out before us as in a great panorama an exact account of this portion of the Dark Continent while passing through a most critical period. The burden of the book is the effect which the various changes in government have produced, and there is brought in to elucidate it, a large amount of its history, tribal relationship, native ideas and ways, as well as the effect of mission work and European influence.

Some interesting information respecting the probable region of Ophir, from whence King Solomon obtained great quantities of gold, is given in the first chapter. The account of the mission station at Kurman, as represented "in peace and in war," will doubtless expand the ideas of many as to the position in which a missionary is often compelled to stand with regard to the natives, in addition to that of a spiritual teacher. It is strange to find in a book which treats much of fighting, some beautiful teaching on the sanctity of peace and the use of force in the defence of those of whom events have made us the protectors.

We cannot in a brief notice follow the serpentine windings of policy on the part of the Home Government and Sir H. Robinson, the High Commissioner for South Africa. A British Protectorate of Bechuanaland was virtually forced on the Home Government, by the anarchy that followed the absence of any supreme ruling power. Mr. Mackenzie was asked to establish this protectorate. Yet at every turn he was checked by the halting way in which Sir H. Robinson proceeded. The High Commissioner not only thwarted the sound and righteous policy of the Deputy Commissioner, but actually employed others to undo the work. Mr. Mackenzie, of course, resigned, and the British Government organised the Bechuanaland expedition, and appointed Sir Charles Warren to its command. On arriving in the country he found Mr. Mackenzie was right and Sir Hercules Robinson was wrong, so he telegraphed for Mr. Mackenzie to join him in the pacification of the country. The whole affair was, at bottom, an attempt of powerful and interested parties to rob the natives of their lands and their civil rights. The schemers found, however, both in Sir Charles Warren and in Mr. Mackenzie, just and able opponents. In spite of the mistrust shown at first, they succeeded in convincing the colonists and natives that the British Government meant to adhere to their pledges. It seems plain, at the same time, that under the openly announced policy of shielding Bechuanaland, the British Cabinet had a secret intent of handing over the country to the Cape Government. This responsibility, however, the Colonial Cabinet refused to assume. Sir Charles Warren and Mr. Mackenzie succeeded in laying the foundation of righteous and peaceful rule—no easy task where the interests were so varied and conflicting. If they have not received at the hands of the Government the recognition they so fully deserve, we believe they will secure the highest approbation of all unofficial persons who know the facts and are not swayed by prejudice.

Mr. Mackenzie's narrative is highly commendable in this respect, that, while dealing largely with contentious matter, it is manifestly written in a fair and generous spirit. There is no railing, no calling names; wherever it is possible, praise is given to those spoken about, even when Mr. Mackenzie is opposed to their general course of procedure. In these pages there is a lofty political morality, an unswerving adherence to principle, a fearless advocacy of humane and righteous action in dealing with the native races, and a high sense of the honour and duty of Great Britain. It is the work of a truly Christian statesman, who deserves the best thanks of all the British Churches.

These volumes, as a whole, are chiefly concerned with broad questions of national policy; but, in playing the statesman, Mr. Mackenzie never forgets, and never seeks to conceal the fact, that he has been and may again be a Christian missionary. Wherever opportunity offers, he throws aside the dignity of high political office and ministers in spiritual things. Everything is viewed from the Christian standpoint; and to this must surely be attributed the high favour that he found with the native chiefs and their followers, and the influence he was able to exercise upon them.

On the question of the drink traffic in Africa, we are glad to see Mr. Mackenzie speaks with no uncertain voice. In the second volume (p. 262) he quotes a strong and well-known protest made by the chief Khame against permitting his people to be demoralised by the introduction of intoxicating drink, in defiance of native law and custom. Commenting on this Mr. Mackenzie says:—

> As was to be expected, the attitude of Khame with reference to Cape brandy and other strong drink, though approved by Sir Charles Warren, was met with hostile criticism, and even jeers, by Cape politicians, who have since removed all hindrances and taxes on the free production and sale of spirits in the Cape Colony. But, thank God, this matter is in the hands of Her Majesty's Government; that is, in the hands of the English people, and the question is, Is Bechuanaland to be flooded with strong drink, against the wish of those chiefs and people from whom we receive jurisdiction there? These matters must be taken in hand in England and Scotland, and must be seen through by lovers of justice and fair play, who have the true prosperity of Africa at heart.

Mr. Mackenzie hopes, in closing his book, that many of his countrymen will play a part in the peaceful colonisation of the fair lands of Austral Africa; and that he may live to see it taking its due position among the nations of the world. We hope he himself may yet, in some way, be a leading and honoured instrument in bringing about that result. The attractions of these goodly volumes, we may add, are enhanced by portraits of the author and Sir Charles Warren, by excellent maps of the country, and a number of illustrations.

THE ANTI-SUNDAY-TRAVELLING UNION would appear to be a most energetic body, and one highly deserving support. It now numbers some six or eight thousand members, having been in existence for about three years. Numerous pamphlets and leaflets have been prepared and circulated, and meetings have been held in various parts of the country. The offices of the Union are at 18, Christchurch-road, Brondesbury, N.W.

KENSAL TOWN, N.W.—For some years a very real work for God has been carried on in a quiet way amongst the dense masses of working people who inhabit this district. The Lord has been abundantly blessing, and from amongst the people a bright band of workers has gathered together, who take part in open-air meetings. The Gospel Mission House, Appleford-road, is the centre of the work, which is entirely undenominational. Gospel and temperance meetings, mothers' and childrens' meetings, and a sewing-class for girls are held, and part of the house is devoted to a crèche. The necessity for a larger room for meetings is greatly felt, so ground has been secured for an iron hall to seat five hundred. It is estimated that the cost will be £455, of which £380 has already come in. Help is much needed for general expenses, and especially for giving children's dinners, giving soup and assisting in cases of sickness, and real need. Old or new clothes, toys for the crèche, and tracts for distribution will be gratefully received by Miss Thompson, 11, Adair-road, Kensal Town, N.W.

---

* AUSTRAL AFRICA: LOSING IT OR RULING IT. By JOHN MACKENZIE. Two vols. 32s. Sampson Low & Co.

THREE LINES AND A BIT.

BY PASTOR GEORGE SOLTAU.

IN the spring of 1884, I was in America, holding a series of missions in and around New York city. During a mission at M——, I was one morning accosted by a tall, thin, cadaverous-looking fellow, in the street, with, "Is your name Soltau?"

"Yes, that is my name. What is yours?"

"There's my name, over my store," pointing to his place of business.

"B——, is it? I knew that name in the old country well enough."

"Yes, I think my brother knows your brother."

In a few moments we were good friends over the brothers' friendship; and then I asked him further what might be the reason of his desiring conversation with me.

"Well," said he, "I am in the dark, my mind is much distressed; and I thought, possibly, you might be able to help me. Perhaps I had better first tell you a little of my history. I have been over here for about ten years. I left my home to free myself from all restraint, and get away from religious influences. I just hated religion. I wasn't inclined that way a bit; and, like many other foolish young fellows, I determined to have a fling on my own hook, and so off I came. I must tell you the honest truth. I am practically an atheist. Though I haven't publicly avowed myself as such, my life has been such. I have blotted God out of my thoughts and out of my mind altogether, and have gone ahead as if there was no God—in fact, tried to persuade myself there was no God at all! I didn't get on very well—had to push my way against tremendous difficulties; and at length settled here into this business. I have a good wife, and have done pretty well, considering; but somehow, lately, I have been awfully troubled in my mind. I'm all in the dark, you know—can't see my way a bit. Somehow the thought will force its way in, that there is a God—that I shall have to do with that God; and I have been all these years practically denying Him altogether."

"No wonder you are in the dark," said I; "it's the usual thing, when a man denies God, and lives without Him, he can't get anywhere else but in the dark."

"Well, can't you help me at all?"

"I'm afraid not. When a man has gone right away from God, with his eyes wide open, it's pretty hard for him to turn round again, and get into the light. When a man has been practically saying, 'I don't want God,' he finds out that God doesn't want him."

"The great trouble is that I can't believe a single word of the Bible—not a word."

"I'm sorry for that; but if you can't—why, you can't, and there's an end of the matter."

"But can't you help me—can't you give me any hope or comfort?"

"No, I'm afraid not; I don't know how I can."

"It does seem so hard that I can't get some light or hope into my heart. Oh, it's awfully dark."

"How long has this been troubling you?"

"About three or four weeks."

"Can you account for it at all? Have you been reading anything, or hearing anything that has stirred your mind?"

"No, nothing at all; it came all of a sudden—night after night—so that I couldn't sleep for thinking of it. Can you account for it anyway?"

"Yes, I think I can. Does your brother ever pray for you?"

"He has never left off praying for me for a single day since I left England; I'm sure of that."

"Then what you are now feeling is merely the beginning of the answer to your brother's prayers. He believes in God. He knows God, and he has been mentioning your case to God; and now the answer is coming. You are getting a bit squeezed, and the truths of the past years, that have been pushed to one side, are coming to the front again. How do you like it?"

"Oh, it's awfully dark, and I'm very miserable. I can't get any light anywhere. My health is beginning to suffer; my sleep goes from me. I have no appetite. Can't you help me at all?"

"No," said I, "I'm afraid I can't; it's not so easy to get back to God, when you have been going away from Him for ten years. You'll have to find your way back the best way you can, if you ever succeed at all; and I'm afraid you'll find it very hard and very difficult. Jesus Christ says, 'I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by Me!' You can only get back to God by Him. But then you said that you could not believe a word in the Bible, and what I have just said comes out of the Bible, so that won't help you at all."

"No; I can't believe that, you see. It is all as dark as possible."

After further talk we parted. On leaving the little town I bid him good-bye, telling him where I should be, and saying how glad it would make me to see him at any of the meetings I was going to hold, or to see him between times. A few weeks passed, and I saw him coming into the service one night, at a place four or five miles from his home. At the close he remained seated, and waited until the room was empty, when he came up to me, saying, "Will you try and help me to-night? I am worse than ever; and if I don't get help soon, I shall die. I can't sleep, or eat, or attend to business. It does seem so hard."

"Not hard, my friend, by any means. You have been hard on God—on the Bible—and on Christians generally, and you had no real cause for it; and now you are reaping a little of your sowing, and it's not at all unfair or strange that you should feel things to be hard on you. The Bible says, 'Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap;' but then, I forgot, you can't believe a word in the Bible."

"No, I can't believe a word in the Bible, yet—not a word; but can't you help me, somehow, out of this terrible darkness and oppression?"

"No, I don't see how I can give you a single word of comfort. You see, I have no other resource but the Bible, and that's no use to you at all. I don't see how I can possibly help you."

"Oh, dear! What shall I do? I am all astray. I have got far away from God!"

"What did you say, just then?"

"Why, that I had got far from God, and gone astray altogether."

"Well, I think I could find one line that you could believe now. Shall I try?"

"Oh, do try! I shall be so glad to get one line that I can really believe."

Turning to Isaiah liii. 6, we read together, "All we, like sheep, have gone astray." "Is that true?" said I.

"Why, yes, that's true."

"How do you know it is?"

"It describes me! I've gone astray! That's me, and no mistake! Why, there's one whole line that I can believe out of the Bible. I never thought that you'd find a line like that."

"Well," said I, "you've got what you wanted now: one line out of the Bible that you can believe, so good night, friend."

"Stop a bit! stop a bit! True, I've got a line that I can believe, but it don't seem to do me any good. I'm no better for it. I'm just as much in the dark as ever. This line hasn't helped me at all!"

"No," said I, "it wasn't meant to. It merely states a fact that you knew before. It never does help a man to read he's 'gone astray,' when he knows it already."

"Would you mind trying another line?"

"I don't mind trying another; but do you think you ought to? Isn't one enough at a time?"

"Well, you see, I don't feel that one line has helped me at all, and I'd very much like to try a second.'

So again we turned to Isaiah liii. 6, and read the second line, "We have turned everyone to his own way."

"Why, that's true too; you went your way from God; I went my way. That line describe us both. Yes, I can believe that line."

"But, observe," said I, "it is a line and a bi —a little more than you expected. So now yo have two lines and a bit out of the Bible that yo can believe, and can know they are true. Isn' it strange, now! Just think—out of this Boo of God, there are two lines and a bit that yo can understand and believe as absolute truth Wonderful thing! You never expected that, di you?"

"No, I never did. It is really quite wonderfu that I could so fully believe those two lines. Bu yet, somehow, they don't seem to have done m any good. I don't feel any better. I'm just a dark. I feel no nearer God."

"No," said I, "they are not meant to brin you into the light, because they merely describ us two; and we know they are true, because the are our experience."

"Well, would you mind trying the thir line?"

"I don't mind trying any number of them because I can believe all the lines in the Bibl very well; but I wouldn't advise you to try third. You see, two lines and a bit are a goo deal for a man like you to swallow all at once and I am pretty sure you would find the thir line one too many. You wouldn't be able t believe it."

"Oh, I think I might be able; really, I think perhaps, I might. Do let me see it?"

"I feel very sure you will not be able to," sai I; "still, if you very much wish it, I will le you see it."

Once more turning to Isaiah liii. 6, we rea together, "And the Lord hath laid on Him th iniquity of us all." "There now," said I, "thi third line is more than you can believe. Isn' it?"

"Well, yes. I must confess I can't take i that third line at all. I can't believe that."

"I thought you would not be able to. I tol you that two lines and a bit were all you woul manage at one time."

"But how do you account for it that I canno believe this third line?"

"I could tell you; but you would not muc like me to say."

"I wish you would, for it seems strange that can believe two lines, but not three."

"Well, then, the reason simply is, that you ar the biggest fool out!"

Greatly annoyed, he half rose, as if to leav the room, and began to retort.

I said, "I have told you an unpleasant fac that greatly annoys you; but I can prove it to be true in five minutes, if you like."

"I wish you would, then, for you are hitting me rather hard."

"Suppose that, instead of this Bible in my hand, I was holding a photograph album, and we were looking at the pictures, which had all been taken by the same artist. The first one would be the picture of John ——. Yes, you would say, I knew that man well, and it's a capital picture of him. The next one, I might say, is that of William ——. Do you know him? Yes, you reply—I know him well. Is the picture like him? Yes—exactly; it is a speaking likeness. Now, we will turn over to the third picture. That is Thomas ——. Did you ever see him? No, you reply—I never saw him. But I have, I say, and I can vouch for that being a first-rate picture. Now the fourth is James ——. Is he a stranger to you? Yes, I never saw him. But, say I, I know it is as good a picture of him as are the others that we have looked at. And then you reply, I can't believe that those two are a bit like the men you say, because I have never seen them; and until I d see them, I shall never bring myself to believe that those are their pictures, even though the are taken by the same artist. Wouldn't you b a fool to reason that way?"

"Why, certainly I should; but I have no done that."

"Yes, you have," I replied. "I have show you four pictures in that one verse Isaiah liii. The first one was yourself—which you immediately recognised. The second was mine, and that, you said, you recognised also. Those tw first lines showed us ourselves. Now the thir line shows us just as plainly the Lord Jesus and God, and you turn round and say, I can't believe that third line. What right have you to impugn the accuracy of the Holy Spirit, in describing to you the Lord Jesus and the Living God, when you have seen his accurate drawing of us two?"

"Let me have the whole verse again. I see! I'm a fool after all! You are right!"

We read the verse over, and once more I tried to explain to him the meaning of the statements in the three lines and a bit. "Do you mean to say," said he, "that my safety and life depend upon my believing that third line?"

"Yes, I do!"

"Then I'll stake my sole existence, for time and for eternity, on that third line. I put my inger on it, and declare that I believe that every word of it is true!"

Solemnly, we dropped on our knees, and I repeated his words to the Lord Jesus. He then followed in humble and broken confession of sin, and ere he rose again the light had entered his soul. The three lines and a bit had accomplished the purpose of God! They had found entrance through the door of faith, and he was rejoicing in salvation.

The next time I saw him he looked rested, peaceful, and satisfied. The three lines and a bit were still all he knew and believed in the Bible, and they were a solid rock beneath his eet.

Two or three months after this interview, I had returned home to London, and he, too, had followed. He called on me, and at first I failed to recognise him. The hollow cheeks had been filled, the dark hopeless eyes sparkled with brightness and life. He had prospered every way, and the gladness of the Saviour's smile was on his countenance.

Scepticism is a lean, hungry thing for any man. It eats the flesh off the bones, takes the sleep at night, consumes hope, and lands the poor soul in the deepest midnight! But "the entrance of thy Word giveth light: it giveth understanding to the simple."

Again and again this fact is receiving fresh illustration, and the simple power of God's written Word as revealed to a willing mind by the Holy Spirit, chases away doubt and scepticism, and renews the whole man. May He who gave the Word, have the joy of seeing hearts granting it entrance, that He may thereby dispel the gloom and guilt of sin, and fill the soul with the light of life.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sunday, November 13, Ps. xxxi. 14—24; Monday, November 14, Ps. xxxii. 1—11; Tuesday, November 15, Ps. xxxiii. 1—22; Wednesday, November 16, Peter i. 1—12; Thursday, November 17, 1 Peter i. 3—25; Friday, November 18, 1 Peter ii. 1—12; Saturday, November 12, 1 Peter ii. 13—25.

THE NEGROES OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.—Mr. Wharton, of Barrow-in-Furness, has closed another very successful season of Bible-carriage work in this country, and has sailed for America for the fifth time, to labour among the freed slaves of the Southern States, where his missions in previous years have been much blessed. This is a vast and needy field, and there is ample scope for many more workers. There are eight and a half millions of negroes who are waiting to receive the Gospel. The readiness on the part of the coloured population in town and country to hear the story of the Cross is wonderful. Prayer is requested for blessing on this work.

CHILDREN AT THE AGRICULTURAL HALL.—Under the auspices of the Sunday-school Union the afternoon service on Sunday week at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, took the form of a special service for the young, and was attended by overwhelming numbers. From three to four thousand persons were packed in St. Mary's Hall, whilst several hundreds were disappointed of admission. The text selected was 1 John ii. 12: "I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake." The young people promptly responded to the occasional questions which were put to them, and their attention was fully sustained. Through the kindness of the Religious Tract Society an elegant embossed card was presented to each of the children.

For the Young.

THE INFLUENCE OF A MOTHER'S PRAYERS.[*]

More than thirty years ago, one lovely Sabbath morning, eight young men, students in a law school, were walking along the banks of a stream that flows into the Potomac river, not far from the city of Washington. They were going to a grove, in a retired place, to spend the hours of that holy day in playing cards. Each of them had a flask of wine in his pocket. They were the sons of praying mothers. As they were walking along amusing each other with idle jests, the bell of a church in a little village about two miles off, began to ring. It sounded in the ears of those thoughtless young men as plainly as though it were only on the other side of the little stream along which they were walking.

Presently one of their number, whose name was George, stopped, and said to the friend nearest him that he would go no further, but would return to the village, and go to church. His friend called out to their companions, who were a little ahead of him, "Boys! boys! come back here. George is getting religious. We must help him. Come on, and let us baptize him by immersion in the water." In a moment they formed a circle round him. They told him that the only way in which he could save himself from having a cold bath was by going with them. In a calm, quiet, but earnest way, he said—

"I know very well that you have power enough to put me in the water, and hold me there till I am drowned; and, if you choose, you can do so, and I will make no resistance; but listen to what I have to say, and then do as you think best.

"You all know that I am two hundred miles away from home; but you do not know that my mother is a helpless, bed-ridden invalid. I never remember seeing her out of her bed. I am her youngest child. My father could not afford to pay for my schooling; but our teacher is a warm friend of my father, and offered to take me without any charge. He was very anxious for me to come; but mother would not consent. The struggle almost cost her what little life was left to her. At length, after many prayers on the subject, she yielded, and said I might go. The preparations for my leaving home were soon made. My mother never said a word to me on the subject till the morning when I was to leave. After I had eaten my breakfast she sent for me, and asked if everything was ready. I told her all was ready, and I was only waiting for the stage. At her request I kneeled beside her bed. With her loving hands upon my head, she prayed for her youngest child. Many and many a night since then I have dreamed that whole scene over. It is the happiest recollection of my life. I believe, till the day of my death, I shall be able to repeat every word of that prayer. Then she spoke to me thus:—

"'My precious boy, you do not know, you never can know, the agony of a mother's heart, in parting, for the last time, from her youngest child. When you leave home, you will have looked, for the last time, this side of the grave, on the face of her who loves you as no other mortal does or can. Your father cannot afford the expense of your making us visits during the two years that your studies will occupy. I cannot possibly live as long as that. The sands in the hour-glass of my life have nearly run out. In the far-off, strange place to which you are going, there will be no loving mother to give you counsel in time of trouble. Seek counsel and help from God. Every Sabbath morning, from ten to eleven o'clock, I will spend the hour in prayer for you. Wherever you may be during this sacred hour, when you hear the church bells ringing, let your thoughts come back to this chamber, where your dying mother will be agonising in prayer for you. But I hear the stage coming. Kiss me—farewell!'

"Boys, I never expect to see my mother again on earth. But, by the help of God, I mean to meet her in heaven."

As George stopped speaking the tears were streaming down his cheeks. He looked at his companions. Their eyes were all filled with tears.

In a moment the ring which they had formed about him was opened. He passed out, and went to church. He had stood up for the right against great odds. They admired him for doing what they had not courage to do. They all followed him to church. On their way there each of them quietly threw away his cards and his wine flask. Never again did any of these young men play cards on the Sabbath.

From that day they all became changed men. Six of them died Christians, and are now in heaven. George is an able Christian lawyer in Iowa; and his friend, the eighth of the party, who wrote this account, has been for many years an earnest active member of the Church. Here were eight men converted by the prayers of that good Christian woman. And, if we only knew all the results of their examples and their labours, we should have a grand illustration of the influence of a mother's prayers.

A JAPANESE MOTHER AND HER SON.

There is an old Christian woman, named Morita, living in Tokyo, who is very zealous in her efforts to bring others to love and obey her Lord and Master. She had a son who was very wicked, and wasted his mother's property: his wickedness went to such an extent that in the course of ten years he had been sent to prison seven times. So bad was his conduct that all his other relations and friends forsook him. Only his good and patient mother was left to pity and care for him in his wretched condition. Her faith in God did not waver, and whenever she saw him she told him of Christ, and endeavoured to persuade him to forsake his sins, and walk in the ways of righteousness and peace.

But he was so hardened in sin that he turned a deaf ear to all her loving entreaties. He only said in reply, "Dear mother, it is all right for you to be good, and to go to heaven, but I am so addicted to evil ways that I cannot stop, and it is my purpose to live on in this same course and go to hell." Still his mother did not give him up, and prayed for him day and night.

About one year ago he was sent to prison once more; and while thus in confinement his wife died of the cholera, leaving four children, of whom the youngest was only a babe. The grandmother was at first much troubled, and said, "There is surely no other way than for these little ones to die of starvation." Then after a while she said, "Oh, no, it is a great mistake to doubt the power and goodness of God, and he who has created us is also able to supply all our need. So she took the little ones to her home and cared for them tenderly.

In November last year the son and father was released, and when he came to his home and found the motherless children thus cared for by the old grandmother his hard heart was melted. He became a truly penitent and humble seeker after that religion which had strengthened and comforted his mother's heart. From that time his house was opened as a place for preaching and frequent services were held there for his own benefit, and also to lead others to a knowledge of Christ and his salvation.

One day he read the second chapter of Ephesians, and was deeply moved by its appropriateness to his own case. He has been received into the church, and is vigorously labouring to extend the blessings of the Gospel among all his associates and friends.

H. Loomis.

Yokohama, August 16.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. T. Sayer, Kensal-green Gospel Mission Room, Nov. 14—18. Mr. Josiah Spiers, Willesden, Nov. 19—25. Mr. J. W. Jordan, Clapton Hall, November 8—10. Mr. Edwin Arrowsmith, Harrogate, November 11—19. Mr. Seagrove, Mission Room, Balls Pond, November 21—25.

---

[*] From Bible Models. By Rev. Richard Newton, D.D. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton.

THE BIBLE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

This large and little-known field of labour is being worked to some extent by the American Bible Society. In a recent report there is an account by Rev. Andrew M. Milne, of a tour which extended over some twelve months, to the northern parts of the Continent, with the object of opening up new fields for Bible distribution. Quiet and matter-of-fact as is the style in which the account is written, we can discern in it the promise of a coming time when this vast land shall be irradiated with the light of the Gospel, and shall arise out of the depths of spiritual darkness, in which it has so long been sunk.

In the course of his journey Mr. Milne and his companion, Signor Penzotti, visited all the hitherto unoccupied republics of South America. These are Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, and Chili. Over this wide extent of territory, notwithstanding much opposition, a goodly number of copies of the Scriptures was sold. At Baranquilla, in Colombia, Mr. A. H. Erwin, a self-supporting missionary, has, though a confirmed invalid, exercised an extensive influence for many years. At Bogota, in co-operation with Rev. M. E. Caldwell, a Presbyterian missionary, a colporteur was set to work. "At Callao," says Mr. Milne, "we made the acquaintance of a self-supporting missionary, Rev. J. M. Baxter, and made an arrangement with one of his converts, J. H. Masters, to carry on colportage work under his direction, with the books sent from Guayaquil. Masters is a man whose moral courage and fidelity have been severely tested, and I have strong hope that he will prove an efficient worker. Thus in the good providence of God we have been able to leave men to carry forward the work begun in Venezuela, Colombia, and Peru; and we trust the day is at hand when each of these countries will have its own resident agent." It was a painful reflection that in some of the places visited, though branches of the Bible Society had been years ago established, their light had become extinguished, and moral and spiritual darkness was found to be greater even than before.

In addition to the good hope afforded by Mr. Milne's narrative as to the future of Bible distribution in these well-nigh neglected lands, we find in it a suggestive commentary on the outcome of the Romish propaganda. Intolerance and immorality are the inevitable fruits of priest rule, and all the opposition to the spread of the life-giving Word comes from those who would welcome it, if they were true spiritual guides to those among whom they live. Nevertheless, we believe doors of service will open to those who go in the strength of God and courageous for the truth. By this pioneer effort, Mr. Milne and his fellow-worker have made smoother the path of all who may follow. Mr. Milne's field proper is the La Plata Agency, of which he is superintendent; it embraces Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay, Bolivia, and the South of Brazil. His residence is at Monte Video, Uruguay.

BYROM HALL, LIVERPOOL.—This hall is situated in the very centre of an overcrowded and most necessitous district of Liverpool. There is an enormous population around it, and a large number of them live under the most degrading conditions. Persevering efforts have been put forth to make Mr. Bennet Anderson's Mission, and the building in which it is carried on, a centre of light and purity. In addition to the Sunday services, a large amount of good is being done amongst children through a Sunday-school of 465 scholars and thirty-two teachers, a total abstinence department where upwards of 740 pledges were taken during the past year, branch missions in William Moult-street and Great Homer-street, a mothers' meeting, with 100 mothers' names upon the registers, a penny bank, and meetings every night representing one department or other of aggressive home mission work. Books, tracts, and papers of a religious character are always in free circulation, and are much appreciated all over the district. Flower missions, ragged schools, Bible-classes, bands of hope, and devotional meetings are also carried on.

MR. WEBB-PEPLOE ON MANLINESS.

In continuation of the series of "Friendly Talks" to young men, Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe gave an address on this subject, last Friday evening at the Y.M.C.A, 186, Aldersgate-street. He said there could never be such a true man in the highest sense of the word as our Lord Jesus Christ, but the more a young man had of his spirit and followed in his footsteps, the nobler would he become. A very different idea of manliness prevails at the present day. He is thought to be a manly fellow who shows his prowess in running or in any other physical exercise, who can drink excessively, and who lives loosely, who throws aside the religion of his fathers and the study of God's Word, and prefers what he calls the scientific development of the age—Agnosticism. But the Gospel meaning of the word is the true one; he is the most manly who can practise self-denial for another, and can endure hardship as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

Mr. Webb-Peploe took for example, Timothy, who, although he was young, weak, nervous, and had been brought up under female influence, was put forward by Paul as an overseer of the Church at Ephesus, and, relying on the strength which God gave him, was enabled successfully to hold the fort of the Church of God against all the developments of the heathen world in that city. He gathered from St. Paul's charge to his young convert that a young man should be: (1) A soldier: to give up all other ideas of service, and put forward his claims to fight for his Master against all the evils that oppose. (2) An athlete: to practise the great art of self-denial, and restrain himself from the momentary pleasures of this life in order to win a crown of glory that fadeth not away. (3) A husbandman: to labour for the sake of others, and patiently wait for the time when God will prosper him and give him the reward. (4) A good workman: to do his best in God's eyes for the end of seeing his work completely and gloriously finished. (5) A vessel purged from all youthful lusts: by God's help to gain a victory over his temper and passions. (6) A good witness: by word and example to win the erring and wandering, and never to be ashamed of testifying of what Christ has done for him. (7) An evangelist: actuated by a sense of duty to go forth as a messenger to tell the good tidings of the Gospel.

Above all the muscular, Agnostic, and scientific ideas of to-day there rises the character of One whom all honest-minded men allow to be the most perfect man that ever lived. We shall never be truly manly until we try to conform to his example, but we cannot do this by attempting to follow his virtues. It is only by the acceptance of Him in our hearts that we begin to have his nature, which will enable us to live out his command before all the world.

THE SPANISH ARMADA.—Next year will be the ter-centenary of the defeat of the Spanish Armada, and the bi-centenary of the accession of the Protestant Dynasty. A conference will be held in the drawing-room of the National Club on Friday, Nov. 18, at 2 p.m., to consider the best means for commemorating these events.

YORKSHIRE.—The annual Conference of the Yorkshire Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the Friends' Meeting-House, Hull, on November 1 and 2, and was attended by delegates and friends from most of its branches. Reports were read of the work carried on in many of the places represented. Cottage and mothers' meetings, drawing-room and afternoon tea-meetings, bands of hope, especially in workhouses, district visiting, tract distribution and lending; also work amongst the cab and bath-chairmen, and entertainments for various classes, including the travelling showmen, who have a large temperance association of their own, are some of the phases of work referred to. A report was also read of the "High Flatts Sanatorium," which is a Home belonging to the Union for the reception of inebriate women. The proceedings were closed by a large public meeting addressed by Dr. Kate Mitchell and Mrs. Ormiston Chant, of London.

WORKING LADS IN WHITECHAPEL.

A large number of the friends of the Whitechapel Institute assembled for the annual meeting on Saturday evening. Many of the lads were present, and their bright, happy faces enhanced the otherwise cheerful aspect of the building.

Mr. H. Hill, in reading his report, of which his communication to The Christian of last week is a summary, made an urgent appeal to the Christian public for means to enable him to clear off the debt of £5000 on the building fund, and to make up the deficiency of several hundred pounds in the current expenses.

A genial chairman was found in Mr. J. B. Ingle, who characterised the Institution as one of the most worthy objects of public support he knew. It is gratifying to know, he said, that the Institute is not standing still, but that its work continues to develop and to be greatly blessed. Rev. H. A. Mason, vicar of All Saints, Mile-end, in a practical little speech, showed that money as well as sympathy is requisite for the success of such a noble work. He expressed the hope that the philanthropist would not hesitate in coming forward with open hand. It is of the highest importance that such training as is provided in the Institute should be given to the lads of to-day, for are they not the future hope of England? Addressing a few kindly words to the boys, he reminded them of the importance of studying the Bible. "If you want to lay a good foundation for your life, whether from a temporal or spiritual point of view, you must acquire a good knowledge of Biblical matters."

Dr. Hamilton was confident that if some of our rich people would pay a visit to Whitechapel, and see the grand work that is going on, the debt would soon be wiped off. He urged upon the lads the necessity of leadiug a pure and virtuous life, and pointed out how important it was for them to grow up Christian men. Rev. T. Richardson delighted the lads with a characteristic speech, full of fatherly advice and genuine anecdote. He attributed his success in life to the strict observance of four rules which his mother taught him on coming up from the country to London. They are:—Never touch drink; don't smoke; never speak to a girl whom you would be ashamed of your own sister meeting you with; and never break the Sabbath-day, but keep it holy. Mr. Richardson compared the Institute to a warm, big-hearted mother, who with a watchful eye guarded her sons against the temptations and snares of this great London. He promised to present a prize to each lad who by next October had read the Bible through. The venerable Dr. Tyler, who had travelled on Saturday from Hastings for the express purpose of attending the meeting, while he strongly advised Mr. Hill not to be discouraged by the debt on the building fund, regarded it as unsatisfactory that there should be between £200 and £300 in arrears on the current expenses. After some observations from R. G. Salmond, the prizes gained in the different educational branches, and for swimming, were distributed by Mrs. Tyler.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.—Mr. James E. Mathieson presided over the annual meeting of the Mildmay Auxiliary of the Open-Air Mission held at the Conference Hall on November 1. Mr. Charles L. Young, the secretary, read an encouraging report. Dr. Edmond, in genial tones, suggested that the open-air preacher's topics were all around him. The Gospel was as free as light, and salvation was as near and free as the air. Mr. Finlay Gibson spoke some weighty words on the need of earnestness and solemnity in delivering the message. Rev. Alfred Bax and Mr. Gawin Kirkham having spoken, some testimonies to the nature and effect of the meetings held were given by Mr. J. J. Brett, Mr. W. Sanders, and Mr. P. S. Badenoch. To the last the efficiency of this Auxiliary of the Mission is in no small measure due, as he so ably conducts a Sunday morning Bible-class for young men, from which the preachers are chiefly drawn.

DR. SOMERVILLE IN BOHEMIA.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

IT is now considerably more than a month since Dr. Somerville started on his evangelistic mission, and in that time he has finished what may be considered the first instalment of his work, namely, his visit to Bohemia. Bohemia forms the north-western portion of the Austrian Empire, and is contiguous to Saxony. After a necessary detour by Vienna, with official letters relating to his mission, Dr. Somerville arrived in Prague, the Capital of Bohemia, on Monday, September 26. The next morning, accompanied by Mr. Pirie, the Free Church missionary to the Jews in Prague, he proceeded by train to Kuttenberg, a place rendered famous in the annals of Bohemia, by the fact that, in the year 1420, upwards of four thousand Protestants were thrown into its silver mines by their fanatical enemies.

At 9 a.m., though the morning was very wet, about two hundred, including some of the prominent citizens, assembled in the Athletic Hall, the handsome new church, which will be shortly opened, not being yet finished. An excellent interpreter was found in Mr. Molnar, pastor of a neighbouring village named Libenice, and there were also several others of the surrounding ministers present, including Senior Szalatnay, of Velim, one of the leading men of the Bohemian Reformed Church. The same afternoon Dr. Somerville addressed a convention of ministers and others in connection with Sabbath-schools in the adjacent large town of Kolin, and had an opportunity of meeting with many pastors.

Since then, he has preached in a great number of churches and halls throughout Bohemia. Everywhere he has been received by ministers and people alike with warm cordiality and affection, the former in many cases (as for example the venerable Senior Janata) even accompanying him from town to town, and in this way adding value to his mission.

The capital has not been left alone, while the country was asking for his presence. In the hall belonging to the Free Church of Scotland, Dr. Somerville has held six meetings, of which four were interpreted into Bohemian, while the building was always filled to overflowing. On two occasions he preached in English, and found in both instances considerable audiences. Mr. Pirie rendered him much assistance by conducting correspondence, and by accompanying him to many places.

The American Board has a missionary in Prague, Rev. Albert W. Clark, the son-in-law of Mr. Pirie. He is a man full of energy and spirit, and has achieved remarkable success in his work. Dr. Somerville had an opportunity of addressing four meetings, under his superintendence, of persons who had all been Roman Catholics; while at two more of his stations, situated in the country, namely, those of Tabor and Stupitz, considerable numbers gathered together to hear the Gospel preached. The former place, two and a half hours southward by train from Prague, has a historic name, giving as it does, the title of "Taborites" to the followers of John Huss before the Reformation. The town is picturesquely situated on a hill surrounded on three sides by a valley, and thus was a strong position in bygone times.

Stupitz, too, is a place which has acquired notoriety in the annals of the Church. It was here that a farmer lived about eleven years ago, who, having obtained at Prague some little Christian books, returned with them for more, and was presented with a book which he had not seen—a New Testament—with the intimation that it contained the teachings of Christ and his Apostles. This led to a revolution in the man's mind, and in that of some others. Persecution arose, and the little company were scattered. This continued for two years, during which several imprisonments took place. The case eventually came under the attention of the Evangelical Alliance, which sent a deputation liberty was granted to the people to form a congregation, and this, since then, has increased and prospered, a very admirable edifice containing a church and adjoining apartments being now erected under the superintendence of the American missionary. It was interesting for Dr. Somerville to have as one of his hearers on the occasion the remarkably intelligent and amiable man who had been at the foundation of the movement, and afterwards to partake of his hospitality in the very chamber where the little company had in the days of trial so frequently met, and had been by high hand dispersed.

Besides Prague Dr. Somerville has preached in many of the Reformed Churches throughout the country. Places such as Velim, Nimburg, Podiebrad, Bosin, Krabshitz, Czaslau, Przelautsch, Chotzen, Chleby, Horitz, Valtershitz, and Liebstadt have each received a visit, and in every instance audiences, which in the circumstances excited surprise, have assembled, and the medium of interpretation has been found to answer well, even for the nicest turns of speech.

Physically, Bohemia, with the exception of a few insignificant elevations, is an immense plain. Most of the Reformed congregations cluster about the centre, but there are also not a few which are to be found lying nearer the chain of mountains, which gird the interior plain. Such a one is Horitz, a town whereinto light had come in an interesting and unlooked-for method. It is the old story of a Bible falling into the hands of one man, the seed bearing fruit in his heart, and his communicating it to others, till a church has sprung up in the midst. It was a great pleasure to Dr. Somerville to have the privilege of addressing those Protestants, but much more so was it to find on entering the hall where the meeting was to take place a great gathering, upwards of 650 in number, all eager to hear. It was said on good authority that two-thirds of those who came to the meeting had to go away for want of room, and of those who got in, nineteen out of every twenty were Roman Catholics; there were also a number of Jews, to whom the Gospel was altogether new.

During the thirty-two days spent in Bohemia, Dr. Somerville has altogether given twenty-eight addresses, all of which, with the exception of two English ones, were translated, by seven different interpreters. In many cases the interpreters were those pastors who had learned English while studying theology at the Free Church College, and United Presbyterian hall in Edinburgh, and thus Bohemia pays back the debt, which she owes to Scotland. Wonderfully indeed, has the way opened before him; may it continue to do so, as he goes on to Moravia, and the "regions beyond."

[Our correspondent also describes the meeting with Jews in Prague, which was reported at some length in our last issue.]

MISS MITTENDORFF'S medical advisers have decided that it is absolutely necessary for her to be away from her Orphan Home for at least twelve months. No one who knows the unceasing strain which has been upon her during the years she has carried on this work, almost single-handed, will be surprised at this. In the providence of God, a lady who has for some years been her helper, is carrying on the Home as usual with good success. It is hoped that Miss Mittendorff's friends, who have so generously held up her hands hitherto, will continue their kindness to the orphans and to her.

PHILO-JUDEAN SOCIETY.—The chief work of this Society is to administer temporal relief to aged and distressed Hebrew women, and to provide help to poor Hebrew women during confinement. A Bible-class for Hebrew women is held on Thursday afternoons, house-to-house visitation is carried on by a Bible-woman, the sick are visited, and aid given in urgent cases, and a class for Hebrew children is held every Monday morning. The need is much felt of an active Christian lady to visit the homes—either wholly to devote herself to this visitation, or for a certain number of days each week. The teaching at the class, and the efforts of the Bible-woman, it is thought, would then be more fruitful. Impressions are often made, but the home influences are so adverse that the impressions pass away. Mrs. H. L. Orchard, 44, ARBITRATION v. WAR.

WE do not seem, as yet, to have come very near the happy time foretold by the ancient prophet, when the nations should beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning-hooks, and should learn the art of war no more. But amid much that is discouraging, there are many elements of hope. Of this kind are the efforts now being made by the friends of peace in Great Britain and America to establish the principle of peaceful arbitration in all international disputes, in place of the awful and deadly arbitrament of war. Our readers may have noticed from the daily papers that a memorial, signed by a large number of members of the British House of Commons, was lately presented to President Cleveland at Washington, requesting him to take steps in the direction of establishing a Court of International Arbitration to which all differences between the two countries, unsettled by the usual diplomatic methods, may be referred. The President's reply, though guarded, was most favourable to the general principle involved. Every Christian must sympathise with this movement. We would suggest that much united prayer be made to God that He would smile upon it, and give it good success; and especially that the differences, now existing between the United States and Canada, with respect to the Fisheries Question, may be amicably settled by the pending negotiations.

At a recent Conference in Richmond, Indiana, of delegates from the Yearly Meetings of the Society of Friends, this subject was earnestly discussed. A circular has been issued by the Conference in which the following paragraphs occur:—

"Nations, as well as individuals, need to be taught to put their trust in God for preservation, and this will beget a mutual confidence coupled with a desire to act justly to one another. The adoption of Arbitration for the settlement of disputes will then be readily accepted and meet every emergency, as a substitute for War. It has already proved a satisfactory means of settling international disputes, where the passions of the people had been aroused, including cases like the 'Alabama Claims.' Over forty distinct cases of arbitration have occurred in which England and the United States have taken a leading part. Setting aside the religious principles involved in this question, the promotion of Arbitration in lieu of War is advocated and increasingly accepted on the grounds of political economy.

"It is to the Church of Christ, and especially to her ministers, that we must look for teaching in this respect. We pray God that many hearts may be touched with the sympathy and tender pity of our compassionate Redeemer for the sorrows of mankind, and be qualified by the Holy Spirit to speak in his name to the world."

CLAREMONT HALL (Penton-street, N.), for many years used by the National Secular Society during the winter months for the propagation of their pernicious doctrines, has been taken over by a band of Christian workers, and Jesus Christ and Him crucified is now preached in its fulness and simplicity. Christian workers are heartily welcome, and prayer is requested that in this place, where so many have been taught to despise Christ and his salvation, a much greater multitude may be led to embrace Him as their Lord and Saviour. The secretaries are Messrs. G. D. N. Ford, 11, Percy-square, King's Cross, and T. Cokes, 7, St. Peter's-street, N.

MILDMAY HOME FOR CONSUMPTIVES.—Our committee has been enabled to start this Home in Torquay. We began by receiving six female patients. The Home has been in working order since January, under the superintendence of Sister Moira, from the Mildmay Nursing Institution. Eighteen patients in all have been admitted for longer or shorter periods. Kind friends helped us liberally in furnishing, and we now desire renewed help for the maintenance and, if possible, the extension of their work. We should like to be in a position to receive twelve patients, instead of six.

(Miss) F. GUMBLETON, Hon. Sec.

MR. E. HURDITCH IN SYDNEY.

A successful evangelistic effort is being conducted in Sydney by Mr. Edward Hurditch, of the London Evangelistic Mission. He came amongst us as almost a stranger, and commenced a series of Bible-readings. He also held a week's mission in the large hall of the Young Mens' Christian Association, and then proceedes to Melbourne. Although Mr. Hurditch's first visit was short, he made many friends among the zealous Christians of the city, who not only recognised in him special adaptation for evangelistic work, but also remarkable teaching power.

On his return to Sydney these friends formed a committee, and asked Mr. Hurditch to give Gospel addresses and Bible-readings in the principal halls, to which proposal he very readily acceded, although his health was anything but robust, and he had come for a needed rest.

The work was commenced at once in the Temperance and Carrington Halls. The latter seats about 500 and the former 700. In two or three days these were full to overflowing. Recourse was then had to the Protestant Hall, which seats about 1200, and this also was crowded the first night. Now the work is being carried on with unabated success in the New Masonic Hall, Castlereagh-street, accommodating about 2000. Not only is the livliest interest taken in the mission by Christians of all denominations, but real work is being done for eternity. At every meeting there are many anxious inquirers and souls are saved.

Perhaps the most marked result of the first week's mission was the deepening of the spiritual life of believers and the earnest endeavour to bring their daily life into close approximation to a lofty moral ideal which Mr. Hurditch frequently set before us as the condition of all prevailing service for the Master—in point of fact—the necessity for a life, as well as a lip testimony.

Mr. Hurditch's committee are now receiving the hearty and effective co-operation of the Ladies' Evangelistic Association and Prayer Union, who are making a house-to-house visitation; it is believed through this and the earnest prayer of believers great blessing will follow, and that the evangelistic spirit may ultimately extend throughout the various churches.

A marked characteristic of the mission is the perfect unity and harmony that prevails—the true spirit of love, charity, and Christian courtesy has dominated throughout, and our dear brother Hurditch when he leaves will bear with him our heartiest good wishes, and we earnestly pray that his health may speedily be established and that he may long be spared to render by a faithful ministry signal service to the cause of our risen Lord.

The condition of many at the present time is that of waiting expectancy. That a revival is coming we all believe. Its great need is felt, and God's people are praying earnestly for it. Australia is a most promising field for evangelistic work. We have here many able and devout men in the various denominations, nevertheless considerable spiritual deadness prevails.

Mr. Müller's stay here was fruitful of blessed results to believers. We are now looking forward to Dr. Dale's coming. These visits of eminent men are a hopeful sign that the Christians at home are waking up to the importance of Australia as a field for Christian effort. We have a vast territory, equal in extent to that of India and China combined, with their 600 millions of inhabitants. We are an English-speaking community. Living in Sydney or Melbourne, or Adelaide, it is hard to realise that one is not in an English city. In point of fact, we are one with the mother country in every respect, with the advantage of a more lovely climate. The interior is sparsely populated; religious services in many outlying districts are almost unknown; in others only occasionally given, and often perfunctorily performed.

There is a great need for special evangelistic work of an itinerant character. True, the present population of Australia is only some three millions, but the question is not so much this as what will she become in the near future; in fifty years 100 millions may dwell on this island continent. Those who are now here are therefore merely pioneers; on them and on the zeal and faithfulness of the Church of Christ now depend whether these colonies shall be given over to scepticism and lawlessness or be won for Christ, and thus become a nation fearing God and loving righteousness.—Yours truly,

Walter Lance.

787, George-street, Sydney, Sept. 22.

◆

THE CHRISTIAN LIFEBOAT CREW.

The region round about Ratcliff-highway is very, very far from being a paradise. Only on Saturday last it was the scene of a fatal affray, originating in a public-house, in which one man lost his life, and another was seriously wounded. But those who remember the Highway as it was some fifteen years ago, and who knew it to-day, will testify to the remarkable change for the better that has taken place. Many causes may have contributed to this, but we shall not be far wrong in saying that chief among these causes have been the Gospel efforts circling around the Strangers' Rest and the Welcome Home. The great demoralisers of the Highway are the gin-shops, and their satellites the dancing saloons. The two Christian centres we have named have proved successful counter-attractions, and have drawn many a jolly, silly tar, on the eve of making moral shipwreck, into their havens of rest and safety. The men have learned to know their true friends, and the publican suffers accordingly, much to the advantage of the locality.

One of the latest outcomes of the work at the Welcome Home, as our readers know, is the company of Christians — mainly seamen and bargemen—who have banded themselves together in faith and works under the appropriate title of the Christian Lifeboat Crew. As an organisation it is not yet a year old, but it has grown wonderfully. The monthly meetings for mutual cheer, testimony, and work in the famous "Focsle" of the Welcome Home have been greatly blessed to its consolidation. Branches are established at various places, frequented by seafaring men and those who work the barges on inland canals. It is extending its operations to foreign seaports, and as every member undertakes to use all possible opportunities of doing spiritual rescue work, the effort is bound to grow in proportion as this principle of self-propagation is faithfully carried out.

One of the happy seasons that are now so familiar to the frequenters of the "Focsle" was experienced at the monthly meeting of the crew last week. By means of an invitation to tea, a special effort was made by Miss Child to gather together a goodly company, not only of workers, but of those who, as yet, have not been pulled out of the sea of sin. The "lower room" was crowded, and the very packing of the place seemed to favour the creation of spiritual heat. It would have been a good experience for anyone who is of a Laodicean temperament, in the matter of prayer and praise, to have heard the tempest of song that surged around the little room, and the outgushing of petition that came from these rough, hardy sons of the sea, as they thanked God for his saving power shown to them and their mates, and pleaded for similar miracles of healing grace to be manifested towards others. Miss Child read some hearty letters from absent members of the crew, including one from Miss Grimston, of Smyrna, who wants a Scandinavian Christian sailor to act as boatman in the harbour at Constantinople, in connection with the Rest. A member of the crew wrote, telling of a blessed two hours of communion with Christ he had while alone at the wheel.

The bulk of the speaking at these monthly

but there is also some word of exhortation to the workers. This time it was a friend, Mr. Fletcher, who exhorted his brethren; and admirably he did it. From the story of the Transfiguration on the mountain top he discoursed on diversities of method needed in connection with the work of God, and urged the crew to do what they could for the Master, with all their might and in their own way.

Then came the testimonies, mostly from bargemen, which were all of the "out and out" sort. We have not space to particularise, but the burden of them was the joy experienced in the Christian life, notwithstanding difficulties, temptations, dangers, and even persecutions. These warm-hearted fellows seemed to revel in the fight, and Christianity to them, at any rate, is an intensely happy and real experience. The most striking of all the testimonies was that given by an old salt, named McPherson, who is now a bargee. In his own vernacular he told what a faithful servant of the devil he had been; how he was thoroughly converted by hearing some Hallelujah lasses in a Salvation Army meeting; how his wife, and more recently his aged father and mother, had been brought to find peace at the feet of Jesus; how he had been healed of a sore sickness; many other incidents he related in true sailor style, that vastly stirred the meeting. Through all these testimonies there ran a vein of entreaty to the unsaved to come into the Lifeboat, Christ, without delay, and then go to work saving others. After this, there was a second meeting for more direct Gospel effort, and for personal dealing and conversation. This Lifeboat Crew is young in point of age, but it has already taken its place among the living agencies of the time.

This Welcome Home is a busy centre of nightly effort for the good of the many mariners who sail from the docks close by, and who find the perils of the land far more subtle and deadly than those of the treacherous sea. There is sleeping accommodation for a number of men, and the beds are always fully occupied. It is pleasant to notice in the various rooms many ornamental mementos of the kindly regard of the seamen, gathered from different lands or the product of their own skill. In the entrance-room are portraits of the King and Queen of Sweden (their own gift), with their autographs. The Queen is an ardent friend of the work.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE in Bristol has arranged for a series of monthly united prayer-meetings, to be held alternately in rooms associated with Established and Nonconformist churches. The first of the meetings was held in the schoolroom of St. Werburgh's Church on Monday, Oct. 24. The vicar (Rev. J. Fox) presided, and a brief address was given by Rev. W. J. Mayers, of City-road Baptist Chapel, Bristol.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.—In the last report of the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association there were stated to be 3671 Associations throughout the world. By general consent, and by the initiation of the International Committee at Geneva, a week of united prayer for young men will be held throughout these Associations during the week commencing Sunday next, November 13. In many of the Associations this will be succeeded by a week of Gospel missions, especially addressed to young men. The fellowship of all Christians in prayer for this class, placed in the midst of strong temptations, is earnestly invited.

Robert Burn, Gen. Sec.

HOME OF REST, KILBURN.—At the all-day meeting last Friday many missions, both at home and abroad, as well as individual workers, were remembered before the Lord, whether they were represented at the meetings or not. Praise and thanksgiving were offered on account of recorded blessing in any part of the harvest field. Mr. C. Russell Hurditch drew all hearts into communion while discoursing on "The Friendship of God." This was followed up by other speakers, and much helpful testimony and earnest prayer were elicited. In the evening Dr. McKilliam gave a most powerful address on "Giving the Ark of God (Christ) his Right Place." Many went away feeling that God had indeed spoken to their hearts. Much blessing is also attending the weekly meetings on

THE SEYCHELLES ISLANDS.

DEAR SIR,—The population of the Seychelles Islands, which was proved to be about 15,500 at the census of 1880, is divided as to religion chiefly into two denominations, the Church of Rome and the Church of England. The Seychellois speak a French patois. The Roman Catholics are by far the most numerous—from eight to ten thousand—though most of them are only nominal members of their church. Rome has at her command a vast staff of agents, a residing bishop, seventeen Capuchin priests and brothers, seven Frères Maristes, and about sixteen sisters of Cluny. They have also several lay helpers. Nearly all these zealots come from France, where it is hardly possible for them, it seems, to seduce any longer the witty French people by the absurdity of their false teachings, but, they come out to compass the islands of the sea to make proselytes. I am perfectly convinced that the few Indians here, who seem to have a great tendency to worship fire, are less idolatrous than the Roman Catholics. Of late years they have introduced huge statues, viz., "Notre-Dame-de-Lourdes," St. Fulgentia, St. Rock and his Dog, St. Andrew, St. Francis, &c. These graven images are carried in procession in every district very frequently, and they are followed by five guns which are thundering all day long in honour of these idols. Is it not exactly what is described in Isaiah xliv. 9—20? It is indeed heart-rending to witness such public idolatry.

The Roman Catholic priests are very rich in properties, churches, convents, and schools. They have no end of means to raise money. For instance, with regard to the funerals, they have three classes. Those who can afford first class pay as much as Rs.200. This does not include the masses, but that is only the fee for the three priests who accompany the body a short distance from the church, chanting in Latin. In front of them are three choir boys, one carrying a large crucifix-cross, one has the holy water, the other has the censer. This takes place in an English colony! Besides, four of these priests are salaried by Government, and draw a sum of Rs.5000 per annum between them. On the other side of the island, the priest who is stationed there has asked the poor people of that place to bring him vanilla, so that he can send it as a present to the Pope. It is more than doubtful if this vanilla will ever reach the Pope. Having been brought up in the Romish religion, and having once been a Romish priest, I know all their wickedness and witchcraft. The Creoles of these islands are very simple, and are easily caught in the clutches of the priests.

We have a hard fight here, but we manage, thank God, to keep our ground. Besides myself, there is an assistant minister (formerly a Romish priest also), a lay missionary of the C.M.S., and at an island about thirty miles from here a deacon. We have ten schools. The teachers in the outposts hold a service on Sundays when the assistant minister is not present. The Protestants are about 3500 in number in all these islands: most of them are at Mahé, and although they are nearly all very poor they have been accustomed to give liberally according to their means. Since 1880 four plots of land have been bought in different out-stations, and on three of them we have school buildings which are also used for the service on Sundays. I am now struggling to raise money for building an establishment for the education of the girls at Victoria, but I find that without substantial help I shall not be able to carry out this most important and necessary work. I am sure the Bishop of Mauritius, who is now in England for his health, would give all information which may be desired about my work. Letters may be addressed to the Bishop, care of Messrs. Brown & Co., 40, St. Mary Axe, London, E.C.—Yours very truly,

J. F. J. GRANDJEAN, Civil Chaplain.

The Parsonage, Mahé, Seychelles.

A MISSION AT GIBRALTAR.

CANON WILBERFORCE and Lord Radstock have, during the past few days, been conducting a brief mission in this garrison. The Canon preached in the cathedral to a large congregation on Sunday, October 23, and also gave addresses in the same place on Gospel Temperance and Purity. At a few hours' notice about 400 soldiers came together to hear an address to men only, and, we believe, God abundantly blessed the message delivered. Lord Radstock conducted Bible-readings in the Soldiers' Institute each afternoon, spoke at our open-air meeting in the public gardens, and also addressed a large gathering of soldiers at Europa.

Accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Wilberforce they sailed for Malaga en route to Granada. A little band of Christian soldiers and blue jackets came down to the pier to see them off. As the boat moved away towards the steamer the chorus, rose from the little band left behind. Our friends in the boat replied with the Doxology, in which we all heartily joined. The Archdeacon of Gibraltar was also on the pier to say farewell.

We shall meet on the banks of the river,

The last day of Lord Radstock's Bible-reading at the Institute was made more interesting by the arrival of a band of missionaries en route for China, India, &c., who had just landed from P. & O. Khedive. All joined for a brief time of prayer and praise, and a most refreshing season was spent. As the P. & O. steamers always remain four hours at Gibraltar, we shall at all times be glad thus to welcome any fellow-labourers who are passing.

Soldiers' Institute. G. HOLMES.

◆

LIGHT IN SPAIN.

THE following is a copy of a letter to Mr. Wm. Greene:—

Very dear Brother in the Lord,—I desire for you, your wife, and your dear children, health and God's blessing.

With great joy and pleasure I had news of you through our brother, Manuel Leal, and as through you I first knew Christ, I frequently pray to God for your health, for that of your wife and children, desiring the blessing of our heavenly Father for them.

Referring to the knowledge of Christ in this town, you sowed the first seeds of the divine word in the family of Leal, and by them I came to a knowledge of Christ Jesus, and since I knew Him I am a new creature. So that I am ever grateful to the person or persons through whom I received the truth.

For them I pray that God may help them spiritually, and also provide for their material welfare. The Lord is with our brother Leal. And he is going through many sorrows. May God come to his help, and recompense him according to his labours in this world, and give him a thousandfold.

Don Guillermo, what joy you would experience if you could come to this village and see for yourself. We have had meetings with 300 people present, all rejoicing at the hearing of the divine word. This is the town that you once knew so dark, and it is now seeing the pure light of the Gospel. But the harvest is great and the labourers are few. If I mistake not, our brother Leal once told me that he had agreed with his family to give one of his two houses, with the legal documents, to some Christian society who will make Evangelical Schools on it, and also a place to worship in, where we can all meet before the Lord. He gives it without money, as it is for the service of God.

Don Guillermo, if you sowed the first seed God by his power gave the increase, so that I who write am born of God, who says that he who calls shall receive, and for this reason the Lord, whose power is infinite, and his grace inexhaustible, will provide what is convenient for us. Our beloved Lord, too, who knows our hearts, will send us a person to help us, and will find for us all that we require, so that this town may have a meeting-house, as well as a place to educate the youth.

Having written the above, those whose names are below salute you with the kiss of peace, and we desire soon to have your answer. May the love of God the Father, and the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with you and your wife and children and all believers in Christ.

PEDRO CASARUBIOS.
FACIENDO RUFIANO.

Campo de Criptana, La Mancha, Spain.

Since receiving the above I have had a letter from Dr. Manuel Leal, ceding his house to me. My desire is, after seeing it and its capabilities, to have it put into the hands of trustees. I have already had a plan and estimate for a small hall from builders on the spot, who estimate it at £160. I wish now to get this sum from the many friends who take an interest in Spain.

Oriolet, Loughton, Essex. WM. GREENE.

◆

CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE, MANCHESTER,

NOVEMBER 22, 23, 1887.

FOR several years past it has been the happy privilege of the Lord's people, in this district, to meet at this season for Conference and Prayer, concerning the extension of his Kingdom at home and abroad. And also to seek, by waiting upon Him, a deeper insight in his will, and a renewed baptism of his Spirit.

The Convention this year is fixed for November 22, 23. On Tuesday, the 22nd, the subject will be "The Coming of the Lord." This will be considered in its threefold relation: (1) To the Jew; (2) To the Church; and (3) To the World. The subject on the second day will be "The Deepening of Spiritual Life." And in the evening, "The Evangelisation of the World."

When we mention the names of the Rev. Canon Faussett, D.D., York; Rev. J. F. Andrewes, M.A., Harrow; Rev. H. Lindsay Young, M.A., Portsea; Rev. Prebendary Macdonald, M.A., Kersal; Rev. John Wilkinson, Mildmay; Rev. Charles Graham, Shepherds' Bush, London; Rev. W. Fuller Gooch; Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., Leicester; Rev. C. A. Fox, M.A., London; Mr. Robert Anderson, LL.D., London; Mr. G. H. Pember, Budleigh, Devon; Mr. Henry F. Bowker, London; Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, Liverpool; Colonel Wilmot Brooke, Dr. Ziemann, and others, it will be seen that some of the ablest and most deeply taught of God's servants on these subjects will be with us. It will be seen, therefore, that only one thing is needed to make the Conference this year even a greater blessing than in years gone by, and that is the renewed presence of Him whose coming and whose kingdom is to be the theme.

In sending forth this intimation, and with it the cordial invitation of the Committee to yourself and friends, to be present, may we ask that you will, during the interval, make this the subject of special prayer. If He has come to our hearts and reigns there, then shall our Convention be owned of Him, to the extension of his kingdom and the making ready of his way.

LEONARD K. SHAW,
HENRY F. BOWKER,
JAMES E. MATHIESON,
Conveners.

Conference Hall,
Strangeways, Manchester.

Admission by ticket, which may be obtained by enclosing stamped envelope for reply to the Secretaries, Conference Hall, Strangeways, Manchester. Refreshment and retiring rooms on the premises, so that friends coming from a distance may be enabled to remain throughout the day.

LAFORCE ASYLUMS.—There are nine houses in connection with this Institution, and in these are sheltered idiots, incurables, epileptics, &c. The Homes now accommodate four hundred and eighty-six inmates, with a staff of about sixty attendants. Some of the inmates pay a small sum for their maintenance, but most of them are totally unable to contribute anything whatever. During 1886 the expenditure amounted to £8105, whilst the sums paid by the inmates or their friends was only £2192; the sum of £5913 had therefore to be raised to meet this deficit; and it is so every year. Those of the inmates who are able to do something are employed at sewing, knitting, &c., and the males work at gardening, cutting wood, and similar tasks; while those who are likely to improve attend school. Pastor E. Rayroux, Laforce, Dordogne, France, is the director.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of the late Rev. Dr. Morley Punshon.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Henry Varley will be unable, from considerations of health, to give the Bible-readings at Stafford Rooms, Nov. 14 to 17, announced in our last issue.

We are glad to be able to report some improvement in the health of Mr. George Hatton. He desires to express his gratitude to the writers of numerous kind letters of sympathy, and asks continued prayer on his behalf.

We regret that Mr. Denham Smith's condition shows no change for the better, but on the contrary his physicians consider that the little strength which still remains to him seems gradually decreasing. We are thankful, however, to say that his mind still preserves its clearness and calm.

The following extract from Dr. Blyden's book on "Christianity, Islam, and the Negro" (reviewed in our last issue), is worth quoting, and contains matter for painful reflection:—

> The intelligent natives of the interior with whom we have conversed in our travels between Sierra Leone and the head waters of the Niger, look, with hardly an exception, upon the religion and books of the white man as intended not to teach men the way to heaven, but how to become rich and great in this world. It is unfortunate for the English and other European languages that in this part of Africa they have come to the greater portion of the natives associated with profligacy, plunder, and cruelty, and devoid of any connection with spiritual things; while the Arabic is regarded by them as the language of prayer and devotion, of religion and piety, of all that is unworldly and spiritual.

It is satisfactory to note the increased stringency of the liquor laws in different parts of the globe. The Isle of Man has recently passed some very strict enactments relating to the closing of public-houses. The Belgian law has also been made more severe, and its prohibition of the sale of intoxicants to mere children is especially to be welcomed. In Austria the penalties of drunkenness are to be increased, and any person convicted of it three times during the same year is to be excluded from the public-houses in his neighbourhood under severe penalties. This law is already in force in two provinces, and is now to be extended to the whole Empire.

It will be remembered that the Bishops of Carlisle, Bedford, and Manchester, preached on the occasion of the late meetings of the British Association in Manchester. The three sermons have been published, and in the current Nineteenth Century Professor Huxley has an article upon them. The Professor proceeds by these three steps:—First, of gratification at the concessions made; then of entangling the Bishop of Manchester in his own syllogistic net in relation to prayer, and showing that it involves the rejection of Bible miracles; then that the Episcopal concessions go to justify his own utter rejection of historical Christianity. It is a pity that Christian ministers do not first make sure of the sceptical drift of the scientific school which Professor Huxley represents, before they attempt compromises.

Professor Huxley, in the article, speaks contemptuously of such recorded miracles as blasting the fig-tree for the absence of fruit, when it was "not the season of figs;" and of demons entering a herd of swine. Is it so contemptible that Christ once, and once only, allowed the destruction of animal life to teach the two important lessons that demoniacal possession was not a physical malady, but much worse, and that unclean spirits would turn to the swine as congenial when they were gone out of men? And does not the Professor know well that a fig-tree profuse in its leaves ought to show early fruit? The tree was a type of a people with an ostentatious show of profession going along with utter fruitlessness, and the miracle was a merciful warning of that which would come to such a people.

Lord Derby's words last week at Liverpool need to be seriously pondered. Depend upon it, he said, the debts of France, Italy, Austria, Russia, are bringing these nations, if not to repayment, to ultimate repudiation. If this utterance from a thoughtful statesman be sound, the look-out is little less than appalling. Certainly, huge departures from the law of God always bring overwhelming disasters.

His Lordship is credited with having said on the same occasion, amongst other striking things, that the Malthusian difficulty is "upon us again," and that it "will have to be faced." A contemporary has not hesitated to call this a prediction, and has stated that the fact is obvious, there being an annual increase of 400,000 in the population of Great Britain, "and no annual increase of acres." There are, however, hundreds of thousands of acres still reserved for game and deer, and for sport, and it should not be impossible, in a Christian land, to resolutely relegate all Malthusian speculations to their own unholy place, and to give the people who would fain work for their children and bring them up in honesty and industry, and in the fear of God, an opportunity of escaping from the dread temptations to sin and crime which, unfortunately, are so plentiful and powerful in the life of the poor.

The Nonconformist and Independent, in a strong article against Mr. Spurgeon's secession from the Baptist Union, quotes an opinion that such action must tend to dissolve ecclesiastical unions into their elements. It could scarcely do this in the case of the Presbyterians and Methodists, where there is a fixed theological standard. But ought not the leaders of Unions of Independent churches to be very cautious lest in the absence of a creed they compromise those they virtually represent?

We make the foregoing comment because we see, in the journal referred to, able objections taken against certain views which were advocated by a gentleman who introduced a discussion at the late meetings of the Congregational Union on "Scientific Theology." Assuredly the paper was "broad" in an extreme sense, and it seems to us, as outsiders, that Unions must resolve themselves into their elements when the convictions of pastors and churches are thus rudely violated. Mr. Spurgeon's secession will probably introduce more caution among leaders henceforth.

We have registered at the Post-office, as our telegraphic address: "Millennium, London." Those who may have occasion to communicate with us or our publishers by telegram, are requested to use this abbreviated address.

The attention of the committee of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society has been drawn to the fact that members of native Christian churches in Africa, and elsewhere, are in the habit of holding slaves, a practice which does not appear to debar them from the full rights of church membership. A resolution was passed at a recent meeting declaring that "the practice of admitting slaveholders into full communion with the Christian Church is contrary to the spirit of Christianity."

A contemporary states that Mr. Irvine, of Liverpool, has been obliged to retire from the African trade because he could not compete with those who deal in drink. That trade is now in the hands of about a dozen firms, the members of which are said to be excellent men—many of them "excellent Christians." The German spirit that is exported to Africa is sold at a profit of 700 per cent.; but, as our contemporary says, "here is the devil that undoes the work and destroys the influence of Christianity." One would rather see the "excellent Christians" engaged in some other occupation than this; though, unfortunately, they are only exporting an article which many other "excellent Christians" are engaged in manufacturing. In Ireland especially it is remarkable how many professed Christians, taking an active part in evangelistic and philanthropic work, are engaged directly or indirectly in the drink traffic. This should not be.

A further illustration of Canon Farrar's remarks upon charity in dribbles and luxury in a flood, which we quoted in the columns of THE CHRISTIAN for October 21, is found in the fact that a larger sum has been paid in duty upon gold and silver plate during the last twelve months than in any year since 1878, there being an increase of no less than 45,000 ounces paid upon in London alone, other centres, Dublin alone excepted, showing a similar proportionate increase. In the two extremes of society, therefore, there are respectively more people feeding off gold and silver, and more people dying for want of a mouldy crust; and perhaps it is not to be wondered at that there is some want of cohesion visible in the social fabric, and that discontent should be stalking abroad somewhat clamorously.

Mr. Herbert Mills, the author of a volume "Poverty and the State" (Kegan Paul & Co.), which some time ago attracted public attention, suggests in The Pall Mall Gazette that the plan which a Dutch philanthropic society has adopted at Frederiksvord, in Holland, should be followed upon a still larger scale in England. There are in the Colony at that place nearly two thousand people "who once belonged to the out-of-work class," but are now engaged in what may be termed co-operative industry. Quite independent of the outside market, they produce within their own borders every year sufficient wheat, oats, vegetables, butter, milk, cheese, beef, mutton, wool, and flax for their own needs. Their own clothing materials are woven in the village, and they sell nothing but their surplus produce. "The moral condition of the people is excellent."

Mr. Mills asks that the plan may be tried in Essex and Suffolk, where land, "drained, fenced, and dotted with farms and homesteads," is being offered for sale at £10 per acre. He shows conclusively that the experiment would be a very safe one. We trust his proposal may meet with the consideration which it appears to deserve. The scheme will be found in detail in Mr. Mill's admirable volume.

Mr. Archibald G. Brown, of the East London Tabernacle, has sent in his resignation to the Baptist Union, thus taking a stand by Mr. Spurgeon in his recent action. Mr. Brown announced the same at the service last Sunday evening.

England is not the only country in which employés suffer from too long hours of labour. At the recent Hygienic Conference at Vienna the delegate from the Hungarian Government, a doctor, is reported in The Times to have made a very earnest protest against the action of the railway, tramcar, and omnibus companies, in which he condemned the excessive hours of labour exacted by these employers from their servants, and traced to this cause many frightful accidents, involving great loss of human life. The following extract from his vigorous impeachment describes a state of things with which we are, unhappily, not altogether unacquainted in London and our large towns:—

> The pointsman, the engine-driver, the tramcar conductor are often absolutely besotted from exhaustion; and among the other bad results produced by overworking these men, and allowing them insufficient time for sleep and meals, is that they are driven to take stimulants, which break down their health and shorten their lives, thereby mostly leaving their widows and orphans to be a burden on public charity.

"He who waits until he can do a great deal of good at once will never do any at all." The mistake of "despising the day of small things," of neglecting the thousand and one little opportunities for a kind word, or charitable action, is one to which the best of us are liable. An apt lesson in the value and right use of "that which is least" is furnished by the scholars of the College School, Saltley, who (as described in the Birmingham Weekly Post) a few months ago began to collect the waste paper about the school grounds and neighbourhood, and with the proceeds of its sale have formed a fund for the benefit of the Children's Hospital. Such a plan, which serves the double purpose of relieving the afflicted and promoting thrift among the youthful donors, is both worthy and easy of imitation.

We are not hearing very much just now about "the housing of the poor," but a recent report has been made from which it appears that there is a decreasing mortality in our jails, prisoners being "well housed, in a sanitary sense," and "supplied with pure air night and day." Surely something upon the same lines might be done for people who are not criminals. Some of these unfortunately get a little too much pure air by night, for it is not unusual in London to come upon them sleeping under a newspaper.

The Jubilee penny New Testament is obtaining a prodigious sale in various parts of the world. In Australia it has been largely circulated, even among Romanists, although the priests have raised a loud protest.

We warmly welcome a popular edition of the Life of the late Lord Shaftesbury (7s. 6d. Cassell & Co.). The whole of the matter contained in the three original volumes is given, and the book is brightened by a number of illustrations. As a gift-book to young men, in all ranks of life, it could hardly be excelled.

The "Cass Case" has terminated in such an inconsequential fashion that it looks as though there had been mismanagement somewhere. The offending policeman was acquitted by direction of Mr. Justice Stephen on a technical point, and not on the real merits of the evidence. In these circumstances it seems highly indecent, and contrary to the best interests of the police force, that Endacott should be reinstated in his post, as though he had been proved innocent of the charge of perjury. This action tends to weaken the respect for law and its executors entertained by the public; and that is a disaster the full force of which we are now witnessing in the sister isle.

Miss Cass (now Mrs. Langley) has good cause to complain, not only of the way in which she was treated in the first instance by P.C. Endacott and Mr. Newton, the magistrate, but of the course adopted at the recent trial. As many of our contemporaries have remarked, the proceedings in this case show that the reputation of young women who may have occasion to traverse our London streets in the evening, is virtually at the mercy of any unscrupulous or injudicious policeman. We are glad to notice that a fund has been opened by The Pall Mall Gazette, as a practical expression of sympathy with Miss Cass.

Complaints have been made as to the action of the police in connection with the recent gatherings of the "unemployed" at Trafalgar-square and elsewhere. It must be remembered that the rank and file of the force have to act in accordance with orders from their superiors, and if the command is given to disperse a crowd, it cannot, as a rule, be carried out without some rough work. We have reason to know that many of the Christian men in the force deeply feel the position in which they are placed under these circumstances. At recent meetings in connection with the Policemen's Christian Association, their voices were heard in prayer for themselves, their comrades, and their officers, that wisdom and a right spirit may be granted to all during these trying times.

It seems to human eyes that the great and immediate need for the evangelisation of the world is money. There are hundreds of earnest and bright young Christian men and women in Great Britain and America who have offered themselves for missionary work in the foreign field; but there is no money to meet the expense of sending them. There are in the Church of Christ more redeemed ones ready to give themselves than rich ones to give their money. So that, to adopt the prophet's figure, the children are brought to the birth, and for want of means, there is no power to bring forth. Are, then, the graces of the Spirit disproportionately bestowed? or is there a mistake in supposing that money is so essential? Is there a possibility and a danger of depending in some degree on money instead of on God?

When Naaman returned healed to Elisha's door, he offered the prophet "a blessing," in the form of ten talents of silver, six thousand pieces of gold, and ten changes of raiment. But Elisha answered, "As the Lord liveth before whom I stand, I will take none." And though urged to accept it, he still refused. Would any of our churches, or societies, or institutions have declined so handsome a contribution? Indeed, a wide-awake secretary or collector would not fail, while returning abundant thanks for so munificent a donation, to suggest that its value would be multiplied if it were made an annual subscription.

The Bristol Evening News reports a luncheon given to Mr. Wilson Barrett by the Arts Club, at which several reverend gentlemen were present:—

> After the toast of "The Queen," that of the "Ministers of all Denominations," was given by Mr. F. G. Powell, who expressed satisfaction that the barrier between the Church and stage was being rapidly swept away in Bristol. Rev. Heathcote Smith and Rev. A. N. Blatchford responded. Rev. Mordaunt Crofton, in proposing the "Health of Mr. Wilson Barrett," said he had learned all he knew of speaking from watching the performances of Mr. Wilson Barrett, whom he regarded as an actor who earnestly strove to bring religion and the stage into accord. He believed that the stage would be of much service to the clergy in the work, and he acknowledged what Mr. George Chute did for them at St. Stephen's. He had been a clergyman at Leeds, and he took his young men there to Mr. Barrett's theatre, and in Bristol he advised his young men to go to the theatre when there was a good and true play to be seen.

Whatever other separations may or may not take place, the crying need of the time is a separation between the Church and the World. While we find men wearing the garb of ministers of Jesus Christ blowing hot upon the theatre and cold upon the prayer-meeting, we cannot doubt that men of God will come out from among them and be separate. A new denomination, called Christians, as at Antioch, is urgently needed, that shall gather together in one the children of God who are scattered abroad among worldly churches of whatever name.

The Bristol Times and Mirror says, concerning the piece which is being nightly played by Mr. Wilson Barrett in that city:—

> We confess that we do not like "Clito." It is an unhealthy play, and, although it had a good run in London, we do not think that, as a rule, it will be acceptable to a provincial audience. So far as the company is concerned, it is strongly supported. So far as the scenery is concerned, it is admirably mounted; but the whole piece is distasteful to a provincial audience, who are not like those who congregate in London theatres, more or less blasé. We say this to start with, simply to show the line on which we shall lay our notice. The difficulty which faces us at the outset, however, is the fact that Mr. Wilson Barrett, who, with Miss Eastlake, saves the piece, is a joint author of the play. What we wish to argue is this: that a drama which is founded on immorality, in that its leading female character is a courtesan, cannot be a play which, notwithstanding its strong situations, magnificent scenery, and general appurtenances, can be considered sans rapproche.

This coincidence of itself causes The English Churchman "to ask, with amazement, what is the kind of influence which Rev. Mordaunt Crofton brings to bear on the 'many young men,' and others, who gather at St. Stephen's, Bristol? Is it possible that he is acquainted with the details of the play in question? We hope the Bishop of the diocese will ask him to explain how 'Clito' is to be regarded as of 'great use to morality and religion.'"

It was mentioned in one of our recent Temperance Notes that Archdeacon Farrar had offered a reward of £100 to anyone supplying proof of a case of drunkenness being cured apart from the practice of total abstinence. The Archdeacon wishes us to state that he has never made any such offer. We regret having added currency to the statement, which was given on the authority of a pamphlet on Prohibition by Mr. Thomas Fidler, lately issued at Newbury, Berks.

◆

DR. BARNARDO'S RETURN.

St. Giles and St. James, like diamonds and dirt, are different forms of the same material. To transform the poor children of men who are trodden down like the mire of the streets, into diamonds for the crown of Jesus, is the noblest work which God can give any of his creatures to accomplish. This is the work of all such institutions as Dr. Barnardo's Homes.

Next week we shall report at some length the great meeting at the Edinburgh Castle, to welcome Dr. and Mrs. Barnardo, after three months' absence in Canada, and a stormy passage home. When we look back to the beginning of this work, and see what it is to-day, having blessed more than ten thousand boys and girls, we must exclaim, "What hath God wrought!" And yet only the foundations have been laid. The great and difficult question has been solved—what to do with the thousands of friendless, homeless, destitute children who apply for help. The recent visit of Dr. Barnardo to Canada has carried the work of emigration, begun by Miss Macpherson and others, a long stage further.

He has now a tract of land of 7000 acres; and out of 2683 boys and girls whom he has sent out, over 99 per cent. are doing well: only 19 have turned out badly. While parties are contending to keep or to acquire power; Governments nonplussed by gatherings of unemployed; and political economists appalled by the increase of population, Christian philanthropists, heeding the command of God, "Increase and multiply and replenish the earth," are showing a way out of the difficulty of a congested and discontented population.

The foremost of these beneficent agencies are Dr. Barnardo's splendid institutions, which should, even in self-interest, be sustained by an unwearied and magnificent generosity.

HALL FOR THE BLIND AT CROUCH HILL.—The new Jubilee Hall for the blind, in connection with the North London Homes for Aged Christian Blind Men and Women at Crouch Hill, is formally opened. The entire cost of the hall, including three additional rooms, is £1000, of which £410 has been subscribed; and it will comfortably seat 416 persons. At the present moment there are forty-three persons in the Homes; room is, however, provided for seventy-seven people. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to ninety-two years. The opening proceedings were combined with the annual sale of useful and fancy articles. After devotional exercises, participated in by Rev. J. R. Wood (Upper Holloway), Rev. A. Rowland, LL.B. (Crouch-end), and Rev. Rowland Evans (Crouch Hill), Rev. H. Bright spoke a few words, and hoped that in three years all the debt upon the building would be paid off.

"NOT IN VAIN."

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord."—1 Cor. xv. 58.

Out of the experience of the Lord's faithfulness in this respect, I would venture to send out a word of encouragement upon the subject. We are often discouraged by the seeming failures in our work, and are prone to look more for the palpable result of our labour, than to the foundation of the promise "Not in Vain."

It is not always good for us to see the full corn in the ear, if we ourselves have sown the seed, and watered and weeded the soil; we might forget the warning statement, that though "Paul may plant and Apollos water, it is God (and God only) that giveth the increase." This principle was expressed by the dear Master Himself in John iv. 36, 37, 38, "And herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth,......that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together." One servant may only "gather out the stones," that the ploughman may follow and furrow; another casts in the seed, but it is the holy quickening Spirit of God which maketh it to blade, and bud, and ear, and to Him alone must be all the glory! Our business then is to do his work, not ours, for his glory, not ours, and to rest upon his promise that it is not in vain. It saves such a lot of worry, and fretting, and disappointment, and discouragement, and sitting down resolved "not to try any more, for it is all of no use!" Yea! rather let us be "stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord"; resting upon his sweet promise that by and by "We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves," and perhaps then we shall be very much surprised at our success.

Depressed by Failure's voice of weeping
O'er souls that always would go wrong!
My faith was drooping—Satan keeping
Watch upon me. Doubt grew strong.

And all seemed barren, bleak, and blighted,
"But fruitless labour, Lord," I said,
"The furrows parched, the message slighted,
"The springs are dried, the seed is dead!"

A hush! a breath from heaven's portals,
"A still, small voice," in tender strain
Whispered amid this din of doubting,
"Cheer up, my child, 'tis not in vain.

"Not in vain, the disappointments,
Not in vain, the toil and strife,
Not in vain, the many failures,
Not in vain, the earnest life!

"I have said it. Oh! believe it,
Not in vain your work for Me!"
Jesus! Master! let me live it,
Finding all my hope in Thee!

"Stedfast" make me by thy presence,
And "unmoveable" alway!
In thy labour oft "abounding,"
Never flagging, Thou my stay!

Storms may shriek, and clouds may lower,
Lightnings flash, and thunders roll!
Thine the victory, thine the power:
Let this anchor hold my soul!

Though the powers of hell be raging,
Though the billows mount on high!
"Not in vain," with flag still flying,
We shall find the haven nigh!

Toiling, hoping, working, resting,
Each in turn as Thou seest best!
Now is but the time of testing,
Then! reward, and righteous rest.

R. B.

MR. TOYE'S ORPHANAGE.—We are requested to caution our readers with respect to a respectably dressed woman, who has been soliciting subscriptions for this Orphanage at Lewisham. She has no authority to do so.

WONDERFUL LOVE.

[Written during the mission at Hastings conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer. October, 1887.]

His love to me was wonderful
(That love of my dear Lord's);
So high, so long, so broad, so deep,
It passeth human words.

It came so freely from his heart,
Unsought, and undesired;
I only knew that I was lost
And, oh, I felt so tired!

He knew exactly all my need,
And all my years of sin,
But yet He opened wide his arms
To take the wanderer in.

His love to me is wonderful;
For Jesus loves me still,
Though even now, at times, I know
I fail to do his will.

His love will be most wonderful,
When life itself is o'er,
And I, a pensioner on grace
Shall stand at Heaven's door.

And Jesus bids me welcome there,
And tells me I may be
A member of his royal Home
For all eternity!

Charlotte Murray.

◆

TENT MISSIONS.

The Evangelisation Society has issued its report of Tent work for the past summer. Materially and financially this has ended disastrously, for in the autumn storms four tents were destroyed, and several others seriously injured. But the spiritual results have been most cheering. In every place visited there has been much blessing. Multitudes thronged the tents, in which the Gospel was preached with great plainness and faithfulness.

Many cases of interest were met with. One old man, who had been persuaded to attend a meeting, exclaimed, "How could God forgive the sins of eighty years?" At length he was enabled to rejoice in the assurance that the blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin. It is curious to note how the various reports agree in saying that when a tent mission goes to a village for the first time, there is a strong feeling of shyness amongst the people. This, however, is often but an evanescent thing, and those who have been thus in the cloud find themselves ere many days rejoicing in the light. In one or two cases it is mentioned that people said they scarcely dared go to the meetings for fear of offending those upon whom they were dependent. But again it is gratefully acknowledged that in not a few cases "High Churchmen" have joined with those of other denominations in furthering the work and encouraging the people to attend the meetings.

The report states that every summer the work has increased; there have been more tents, and the evangelists have visited more places. In the six months ending September of this year nearly ten thousand evangelistic meetings were held, being an increase of five hundred upon any previous corresponding period. Such broadcast sowing of the Gospel seed, in fields white to the harvest, is a work which Christians should ardently support. The hon. sec. is Captain W. E. Smith, 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

REV. J. HASLAM conducted a successful mission at St. John's Church, Chelsea, from October 23 to November 2. The vicar, Rev. F. W. A. Wilkinson, with his curate, Rev. A. E. Dibben, and a large staff of workers, had great preparation made. Every family was visited and invited to attend, and much prayer was offered. God's blessing was given. Besides the services in church, Mrs. Haslam conducted meetings for women, and visits were paid to workshops, and short services held during the dinner hour. Special services were also conducted for children, by Rev. E. J. Palmer.

LONDON WEST CENTRAL MISSION.

The services held in St. James's Hall on Sunday last were again largely attended. In the evening the building was crowded to excess, and hundreds had to be turned away from the doors. A noticeable feature of the congregations, afternoon and evening, was the presence of so many young men. At the close of the evening service the inquiry-rooms were crowded, and there were numerous professed decisions for Christ.

The afternoon service, conducted by Mr. Hughes, was a somewhat remarkable one. The preacher selected for his text Matt. xiv. 16. At many points his remarks elicited applause, and other marks of approval. Mr. Hughes began his address by stating that he had received a letter from an excellent Christian gentleman in London, who said he had left St. James's Hall on the previous Sunday afternoon greatly grieved, because, instead of preaching the Gospel, he had talked about electing vestrymen who would close insanitary dwellings. It was only too possible, added the writer of the letter, that some who had heard Mr. Hughes, and who might have been saved, were now in the flames of hell. He was astonished at Mr. Hughes attempting to play with the Gospel, and hoped that God would teach him not to squander the great opportunity he had of preaching Christ to the unsaved. "That gentleman," said Mr. Hughes, "no doubt represents tens of thousands of the very best Christians in England, and yet I say, before the open Bible and before Jesus Christ, that the view which he holds is one of the most dangerous ever entertained by a Christian man. It was the main cause of the French Revolution, and for the same reason all the statesmen in Europe to-day are terrified at the advance of atheistic socialism, communism, and Nihilism. Not that I under-estimate the importance of the preaching that he wishes to have on every occasion that a Christian minister opens his mouth. Once only during the whole week do I propose to deal with the social aspects of Christianity; and if every day of the week and twice on Sunday we preach the Gospel, even to his satisfaction, may I not be permitted, for one brief hour on Sunday afternoon, without neglecting any other duty, to deal with the public bearings of the Gospel, which have been so long and so perilously neglected by those who are followers of Jesus Christ? (Hear, hear.) I am very glad that some, at any rate, agree with me; and I hope that those who agree with me will support me, because I am well aware that in the course I have deliberately adopted, and from which I certainly shall not swerve, I am going counter to many of the existing prejudices of those earnest evangelical Christians with whom in most respects I find myself in heartiest sympathy."

Mr. Hughes then proceeded at considerable length to deal with the adaptation of Christianity to public, as well as to private, life.

The workers in connection with the Mission continue to report a very blessed work, full of encouragement, and with many tokens of the Divine presence and favour. At the Friday noon service arrangements are made so that those who can come in but for a few minutes from the whirl and hurry of business may enjoy a quiet and hallowed waiting upon God. Mr. Pearse is taking up the subject of Christ's idea of Christianity compared with ours. About four hundred were gathered at noon on Friday last. At night some fifteen hundred persons attended the doctrinal meeting, which was conducted by Mr. Hughes. This meeting is to stimulate and guide Christians in their search for the fuller purposes of God in his redeeming love. On Sunday morning, to a congregation of some fifteen hundred, mostly young men, the service was bright and joyous, and shouts of praise from rejoicing Christians came from all parts of the hall as Rev. Mark Guy Pearse dwelt on Neh. viii. 10. At night the word was with great power; many could not get in, and at the close of the service at least a hundred rose to testify their decision for Christ.

Last Monday night a praise meeting was held in Wardour Hall, conducted by Rev. M. G. Pearse. It was a praise meeting, indeed; many bright testimonies were given to Christ's power to save and keep.

Mr. Josiah Nix has been much encouraged by the ready response to his appeal for help in establishing a soup kitchen.

THE BROUSSA ORPHANAGE.

This Protestant institution in Bithynia was founded in 1875, during the terrible famine which in that year ravaged Asia Minor. Shortly afterwards the war between Russia and Turkey broke out, and many destitute little ones, irrespective of creed and nationality, found a home in the Orphanage, which is supported entirely by voluntary contributions.

The pupils are trained and educated in a strictly evangelical spirit, with a view to their becoming useful instruments for the grand work of the reformation of the country. Since 1882, when suitable premises were secured, a boarding and a day-school have been added, under the sanction of the Imperial Government. During the last thirteen years nearly four hundred children from all parts of the empire—Christians of all Oriental denominations, as well as Mohammedans and Jews of either sex—have passed through the institution, many of whom are now usefully situated, and doing well; and there are now a hundred children under its care, a few of whom pay a small school fee. The first honorary principal of the institution, Mrs. Baghdasarian, well known for her Christian labours in Kensington and at Constantinople, worked among these children till 1884, when she went to her eternal rest.

The terrible famine in the interior, together with many great fires, has reduced the whole country to the utmost poverty and misery. Besides a debt of £150 for building of dormitories, £150 is needed to supply the wants of the institution till January next. The purveyors have stopped supplying daily necessaries on account of non-payment.

The Principal, Mr. G. Baghdasarian, is now in this country seeking to arouse sympathy for the work. He may be addressed to the care of Rev. T. W. Brown, of the Turkish Missions' Aid Society, 32, The Avenue, Bedford-park, Chiswick, London.

BIBLE-CLASS UNION.—This Union of Bible-classes in business houses recently held its autumn tea and social gathering at Exeter Hall. The Union has at the present time a roll of between thirty and forty houses, in which at least one Bible-class or other religious meeting is held weekly. Any information respecting the work can be obtained of the hon. secretary, Mr. S. E. Chenery, 165, Newington-causeway, S.E.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on services at North Tawton, Devon, by Mr. G. Hefford, of the Evangelisation Society.——For blessing on a month's mission in Belgrave-road and Peter-street Chapel, Dover, commencing Nov. 13 to Dec. 9, by Mrs. Horton and Miss Parker.——For blessing on a Gospel mission at Kingston Fair, Nov. 13 and 14.——For blessing on a mssion to young men, in connection with Y.M.C.A., Hampstead, conducted by Mr. Harry Grattan Guinness and others, from Nov. 21 to 25.——For blessing on a mission at St. John's Church, Caterham, Nov. 19 to 30, to be conducted by Rev. J. H. Haslam, M.A.——For blessing on a special mission at West Kensington Hall, Hammersmith-road, by Mr. Leonard Weaver, to Nov. 13.——For blessing on a mission at the Union Tabernacle, Wandsworth-road, to Nov. 21, by Mr. John McAuliffe.——For blessing on the mission being conducted in Cork by Mr. George Clarke, from Nov. 6, for ten days.——For blessing on mission services by Mr. D. Carnegie, of Aberdeen, in the Congregational Chapel, Kirkwall, to Nov. 18.——For blessing on Rev. M. L. Gillander's work at Applecross, Dingwall, N.B.——For Long Stratton, that the Lord may awaken souls, and lead them to Himself.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. George Muller and his wife have arrived in Australia on their way to New Zealand, where they go to conduct an evangelistic mission. This is their fifteenth missionary tour.

Mr. J. W. Moodie has closed a week's meetings in Duns. Much interest was manifested. Many passed into the inquiry-room to be spoken to, and not a few professed to decide for Christ.

Hawick, N.B.—Mr. Jos. Johnstone has been holding evangelistic services for the past fortnight at Wunsland, a village near here. The place, says a correspondent, has been greatly moved by the power of God.

Mr. William Nobbs is conducting Gospel and other meetings at the Mission-hall, in Kensington Park-road, W. There have been happy seasons of Gospel testimony each evening, and much blessing to souls.

Coatbridge, N.B.—Mr. W. D. Dunn conducted a mission here from Oct. 24 till Nov. 4, with very evident indications of God's presence to bless. Many backsliders have been restored to fellowship with the Saviour, and quite a large number have professed faith in Jesus for the first time. A village, about two miles away from the town, has had a wonderful visitation of the Lord's convincing and converting power. The believers interested are full of joy and thanksgiving to God for his goodness.

Leven, Fife.—Mr. T. Canning, of the Evangelisation Society, closed a three weeks' series of evangelistic meetings in the Free Church, Leven, on October 23. Much interest in spiritual things has been created throughout the district; deep anxiety has been manifested by many; and a considerable number have professed to decide for Christ. A pleasing feature of the mission is the very remarkable refreshing of spirit, and stimulus to Christian work which it has been the means of bringing to believers.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken has recently conducted a most successful mission at the Luton parish church. The meetings commenced on October 16, and were continued till November 1. Mr. Aitken gave afternoon and evening addresses each day, and the faithful and searching words of truth that were spoken appealed to the hearts of all. Many have decided for Christ, and have come out of the kingdom of sin and darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son, and Christians have been lifted up higher, and their hearts warmed and cheered.

Bristol.—Rev. R. F. Horton, of Hampstead, recently conducted a special mission at Highbury Chapel, Bristol. On four mornings Mr. Horton gave real heart-searching, enlightening, and soul-elevating Bible readings, which attracted select and thoughtful audiences. Mr. Horton's addresses were characterised by great clearness of statement, and a bold directness of aim. Night after night several remained for personal conversation, and some have given evidence of the beginning of the new life as the result of the faithful teaching and appeal.

A work amongst "Corner-boys."—In a very dark locality in the south of London some earnest Christian young fellows two years ago started a mission service for the young men and lads who were to be seen playing "pitch and toss," and in various other ways breaking the Sabbath. At first, meeting with very little success, the work was almost abandoned; but, thank God, for the last month or two many have left the ring of gamblers (in answer to prayer), and have come into the little mission-room to listen to the Gospel message Prayer is asked that this work may prosper and souls be saved.

Cargill, Perthshire.—Two weeks of evangelistic services have just been held in this beautiful district of country. The meetings, which were held in the Free Church, were most encouraging, considering the sparse population, and the long distances from which the people came. The interest in Divine things was very marked, one able to judge observing that no such interest had been manifested since the times of refreshing in 1861. A goodly number of young men and women were spoken to about the all-important question of personal salvation, and several profess to have decided for Christ. The writer of this paragraph, as an outsider, privileged to take part in the good work, has much pleasure in bearing this testimony. May the devoted minister of the congregation continue in such services to sow and reap an abundant harvest of souls.

Rev. W. Haslam will conduct a mission at St. George's, Tufnell-park, N.W., Nov. 19 to 29.

Letters to the Editor.

THE OLD AND THE NEW THEOLOGY.

SIR,—In regard to the controversy on this subject, I thought at first that Mr. Spurgeon had taken too gloomy a view of affairs. But after reading the various replies and explanations, the faithful preacher's words of alarm and warning do not seem too strong. These expositors of the new theology in many cases are opposed, not only to the common creed of all the churches of the Reformation, but they set at nought the plain teaching of the Word of God. The doctrine of the Atonement in its old and accepted sense is denied, and the preaching of the Cross is counted foolishness by these worldly-wise men. One of them even says that "the doctrine of vicarious punishment is immoral"!

On this point I commend to notice the words, not of a professional theologian or preacher, but of Dr. Johnson, whose great intellect accepted what these small men ridicule:—

"Whatever difficulty there may be in the conception of vicarious punishment, it is an opinion which has had possession of mankind in all ages. There is no nation that has not used the practice of sacrifices. Whoever, therefore, denies the propriety of vicarious punishment, holds an opinion which the sentiments and practice of mankind have contradicted from the beginning of the world. The great sacrifice for the sins of mankind was offered at the death of the MESSIAH, who is called in Scripture 'The Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.' To judge of the reasonableness of the scheme of redemption, it must be considered as necessary to the government of the universe that God should make known his perpetual and irreconcileable detestation of moral evil. He might indeed punish, and punish only the offenders; but as the end of punishment is not revenge of crime, but propagation of virtue, it was more becoming the Divine clemency to find another manner of proceeding, less destructive to man, and at least equally powerful to promote goodness. The end of punishment is to reclaim and warn. That punishment will both reclaim and warn, which shows evidently such abhorrence of sin in GOD, as may deter us from it, or strike us with dread of vengeance when we have committed it. This is effected by vicarious punishment."—Boswell's Life of Johnson, vol. iv. p. 124, Oxford Clarendon Press edition.

Other testimonies as decided could be quoted from men who were giants in intellect yet children in faith; and of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.

M.D.

HELPING THE POOR.

SIR,—I would not by any word of mine seek to hinder the outstretched hand of the charitable in relieving the needs of the poorest. But I desire to call attention to the fact, known to all who mingle with the working classes, that the real unemployed are not helped by a bread or soup ticket, or even by a small money gift. Many of them have striven hard to keep a decent home and to bring up their children respectably. The appearance of the latter in our Sabbath schools is alone sufficient to confirm this. They need special consideration. They are not found amongst the clamorous who make a trade of the present widespread distress. Neither will they hang about charity organisation societies, &c., waiting for a beggar's dole. If, driven to desperation at their children's needs, they apply as advised to the parochial authorities, they are only insulted by being told to "come into the house."

How can such be helped? I venture to suggest that much can be done by small loans granted at the instance of missionaries and others personally acquainted with their state, who go in and out amongst them, and who find in many of them much to admire, and more most deeply to sympathise with. To impart and receive such help would neither involve patronage, on the one hand, nor humiliation on the other. It would be a more powerful proof (to them) of vital Christianity than any number of tracts or sermons, whilst the kindly feelings engendered would be a potent factor in influencing them for their highest good.

Sincerely yours,

East Greenwich. MISSIONARY.

HOMES FOR WORKING GIRLS IN LONDON.

DEAR SIR,—I thank you for your recent expression of gladness at the way in which (under God) our Homes have prospered, but may I ask you to allow me to state that instead of "nine hundred and odd girls accommodated during 1886" as you mention, it should have been eighteen hundred and twenty-four.

Although it is a fact that we have £2100 on deposit at our bankers to found another home to be known as Domgay House, it is also a fact that our efforts are stayed owing to our indebtedness to our bankers of £925, incurred in the founding of our latest addition—Lincoln House.

Yours very truly,

JOHN SHRIMPTON.

38, Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.

OUR COUNTRYMEN IN INDIA.

DEAR SIR,—I observe in your last issue some statements by a Madras civilian, "as to the fact of Englishmen generally despising the natives." This is no doubt true in reference to many of our countrymen in India; but I think the word "generally" makes the statement too sweeping. I have travelled in nearly all the provinces of India and met all sorts and conditions of men. Europeans, from working men up to governors and viceroys, and natives, from coolies almost naked, up to the "Kings of Ind"; and the general result of my observation is that a large proportion of our countrymen treat the natives with considerable respect and much kindness. I can easily remember many examples of this from Simla and Peshawur to Calcutta and Madras, and from Upper Assam to Bombay. I do not refer here to mere exceptions.

India is so vast, that it is difficult in speaking or writing about it to avoid making statements somewhat one-sided. I do not wonder at the moral indignation of the Madras civilian. I have felt it in India, and I feel it still; but I do hope your readers will not regard his description as generally applicable.

No one can lament more than I do indifference, intemperance, and infidelity, and other evils, including a disregard to the feelings and interests of the natives; but I venture to say that it is the reverse with many, and that higher types of Christian decision and practical benevolence cannot be found anywhere than in India.

I have to thank you heartily for your editorial remark regarding "the immense value of the Anglo-Indian Evangelisation Society"—a Society that I have represented since 1870, first in India, and now in Britain; but I am sure you will appreciate my desire that, considering the importance of the Anglo-Indian Dispersion, it is most desirable that, whilst evil is marked and lamented, what is noble and generous should be duly recognised and recorded.—Yours faithfully,

J. FORDYCE.

33, Sutherland-place, Bayswater, W.

SPIRITUAL ARITHMETIC.

SIR,—You quote from The War Cry in your issue of October 21, to the effect that four hundred and thirty converts were made in London through the instrumentality of the Salvation Army during one week; and that, if sinners were saved at the same rate, weekly, "in fourteen weeks the entire population of London would be saved, and that without individual converts being instrumental in saving more than one per week."

This, at first sight, appears to be an extraordinary statement; but, assuming the conditions suggested, the result would be that in fourteen weeks the number of converts would be over three and a half millions of souls.

Now, a spiritual progression, such as that suggested, has, I fear, never been attained, excepting in periods of exceptional revival—such, for instance, as Pentecost, when 3000 souls were brought to Christ in one day.

But, let me ask, is it an extreme stretch of charity to hope that 430 souls might be born again weekly, all the world over, by the agency of all the churches, and that each, on the average, should bring one brother or sister weekly to the knowledge of the truth? If not, it is a startling and solemnly suggestive thought that the result would be (assuming the unconverted population of the whole world at 2700 millions, and taking no account of existing Christians) that less than six months (23½ weeks) would suffice to bring the whole world to a saving knowledge of the truth.

Here are the figures for the curious, the thoughtful, the serious, or the hopeful, to work out:—1 convert, bringing 1 weekly, 1 will become 2 at the close of the second week, and 2 will become 4 at the close of the third week, and so on. Doubling through a series of terms, one will amount to 4,194,304 at the end of the twenty-third week. Add a half at the same ratio, and the number multiplied into 430—the starting figure—will be 2700 millions, and 5,326,080 to spare.

I leave it to you to weigh the possibilities suggested by the above figures, and to point the solemn moral to the churches of Christ.

London. B. S.

◆

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE IN SCOTLAND.

A NUMBER of ministers of the United Presbyterian Church met in conference, lately, in Perth, for three days. The conference was of a private and informal character. For a year or two a desire had been growing, and had been privately spoken of among some ministers, to have a quiet time for self-examination, prayer, and mutual stimulus in the spiritual life. On the Tuesday of the Synod week—i.e., the Synod corresponding with the General Assembly of other Presbyterians—there was earnest talk among personal friends of the blessing God had given to a ministerial conference in the South; and it was agreed that each minister present at the Edinburgh Synod should invite three of his friends to a similar gathering. So ready a response was given by the ministers invited as to show that a want deeply felt among them was being met. Seventy accepted the invitations, and met in Perth. The meetings were held in the hall of the Wilson Church.

The proceedings were conducted in an informal manner, the comparative smallness of the meeting creating a homeliness and mutual brotherly confidence which are not so easily attained in larger gatherings. Monday evening's sederunt began with prayer for the presence of the Spirit, and confession of personal unworthiness and ministerial shortcomings. Such earnest heart-searching made a good preparation for the discussion on Tuesday forenoon, on "Personal Holiness as Essential to Spiritual Power." In the afternoon the solemn impressions of the morning were deepened by a conversation on the gift of power for service—how received and how retained, which led to a time of silent prayer. At the evening meeting, however, at which the subject of conference was "The Responsibilities following upon the Reception of Power—Aggressiveness, Readiness for Personal Sacrifice, and Removal of Hindrances," the impressiveness of the gathering reached its culmination in the whole company of ministers dedicating themselves afresh and entirely to a whole-hearted service of the Master. The scene will ever be remembered by those present, and cannot be without fruit in the lives of the individual ministers, and in the spiritual welfare of their congregations. This conference proved so blessed that one on a larger scale is contemplated.

◆

OBITUARY.

MRS. CASSON.

ON the morning of Sunday, October 23, Mrs. Emily Casson entered peacefully into rest. For many years she has been well known and beloved as an earnest worker, a gentle and true-hearted Christian. During the time she lived in York, about seventeen years, she was actively engaged in temperance work. She was much interested in the soldiers quartered there, and gave several addresses in the barracks. Every year at York there is a fair, and Mrs. Casson felt very anxious to do something for the travelling showmen; so one Sunday morning she and some other ladies went round and invited the people to tea. A great many came; numbers took the pledge; the work was carried on, and there are now several hundred abstainers among them. When she came to live in London in 1878 she accepted the hon. secretaryship of the British Women's Temperance Association. In 1881 she retired from that, and devoted her energies to the Women's Union of the C.E.T.S., then in its infancy. Both societies owe much of their success to Mrs. Casson's earnest and

The Book World.

The Brownies: their Book. By Palmer Cox. 8s. T. Fisher Unwin. Pure fun from beginning to end—funny pictures, and funny verses. Many a good laugh (and laughter is a wholesome thing) will ring through the nurseries into which this volume finds its way.

From Deacon to Churchwarden, by Dr. J. W. Kirton (Swan Sonnenschein & Co.), is not by any means a pleasant story, but it may serve to illustrate the unhappy results that often flow from worldly prosperity when there is a profession of religion without the restraining power of grace in the heart.

Cyril Daneley; or, The Blue Hill. By Miranda. Elliot Stock. A capital book for boys, showing the beauty and usefulness of a life early devoted to God. It is quite refreshing to meet with a description of a pure young disciple following and working for his Saviour, and therefore the more heartily enjoying boyish pursuits and pleasures.

The Story of the Bible. Told in simple language, with numerous illustrations. 5s. S. W. Partridge & Co. This is the old, old story, told in words which, if not new, are a variation from the Bible language, and may attract the attention of some who have not begun to pay much heed to the Sacred Book. The illustrations are good and help to a right understanding of some difficult passages. A good gift-book for children.

Memories of the Past. Macniven & Wallace. We have here a collection of truly delightful sketches by a keen observer, mainly of Scottish worthies who made their mark in the history of their time. Chalmers, Irving, McCheyne, Candlish, Guthrie, Walter Scott, Hugh Miller, "Christopher North," Judge Jeffrey, the poet Campbell and others of lesser fame, pass before us in succession. Our guide through this distinguishad portrait gallery is the late Rev. James Dodds, of Dunbar, himself a man of fine literary gift and an earnest minister of the Gospel. Northern readers especially will revel in these pages. A brief account of Miss Clephane, the authoress of "The Ninety and Nine," and the circumstances under which she wrote the now famous hymn, is of universal interest. A short memoir of Mr. Dodds, by his widow, helps to make up a book of singular attractiveness (2s. 6d.).

Dr. Gordon Stables, R.N., has not only been a great roamer about the world, but he has the happy knack of weaving his experiences into story. Two books before us are capital specimens of his powers of graphic narration. —Born to Wander (3s. 6d. S. W. Partridge & Co.) carries us, with two adventurous youths, through Polar snows, over sunny seas, and through all manner of possible, as well as some impossible, mishaps.—In the Land of the Great Snow Bear (3s. 6d. Sunday-school Union) is a fascinating "tale of love and heroism," in which the author's intimate knowledge of sea life in the Arctic regions stands him in good stead. Both books are well illustrated; moreover they are marked by a fine religious tone that makes them quite unexceptionable as reading for boys. Our only fear is that their pictures of romantic and adventurous travel may make imaginative youths dissatisfied with the quiet and prosaic stay-at-home life that most of them must lead.

In Immanuel's Land. Memorials of Sophia Mary Frances Wood. By her Mother, F. L. Cheales. R. J. Clark, Dorking. This volume presents a picture of an almost perfect home, and a fresh, noble, influential, joyous Christian, in the surroundings and subject of these memoirs. The writer is her mother, and possibly she does not know that in her simple, unselfish, tender record, she has produced what will rank among Christian readers as an unique and impressive, because so real, biography. Sophia Wood, for five short months a wife, lived a life of fullest consecration to Christ; yet such a human, joyous life withal, that everything she said or did bore the impress of a perfect happiness. In the village of Brockham she seems to have been a veritable ministering angel. Her definite consecration to God and his service won many to Him, and stimulated many others in the truth. Her engagement was beautiful and romantic, and she and her husband were going out as missionaries to China—both young, cultured, influential, and full of the love of Christ for perishing souls. We commend this book to all young Christians; they will find in it beauty, reality, truth, a life sparkling at every point for Jesus, wonderful missionary zeal, and a brilliant testimony for Christ on every page. The Earl of Cavan had written her to make the Lord's "cause attractive, rejoicing in Him alway," and she certainly did. The book is elegantly got up, and we feel sure will be widely circulated.

The "Peniel" Series of illustrated books (Castell Brothers) are amongst the prettiest and most tastefully produced we have seen of late. Heavenward and On the Wing are Scripture text-books, the latter with verses by Miss Lucy A. Bennett. The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers, by Mrs. Hemans, and Gray's Elegy in a Country Churchyard, each forms the subject of an attractive volume. For the children, The Footsteps of Jesus is an especially suitable text-book with verses interspersed. Each of these books is enriched with beautiful and abundant illustrations, no expense has been spared to make them as artistic as possible, and they will rank high amongst favourite presents for the coming season. The prices of the several editions vary from 1s. to 5s. 6d. We must also mention The Leaflet Series, comprising Lead Kindly Light, Abide with Me, and Nearer, my God, to Thee, which are dainty little books, containing these hymns in fancy printing and binding, prettily illustrated, 6d. each.

MESSRS. HODDER AND STOUGHTON.

More True than Truthful. A Story and a Study. By Mrs. Charles M. Clarke. With illustrations by H. Hebblethwaite. 5s. This is a book of the modern religious novel type. It is intended to teach the evil of deception and prevarication, and there are some excellent passages in it, but there is surely some danger to young readers in being taken through the labyrinths of deceit and intrigue, especially when unprincipled heroines are also represented as beautiful, amicable, and ultimately successful.—The Judge's Sons, by Mr. E. E. Kendall. 2s. A story of wheat and tares. A good book for boys, touching emphatically the close connection between sowing and reaping, and also strongly inculcating the duty of mutual forbearance and forgiveness.—Candalaria, by J. A. Owen (3s. 6d.), is a rather amateurish story of life in the Rocky Mountains, the chief interest centring around the trails and fortunes of an adopted waif.

MR. T. WOOLMER.

A Narrow Escape, and other Stories for Boys and Girls. By William J. Forster. 1s. A number of short simple tales, teaching excellent lessons chiefly of temperance nature. A very useful little book.—The Poor Boy of the Class. By Helen Briston. 1s. A very touching story of an orphan child, illustrating God's care over the fatherless, and showing the abiding influence of a good mother's early lessons.—Rooksnest Abbey, and other Tales. By Jennie Chappell. 1s. Each of these tales is written to illustrate a text, and so to teach a valuable truth. The writer has evidently found the key to young hearts, and uses it well.—The Word in the Heart. Notes on the devotional Study of Holy Scriptures. By Rev. W. T. Davison. 1s. This little book, small enough to carry in the pocket, will become a beloved companion of many who delight in God's Word, and will help them to a deeper and fuller appreciation of it.—Roger Haigh: Chartermaster, by Mrs. R. A. Watson (2s. 6d.), is a stirring story of the black country, treating of Methodism versus Ritualism, the doings of the drink, social mésalliances, and many of the other matters that go to make up modern English life in a country town.

MESSRS. J. F. SHAW AND CO.

Among the most attractive story books of the season are those that are issued from this well-known house. They seem to improve in their get-up year by year; those in search of Christmas presents for boys and girls can rest assured that here they will find books that will at once interest and instruct.—Right Onward, by Ismay Thorn (5s.), is a capital story for boys at school, teaching them by example how to withstand evil influences, and help others to choose the right.—Another excellent tale for boys is Golden Gates, by M. L. Ridley (3s. 6d). The theme of the narrative is the true friendship of one lad for another of lower social position maintained amid many rebuffs and discouragements.—Cousin Dora, by Emily Brodie (3s. 6d.), is one of the best stories for young ladies we have read for some time, thoroughly natural in plot and narrative, and revealing the secret of lasting happiness. We wish every love story had as good an ending.—Barney (3s. 6d.), as the title indicates, is an Irish tale. It illustrates well the peculiar national characteristic of brother Pat, and shows that he has good stuff in him that only needs to be properly moulded. —Over the Hills and Far Away (3s. 6d.) is another well-told family history from the pen of Mrs. Stanley Leathes. It ought to find much acceptance with those who like to study the development of child life and character.—Four delightful and well illustrated books for fireside family reading (2s. 6d. each) are Will Foster of the Ferry, by Agnes Giberne; Dora Ashley, by C. E. Irvine; Armour Clad, by G. P. Dyer; and Joyce Tregarthen, by Mrs. Chitton-Brock. —The juveniles will greatly enjoy Tim's Treasure: and How He Found it, by Alice Lang (1s. 6d.); and One Day, by E. Chapman, 1s.

MESSRS. J. NISBET AND CO.

Wisdom's House and her Seven Pillars, by Lady Beaujolais Dent. 1s. 6d. This interesting little book is divided into two parts, the first describing the great attributes of the Divine character, and the second showing how all these same characteristics are given to the believer through union with Christ. The numerous Scripture references add greatly to the value of the book.

NOVEMBER MAGAZINES.

Scribner's Magazine (1s.) contains a descriptive sketch, by Dr. H. M. Field, of a visit to the Kabyles of Algeria. Our readers have already had their interest awakened in this swarthy race, and we commend this article to their consideration.

The Fireside, in continuation of the papers entitled "Missionaries in Many Lands," devotes this number to the work of Rev. Wm. Ellis in the Sandwich Islands. "Emotions in the Worship of God," by Canon Hoare, is a useful and timely discourse. The entire issue contains food for many tastes.

THE LEISURE HOUR.

We have the concluding chapter of Mrs. Barr's delightful little story, "The Lone House," which tells of the peaceful old age and death of Andrew Carrick, the blind hero of the story. "Death touched his eyes, and they opened amid the loveliness of the land which is very far off, and the joy of that multitude which no man can number." A world of allegory lies in the thought of death's touch bringing light and vision to the blind. The question of the poor is dealt with in two articles. First comes "The Problem of the Poor in Russia," and a fearful problem it is. We read of whole districts, of wide extent, a prey to actual and permanent famine; of the average Russian peasant being sure of his rye bread for only 200 days in the year; of wholesale mendicancy, one fifth of the peasants having left their homes for good, and more than half the males wandering forth abroad, to earn or to beg; of the absence of large capitalists, and the constant presence and activity of the money lender, into whose hands all the good land of the village is rapidly passing; and of a death-rate the highest in Europe. More than 50 per cent. of the Russian children die before their seventh year, and the other half are now threatened with starvation. The other paper, "Our Vagrant and Criminal Classes," by Rev. H. Solly, deserves careful attention. We like his strong statement of our duty—a duty we have greatly neglected hitherto—"of providing remunerative industrial employment, alike for the vagrant, mendicant, and criminal classes, as well as for those who, through destitution and temptation, would otherwise fall into this condition." Mr. Solly would deal very strongly and sternly with incurable vagrancy, as that which is deadly to order, law, and all true liberty.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME.

There are several excellent papers and short stories. We would call our readers' attention to two entitled, "Palestine in Transition." They are short, and bright, and full of information, which will be entirely fresh to most people. Those who have read Mr. Richard Glover's previous papers on the Beatitudes will scarcely need to be told that the one on "Peacemakers" in this number is excellent and noteworthy. We quote the following sentences as an average sample; the words are most wholesome:—"Let no chill touch your own love for those dear to you. Leave it to the foolish to take offence; it is a kingly glory, as Solomon has taught us, to 'pass by a matter.' Once lost, it is not easy to restore mutual love. Life is too brief for experiments on estrangements. When there is no virtue that is more richly its own reward, let us at any cost endeavour to attain the Christlike glory of peacemaking."

Mrs. Watson contributes a first-rate, and, probably, not unnecessary article on "Courtesy." What could be simpler or better than her answer to the question, What constitutes a gentleman? "The word itself will afford as good an answer as any other. Gentleness, taken in a wide sense as including all graces of behaviour towards other people; manliness, taken also in the wide sense, as implying dignity, sincerity, and strength of personal character. These two, the outer and the inner qualifications, combine to make up the subtile whole. A man possessing something of these blended elements is recognised as a gentleman in every land, no matter whether his clothes be of the right cut, or whether he be abreast of the latest extravagances in his personal habits." Speaking about courtesy in home life, the writer says:—"In shutting out the cares of the world it is not necessary to shut out also gracious ways, and respect for privacy of thought and intention. Between wives and husbands, brothers and sisters, children and parents, gentle and becoming modes of speaking and acting are imperative. We are too apt to forget that meaning well is not the slightest excuse for doing ill." We must make one more quotation from Mrs. Watson:—"In work among the poor courtesy is all-important, for they are keen observers, and are often hurt even by benefactors where they cannot retaliate. I have known a widow struggling to maintain her children, shed bitter tears of humiliation at the way in which her application for a little help from a coal society was received by its benevolent manager. The lady's manner was that which she judged most serviceable—a 'Now,-then,-I-suppose-you-are-an-impostor' style; but courtesy would have been just as effectual, for inquiry was easy, and fraud is not detected by roughness."

In The Home Visitor (1d. Hunt & Co.) a paper on "The Old Clock," suggests thoughts for every hour wel worth attention.

The Child's Guardian, published by the London Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, has a suggestive article entitled, "How Criminals are made," besides much valuable information on the subject.

Our Own Magazine (1d. Children's Special Service Mission) has such a number of important and beautiful lessons presented in so entertaining a form that we do not wonder it is a fast favourite with young folks.—A fine manly tone pervades the pages of Our Boys' Magazine (1d.), published from the same office.

Bright Words. ½d. Marshall Bros. The following sentence from an article, "On the Wing," in this little monthly, is well worth quoting, though as one of Mr. Spurgeon's gem-thoughts, it has been quoted many times already:—"Birds are seldom taken in their flight; the more we are upon the wings of heavenly thoughts, the more we escape snares."

On and Off Duty and The Railway Signal, monthly journals representing respectively the police and railway-men (both published by Marshall Brothers), are remarkably good. In the former there is a full report of the Glasgow Conference, and a very useful article on "Promotion." The latter contains a capital story, "Joy Cometh in the Morning;" its moral is, resist temptation. "How to bring up Children" also deserves special mention.

The Hospital (1d. Watt, 2, Paternoster-square) commences a new series with the present monthly part, price 6d. It has rapidly acquired the position of an authority on the special subjects with which it deals. It has much specially valuable matter, of interest alike to hospital attendants and patients, practitioners and students, as well as to a large section of the general public. "Our Hospitals as Patients find Them" contains some suggestions which will be warmly endorsed by this numerous class, and other questions of general interest are discussed, such as, "Is Vaccination a Failure?"

Toilers of the Deep (2d.), the organ of the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, 181, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., revives memories of those stories of the sea which so fascinated our boyish mind. There is, it is true, much of disaster recorded, but there is also over all the light of a splendid heroism, that fills one with admiration. Better than all is the evidence of the magnificent work this Mission is accomplishing. Mr. James Runciman's account of his experience of "The North Sea in October," on board a Mission vessel off the Silver Pitts, forms a grand and impressive picture of the war of the elements, and of the tremendous fight which thousands of our sailors are constantly called upon to wage.

The Sentinel (1d. Dyer Bros.) well upholds the banner of purity. Mr. Maurice Gregory contributes the first of a series of papers showing from Parliamentary returns who are the men, what the manner of their working, and the terrible results thereof, engaged in carrying out the C. D. Acts in various portions of the British Empire. No one can read this number without a feeling of sorrow at the enormities perpetrated under the eye, and with the sanction of legislative enactments promoted by a so-called Christian Government. Mr. Wookey's account of what he saw during his recent visit to Gibraltar, and the paper on "Degradation of the English Army" through the legalisation of vice in India are simply appalling.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Mr. Elliot Stock:—The Goodness of God: Sermons by Absalom Clark.—Voices of the Street, by Cyrus Thornton.

Messrs. Marshall Bros., 10, Paternoster-row:—Precious Truths for everyone, by S. M. Haughton. New edition.

Messrs. Cassell & Co.:—The Holy Land and the Bible, by Rev. Cunningham Geikie, D.D. Two volumes. 24s.

Messrs. Hamilton, Adams & Co.:—The Bards of the Bible, by the late Rev. George Gilfillan. Seventh edition.

Messrs. W. H. Allen & Co., 13, Waterloo-place, S.W.:—Eminent Women Series: Susanna Wesley, by Eliza Clarke. 3s. 6d.

Messrs. Bemrose & Sons, 23, Old Bailey, E.C.:—First Readings in Holy Scripture and Christian Doctrine. 6d.—Course of Bible Instruction: Syllabus with Lessons. 6d.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—The Sunday Book of Story and Parable. With full-page illustrations. 5s.—Studies in the Life and Character of St. Peter, by Rev. H. A. Birks, M.A. 3s. 6d.

Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.:—Perfection, by Rev. N. S. Taylor, B.A.—Light on the Word: Addresses at the Fourth Annual Conference in connection with the World-wide Prayer Union for the Coming of the Lord held at the Clapham Conference Hall.

Messrs. James Nisbet & Co.:—Judith the "Stranger," by the Hon. Gertrude Boscawen. 1s.—Stephen Gilmore's Dream; Or, Coals of Fire, by Jessie W. Smith. 1s.—Primrose Garth, by Rev. J. Jackson Wray. 1s.—The Story of John Marbeck, a Windsor Organist of three hundred years ago: His Work and his Reward, by Emma Marshall. 2s.—The Autobiography of Maria Vernon Graham Havergal. With Journals and Letters. Edited by her Sister, J. Miriam Crane. 6s.—Streamlets of Song for the Young, by the late Frances Ridley Havergal, collected by her sister, J. Miriam Crane. 3s. 6d.—Flash Lights; Or, Short Sunday Readings for Children, by Edith E. Smyth. 1s.—Both Sides, by Jessie W. Smith. 1s.—Papers on Preaching, by various Writers. 2s. 6d.—Mistress Matchette's Mistake, by Emma Marshall. 3s. 6d.—The First Letter of Paul the Apostle to Timothy: A Popular Commentary with a series of Forty Sermonettes, by Rev. Alfred Rowland, LL.B., B.A. 6s.—Eminent Workers: Sketches of the Lives of some distinguished Workers for Christ, by Rev. A. W. Murray, late of Polynesia. 5s.

Mission Appeals.

Maryland Point.—There is much distress in the neighbourhood of the Maryland Point Schools, Stratford, which we are trying to relieve by giving food, fuel, and medical attendance. Some families with no means of support, either from illness of the father, or want of employment, aged and infirm persons, &c., are seen to.—John Stabb, 6, Northcott-road, Stoke Newington.

Breakfastless Children.—The Superintendent of the North Bow Mission, Rev. J. Fletcher Porter, 59, Duffield-road, North Bow, London, E., writes:—"Last winter we provided, from the contributions of your readers, nearly three thousand free breakfasts for children who, without our care, would have gone to school day after day without food. The need is as great now as it was at the beginning of last winter. Children's clothes and boots will also be thankfully distributed."

Hospital for Consumption, Brompton.—The committee of management earnestly invite contributions towards the maintenance of the new extension building (containing 137 extra beds), for which a very large additional income is required. The expenses of the charity are now so heavy, with 321 beds in the two buildings, that funds are urgently needed, the committee having been compelled to sell out a further amount of stock from their limited capital.—Henry Dobbin, Sec., Brompton Hospital.

Mission Work among the Young.—The Committee of the Fox-court Ragged Schools and Mission, Gray's Inn-road, require ladies and gentlemen to assist in the Sunday evening schools for boys and girls, 7 to 8 p.m. The superintendent, Mr. Henry Allen, 264, St. Paul's-road, N., will be pleased to give any information to any-one willing to help, either by letter or at the school-house on Sunday evenings.

Squalid Liverpool.—Mr. John Bennett Anderson is appealing for £90, to complete the sum necessary for the repairing and cleaning of Byrom Hall, where a valuable work is carried on. The hall is situated in a very poor and necessitous district of Liverpool, in the midst of an enormous population. The cleaning of the hall has already been commenced, but Mr. Anderson and his people are resolved not to get into debt, and trust that the Christian public will come to their aid.

A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR CHINA.—Dr. A. P. Happer, American Presbyterian missionary of Canton, has secured the sum of a hundred thousand dollars for the establishment of a Protestant College for China. While this amount insures the college being started in Canton, a large amount is still needed to put the work upon a secure basis.

CHILDREN IN CHINA.—Miss Maclagan, of Amoy, writes that it is proposed to start a Home for destitute heathen children in that city. The foreign community and some of the Chinese merchants have already subscribed about six hundred dollars to this praiseworthy object. Mrs. Riddel, wife of Rev. William Riddel, one of the English Presbyterian missionaries in the Hakka country, writes that, although infanticide in that district of China is still fearfully prevalent, it is believed to be decreasing. In the Hakka region the "daughter-in-law system" is fully developed. Girls are regularly bought by women, as future wives for their sons, at a cost of about 3s. 6d., when infants, and about £30 when of marriageable age. The "baby-hawker" is frequently met with in the Hakka country cadging for sale, from door to door, wailing infants, packed in a couple of baskets suspended from a pole, resting on his shoulders.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

In Dundee the number of abstaining ministers is said to be now double what it was in 1870.

Dr. Kirton has been conducting a temperance mission at Campbelltown, N.B., famed for whisky.

Sir Andrew Clark is reported to have said that, if all men became total abstainers, he would lose seven out of every ten of his patients.

From public utterances by leaders of both political parties it would appear that the early reform of the licensing system is considered imperative.

Mr. William Forbes has been holding meetings in the counties of Somerset and Berks. He gave an address on Wednesday week in St. Albans Town Hall, which was crowded to the doors.

Mr. W. D. Stephens, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, is Mayor elect for that city, and will, we understand, be the first teetotal Mayor it has had. Mr. Stephens' earnest temperance work is widely known.

In The Pall Mall Gazette it is stated that about a third of the London "casuals" leave the wards on Saturday and Sunday because of the greater facilities on those days for begging, stealing, or getting drunk.

The Manx House of Keys has just rejected a proposal to confer licences on boarding-houses from June till October in Ramsay and Douglas. A proposal to license grocers was sanctioned, but with the proviso t should not come into operation for two years.

An old woman, who made her 190th appearance before the magistrates, was remanded at Manchester on the charge of being drunk, with a view of being sent to the workhouse. Prisoner is a highly accomplished musician, and some years ago her musical engagements brought her in £60 a week. She, however, took to drink, and is now destitute.

Mr. Evan Spicer makes an appeal for funds to carry on the Lambeth Baths Mission, so long associated with the names of the late Rev. G. M. Murphy and Mr. Samuel Morley. Mr. Arnold Morley and his two brothers have kindly come forward and offered to pay the rent of the hall as their father did, and Mr. Mottram, who succeeds Mr. Murphy at Borough-road Congregational Church, will take up the work.

The Irish Temperance League is vigorously at work at present. Mr. and Mrs. Ripley, of Plymouth, have delivered a successful series of lectures under its auspices in Dublin, Portadown, Brookmount, Lambeg, and other places. Mr. William Johnston, M.P., has been addressing a number of meetings recently in various centres throughout Ulster, and Mr. E. T. Smith is to deliver addresses this month in several towns in the north of Ireland. Resolutions in favour of entire Sunday closing, and the Direct Veto, were enthusiastically carried at several of these meetings.

FOREIGN.

The Austrian Government have just introduced a Bill into the Reichsrath for the prevention of drunkenness.

At St. Petersburg intoxicants may not be sold at places of public entertainment, and students are forbidden to enter spirit shops.

The authorities at Constantinople have decided to close the European spirit shops on the ground that they demoralise the Turkish population.

The Bishop of Capetown, in a recent diocesan charge, said the chief hindrances to the work of the Church were the prevalent intemperance and immorality.

A writer from Africa protests against ministers and others denouncing the liquor traffic on English platforms, whereas, when in Africa they give no practical help against drinking customs.

"Sly grog selling" has been attempted by some of the Maoris, New Zealand, and, recently, when a force was sent to arrest the offenders, one a leading chief, the police had to fix bayonets to overawe the resistance.

The Engineer states that, within its own knowledge, six mechanics of exceptional ability were sent abroad to important posts worth £400 to £500 per annum. Within twelve months three were discharged for drunkenness.

Professor Glessan, M.D., U.S.A., in an account of two years' residence in Europe, says, liabiltity to intemperance is the great drawback to foreign travel. Many promising young Americans are ruined at Paris and Vienna through drink.

A Methodist Circuit Steward, sixteen years resident in the "Dark Continent," writes: "This drink question in South Africa, if not speedily and seriously attacked by the churches will soon settle missionary difficulties by 'improving off the face of the earth' some of the finest races that ever inhabited the universe."

There are no less than eight canteens on the main road between Port St. John's and Umtata, Transkei, South Africa. The Pondos are themselves offering for sale their native drink, and a man was recently murdered while in a state of intoxication. The chief Ngwiliso has issued a proclamation forbidding the sale of brandy in his country without a licence, the cost of which is £30.

The defeats sustained by the prohibitionists in Michigan, Texas, and Tennessee, says The Christian Leader, instead of weakening the energy of the temperance party in the United States, seems rather to have stimulated them to fresh and still more vigorous endeavour. All the latest indications show that the movement for legislation against the saloon will be pressed with even keener determination in the different State legislatures during the coming winter.

JAPAN.—The United States man-of-war Marion went to the port of Yokohama some time ago. Special religious services were held on board during her stay at this port. The result was the complete change and conversion of a considerable number of the men on board. A Christian Association was formed, and stated meetings are now held, to the great pleasure and profit of all who have been led to begin a new and better life.

Notes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, NOV. 13.—JEREMIAH XIV.

"The distress arising from a lengthened drought gives the prophet occasion for urgent prayer on behalf of his people; but the Lord rejects all intercession, and gives the people notice, for their apostasy from Him, of their coming destruction by sword, famine, and pestilence."—Keil.

1.—Concerning the dearth.—Rather (as in R.V.) "the drought." Withdrawal of rain was threatened as a judgment against the despisers of God's word (Lev. xxvi. 19; Deut. xi. 17, xxviii. 23).

7.—Do thou it for thy name's sake.—"Rather, 'act thou for Thy name sake:'' not according to the strict measure of right and wrong, but as a God who has proclaimed Himself merciful and gracious."—S.C. See 1 Sam. xii. 22, and Ps. xxv. 11.

8.—O the hope of Israel!—Compare 1 Tim. i. 1, "Lord Jesus Christ, which is our hope." The illustration of "the wayfaring man that turneth aside to tarry for a night" is explained by the words, "leave us not."

14.—The prophets prophesy lies in my name... the deceit of their heart.—Comp. 2 Pet. ii. 1: "There were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you;" 2 Tim. iii. 13: "Deceiving, and being deceived." As the lying message of the false prophets was a denial of God's threatened judgments, so is it often now.

18.—Go about into a land that they know not.—R.V. reads it, "go about in the land and have no knowledge," and for "go about" puts in margin "traffick;" so A.V. "make merchandise." (Comp. 2 Pet. ii. 3.)

21.—Do not disgrace the throne of thy glory.—A wonderful instance of that freedom of speech (or "boldness") with which God's children are encouraged to approach Him (Eph. iii. 12).

MONDAY, NOV. 14.—JEREMIAH XV.

1.—Though Moses and Samuel stood before Me.—"Moses and Samuel are mentioned as mediators whose intercession had been accepted in old times (Exod. xxxii. 11; Num. xiv. 13; 1 Sam. vii. 9; Ps. xcix. 6)."—S.C.

4.—Because of Manasseh the son of Hezekiah.—"The name of the pious father intensifies the horror at the wickedness of the son."—S.C. See the contrast between them, 2 Kings xxi. 23.

11.—Verily it shall be well with thy remnant.—R.V. renders it, "Verily I will strengthen thee for good," or as in margin, "release thee." It seems a personal promise of help or deliverance to Jeremiah himself.

12.—Shall iron break the northern iron and the steel?—Better in R.V., "Can one break iron, even iron from the north, and brass?" Ewald understands "iron" of the "northern Colossus of the Chaldæan Empire."

16.—Thy words were found, and I did eat them.—Compare the symbolical action in Ezek. iii. 2 and Rev. x. 9, 10.

19.—If thou return, then will I bring thee again.—"In these words lies a reproach that in his complaint, in which his indignation had hurried him on to doubt God's 'faithfulness, Jeremiah had sinned and must repent.' 'I will bring thee again' means, 'will restore thee,' i.e., to be my servant."—Keil. If thou take forth the precious from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth.—The word of God, if faithfully spoken, effects a coming forth of the precious from the vile. The faithful servant of God is not to come down to the low level of outward profession, but to draw up the true members of God's Church to the higher level on which he stands. "Let them return unto thee, but return not thou unto them."

TUESDAY, NOV. 15.—JEREMIAH XVI.

2.—Thou shalt not take thee a wife.—"It is extraordinary that this passage should ever have been dragged into the controversy respecting the enforced celibacy of the clergy, but such has been the case. The very force of the sign lay in its being an exception to the ordinary practice of the prophets. The times were such that for the 'present distress' (1 Cor. iii. 26) it was wise for all to abstain from marriage."—S.C.

15.—And I will bring them again into their land.—Most commentators are contented to accept the restoration from Babylon (Ezra i. 1) as the fulfilment of this promise. But when we consider the utter inadequacy of the fulfilment in the light of the small number who returned from Babylon (about a twelfth of those who came out of Egypt, comp. Ezra ii. 64 with Exod. xii. 37), the absence of any compulsion from without (implied in the fishing and hunting of ver. 16), and the fact of their being again expelled under the Roman Emperors Vespasian and Hadrian (which would be inconsistent with the finality of their restoration implied in ver. 15), all prove that the final fulfilment of this promise is still future. In other words, the Babylonian Captivity, in the fulness of its meaning, is not yet over. See Rev. xvii. 5. Four successive waves of Gentile power have rolled over Jerusalem (Dan. ii. and vii.), and not until the last is spent and Babylon finally destroyed will the restoration spoken of here take place.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 16.—JEREMIAH XVII.

1.—The sin of Judah is written with a pen of iron.—"This refers, not to their sinfulness or proneness to sin, but to their sinful practices—idolatry. 'Graven upon the table of their heart' points to the deep and firm root this sin has taken in the heart."—S.C. "The horns of your altars" is generally understood of idolatrous altars, but Keil thinks that it refers to the two altars in the Temple (the brazen and the golden), both of which were defiled by idolatry.

5.—Cursed is the man that trusteth in man.—The contrast between the curse on those who trust in man, and the blessing on those who trust in the Lord, goes to the root of Israel's sin. It was trust in the wisdom of man that led them to inquire, "How did these nations serve their gods? Even so will I do likewise" (Deut. xii. 30). Whereas trust in God would have led them to reject with horror all such worldly conformity.

9.—The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked.—"'Desperately wicked' is rather 'mortally sick, incurable,' as in xv. 18."—S.C. "Desperately sick," R.V.

11.—As the partridge sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not.—Better in R.V., "As the partridge that gathereth (young) which she hath not brought forth." "The point of the comparison, that the young hatched out of another bird's eggs forsake the mother, is brought out in the application of the proverb."—Keil.

16.—I have not hastened from being a pastor to follow thee.—Better, "I have not withdrawn myself from following after thee as a shepherd."

21.—Bear no burden on the Sabbath day.—See Isa. lvi. 2, lviii. 13. The enjoyment of God's rest is incompatible with bearing burdens.

THURSDAY, NOV. 17.—JEREMIAH XVIII.

1.—The word which came to Jeremiah from the Lord.—This heading belongs to chapters xviii.—xx. Chap. xviii. gives the parable of the potter's vessel, and adds the effect upon the people. Chap. xix. gives the supplemental parable carried out in symbol, of the breaking of the potter's earthen bottle, and chap. xx. gives Jeremiah's sufferings in consequence.

2.—Go down to the potter's house.—"The clayfield where the potters exercised their craft lay to the south of Jerusalem, just beyond the valley of Hinnom."—S.C.

4.—He made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it.—The scope of this illustration of the potter seems to be different to that in Rom. ix. 21, and should not be confounded with it. There it illustrates God's sovereignty. Here it shows his just liberty to alter his dealings with a nation who have at once repented on hearing his sentence pronounced, thus averting the evil; just as the potter "makes again" the vessel marred whilst it is still in his hands. This is intended to be an answer to Judah's despairing cry, "there is no hope (ver. 12), by which they sought to justify their obduracy, regarding God's sentence already pronounced as irrevocable. But vers. 7—10 show that it is not so. Judah's repentance, if speedy—"at that instant"—will cause Jehovah's repentance; but if they do not repent now, there is a later stage of obduracy which is hopeless, which is illustrated in the next chapter by the potter's earthern bottle, no longer "on the wheels," but to be broken that "it cannot be made whole again" (Jer. xix. 11). The two chapters should be taken together, as the symbolical action in the second is supplemental to that in the first.

14.—Will a man leave the snow of Lebanon?—"God is Israel's rock (the Rock of Ages, Isa. xxvi. 4, marg.), from whom the never failing waters flow," why forsake "the cool waters which descend from above to seek happiness in channels of their own digging?"—S.C. See ii. 13.

FRIDAY, NOV. 18.—JEREMIAH XIX.

The conspiracy against Jeremiah described at the end of the last chapter brings things to a point. The solemn judicial imprecation of Jeremiah calls down on Judah's wickedness a sentence henceforth irrevocable. The potter's vessel must now be broken.

1.—Get a potter's earthen bottle.—"A vessel baked in the fire, and therefore incapable of being re-shaped. It is the symbol of the obdurate, of those who have taken their final form, and "being unjust are to be unjust still" (Rev. xxii. 11). In solemn procession, accompanied by the ancients of the people and of the priests, he must bear the vessel out to the place of doom—the valley of Gehenna—there to break it and proclaim the final destruction of Jerusalem, such as it then was, and of that generation which inhabited it."—S.C.

4.—Have filled this place with the blood of innocents.—"Alongside of idolatry we always find mentioned the sin of shedding innocent blood (2 Kings xxi. 16)."—Keil. So was it at the time of the Reformation; the refusal to bow down to Rome's idol, "the mass," led to the shedding of the innocent blood of the martyrs.

8.—And I will make this city desolate.—The temporary desolation of the seventy years' captivity was but a premonitory threatening of the further far more serious desolation by the Romans, which has now lasted about 1800 years.

9.—And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons, &c.—That this was literally fulfilled at the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem appears from Lam. iv. 10. It was also fulfilled at the Roman siege of Jerusalem under Titus, as Josephus testifies.

SATURDAY, NOV. 19.—JEREMIAH XX.

"The breaking of the earthen bottle had been done so solemnly, before witnesses of such high position, and its meaning had been so unmistakeably proclaimed in the Temple, that those in authority could endure such proceedings no longer. Roused, therefore, to anger by the sight of the listening crowds, Pashur, the deputy High Priest, caused Jeremiah to be arrested, inflicted upon him the legal forty stripes save one, and made him pass a night in the stocks, exposed to the jeers of the scoffers, at the most public gate of the Temple."—S.C.

2.—Then Pashur smote Jeremiah the prophet.—"i.e., caused him to be beaten with stripes (Deut. xxv. 3)."—Keil. Put him in the stocks.—"An instrument of torture, by which the body was forced into a distorted, unnatural position."—Ibid.

6.—To whom thou hast prophesied lies.—Pashur was of the number of the false prophets who prophesied welfare and peace (xiv. 13, xxiii. 17).

7.—O Lord, Thou hast deceived me.—The word here translated "deceive" is elsewhere rendered "entice," "allure," "persuade" (see for the last, 1 Kings xxii. 20—22). Both here and in Ezek. xiv. 9 (where it is spoken of God) it would be better to render it "persuade," as Keil, in both places, does.

14.—Cursed be the day wherein I was born.—Jeremiah here applies Job iii. 3, x. 18, to his own case.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Islington Clerical Meeting is fixed for Tuesday, January 10, 1828. The Vicar of Islington (Rev. W. H. Barlow) will preside.

Rev. F. W. Dodd was prevented from joining the special mission to India from serious illness. The party now consists of five clergy, three laymen, and four ladies.

Rev. J. F. Kitto, vicar of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, has introduced evening communion into his church. He has justified his action by the example of our Saviour, and the practice of St. Paul and the primitive Church.

Archdeacon Matthew, the Bishop-designate of Lahore, writes that Canon Taylor has been egregiously misled. He points out that in the last decade Christianity increased in British India at the rate of 30 per cent., while the growth of the whole population was but 7½ per cent.

In the course of his visitation charge the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol said that the teaching of religion to the young is becoming, each year as it goes by, more and more the urgent duty of the clergyman; and that to leave this duty unfulfilled is to incur the very gravest responsibility.

Dr. Ryle, Bishop of Liverpool, in the course of his visitation charge, said that taken altogether, the Church is in a most unsatisfactory condition. It is a Church without order and discipline. It is in a state of lawlessness, anarchy, chaos, and confusion, and unless some remedy is applied must make shipwreck.

The Church Army commenced work in the parish of All Saints', Northampton, in June, 1886, and have now a well-established body of nearly a hundred members The Army has proved a great blessing in the parish; many very careless and sinful people have been converted, whose altered lives and changed homes are the best evidence of the value of the work done.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Evangelical Magazine for November contains an excellent portrait, with biographical, sketch of the late Rev. G. M. Murphy.

Rev. George S. Reaney, of Stepney meeting-house, is about to leave the East-end of London for Cavendish Chapel, Manchester, to which he has accepted a call.

At the City Temple, Holborn Viaduct, next, and the following Sunday (November 13 and 20), Rev. Hugh Price Hughes will preach in the morning, and Rev. Mark Guy Pearse in the evening.

Rev. Charles Leach has begun Sunday afternoon half-hour lectures to working people in the large iron church at Queen's Park, Harrow-road. The meetings are to be continued during the winter months.

A most interesting work is being done at Hoddesdon by Miss Lydia Barnet, who fills the Congregational Chapel there every Sunday afternoon with a large devotional and Bible-class of women, drawn from among girls in service, young people in houses of business, and the poor.

During last week the students of Cheshunt College were evangelising in the parish of Nazing, which for long has been a centre of very fruitful work. Gospel services were held every night. As there has been much prayerful preparation, it is hoped that real and permanent success may follow this work.

Dr. Fairbairn has commenced a series of Sunday evening lectures in the Mansfield Rooms, Oxford, which, says The British Weekly, bids fair to be very popular with the University men. It is the opinion amongst scholars of all shades that Dr. Fairbairn's presence at Oxford will prove a valuable acquisition.

During Mr. Jackson Wray's absence in America all the agencies of the church at Tottenham-court-road Chapel (Whitefield's Tabernacle) have been vigorously maintained, notably the Wednesday evening lecture on the International Lesson, which one of the deacons, Mr. Skipper, has successfully rendered to large audiences.

A mission, extending over eight days, was concluded on Sunday last, at New-court Chapel, Finsbury Park. The missioner was Rev. Robert Balgarnie, whose warm-hearted manner and earnest appeals touched many a heart. He followed up his addresses by personal dealing, aided by the pastor, Rev. J. Ossian Davies, and an active band of workers. They had the joy of leading many into the light.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Newman Hall and Dr. Thain Davidson exchanged pulpits on Sunday evening last.

We regret to hear that Dr. Adolph Saphir, of Belgrave Church, owing to enfeebled health, contemplates the resignation of his charge.

The week beginning with November 28 will be largely observed by Presbyterians as a season of missionary thanksgiving and intercession.

A Young Men's Institute has recently been formed at Hoxton, where Dr. Edmond's congregation (Highbury) are carrying on successful mission work.

A six days' evangelistic mission has been held at the church at Camp-hill, Birmingham, conducted by Major Michael, late of the 11th Hussars. Much blessing has been experienced.

Dr. Monro Gibson has intimated to his congregation the intention of himself and Mrs. Gibson to be at home the first Tuesday evening of each month, for the purpose of receiving strangers and friends who may wish to see them.

No preacher of recent times in Scotland, says The Christian Leader, has so speedily attracted national attention as Rev. John M'Neill of Edinburgh, who since we had the privilege of first noting his remarkable freshness, piquant humour, and spiritual energy, has risen to a commanding position, and is already coveted by influential congregations in the South.

Rev. A. Gunn, of Watten, speaking at a meeting held in celebration of his jubilee, mentioned that he has baptized one thousand three hundred children and married three hundred couples.

Dr. Marshall Lang, of the Barony Church, Glasgow, has consented to take charge of the Scots Church in Melbourne for four months, and will probably sail for Australia about the middle of this month.

Dr. Fergus Ferguson, at the annual meeting of the Glasgow Sabbath Protection Association, moved a resolution solemnly protesting against all existing Sabbath desecration by railways, tramcars, and cabs.

Dr. Horatius Bonar, whose ministerial jubilee is about to be celebrated, writing to a friend in America says, "My writing days are done. The public must be content with what I have already written in prose and verse."

The "Boys' Brigade" movement, for the promotion of habits of reverence, discipline, self-respect, and true Christian manliness amongst the lads in mission Sunday-schools, is making satisfactory progress amongst the Presbyterian churches of the metropolis.

Mr. James Marshall, evangelist, has completed a successful series of meetings in the United Presbyterian Church at Baillieston. There was a manifest work of grace, many backsliders being reclaimed, sinners converted, and God's own people brought more closely together and much blessed.

A small grant of money from the English Presbyterian Church, in aid of evangelisation, has been most gratefully received by the struggling Protestant churches of Bohemia and Moravia. One of the churches thus helped is that of Kuttelberg, the only Protestant congregation in Austrian Silesia.

BAPTIST.

Evangelistic services are being carried on at the close of the Sunday evening services at Grange-road Chapel, Darlington, in a large marquee, by Rev. Harry H. Pullen and his helpers.

There has been a large increase in the congregation of Arley Chapel, Bristol, during the four months of the present pastorate, and an addition of upwards of forty to the membership of the church.

Messrs. Fullerton and Smith have concluded a very successful fourteen days' mission in connection with the Baptist churches of Taunton. About two hundred profess to have been led to Christ as the result of the mission.

Rev. D. J. East, pastor of the East Queen-street Church, Jamaica, has completed fifty years' ministerial work. The first fifteen years of his ministry were spent in England, and the remainder in Jamaica, as President of the Calabar College, at Kingston.

The Baptist says that Mr. C. H. Spurgeon's brother, Rev. James A. Spurgeon, will probably resign the Baptist Union membership, being in entire accord with his brother, though it is considered a little doubtful whether his church may go with him.

Mr. Spurgeon, who left for the Continent on Monday, says he should be glad to receive no letters while he is away. He requests his friends not to write to Mentone, as it is possible he may not go there at all. His intention is to move about and keep clear of the burden of letters by giving no address.

Rev. James Smith, who has just returned at an advanced age to mission work in India, does not fall in with Canon Taylor's eulogy of Mohamedanism. He says that the moral code of Mohamed leads to the most lax moral life it is possible to live. There is scarcely a Hindu in India who does not shudder at the very name of Mohamedan rule.

Rev. H. E. Stone, of Nottingham Tabernacle, writes to The British Weekly:—"The severance of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon from the Baptist Union is surely more than a private and personal matter. It is a public protest against the false doctrine prevalent." He suggests that those who are one with him, who lament that which he laments, and sorrow with a kindred sorrow, should take the same step.

Some encouraging reports of work were given at the recent meetings of the Baptist Union of Scotland. Mr. Donald Ross described his work in the island of Islay. He has baptized twenty-one persons in seven years, but the full results of his work could not be tabulated. Many were deterred from profession of faith by baptism for fear of persecution. Rev. James Duncan, of Grantown, Strathspey, reported that Invernessshire, with a population of 88,000, is at present without a Baptist church.

METHODIST.

Whilst in London recently, Rev. Thomas Champness was presented by a friend with £50 for his village evangelisation work.

Rev. C. Dudley has been much cheered by the success attending a series of special services which he is conducting at Northwich.

Very successful evangelistic services have been held at Tatham-street Primitive Methodist Chapel, Sunderland, conducted by the superintendent minister.

There are very gratifying evidences that the special efforts to reach the young, lately made throughout the Primitive Methodist Connexion, have been crowned with considerable success.

Rev. R. W. Burnett, Primitive Methodist missionary, who has been labouring very successfully at Fernando Po, on the West Coast of Africa, is so seriously unwell that he will be obliged to return to this country.

On Thursday last Rev. W. L. Watkinson recommenced the Thursday noon services in the Central Hall, Manchester. Rev. F. W. Macdonald has recommenced his Thursday services in the Central Hall, Birmingham.

At a Conference on African Missions at Leicester, the Primitive Methodists decided to send two English missionaries to the Barotse country, Central Africa, to settle amongst tribes as yet untouched by Christian agencies; to open a new mission as early as possible in Opobo, King Ja Ja's country, and to purchase a steam launch for the use of the Fernando Po Mission. Some thousands of pounds will be needed to carry out these objects.

A soup kitchen has been opened at Wardour Hall, in connection with the West-end Mission. Mr. Josiah Nix appeals for vegetables, split peas, onions, turnips, carrots, rice, &c., to carry on the work.

Rev. T. Wakefield, the veteran Methodist Free Church missionary of East Africa, is rendering efficient service to the mission cause by conducting services and attending meetings through the country.

A correspondent of The Methodist Times, writing in favour of the total abolition of pew rents, says:—"Were seats free, the weekly offering would receive an impetus that would more than counteract the loss of seat rents."

The fifth annual tea in connection with the Rink Mission to Fishermen, Lowestoft (under the direction of Rev. G. H. Turner, Methodist Free Church), was given on Saturday week. Over eight hundred fishermen were present.

The returned Wesleyan missionaries are forming an association "for the purpose of fraternal intercourse, the discussion of questions affecting missionary work, the welcoming of men returning home, and correspondence with those abroad."

An earnest desire is growing in many influential quarters that a spirited attempt should be made to reach the masses of the metropolis by some vigorous Primitive Methodist agency. It is probable that steps will be taken in this matter before the end of this year.

Rev. Alexander Puddicombe, Wesleyan minister, was found dead in his bed at Buckingham on Monday morning. Though he preached on Sunday, he had been medically attended, and his death is attributed to heart disease. He was seventy years of age, and had been a minister for forty-four years.

SALVATION ARMY.

From Ireland real progress is reported, notwithstanding political agitation.

The health of Mrs. Booth-Clibborn is, we are glad to learn, so far restored as to enable her to resume her work in Paris.

The Canadian War Cry announces the opening of a French Military School in Quebec. In spite of much opposition there are visible signs of progress.

Mrs. Beard, The Homestead, West Hill, Sydenham, S.E., has accepted the office of secretary of the "Red Cross Society," which looks after the workers wounded in the fight.

A new book, entitled "Popular Christianity," by Mrs. Booth, has just been published. It contains a series of lectures on the various phases of modern Christianity, delivered in Prince's Hall, Piccadilly.

Twenty English officers are to be sent out with "Colonel" Thurman on his return to South Africa at the beginning of December, so that he may be better able to spare such colonial officers as are fittest, by knowledge of Kaffirs, or otherwise, for work among the natives.

The child of a Salvation Army soldier was recently interred in the Farnborough Cemetery. The father of the child was formerly a Roman Catholic. Since joining the Army he has been persistently persecuted. When out with his coal-cart the people washed him and his horse and cart with lime, and beat him unmercifully.

Mons. Albin Peyron, who recently accompanied Col. Booth-Clibborn on a tour through the Ardeche division of France, writes:—"What a blessing to all the country—to these mountains of Ardeche—the arrival of the Army has been! Here are whole families which were formerly living in sin and indifference, and who have been entirely saved."

Full particulars are now published of the "Universal Exhibition of Thank-offerings" at Clapton, from Nov. 12 to 17, in connection with the anniversary of the Training Home. The objects of the Exhibition are "to give every corps, officer, soldier, and friend of the Army an opportunity of presenting a portion of their goods as a token of their thankfulness to God for raising up the Salvation Army, and sending forth its officers into this and other lands."

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

It is stated that the Church Army is doing some excellent work among the lapsed masses in Belfast.

The Belfast Society for Supplying Nurses to the Sick Poor, has now nine nurses employed, and is doing a good work amongst the poor of the town.

A Belfast working man, a devoted admirer of the celebrated Rev. Dr. Cooke, has left £2000 for the erection of a church in Belfast, in memory of the Doctor.

In accordance with the recommendations of the late General Assembly, arrangements have been made by the various presbyteries for holding evangelistic services during the winter in a large number of Presbyterian Churches throughout the country.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Mr. William Beattie, one of the most devoted elders of the Free Church at Blochairn, and one of its most prayerful and successful workers.—Rev. John Wadsworth, rector of St. Clement's, Bristol.—Rev. B. Preece, for thirty years pastor of the Baptist Church at Cotton-street, Poplar.—Rev. Richard Horsfield, a well-known Baptist minister, and pastor since 1846 of the North-street Baptist Chapel, Leeds.—Canon Gandell, of Wells Cathedral, who for more than forty years resided at Oxford, and filled many important posts in the University.—Rev. Alfred Thomas Armstrong, Canon of Manchester.—Rev. Dr. M'Gavin, senior minister of Tay-square United Presbyterian Church, Dundee, who celebrated his jubilee in 1883.—Rev. John Walters, of Leeds, for fifty-three years a Wesleyan minister, and well known throughout Yorkshire.—Rev. R. Hazelton Methodist minister, Queenstown.—Rev. Robert Black Methodist minister, Passage West, co. Cork.—Mr. David Dixon, the oldest Wesleyan local preacher in the Grantham Circuit, and father of three Wesleyan ministers.

Hodder & Stoughton's List

DR. PENTECOST'S NEW WORK.
Now Ready. Price 2s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 3s. 6d.

BIBLE STUDIES

From the Old and New Testaments, covering the International Sunday School Lessons for 1888.
By G. F. PENTECOST, D.D.

SECOND EDITION. Crown 8vo., 5s.

LETTERS FROM HEAVEN.

"The pictures are beautifully drawn and the sympathy is genuinely tender."—Scotsman.

DR. NEWTON'S NEW WORK. Price 3s. 6d.

BIBLE MODELS.

By RICHARD NEWTON, D.D.,
Author of "The Life of Christ for the Young," &c.

This is a gallery of Scripture portraits, from Abel to St. Paul, treated as examples of life and character. Like all Dr. Newton's works, "Bible Models" is enlivened by many anecdotes and illustrations, and will be as attractive and useful to teachers as to scholars.

Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE AND CHARACTER OF ST. PETER.

By REV. H. A. BIRKS, M.A.,
Late Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., 6s.

Is there Salvation after Death?

By E. D. MORRIS, D.D., LL.D.,
Professor in Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati.

THE

Englishman's Bible.

By THOMAS NEWBERRY.

PORTABLE EDITION.

In One Volume, with Maps, 16s.; Best Turkey Morocco, limp, 21s.; Levant Yapp, calf-lined, flexible, best binding, 30s.

LARGE PRINT EDITION.

Arranged on a New Plan, with much additional matter.

A Supplement is added, containing Three Engravings of the TABERNACLE in the Wilderness, with Explanatory Notes. Also, Ground Plan and Elevation of SOLOMON'S TEMPLE (Autotype Plates), with Full Description, and giving the Emblematic and Spiritual Teaching, and Map of the Millennial Division of the Land.

In Six Parts, 7s. 6d. each; or in Three Volumes, 15s. each. The Supplement may be had separately, price 10s.

London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

CHRISTMAS LETTERS.

A Large Variety suitable for Parochial and General Distribution among all classes are now ready. District Visitors, Teachers, Mothers' Meetings, Hospitals, Schools, Institutions, &c.

Samples may be had from HAZELL, WATSON, & VINEY, Ld., 6, Kirby-street, Hatton-garden, E.C., as follows:—

	s.	d.
Specimen Packet - - -	0	3
Letter and Card Packet -	1	6
Complete Sample Packet -	4	0

Post Free.

Reports or Hints to Workers, with Catalogues, free on application.

Specimens may be seen at
PARTRIDGE'S BOOK SALOON, 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

CHRISTMAS CARDS,
Specially adapted for above, are also ready. Just the material wanted by Christian Workers at Christmas time.

MARK GUY PEARSE'S BOOKS

Ten Volumes, Crown 8vo., Cloth, Gilt Edges. 2s. 6d. each.

1.—DANIEL QUORM, AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. First Series. 80,000.
2.—DANIEL QUORM, AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. Second Series. 33,000.
3.—SERMONS FOR CHILDREN. 23 000.
4.—MISTER HORN AND HIS FRIENDS; or, Givers and Giving. 26,000.
5.—SHORT STORIES. 11,000. [11,000
6.—"GOOD WILL;" Christmas Stories.
7.—SIMON JASPER. 17,000.
8.—CORNISH STORIES. 11,000.
9.—HOMELY TALKS. 14,000.
10.—JOHN TREGENOWETH, Rob Rat, and The Old Miller and His Mill. 23,000.

Cheap Editions of the above Ten Volumes are on Sale, Foolscap 8vo., 1s. 6d. each.

THOUGHTS ON HOLINESS. 19th Thousand. Royal 16mo. Cloth, red edges, 2s. 6d.
Cheap Edition. Demy 16mo., 44th 1000. 1s.

PRAISE: Meditations in the 103rd Psalm. Royal 16mo., red lines round page, 2s. 6d.

SOME ASPECTS OF THE BLESSED LIFE. Eighth Thousand. Royal 16mo. 2s. 6d.
Cheap Edition. Demy 16mo. 19th 1000. 1s.

DR. PUNSHON'S SERMONS. Two Vols. Crown 8vo., 5s. each.

DR. PUNSHON'S LECTURES. 5s.

LOVING COUNSELS: SERMONS AND ADDRESSES. By Rev. CHARLES GARRETT. Fourth Thousand. Cheap Edition. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d.

THE LIFE OF REV. JABEZ BUNTING, D.D. With Notices of Contemporary Persons and Events. By T. P. BUNTING, Esq., and Rev. G. STRINGER ROWE. 8vo., with Two Portraits. 10s. 6d.

THE BEGINNING OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE. By Rev. W. L. WATKINSON. 16mo., 1s.

GOD AND NATURE. By Rev. NEHEMIAH CURNOCK. 16mo, 1s.

THE WORD IN THE HEART. Notes on the Devotional Study of Holy Scripture. By Rev. W. T. DAVISON, M.A. 16mo., 1s.

A MANUAL OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE. By Rev. J. SHAW BANKS. Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d.

FATHER FERVENT. By Rev. JOHN M. BAMFORD. Crown 8vo. 18 Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE FERNLEY LECTURE OF 1887. The Creator, and What we may Know of the Method of Creation. By Rev. W. H. DALLINGER, LL D., F.R S. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

LONDON: T. WOOLMER, 2, CASTLE-ST., CITY-ROAD, E.C.; and 66, PATERNOSTER-ROW, E.C.

The Book Season,

1887-8.

VISITORS to London, and Residents in the Metropolis, are invited to visit

THE BOOK SALOON,

9, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.,
where they will find, conveniently arranged for inspection, one of the Largest and Choicest Collections of Evangelical and Temperance Literature.

The SALOON is open from 9 till 6;
SATURDAYS 9 till 2.

The Illustrated Catalogue of New Books is now ready, and will be sent post-free on application to

S.W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row, London.

WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.—The Best, the Most Complete, the Cheapest and the Most Useful Almanack published. The 1888 Edition, considerably improved, will be ready in December.
London: WHITAKER & SONS.

SECOND EDITION (3000 Copies). Price 2s. 6d.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT FOR YOUNG MEN.

By MAJOR SETON CHURCHILL,
Author of "Stepping Stones to Higher Things," "Church Ordinances from the Layman's Standpoint," &c.

CONTENTS.

Forbidden Fruit: Its Raison d'Etre—Benefits of Temptation—The Moral Nature of Man—Self-Control—Human Responsibility—True to Nature—Accumulative Power of Sin—Promiscuous Intercourse—Polygamy—Marriage—Prostitution—Responsibilities of Parents—Influence of Medical Men in Questions of Morality—Impure Thoughts—Impure Pictures—Causes Exciting to Impurity—Aids to Purity—Treatment of the Fallen—Religion as an Aid to Purity.

FAMILY CHURCHMAN.—"This book is a model of the manner in which the Purity Question ought to be discussed with young men. The tone of the book is manly, straightforward, and simple, and we could wish it in the hands of every young man."

CHRISTIAN.—"The writer's wide experience in different parts of the world, combined with his knowledge of the Scriptures and deep spiritual experience, peculiarly fits him to be the author of such a book as this. We trust that every Young Men's Christian Association Librarian will order copies."

MORNING POST.—"The writer feels earnestly the importance of the work he has undertaken, and there is about his style a manliness and a healthy tone which can hardly fail to impress those to whom he addresses himself—young men."

AUSTRALIAN CHRISTIAN WORLD.—"It is a book which we can fearlessly recommend . . . . just the kind of advice which might come from a pure, high-minded, godly father to a dearly-beloved son."

Published by JAMES NISBET & CO., 21, Berners-street, London, W.

Messrs. HATCHARD'S NEW BOOKS

◆ ◆ ◆

New Story by the Author of "Madlle. Mori," &c.

THE FIDDLER OF LUGAU.

By the Author of "A Child of the Revolution," &c.
Six Illustrations by W. RALSTON. Crown 8vo., 6s.

A New Story by Frederick Langbridge.

RIDER'S LEAP (A Story for Boys).

By the Author of "Nil Desperandum," "Peacock Alley," &c.
With Eight Illustrations by W. B. WOLLEN. Crown 8vo., 5s.

New Story by Ismay Thorn.

A GOLDEN AGE.

By the Author of "Pinafore Days," "Story of a Secret," &c.
With Six Illustrations by GORDON BROWNE. Crown 8vo., 5s.

New Story by L. T. Meade.

DADDY'S BOY.

By the Author of "A World of Girls," "Scamp and I," &c.
With Six Illustrations. Crown 8vo., Cloth, 5s.

New Story by Mrs. Molesworth.

THE PALACE IN THE GARDEN.

By the Author of "Carrots," "Silverthorns," &c.
With Twenty-five Illus. by HARRIET M. BENNETT. Cr. 8vo., 5s.

"Mrs. Molesworth has written several charming stories for children, but none more pleasantly conceived to rouse the wonder and admiration of her little readers than the tale of 'The Palace in the Garden.'"—Scotsman.

New Story by Mary E. Hullah.

NAMESAKES.

By the Author of "Philippa," "The Lion Battalion," &c.
With Frontispiece by J. FINNEMORE. Fcap. 8vo., cloth, 1s. 6d.

A HANDSOME GIFT-BOOK.

Now Ready, Royal 8vo., cloth extra, price 7s. 6d.

EVERY GIRL'S ANNUAL for 1888.

EDITED BY ALICIA AMY LEITH.

Serial Stories by the Author of "The Atelier du Lys," Mrs. O'REILLY, CHRISTIAN BURKE, &c.
Twelve "Studies of Great Poets," by ELEANOR HAMILTON KING and ALFRED HAGGARD.
With Twelve Plates in Sepia Tint, and Six Full-page Illustrations from Drawings by EDITH S. SCANNELL, &c., &c.

Lately Published, Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

STUDIES IN THE BENEDICITE.

Compiled by ALICIA BAYNE.
Dedicated by permission to the Bishop of Winchester.

"The book is just the thing for a present; the whole forms a really beautiful mosaic."—Graphic.

Just Published, 16mo., 6d., or 20 for 5s.

GIRLS' CLUBS, and Recreative Evening Homes: How to Work them.

By ELLICE HOPKINS, CAROLINE PATON, and M. E. HUDSON.

By BISHOP OXENDEN.

1. SHORT COMMENTS ON ST. MATTHEW and ST. MARK. For Family Worship. Crown 8vo. 3s. 6d.
2. TOUCHSTONES; or, Christian Graces and Characters Tested. Fcap. 8vo, 2s. 6d.
3. THE PARABLES OF OUR LORD. 36th Thousand. Fcap. 8vo., large type, cloth, 3s.
4. THE PATHWAY OF SAFETY; or, Counsels to the Awakened. 296th Thousand. Fcap. 8vo. 2s. 6d. Cheap edition, 1s.
5. THE CHRISTIAN LIFE. 56th Thous. Fcap. 8vo., 2s. 6d. Cheap edition, 1s.
6. PORTRAITS FROM THE BIBLE.
   Old Testament. 37th Thousand. } Fcap. 8vo., cloth, 2s. 6d. each.
   New Testament. 25th Thousand. }
7. COTTAGE SERMONS; or, Plain Words to the Poor. 13th Thousand. Fcap. 8vo., cloth, 2s. 6d.
8. COTTAGE READINGS. 8th Thousand. Fcap. 8vo., cloth, 2s. 6d.
9. PRAYERS FOR PRIVATE USE. 143rd Thousand. 18mo., cloth, 1s.
10. WORDS OF PEACE; or, The Blessings and Trials of Sickness. 184th Thousand. Fcap. 8vo., cloth, 1s.
11. THE HOME BEYOND; or, A Happy Old Age. 183rd Thousand. Fcap. 8vo., cloth, 1s. 6d.
12. FERVENT PRAYER. 46th Thousand. 18mo., limp cloth, 1s.
13. GOD'S MESSAGE TO THE POOR. 22nd Thousand. 18mo., cloth, 1s. 6d.
14. THE LABOURING MAN'S BOOK. 58th Thousand. 18mo., cloth, 1s. 6d.
15. THE STORY OF RUTH. 14th Thousand. 18mo., limp cloth, 1s.

London: HATCHARDS, 187, Piccadilly.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

Y.M.C.A., NEW METAL EXCHANGE, Whittington-avenue, E.C. — Daily prayer-meeting at St. Peter's Vestry, Cornhill, 1.15 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Social gathering, Nov. 15, 6.30 p.m. Mission to young men, conducted by Mr. Harry Guinness, M.R.C.S., Nov. 21—25, 6 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sunday, November 13, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. T. Morris, of Walthamstow. Saturday, November 12, service of song—"Voices." Friday, mid-day prayer meeting.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sunday, Nov. 13, at 3.30 p.m., men only, Mr. E. J. Kennedy on "A Fair Start, a Bad Course, a Good Finish;" 7 p.m., public, Mr. Harry Guinness, M.R.C.S. Tuesday evening, workers' training-class, on "Penny Wise and Pound Foolish." Mr. Henry Varley begins an eight days' mission on Sunday, November 20, in connection with the week of prayer for young men.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 198, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, November 10, at 8.30, address, Rev. E. A. Stuart; Sun., 13, at 3.15, Bible-class, "A Song of Thanksgiving" (Ps. lxv.), Mr. S. Pewtress; at 8, open-air service in Priory Grounds; 8.30, evangelistic meeting. Wed., 6 to 10, anxious inquirers and strangers received.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—Thursday, November 10, at 8.30, address to young men by J. F. Kitto. Friday, 11, at 8.30, Christian evidence lecture, Rev. T. T. Waterman; Sunday, 13, at 3.15, Bible class.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE STREET, E.C.—Friday, at 8, friendly talk to young men, by Rev. H. Webb-Peploe, on "Sin and Holiness;" November 13 to Nov. 20, special week of prayer for young men. Nightly meetings at 8 p.m. Also at noon prayer meeting daily.

Y.M.C.A., 17, CAMDEN ROAD, N.W.—Thursday, Nov. 17, social meeting—address by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Rev. G. D. Bartlett, every Sunday evening in November, at 8.

Y.M.C.A., STAFFORD ROOMS, Titchborne-st., Edgware-road, W.—Sunday, November 13, address to young men, by Mr. F. A. Bevan; Wednesday, Nov. 16, address to young men, by Rev. A. J. Harvey.

Y.W.C.A., 17, OLD CAVENDISH STREET, W.—Fifteen days' special mission to young women from November 13 to 27; Sundays at 3.30; week nights at 8.45. Rev. W. Hay Chapman, Rev. Nevile Sherbrooke, Mr. Edward Trotter, and others.

MANCHESTER CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE, Nov. 22 and 23.—Subjects: "The Coming of the Lord," "The Deepening of Spiritual Life," and "The Evangelisation of the World." Tickets and particulars from the Conference Hall, Strangeways, Manchester. (See p. 11.)

MRS. REANEY gives addresses on Sunday afternoons to men and women, at 3, at Stepney Meeting House.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, E.C.—Tuesdays in Nov., at 12 noon, Rev. E. White.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-st., S.W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sundays, 3.45 and 7; Fridays, 8 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, Nov. 13, at 3.30, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7, Mr. Spencer Walton. Tuesday, Nov. 15, 7.30 p.m., lecture by Rev. James Neil; subject—"A Day in Jerusalem." Thursday, 17, 3 p.m., Bible-reading by Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston; subject—"Adoption."

CLAPTON HALL, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton, E.—Mr. J. G. McVicker during November: on Sundays, at 6.30; Fridays, 7.30.

MR. WILLIAM NOBLE conducts the meetings at Hoxton Hall, N., every Sunday, 6.30 p.m.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W. Friday, November 11, 7 p.m., meeting for the deepening of spiritual life; tea at 6.

MR. SHULDHAM HENRY at St. George's Hall during November: Sundays, at 11 and 7. Wednesdays, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, 8 p.m.

DR. THAIN DAVIDSON's monthly sermon to young men, Colebrooke-row Presbyterian Church, Sun., Nov. 13, 6.30 p.m. Colebrooke-row is close to "The Angel," Islington.

LONDON CITY MISSION.—Monthly prayer-meeting at the Mission House, 3, Bridewell-place, New Bridge-street, E.C., Monday, November 14, at 4.45. Address by Rev. W. Hay Chapman.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sunday, Nov. 13, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. Oscar Owers; 3 p.m., Rev. Henry Bright.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile-end-road, E. — Sunday, November 13, at 11 and 6.30, and week nights, at 8, Mr. Henry Varley.

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE. — Meetings at Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W., every Friday, at 3.30. November 11, Rev. R. Arnold Pelly.

HOME OF INDUSTRY, 29, Bethnal-green-road, E.—Meeting for praise and prayer, to dedicate the new Home of Industry for the Lord's work, Wednesday, Nov. 16; tea at 6, meeting at 7. Mr. James Mathieson will preside. Rev. J. Hudson Taylor and Mr. Reginald Radcliffe will give addresses. All are welcome.

Notices.

H.M.A.S.—We do not know the "Paris Church Mission." Kindly send fuller particulars, or name of superintendent. This was our reason for wishing to communicate with you.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—H.A.H. J.T.K. H.W. M.E.S. T.A.B. A.M. H.P. L.S.D. J.T.S. J.B. C.H.A. C.T.W. J.F.P. W.P. G.R. C.B. D.B.T. J.P. R.D.F. G.G. J.H.H. H.G.D. M.B.G. S.W. A.H.B. J.C.H.W. T.W.B. F.C. F.B.M. A.E.A. J.E.R. V.M.S. G.K. G.C.N. F.W. G.H. F.W.F. R.H.W. J.S. L.A.B. H.L. J.M. J.F. M.T. S.M. G.A.F.K. E.C. J.G. R.W.C. H.S. R.M. S.S. W.F. W.C. A.B. A.H.G. M.F.E. W.L. G.S.W. C.D. W.G. H.A. C.F. T.G.S. M.F.F. F.E.L. H.B.K.C. F.W.A. W.F.G. A.T. J.V.S. C.M. E.T.M. R.C. E.J.K. N.R.H. D.M.M. W.A. J.W. R.B. J.P.H. G.M. L.V. A.S. E.J.Y. W.P. R.D.F. H.N. W.B. A.H. J.M.L.F. J.C. C.W. C.L. H.F. S.E.C. J.H. W.R. R.B. T.C. E.S.C. J.S. M.B.G. H.C.D. S.M.H. L.V.F. A.D.L. S.K. H.T. H.S.G. F.W.A.W. S.A.H. R.A. E.A.D. C.D. A.G.B. E.S.C. C.H.A. T.F.R. A.T. H.H. D.N.W. T.K. J.J.C. W.H.M. A.P. E.P. R.P. G.B. F.H. W.L.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—J. T. Kingsbury, 5, Holly-road, Lordship-lane, Dulwich, S.E.; W. W. Fereday, 34, Chaucer-road, Acton, W.; W. Ablett, 34, Morgan-street, Canning Town, Essex; Rev. J. C. Wilcox, 7, London-road-terrace, Carlisle; C. Look, Bath-street, Caerleon-road, Newport, Mon.; J. Budd, 33, Peckham-grove, Camberwell, S.E.; W. Sippett, 1, Walker's-buildings, Silk-street, Worcester; F. W. Alstead, 5, Ada-street, Netherton, Maryport; R. Smith, 2, Warrington-crescent, Maida-vale, W.; G. B. Taylor, 51, Sandringham-buildings, W.C.; J. Rouen, 32, Summer-row, Oldbury; Miss Florence, 88, North End, Croydon; J. G. Larman, Grove-road, Enfield Wash; W. Woodhouse, evangelist, Harrogate; J. Palfreyman, 36, Canada-street, Sheffield; Mrs. Faussett, Tamworth, Staffs.; J. Benning, St. John's Mission Hall, Dartney-road, Chelsea, S.W.; Mrs. L. W. Smith, The Rookery, Belize Norton, near Bampton, Oxon; L. G. Adams, 17, Canonbury-terrace, Canonbury, N.; G. W. Brown, 3, Marle-hill-villas, Cheltenham.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most important that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

PLYMOUTH CHURCH, BROOKLYN. — The advisory committee of this church have recommended that Rev. C. A. Berry, of Wolverhampton, be selected as successor to the late Mr. Beecher.

STAMFORD AND UPPINGHAM.—A mission has been held in each of these towns, by Mr. George Clarke, which has resulted in marked blessing. The addresses were powerful and heart-searching. His address to men, and the closing one on Thursday, will never be forgotten by those who heard them. Mr. Clarke is now holding a mission in Cork.

UNION HALL MISSION.—Mr. R. Bilke writes:—We have just concluded a week of special prayer at Union-hall. The Lord gave a season of much refreshing and blessing upon those who came together night by night. Several backsliders have been restored. Addresses were given by Dr. George Saunders, Major G. S. Windham, Mr. Edward Dobson, Mr. Edwin Cook, Mr. James E. Hawkins, Mr. Herbert W. Taylor, Mr. Samuel Stidolph, Mr. W. Barnett, and Mr. R. Bilke. The meetings on Sunday last were marked by an increase of numbers and power.

SYDNEY.—A writer in The Young Men's Magazine, published in this Australian city, says:—"Every effort put forth to raise a pure manhood and womanhood in this country is completely neutralised and rendered futile in thousands of instances by the grossest vice being allowed to plant itself in our most public thoroughfares. If the Legislature does not come to the aid of private effort in this direction, a terrible reckoning day will come for this country."

ANOTHER SECESSION FROM ROME. — Padre Frederico Antonio da Seregno, a preacher of the Order of the Cappuccini, has left the Church of Rome and joined the Italian Free Church. To avoid calumny and misrepresentation he published in the Gazzetta Provinciale di Bergamo his reasons for acting as he has done, pointing out the errors of the Church of Rome and her unscriptural dogmas. The ex-Padre, whose real name is Giuseppe Silva, concludes his declaration by stating that he wishes to be a free citizen, a defender and apostle of the Gospel, willing to do all in his power to serve the true Church of Christ in Italy and the world, to the good of his country.

THE SEWING GIRLS OF GERMANY, according to a report which has been sent to the United States Department of State, have a hard time. Their wages are barely sufficient for subsistence and lodging, leaving all necessary incidental expenses, including clothing, to be provided either by a girl's family or through independent efforts of her own. In the larger cities this condition leads to frightful suffering or degrading immorality and ruin. Their employers are endeavouring to compel them to purchase their thread and other supplies at employers' prices, and the well-to-do girls who want a little extra money for luxuries or fineries compete with the lower classes and do the work at even lower rates than those generally paid. In short, only those girls have a passable existence who have sufficient support in their family ties. The self-dependent girl who lives by herself generally falls an easy prey to designing men and ends in private or public immorality.

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Monday, November 7, 1887.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
Speranza—Please send full address.
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—Ps. cxlvi. 9, 10s.; C.S. £1; C.J.L. £2; L.E.B. 3s.; F.D. £1; E.W. 4s. 6d.; L.P. 10s.; C.P., Clifton, £2; M.R.W. £1; S.M. £1; T.C.E. 2s.; Poor Woman, 5s.; A Servant, £1; M. 5s.; E.N., St. Leonards, £5; "Sesex," £5; E.V. £1; E.P. £2 10s.; C.L.M.T. £1; C.D. 5s.	25	14	6
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—Ps. cxlvi. 9, 10s.; O.P.T. £5	5	10	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—Ps. cxlvi. 9, 10s.; C.S. 10s.; C.L.M.T. £1	2	0	0
Stockwell Orphanage—Ps. cxlvi. 9	0	10	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—E.T. 5s.; J.S.T. £1 1s.; L.P. 5s.; T.C.E. 4s.; E.P. £2 10s.; C.C. 10s.; (Night's Lodging, &c.) C.S. £1; Ryde, £5; S.M.B. £1; Two Sisters, 10s.; L.E.B. 3s.; Misses C. £1; Belfast, 5s.; S.M. £1; Poor Woman, 5s.; C.D. 5s.; L.H.G. 10s.	15	13	0
Frndlss. & Fallen—C.S. 10s.; L.P. 5s.; E.H.S. 3s.	0	18	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—C.S. 10s.; L.M.H. £1	1	10	0
George-yard Ragged Schools—C.S. 10s.; C.J.L. £2; L.P. 5s.; F.C. 10s.	3	5	0
London City Mission—C.S. 10s.; R.C. £5; M.D.G. £1	6	10	0
Inst. for Factory Girls (Miss M. Brown)—C.S.	0	10	0
Pastor Chiniquy—S.D.R.	1	0	0
Field-lane Refuges, &c.—Two Sisters, 10s.; J.S.T. £1 1s.	1	11	0
Indigent Blind Visiting Society—M.S.	1	1	0
Children's Hospital, Jerusalem—E.T.	1	0	0
New Moravian Leper Home, Jerusalem—Northampton	5	0	0
Blackdown Hills Mission—C.P., Clifton, 5s.; (Personal Expenses) W.E. £2; F.C. £1	3	5	0
Salvation Army—R.C. £10; C.P., Clifton, 10s.	10	10	0
E. L. Trning. Inst. (Rev. H. G. Guinness)—R.C.	5	5	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—E.W. £2 2s.; (Medical Mission) M.D.G. £1	3	2	0
Orphans' Home (Miss Mittendorff)—E.W. £1 1s.; Misses C. £1	2	1	0
Watercress and Flower Sellers' Mission—E.W.	1	1	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—E.W. £1 1s.; L.P. 10s.; H.S.B. 10s.	2	1	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—E.W.	1	1	0
"My Little Cripple"—Cheltenham	0	3	6
Fuel, &c., for the Poor (Rev. J. W. Atkinson)—O.R. 1s. 6d.; Pity, 5s.	0	6	6
Thames Church Mission—L.P. 5s.; H.S.B. 10s.	0	15	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—L.P. 10s.; S.H. £2; Miss S. 5s.; M.D.G. 10s.	3	5	0
Halfpenny Dinners—L.P.	0	5	0
Gospel in China (Religious Tract Society)—L.P.	0	5	0
Gray's-yard Schools, &c.—(Building Fund) C.P., Clifton, 2s. 6d.; Misses C. £1	1	2	6
Golden Bells Coffee Palace—C.P., Clifton, 2s. 6d.; T.N.J. 10s.	0	12	6
Constantinople Rest—C.P., Clifton, 2s. 6d.; G.E. & W.H.N. £1	1	2	6
Central Vigilance Society—C.P., Clifton	0	2	6
Tower Hamlets Mission—Misses C.	0	10	0
McAll Mission—Misses C.	1	0	0
Homes for Aged Poor, Notting-hill—Misses C.	1	0	0
Orphan Homes (Mrs. Ginever)—Misses C.	1	0	0
French Governesses' Home (M. Pentet de la Harpe)—Misses C.	1	0	0
Woman's Mission to Women—E.H.C.	0	10	0
Irish Society (Scripture Readers)—S.S.	1	0	0
Kabyle and Berber Missions—H.S.B.	0	10	0
Free Breakfast Fund—T.E.B.	0	5	0
London Bible Women's Mission—Miss U.	0	10	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—Thank-offering	0	5	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Soc.—Poor Doctor's Family, 9s.; Miss H. 5s.	0	14	0
London Medical Mission—M. 5s.; F.C. 10s.	0	15	0
Wrkng. Girls in Lndn. (Mr. Shrimpton)—T.N.J.	0	10	0
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—E.H.H.	0	5	0
King Edward Ragged Schools (Youths' Institute, &c.)—Miss H.	0	5	0
Church of England Foreign Mission—Mr. P.	0	7	6
Birds' Nest Mission, Dublin—Miss S.	0	5	0
Home for Aged Christian Blind—Miss S.	0	5	0
Rodriguez's Figueras Mission—Miss S.	0	5	0
Chrstn. Community (Work among Poor)—L.M.H.	1	10	0
Rev. G. Gast's Work, Spencer Chapel—L.M.H.	1	10	0
Turkish Missions' Aid Society—G.E. & W.H.N.	1	0	0
Smyrna Rest—G.E. & W.H.N.	1	0	0
New Evangelical Gospel Hall, Constantinople—G.E. & W.H.N.	2	0	0
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—Rev. E.R.B.	0	10	0
Italian Peninsula Msn.—Friend, £50; J.C.M.P. £5	55	0	0
	£181	10	0

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Railway Mission, 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.—M.K. 10s. D. Spencer, Secretary.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E. (towards £1000)—Mrs. W. £2. F. A. Bevan, Esq., Treasurer, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

Archibald G. Brown's Work among the Poor of E. London—Gratefully acknowledged: E.S. £10. Address, 22, Bow-road, E.

"I was a stranger, and ye took me in."

The Committee of the Field Lane Refuges and Ragged Schools are compelled to make a very urgent appeal for Funds for the continuance of their work. The work is carried on amongst the most destitute of the poor, both old and young. The Institution possesses no reserve fund to fall back upon.

The Committee gratefully acknowledge the receipt of £230, but £1,270 is still required before the close of the year to free them from anxiety. Upwards of 200 persons are maintained weekly. The average weekly attendances at the Mission Meetings is about 3,000.

The Committee trust the Lord's people will help them in this time of difficulty and pressure. On behalf of the Committee,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C. PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary.

P.S.—Contributions will be thankfully received by the Secretary; or may be paid to our Bankers, Messrs. Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or Messrs. Ransom & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.; or to the Editor of "THE CHRISTIAN."

GRAY'S YARD RAGGED CHURCH and SCHOOLS,

James Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

President—F. A. BEVAN, ESQ., 54, LOMBARD STREET, E.C.

Funds are Urgently Needed to meet the current Expenses of this Institution. From 500 to 700 Casuals and Tramps are here supplied with Bread and Coffee every Sunday, after Gospel Services. Nearly £3 per week required for Food alone.

Contributions will be thankfully received and acknowledged by GEORGE HANBURY, Esq., Treasurer, 21, Portman-square, W.; PHILIP GOUGH, Esq., Hon. Sub-Treasurer, 33, Cambridge-street, Hyde-park, W.; or by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

THAMES CHURCH MISSION.

INSTITUTED 1844.

The late Mr. Sheriff Woolloton once made the following touching Appeal:—

"Let everyone whose heart is filled with love to Christ do something for this Society."

£50 ARE REQUIRED forthwith to meet the expenses of Cleaning and Heating our MISSION HALL at TILBURY. Will every Reader of THE CHRISTIAN please spare something towards this amount.

Offices—31, New Bridge-street, E.C. Rev. H. BLOOMER, Secretary.

Rabinowitch and his Mission to Israel.

BY REV. A. SAPHIR, D.D.

SPECIAL INFORMATION on this most important and interesting movement is given in "WORD AND WORK" (This Week), Nov. 11.

PRICE ONE PENNY. POST FREE, THREE HALFPENCE.

JOHN F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster Row, E.C.

ASYLUM for FATHERLESS CHILDREN,

Reedham, near Caterham Junction, Surrey. This unsectarian Institution is entirely dependent upon public benevolence. It is open to fatherless children of either sex from all parts of the kingdom. They are received as early as three months old, and are retained and cared for in every way until they are 15 years of age.

Since the foundation of the Charity in 1844, 1 500 children have been admitted to its benefits and 310 are now in the Asylum. Their maintenance entails an expenditure of at least £8,000 per annum, but of that sum only £2,500 is provided by annual subscriptions.

The large balance is dependent upon donations and legacies. FUNDS are urgently NEEDED.

The Secretary will be pleased to give any further information.

HENRY SPICER, Treasurer.
JOHN R. EDWARDS, Secretary.

Office, 35, Finsbury-circus, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President.
HIS GRACE LORD PLUNKET, ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN.
Late President.
THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

Offices:—27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
And 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, Reports, &c., can be obtained on application to the Secretary,

CAPTAIN JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

THE HEXAGLOT BIBLE,—

WHICH IS ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL EDITION OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES EVER PUBLISHED,—HEBREW, GREEK, LATIN, ENGLISH, GERMAN, FRENCH (PRINTED IN PARALLEL COLUMNS).

Six Large Volumes, Royal 4to., 4,200 pages.

This unique work—patronised by Her Majesty the Queen, His Majesty the Czar of Russia, His Highness the Crown Prince of Germany, by many of the Episcopal Bench and the Nobility, &c., is now complete. Special advantages granted to Shareholders of the Hexaglot Bible Association (Limited). Apply for prospectus and full particulars to THE SECRETARY, 9, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London, W.C.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT.

DONATIONS SOLICITED FOR THIS WINTER'S CAMPAIGN.

During the present year SIXTY Midnight and other Meetings have been held in London and the Provinces, attended by over THREE THOUSAND Young Women and Girls gathered from the streets by special missionary effort.

In the Metropolis, special Meetings have been held in the East and West parts of London. In the neighbourhood of Regent-street many FRENCH, GERMAN, and SWISS Unfortunates attended. Gospel Addresses and Tracts were given in the RESPECTIVE TONGUES of those present.

In the Provinces, Meetings have been held at BIRMINGHAM, PLYMOUTH, PRESTON, SOUTHAMPTON, &c.

Opportunities for GOSPEL MISSIONING, both in the Provinces and London, continue to increase. The Society's work is limited only by want of Funds. DONATIONS to the amount of TWO HUNDRED POUNDS will indeed help forward the Winter's work in rescuing the Fallen.

Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, will kindly receive Donations.

Office—8A, Red Lion Square, W.C. C. WILSON McCREE, Secretary.

Allen & Hanbury's "Perfected" COD-LIVER OIL

"Is as nearly tasteless as Cod-Liver Oil can be."—Lancet.
"Has almost the delicacy of salad oil."—British Medical Journal.
"No nauseous eructations follow after it is swallowed."—Medical Press.

It can be borne and digested by the most delicate; is the only oil which does not "repeat;" and for these reasons the most efficacious kind in use. In capsuled bottles only, at 1s. 4d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 9d., and 9s. Sold everywhere.

BYNIN LIQUID MALT forms a valuable adjunct to Cod-Liver Oil. Highly concentrated and nutritious. A powerful aid to digestion. It is a valuable remedy in Consumption and Wasting Diseases. In bottles at 1s. 9d. each.

---

8 Large Glasses at a Cost of 2D.

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER

Eight Large Glasses of delicious Custard at a Cost of 2d., by using Bird's Custard Powder. The Original and only Genuine. No Eggs Required. Saves half the cost, and is half the trouble. Sold Everywhere, in 6d. and 1s. boxes, and 2d. Packets. Recipes for tasty dishes enclosed in each box. To prevent disappointment see that each packet bears the name of the Inventors and Manufacturers: Alfred Bird & Sons, Devonshire Works, Birmingham.

See that you always get

JAMES' DOME BLACK LEAD

Used in the Royal Household.
E. JAMES & SONS, Sole Makers, PLYMOUTH.

Tonga

The SPECIFIC
For NEURALGIA.

"Tonga maintains its reputation in the treatment of Neuralgia." Lancet.

"Invaluable in facial Neuralgia. Has proved effective in all those cases in which we have prescribed it."—Medical Press.

2/9, 4/6, & 11/. Of all Chemists.

KNITTERS.

Ladies can now obtain their Wools and Silks Direct from the Spinning Mills, making sure of Full Weight, and Fast Colours in all the Newest Tints, and Graduated Shades, and Saving both the Wholesale and Retail Profit—from Threepence in the Shilling. Ladies should see the beautiful Samples which are sent Free of Charge to any Address in Town or Country, and may be kept.

When writing please mention this Paper.

THE PROVIDENCE MILLS SPINNING CO.,
BRADFORD, YORKSHIRE, ENGLAND.

USED BY HER MAJESTY'S SERVANTS.
Gold Medals and Diplomas of Merit at all Exhibitions.

Needham's Polishing Paste

Dazzling Mirror Finish.

The reputation of nearly a century as the most reliable preparation for Cleaning and Brilliantly Polishing BRASS, COPPER, TIN, BRITANNIA METAL, PLATINOID, &c. Can be obtained Retail everywhere, in 6d. and 1s. Pots, 2d. and 1d. Tins, and 1d. Cardboard Boxes. Inventors and Sole Manufacturers—

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
London Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, E.C.

ALWAYS ASK FOR

Cadbury's

Guaranteed

PURE &

SOLUBLE

Cocoa

(REGISTERED.)

Always examine your purchase. See that you have not been induced to accept an imitation, as the great esteem in which Cadbury's Cocoa is held has led to the most unscrupulous Copying of Labels and Packages, for the sake of extra profit.

Be wary of highly-coloured and drugged preparations offered as PURE Cocoa. Anything of a medicated character associated with Cocoa proclaims it at once to be an imposture.

PARIS DEPOT: 90, FAUBOURG ST. HONORÉ.

PEARS' SOAP

Fair White Hands.
Bright Clear Complexion.
Soft Healthful Skin.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.

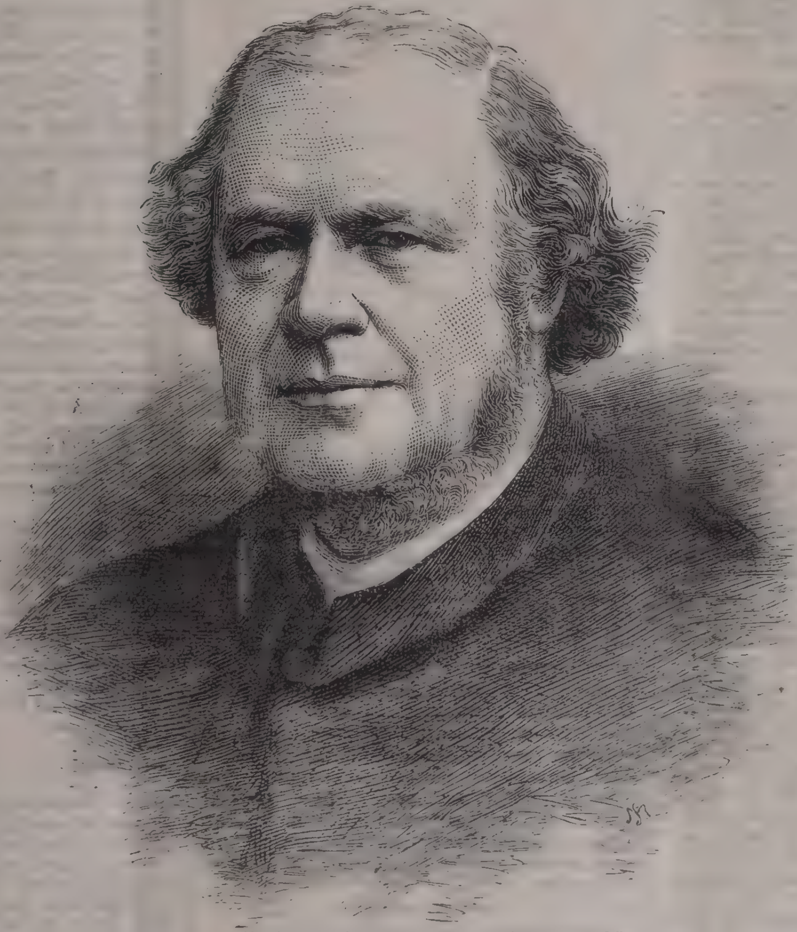
No. 929.] LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1887. REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

THE LATE

REV. W. MORLEY PUNSHON, LL.D.

GREAT and universal was the sorrow, six and a half years ago, when the news was flashed over the two hemispheres, "Morley Punshon is dead." He had been so largely a public possession, both here and in America, and so many in all the churches had gained pleasure from the exercise of his peculiar gifts, that his unexpected translation was like the blotting out of a fixed planet from the heavens. In the realms of sacred rhetoric, his name will be one to conjure with for many a generation. The years that have elapsed between his death and the publication of Rev. F. W. Macdonald's biography of him * have but served to mellow the memories which that truly admirable book will serve to clarify and revive.

WM. MORLEY PUNSHON came of a good Methodist stock. Born at Doncaster in 1824, he was the only child of his mother and father. Towards the former he cherished an affection of more than usual strength. She died when he was hardly out of his boyhood, and the biographer tells us that "he mourned for her to the end of his days." The mother part of his nature was, throughout life, developed in a remarkable degree. Possessing a vigorous, and in some respects a commanding intellect, he was still more conspicuous for the warmth of his emotional faculties and the depth of his social instincts and affections.



(From an Engraving published by the Wesleyan Conference Office

Very early in life he showed signs of the marvellous fecundity of thought and facility of utterance that were the steps on which he ascended the ladder of fame. "The real passion of his boyhood was for poetry and politics," though he was not destined to shine in either of these walks of life, as usually understood. He was at first designated for a commercial career, but his conversion, following close upon his mother's death, changed all that. He joined the Methodist Society, and found in its various ministries and institutions that which satisfied his spiritual affinities, as well as gave scope for his dawning gifts of speech. He preached his first sermon at the age of sixteen, and soon afterwards was led into the current that landed him in the recognised ministry of that section of the Church. In addition to great natural resources of language, he had a memory which could retain a discourse through the mere process of its composition. Thus equipped, he found himself famous as a popular preacher almost before he had emerged from boyhood. The biographer faithfully relates how this proved a real temptation towards personal vanity. By the grace of God, however, he was able to overcome the lion in the way, so that it became a common saying, "Nothing was more wonderful in Punshon than his modesty."

The young pastor was appointed as a preacher on trial in the Whitehaven Circuit, by the Conference of 1845. There his reputation as an exhorter of unique and phenomenal eloquence was established. Crowds came from great distances to hear his wonderful orations. Meanwhile he was drinking deep at the well, not only of English, but of theology undefiled, to be found in the writings of the old Puritan divines. This must have proved a needed tonic, in view of the exuberant wealth of words naturally at his command. After the usual four years of probation, through which, of course, he passed triumphantly, he was admitted to the full status of a Methodist minister, as a member of Conference. He was designated to the Newcastle Circuit, where he was married to his first wife, Miss Vickers, and where he soon became a recognised power in the denomination.

Sheffield was his next sphere of labour, according to the itinerant system of the church to which he belonged. It was while here that he made his first public appearance in London. He spoke at the great missionary anniversary. In that first speech, says his biographer, he took possession of Exeter Hall, and retained it to his life's end. It was not long before there came to him an invitation to lecture from this historic platform to the Young Men's Christian Association. This event opened up a new chapter in his career, and fairly launched him on the sea of public life, as one of the foremost religious orators of his day. All his energies were taxed to keep pace with the demands upon his time and tongue. Exeter Hall has witnessed many stirring and dramatic scenes in connection with the triumphs of the human voice over human hearts. Few, if any, of these have been more remarkable than in Mr. Punshon's case. One of his contemporaries thus describes the effect produced on the auditory by his lecture on "John Bunyan":—

---

* THE LIFE OF WM. MORLEY PUNSHON, LL.D. 12s. Hodder & Stoughton.

> He spoke with his usual captivating elocution and with immense energy and force. Feeling amongst the audience grew; enthusiasm was awakened and gathered force as he went on. At last, at one of his magnificent climaxes, the vast concourse of people sprang tumultuously to their feet. Hats and handkerchiefs were waved; sticks and umbrellas were used in frantic pounding of the floor; hands, feet, and voices were united in swelling the acclamations. Some shouted "Bravo!" some "Hurrah!" some "Hallelujah!" and others "Glory be to God!" Such a tornado of applause as swept through Exeter Hall and swelled from floor to ceiling I have never witnessed before or since.

In a greater or lesser degree this same spell was woven and cast around every audience before which he spoke. It is recorded in Mr. Macdonald's intensely interesting book, that between the years of 1854 and 1881 Mr. Punshon lectured six hundred and fifty times, to gatherings ranging from five hundred to five thousand persons, on both sides of the Atlantic In a brief but careful survey of his oratorical methods his biographer says:—

> Within the chambers of his heart and brain invisible audiences assembled, were dismissed, and came together again continually. For them his ideas, as they rose, took rhetorical form, and clothed themselves in language ornate and rythmical. By the law alike of his intellectual and of his emotional nature, the movement from impression to expressionwas swift and instinctive...... Sometimes by rapid change of key, more frequently by gradual elevation, the ascent is made to a loftier and more impassioned strain. It is in these ascents that Punshon was most himself...... The language grows bolder, more impassioned, more pathetic, until at last it culminates in some paragraph whose subtle modulations, long drawn out, leave music in the ear and emotion in the heart.

By and by we find Mr. Punshon removed from the provinces to this great throbbing heart of the civilised and Christian world. In the regions of Bayswater and Islington he found himself in the full tide of work. While in the former circuit a grievous blow fell on him in the death of his wife. We make special allusion to this, as it led up to a notable, and, in one sense, a painful incident of his life history. The care of his motherless children was undertaken, with great devotion, and sustained for the space of ten years, by the sister of his deceased wife. One could feel no surprise, and it would have occasioned no remark, that he should have resolved to make the lady his second wife, but for the peculiar state of the English law on this vexed question. Like many others, Mr. Punshon was convinced that in taking such a step, while he was obeying a law of nature, he was contravening no law of God; though he could not take it in Great Britain without infringing the existing law of the realm. An invitation to visit Canada, by the Methodist body of the Dominion, gave the opportunity he wished for. Such marriages, strangely enough, are of legal force in the colonies, though not in the Mother Country. He was married in Toronto; but, after two brief years of wedded happiness, he had again the unspeakable sorrow of seeing her who was the light of his eyes and the companion of his life suddenly fade away from his view, and enter the mysterious spirit world. Later on in life he married again, and his third wife has survived him. After five busy years in Canada, in the course of which, according to the testimony of one, he "pushed on the churches there half a century," he returned to England on the eve of his life's jubilee. In 1874 he was elected to the presidency of the Wesleyan Conference, and passed his year of office full of work for the churches of his denomination as well as taking his due share in the general Christian warfare going on around him. The following year he was appointed to the office of Missionary Secretary, in the room of Rev. Luke Wiseman, deceased. This post, which he held for the remainder of his life, was the fitting climax of his life work. Rev. E. E. Jenkins, one of his colleagues at the Mission House, warmly testifies, through the pages of Mr. Macdonald's volume, to the fidelity of his service in the cause of foreign missions; though he adds that the burden and worry of office in a time of great financial depression told upon him and hastened the inevitable end.

For the full record of his last years we must refer the interested reader to the book which has supplied us with material for this brief review of a devoted and truly successful life. As we remarked at the outset, the announcement of his death was unlooked for, for he had only reached his fifty-seventh year. He had experienced his full share of the trials and sorrows that are the portion of all in this chequered earthly scene; while he had compressed into his life an amount of active service, and an expenditure of vitality that would, in the case of most men, have been spread over a far longer period.

It is scarcely needful for us to say much as to the merits, literary and otherwise, of this biography. Chaste and dignified in style, highly sympathetic, and yet judicial in tone, and with ample fulness as to the supply of fact, it may well take a high and permanent place in the annals of modern Methodism.

MEMORIES OF DR. MORLEY PUNSHON.

How sweetly I recall the charm and glow,
The music and the fire of loving speech,
And grand old Gospel Punshon rose to teach,
That disbelief the living Christ might know!
Confused, the sceptic stood! amazed, the foe,
When this Apollos taught the awestruck crowd:
And praised the Corner-stone! long disallow'd
By scoffers, red with curses, sins, and woe.
His fancy played around truth's towering rock
As fragrant vines play round the cottage door,
Until the sundown seems to paint the wall
With tints of evening skies; and creepers mock
The ever-changing light of heaven's floor,
When day dissolves, and silver'd shadows fall.
How bless'd his gifts, his work, his fruitful hand,
In God's white harvestfield of ripening sheaves:
His record for the Master which he leaves,
A monument of reaping faith will stand.
How simple, kindly, that great soul! How grand
His choice unfoldings of creation's plan:
To him all truth was beautiful; and man
The priest and prophet of a better land.
O God! how my sad heart felt instant peace,
When Israel's olden story charmed mine ear,
Or words of quick appeal from lips of power
Could thaw my doubts, and bid life's darkness cease—
The magic of a tongue so rich, and clear,
Was Spirit-guided in that conquering hour!

Eastbourne. JOHN T. MARKLEY.

THE LOVE OF THE FATHER.*

MR. AITKEN is always pungent and graphic, clear and convincing; and this volume is no exception in these respects. The argument is always based on Scripture, and there is enough of truth to justify the belief that these discourses have been used of God to the salvation of souls. Many of the incidents related are full of interest and instruction.

We think, however, that in honouring the Broad Church party "for the effective re-assertion of the great truth of the Fatherhood of God," the preacher overlooks that the doctrine as taught by that party differs from his own definition.

In the preface it is said that "the love of the Father must ever be the keynote of Gospel preaching," yet not one of his texts justifies this assertion. The first six sermons are on the Prodigal Son, which parable was spoken in reply to the Scribes and Pharisees—not as an address to the people; and of the remaining ten, not one is preached from a text which contains the word "son" or "father." We do not remember a single discourse in the Gospels or the Acts in which Jesus or his Apostles preached the Gospel to sinners as children of God. We have no desire to minimise the fact that God has a father's heart towards the children of men; but by sin they have not only lost the privileges of sonship, but all filial affection toward God; and the first proof of regeneration is that we have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, "Abba, Father!"

Mr. Aitken's view of the Elder Son as "a good man" could never have been conceived had he observed the structure of the discourse in Luke xv., xvi., with its five connected parables, in which the publicans on the one hand and the Pharisees on the other are personified thus:—

Publicans and Sinners.	Pharisees and Scribes.
Lost sheep.	....
Lost piece of silver.	....
Prodigal son.	Elder brother.
....	Unjust steward.
Lazarus.	Rich man.

The Pharisees object that Jesus "receiveth sinners and eateth with them." He replies with these five parables, in which, by an appeal to human life and nature, He justifies Himself in receiving sinners. Then He depicts the Scribes and Pharisees as selfish and jealous, even if their claim to being righteous were allowed. But they were unrighteous stewards (compare Luke xvi. 5—7 with Mark vii. 5—13). And they fared sumptuously on God's good things, while they let the people lie at their gate with festering sores. Therefore the Lord shows them a picture of the publicans and sinners in Abraham's bosom, and themselves lifting up their eyes in hell (compare the parable with Matt. xxiii.). Never were tables turned more signally upon critics and enemies; never were outcasts more gloriously defended. M.

---

* THE LOVE OF THE FATHER: Sermons on the Parable of the Prodigal Son, and other subjects illustrative of the Fatherly Love of God. By W. HAY M. H. AITKEN, M.A. 3s. John F. Shaw & Co.

MONEY OR POWER?

By Rev. MARK GUY PEARSE.

From an address at St. James's Hall on Friday morning last.

If we were to place ourselves in the midst of the little company of men and women to whom was entrusted the great work of restoring the kingdom of the world to Christ, the first thought of most of us would be this, In order to do so great a work, we shall need a great deal of money. And if we were as poor as that little company was, what consternation and despair would fill us as to where the money could come from! If we open a subscription list we might get Joseph of Arimathea to head it, though he has already done a good deal; and Nicodemus might, perhaps, give something. But really that will go a very little way.

It would indeed. "We shall want a great deal of money." What a familiar sound the phrase has! How natural it seems, and how necessary. We measure our possibilities for the world's conversion by our money. It is the sum of our wants. The cry of the Church is "Give, give, give;" and the dream of the zealous is of the wonders they could do if only they had the money.

Now let us ask ourselves, Why is it that in the beginning of this great work not a single word about money is spoken, either by the Master or by the disciples? If money is essential to this work, why did not Jesus Christ secure it for Himself when He went forth, and in time secure a vast endowment for his disciples? Did He not know how much of the heart and energy and time of the Church would be taken up in raising the necessary funds? Did He not know how the Church would be crippled and hampered, and her work actually given up sometimes, for want of money? And yet He does not say one word about it! What does it mean? There is a vague impression that in these days of intense spirituality and sweet simplicity they somehow managed without money. If that be so, then, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, let us make all possible haste in going back again to such a blessed condition. But, of course, they needed money as much as we do, and had a great deal less of it. How is it, then, that the early Church did not feel the need of that which is the supreme requisite of the Church of to-day. Christianity as we see it in the New Testament has no more to do with tithes than with incense or ephods. Jesus Christ gave no command about money, except, indeed, that He told his disciples to provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in their purse.

"But we must have money, of course," says everybody, as if that ended the matter, and as if everything must stand still until the money is given. Faith, heroism, enterprise for the Lord Jesus are all to be suppressed until the tithes are in the storehouse; then go forth and be as heroic as you can, only please do be careful not to step beyond the funds in hand. Of course it is very easy to sneer at all this as pretty sentiment only. Many good people do. That is a very little matter. The question that concerns us is this, Did the Lord Jesus Christ intend the success and triumph of the Church to depend in any degree upon money? "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." Is this condition dependent in the slightest degree upon the income of the Church? And yet we all declare that we must have money. Do we really mean to assert that we believe in a system designed for the conquest of the whole world, and believe that its great Founder and Head has all power in heaven and in earth, and yet that his Church is perpetually on the point of failure for want of money? If we must have money, let us have the confidence to go to God and ask for it, assured that it shall be given. Surely it were better to give up faith altogether, and die in despair, than believe that God so loved the world, as to give his only begotten Son, and yet that He should let the world's conversion stand still for want of money. "The gold is mine," saith the Lord of Hosts. Do his resources ever fail? For thousands of years his great sun has poured its wealth of light and heat in generous fulness upon the world. Is it spent in any wise? Is it only for the triumph of the well-beloved that there is lack and emptiness? Never. God needs no beggars. He wants no man's gifts. Surely nothing can be further from Christ's idea of Christianity than that the triumph of the Gospel should be more dependent upon rich men than upon good men. Are we not off the lines which Christ laid down? Give every man an opportunity of giving for his own sake, but not as if either God or the Gospel were in any wise the man's debtor. Make it a man's privilege to give, but if the gift is other than that, be bold enough to count that God will not accept it, and that the Church is better without it. The fact is this, that when the Lord Jesus laid the work of the world's conversion upon the whole Church, He intended that no other method should succeed. There is not money enough in the world to hire men to do the work, and, thank God, there never will be. Instead of every Christian seeking and claiming the power from on high for the subduing of the world to Christ, we have come to think that Christianity means the safety of our own souls, and as for everything else, it can be done by money. That is the first great mistake.

And the second grows out of the first, and aggravates the mischief vastly. Since Christianity is an arrangement for our selfish security, the next step is to make it an arrangement for selfish gratification. Huge sums of money may be lavished upon luxuries and elegance which make the house of God the well-to-do man's club, where a poor brother is an intruder. If we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren, can we dare to make the very worship of the crucified Redeemer that which ministers to our luxurious selfishness? Can Christ ever come and consecrate this kind of expenditure? There is no command to give money to the Church; but that the Church care for the poor is commanded again and again, and yet again. This is made the very test and proof of our religion. We want the outspoken Apostle James in our midst with his plain, strong words (James ii. 1—6).

No, there is no such word in the Scriptures as that which we quote so complacently and with such authority: "We must have money, you know." It is written, "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." That, and that only, is the grand necessity. Christ has adjusted all the workings of Christianity by this one principle—every Christian being wholly consecrated to Him—body, soul, and substance. And if we try to work it in any other way we are beset and bewildered with failure. For this let us thank God. Only a holy Church can ever be a conquering Church. There is no other force that can subdue the world. When she "looketh forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun," then is her victory assured; then is he "terrible as an army with banners."

ISAAC AND REBEKAH.

Thine the beauty and the glory—
Heir of all things—Son of God,
Shining round me and before me,
Lighting all the desert road.

Camels girded for the journey—
Kneeling, laden, set for home:
Ah, my heart is gone already,
Centred there, no more to roam.

Roll afar, thou proud Euphrates!
Nought can keep me from my bourne,
Where my mighty Guardian came from—
There with me will He return.

Buried in Chaldea's city,
I had perished with my race;
But the Steward came to save me,
Met me in his Master's grace.

Asked me for "a little water"—
Let me quench his camels' thirst
Saw in me, Bethuel's daughter,
Her he prayed for at the first.

Ah, the errand that he told me,
Of the "Living One" who died—
Of the Father's love and counsel,
Taking unto Him a bride!

Nothing, I remember nothing,
But that sacrifice and choice—
Never music filled my spirit
Like that penetrating voice.

Could I hear Him, "Eliezer,"
And for Isaac not be won?
Ah, the Father loved and sought me—
Sent and claimed me for his Son.

Let the token on my forehead,
Let the bracelet on my hand,
Prove me now the chosen daughter
Of the Lord of all the land.

I will go; I would not tarry;
Object of that heart's delight!
He was unto death obedient;
I would walk with him in white.

Jewels, raiment, gifts, the servant
Brought for me from Isaac's hand:
Precious things, that else had never Shone in any foreign land.

I shall see Him in his beauty—
He, Himself, his bride will meet;
I shall be with Him for ever—
In companionship complete.

Thoughts of Him are strength and gladness—
What man comes there forth our way?
"'Tis my Master!" 'tis the Bridegroom:
Veiled—the bride is caught away.

And the servant telleth Isaac
All the things that he had done:
And Rebekah reigns in Hebron—
Wife of the once offered One.

[May be had as a leaflet from Mr. W. Greene, Oriolet, Loughton, Essex. Price 4d. per dozen.]

MR. MOODY IN MONTREAL.

A correspondent in this city writes to us respecting the recent mission by Mr. Moody:—

The attendance and enthusiasm were simply marvellous for this frigid, priest-ridden city. He expressed himself highly gratified and surprised, though, of course, never satisfied. The ministerial support was very good. The gratifying feature of the occasion was the faithful and gratuitous reports of the meetings, published daily in two of our local papers—The Star and Witness—by which fully 600,000 copies of the discourses were circulated broadcast through the Dominion, the result of which no one can estimate. The demand still continues, and The Witness is responding in large special editions.

Trophies of the good work are coming in daily to the Y.M.C.A. as well as to the churches.

CHRISTIAN POLITICIANS.

Many Christians of tender mind, whose chief concern is to walk circumspectly and wisely in the Spirit of Christ through life, take no part in political affairs, and justify their abstention by many and weighty reasons; and when they point to the spirit which pervades party strife, to its methods, and to the characters and lives of some of the most prominent of the leaders in the parties, we are compelled to admit that to a large extent they vindicate their course.

The character of politics, as given by one well qualified to do so, is not an inviting one. At the Mansion House, in the month of February last, Mr. John Morley said, "Politics are a field where action is one long second-best, and where the choice constantly lies between two blunders." The atmosphere of party strife is charged with selfishness, ambition, ignorance, prejudice, cunning, and passion. The ranks of each party are manned by individuals who are required to sacrifice private judgment, when it does not coincide with the opinion of the majority, upon the plea that if each spoke and acted according to the dictates of his own judgment all unity of action would disappear, total disorder would ensue, the most unscrupulous would seize place and power for brief periods, no administration could be assured of any long continuance, and a succession of unstable governments would be followed by anarchy. One at least of the most popular of the political leaders has avowed his antagonism to Christianity, and religion is but little attended to by most of them, which may account for the fact that men who notoriously live immoral lives are nevertheless prominent in political affairs.

But there are also many Christian men who have been enabled to find spheres of great usefulness within the borders of the political parties, and whose integrity and allegiance to the principles of righteousness have done much towards raising the moral tone, and softening the asperities, of party strife. To them we desire to address some entirely non-party observations upon the need which exists at this time of their unswerving loyalty as politicians to the teachings of our Lord, which are the immutable principles of our religion.

An essential principle of our religion is this, that we should eschew and reprobate all impurity. A Christian who uses his individual vote, or the influence over others which he has obtained by his religious life and conversation, in order to exalt to power one whom he knows to be leading an immoral life, or to be possessed of vicious propensities, or concerning whom he might obtain such knowledge if he made proper inquiries, thereby extends the power of sin, and is a traitor to the cause of Christ. Nor is this less so because he stands aside and fails to use his influence to prevent such exaltation of wicked men, for acquiescence by silence in a wrong deed makes us participators in the responsibility of the act when it is done. The power of political leaders, whether merely in local politics or in the vast sphere of national politics, has been increased greatly by the recent developments of party organisations, which have made the parties into armies, the officers of which command the movements of their companies, according to the directions they receive from their superiors in rank. These superior officers not only determine the course of the party, they also become the patterns for other aspirants to distinction and power, and

> "Dociles imitandis > Turpibus et pravis omnes sumus."*

The choosing of these superior officers, therefore, has become the most important political act a party man is called upon to perform, and it behoves Christian politicians to exert, to their utmost, whatever power they may have to prevent the choice of immoral men. In choosing such leaders political bias and political services ought to be duly regarded, but if these are made the exclusive tests of fitness, the strongest influences which affect men are disregarded, namely, the varying impulses of passion.

It is urged by some politicians that the private vices of a public man, especially if they are not widely known, do not interfere with his public usefulness, and ought not to be permitted to weigh in the opposite scale against his claims to political promotion. In fact, an immoral life does interfere with a public man's usefulness. It injures him physically, and mentally it depraves him. It undermines his judgment, and makes it untrustworthy. The immoral man is subject to nervous panics, and if he be placed in a position of trust he may at any moment cause irremediable injury under the influence of some gust of uncontrolled passion. Political leaders become legislators, and it cannot be expected that moral legislation will be devised by, or will find favour with, immoral men. Has not the recent experience of the promoters of the Criminal Law Amendment Act proved that such men not only do not aid, but they mar and hinder moral measures? The structure of society stands upon family life. Immorality is the great destroyer of family life. The immoral man by his immorality weakens the foundation of society. He is one of the most dangerous of anarchists. He is unsuited, as he is unworthy, to be the ruler of men. He who is chosen to govern others should first be proved able to govern himself.

It is clear, from every point of view, that the moral tendencies of a man should be the first test by which any cautious person should try his fitness to be a leader of men, and especially should it be so for the pure-minded Christian. Is there any Christian who would not scout as madness a suggestion that an immoral woman (though in all other respects capable) might fitly be chosen to lead any social or political movement? By what reasoning is an immoral man to be accounted more worthy of leadership than such a woman? Is it replied, "Because public opinion says so"? That may satisfy others, but may not satisfy the Christian. He has to walk, not according to public opinion, but according to the law of Christ, which knows no distinction of sex.

The necessity to direct public attention to this subject has arisen because discussions are rife about the names of the men who shall be the successors to the present leaders of the two great political parties. In the case of the party now in office, there are suggestions of a reconstruction of the Cabinet which shall provide, amongst other things, for the inclusion therein as its chief, and as leader of what is known as the Unionist party, of a lord whose immorality of life is notorious. The generals of the other party are also considering whom they shall regard as the heir to the leadership of their party when a vacancy occurs. When they have decided whom so to regard, they will accustom the minds of their followers to the choice, so that when the time comes for making the election, it may be made with unanimity. At present no decision has been arrived at, but amongst the names which find great favour in the discussions, are the names of men who, by reason of their anti-religious opinions, or of their vicious lives, are quite unfit to lead Christian politicians. In both cases the final decision can be affected from without, only if external pressure is brought to bear immediately. There is no need to mention any name, but a representation of a general nature from all Christian politicians to the party managers, to the effect that they will not accept, under any circumstances, the leadership of an immoral or anti-religious man, will have probably a determining result. The managers of neither party would venture to disregard such a representation. It would destroy the tacit understanding, which seems to exist amongst the party managers, to exclude from their discussions all reference to the religious or anti-religious opinions, or to the private lives, of the men whose claims to leadership they are discussing. Such a representation would have a most valuable influence on our political circles—an influence which would reach other countries, and extend far beyond our time. We earnestly beg our readers who have any position or influence in the political world to accept it as their immediate duty to make this representation, and so raise high the standard of Christian purity in politics.

Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide
In the strife of Truth with Falsehood, for the good or evil side.

* * * *

Then it is the brave man chooses, while the coward stands aside,
Doubting in his abject spirit, till his Lord is crucified.

HOMES FOR THE AGED POOR.

Again we would remind your readers of the Homes for the Aged Poor, and their inhabitants, who need the loving help of the strong and the healthful in the few last years of their pilgrimage. In our eight Homes, 114 persons at present find a refuge; married couples who have climbed life's hill together, widows and widowers who have lost the partners of life's joys and sorrows, and spinsters who have bravely fought the battle alone, all find a home. The charity only offers a room, but the boon is eagerly sought for, and over seventy applicants are now seeking admission.

Last year your readers practically showed their sympathy in the work by supplying a large number of the old folks with coals, and to their liberality may in a great measure be attributed the astonishing fact that only three deaths occurred, in spite of the bitter weather. Often did we wish the donors of the coals could have seen the bright fires, and heard the grateful remarks of the recipients of their bounty. There are ninety inhabited rooms, and each room needs to be supplied with half a ton of coals during the winter months, to secure comfort to its inmate. Many children of the King are in our Homes, waiting the summons to his palace.

The Homes are situated at Minford-gardens, Shepherd's-bush; 65, Walterton-road, St. Peter's-park, Paddington; 25 and 27, St. George's-road, Notting-hill. A report and further particulars may be obtained from Miss Harrison, 5, Grand Acre-terrace, Anerley, S.E. E. G. H.

---

* Juvenal: "We are all easily taught to imitate that which is base and depraved."

CHRISTIAN LIVING.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

I.—THE APPROPRIATION OF CHRIST.

At the beginning of the Christian life, for the most part at least, we try to imitate Jesus Christ. There is Scriptural warrant for our doing so. And the time will never come when we may not look up to Him as our model and ideal, with that eager, longing gaze which must exert something of a transforming influence. But if this be all, we shall find our Christian life one of unutterable disappointment and sorrow. The infinite beauty and glory of our ideal must ever distance our noblest efforts, as the inaccessible heights of the Jungfrau, clad in untrodden snows, rise higher and ever higher above the traveller as he approaches them along the valley at their foot.

In a railway carriage recently I was attracted by the earnest look on the face of a young man who was reading "The Imitation of Christ." Some kinship of spirit drew me to his side, and the conversation naturally opened by a reference to the holy meditations of the almost unknown saint, which have become part of the household literature of the Church. Without depreciating that precious manual of the holy life I ventured to suggest that Imitation alone was insufficient for the purpose we had in view, and that there was a more excellent way.

Years ago, when a lad at school, there was failure in my attempts to imitate with clumsy fingers the smooth copper-plate at the head of my copy-book; nor was there better success in the endeavour to imitate the finished drawing placed upon the easel; and the captain of the school could throw cricket-ball and hammer for almost as many yards, as the slender arms of his imitator could throw them feet. Yes, and as year after year I have tried to imitate the matchless glories of Jesus Christ, there has been the same weary sense of failure, beneath which heart and hope have sunk down baffled and disappointed.

There is another word, which carries with it the inspiration of a new hope, and speaks of the possibilities of faith—the word Appropriation. Let us not be content with the effort to imitate Christ; let us appropriate Him, as the flowers of spring and the fruits of autumn appropriate the properties of the sap and dew and balmy air, and all the glorious forces that lie hid in sunbeams.

This thought is Scriptural.—What is it but another way of expressing the Apostle's exhortation to put on the Lord Jesus Christ? (Rom. xiii. 14). In Him, by the good pleasure of the Father, all fulness dwells, that we might receive of it grace upon grace; and that reception is but another term for appropriation. In giving us his Son the Father hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness; but that gracious provision avails us nothing until we claim and appropriate it by a living faith. The promises are all ours; but they are vain until we lay upon them the hand of appropriating proprietorship; and, as heirs, enter upon our inheritance. All true faith must have in it this thought of appropriation. We first know by hearing what are our glorious privileges and rights. Then we reckon that the record is true. And finally, we begin to use that which has been so freely given. Like the pilgrim-saints of olden days, "we are persuaded of them and embrace them."

This thought is also confirmed by experience.—A little group of earnest men were gathered not long ago around a fire, eagerly discussing the methods of a holy life, and reciting their own experiences of the grace of God. One had recently entered upon the gladness of a life of entire consecration, and spoke fervently of his new-found joys. But when his story was told, a venerable clergyman expressed his disappointment at an experience which was only negative, and told so little of the positive side of the appropriation of Christ.

Years before, when engaged in a gathering of unruly and noisy children, he had been suddenly driven to claim from the Saviour the gift of his own gentle patience, in the words, "Thy patience, Lord." And instantly so divine a calm filled his spirit that he realised that he had made a great discovery. And from that moment he had retained the extremes of his brief petition, inserting between them the grace, the lack of which was hurrying him to sin. In moments of weakness, "Thy strength, Lord;" or in moments of conscious strength, "Thy humility, Lord." When assailed by unholy suggestions, "Thy purity, Lord;" or when passing through deep waters of trial, "Thy resignation and restfulness, Lord." What is this but a living example of the appropriation of Christ?

This thought would light up the darkest, saddest life.—We sadly chide ourselves for our failures, and yet we are oppressed by the weary consciousness that we are all too likely to repeat them. We catch glimpses of ideals, in the lives of others, and in our own happier moments, that only mock us. We fail to adorn the Gospel of God our Saviour in all things, because we lack the materials for the beautiful garments of our array. And all this because we do not realise that all of Jesus is for us; only waiting for us to appropriate it with exceeding joy.

Jesus Christ is an Armoury, in which hang armour for defence, and weapons for attack. Blessed is he who has learned to enter the sacred arsenal, to gird on the breastplate and helmet, and to lay his hand to spear and sword! He is a Banqueting-house, in which the tables groan beneath the weight of all that is needed for the supply of appetite and the gratification of taste. Blessed is he who makes free of the rich provision, and comes to it whenever he needs! He is a Surgery stored with all manner of restoratives and blessed elixirs; nor lacks an ointment for every wound, a cordial for every faintness, a remedy for every disease. Blessed is he who is well skilled in heavenly pharmacy, and knoweth how to avail himself of his healing virtues! He is the Jewel-room in which the graces of the Christian are held in strong and safe keeping. Blessed is he who knows which is the key to the massive doors, so that he can go in and out at his will, and array himself in "whatsoever things are lovely, and whatsoever things are of good report"! With burning words like these the saintly heart expatiates on the fulness of Christ. But, after all, how inadequate the words are to express all the rapture, the strength, the grace, which become the spending-money of the man who has learnt to appropriate the Lord Jesus. He moves from the attic into comfortable apartments. He becomes a first-class traveller by the most luxurious route. He no longer laments his leanness, but cries with the ring of a new hope, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

It is difficult, nay impossible, to employ words sufficiently emphatic, or burning, to enforce this habit of Christ-appropriation on Christian hearts. Suffice it to say that it would be as life from the dead for many who read these lines and whose life has been a series of disappointments. Let us work it out in one or two directions, as suggested by the Apostle when he says: "Of Him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption" (1 Cor. i. 30). Let us

(1) Appropriate Christ as our Wisdom.—Many true Christians find it difficult to know the will of God. They long to do it, if only they knew it; but it is hidden from their eyes. "Should I move to another town?" "Should I take such a step in business?" "Should I enter into such a partnership, or ally myself with such an enterprise?" "Should I embark in this new branch of Christian activity?" Such questions are constantly arising and pressing for an answer in all our lives, and as they do so they excite the instant inquiry, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?"

But how may we know God's will? That is not always easy. Yet the difficulty is not in Him. He does not wish us to grope painfully in the dark. Nay, He is ever giving us many signs and hints as to the way we should take, too delicate to be perceived by the coarse eye of sense, but clear enough to those who are divested of self-will and pride, and only anxious to know and do the holy and acceptable and perfect will of God.

It is a mistake to seek a sign from heaven; to run from counsellor to counsellor; to cast a lot; or to trust to some chance coincidence. Not that God may not reveal his will thus; but because it is hardly the behaviour of a child with its Father. There is a more excellent way. Let the heart be quieted and stilled in the presence of God; weaned from all earthly distractions and worldly ambitions. Let the voice of the Son of God hush into perfect rest the storms that sweep the lake of the inner life, and ruffle its calm surface. Let the whole being be centred on God Himself. And then, remembering that all who lack wisdom are to ask it of God, and that Jesus Christ is already made unto us wisdom, let us quietly appropriate Him, in that capacity, by faith; and then go forward, perhaps not conscious of any increase of wisdom, or able to see far in front; but sure that we shall be guided, as each new step must be taken, or word spoken, or decision made. It is an immense help in any difficulty to say, "I take thee, Lord Jesus, as my wisdom," and to do the next thing, nothing doubting; assured that He will not permit those who trust in Him to be ashamed.

(2) Let us appropriate Christ as our Righteousness.—It is not necessary to convince the readers of these lines that they need a righteousness, in whose stainless white they may stand accepted before the Holy Father. That, alas! is but too apparent. Conscious of our nakedness and sin, we once sought to establish our own righteousness, stitching together the fig-leaves, which died as we plucked them, and became sere and shrivelled. But since then we have submitted ourselves to the righteousness of God, which is by faith. There is often, however, an apparent doubt in Christian hearts as to their relation to that righteousness; and they do not realise that, whether they feel it or not, it is, nevertheless, covering them, in all its radiant beauty. Yet this is so, for in the thought of God every believer is arrayed in the beauteous dress of the Saviour's finished work. "It is UPON all them that believe" (Rom. i. 22). There is only one kind of faith; and directly it is exercised, though amid many doubts and fears, the believer is justified, accepted in the Beloved, and accounted not only as forgiven, but as righteous in the sight of God. This is so, whether it be realised or not.

Now the first moment of faith is the time when we begin to appropriate the righteousness of Christ. At first it is with trembling hands that we gird ourselves in the dress that cost our Lord so much. We fear, as we enter the most holy place, and stand where angels worship; but, as the days pass on, and we learn more of its efficiency, its adaptation to our need, and its preciousness in the sight of God, we become more assured of our position, and notwithstanding repeated failures in the past, the misgivings of nature, and the taunts of hell, we have boldness to enter into that which is within the veil.

Jesus Christ has been made to us righteousness by God; but He needs to be appropriated by faith when we are first convinced of sin, and ever after, when conscious of our worthlessness and guilt. How triumphant the ejaculation, "Jesus, I flee unto Thee to hide me; I appropriate Thee as my righteousness before God!"

(3) Let us appropriate Christ as our Sanctification.—Sanctification is separation. Separation from sin. Separation to God, to the point of devotion. There often arises before us the vision of a devoted life; such a life as Jesus lived, whose only thought was to do the will of God. To recognise God as the sole source of holiness. To lean on Him and to listen for his voice within the heart as the sole and sufficient guide. To live apart from the restless aims and fretting ambitions of men. To be separate from sin—holy, harmless, and without rebuke. To keep ever in touch with God and his thoughts and aims. To obey him at all hazards and costs. To be the channel through which the river of God may flow down into earth's desert places, making them rejoice and blossom—ah, what an ideal is here!

Yet at first this ideal mocks us sorely. It is high, we cannot attain unto it. And we shall be beaten by repeated failures until we learn the secret, which is just now our chosen theme. Apart from that, there is nothing for us, but sadly to renounce the bright vision as impossible, though perhaps reserved for saintly hearts which spend their time in cloistered piety.

But it is brought within the range of the humblest and weakest disciple, who renounces all hope of realising it through nature's efforts, and who appropriates Christ as an all-sufficient sanctification. Trust the Holy Spirit to work in you a perpetual remembrance of the Lord Jesus, and then avail yourself of Him in all his offices and work. And, amongst other aspects, be sure to appropriate Him as your sanctification. When tempted to cross the line of separation, or to relax the energy of your devotion, look upward, and say, "Be Thou to me in fact that which the Father has already made Thee, in possibility and by right, my Sanctification."

(4) Let us appropriate Christ as our Redemption.—We have been redeemed from the curse of the law, because He was made a curse for us. But we long to be redeemed from the power of sin. "The good we would, we do not; the evil we would not, we do." And this desire shall be met, because it would not be like our God to leave us to the mercy of the strong Pharaoh-like foes, which have made us serve under cruel bondage for so long. He must come down to deliver us. Ah! what joyful news it is that He has done so, and has provided a sufficient deliverance in Jesus, who is made unto us Redemption.

But this redemption awaits our appropriation, as the flowers of spring await the hand of the flower-girl; or as the deliverance wrought for the Jews by Mordecai awaited their personal action, which made it their own. From this moment give up your own strivings and endeavours, and take Christ as your deliverance from all the sins which have broken your peace, and cursed your joy. When the oppressor approaches you, when the old habit seeks to assert itself, when easily besetting sin begins to weave its snare about you, or suddenly to assault; then look up to the Saviour, and say, "I appropriate thee as my redemption in this my hour of need"; and certainly, He will not fail thee, and the victory shall be sure.

A lady travelling in the Southern States, after President Lincoln had proclaimed the freedom of the slaves, found a black woman, who was acting as a slave, because she did not know that her race was free. She had heard rumours, which her owner and others had denounced as lies. But as soon as she knew that she was free she appropriated her freedom, and went forth into liberty. Let it be clearly understood that the Son has made us free, who bear his name; let us avail ourselves of our right, and go forth into the glorious liberty of the sons of God.

This is the secret, then, of a glad and victorious life, unshadowed by cloud or defeat; Jesus Christ for all who believe; in all his offices of work; awaiting only the appropriation of the tiniest or most trembling hand, stretched out towards Him in expectation of faith.

In our next we will consider Christ's proprietorship.

◆

EMMANUEL CHURCH, WIMBLEDON.

Dear Sir,—May I ask your readers to join with me in praise to God for his great mercies to us in this place. A ten days' mission, conducted by Mr. W. Spencer Walton in our church room, has proved a season of remarkable blessing. We know not whether the spirits of the glorified are allowed to know of additions to the Church on earth, but I can imagine nothing that would give greater joy to my predecessor here, the late Rev. Clarmont Skrine, than to hear of the abundant return for his faithful labours of many years granted in this mission alone. Truly at such a season as this sowers and reapers rejoice together.

Nor has the blessing been confined to our own congregation. Night after night the people came, some walking through the rain for two and three miles, until Sunday evening. While I preached in a church crowded to inconvenience, Mr. Walton held an overflow meeting in the adjoining hall, at which every seat was occupied. The deep conviction of sin, the solemnity of the Divine dealing, the widespread awakening, and the very many who have either professed to give themselves to Christ or have entered upon a closer walk with God have warranted us in so saying, as many have said: "This is not a mission; it is a revival."

We bless God that his servant's steps have been guided to us, and we believe that eternity alone will reveal the extent and permanence of the work that he has been permitted to accomplish in our midst.—Faithfully yours, in Christ's service,

Edward W. Moore.

COUNT CAMPELLO'S WORK IN ITALY.—It is a little over a year since Count Campello commenced his mission in Umbria, and the report of the work is very encouraging. The Count hopes shortly to commence regular services at Terni. At Arrone, the headquarters of the Mission, the work of evangelisation is progressing satisfactorily. From Ferentillo the accounts are also encouraging. The minister in charge has opened a school, at which thirty children regularly attend.

HUMAN AND DIVINE LAW.

By Mr. F. W. CROSSLEY.

From an Address to the National Vigilance Association.

Speaking at Newcastle, the Lord Chief Justice lately said:—

> If a man and a woman of full age and competent understanding chose to sin against the law of God, the law of man could not—nay, he would go further, and say the law of man ought not to interfere, because his interference would often cause much more mischief than it would prevent.

The Lord Chief Justice is a very eminent man, and to venture to differ from him may be thought both foolish and dangerous; yet when he deliberately tells us that our law should not generally interfere with adult vice—vice committed by persons of competent understanding—I for one must say what I can on the opposite side. I am not sure that many of us will feel that I am either wise or right in going to the extreme which my words have thus suggested. But I am here to-night because this Society, though, perhaps, it may be far from sharing my views, is at any rate further on the way toward them than other groups of men that hold the reins of power.

You want things done by law which as yet are left undone, and you have succeeded—or persons who shared in forming this Society have succeeded—in getting much done which a few years back was hardly peeping above the horizon of the practical.

Therefore, I am with you. I rejoice in the piece of loaf you have secured, but I shall not be satisfied until you have got the whole loaf—that whole which the great Legislator put on the ancient statute-book when he wrote, "Thou shalt not commit adultery."

I wonder, ladies and gentlemen, whether that is narrow or broad? Plenty will say it is idiotic; but plenty of people have always said that everything right is idiotic. I do not ask them, but I ask you, Why should the seventh commandment be dropped in despair, and the eighth adopted by our legislators with confidence? To the mind of Him who had the ordering of the famous code to which I referred, evidently the seventh was the more important of the two. He gave it precedence. Yet to enact it, and make sexual vice criminal, would, says the Lord Chief Justice, cause much more mischief than it would prevent. His lordship's words may be understood in ways which are outside my imagination and knowledge; yet, notwithstanding this, the responsibility of such an utterance seems to me immeasurable. I would not teach men so for the wealth of worlds.

How can we omit the seventh command from our criminal legislation, while adopting the eighth, without giving a tacit sanction to adultery? What shall be thought of us for praying Sunday after Sunday, "Incline our hearts to keep this law," and deliberately effacing it at the same time from the national Statute Book? We willingly follow theft to its most distant ramifications, ferreting it from its last hiding place; but the commonest—and worst because the commonest—breach of the seventh commandment (albeit it entails an aggregate of unspeakable, inevitable misery) we pass by with indifference and often with toleration.

If we left out theft as well as adultery we might have something to say for ourselves; we might say, "force is no remedy"; but to pick and choose in this way is, to my mind, morally impossible and morally contemptible. To omit, and to emphasise the omission by outspoken approval, in the eyes of many virtually sanctions the offence, be our reasons what they may.

But let me try to trace these reasons, so-called, that seem to warrant the toleration we extend to impurity. No man willingly consents to being robbed, while adulterous persons do mutually consent. Therefore we think, or we try to fancy we think, that we should let them alone. We say, "They hurt themselves only, so it is no business of ours." But is this true? Does not this sin bring into the world other and non-consenting parties? Are not the children born of adultery placed in the most cruel circumstances? Do they not inherit adulterous tendencies? Are we not, by refusing to legislate, responsible for their inheritance? Are they not, by their circumstances, exposed in an exceptional degree to the fall which overtook their parents? And, further, though this point is relatively small, are they not continually flung on the community to support? A great part of our gaols and police, and workhouses and asylums of many sorts, is the price the community pays in mere money for its outrageous neglect; together with the sight of the heart-broken, sin-stricken mothers, ruined and starving:—

Over the brink of it;
Picture it, think of it,
Dissolute man.

No, not "dissolute man," but pure-minded men and women. Oh! think of it, and bring it to an end.

But the Lord Chief Justice says that we ought not to interfere, because this interference would often cause much more mischief than it would prevent. "Mischief!" Where would the mischief appear? No doubt it would at once appear in a terrific outcry at Westminster.

The Parliament men of the past could not defend their property with their own hands, so they clubbed together, and had it done by lawyers and policemen. But they could in the main protect their own daughters, while they were not over anxious for the protection of the daughters of their weaker brethren. And there is still a selfish, powerful, "reported," loud-tongued section of the community from whom mischief might be expected, were legislation attempted in this direction. But do we right in holding back on this account? —if on account of them we do hold back. Some of these persons might even abolish the eighth commandment also, if they could as easily protect themselves and their belongings without it as with it. But let the daughters of the strong be as liable to seduction and prostitution as the daughters of the silent, suffering poor, and the seventh commandment, in its widest sense, would stand an excellent chance of immediate appearance as the law of the land.

But no doubt his Lordship saw a mischief which might arise if sexual vice were put down, and which as yet is unmentioned. He would argue, I suppose, that the closing of brothels would add to the danger of respectable women. It is an old and unproved assumption. Everything that I have been able to discover points in the opposite direction. To make this assertion is almost equal to stating that vice is a necessity. I pass it by with the strongest conviction that it is untrue. But I have also opposing facts to allege. In both Glasgow and Manchester a vast proportion of these houses have been closed, and during the process the illegitimacy returns have been compared. They showed no increase, rather the reverse. But had respectable women been victimised clearly they should have increased. No, to my mind it is clear that the less temptation is presented, the less sin will be committed. I say this, just as I would say the fewer spiders' webs the fewer flies will be caught.

Therefore, I trust that, instead of resting content with our present intolerable level, and arguing that to change to greater or entire legal restriction would lead to worse mischief, we shall press on. Can we be content to-day with less than sufficed many thousands of years ago? It may be that so vast a restoration cannot at once be made, but to aim at less is simple ruin. Nothing is so important as the setting up of the true standard. Nor can anything more immediately affect our practice. For such reasons I venture to press these considerations upon you.

Say you are willing to let men and women break the seventh commandment in the main without interference, and you abandon principle and you abandon God. After that, all repressive legislation becomes a mere matter of expediency and compromise. At times you may win a point, but as often you will lose, or oftener. The devil is better at a bargain than the saint any day. You will seldom, for example, get anything out of the wine-drinker for the cure of the drunkard, even though the said wine-drinker himself may never get drunk. You must go to the teetotaller if you want money or help for the cure of the drunkard. The other man can't see the thing plain enough, and he is sometimes afraid of having to part with his own little drop. For my part I see the hideous curses of both drink and adultery, and I say, Have them out, root and branch, by every power that can be brought to bear upon them. Sins are all of one family. They are most closely related. The adulterous man is very likely to be a thief, and the drunkard an adulterer. Neither of them will control himself in any direction with certainty. I am for no compromise with any of them. I go for "total abolition," and for the seventh commandment.

This being the principle, progress will be made. No time will be lost in debating where the line shall be drawn. And, having settled it in my own mind, if not in yours, permit me to add a few words about London.

London, being the biggest town in the Empire, has the responsibility of setting the fashion for the rest to a grave extent. I think what is taking place in your Metropolis should open the eyes of the people to the fallacy of the Lord Chief Justice's teaching. Strange, indeed, if much more mischief could arise from a general and determined opposition on the part of the poor to vice of all sorts; though not at all strange if, forbidding only some of its grossest manifestations, you sanction its commonest orgies. How it is that your London police allow brotheldom to reign unchecked, and leave it to the action of private individuals to put down a few of the worst houses here and there, you know best yourselves.

Manchester is quite bad enough. It has its horrors, too; but I am thankful to say that there the police and our Vigilance Society work hand in hand. Your secretary had the very cheering report of work done by our various societies, and the record of reduction is no doubt tabulated in his return for this year; but I may perhaps add to this the statistics of the various years since 1882 compiled by our police, showing the numbers of disorderly houses known to them at the close of each period. In 1882—i.e., at the beginning of our crusade—there were 402 houses known to the police. In 1883 these fell to 236. The next year they stood at 157. I am sorry I have mislaid the return for 1885, but that for 1886 is given as 112; and though the figure for the current year is not yet issued, I am told it now stands at 98. So in five years 75 per cent. of the brothels have been closed.

This is a splendid result, considering the amount of work expended in accomplishing it. The officer of our society has been unremitting in his efforts. No better man for the work could, I think, have been found. The police know, and the best of them like him. He watches and petitions. They prosecute in all the ordinary cases, and together the result is what you see. Our officer's initiative has been given in sixty-nine convicted cases during the last twelve months. Without the cheerful action of the police no such result would be possible. All honour to them for it. They also have taken the initiative in many cases outside the sixty-nine.

But we shall not be content with it, good as it is. It has but afforded ample proof of what can be done, and consequently imposes the responsibility of going on to the end.

One thing more only may I add. It is to express my own thankfulness to Mr. W. T. Stead for the splendid service which he has rendered personally, and also through the journal which he edits so ably. His plan of publicity has been criticised and attacked by many, but it is the right plan for all that. It is, moreover, the only plan. The past gives the history of the opposite method of silence. If the present be better, it is due to publicity and the pillory he has invented for exceptional vice. Some are mourning the pollution of young minds and young hearts which they lay to his charge. But for my part, I can see but little danger in tearing the tinsel gossamer from vice, and showing to everyone the filthy garments which are worn below. While tricked out in its flaunting finery, our critics can see no danger; but it is just there, in the lewd though gorgeous dance, and the degrading play and song, that the danger lies. To know to what this leads cannot defile. Knowledge is not necessarily defilement, nor is purity mere ignorance of vice. Pure-mindedness in this world is best shown by a struggle against vice. Those who never heard a whisper about the infamies amid which so many dwell—living as in hell—are either pure or impure. They are not tried yet; they may be anything. True purity is shown by resistance, and by resistance alone. Purity, in short, depends exclusively on what you like—not upon what you know. If vice in its hideousness, stripped of every gilded lie, can make men like it, then all such publication should be abandoned. But the danger is not there. Publish its real character and consequences. That will make it possible to put it down.

PORTSMOUTH AND ALEXANDRIA.

Our object in linking together these two world-renowned places d'armée, is again to draw attention to Miss Robinson's splendid mission amongst our soldiers and sailors there. Her work is amongst our men of war, it is true; but it is one of mercy—of binding up wounds; and thereby she has won a place, all her own, in thousands of hearts. The Soldiers' Institute, established thirteen years ago, and the Sailors' Welcome, the eighth report of which is to hand, together with the various organisations connected therewith, have effected a moral transformation in the locality, and in the lives of thousands of our soldiers and sailors.

The anniversary meetings have recently been held, not the least noteworthy of these being Miss Robinson's own Monday evening class, numbering about eighty. The report also states that "the prosperity granted this year has been chiefly in spiritual things. All the meetings have been well sustained in numbers and in interest," and the result of house-to-house visitation, of circulation of Scriptures, &c., has been that "many have been brought to Christ—soldiers, civilians, women, and children." There are no fewer than thirty-three meetings held throughout the week, these embracing a variety of subjects suitable to all classes. Besides religious and temperance meetings, there is a good concert every Tuesday evening, and on Friday evening the large hall is converted into a gymnasium.

Of the Sailors' Welcome Miss Robinson says the business of the house has been carried on with good success, 56,000 beds having been let to men only during the year. The one note not in harmony with so much that is bright and so full of encouragement to Miss Robinson and her fellow-helpers is that there has been a falling off in the donations on account of the Welcome of nearly £450, as compared with the previous year. The Soldiers' Institute also closes the year with a deficit of £1274.

Rev. T. R. Lawrence supplies a most graphic and engrossing account of the work at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Institute, Alexandria, of which he, aided by his wife, has the full charge. His record shows well how carefully the spiritual welfare of the men is watched over.

The love-chain by which these noble institutions are bound together is many-linked, and not the least strong is the system of letter-writing by which Miss Robinson follows her friends to foreign stations on land and sea. The letters are eagerly looked for and greatly prized by those so far from home. Any of the little books concerning this work may be obtained by sending a stamp for postage to the Manager, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth.

ITALIAN PENINSULA MISSION.—Mr. J. S. Anderson writes:—"In a few weeks I am going (D.V.) with Signor Ambrosini, one of my native preachers, to evangelise, beginning near the Alps, and down to Calabria. We shall travel on foot, so as to reach those out of the way parts where no evangelist has been." Mr. Anderson, who is the superintendent of this Mission, is now staying at Glenaiken, New Kilpatrick, N.B.

PRESENT SALVATION.*

By Rev. WILLIAM HASLAM.

At the close of a mission sermon in a suburban church, there were quite a number of anxious souls who lingered behind, seeking direction and encouragement. I had helped some of these inquirers in their difficulties; they had gone away rejoicing, and I was looking about for some one else to speak to me. While I was waiting in the aisle, I observed two gentlemen walking up towards me side by side and step by step. On reaching me they made a kind of official bow. I bowed in return.

"This is the churchwarden," said one of the gentlemen, pointing to the other. I bowed again, whereupon the churchwarden said, "Will you please to walk into the vestry with us, sir?"

I assented, and the gentlemen turned round and marched side by side as before. I followed them, wondering to myself, "What is to happen now?" for in those days bishops and archdeacons did not smile upon missions and mission work, as many of them are doing at the present time.

Arriving at the vestry, I was shown to a chair at the head of the table, and my two friends sat one on each side of me. After a pause, the churchwarden began with some little hesitation, and said, "We are not accustomed to missions here, sir. We never heard of one being held in a church before!"

"That is a very good reason," I replied, "why you should have one now."

"This mission," he continued, "has quite upset me."

Here he came to a stand, and at the end of a brief pause, he whispered in a choking voice, "That gentleman wishes to speak to you."

Accordingly I turned to his friend and said, "What can I do for you?"

"Well, sir," he replied, "if your preaching is right, I am all wrong."

"What makes you think that?" I inquired.

"Why, sir, I am doing my best, and hope to be saved eventually; but you say that is not God's religion, but man's."

"Yes, indeed I do; and I am sure that I am right in saying so."

"Sir," he continued, "I used to be a very worldly man, and I did many things in business which I well knew were not honest. I used to delude the public one way and another, in order to sell my goods. I knew well enough this was not right, and I was often troubled with the thought, 'Surely my sin will one day find me out.' I had a son, sir; he was the idol of my heart. I may say my life was bound up in his. Three years ago he was taken ill—he was dangerously ill. I watched by him, with his mother, day and night. I did not know what I should do if he died. One evening the doctor announced to us that the boy was much worse, and that it was probable he might die before the morning. To all outward appearance this was too true. In my despair, I fell upon my knees, and prayed to God to spare the child's life. I was in an agony of prayer! While I was thus engaged, my wife said, 'My dear, he is going!' I rose up from my knees and came to the bedside. The dear boy was still breathing, but very faintly. I fear I became impatient. I said, 'If God takes that boy, He will have to take me too.'

"For hours we watched anxiously by the side of that sick one, every now and then holding a glass before his mouth to see if he was still breathing. At last he appeared to be sinking. I was in despair—disappointed too, that God did not answer my earnest prayer. I could not bear to see the boy die; so putting on my hat I went out, not knowing whither. Presently I found myself on the pier, and while standing there, the thought of throwing myself into the sea came into my mind. 'As God is taking my boy away, He may as well have me too,' I said to myself. I went to the edge of the pier, but before precipitating myself into the dark waters, another thought came to my mind. It was that I should first of all go home and ascertain whether the boy was really dead. If so, I would certainly come back and do this desperate act.

"On reaching home, I found the dear one was still living. His mother said with great excitement, 'Oh, papa! God has surely answered your prayer. I do believe Edward will recover! He rallied soon after you went out, and asked for a glass of milk. He drank it all, and is now breathing regularly.'

"I felt such joy and thankfulness in my heart, that I knelt down at once to thank God, and at the same time I promised Him I would be a better man. Since that time God has been very good to me. The boy is quite well again, and I have been altogether a different man. We have family prayer, and go to church regularly, and we are communicants."

I was just going to speak, when he began again.

"I assure you, sir, I have given up my bad ways in business; all is now honest and honourable."

"Thank God for that, but——"

"I know what you are going to say," he continued, interrupting me; "you think I am not right yet?"

"You are right as far as you have gone. It is quite right that you should have the form of godliness, though that in itself is not sufficient; you need to have the power also."

"Oh, yes, I understand you. Mr. G—— told me that I had only the baptism of John."

"True," I said, "but you have only the beginning of that. When John the Baptist had prepared the people by repentance, and had baptized them, he pointed them to the Lamb of God for forgiveness. I do not consider that the baptism of John is complete without that. He was sent to bear witness of Christ, not merely to show sinners their sins."

"That is just where I am, too," said the churchwarden, who had been listening in silence to his friend's story. "I have nothing but reformation—not the true repentance which brings a soul to God."

"Then," I said, "you are both in the same case, and need the same instruction. All I can say to you at present is, 'Behold the Lamb of God, which beareth away the sin of the world.' When Andrew and John, who were disciples of John the Baptist, heard these words, they went to Jesus, and became personally acquainted with Him. This is what you both need to do. Do not give up prayer, family worship, church-going, or church ordinances; but rather give your hearts to Him who died to save you, and shed his blood to wash your sins away. Then you will know in your own experience what is the form of godliness, with the power thereof.

"The Prophet Ezekiel prophesied in the valley of dry bones, and as he prophesied, 'There was a noise, and behold, a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone. And when I beheld,' says the prophet, 'lo, the sinews and the flesh came up upon them, and the skin covered them above; but there was no breath in them.' Then the prophet prophesied to the wind, 'And the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army' (Ezek. xxxvii. 7, 8, 10).

"There are many sinners who are like the dead and dry bones in the valley; and how many others there are who are no longer in that disjointed state, but bone has come to bone, and they have, like you, taken a form, and stand up; but they have no life! They need the breath of the Spirit, that they may live. Do not be discouraged, either of you; but 'Behold the Lamb of God!' He bore your sins in his body on the tree. If you believe this in your heart, you will thank Him."

"But how," asked the churchwarden, "am I to know that the Lord Jesus did this for me?"

"I will answer this question by asking you another. How am I to know that He left you out if He bore the sin of the world? If He tasted death for every man, He surely did it for you. Thank Him for what He did; and if you cannot thank Him as well as you could wish, yet thank Him as well as you can in the meantime. Set your face in the direction of believing and thanking."

My friends were evidently perplexed, for they were looking within for some feelings. I continued—

"You cannot feel the forgiveness of your sins while you are working or praying for it. If, instead of asking, you will thank the Lord for what He has done, you will soon believe in your heart, and feel too, that your sins are forgiven. Feeling comes after thinking—not before it. We do not thank God for what we feel, but for what He has done for us. Believers are a thanking people; and what is more, they praise God—that is, they recommend Him to others. When Andrew found the Lord, he went immediately to call his brother Simon; so I would advise you, when you have found the Saviour, to praise Him in this way, by recommending Him at home."

"That was my wife," said one of the gentlemen, "who went out of church praising God just now."

"Thank God for that also. Now I hope that both of you will testify to your son, and bring him to Jesus. You once said that if God took him, He must take you too. Now, if He takes your heart, you must ask Him to take your son's also."

We all three knelt down, and thanked God for sending his Son, and thanked the Son of God for shedding his blood for the remission of sins. We also asked the Lord, by the power of the Holy Spirit, to make the thanksgiving real and true. My two friends after a little time rose up from their knees, praising God with tears of joy, and thanked me most gratefully.

The boy also was brought to Jesus before the mission was over. Since this time, these three, father, mother, and son, have by their life and example shown the blessedness of being believers in the Lord; and our friend the churchwarden is not behind them in zeal and testimony. This is present salvation, to be saved, and to know it—to live in the joy of the Lord, and out of the fulness of our hearts to tell what a salvation it is.

There is all the difference between having a thing and asking for it—between possessing a thing or working in order to attain it at some indefinite future—at death, the judgment-day, or no one knows when.

◆

YOUNG WOMEN IN MARSEILLES.

It will be a pleasure to many of your readers to know that there is a Y.W.C.A. at Marseilles. The president is Mademoiselle Fallot, and she is helped by Mademoiselle Dubus, sister of the late director of the McAll Mission, now at Lyons. A lady has kindly placed her drawing-room at their disposal, until they can rent a room. They venture to ask the sympathy and help of English sisters, and all engaged in the work of befriending young girls. It is not necessary to say how much such an effort is required in a busy city like Marseilles. The treasurer of the Association is Mademoiselle Elise Schreiner, 74, Rue Senac, Marseilles, France.

May I suggest that these sisters and their work should be specially remembered in prayer at meetings of the Y.W.C.A. in London, or by any who may read these lines.

(Madame) M. E. Prinsep.

Hôtel du Petit Louvre, Marseilles.

LATIMER CHURCH, BOW.—There is every indication of our being confronted with an alarming and appalling amount of genuine, honest poverty and distress. Our voluntary workers are reporting many cases of sickening destitution, which our want of funds renders us unable to help. Many families are without bread. In addition to actual gifts of food, fuel, clothing, or money, as the particular case may require, we gladly redeem honest workmen's tools from pawn, pay up club subscriptions, introduce to employment, where possible, induce men and women to take the temperance pledge, and in other ways endeavour to help the poor to help themselves. We are most anxious to help those who are unable to help themselves. (Rev.) J. W. Atkinson.

308, Old Ford-road, London, E.

---

* Extracted from Mr. Haslam's new book, "Gleanings from the Harvest," about to be published by Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

For the Young.

A SERMON TO BOYS.

BY REV. ALEX. WHYTE, D.D., FREE ST. GEORGE'S, EDINBURGH.

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."—Ecc. ix.10.

These are the words of the Preacher, the wise son of King David; and we will talk about the two heads or arms of the text, What we are to do, and how we are to do it. (1) "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do" is our immediate duty, our own personal and proper work. God gives to every man his own proper work; the king reigns, the magistrate administers justice, the merchant buys and sells, the minister is an ambassador of God, the schoolmaster teaches, and the schoolboy learns. Now, my sons, what is the work of the session for you? That is what the text points its finger to; not to something else which you might think better. Every work has its proper season. God's work is all done at the right time; rain, snow, shocks of corn, trees by the rivers of waters—all come in their season. So it ought to be with your work. I have known very clever boys ruined as scholars for all their days because they did not observe this law of nature. They read general literature when they ought to have been at the Greek verb, and dabbled in German philosophy instead of working at their Euclid.

I will give you a bit of my own experience—perhaps it will save some young man here from my mistake. I was born and brought up in a small country town, and I had not your advantages. I was starved for good books. I could not get them. There were no cheap reprints then such as load the booksellers' counters now, and make it possible for a boy to buy some of the finest books out of his pocket-money. So when I went to college I used to come home from the library laden with books, and I read day and night when I should have been working at my lessons. I played the fool then, and pay dearly for it now. I was not idle—that was never my besetting sin; but I had better have been at Veitch's Greek verbs, and Liddell and Scott, and have left literature and theology alone. God has so arranged things that happiness waits on hard work. There is no other way of gaining it.

(2) This duty of ours must be done with all our might. There is something arousing and inspiriting in the words of the text. To see a man or even a beast working with all their might is a fine sight. All the city turns out to see running, or leaping, or rowing; and seeing a horse drawing a load up-hill, or an engine working with its might, rouses within us a strange feeling of sympathy.

We read the description of a sluggard's garden in the Book of Proverbs, and I was reminded of it when it was my duty, the other day, to look over a student's papers. His room was full of note-books, bought, but not even begun, or if they were begun, it was only to the extent of a few pages. The drawers were full of pencilled scraps, torn and illegible. And what about him? Well, he is not at the top of the tree, nor are vacant congregations fighting to have him for their minister. I considered his vineyard well, and I hope I received instruction. There is a lue regard in God's judgments to each man's espective might. To one he may give five alents; to another, just as good, He gives hree; and to another only one. You must remember that our Lord was, and will be, as well pleased with three talents as with five, and would have been as well pleased with one, had it een only used with honesty.

Then, again, might grows even as well-used alents do. Let any boy take this for his life-ext; and though to-day he may be at the foot f his class, because of a slow uptake and a bad nemory, he will yet, before he is an old man, be s able, useful, and respected a man as any. A ving tortoise will outstrip a dead or sleeping are. But we cannot always be toiling; the scythe muse some time want to be sharpened. We must eat, sleep, and rest, if we are to continue to do fruitful work. Yet even on a holiday we will not loiter. I know a good worker by the way he spends his leisure; and a high-spirited, well-directed boy will come back from his holiday with better health, clearer eye, with firmer resolution to work, and with some good boys' books read. The last is fit and seasonable work for a good holiday.

A New Testament text tells us of a great part of God's work, "Believe in Jesus Christ, whom I have sent." Attend early to this work; you know what it is quite well. What will wealth and scholarship profit you if you lose your soul? Whatsoever you find to do in the things of religion do, I beseech you, with all your might, and you will be nobler scholars and better students. Seek first the kingdom of heaven, with all your might. Ask, seek, knock; so run that ye may obtain; and when you pray with all your heart, the business will be settled, and the Lord Jesus will strike a bargain with you. He will have nothing to do with man, woman, or child, who does not give up their heart. Pray like Jacob, who wrestled with his whole soul, like Elijah, like Jesus. You will never be saved in your sleep. When you read, realise what you see, and you will be wiser than all your teachers. See Jerusalem, see the temple, see the Blessed Face. Practise ear and eye and hand and foot to come nearer to Him. Lastly, accustom yourselves to do all for his sake. Give Him thy heart. In the heart are the issues of a happy, gracious, scholarly, and blessed life.—British Weekly.

LETTER FROM A JAPANESE GIRL.

Our young readers will peruse with interest the following letter recently received by Miss V. M. Skinner, of Bath, from a little girl in Japan:—

September 14, 1887.

My Dear Friend,—I was very much pleased to get so many pretty cards and "Friendly Letters." Our principal returned from America in July, and now he is working earnestly for the school. Since the summer vacation many pupils have come to the school, and there are 185 girls here. The school begins from twenty minutes past eight o'clock in the morning and continues until half past four o'clock in the afternoon. We have only forty minutes rest; then we sleep a little while. I am studying the Fourth Reader, geography, and arithmetic in English, besides Bible, Japanese, and Chinese lessons.

I want to write to you about Japanese children. When a child is born it is named within seven days. After thirty days the mother of the baby or some other woman takes the baby to the temple or idol, and prays for the baby's health. For about two years the mother gives her baby only milk; then by and by she gives him food. When the child becomes six or seven years old the parents send him to the school, and generally the Japanese boys study until about twenty-three years old. But most girls study for about five years because their parents think that it is unnecessary to make their girls learned ladies, and when the girls become almost seventeen or eighteen years old they get married. The reason is, the women are despised by men, and they treat the women like horses and cows. But now there are many people improving in education. We can come to the school and receive education, so we are very happy.

One day there was a fearful earthquake here. We were very much frightened. The day following was Sunday, and we went to church, and heard about the earthquake from our minister. He told us that somewhere there were 23 pupils in one school, and four Christians among them. One day, when they were studying their lessons in a room, the earthquake came. The pupils who were not Christians were very much frightened, and went out of the doors, but the pupils who were Christians were not frightened at all, and studied in the room. Then the pupils who went out asked, "How can you stay there?" The pupils who were Christians answered, "We are not frightened, because God will help us." After it was over, the pupils who were not Christians repented of their sins, and became Christians. So they were every day praying to God.

I wanted to write you a longer letter, but I am very busy with my lessons, and have no time, therefore please excuse me. I have studied English only two years, and cannot write very well. I am thirteen years of age.—Your little Japanese friend, Sada Hayashi.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sunday, November 20, 1 Peter iii. 1—12; Monday, November 21, 1 Peter iii. 13—22; Tuesday, November 22, 1 Peter iv. 1—11; Wednesday, November 23, 1 Peter iv. 12—19; Thursday, November 24, 1 Peter v. 1—14; Friday, November 25, 2 Peter i 1—11; Saturday, November 26, 2 Peter i. 12—21.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. T. Sayer, Kensal-green Mission Room, Appleford-road, Nov. 13—18; Holland-street Schools, Blackfriars, Nov. 27 to December 2; Emmanuel Church Schools, West-end, Hampstead, December 5—9. Mr. Josiah Spiers, Willesden, Nov. 19—25. Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Harrogate, November 13—19; Liverpool and Southport, Nov. 20—27. Mr. Seagrove, Mission Room, Balls Pond, Nov. 21—25. Mr. Rickards, Longton, Staffs., December 11—15. Mr. Hankinson, Wandsworth, Nov. 18; Godalming, Nov. 25. Mr. Martin J. Hall, Higham Ferrers, November 16; Wellingboro', November 17; St. Neots, November 18—21. Messrs. J. Spiers, Martin J. Hall, H. Hutchinson, and others, General Mission, Paddington, Harrow-road and Kensal Town, November 27 to December 9.

Y.M.C.A., BRIXTON.—Mr. G. E. Williams, of Peterborough, Ontario, has accepted the secretaryship of this branch. He was welcomed to his new sphere at a social meeting on November 10.

SNOWDROP BAND.—In a recent paragraph with respect to this Band the idea was conveyed that this was a new society, formed for the purposes stated. It is merely an effort to unite those working among the young and to encourage the formation of these bands in schools, clubs, classes, &c. It is not intended for those not so occupied. Further information and cards may be had, as stated, from Mrs. Watson, Southwold, Sheffield.

EAST LONDON PROTESTANT YOUTHS' MISSION.—Sir,—We have a large hall, in which Bible-classes are conducted, and free and open services held every Sunday. At the present time we are making an effort to provide extra sitting accommodation, so that our adult work may be extended by means of lectures, public meetings, &c. Some of your readers may have by them some spare Bibles for which they have no particular use. They would be of very great service to our work.

L. W. L. Jones, Hon. Supt.

Salisbury Mission Hall, 400, Old Ford-road, E.

Y.M.C.A., MASSACHUSETTS.—The annual Convention of Associations of this State was lately held at Southbridge, Mass. According to the report to hand, the business of the Convention was carried on with great vigour, among the leading spirits being Mr. Russell Sturgis, Jun., and Mr. H. M. Moore, of Boston. A somewhat novel method was adopted in collecting subscriptions for the State work of the next year. A blackboard on the platform was marked off into squares or blocks, each representing a certain sum. As promises were received, the blocks were erased. Mr. Sankey was present at several of the sessions, and sang some of his newest songs, much to the delight of those assembled.

WORKING BOYS IN LONDON.—"Haddo House" has been transferred from the Borough to 88, Blackfriars-road. These premises were formally opened and dedicated on Monday last by Mr. George Williams, on behalf of the committee and friends of the "Homes for Working Boys in London." It contains sleeping accommodation for sixty boys, thirty-five of the beds being at present occupied. There are also comfortable reading and recreation rooms, and with such respected and tender-hearted superintendents as Mr. and Mrs. Craig (who have occupied the position for eleven years) everything conduces to make it as much like "a home away from home" as possible. Such institutions, of which the committee have now eight, are a great boon to boys who are not earning sufficient wages to pay for ordinary lodging (4s. 6d. covering food and lodging), whilst the good influences surrounding them mould their young lives for good.

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES.

On Monday evening, last week, as already announced, a most enthusiastic welcome was accorded to Dr. Barnardo on his return from the West. Many warm friends of the work were there to join in the greeting, while, of course, there was a fine array of the inmates of the various Homes in London and at Ilford.

The arrangement of the hall would seem to have been effected by a landscape gardener. On the platform above and below the speakers were the boys (above seventeen years) of the Labour House. In their midst was a standard bearing the words, "Hip, hip, hip, hurrah! Dr. Barnardo is home!" On the left gallery were the boys of Stepney and the little boys of Leopold Home, with their standards—"Stepney Boys welcome you back!" and "Leopold Little Boys are right glad to see you again!" On the right gallery were the girls—"Sturge House gives you hearty greeting!" and "Your Girls at Ilford rejoice at your return!" The audience packed the area and the galleries unoccupied by the boys and girls, and across the hall was hung in large letters, "Welcome back to the Castle!"

The chairman and speakers on entering were greeted with a blast of music from the brass band. Then, after prayer by Rev. D. B. Hankin, the choir sang "We've sighted the Golden Gate!" The handbell ringers played "Home, sweet Home!" All was excellently performed. Pipers were announced, and to the surprise and pleasure of the audience a band of six smart little fellows in Highland costume marched on to the platform playing on their bagpipes "The Campbells are coming!" They were enthusiastically—not to say violently—encored.

This meeting strikingly manifested one special feature of this work—its thoroughness. From the architecture of the building to the shoestring of the youngest child, every detail is a study and a success.

Mr. Gurney Sheppard presided, and in a brief but very warm speech gave the Doctor a hearty welcome in the name of the meeting.

On rising to speak Dr. Barnardo had quite an ovation. He plunged straightway into a fireside chat upon his three months' wanderings. In 1884, he said, he had gone to Canada with the object of testing the emigration work he had begun only a few years previously. In August last he went out to deepen and widen that work, with all the encouragement of a successful experiment behind him. Since 1884, and as the outcome of the first visit, they had trebled the rate at which the emigrants were sent out, and now he found a warmer welcome than ever ready in the Dominion for all the "right sort" that they could continue to send there. What had led, under God, to such a successful issue? Well, they had made it a foundation principle never to send out any lads or lasses who were not likely to become good citizens; and they resolved never to lose sight of an emigrant after he or she left their sheltering care. Since the Homes began to emigrate, 2643 young people had been sent out. How many had failed? So far as he could learn, and he believed the statement was perfectly accurate, nineteen only had failed; in other words $99\frac{3}{5}$ per cent. had succeeded. Sad to think, that very night there were thousands of hapless and forlorn little ones in the streets of London without a home and without a friend; over in Canada there were millions of acres waiting for just such a population as they could send them. What could the nation be about that did not set itself to putting this wrong right?

Since last January 4861 miserable children had applied at the doors of the Institutions. Of course, all were not eligible; but they had admitted 1458. Over three hundred had been added to the inmates out of 1400 applications received during his absence. "I do, from my heart," he continued, "feel more deeply than I can tell you that the work we have done is nothing compared to that which requires to be done, and which we must yet do. Where are we going to stop? I don't know! That is not my business. Till the misery and wretchedness and the horrors of this great city are alleviated, every man of us here that has a heart for Christ's work must say, 'We will go on and do our best to rescue and save little children, and if we cannot do all we would, we must, and by God's help will, do what we can.'"

Illustrating his remarks by a large map suspended over the platform, Dr. Barnardo announced the acquisition of the long-talked-of Industrial Farm near Birth, Shell River, Manitoba, "7400 acres of the fairest land in the whole Dominion;" a house to accommodate 80 great fellows was already building there. The Labour House lads, who are (D.V.) to furnish the first draft in the spring of next year, now, by direction, exhibited themselves, and their excellent appearance was loudly applauded. "It is not possible," the Doctor stated, for their encouragement, "for a lad such as one of these, if honest and industrious and sober, to be otherwise than successful in Manitoba. I mean, by God's help," he went on, "so to extend the work of the Labour House, that it will be the fault of any destitute lad of that age (from 17 to 20), throughout this great Metropolis, if he remains destitute."

Proceeding to speak of the condition of things among the emigrants as he found them, the Doctor illustrated by actual instances the success which has attended former lads. One of them to whom he paid a visit, and who went out in 1878, now owned 320 acres of land and a considerable amount of stock. Even as a matter of political economy, it would abundantly pay to send out our workless young men under certain conditions to become the backbone of a thriving country like Canada. There was a certain opposition to emigration, but that was partly because the wrong class of men had been sent out, and so discredited the movement, and partly because of the unreasoning prejudice of mechanics in the large towns who would not distinguish between good and bad systems. Statements had been made in the Press by such agitators as the latter to the effect that "the reformatories and hospitals of Canada were crowded with the arab boys and the guttersnipes sent out by Dr. Barnardo," and the speaker proceeded to show how, inch by inch, and by the laborious inspection of every reformatory and hospital in the large Canadian cities, he had absolutely disproved the assertion, and won the editors of the Press over to declare that there was not an atom of foundation for the charge.

The Doctor concluded his long and interesting discursive chat by an earnest and touching appeal on behalf of his more than two thousand young inmates of the English Homes, at present "the largest family in the world." He always wanted money, of course; but he knew that his work in this respect had been a ministry of mercy to many among the richest of the land. They wanted to widen the door, and extend their resources. He was sure that their good ship would not founder, for it had the Great Pilot on board. Whatever was the future development of the work, he would strenuously strive to make it not a merely humanitarian bit of philanthropy, but to keep Jesus Christ to the forefront in all their doings.

Mr. R. C. Morgan carried the audience with him in asserting that they would all help him as much as they possibly could, for they had their share, every one of them, in the responsibility for these dear boys and girls who were dying in the streets of London. "With all my heart, and with all our hearts," he added, "we say, God bless him and enable him to carry on his work increasingly for many, many long years." Rev. W. H. Langhorne, M.A., Dr. Heywood Smith, and Rev. D. B. Hankin, added their quota to the welcome that, as Mr. Langhorne said, pervaded the very air of the Castle.

IDIOTS AT EARLSWOOD.

It is not so many years since the lot of these afflicted brethren and sisters was sad and painful in the extreme. They were the butts for the folly and scorn of the thoughtless and evil-disposed, and very often were treated with great cruelty by their own parents and others nearest to them. Then there was no asylum to which they could be sent with the knowledge that they would be well and kindly cared for and treated in accordance with their individual needs.

The change in the treatment of these poor creatures whose lives were thus blighted, and the opening of a house on Highgate-hill in which these better principles of treatment were first illustrated, were greatly due to the exertions of the late Dr. Reed, whose name will be ever associated with the great work of which this was as but the acorn to the oak. The triumphs here were not a few, and eight years later (in 1855) the palatial building at Earlswood, near Redhill, Surrey, was opened. Here hundreds of patients, rich and poor, have since been received. The results have been satisfactory to an extent that exceeded expectation. Numbers, after passing through the schools, have attained considerable proficiency in various trades, and, after a five or seven years' residence, have been quite able to earn their own living. The schoolmistress speaks of one who, having learnt to read and write well, is "employed as school monitor in the morning, and assists in the wardrobe in the afternoon."

Many other cases might be cited, showing how those of whom once nothing could have been hoped have, by careful attention and training, become not only able to keep themselves, but possessed of considerable aptitude in more ways than one. Of course, there are deeper depths in idiocy than that reached by those to whom these remarks apply. But for all there is the same watchful care and supervision suited to each particular case. A visit to Earlswood on a fête day is an event never to be forgotten.

As illustrating the extent of the vast organisation which has the management of those who here find a refuge from the world, it may be sufficient to state that there are no fewer than one hundred and seventy-eight employés engaged in the work. At the election in April fifty cases were elected, this being double the usual number, and at the election just held thirty-five more were elected, six being part-payment cases, and the others ordinary ones.

For a full description of this magnificent asylum, we cannot do better than refer our readers to the pamphlet entitled "All about Earlswood," from the facile pen of "Christopher Crayon," which may be had of the Secretary, 36, King William-street, London-bridge, E.C.

THE UNEMPLOYED.—The winter philanthropic work in connection with the Working Men's Mission, Collingwood-street, New-cut, was fitly inaugurated last week with a substantial meat tea to about three hundred and fifty unemployed artizans and labourers. The repast, the expense of which was defrayed by Mr. Pearce, of Farringdon-street, was partaken of in the large upper room of the Mission. The company afterwards adjourned to the lower hall, where a public meeting was held, under the presidency of Mr. Frank A. Bevan.

PARIS GOSPEL MISSION.—This Mission, which was founded in 1878 by Prof. and Mdme. Delaunay, has been greatly blessed in bringing sinners to God. Many of the converts are now labouring in other parts of France, and some have gone even further afield to other lands. A recent convert now living in Auvergne writes to the Professor:—"Thank God that my wife and I went to hear you preach. We had no belief in God whatever, but that evening you spoke so clearly of Christ's great love that I felt myself a poor lost sinner. I am another man to-day. I feel as if I have something to live for." This is but the expression of many hearts which have been thus changed. In a city like Paris every such work is deserving of the warmest support, and the district in which this Mission is situated is one of the hardest in the capital. The address of the Mission is 6, Rue Beuret, Vaugirard, Paris.

MISS MITTENDORFF'S ORPHANS.

Dear Sir,—During this month, for twenty years, you have been good enough to call attention to the annual gathering of the friends of Miss Mittendorff's Home for Destitute and Deserted Children, at Epsom. Those who have attended the meetings must not only have a pleasant recollection of the interesting details of the work given by our sister, but will remember how greatly their faith has been strengthened by her thrilling accounts of the Lord's interposition to supply the daily needs of the hundred little ones under her care. The strain has, however, told greatly upon her weak body, so that she has been ordered to the Continent, that she might be removed from the anxiety which such a large undertaking naturally brought upon her.

Her absence has, of course, necessitated some changes, such as the giving up of the London office in Aberdeen-place; but I am happy to say that her valuable helpers, Miss Macgrath and Mrs. Cole, have taken the management. Under their direction the Home at Epsom is being carried on as heretofore, and God has graciously preserved the children from all serious illness. A letter from Miss Mittendorff has reached me, stating that she feels too ill to write her annual report, but begging me to arrange for the usual meeting, at which the accounts, duly audited by the accountant, may be presented. This I should be happy to do, but the absence of the one, around whom, under God, the interest of the Home has centred, would be so painful that I hesitate in undertaking the responsibility. When I remember also that one dear friend, Mr. Denham Smith, who, I believe, has never been absent from this annual gathering, in which he took such a prominent part, is now apparently passing into the presence of the Master, I feel we shall be acting in accordance with the wishes of most of the kind friends who have hitherto supported the Home if we omit the meeting for this year.

It is "a cloudy and dark day" for a work which hitherto has been surrounded with unusual brightness, a time when real friends must come forward, and show their sympathy in word and deed; and hence, while begging you kindly to announce that the meeting will not be held this year, I would ask you to interest Miss Mittendorff's friends (1) to pray that if it be the Lord's will her valuable life may be spared, and her health speedily restored, to return and work again in the interest of the little destitute and deserted ones; and (2) that the means now sorely needed to carry on the Home may be forthcoming as heretofore, by which our sister's heart will be cheered in this time of separation from the work she loves so much.—Yours,

Joseph Weatherley.

51, Gordon-square, W.C.

A NOTE OF THANKS.—Dear Sir,—Will you allow me through your columns to express my sincere thanks to the kind friend to whom I am indebted for the pleasure I have long enjoyed of reading The Christian. Your paper is wonderfully adapted to the wants of a missionary, in being evangelical, unsectarian, and cosmopolitan; and what enhances its value for me (surrounded as I am by Jesuit priests and in a French colony) is the information you supply, and the position you take, respecting Popery.—Yours very truly, J. Hadfield.

Lifu, Loyalty Islands, near New Caledonia.

NEW GUINEA.—Writing from Port Moresby to a friend, Mrs. Lawes, wife of Rev. W. G. Lawes, says:—Very many thanks for the parcel of goods you so kindly sent; they are all distributed, and have been very useful. We have now twelve students and wives here training for native teachers. They come from different places along the coast. They have to be clothed and provided for in every way, so that all sorts of things in the way of clothing, sewing materials, and writing materials are always useful. I may just say that petticoats, chemises, and yoke dresses are most needed. We hope Mr. Chalmers's visit will have awakened a little interest in New Guinea.

RATCLIFF "BRIDGE OF HOPE."

Owing to the inclement weather, the attendance at Miss Steer's annual meeting, on Thursday evening last week, was somewhat small. In every other respect it was an unqualified success. The Rector of St. George's, Rev. C. H. Turner, presided. He takes a very warm interest in the Mission. In his opening remarks he observed that the work Miss Steer is accomplishing cannot be done by purely parochial machinery. He said Miss Steer and her helpers aim at nothing short of regenerating he hearts as well as the bodies of our poor fallen sisters.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes earnestly pleaded for wider support for such charitable and glorious work as that prosecuted from the Bridge of Hope. He said he was never more edified by any report than that just issued by Miss Steer. He could scarcely imagine any more valuable service that a Christian could render than to send a copy of it to every rich man they knew in London. Surely some of those who have a superabundance of wealth, if they knew of such work, would be glad to help it on. Nothing in the existing social condition of our country is more distressing than that at one end of the scale we have men and women with almost untold wealth, while at the other end we have an angel of mercy, like Miss Steer, in need of a trumpery £2000 to carry on work for the glory of God and the good of humanity. It is a matter for devout thankfulness that the Mission is characterised by so much of Christ's tender pitifulness. No girl, though she may fall after being helped, is ever refused another chance of reformation. Mr. Hughes also dwelt upon the importance of preventive work, which is being so admirably accomplished, and urged Christians to pray that over the Bridge of Hope many hundreds of girls may pass from Ratcliff-highway to heaven.

Rev. Harry Jones, one of the most devoted friends of the Mission, gave some very interesting reminiscences of the early days of the Refuge. He characterised Miss Steer's as a gem among reports, and pressed upon the Council, as well as all interested in the work, the absolute necessity of having it widely circulated, so as to make the Mission more generally known. Everything is done quietly and unostentatiously, yet the whole machinery is constantly in active operation. He nailed with delight the prospect of Miss Steer having in a short time new and more comfortable and convenient premises.

Mr. George Holland followed with a most practical speech, founded upon long experience. He attributed the vast improvement which has taken place within the last ten years in Ratcliff-highway and the immediate neighbourhood in a large measure to this work. Touching on the uncomfortable and wretched homes of many of the young girls who are to be found in the streets in the lower quarters of London, he mentioned that Lord Shaftesbury used to say to him in his friendly manner, "George, we want a new race of mothers." Alas! that is true. Mothers do not know how to train their children, and it is not astonishing that so many of them go astray. Under our present educational system our girls are not properly taught. There should be in connection with every national and board school an institution where our girls may be trained so as to enable them when they leave school to take their places as domestic servants.

After some very hearty words from Mr. Joseph Howard, M.P., one of the Council, Miss Steer made a brief statement, in which she acknowledged the devotedness of her fellow-helpers. The reason why the work prospers so well is that they strengthened one another's hands and followed out a systematic course of prayer as well as effort. She referred to the proposed new buildings, to complete which £2000 is still required. The work is God's, and she was confident He will continue to supply its need as He has always done hitherto.

Rev. Peter Thompson, in a heart-stirring address, acknowledged the kindness he had received from Miss Steer in connection with his work. The meeting was afterwards briefly addressed by Rev. George Steer (Miss Steer's father), and Mr. T. G. Woollacott.

◆

THE POOR OF SPITALFIELDS.

For more than half a century there has existed in connection with the Trinity Congregational Church, Spitalfields, a Christian Instruction Society, composed of godly men and women, who regularly visit the homes of the sick and the poor. They preach the Gospel, distribute tracts, and relieve the destitute, so far as the funds will permit. Free meals are sometimes given, as well as gifts of coal. The leading spirit for many years has been the venerable pastor, Rev. Dr. Tyler, but, owing to the state of his health, he has been obliged recently to refrain from active work. The doctor's place, however, is well filled by his energetic colleague, Rev. R. H. Smith, whose kindly disposition has greatly endeared him to the poor of Spitalfields.

On Wednesday evening of last week the anniversary meeting of the Society was held. About four hundred of the poorest people resident in the district were provided wtth a sumptuous tea, after which appropriate Gospel addresses were delivered by Dr. Tyler (who presided) and other friends. The venerable Chairman's remarks were of a very impressive character, and were listened to with the closest attention. Mr. Job Williams, who is a public-house missionary, in the course of his speech gave some interesting facts relating to his work. He visits every day fourteen or fifteen taverns. He approaches not only the customers, but the publicans, the landladies, and the barmaids; and, though his reception is not always of a cordial description, his efforts have been much blessed. Mr. Noakes urged the claims of the Society on all who were able to further its objects. It exercises practical Christianity, which was never more needed than in the present day.

WAIFS AND STRAYS AT CARDIFF.—On Sunday morning, Nov. 6, the rooms of the Y.M.C.A. in St. Mary-street, Cardiff, were the scene of a touching gathering. At 8 o'clock there were here congregated over 200 boys and girls, recruited from the most destitute class of poor which the town can produce. The necessary funds were in this instance provided by the proprietors of The South Wales Daily News and South Wales Echo. It was the first of a series of monthly Sunday morning breakfasts which the committee of the Association hope to be able to organise and maintain throughout the winter months. After eating a hearty meal, the children were addressed by Messrs. J. Evans, A. Kaines, J. Carrs, and the secretary, Mr. George Hughes. A movement is also on foot whereby weekly addresses of a semi-religious character will be given to a number of juvenile outcasts, and every effort made for their moral and spiritual reclamation.

ATHEISM AT NORTHAMPTON.—Rev. Joseph Tanner, writing recently to The Rock, says:—Northampton is well known for its support of Atheism, and I am sorry to add that Ritualism is also there in full force. A goodwork is carried on by the agent of the Protestant Reformation Society, Mr. Thomas Barber, who has been trained from boyhood in the arena of public discussion, for which he has remarkable gifts. In the public squares, on the racecourse, and wherever the sceptics or Spiritualists gather to ventilate their theories, there Mr. Barber appears, book under arm, and fearlessly confutes them. He has been at this work for many years, and now, instead of having matters all its own way, as formerly, infidelity at Northampton, as far, at least, as public discussion is concerned, is obliged to hang its head, and fears to confront this champion of the truth. If any should know of a locality where such a champion for truth is needed to give a course of lectures against Infidelity or Spiritualism o Romanism, or all three, they could not select a more able man or a more earnest advocate for the cause of the Lord Jesus. The requisite arrangements could be made by communication with Major Liebenrood, 1, Langham-place, Northampton.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose to give portrait and sketch of Rev. Dr. Maclaren, of Manchester.

The London Road Car Company have, under the new board of management, decided to discontinue Sunday traffic, which has been in force during the past few months. They should receive the support of the Christian public who value the rest of the Sabbath Day.

We learn that Mr. Denham Smith lies with still decreasing strength in much the same condition, amidst his weakness cheering those around him with the brightness of his confidence and trust in the unchangeable goodness of God.

Owing to frequent attacks of illness, Mrs. Josephine Butler is compelled to give up a large proportion of her benevolent and rescue work, but she hopes to serve the cause of God by her pen. She has handed over her House of Rest to other Christian workers for another purpose, and closed her Rescue Cottage at Winchester, but several cases in her charge are still unprovided for. Her friend, Miss Chapman (The Limes, Fulflood, Winchester), will be glad to receive the help of friends who have hitherto sent to Mrs. Butler direct.

Our readers will also be grieved to hear that Miss Ellice Hopkins's serious indisposition has been increased by an accident met with abroad, which has completely disabled her, so that she is unable even to sit up. She asks prayer both for her recovery and for her work, which has now to be left in other hands. Friends are also requested to refrain from writing to her, as the letters she receives increase the insomnia from which she is suffering.

Though the views of The Standard may not always be such as an Evangelical Conference would adopt, its utterances are seldom, if ever, distinctly irreverent. The following passage, however, in a recent "leader" on German affairs is worthy rather of an avowedly infidel organ than an influential high-class journal :—

> A devoted and martial aristocracy, a solid and faithful army, and a proud, intelligent people are adequate buttresses for the Throne against all shocks of fate, and all the decisions of Heaven.

The Germans undoubtedly are a great and a powerful people, and worthily so described in the article in question; but their venerable Emperor would be the first reverently and emphatically to repudiate the assumption that his Throne and Empire were buttressed by his people's devotion and intelligence, and his army's solid valour, "against all the decisions of Heaven."

We would call the attention of our readers to an intensely interesting series of lectures on life and discoveries in Palestine, now in course of delivery by Rev. James Neil, at the Conference Hall, Mildmay Park. (See our List of Forthcoming Meetings.) Mr. Neil possesses a knowledge of Oriental customs which renders him able to speak with an authority which lends great force and importance to his discourses, and the reception accorded to the two lectures already given augurs well for the remainder.

☞ We beg to remind our readers that the enclosing of circulars, &c., in The Christian subjects it to extra postage. All such enclosures sent from this office are headed, "Supplement to The Christian," and are sufficiently prepaid; we are not responsible for any not so headed. It is, therefore, important that our readers who forward copies of the paper containing such circulars (whether inserted by themselves or by us) should ascertain the correct postage, as we are constantly receiving complaints from those who have had to pay double postage on receiving copies from friends who have omitted to pay this extra postage.

The Christian World says that—

> Dr. Parker gave an address on October 10, to a large audience, including all the leading clergymen of the city and vicinity in Tremont Temple, Boston, by invitation of the Evangelical Alliance, on the evangelical faith, defending it from a narrow and sectarian interpretation. He pleaded for a wide charity for personal judgments, for generousness in permitting liberal opinions in our brethren, and for a Christian spirit in all controversies.

With this we should all agree. But we do not wonder that the ministers should be more than astonished when he proceeded to apply his principles, and to declare that—

> Not one leading Congregational minister of England, so far as he knew, preached now the eternal retribution of sin in the world to come, but rather a Gospel of hope. While there was from the galleries a loud and continuous applause upon this utterance, says the Boston Zion's Herald, the ministers in the audience, largely, looked appalled.

The Christian World and Dr. Parker, at any rate, go farther than Mr. Spurgeon's extremest utterances in his Down-Grade papers.

On the other hand, an anonymous letter, bearing the Brighton postmark, contains the following extract from the report of an address :—

> Congregational ministers, as a whole, are perfectly true to the evangelical lines traversed by their ecclesiastical forefathers. Incidental departures from the faith would be little thought of, and would, in due time, find their natural issue, were it not that it has been for a long time the policy of The Christian World to bring them to the front, to parade them and cluster them, and represent them as the indications of a mighty movement in "advanced thought."

It is doubtless true that the paper mentioned has done more than any other agency to introduce these views, and to disseminate them in Nonconformist circles.

In an article contributed to the New York Independent, Dr. G. F. Pentecost strongly deprecates the action of the advocates of "probation after death," in pressing their views on the American Board of Missions. His plea, thus stated, is unanswerable :—

> If the brethren whose hearts are so burdened for the unevangelised heathen that they cannot rest day or night until they are set at rest concerning the fate of the millions of the already dead and the other millions not yet evangelised, let them, if it is vital to their peace and conscience, organise and send forth missionaries on their own account and at their own charges, or go themselves. They have no more right to ask the American Board to spread abroad their "speculations," than they would have right to ask the Presbyterian or Methodist Boards to do it, since they speak for themselves and not for the Congregational churches. It is a private enterprise; they must take care of it as best they can. The Board has no disposition to interfere with their freedom either of thought or action in this matter.

A little help is worth a great deal of pity. We are glad to find that many of our readers are devising plans for the relief of the prevailing distress. Subjoined are a few suggestions which have been sent to us, and we shall be glad to aid the good work by giving publicity to any really useful practical methods which may be brought before us. Friends can then select for themselves those which are most suitable for their adoption.

> That instead of giving food or money indiscriminately to all that ask in the street or at the door, charity should be dispensed through local ministers and district visitors who have facilities for testing the worthiness of such cases, and who are always well acquainted with many thoroughly deserving but needy persons.
>
> That ministers of every denomination should signify their readiness to receive names and addresses of members of their congregations willing to supply, through a district visitor, one meal a week regularly during the winter (or as long as occasion required) to any one deserving or destitute family, known to, and recommended by, a district visitor, the meal to consist of soup made from scraps of meat, &c. The cost in money, time, and trouble, would be very little, and the gift would be more appreciated than the plate of "cold broken victuals" given to beggars at the door, and often consigned by them to the nearest dust-heap.
>
> That well-to-do families should lessen their consumption of flesh meat (which is often in great excess of the requirements of health), making more use of fruit and vegetables. Several shillings a week per person might thus be saved which would give many a good substantial meal to the hungry.
>
> Another correspondent regrets the decision of the Committee who met at the Mansion House to establish no "Mansion House Fund" this year, believing that such a fund especially appeals to many "City magnates" and other persons who will not give to agencies less officially recognised. The fund might be divided amongst such agencies as were approved by the Committee for distribution amongst the poor.

A conference of leading Christian workers of London is being called by Mr J. J. Jones, to consider how best to deal with the prevailing and anticipated distress, and to formulate suggestions of improvement in connexion with the Casual Wards and Unions of the Metropolis. A deputation will wait on the Local Government Board to engage remedies for the existing defects in the system.

The New Democracy does not find democracy a perfect system, or a success as the saviour of society, for the sufficient reason that "mankind is much the same everywhere." The Pall Mall Gazette says that the fate of the four Anarchists hanged at Chicago proves that "when a Democratic community is scared, none of the ordinary safeguards with which the law has fenced about human life are worth a rush. There is a Democratic terror not less terrible than the terror of Autocracy, and the many-headed electorate of the New World will kill when panic-stricken as recklessly as any European despot." Yes, government has degenerated from the head of gold to the feet of iron and earthenware, which elements cannot cleave together. The Times of the Gentiles are closing, and soon the King of Righteousness and Peace will take unto Him his great power and reign.

[We pass no opinion on the justice of the sentence and its execution, except that unless the men hanged were not the guilty persons they well deserved their punishment.]

There has been some excitement in Ireland about a motion proposed by Rev. Dr. Wright, regarding a catechism named after its compiler, Mr. Sherrard. It was introduced some time ago, without the formal authority of the Board of Religious Instruction of the Church of Ireland, and has been a bone of contention in many parishes in consequence of its semi-Popish teachings respecting the priesthood, infant baptism, absolution, &c. The Synod a fortnight ago formally refused to sanction the use of the book. Perhaps of all places Ireland is the last one in which teaching of the kind should be permitted to pass without disapproval, and it is satisfactory to find that Dr. Wright and others are alive to the necessity of adherence to evangelical truth.

Diocesan Conferences are pouring light upon certain social questions on which it is needful for the clergy to speak out. At the one recently held in Lichfield a valuable discussion took place on betting. The chaplain of Stafford Prison gave terrible facts concerning the number of clerks who passed through gaols solely through gambling and betting. Considering the incalculable ruin these habits are bringing on young men, the following language of a Wolverhampton clergyman cannot be held to be too pointed :—

> He desired to make an emphatic protest against the example which was being set by those who held the very highest positions in the country. They found the gentleman who was nearest the Throne in this land spending week after week at the headquarters of turfdom, and during the anxious times through which Ireland had been passing this year Her Majesty's representative in the sister island had frequently been found on the racecourses in England. It was time that the spiritual advisers of the Crown should give expression to the anxiety and fear which were widely felt. It was estimated that there were over 10,000 professional betting men attending race meetings or in private clubs, who dealt either with noble plungers, merchants, tradesmen, or artisans. He strongly denounced betting in all its forms, and warned the clergy and laity of the risk of supporting bazaars, "fish-ponds," &c., held in support of religious objects.

Very much has been written and spoken against indiscriminate charity, but there is something to be said on the other side of the question. We can commend to the attention of our readers a paper in the current number of Eastward Ho! in which the matter is stated with much force. The paper contains some striking illustrations of the struggle for life which, by the bye, the writer terms the race for death. We should be loth to say anything against properly "organised" charity so long as no undue proportion of the subscriptions is spent in "expenses," but there are times and seasons when a freer method must of necessity be adopted, and the charitable man must himself deal with the cases that come before him.

No Poor Law system, or organised society for the relief of distress, ever can satisfactorily take the place of that personal dealing with the poor which ought to be the invariable blossom of the life of faith. Much of the indifference to the sorrows and sufferings of the poor is due to ignorance, but such ignorance is criminal where knowledge can be easily and readily acquired. Mr. Shorthouse has said that "nothing but the Infinite pity is sufficient for the infinite pathos of human life," but there is ample room, nevertheless, for the exercise of human pity in the alleviation of human sorrow.

Among the gratifying movements of the times must be mentioned the earnest care which is exercised by philanthropists of the United States on behalf of the Indians. At the house of the Quaker, Mr. A. K. Smiley, in the mountain ranges of New York State, another annual conference has been held which lasted three days. Influential clergymen, politicians, and editors were present. It is eminently fitting that Americans should vigorously endeavour to create and maintain a healthy public sentiment on all matters relating to the aboriginal inhabitants of the lands they possess, and efforts in this direction are having considerable effect, both on Congress and the various churches.

It may interest many of our readers to learn what has been done for the Red Indians. Their education is being cared for. A Governmental commissioner for Indian affairs is appointed. Land and rights of citizenship under certain conditions may now be granted. There are many institutions for the training of young men and women of Indian tribes in agricultural and mechanical pursuits. Simple church edifices and school-houses are built, congregations gathered, and Rev. Dr. Aubrey writes to a contemporary to the effect that among the quarter of a million of the aboriginal race a new generation is growing up who will be saved from the vices of the white man and exhibit the results of the valuable work now carried on.

The SECESSIONS and their RESULTS.

The secession of Mr. Spurgeon and others from the Baptist Union raises more than one important question. If these pastors and their churches are compelled by loyalty to Christ to separate, are not all other pastors and churches who would be loyal to Christ called upon to do the same? This leads to another question: Can any principle be laid down which it will be safe to act upon, so that conscientious Christians of average intelligence may know how long they may continue in fellowship with other professing Christians, or when they ought in faithfulness to their Lord to withdraw from them?

This separation seems to go too far, and yet not far enough. Too far, in that it censures 2000 churches, the bulk of whose members (sad to say) are very little able to form an opinion on the merits of the questions; not far enough, inasmuch as it does not censure the propagators of error any more definitely than those who are perfectly innocent of it.

It is difficult to distinguish between excommunicating the Baptist Union and excommunicating the churches represented in it. Nor is it very easy to discern the difference between this line of action and that of the followers of Mr. Darby in excluding from fellowship George Müller and the Bethesda meeting. In both cases a multitude of Christians, innocent, not to say ignorant, of the matters in dispute, are placed in the same category with the actual offenders. Though with this difference, that in Mr. Darby's case those whom he opposed were unmistakably pointed out, while in the present case there is no attempt to connect the errors specified with the names of those who spread them. Indeed, one of the "Close Brethren" writes us as though the divisions under Mr. Darby were fully justified by the present secession.

One of the most painful remembrances we have of the Darby-Newton controversy is the vehement party spirit which was elicited and fostered, while the rank and file of either party were quite incompetent to form a judgment on the question. And it grieves us now to think what must follow if the practical argument of these secessions be carried to its logical result. The argument practically is that all who are faithful and true to Christ ought also to withdraw. What would follow? That the field would be left in the hands of those whose light is darkness. That all the strong, brave standard-bearers and officers, together with those over whom they have influence, should leave the rest of their fellows to blind guides who, they believe, will lead them into the ditch.

But the faithful men have not all seceded. And the people in the pews are called upon not only to decide between the old and the new theology (though, speaking generally, they have neither the Scriptural knowledge, the mental training, nor the spirituality of heart to qualify them for such a task); but they are also called upon to decide between men whose names they love and honour, but who take different sides in this controversy. It is now a question between Mr. Spurgeon and those who secede with him, on the one hand, and men like Dr. Angus, Dr. Culross, and Dr. Maclaren, who do not secede, on the other. We must emphatically express our conviction that these brethren ought to decide this question themselves, and not to throw it upon the membership to decide between them. Not only self-respect, but the peace of the churches requires that this discussion should be undertaken by the ministers on behalf of the people, and not by the people on behalf of the ministers.

Mr. Spurgeon has made his statements, which we believe in the main to be true, though as to persons too indefinitely and indiscriminately made; and he has taken action which we deeply regret. But this having been done it remains with leading orthodox men in the Baptist Union to consider to what extent erroneous doctrine exists among their churches, and what action should be taken with respect to it. It will be a lasting stain upon the Baptist body if they allow some of their best and truest men to enter a protest which it must have caused them great pain to make, and to put forth no effort to arrive at the truth or to remove the causes of their withdrawal from the Union.

> If a foe have kenned,
> Or worse than foe, an alienated friend,
> Some rib of dry rot in thy stout ship's side,
> Think it God's message, and with humble pride
> With heart of oak replace it: thine the gains;
> Give him the rotten timber for his pains.

But in this case it is not an alienated friend, much less a foe, who has discerned the rib of dry rot, but a faithful watchman who must give account to the Owner of the ship. And even though the indictment be too indiscriminately and indefinitely drawn, it would be safer to cut out the rotten timber than to paint it over and declare it sound, in speeches, articles, and letters more indefinite than the charges which called them forth.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISTS.—We are requested by Mr. S. Haskell, a member of the general Conference Committee of this body, to state that the gentleman referred to in recent notes from our American correspondent as having relinquished their peculiar tenets, is not "their chief leader," as described, but was at one time a member of the Committee of Seven, who had an oversight of the work.

REV. GEORGE BOWEN, BOMBAY.—A few weeks ago we mentioned that Rev. George Bowen, the venerable editor of The Bombay Guardian, had met with an accident. Whilst alighting from a tramcar, on September 24, he fell, and has ever since been unable to walk, excepting with the aid of crutches. In his paper for October 15, Mr. Bowen says that the neck of the right thigh-bone sustained a fracture, and the injury is likely to prove permanent. Indoor work and preaching he is able to carry on, and it remains to be seen how far his powers of locomotion may be regained.

AMERICAN NOTES.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

A decided victory for orthodoxy has been achieved at the recent annual meeting of the American Board, the great missionary organisation of the Congregational Churches. The advocates of "The New Theology" had hoped their increased numbers would enable them to control the Board. The hotly contested issue was whether missionaries should be sent forth who advocated the theory that in a future world the impenitent dead would hear the Gospel and accept it. These "second probation" theories were rebuked by the overwhelming support given to the Prudential Committee, and the Secretary of the Board, who have most earnestly fought for evangelicalism.

* * * *

This memorable debate reached this decision, viz.: that (1) this "hypothesis" is alien to God's Word, which alone reveals the future; (2) that, inasmuch as no Congregational Church has adopted the theory in its creed, the Board cannot recognise the speculations of pew, pulpit, or professor's chair; (3) that until the churches adopt such philosophy as a creed and so instruct the Board that body can send only such missionaries to the heathen as are in accord with the great foundation doctrines of the evangelical school.

* * * *

It is thought there will be a division in the Congregational denomination. A large number of ministers are more or less in sympathy with Unitarian liberalism, and are now chafing under the rebuke given them by the great meeting at Springfield referred to.

* * * *

Pittsburg has witnessed a bloodless battle between "Rome Rule and Home Rule." A Catholic priest secured his election as principal of a public school. He appointed nuns as teachers. But the citizens took alarm at his Romanising plans, and compelled him to resign.

* * * *

The McGlynn agitation versus Popery progresses with good results. Many Romanists now hear the Gospel, and undoubted conversions are known.

* * *

The announcement of Mr. Spurgeon's withdrawal from the Baptist Union has led to much speculation on this side the water. The real state of the case is yet but little known. He is deeply enshrined in the hearts of American Christians.

* * * *

Rev. Joseph Parker is "starring" throughout the country. His first sermon was in the late Henry Ward Beecher's Church. Even the flippant of the congregation were startled when the text, "He is not here; but is risen," was applied to their late pastor.

* * * *

"The Personal Liberty Party" is a strong, well-organised movement to secure legislation in the interest of the liquor traffic, to agitate for the opening of saloons and places of amusement on Sundays, and to destroy faith in Christianity. It shows a bold and bad front. Germans fill its ranks. Ministers and churches have taken alarm, and are meeting this organisation with determined opposition.

DRINK at the PEOPLE'S PALACE.

On Saturday week, Mr. Spencer Charrington, M.P., gave a "Jubilee supper" to upwards of 1000 men of the Tower Hamlets Rifle Volunteers at the People's Palace, Mile-end, the result of which was that about 600 of the men left the Palace in an advanced state of intoxication.

A meeting to protest against these scenes of drunkenness was held in the Great Assembly Hall on Thursday evening of last week, when nearly 3000 persons were present. The following resolution was passed:—"This meeting protests against the drunkenness which took place on Saturday, November 5, at the People's Palace, and calls upon the authorities in the parish in future to prohibit the introduction of intoxicants of any kind within the precincts of that Palace."

Mr. F. N. Charrington, who presided, said he believed that the amount of raw spirits, gin, and whisky allowed to each volunteer was something like one pint. It is a significant fact, he said, that the day on which this "Jubilee supper" was held, was the anniversary of our protest at the Mansion House, against drink being introduced at all into the People's Palace. That protest resulted finally in the trustees resolving not to ask for a liquor licence for the Palace. It seems, however, that they are determined to have drink in the Palace somehow or other, and if they cannot sell it they will give it away. It is outrageous, cried Mr. Charrington, that the People's Palace intended to elevate, if possible, the inhabitants of the East-end, should be used for making people drunk.

Mr. E. H. Kerwin mentioned that the spirits supplied to the volunteers were "proof spirits," and that there were about half a dozen clergymen present at the supper.

Mr. Henry Varley regarded it as a great misfortune that the principal trustees of the People's Palace should be connected with the drink traffic. He had heard that Sir Edmund Hay Currie has become a total abstainer. That is cause for rejoicing; but it is to be hoped, said Mr. Varley, that, when Sir Edmund Hay Currie has for his personal safety thought it expedient to become a teetotaller, he will ultimately follow the example of Mr. Frederick N. Charrington. Though the volunteers were not blameless for getting drunk, he maintained that the burden of responsibility for the abominable scenes which occurred in the Mile End-road on the 5th inst. lay on Mr. Spencer Charrington.

THEATRICAL MISSION.—The Princess Christian has consented to open a sale of work in behalf of the Building Fund on November 30. The directors of the Mission have of late received many tokens of encouragement and blessings, the "Reunions," both of children and adults, being well attended, and the deepest interest manifested in the truths of the Gospel as spoken from week to week. Quite lately a girl returned who had been on "a tour round the world," and after six years' absence was pleased again to attend the meetings. Were the building free from debt, the work, both preventive and rescue, might be extended on its present lines amongst theatrical employeés of all nationalities, appeals having been made of late to start branches in Brussels, Geneva, Naples, and Milan.

REQUESTS FOR PRAISE AND PRAYER.—Praise for blessing on Gospel services by H. A. Squire and H. M. Barnett, at Tunbridge, Southborough, Tunbridge Wells, Brighton, and Lewes, recently.——For many souls blessed during the past year at the Seamen's Rest, Marseilles. Prayer for blessing on special services by Mr. Opie Rodway, at Sydney Baptist Chapel, Nov. 19 to 21; Gorseley Baptist Chapel, Nov. 22 to 28.——For blessing upon a united Gospel mission, to be held in Sheffield, from Nov. 26 to Dec. 8, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., to be conducted by Mr. Henry Thorne and Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Leicester.——For blessing on special services in Mission Hall, Godmanchester, by Mr. Charles Inglis, from Nov. 20 to 27, and at Huntingdon Corn Exchange, Nov. 27 to 30.——For blessing on a mission at St. George's Church, Tuffnell-park, N., Nov. 19 to 29, by Rev. William Haslam.

BIBLE STUDY.

THE CHRISTIAN'S COMFORT AND STRENGTH IN SORROW.

(1) The Father's unchanging love.—"God is love" (1 John iv. 8). "Though He cause grief, yet will He have compassion according to the multitude of his mercies. For He doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men" (Lam. iii. 32, 33). "As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten" (Rev. iii. 19). "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth" (Heb. xii. 6). "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you" (Isa. lxvi. 13).

(2) The Father's wisdom.—"We know that all things work together for good to them that love God" (Rom. viii. 28). "Why sayest thou, O Jacob, and speakest, O Israel, my way is hid from the Lord, and my judgment is passed over from my God? Hast thou not known, hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding" (Isa. xl. 27, 28). "He knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness" (Deut. ii. 7). "He hideth Himself on the right hand, that I cannot see Him: but He knoweth the way that I take" (Job xxiii. 9, 10). "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter" (John xiii. 7).

(3) The Lord's presence.—"I will...bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her." "Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her beloved?" (Hos. ii. 14; Cant. viii. 5). "I will be with him in trouble" (Ps. xci. 15). "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee" (Isa. xliii. 2). "I, even I, am He that comforteth you" (Isa. li. 12). "Lo, I am with you all the days" (Matt. xxviii. 20).

(4) The Word of God and the teaching of the Spirit.—"Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope" (Rom. xv. 4). "Comfort one another with these words" (1 Thess. iv. 18). "I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another Comforter, that He may abide with you for ever" (John xiv. 16).

(5) The end of the sorrow, in (a) the work of grace here.—"Tribulation worketh patience" (Rom. v. 3). "Godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of" (2 Cor. vii. 10). "He (chastened us) for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. Now, no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless, afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby" (Heb. xii. 10, 11). (b) The glory hereafter.—"To you who are troubled, rest with us; when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven" (2 Thess, i. 7). "Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal" (2 Cor. iv. 17, 18).

(6) The love of friends.—"When Jesus...saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom He loved, He saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son! Then saith He to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home" (John xix. 26, 27). "God setteth the solitary in families" (Ps. lxviii. 6). "God, that comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by the coming of Titus" (2 Cor. vii. 6). "Onesiphorus...oft refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chain; but...he sought me out very diligently, and found me...and in how many things he ministered unto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well" (2 Tim. i. 16—18).

(7) Work for the Master.—"The time is short; it remaineth, that...they that weep (be) as though they wept not" (1 Cor. vii. 29, 30). "Workers together with Him" (2 Cor. vi. 1).

Janet Clark.

FRANCE: A MISSION FIELD.—2.

On asking the opinion of a Christian friend as to the most spiritually destitute part of France, he replied "the centre," and he is eminently fitted to form an opinion, as he has personal relations with every department, and has travelled over nearly the whole country. Now, then, to describe this particular field.

The River Loire divides France nearly in the centre, and the provinces bordering on it have been called "the Garden of France," its genial climate, its golden vineyards, blooming orchards, yellow cornfields, and acacia hedges, bear witness of its truth. At Saumur (once the stronghold of Protestantism) it is a romantic stream, and from thence to Nantes, near its mouth, the boldness of its banks, its active commerce, and its wooded islands, render it an attractive scene, but none in travelling simply by railway know the beauties of French scenery. I will now indicate destitute districts on the river and its tributaries, which mostly give their names to the departments:—

A circle formed of the south of Loiret, west and south of Yonne, east of Loire et Cher, north and south of Cher. Another circle formed by south of Indre et Loire, west and south of Indre, east of Vienne, north of Deux Sèvres, and west Vendée. Another large circle formed of the central part of Côte D'Or, north of Saone et Loire, abounding in vineyards, north-west and south of Nièvre, and north and east of Allier, all destitute.

The second half of this great central district is found on the Garonne and its tributaries, some of the most destitute spiritually in France. I would indicate the north part of the Haute Loire, Correze, west of Ardêche, Puy-de-Dôme, Cantal, Lozère, north of Aveyron, Lot, and east Dordogne. Auvergne, i.e., the Puy-de-Dôme and Cantal, is little known by the French themselves. It abounds in striking scenery, and very peculiar, with numerous extinct volcanoes; its people are peaceable, but poor; numbers come to Paris, and work as water-carriers and porters.

To the south-west, on the sea coast, is the district of Les Grandes Landes, where the shepherds are seen on their stilts. Seldom if ever visited, except Arcachon in the centre, which is a seaside resort, surrounded by fir woods. It includes west Gironde and Landes, a singularly sandy country. The adjoining department is Gers, needing to be evangelised, on the west and south it looks on to the Pyrenees.

To complete this tour of France, taking the departments on the east side, there is north Meuse, north of Meurthe and Moselle, which has in Nancy what has been called the prettiest town in France. North of the Vosges, with its mineral springs, its magnificent pine forests, and scenery little inferior to Switzerland. The centre of Haute Saone and centre of Doubs, with north and centre of Ain.

The departments south-east are especially destitute, Savoie and Haute Savoie more particularly. The province of Dauphiné, too, greatly needs the presence of an evangelist. East of Isère, north and south of Drôme, and south of Hautes Alpes. Its scenery is of first-rate beauty and grandeur, especially in the north. The valley of the Isère is made up of beautiful scenes, as well as about Grenoble. The valley of Gresivaudan can compare with Switzerland; this province has some of the highest mountains in France, Mount Pelvoux, sublime and desolate, is 13,000 feet in height. This was the country of the Albigenses and Vaudois, and the scene of Felix Neff's labours.

Then, finally, to indicate where the evangelist is needed, there are the Basses Alpes, north of the Alpes Maritimes and north of the Var. Provence has in many parts a sombre and melancholy sternness. However, from Toulon to Nice the country presents a picturesque beauty and a serene and warm climate. Cannes is a little paradise, and abounds in luxurious fruits and flowers.

Besides these districts thus specified there are many other needy spots which are not mentioned. I have purposely avoided localities where pastors and evangelists are labouring. Then there is a large floating population—the brave and hardy Breton sailors who man the vessels of war, besides the mercantile marine, fishermen, boatmen on the canals and rivers, the "Forains," people serving the fairs, and railway men; amongst these various classes what might not Christian ingenuity accomplish?

But I must not omit that crying need of the 300 villages of French colonists in the prolongation of France, so called—Algeria, scattered along the Tell of its three provinces, whose deplorable spiritual destitution requires a special agency on their behalf alone.

Oh, how few of the thousands of communes in France have ever heard the Gospel! Of those adhering to Romanism, perhaps one-tenth go to "Pâques," and eight to one are women. It is fast losing its hold on the people, and there is a danger of their drifting into infidelity, but they will listen to a sympathetic heart who will step forward to deliver them from this danger.

In travelling over these great varieties in the country, we shall find equal varieties among the people; the phlegmatic Flemish miners, the boiling Provençals, the lively and impressible Midi people, the colder and reasoning people of the North, the mountaineers, reflective and contemplative; but amidst them all a warm welcome awaits the messenger of good tidings of the Gospel of God.

It may be that the facts thus presented, yet so briefly, to the notice of the friends of missions, may have a voice to some who are seeking for a sphere of labour. I am not pleading for means, but for men—yes, and for women too, and families—who may come with the blessed light God has enkindled in their hearts, to shine in these dark places, and know the precious promise of the Saviour of rich compensation to those who give up anything for Him. What a word that is in Mark x. 29:—"For my sake and the Gospel's."

Paris. GEORGE PEARSE.

WEST LONDON MISSION.

At the afternoon service in St. James's Hall, on Sunday, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes said that the miserable spectacle which Trafalgar-square presented at that moment would never have been seen if we all had been better Christians. The discourse was on Luke i. 53: "The hungry he hath filled with good things, and the rich he hath sent empty away." If the authority of Jesus Christ were fully recognised, the starving poor would be well fed. Alas, they are too often neglected and down-trodden; laws and customs are more to suit the convenience of the rich and to enable them to accumulate more wealth. The masses of the people in this country were much too degraded and too sorrowful to accept the Puritan teaching in its spiritual fulness. Mr. Hughes argues that the first duty of every State is not to maintain order, but to be just. He denied, as someone has said, that "order is heaven's first law." Love is heaven's first law. God is love, and has no order except so far as it may spring out of love; and the supreme duty of any State ought to be to discover what is just and what is merciful. The reason why he protested against these widespread delusions is that so long as Christian men allow their minds to be possessed of them they will never make energetic efforts to improve the social condition of the masses of the people; and he regarded improvement as an essential pre-requisite to evangelisation. At the beginning of the Christian era there was only one way in which Christian men could fight pauperism, and that was by giving money to the poor. That was because the Governments of the world were heathen Governments, because the laws were made by men who hated Christ, and because the masses of the people had no power. We have a better method now. The great machinery of the State itself must be used in all moderate, reasonable, and legitimate ways to promote the general well-being of the people.

"PENNY WISE & POUND FOOLISH."

Such was the title given by Mr. Harry Guinness to his address at Exeter Hall on Sunday night. There were about 2500 persons present, of whom the majority were young men.

The preliminary organ recital and choir singing adds great attraction to these meetings. Taking Mark viii. 36 for his text, the speaker first dealt with "the profit side," showing how Christ in this instance yields the greatest earthly object obtainable—viz., the whole world. Then he considered the soul and its value. Christ thought it worth giving his life to save. But men and women are losing their souls for less than the world. He laid stress upon three great sins of the day which cost the sinners their souls—Drink, Gambling, and Impurity. The inquiry-room was, as in the previous meetings, full of anxious souls, and many went from the building new men and women in Christ Jesus.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. Richard Weaver is a little stronger in health, and has been taking Sunday services at Sheffield and other places, assisted by his sons. He is not able to undertake any week-night meetings.

Burslem.—On Sunday week Mr. Henry Murch, of the Evangelisation Society, concluded a fortnight of special services here. The meetings were characterised by much earnestness on the part of the preacher, and were well sustained. Many have received spiritual blessing.

Hightae, Dumfrieshire.—Mr. George Robinson, blind evangelist, has closed a fortnight's evangelistic labours here. He sets forth the truth in an earnest, impressive manner. He has brought out the country people night after night. A number have been much impressed.

Lady Henry Somerset is doing a good work at Castlemorton, near Tewkesbury. She has fitted up a granary as a mission-room, in which services are held on Sunday afternoons and on Thursday evenings. We were privileged with a visit from Lady Hope on Thursday evening last.

WM. WATSON.

A mission for the deepening of spiritual life and awakening of missionary zeal has been conducted at Hoyland by Rev. B. Dinnick, assisted by his brother, Rev. John D. Dinnick, of Brighton, in which all the churches have come together. Great blessing has been experienced in the spiritual reviving of believers, as well as in conversions.

Messrs. Munhall and Towner have been meeting with success in a Gospel mission at Columbus, Ohio. The State Journal describes it as "a great religious awakening." The crowds desiring to attend were much larger than the buildings could accommodate. Dr. Munhall's vigorous presentation of the Gospel appears to have made a deep impression on the people, and many have been inquiring what they must do to be saved. The singing of Mr. and Mrs. Towner was greatly appreciated.

A Welsh Mission.—A successful eight days mission was lately held at Llanllechid, in the diocese of Bangor. All the meetings were conducted entirely in the Welsh language, and were exceedingly well attended. The missioner was Rev. E. T. Davies, Vicar of Aberdovey. Reverent solemnity and calm earnestness were impressed upon all the meetings. No less than seventy-six have been added to the communicant-roll. The mission terminated on Sunday evening, October 23, when no less than one hundred and seventy-five persons (chiefly of the labouring class) partook of the Holy Communion.

Bournemouth.—Rev. W. R. Mowll, assisted by Captain Baring and Captain Dawson, has been holding a series of evangelistic services in the Shaftesbury and New Town Halls. Notwithstanding unfavourable weather, several hundred persons have gathered each night, many inquirers remaining to the after-meetings and being dealt with individually. At all the gatherings there has been manifest blessing, many souls being led to decision for Christ, or to deeper knowledge of his truth, whilst one interesting feature has been the discovery of many who received blessing at the mission held here by Mr. Mowll twelve months ago.

CHELSEA.—The mission recently held here was conducted by Rev. W. Haslam, not by Rev. J. Haslam as stated last week.

NATIONAL VIGILANCE ASSOCIATION

The fight against social impurity in its protean shapes is a stern and up-hill one. All the forces of human cupidity, leagued with inhuman passion, are arrayed against the right and the good. Still the report presented at last week's annual meeting by the Committee of this Association was one to rejoice over; though it was also one to cause many searchings of heart, at the existence of evils for which, as yet, no sufficient remedy has been found. This report is a very complete résumé of the Vigilance effort of the past year, in its varied branches—preventive and rescue work, foreign traffic, sham registries, legal action, and reform, &c. We are relieved of the need of going into detail by the fact that the report is issued as a supplement to The Vigilance Record, published this week (1d. 267, Strand, W.C.). We counsel those who feel interested to secure a copy and give it an attentive study. If the perusal does not awaken feelings at once of gratitude and of sympathy, we shall be much mistaken. Middle-class parents ought certainly to read it, in order to see what perils surround their daughters, and how these perils may be averted. At the afternoon Conference last week in Exeter Hall, the work of the various sub-committees was considered, and addresses made in support of continued and aggressive endeavour on behalf of "those in peril on the shore."

Mr. F. W. Crossley, of Manchester, one of the most thoroughgoing and generous supporters of the Society, presided over a large and enthusiastic assembly in the evening. His high-toned speech will be found, almost as delivered, on another page. If we could inoculate our legislature and our judicial executive with but a little of Mr. Crossley's adherence to principle and reverence for Divine law, we should find it far easier to cope with the wickedness that too often flourishes under the very ægis and protecting shelter of authority.

Seven speeches followed, all of them marked by a due sense of the gravity of the times and the need of moral reform, though not all in exact agreement as to methods. The Earl of Meath seemed a little apprehensive of danger in too much publicity, and in the minds of the young being familiarised with the evil that is constantly coming to the surface of society. He was emphatic, however, in his recognition of the loud call for action. It is a horrible thing, he said, that our sons in public schools should be exposed as they are to the attacks of depravity in different forms. If it is unchecked, the evil will eat out the manliness of the nation; so that as a mere matter of patriotism we cannot permit it to go on. Among the causes that go to produce the prevalent social evils of the time, his Lordship mentioned the starvation wages given to young women, intemperance, the wretched dwellings of the people, and the ignorance of religious principles.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes strongly commended the National Vigilance Association as the only organisation influencing the whole country, that is seeking to create a sound public opinion on moral questions. As the result of long experience, he asserted that it was a delusion to fear the utmost publicity. Young people even need not fear being told the plain truth while they are permitted to read their Bibles. The conspiracy of silence in the past has done more than anything else to hinder the repression of the evils we are fighting. But, even if we wished it, we cannot conceal a knowledge of these evils from our children, with vice flaunting itself in every street. Mr. Hughes went on to touch on various points dealt with in the report, giving the work his most unqualified commendation. He called for reform of the law as touching the equality of the sexes and for the enforcement of the law in dealing with disorderly houses. Some lapses of justice indicated in the report, through the action of various judges, came in for severe animadversion, and the conduct of the Cass case by Mr. Justice Stephen was sharply criticised.

Miss Mason's was the only woman's voice heard in the meeting, but it pleaded ably and earnestly for an awakened concern on the part of the Christian churches, for the moral condition of the people. She told some painful facts, within her own knowledge, respecting the annoyance to which respectable young women are subjected from the male pests of the streets. A strenuous appeal was made to the mistresses of households to exercise a more careful supervision over their servants.

A speech followed from Mr. Atherley Jones, M.P., dealing with the case of Miss Cass and P.C. Endacott, and generally impeaching the attitude and action of Sir Charles Warren and Mr. Justice Stephen. It was Mr. Jones who initiated the debate on this case, which resulted in a Government defeat last session, and, judging from the strong convictions he has formed on the subject, it appears likely that the matter will be heard of again within the walls of St. Stephen's.

Rev. Dr. Clifford, while agreeing that the churches have shown a lamentable lack of practical interest in moral questions, declared that this new uprising was essentially a Christian movement. He advocated the establishment of branch Vigilance Associations all over the country, as the surest method of creating the strong, healthy public opinion without which no lasting progress will be made in moral reform. The elect spirits in every community should band themselves together for this purpose. Mr. R. C. Morgan warmly supported this proposition. He contended, at the same time, for a higher standard of morality, which would regard all vice as criminal, and all immorality as having a bearing on the public weal. The claims of God to his law must not be ignored to suit human expediency.

A strong speech from Mr. W. T. Stead gained the favour of the meeting. The income of the Association for the past year, he said, was not so large as the sum that many a wealthy man spends on his own sensual pleasures. He indicated that if it is to do truly national work the Society must be better supported. Its past action had caused many a bad man to tremble and fear, and that he deemed to be a very desirable thing in these days. This reform work can never be popular, and there is the greater need for true-hearted men and women to rally to its support. After a vigorous plea on behalf of the vindication of the rights of weak women and innocent children, Mr. Stead took to himself the credit of having re-established the public pillory, and said there ought to be such a pillory in each centre of population, where the flagrantly bad could be held up to the just execration of their fellows. There can be no milder punishment in form, but no more terrible punishment in essence. The speech was closed by some very marked expressions of disapproval at the police conduct of the Endacott case, and declared that Government by the police was in serious danger of becoming "Government by Endacott."

May we again commend the operations of this excellent and much-needed Society to the best sympathy of the Christian public?

THE PROGRESS OF ROMANISM in the Protestant Church of England is painfully indicated by the fact that praying and offering masses for the dead is greatly on the increase. The "Office of the Dead" was "sung" on a recent evening in sixty-seven churches in England, Scotland, and Wales; and on the following morning masses for the dead were offered up in no fewer than one hundred and seventeen churches.

BRIXTON Y.W.C.A.—The seventh anniversary was held at the Institute, Tunstall-road, on Thursday, November 10. Rev. J. P. Gledstone presided. The report spoke of progress in every branch of the work. Bright addresses were given by the chairman and Revs. J. Douglas and Walter Horne, and wishes were expressed that as the seven years' work had so evidently had God's blessing resting on it, the future might be still more successful. The senior and junior members met for tea the following week in large numbers.

M. E. Garrett, Hon. Sec.

LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS.

'Neither sun nor stars in many days appeared."...... "There stood by me the angel of God."—Acts xxvii. 20—23.

In the darkest clouds of woe
  Mercy ever hideth;
Deeper than its depths can go,
  Love for aye abideth.

Does the tempest wildly break?
  Jesus comes to still it.
Does the heart with anguish ache?
  Jesus comes to fill it.

When no other help is near,
  Then He interposeth:
Though nor sun nor stars appear,
  He his light discloseth.

Christ in weal or woe will be
  Faith's assured possession;
But our dire extremity
  Gives his love expression.

Lucy A. Bennett.

AN INTERESTING RECEPTION.

A hearty reception was tendered to Mrs. J. Ellen Foster (barrister-at-law), of Iowa, U.S.A., by the British Women's Temperance Association, in the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, on Thursday evening last week. Mrs. Bright Lucas presided, and there were present many leading advocates. After the usual devotional exercises, Mrs. Lucas formally welcomed Mrs. Foster, paying a tribute to the influences for good their guest exercised on both sides of the Atlantic.

Mrs. Foster received an enthusiastic welcome from the audience. She proceeded to give an eloquent address, embodying much information as to the temperance work among the Christian women of America. The characteristic feature of the address, however, was an exhaustive and logical examination of the temperance question in all its phases. The speaker laid down, as the planks in her platform, total abstinence for the individual, organised effort in society, and Prohibition for the State. "Man's life problem," said Mrs. Foster, "is to solve God's law, and the solution is always and cannot be otherwise than in harmony with God." After some plain but telling instances showing the close connection between physical causes and physical effects, she naturally turned the point upon alcohol and its results. She traced the progress of temperance teaching, and showed that the Reformer had found God's law in the body, and applied it in his teachings. The waste of power is a sin against God as shown by Jesus' teaching, and from his teaching we receive our warrant to organise for the benefit of the brethren. She endeavoured to show that the temperance world was right in fighting for Prohibition. The Government she claims to be an organisation only to see that we have good citizens, or that the rights of citizens are not interfered with. The public-house makes bad citizens, and therefore comes under the ban of agitation. She dealt out no mercy in combatting the arguments for compensation of drink-sellers, and clearly showed their fallacy. The main factors that are to bring success to the temperance cause are education and religion, which generate moral power. There can be no permanent good in human existence save in harmony with God's law, and God's law demands total abstinence for the individual, and Prohibition for the State.

UNITED MISSIONARY CONFERENCE. — On Monday week a united foreign missionary conference was held at Wesley Chapel, Higher Tranmere, Birkenhead. There was a large attendance, the various Protestant denominations in the town being represented. The object of the Conference was to draw more closely the bonds of Christian union and to deepen interest in the foreign mission work of the churches.

The Book World.

Services of Song. Messrs. Jarrold & Sons have an admirable assortment of these useful sources of profit and entertainment. The works of Mrs. Sewell are largely utilised, set to suitable music by Mr. W. Harding Bonner, and other composers.

Honey in the Comb. By Rev. Jackson Wray. 5s. Nisbet & Co. This is a fit companion to "Light from the Old Lamp," being a volume of "Homespun Homilies for the Crowd." The discourses, thirty in number, contain much fresh and helpful thought, as is always the case with the utterances of this talented preacher.

The Anti-Infidel Library. Marshall Bros. Under this title are published in pamphlet form some twenty lectures in support of Bible truth, by Mr. H. L. Hastings, at 1d. each. They are extremely "smart" and forcible, and, dealing with many different phases of Anti-Christian thought, will render good and much-needed service in these days of blatant infidelity.

Sure Foundations. By A Pastor. 1s. Sunday-school Union. Many will be glad to have, in a collected form, these lectures, which appeared in The Sunday-school Chronicle. Nothing is more important than that children should learn in plain, simple language, the foundation doctrines of revealed truth. Prayerfully used, this little manual will benefit thousands.

Eunice. By the Author of "Christie Redfern." 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. An American story, well written and well sustained. The reader will admire equally the noble, calm spirituality of the invalid Eunice, and the more energetic Christianity of her devoted sister Fidelia. Care is taken to make learning and intellectual qualifications subservient to spiritual life and service.

The Mother's Companion. 2s. 6d. Partridge & Co. The first annual volume of this monthly will meet with much acceptance. Its contents comprise long and short stories (similar to those which appear in The Family Friend), poetry and illustrations, &c., with the addition of articles on such useful subjects as Health, Needlework, How to Feed a Family, and many other practical topics which fully justify its title.

The Levitical Sin-Offering: its Fulfilments and Uses. By Rev. H. Batchelor. 5s. Nisbet & Co. This volume of Nisbet's "Theological Library" is pre-eminently a book for the times. Now that the doctrine of the vicarious atonement is so widely challenged, this plain, reverent, and Biblical unfolding of it is of special value. The reader will find none of the bitterness of the controversialist, or the narrowness of the bigot in this clear and concise treatise, but a full, definite and unmistakable assertion of Christ's atoning work as the Saviour of men. We have read the book with deep interest and spiritual profit.

Cost What it May. By E. E. Hornibrook. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. Among the cartloads of boneless, nerveless fiction that are tumbled out of our modern presses, it is truly refreshing to meet with such a charming book as this "Story of Cavaliers and Roundheads." In purity, and dignity of literary style, the authoress runs a close race with Miss Emily Holt. This is the sort of history book we like to read—not a museum of skeletons, but a portrait gallery of living beings, whose words and actions give a vivid presentation of the chequered life of a troublous epoch in our island story. It is really a gem of literature worthy to be possessed both by young men and maidens.

Cassell's History of England has already established its reputation as one of the best (if not the best) endeavours that has been put forth to present the English people with an interesting and reliable version of the history of their country. To many minds the words "English History" are but too painfully suggestive of schoolroom and cane, but it is quite refreshing to find as in this case the great events of the nation chronicled in an entertaining and attractive form. Twelve months ago Messrs. Cassell & Co. commenced a new and revised edition in monthly parts (7d. each), which will when completed contain about 2000 illustrations of new and original designs by talented artists. The first volume of the Jubilee Edition is now ready, and certainly is a magnificent book. It embraces the period from the Roman invasion to the Wars of the Roses, richly illustrated, and set in bold readable type. The gorgeous cover, too, is well worthy of the name it bears, being emblazoned with a finely embossed coat of arms in gold. A more handsome or useful present has not been brought to our notice this year.

His Adopted Daughter. By Agnes Giberne. 5s. Shaw & Co. This story is not so good as some others by this writer. The characters are well portrayed, but novelty of idea is allowed to overstep the limits of probability.

The Doctrine of the Lord's Supper. By J. J. Stewart Perowne, D.D. 1s. J. Nisbet & Co. In temperate language, but with uncompromising distinctness and holy boldness, Dr. Perowne shows that the doctrines of the real presence, and the sacrifice in the Eucharist, "as now commonly taught by too many clergymen," are neither Scriptural, Primitive, Catholic, nor in conformity with Church of England teaching. We strongly recommend the book as a brief, but effective, exponent of God's truth, and exposure of unscriptural errors.

Dr. G. F. Pentecost has prepared and issued, in a neat and closely printed volume, Bible Studies from the Old and New Testaments, covering the International Sunday-school Lessons for 1888. There are few safer and more interesting guides through the sacred narratives than this renowned American Pastor-Evangelist. These "studies" are at once exegetical, expository, and practical; while they are, as the author has rightly designed, more suggestive than exhaustive. For Sunday-school teachers who do not disdain and yet do not lean too strongly on such helps, we should judge that the volume will prove invaluable. It is amazingly cheap and we earnestly counsel all teachers of the young to treat themselves to a copy by way of Christmas fare. (2s. 6d. Morgan & Scott.)

Fairy in the Spider's Web. By A. L. O. E. Gall & Inglis. In many respects this story of Anglo-Indian life is a sad one, but the book cannot fail to do good if it finds its way into the right quarters. Miss Tucker unveils with a faithful hand the life of worldliness and frivolity led by so many of our countrymen and countrywomen in Indian official circles; in striking contrast she describes the Christian fidelity and behaviour of native converts, and the trials that too often are their bitter portion. Besides being a faithful and reliable reflex of life in our great dependency, the book has an important mission to fulfil, and we trust a wide circulation will enable it to do so. We are thankful to know that the authoress's gifted pen is again at work in her Master's service.

STORY BOOKS.

MESSRS. S. W. PARTRIDGE AND CO.

Vincent Earl's Atonement. By W. J. Lacey. 1s. 6d. A stirring story, advocating total abstinence. It tells of the fortunes of three schoolboys, and how their personal relations to this question affected their after lives.—"Sweet Nancy." By T. L. Meade. 1s. A most appropriate title for this touching narrative. Nancy's father signed a bill for a friend, who proved false; but, through her self-sacrificing efforts, the money was obtained at the eleventh hour. Girls might do well to take a leaf out of Nancy's book.—Little Mother. 9d. A story of an orphan girl who struggled hard to keep her baby brother and herself from going into the "House." How she fared in the effort the reader will find out for himself.—A Boy's Friendship. 9d. This little book will teach boys some excellent lessons about forgiveness.—Nan; or, The Power of Love, by Eliza F. Pollard (1s.), is a capital story for the elder girls. The effect of love and sympathy shown by a young girl of wealth, on a poorer girl who is a deaf and dumb mute, is well portrayed.

MESSRS. GALL AND INGLIS.

Muriel; or, Ways and Means. By M. Vandegrift. 3s. 6d. An American story, delightfully fresh and racy, with a splendidly high Christian tone animating it throughout. If somewhat Utopian, it is most healthy in tone. Issuing, as it does now, from an English house, the spelling should have been Anglicised.—Struggling Upward: a Tale of Mining Life. By S. J. Jones. 3s. The struggle against self, drink, and sin of various kinds is vividly set forth, and when victory comes the reader feels how true to truth the story is. It is full of adventure and exciting incident.—When to Say No. By Rose Terry Cooke. 2s. Whoever has read any of this American writer's stories will know what to expect. A thoroughly good, honest book, with some fine manly boys in it, and none of them "too bright or good." The "No" principle is a good one.—Larry Gilbert; or, Persevere and Win. By S. K. Reeves. 1s. 6d. Another boys' book, quite different in tone from the last, but so natural, with such fresh, manly Christians in some of the characters portrayed, that we can commend every page as being wholesome, and fit for any boy.—Arctic Stories (9d.) is a useful reprint of narratives of some of the earlier expeditions of this century to the North Seas. It is a pity that the tiny record is not continued beyond 1853.—Marley Hall (6d.) is a simple story of country life, made beautiful by the fear and the peace of God.—Sandy Ross (9d.) is a story of the time of King George III., showing how a poor lad became a Christian, and lived "shining for Jesus."—Felix, the Young Gardener, by Theo. H. Barran (6d.), is a translation of an improbable little French story.—The Cousins. 9d. An old-fashioned little story of the "Lazy Lawrence" type. These little books are suitable for Sunday-school libraries.

MESSRS. JAMES NISBET AND CO.

The Story of John Marbeck: His Work and His Reward. By Emma Marshall. 2s. A Windsor organist of three hundred years ago, is supposed to have been the first composer of the Cathedral Service of the Church of England. He, with others, was condemned as a heretic, and favourer of the Reformation, but his musical renown saved his life. Mrs. Marshall has a good story to tell, and she tells it in a true and beautiful manner.—Primrose Garth. By Rev. J. Jackson Wray. 1s. This author is a very Dickens in his merciless exposure of shams and hypocrisy, of meanness and misery. But he is also Dickensonian in his mellow descriptions of love and kindness, and grace. Primrose Garth is splendid, and we expect the story of Michael and Nancy will as effectually open the hearts of its readers this Christmas time as the tale of old Scrooge and Tiny Tim has done before.—Judith the "Stranger." By the Hon. Gertrude Boscawen. 1s. A well-told and touching story of the Kentish hop-pickers. Judith is a rough diamond, but by kindness becomes a precious jewel of rare lustre. Her story is very pathetic, and her death triumphant.—Both Sides. By Jessie W. Smith. 1s. Taking up Mr. Ruskin's words, "Everything has two sides, and God means us to see them both," the writer of this simple little tale weaves a beautiful story, showing how out of the furnace of affliction may come forth a noble life of self-sacrifice.—Stephen Gilmore's Dream; or, Coals of Fire. By Jessie W. Smith. 1s. Quite an original little story, explained by the sub-title, on the subject of forgiving our enemies. Fathers and mothers will like to read how happiness came into the Gilmore home at last.—Flash Lights; or, Short Sunday Readings for Children. 1s. By Edith E. Smyth. If the writer had said "young ladies" instead of "children," we should have better understood her intention. As it is, we can recommend the pithy, true words she writes, and should suggest that instead of reserving it for Sundays, her young readers read it every day.

MORE NOVEMBER MAGAZINES.

ALL THE WORLD.

Most ably conducted, and intensely interesting. Better than all, it is charged throughout with the spirit of pure zeal for God and man.

THE QUIVER.

We are glad to see our old friend going ahead. This month it begins a new and enlarged series, with a coloured frontispiece, and numerous engravings. The number has many good points. We hope, however, that the editor will not lessen the proportion of excellent solid articles for which this magazine has been distinguished.

THE EXPOSITOR.

Though this number is scarcely equal in general interest to the average, the first article alone, "The History of Israel from the Standpoint of Modern Criticism," is worth the whole number. It should be read by all who are troubled with the tremendously important and difficult questions raised by the Broad School of Old Testament critics.

Mr. J. Kensit (18, Paternoster-row) has issued a neat pictorial motto card for 1888, entitled, "He Careth for You."

An Apostle's Charge and Review. By J. Van Sommer. 1d. Morgan & Scott. A thoughtful exposition of 2 Timothy iv.

How Much for Jesus; or, All for All. By Laura A. Barter. ½d. Caswell, Birmingham. A searching message for the New Year.

The Servant's Resting-place. By H. R. Francis. ½d. Shaw & Co. This will prove a helpful and cheering word to workers in the Lord's vineyard as they enter upon another year's service.

New Year's Addresses. Four little books, entitled, "Christ's Little Ones," by Archdeacon Farrar; "For God and our children," by Rev. J. B. Figgis; "the Sunday Days of Youth," by Rev. E. J. Hardy; and "Talks About Walks," by Ancient Simeon—are addressed respectively to Sunday-school teachers, parents, and elder scholars (Sunday-school Union).

Mr. William Luff is well known as a writer of Gospel stories, and has the gift of telling them in a bright and attractive way. Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling sends us two packets, "The Holborn Series" and "Simply Told Stories" (6d. each), which we heartily commend to the notice of tract distributors and Gospel preachers.—From the same publishers we have packet 2 of the "Blue Jacket" Series, by Miss Agnes E. Weston (6d.); "Are you one of the Royal Family?" by Rev. George Everard, and "Truly Happy," by J. Forbes Moncrieff, the latter addressed to the young. Also "Rest for the Weary," containing a well-chosen text and verse for each day of the month. The annual volumes of THE GOSPEL TRUMPET and GOOD NEWS are full of Gospel truths put in an attractive and telling style.

CHRISTMAS CARDS, BOOKS, &c.

It is a matter of wonder how fresh designs can be executed year after year progressing in taste and embellishment. This year Messrs. Hildesheimer & Faulkner (41, Jewin-street) excel in the exquisite finish and variety of their productions. Each packet of cards has a peculiar charm of its own, and delicate blending of the tints is most pleasing in its effects. There is also an assortment of neat little boxes, containing autograph correspondence cards, and envelopes with inscriptions suitable for the season. Also souvenir books tastefully produced, and photographic opals, which are very handsome.

The Religious Tract Society have also a beautiful assortment of season cards and boxes of autograph stationery. The style of the latter bids fair to supersede the familiar card, space being allotted for the names of sender and addressee. The designs of the texts which adorn them are exceedingly chaste and pretty, and will give them preference over non-Scriptural remembrances.

Mr. J. E. Hawkins sends a very attractive packet of Christmas literature, all of it well suited for circulation in Christian households. This year, like other art publishers, he has extended the scope of his publications so as to include a number of beautifully got-up books, containing finely printed poems by standard authors, relieved by many artistic sketches beautifully lithographed in colours or in the fashionable monotint. SONGS OF THE DAWN (5s.) has poems by Horatius Bonar, Charlotte Murray, and others. THE HOMEWARD JOURNEY (3s. 6d.), with poems, amongst others, by Mrs. Pennefather; THE GARMENT OF PRAISE (3s. 6d.), by various writers; FULNESS OF JOY, and ABIDING WITH THEE (2s. 6d. each), having poems by Miss Cecilia Havergal and others, are only a degree less beautiful. All are handsomely bound, and packed in neat boxes. Among the others not so elaborate in get-up, are "The Master's Presence," "Divine Peace," "Communion and other Hymns," and "Crowning Blessings." The Christmas and New Year Cards are all chaste in design, with appropriate texts and greetings, and are suited either for old or young. The "Golden Grain" Almanack can be had in the varied styles so familiar in past years.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Messrs. Cassell & Co.:—The Life and Words of Christ, by Rev. Cunningham Geikie, D.D.

Mr. W. Mack, 28, Paternoster-row:—A Ministry of Twenty-five Years in London, by Rev. W. Stott.

Children's Special Service Mission, 13, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row:—Our Own Magazine Annual Volume, 2s.

Messrs. Macniven & Wallace, 138, Princes-street, Edinburgh:—The People of the Pilgrimage, by Rev. J. A. Kerr Bain.

The Salvation Army, 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.:—Popular Christianity: a Series of Lectures by Mrs. Booth, 1s. and 2s.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin, 26, Paternoster-square:—Daily Life and Work in India, by Rev. W. J. Wilkins, of the London Missionary Society. With fifty-nine illustrations. 5s.

Scottish Temperance League, 108, Hope-street, Glasgow:—Her Only Son, by Miss Hesba Stretton, Author of "Jessica's First Prayer," &c. 1s.—The Adviser, Annual Volume. 1s.

The English Publishing Company, 73, Ludgate Hill, E.C.:—My Tour Eastward: being an account of a recent cruise in the Mediterranean and visits to Egypt and Constantinople, by Edward H. Riches, LL.D., F.R.A.S. 1s. 6d.

Messrs. J. Nisbet & Co.:—The Story of the Life of the Prince Consort, told for boys and girls, by Rev. W. W. Tulloch, B.D. Revised by Her Majesty the Queen. 3s. 6d.—Christ Crucified: Lectures on 1 Cor. ii., by Rev. Adolph Saphir, D.D. Fourth edition. 3s. 6d.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—The Foreign Biblical Library: A Manual of introduction to the New Testament, by Dr. Bernhard Weiss. Vol. i. 7s. 6d.—The Boy Without a Name, by W. M. Thayer, Author of "From Log Cabin to White House." 1s. 6d.

ALMANACKS RECEIVED.

THE YOUNG CHURCHMAN'S SEARCHING AND FINDING ALMANACK. Price 1d. By M. A. E. W. Cowell, Ipswich. If intelligent worship and searching the Scriptures are desirable for the young, this neat and thoughtful Almanack ought to produce both. Prizes are offered for six best-filled almanacks subject to sensible rules. The profits will go to Work among Factory Girls in Ipswich.

The Thames Church Mission Almanack (1d. 31, New Bridge-street, E.C.).—The One Thing Needful Almanack (1d. Mr. W. Waters, Cambridge Arcade, Southport).—The Life of Faith Almanack, compiled by Rev. Evan H. Hopkins (1d. Messrs. Marshall Bros., 10, Paternoster-row).—The Believers' Almanack (1d. Mr. A. Holness, 14, Paternoster-row).—The Church Missionary Almanack (1d., paper; mounted on canvas and varnished, 6d. C.M.S., Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C.).—The Golden Grain Almanack. 1d., 2d., and 6d.—The Gracious Words Almanack (1d. and 6d. J. E. Hawkins, 17, Paternoster-row).—The "Seeking and Finding" Almanack (1d.), and the Friend of Missions Almanack (1d. S. W. Partridge & Co.).

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

A TIN-SHOP has recently been converted into a Wesleyan native church for the rising town of Umtata, the capital of the Transkei Province, Cape Colony.

THE GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS SOCIETY, formed in 1832 to assist weak and scattered Protestants in Germany, since its foundation has helped 1398 churches and chapels, and 691 schools.

CEYLON is sending forth missionaries from amongst its own people. Two young natives, one of them a Buddhist convert, have left the island to join the new Wesleyan Mission in Upper Burmah.

CHINA.—The Spirit of Missions, the organ of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, states that the Chinese Governor of the large island of Formosa is starting a college, and has chosen a missionary to inaugurate and organise the institution. Such a step would have been regarded as a miracle one generation ago.

SAXONY.—In an article in a Protestant journal a Dresden clergyman suggests that hotels and public-houses should be under the control of the State, instead of being kept by self-interested individuals. They could be let out as railway restaurants are, but the profit, instead of flowing into one man's pocket, might form a fund for the benefit of the poor. This sort of management would, it is thought, prevent much of the serious excess which now prevails.—Evan.-Kirch. Anzeiger.

BOYCOTTING THE POPE.—We observe from The Converted Catholic that Dr. McGlynn, of New York, is continuing to defy the Pope and all his minions. In a recent speech to a large Roman Catholic gathering he said, "You have hitherto been fools to give your hard-earned savings to the Pope, and the next time when Peter's Pence comes around refuse to give anything. The best way to bring the ecclesiastical machine to its senses is to boycott it, and then it will have pastors of the people's choice."

MADAGASCAR.—The Queen of Madagascar, with the concurrence of her Prime Minister, has issued a proclamation forbidding all Malagasy women to live in concubinage with foreigners, and declaring that those who disregard the proclamation shall lose all civil rights and suffer the confiscation of any property they hold under Malagasy law. This proclamation, which took effect in September, will deal a heavy blow at a common form of immorality in Madagascar. The Queen is also dealing with slavery and some other abuses.

UGANDA.—Dr. Alex. Mackay, of Ventnor, has received news of the safety of his son, Mr. A. M. Mackay, of the Church Missionary Society, in Eastern Equatorial Africa. He has effected his escape from Uganda and its cruel king, Mwanga, and has arrived in safety at Mongola, a missionary station near the southern extremity of Lake Nyanza. Such has been the merciless persecution to which he and the native Christians have been subjected that Mr. Mackay feels himself prostrate both in body and mind, yet he proposes returning to the scene of his labours and sufferings as soon as possible.

LA SEMAINE RELIGIEUSE recognises in the French liberal or Broad religious party signs that the destructive tendency to which it has so long given itself, is being followed by a period of reconstruction. This appears in the choice of subjects for next year's consideration—The Composition of a Bible adapted to the use of Families, and The Duty of Liberals with regard to Y.M.C.A. The late Conference at Nimes, too, was occupied by such questions as the elevation of the moral tone, the revival of the religious sentiment in the people, and the desirability of giving a more affirmative and less negative teaching.

SOUTH AFRICA.—Another language has been reduced to writing. Dr. Walter Elmslie, Free Church of Scotland missionary among the Zulus of Angoniland, west of Lake Nyassa, has sent home the first printed fruits of the Ubungona language, issued from the neighbouring mission press at Blantyre. The little book is called "Izongoma Zo' Mlungu," and contains the Ten Commandments, passages from the Psalms, Proverbs, and the Gospels, and fourteen hymns, all in Ubungoni, in Roman characters. Several of the well-known hymns, such as "Just as I am," "Oh, how He Loves!" &c., are among those translated.

BISHOP TAYLOR'S WORK IN AFRICA.—Bishop Taylor's advance party have at last reached the goal in the depths of Africa toward which he has so long been struggling. Before his pioneer band of missionaries started, the Bishop declared his intention to plant stations among the tribes along the Upper Kassai and its tributaries. Toward this region his chain of stations has been steadily lengthening. Dr. Harrison, one of the party that the Bishop led up the Congo in July last, has reached Luluaburg, the new station of the Congo State. He is one of the two physicians who have followed the bishop to Africa, and he is now established among the natives. These Balubas are among the most remarkable savages in the world.

THE FRENCH IN AMERICA.—In 1881 the American Methodists began some missions among the French population in the United States. It is now proposed to do something among the 20 000 French or Canadians of Chicago, and a new mission is being organised in the northern part of New York State. At Lowel, Mass., the evangelistic work has created opposition from Roman Catholics; the windows of the chapel having been broken. In Indiana, Brazil, a small Methodist church exists among the French and Belgian miners. In New Orleans there are about 100 000 persons who speak French. They are nominally Romanists, but have very little real religion. Here the Methodists have set vigorously to work, and in a little over a year about fifty thousand tracts and hundreds of New Testaments have been distributed.—L'Evangéliste.

WEST AFRICA.—Rev. Thomas Truscott, Methodist Free Church missionary, writing from the Mission House, Freetown, Sierra Leone, says:—"We are passing through a heavy trial here. On Tuesday, October 4, our mission at Senehoo, in the Bompepeh country, was attacked by the Younies, a tribe very similar to the Masai for their warlike and plundering propensities. These lawless marauders came down upon the town, and burnt it, completely destroying the mission premises, and killed three of our members, viz., one man and two women. I am thankful to say that our native teacher managed to escape with his wife and child, although in a state of perfect destitution. It seems very discouraging that the results of our five years' work in that country should be destroyed in a few hours. Ask the friends to pray for us."

BROTHER GEORGE ROSE, a native of Sierra Leone, who has for some years past been doing evangelistic work, such as open-air preaching, house-to-house visits for reading and prayer, among the many careless and indifferent ones in the lanes and suburbs of Freetown; tract distribution in hospitals and elsewhere, without help from any public body or society, and having a great desire to identify himself with some Evangelical Societies in England, will be very thankful to any Christian worker who will favour him with a visit to England, for he has no means of his own. He has lately been conducting services at Wilberforce, Murray Town, and many other villages in Sierra Leone, and in Freetown, in St. John's Methodist Church, and given temperance lectures in Jehovah, Bethesda, and others of the United Methodist Free Churches, by the kind permission of Rev. Thomas Truscott, general superintendent of the churches. Brother Rose will be glad even to work his passage to England if kind permission could be granted by the companies' agents of the mail steamers.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

A series of successful temperance meetings were held recently in Aberdeen and district.

The British Weekly believes that ere long the Church of Christ will refuse to accept gifts from those engaged in the liquor traffic.

Canon Barker, of Marylebone, recently delivered a powerful and convincing address on temperance at Hare-court Chapel, Canonbury.

The once popular London theatre known as the "Vic." is now a centre of earnest effort to bring the masses to temperance and religion.

At the annual conference of the North Wales Temperance Association an advanced programme of temperance reform was unanimously adopted.

Mr. W. H. Whitehead, of Manchester, has concluded an eight days' Gospel temperance mission in Leominster. A large number of pledges were taken, and Christian workers have been greatly stimulated.

Canon Weldon's assertion that at the recent Braemar gathering, held near Balmoral at her Majesty's desire, drunkenness was disgracefully prevalent, has been contradicted, amongst others, by Bishop Douglas, Aberdeen.

The Irish Wesleyan Conference Temperance Committee, says the Belfast Christian Advocate, has decided to issue prizes to young people of specified ages for the best essays on the Personal, the Social, and the Physiological Benefits of Total Abstinence.

A week of Gospel temperance meetings, conducted by Rev. J. M. Hewson (Travelling Secretary of the Baptist Total Abstinence Association) has recently been brought to a close at the Baptist Chapel, John-street, Bedford-row. Nearly two hundred pledges were taken.

Successful meetings, by Mrs. Spencer, of Bristol, have been held in Dublin, in connection with the Women's Temperance Association. These included five drawing-room and other afternoon meetings for ladies of the upper and middle classes, three in the evening being more especially for working people, and one for the members of the Y.W.C.A. A large gathering was held of poor women, attenders of the various Mothers' Meetings in this city, and Mrs. Spencer also addressed the Protestant inmates of one of the city workhouses, and the attenders at the Prison Gates Mission.

FOREIGN.

From America further cases of violent attacks upon Prohibitionists are reported, and in some instances death has ensued.

At Malta the branches of the National Temperance League continue prosperous. During the quarter numerous meetings were held, and many pledges taken.

Professor Bryce, in a recent letter, called attention to the issue of licences for the sale of spirits in Upper Burmah, a course from which the "worst results" may be expected.

Mr. J. Malins states that in all Spain there is no teetotal society. "The Spanish speaking people of the Argentine Republic have constituted a Good Templar lodge at Buenos Ayres."

Mr. Samuel Smith, M.P., questions the accuracy of the statement issued by the Government of India that the consumption of alcohol in India had decreased. He states that this year, in spite of protests, the number of licences is being increased.

Mr. Caine, M.P., recently visited Calgary, in the far West. He writes: "Prohibition makes it one of the quietest, most respectable, and law-abiding places, with the Salvation Army barracks as its most popular place of entertainment." Mr. Caine says that though the population is of a rough class, the Salvation Army is greatly respected.

Notes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, NOV. 20.—JEREMIAH XXI.

We have next a group of four chapters (xxi.—xxiv.) which Keil puts under the heading of "The Shepherds and Leaders of the People." It contains prophecies relating to different reigns of kings of Judah, beginning with the last, Zedekiah. This may be (as most critics think) because "Zedekiah, in his ninth year, sent an embassy to Jeremiah asking his prayers when the Chaldæan army was advancing to the siege of Jerusalem. He could, however, give the King no hope, but gathered into one all those passages in his previous prophecies which bore upon the conduct of those who were the leaders of the people—the kings, priests, and prophets—that he might show with whom the guilt of the nation lay."—S.C.

2.—If so be that the Lord will deal with us according to all his wondrous works.—Alluding perhaps especially to God's deliverance of Jerusalem under Hezekiah, when that king sent to the prophet Isaiah (Is. xxxvii.) just as Zedekiah now sends to Jeremiah. But that was 120 years before, and since then God's repeated calls to repentance had been disregarded, and, as the symbol of the breaking of the potter's vessel (xix.) had shown, the sentence was now irrevocable.

5.—I myself will fight against you.—Comp. Matt. xxii. 7, where the Lord calls the Roman army which destroyed Jerusalem "his army."

8.—Behold, I set before you the way of life, and the way of death.—This does not refer, any more than Deut. xxx. 19, upon which it is founded, to the salvation of the soul, but to life or death of the body.

12.—Execute judgment in the morning.—"An important part of the king's duties was personally to hear and to adjudicate upon cases in the open space at the city gate. See 2 Sam. xv. 2—4."—Streane.

13.—O inhabitant of the valley.—"Inhabitant is feminine, the population of Jerusalem being always personified as a woman, the daughter of Zion. Jerusalem is at once a valley and a rock. It is called valley of vision (Is. xxii. 1)."—S.C.

MONDAY, NOV. 21.—JEREMIAH XXII.

Keil puts in one group, xxii.—xxiii. 8, and entitles it, "Rebuke of the ungodly kings Jehoiakim and Jehoiakin, and promise of a righteous Branch of David."

2.—Hear the word of the Lord, O King of Judah.—Jeremiah here addresses to Zedekiah a summary of previous prophecies which had been pronounced against Jehoahaz (or Shallum), ver. 10—12; Jehoiakim, ver. 13—23; and Jehoiakin (Coniah). The failure of all Josiah's seed is thus shown in contrast to the next king whom God should raise up, spoken of in next chapter (xxiii. 5—8). He should be a King worthy of the name.

4.—If ye do this thing indeed.—Probably addressed, in the first instance, to Jehoiakim at an early period of his reign, for after the breaking of the potter's vessel (xix.), which is generally assigned to his fourth year, there was no hope held out of the judgment then pronounced being averted.

6.—Thou art Gilead unto Me, (and) the head of Lebanon.—"The 'and' must be omitted. Gilead is extolled for its aromatic plants (viii. 22), its grassy uplands (Cant. iv. 1, vi. 5), its general fertility (Isa. xxxiii. 9), and especially for its splendid oak forests (Isa. ii. 13; Zech. xi. 2). Lebanon is the usual metaphor for everything of surpassing magnificence. Jeremiah can find nothing nobler to which he may compare the kingly house of David."—S.C. The throne of David was thus spoken of by God, no doubt, in reference to the promised Heir of that throne, who should fulfil God's ideal (Luke i. 32).

10.—Weep ye not for the dead…but weep sore for him that goeth away.—"The dead" refers to Josiah, for whose untimely fall at Megiddo there was great lamentation (2 Chron. xxxv. 24). "Him that goeth away" was his son and successor, Jehoahaz (Shallum), who, after three months' reign, was deposed by Pharaoh Necho, and taken to Egypt, where he died (2 Kings xxiv. 34).

13.—Woe unto him that buildeth his house by unrighteousness.—"Jehoiakim, who lived in splendour amid the misery of the nation, and amused himself with building palaces, when the whole land was ground down by heavy taxation, perished miserably at the age of thirty-six, so little cared for that his body was cast aside without burial."—S.C.

24.—Coniah…king of Judah.—Jehoiakin, the son of Jehoiakim, who succeeded him, and was taken captive to Babylon; reigning but three months (2 Kings xxiv. 8). Though his uncle, Zedekiah, reigned at Jerusalem after he was taken captive, he was in order of descent the last of the kings of Judah.

TUESDAY, NOV. 22.—JEREMIAH XXIII.

1.—Woe be unto the pastors.—Better as in R.V., "shepherds," it refers to kings.

5.—I will raise unto David a righteous Branch.—The first clear Messianic prophecy in Jeremiah. Coming as it does at the close of the sentences pronounced upon the helpless and hopeless successors of Josiah, the last godly king of Judah, it opens up a bright prospect for coming days (we may add, days yet to come) when "the Lord God shall give unto (Jesus) the throne of his father, David."

6.—The Lord our righteousness.—This glorious title anticipates the Gospel revelation of Jehovah becoming Jesus, and being "of God made unto us righteousness" (1 Cor. i. 30).

8.—And they shall dwell in their own land.—This part of the prophecy awaits its fulfilment at the Lord's second coming.

16.—They speak a vision of their own heart.—"The heart was regarded by the Jews as the seat of the intellect."—S.C. Of how many religious teachers of the present day may not this be said, as well as what follows, "And not out of the mouth of the Lord," i.e., out of God's Word?

28.—What is the chaff to the wheat?—The chaff is the prophet's dream, the wheat is God's Word. "The dream is but a dream, and to be told as such, but God's Word is to be spoken of as certain and absolute truth."—S.C.

29.—Is not my word like as a fire?—"It is the great purifier which destroys all that is false and leaves only the genuine metal."—S.C. And like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces?—Even hearts as hard as the nether millstone. Such broken hearts are soon bound up by Him who has been anointed to do so (Is. lxi. 1).

33.—What burden?—LXX. and Vulg. follow a reading of the Hebrew which gives a more pointed sense, "Ye are the burden" (R.V. margin).

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 23.—JEREMIAH XXIV.

"In this chapter Jeremiah further declares that Zedekiah and all the priests and prophets of Jerusalem are merely refuse, the decaying remains of a basket of fruit, after it has been picked over. When Jeconiah was carried to Babylon, they doubtless congratulated themselves on being saved from such a fate; really all that was good was then culled out and placed in safety, and they were left behind, because they were not worth the taking."—S.C.

2.—Very naughty figs.—"Naughty" means worthless. R.V. renders it "bad."

6.—I will set mine eyes upon them for good.—This explains why those carried captive are likened to good figs. The goodness is not in them, but in God's purpose towards them.

7.—I will give them an heart to know Me.—Those who returned from Babylon (Ezra i. 5) were those "whose spirit God had raised." This was the literal fulfilment; but there is also a spiritual fulfilment in the Israel of God, and one, both literal and spiritual, yet future.

9.—I will deliver them to be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth.—"There is a close analogy between Jeremiah at the first destruction of Jerusalem, and our Lord at the second. So too there the good figs were those converts picked out by the preaching of Christ and the Apostles; the bad figs were the mass of the people left for the Romans to destroy."—S.C.

THURSDAY, NOV. 24.—JEREMIAH XXV.

The prophecy of this chapter was delivered seven or eight years before that in the last chapter, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, and first of Nebuchadnezzar.

3.—From the thirteenth year of Josiah.—This was the year when Jeremiah began to prophesy (i. 2).

11.—Shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years.—The first announcement of the Babylonish captivity.

12.—Will make it perpetual desolations.—This so distinctly refers to the "land of the Chaldeans" that it hardly allows one to cherish the idea that the prophecies of Babylon's desolation (Isa. xiii. 19—22) have not yet been fulfilled. The doom of mystical Babylon (Rev. xvii.) is expressed in language taken from that of the literal.

17.—Then took I the cup…and made all the nations to drink.—Probably, by some symbolical action not recorded, or it may be by proclaiming publicly that they were to drink of this cup.

26.—And the king of Sheshach shall drink after them.—"Sheshach" is (as Jerome tells us he learned from his Hebrew teacher) the name Babel, written in cypher. The cypher consists in reckoning from the last letter of the alphabet instead of the first; thus B, B, L correspond to S, S, Ch. S in Hebrew being the last letter but one. This is confirmed by li. 41, where Sheshach and Babylon evidently are interchangeable. The postponement of the doom of the king of Babylon (thus designated), until "all the kingdoms of the world, which are upon the face of the earth" have drunk, may point to the last judgment upon the king of mystical Babylon—i.e., Antichrist.

FRIDAY NOV. 25.—JEREMIAH XXVI.

1.—In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim.—The first six verses of this chapter are a brief summary of vii. 1—16, introduced to account for the ill-treatment which the prophet received from the people for so prophesying.

11.—Then spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes and to all the people.—It is impossible not to see here a typical foreshadowing of the treatment of a greater Prophet than Jeremiah, whom the chief priests accused to the Roman governor as "worthy to die." These princes, &c. (as did Pilate), find no fault in him (see ver. 16); but, were it not for the intervention of Ahikam (ver. 24), he would have been given (as Jesus was) "into the hand of the people to put him to death." See Jeremiah's sufferings, typical of Christ's, in Lamentations i. 12, iii. 1.

20.—And there was also a man, &c.—"This narrative of Urijah's fate was no part of the speech of the elders; the date does not suit. Jeremiah, when he reduced the narrative to writing, added this history to show the ferocity of Jehoiakim, and the danger to which he had himself been exposed."—S.C.

SATURDAY, NOV. 26.—JEREMIAH XXVII.

1.—In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim.—"It is clear from verses 3, 12, and 20 that for Jehoiakim we must read Zedekiah. This is not without support among Hebrew MSS., whilst the Syriac version also reads 'Zedekiah.' The LXX. omits the verse. It is therefore either a later insertion in the text, or a confusion between the opening verses of xxvi. and xxvii. led to the introduction of the wrong name here."—Cambridge Bible for Schools.

3.—The messengers which come.—"The ambassadors of these five kings had probably come to Jerusalem to consult about forming a league to throw off the Babylonian supremacy."—S.C.

12.—Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon.—As the yoke of Babylon was a penal infliction upon Judah for her sins, to rebel against that yoke was to rebel against God who imposed that yoke.

22.—They shall be carried to Babylon.—This announcement, that "the vessels that remain in the house of the Lord"…"shall be carried to Babylon," seems inconsistent with the advice in ver. 18, "If they be prophets…let them now make intercession to the Lord of Hosts that the vessels which are left…go not to Babylon." The best explanation is perhaps that given in xviii. 8, that the execution of a sentence pronounced may be averted by immediate repentance. The prayer of repentance is never too late till the sentence is actually carried out, or, as in Jer. xix., declared to be irrevocable.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Captain Cobham, chairman of the Church Association, condemns the proposed union with the Old Catholics as "downright treachery."

An anonymous donor has sent to the Church Missionary Society a donation of £1000, after reading an attack on the Society in one of the London daily papers.

Rev. Charles Bedford has recently completed his fiftieth year as Rector of Denton, near Newhaven, Sussex. He has throughout his long and useful career been a most consistent Protestant and Evangelical.

The Bishop of Liverpool has been warning his clergy to preach against Sabbath desecration, gambling, the breach of the seventh commandment, and not to give way to extremes of church decoration, or Saturday night amusements for the people.

The Church Society for Providing Homes for Waifs and Strays have recently received from the Clothworkers' Company a donation of twenty pounds, and from the Mercers' Company a donation of twenty-five guineas, in aid of the Home for Crippled Children about to be opened by the Society.

From a book written by the superintendent of the London Diocesan Home Mission, we learn that in 1837 there were 260 Episcopal churches and chapels-of-ease in London; there are now 720 churches, and the cost of new ones can scarcely have been less than £3,250,000. The number of the clergy is four times as great as in 1837.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Much blessing rested on W. C. Collyer's week's mission in Birmingham.

Hannah Maria Wigham, the gifted authoress has been recorded a minister of the Gospel by the Dublin Yearly Meeting.

Joseph G. Alexander, of Croydon, and Jane Miller, of Edinburgh are to accompany Thomas and Anne W. Marsh on their Peace Mission to European capitals.

At Charlbury, in Oxton, Frederick Sessions, of Gloucester, has been preaching and lecturing to large audiences, and sinners have been publicly acknowledging Christ, while the saints were cheered.

William Jones, secretary of the London Peace Society, is having large services in America. The union of England and America under the banner of peace is surely a noble sight, and heralds happier days for both.

George Wood, of Luton, has conducted a three weeks' and William Hobson, of Cardiff, a one week's mission among the adult schools and missions of Leeds. Converting power abounded, and a goodly number, previously under preparation, crossed the line and owned Christ.

METHODIST.

Rev. William Gibson reports a revival in evangelistic work in Paris. Thirteen souls have been brought to Christ within a fortnight.

Rev. Danzy Sheen, supported by a noble band of earnest local preachers and brethren, has recently witnessed a revival at Tatham-street Primitive Methodist Chapel, Sunderland.

Several Primitive Methodist districts are making special arrangements for evangelistic services on a large scale, and a deepened interest in the spiritual advancement of the denomination is being manifested in many parts of the country.

Rev. Thomas Waugh recently closed a thirteen days' mission in Standishgate Chapel, Wigan. The services were largely attended, and toward the end of the mission the chapel was crowded to overflowing. The Word was with power; and about 550 adults and 50 children went into the inquiry-room.

The Methodist Churches, says The Methodist Times, are all feeling the influence of the grand West-end Mission. The two London District Committees of the Primitive Methodist Connexion held a united meeting on Friday last, to make arrangements for a more determined effort to reach the masses of this great city.

After some difficulty a house for the sisters of the West London Mission has been secured in Montague-street. Several ladies are already in residence. All communications for these ladies should be addressed to Katherine House, 19, Montague-street, W.C. Other ladies are arranging to enter upon the work in a short time.

At Langsett-road, Sheffield, the society, under the guidance of Rev. W. D. Judson (Primitive Methodist), have begun Sunday afternoon lectures to working men on social questions. A brass band parades the streets, and numbers, who have been neglecting it for years, have been attracted to the house of God. The public-houses are being emptied.

A Convention for the Promotion of Spiritual Life for the Churches in the Leeds and Bradford District of the United Methodist Free Churches was held at Leeds on Tuesday week. Rev. F. Marrs referred to the enormous influence Methodism has exerted in the past, as shown by the fact that there are at the present time over four million members and twenty-three million adherents.

At a missionary meeting at Gravel-lane Chapel, Manchester, on Monday week, Mr. H. B. Harrison exhibited a small bag containing 104 farthings, the offering of a poor widow to the missionary cause. During two years this widow had conscientiously laid by weekly out of her small pittance one farthing, which sum, indeed, was a considerable proportion of her small income; and of her penury she gave for the spread of the Gospel abroad.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Fund for Promoting Village Methodism in the First London District, Rev. Thomas Champness said that if Methodists were to do their share in evangelising England, they must do it by sheer hard work. There is no patent, no secret about it; the way to save England is for every preacher to go to bed thoroughly well tired. He liked to feel so tired after a day's work that he could hardly walk home.

At the close of the prayer-meeting in Wardour Hall, on Monday week, a stranger, who wished his name kept secret, presented Mr. Nix with a cheque for £50, in aid of the soup kitchen in connection with the West London Mission.

The Liverpool ministers have covenanted together to spend some time in private prayer every Wednesday, with a view to secure a revived ministry and a revived church. Why, says The Methodist Times, should not special prayer be made to God by every Methodist for a deep and an extensive revival of the work of God?

SALVATION ARMY.

At a meeting at Croydon, at which Colonel Nicol gave a stirring address, upwards of one hundred persons came out to the penitent form.

Five nationalities proclaimed the love of Jesus in a recent Sunday afternoon meeting in Amsterdam, Holland—Dutch, French, German, Flemish, and English.

At present the Army has not commenced operations in Norway, but they have decided to commence work as soon as possible. A barracks to seat 700 is being erected at Christiania, and it is hoped that it will be ready by the beginning of January.

A member of Parliament connected with a large business firm in the city recently said, "I am persuaded that legislation will not stop drunkenness, but I believe the work in which the Salvation Army are engaged is accomplishing this object, and I very gladly give a subscription towards the erection of the barracks which was brought under my notice."

Describing his tour in Sweden, "General" Booth writes from Gothenburg:—"We were soon comfortably located in the house of a lady who has quite a large establishment for training girls for domestic service. Nearly every girl that comes into the place gets converted in the Army meetings, and so goes forth into the world, not only able to bake and wash, and clean and serve, but to pray, and believe, and fight for the salvation of those whose earthly comfort she goes to promote."

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. J. Guinness Rogers presided on Tuesday week at a farewell meeting at Clapham to take leave of eleven missionaries who are departing for India.

Popular Sunday evening services are being held at the Bow and Bromley Institute by Rev. W. E. Hurndall, of Harley-street Congregational Church, from 8 to 9.30. The meetings are well attended.

Rev. Henry Simon has accepted an invitation to the pastorate of Harecourt Chapel, Canonbury, and enters upon his duties on the first Sunday in the New Year. The church at Harecourt is looking forward very hopefully to a bright future under the new pastor.

An effort is being made to make adequate provision for the widow of the late Rev. G. M. Murphy, of Lambeth, who did such good service in the temperance cause. Friends who would like to assist may communicate with Mr. W. Wightman, 9, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

Acting upon the advice of numerous friends, Rev. W. A. Meaton has resolved to devote the greater part of his time to mission preaching. Friends desiring Mr. Meaton's services may apply to 26, Grove-road, Acton, W. Mr. Meaton will be associated in his labours with Revs. J. F. T. Hallowes and R. Balgarnie.

A meeting for conference and prayer has been held at Handbridge Chapel, Chester, called by Rev. Wm. Jones, pastor. Many suggestions were made as how to get another baptism of the life of God on the church. Some testified what the Lord had done for their souls, and others confessed their lukewarmness, while many resolved to consecrate themselves afresh to the Master's service.

The results as at present ascertained of Rev. Robert Balgarnie's recent mission at New-court Chapel, Finsbury-park, are most cheering. Over a hundred persons who were awakened or had received blessing gave in their names and addresses to be visited. These included a large number of young men. Such as desire to join the church are sure of a hearty welcome from such a pastor as Rev. Ossian Davies. The work is being actively followed up.

BAPTIST.

Rev. Charles Spurgeon, of Greenwich, will be the preacher at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday next.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Leicester, commenced a four days' special mission at Richmond Chapel, Liverpool, on Saturday last.

Rev. James Smith, formerly of Delhi, is returning to Simla, to assume charge of the mission there, thus relieving Dr. Carey for medical work in the plains.

Rev. J. H. Tuckwell, of Carey-street Chapel, Reading, has intimated to his church his intention to resign the pastorate on account of change of views on the subject of baptism.

An all-day Conference, in connection with the Baptist Ministers' Prayer Union, will be held at Melbourne Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, 24th inst. The object will be to seek an increase of spiritual power.

At the usual Saturday evening prayer-meeting at the East London Tabernacle, the vicar of St. Stephen's, North Bow (Rev. J. Pullein Thompson), said that in the future he meant to work shoulder to shoulder with the pastor (Mr. Archibald Brown) to stem the tide of immorality existing on every hand in the East-end.

Dr. S. H. Booth, secretary of the Baptist Union, has received a letter from Rev. W. Hamilton, of Carrickfergus, who is now eighty-seven years of age, and was for sixty years a foreign missionary, in which he says:—"I think it would be a good thing at the present time if you would invite all the ministers belonging to the Baptist Union to unite in prayer that the Lord would enable them to live so near to Him, and so to preach Christ, that no one will believe an evil report of them."

In addition to Mr. Spurgeon and Mr. Archibald Brown, Rev. David Davies (of Brighton), Rev. James A. Spurgeon (of Croydon), and Rev. W. H. Burton (of Dalston), have resigned their connection with the Baptist Union. The Gildencroft Baptist Church, Norwich (Rev. Thos. Bullimore, pastor), have also seceded from the Union on the same grounds of those as Mr. Spurgeon.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Mr. William Thomson concluded a fortnight's evangelistic services at Gloucester on October 28. Many have borne witness to blessing received during the mission.

As an outcome of a recent mission at Ipswich, by Mr. George Nokes, it has been decided to hold special Gospel services for the people after the ordinary service every Sunday evening.

Dr. William Wilson, secretary of the Free Church Sustentation Fund, will retire at the next Assembly through pressure of age and infirmity. Dr. Wilson has rendered signal service to his church.

Rev. Emmanuel Vanorden, of Sao Paulo, Brazil, has delivered addresses on behalf of his work in Brazil at Belgrave Church (Dr. Saphir's), and at Regent-square Church (Dr. Oswald Dykes'), which greatly interested the hearers.

The Students' Missionary Society of the English Presbyterian Church, which last year raised £180 for the Chinese Mission at Singapore, has resolved to plead this year for funds towards the building of a hospital for medical mission work at Taiwanfoo, in Formosa.

At Bell-street Mission, in connection with Dr. Donald Fraser's Church at Marylebone, special lectures are being delivered in defence of Christianity. Of recent years the working classes in the neighbourhood have assumed, to an alarming extent, a sceptical attitude towards the truths of Revelation.

At the meeting of the Bristol Presbytery on November 8, a Conference was held to receive reports and to discuss the best methods of conducting evangelistic work. Several of the brethren bore testimony to quickened life and much conversion found in their congregations as the result of recent special services.

Rev. S. D. Scammell, of Chatham, has commenced a series of Social Saturday Evenings for the People. His aim, he says, is to provide a counter-attraction to the public-house, in the shape of short, pleasant, sociable, free, and open entertainments each Saturday evening during the winter months, varied now and then with lectures on interesting topics.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

There are forty-nine associations, with nearly 500 members, in the temperance societies of the Unite Diocese of Cork.

Successful anniversary services have just been hel in Wellington-place Evangelical Union Church, Belfast by Rev. Dr. Fergus Ferguson, of Glasgow.

There are now seventeen orphan girls in the Metho dist Female Orphan School, Dublin, and twenty-thre inmates in the Methodist Widows' Almshouse.

Mr. George Clarke has been conducting a series o mission services in Cork, similar to those he recentl held in the Christian Union Buildings, Dublin.

A successful series of temperance meetings wa recently held in the neighbourhood of Cookstown, b Mr. S. Glasgow, of the Irish Temperance League.

A legacy of over £500 left by the late Mr. Jam Lindsay, J.P., to the Belfast Female Mission, the Bibl women of which are doing an excellent work, has ju been paid over by his executors.

The Dublin University Fuh Kien Mission is sending missionary to Foo Chow. On Monday week a meeti was held in Trinity College, Dublin, to wish Godspee to Rev. J. S. Collins immediately before his departure

Sherrard's Catechism, which is described as a high ritualistic publication, and which had been placed the programme of religious instruction in Episcop Church schools, has been struck off the programm after an animated debate in the Synod of the Unit Diocese of Dublin.

At the opening of the annual session of the Assembl College, Belfast, on Tuesday week, an able address w delivered by Rev. Dr. Todd Martin, the newly-appoint Professor of Christian Ethics, in which he showed th the doctrine of Evolution did not hold good in t sphere of morals where man was a free agent.

The annual meeting of the Ulster Female Penitenti was held in Belfast on Monday week. There wa large attendance of clergymen of various denomi tions, and others interested in the work of rescue. T Society has been in existence for over forty-eight yea and the past year was one of the most prosperous it had.

A most successful revival mission has just been c cluded in Crumlin-road Methodist Church, Belfast. one meeting four men and their wives were toget led to the feet of Jesus; at another forty-one peni sinners professed to accept Christ; and on one of Sundays eighty-five persons came out on the Lo side. About four hundred and fifty in all have fessed conversion.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Mr. Walter Morrison, senior elder and office beare the John Knox Presbyterian Church, Newcastle Tyne.—Rev. Thomas Gill, who has been in the tist ministry for nearly half a century.—Dr. Will son, for forty-four years parish minister of Colle Fifeshire.—Rev. J. Pillans Macdougall, minister of and Graemsay, Orkney.—Captain John Watson, an e in Princes-street United Presbyterian Church, Arbro —Mr. Dagald Macphail, an elder of Hope-street Church, Glasgow, and author of several tracts in Ga —Mr. Robert Porter, of Belfast, an active Chris worker.—Rev. William Crow, one of the oldest mini in the Primitive Methodist Connexion.—Rev. Wil Hopper, for many years a devoted minister of the Christian denomination.—Rev. Lewis F. Potter, vic St. Leonard's-on-Sea.—Rev. Thomas Hayton, vic Long Crendon, near Thame.

The Religious Tract Society's List.

PICTURES FROM HOLLAND. Drawn with Pen and Pencil. By RICHARD LOVETT, M.A. With 132 Illustrations. Imperial 8vo., 8s., handsome cloth, gilt. The New Volume of the "Pen and Pencil" Series.

VICTORIA, R.I.: Her Life and Reign. By Dr. MACAULAY. Sixty Engravings by EDWARD WHYMPER and others. Small 4to., 10s. 6d., handsome cloth, gilt edges.

THE NON-CHRISTIAN PHILOSOPHIES of the AGE. New Special Volume of the Present Day Tracts, containing Eight Tracts, by Professors BLAIKIE, RADFORD, THOMSON, PORTER, and IVERACH, and the late Rev. W. F. WILKINSON. 3s. 6d. cloth.

PRESENT DAY TRACTS. Volume IX., containing Tracts by the Revs. Principal CAIRNS, D.D., J. MURRAY MITCHELL, LL.D., G. F. MACLEAR, D.D., W. SUNDERLAND LEWIS, M.A., and JOHN KELLY, Editor of the Series, and Sir J. WILLIAM DAWSON, LL.D., F.R.S. 2s. 6d. cloth.

THE HISTORY of the JEWS, from the War with Rome to the Present Time. By the Rev. H. C. ADAMS, M.A. 8vo., 8s., cloth boards.

THE DISEASES of the BIBLE. By Sir J. RISDON BENNETT, M.D., F.R.S., ex-President of the Royal College of Physicians. 2s. 6d. cloth boards.

LIFE ON THE CONGO. By W. HOLMAN BENTLEY. Introduction by GEORGE GRENFELL. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. cloth.

THE LEISURE HOUR ANNUAL VOLUME for 1887. Contains 860 pages of interesting reading, with numerous Illustrations by eminent artists. It forms an appropriate Book for Presentation. Price 7s. handsome cloth; 8s. 6d. extra boards, gilt edges; 10s 6d. half-calf.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME ANNUAL VOLUME for 1887. Contains 844 pages, with a great variety of Interesting and Instructive Sabbath Reading for every Member of the Family. It is profusely illustrated by Coloured and Wood Engravings. Price 7s. handsome cloth; 8s. 6d. extra boards, gilt edges; 10s. 6d. half-calf.

THE GIRL'S OWN ANNUAL.—The Eighth Volume of the GIRL'S OWN PAPER. 8s. in handsome cloth; 9s. 6d. with gilt edges; 12s. 6d. half morocco, marbled edges.

THE BOY'S OWN ANNUAL. — The Ninth Volume of the BOY'S OWN PAPER. 8s. handsome cloth; 9s. 6d. gilt edges; 12s. 6d. half morocco.

THE CHILD'S COMPANION AND JUVENILE INSTRUCTOR Volume for 1887. With numerous Engravings and coloured Frontispiece. 1s. 6d. in ornamental cover; 2s. cloth boards; 2s. 6d. cloth elegant, gilt edges.

OUR LITTLE DOTS Pretty Stories and Pictures for Little Girls and Boys. First Volume. In very large type. 1s 6d. in ornamental cover; 2s. cloth boards; 2s. 6d. cloth, full gilt.

THE COTTAGER AND ARTISAN. The Volume for 1887. Profusely Illustrated. 1s. 6d. in cover, printed in Oil Colours; 2s. 6d. cloth boards, gilt edges.

Please write for the Religious Tract Society's ILLUSTRATED and CLASSIFIED Lists.

56, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

THE BOOK SALOON,

9, PATERNOSTER ROW (Cheapside end)
(ESTABLISHED 1860),

Contains one of the largest and most varied collections of

EVANGELICAL, TEMPERANCE, & GENERAL LITERATURE,

Conveniently arranged for selection.

In addition to S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S own Publications, the Works of most of the leading Publishers are kept in Stock,

Annuals, New Books, Almanacs,
New Year's Addresses,
Christmas and New Year's Cards, &c.

EARLY INSPECTION INVITED.
Hours 9 till 6. Saturdays 9 till 2.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S new Illustrated Catalogue post free on application. Also specimen packet of their Illustrated Periodicals and Magazines.

9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

HAVING purchased the whole of the Stock of MESSRS. HAUGHTON & Co.'s publications, we are offering for a time Parcels containing small books and leaflets suitable for distribution of the published value of TWENTY-FIVE SHILLINGS for 5/6.

Early application should be made through any bookseller, or direct to

MARSHALL BROTHERS, 10, PATERNOSTER ROW.

POPULAR SACRED CANTATAS.

Belshazzar's Feast. Root, 2s.
Daniel. Root and Bradbury, 2s.
David. Root, 1s. 6d.
Day with our Lord. Pattison, 2s. 6d.
Esther. Bradbury, 2s.
Footprints of the Saviour. Rogers, 3s.
Mother of Jesus. Pattison, 2s.
Ruth. Dr. Fisher, 3s.
Wise Men. Pattison, 2s.6d.

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 & 9, WARWICK-LANE, E.C.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S
NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE WELCOME. Yearly Volume for 1887 now ready, containing four New Serial Stories, viz.:
"Cousin Mary," by Mrs. OLIPHANT.
"The Strait Gate," by ANNIE S. SWAN.
"Robert Aske." by E. F. POLLARD.
"Amaranth's Garden," by M. S. HAYCRAFT.
Also about 170 Articles, Stories, Poems, and Musical Compositions by Popular Writers. Illustrated by 350 choice engravings by the best Artists. 768 pages. Beautifully printed. Cloth, plain, 7s. 6d.; gilt edges, 10s.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND. One Penny Monthly. Charming Stories, Interesting Articles, Beautiful Pictures, Puzzles, Prize Competitions, Music.

The Yearly Volume now ready, coloured paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s.; gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE BRITISH WORKMAN. One Penny Monthly. Beautiful full-page Illustrations by Eminent Artists; Stories and Articles specially suited for the Working Classes, inculcating Religion, Sobriety, and Thrift.

The Yearly Part now ready, coloured paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE BAND OF HOPE REVIEW. One Halfpenny Monthly. First-class, Large Engravings by the Best Artists; Stories, Poems, and Articles, with Religious and Temperance Teaching; Prize Competitions, &c.

The Yearly Part now ready, coloured cover, 1s.; cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

THE FAMILY FRIEND. One Penny Monthly. An Illustrated Paper for the Family Circle, with bright Stories and Poems, and Helpful Articles for Mothers and Housewives; Music, &c.

The Yearly Volume now ready, coloured paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s.; gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE MOTHERS' COMPANION. One Penny Monthly. A new Illustrated Monthly Penny Magazine, containing, in addition to Serial Stories and Articles of general interest by Popular Writers, Papers upon all matters relating to the Management of the Home.

The Yearly Volume now ready, coloured paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s.; gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE INFANT'S MAGAZINE. One Penny Monthly. Full of Bright Pictures & Merry Rhymes that will delight the Little Ones: and Baby-Music to sing to them.

The Yearly Volume now ready, coloured paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s.; gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE FRIENDLY VISITOR. One Penny Monthly. Stories, Poems, and Brief Articles, all pointed with Gospel teaching. Printed in Large Type, and well Illustrated. Admirably adapted for District Visiting purposes.

The Yearly Volume now ready, coloured paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s.; gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

EDWIN, THE BOY OUTLAW; or, The Dawn of Freedom in England. By J. FREDERICK HODGETTS, late Professor and University Examiner at Moscow, Author of "Older England," &c. Illustrated. Crown 8vo., cloth extra, 5s.

TRANSITO: A STORY OF BRAZIL. By EMMA E. HORNIBROOK, Author of "Borne Back," &c. Illustrated. Crown 8vo., cloth extra, 5s.

THE STORY OF THE BIBLE. Arranged in Simple Style for Young People. 100 Illustrations. Demy 8vo., cloth extra, 5s.

BORN TO WANDER. A Boy's Book of Nomadic Adventures. By GORDON STABLES, C.M., M.D., Author of "The Cruise of the Snowbird," &c. Illustrated. Crown 8vo., cloth extra, 3s. 6d.

HALLVARD HALVORSEN; or, The Avalanche. A Story from the Land of the Fjeld, Fjord, and Fos. By NELLIE CORNWALL. Illustrated. Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

EAGLEHURST TOWERS. By EMMA MARSHALL, Author of "A Flight with the Swallows," &c. Illustrated. Crown 8vo., cloth extra, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE STRAIT GATE. By ANNIE S. SWAN, Author of "Mark Desborough's Vow," &c. Illustrated. Crown 8vo., cloth extra, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

PENNY ILLUSTRATED ALMANACS FOR 1888
ARE NOW READY.

With Costly Engravings and Letterpress. One Penny each.

BRITISH WORKMAN ALMANAC.

This Sheet Almanac, with Large Engravings, is intended for the walls of Workshops, Cottages, &c. The "Daily Text" is specially commended to the notice of Working Men and their wives.

BAND OF HOPE ALMANAC.

This beautifully Illustrated Sheet Almanac is designed for the walls of Day and Sunday Schools, and for use by the Conductors of Bands of Hope.

EVERYONE'S ALMANAC.

This Sixteen-page Almanac, with Text for Daily Reference, many Engravings, Domestic Recipes, &c., is for Family use.

ANIMAL'S FRIEND ALMANAC.

This Popular Sheet Almanac has been found very useful for the walls of Stables, Coachhouses, Farmsteads, &c. It has prevented cruelty, and promoted kindness to animals.

BAND OF MERCY ALMANAC.

This Sheet Almanac is one of the organs of the Band of Mercy Societies for promoting amongst the young the practice of kindness to animals, and is intended for the walls of Schools, Nurseries, &c. Those friends who are interested in this good cause will aid it by presenting copies of this Almanac to Schoolmasters, Schoolmistresses, &c.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO, 9, PATERNOSTER ROW.

HOW TO STUDY THE BIBLE.

BY D. L. MOODY.
PRICE ONE PENNY; or 7s. per 100.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WHITAKER'S ALMANACK. — The Best, the Most Complete, the Cheapest and the Most Useful Almanack published. The 1888 Edition, considerably improved, will be ready in December.

London: WHITAKER & SONS.

SECOND EDITION (3000 Copies). Price 2s. 6d.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT FOR YOUNG MEN.

By MAJOR SETON CHURCHILL,

Author of "Stepping Stones to Higher Things," "Church Ordinances from the Layman's Standpoint," &c.

CONTENTS.

Forbidden Fruit: Its Raison d'Etre—Benefits of Temptation—The Moral Nature of Man—Self-Control—Human Responsibility—True to Nature-Accumulative Power of Sin—Promiscuous Intercourse—Polygamy—Marriage—Prostitution—Responsibilities of Parents—Influence of Medical Men in Questions of Morality—Impure Thoughts—Impure Pictures—Causes Exciting to Impurity—Aids to Purity—Treatment of the Fallen—Religion as an Aid to Purity.

FAMILY CHURCHMAN.—"This book is a model of the manner in which the Purity Question ought to be discussed with young men. The tone of the book is manly, straightforward, and simple, and we could wish it in the hands of every young man."

CHRISTIAN.—"The writer's wide experience in different parts of the world, combined with his knowledge of the Scriptures and deep spiritual experience, peculiarly fits him to be the author of such a book as this. We trust that every Young Men's Christian Association Librarian will order copies."

MORNING POST.—"The writer feels earnestly the importance of the work he has undertaken, and there is about his style a manliness and a healthy tone which can hardly fail to impress those to whom he addresses himself—young men."

AUSTRALIAN CHRISTIAN WORLD.—"It is a book which we can fearlessly recommend . . . . just the kind of advice which might come from a pure, high-minded, godly father to a dearly-beloved son."

Published by JAMES NISBET & CO., 21, Berners-street, London, W.

Mission Appeals.

SOUTH LONDON.—Miss E. T. YOUNG, Petersfield Lodge, Cambridge, asks for helpers in making clothes for the poor in a large parish in South London, especially for children. A Society has been formed, the members of which make one garment a month for this object.

REV. E. SCHNADHORST, North Bow, E., appeals for funds "to render timely assistance to persons and families who, if helped now, may be enabled to maintain their self-reliance, and so be preserved from swelling the number of those who have lost heart and hope."

TOWER HAMLETS MISSION.—Our Sunday-school in connection with the Great Assembly Hall has from 700 to 800 children, all poor. We are in great need of Bibles and books for our library. Many children have joined the library, but we are unable to lend them books, as we have not sufficient.—EDWIN H. KERWIN, 31, Mile End-road, E.

GENOA AND SAVONA.—Help is much needed to start efficiently the English Church Mission to Seamen, of which a short notice was given in your issue of Nov. 4. Subscriptions received by Messrs. GRANET & BROWN, English Bankers, 7, Via Garibaldi, Genoa. Parcels of tracts and religious periodicals for distribution much needed.—A. E. CAREY, Chaplain, 47, Corso Magenta, Genoa, Italy.

TEXTS IN HOSPITALS.—Could any of your readers supply Illuminated Texts for the wards of this hospital? In one ward I want to get a text placed over every patient's bed, as there are only one or two old ones in it. If any Christians desire to place God's Word before the people (the sick ones), this is one way in which they can do it.—(Miss) CECILIA WILLIAMS, Hanbury Ward, London Hospital, Whitechapel, E.

THE CUBITT TOWN CHRISTIAN MISSION has been open for fourteen months, and is in the midst of a very poor neighbourhood, the people about being mostly dock labourers. Mr. PEARCE, a working man, is the superintendent of it. He is a very earnest, God-fearing man, and doing all in his power to spread the Gospel. The hall is situated in East Ferry-road, Cubitt Town.—CHAS. H. H. CAMERON, "Lochiel," Harlesden, N.W.

REV. W. SPENDLOVE, C.M.S., who is returning to the "Arctic Regions" shortly, requires additional slides for a magic lantern given to him by kind friends in Mildmay. He feels sure there are clergymen and others who have old slides they could and would gladly give him. Will some friends of missionaries to Red Indians note this want, and supply it? The slides may be sent to Mr. H. G. MALAHER, Missionary Leaves Association, 20, Compton-terrace, Islington, N.

BOROUGH MARKET MISSION HALL (9, Park-street, Borough Market, S.E.).—Winter is close upon us, and the members of the Mothers' Meeting are anxiously thinking about the clothing of their little ones. Are there not many of your readers who could just now give away some of their second-hand clothing? Parcels (carriage paid) would be very thankfully received at the Mission Hall, or by the treasurer, Mr. J. SINCLAIR, 65, Southwark-street, S.E.—THOS. ROBSON.

CHELSEA RESCUE HOME.—Rev. J. LAWSON FORSTER, Chelsea Congregational Church, Markham-square, S.W., appeals for immediate help for the Chelsea Rescue Home for fallen and homeless girls, to save it from being closed. It has been established for seventeen years, and during this period 2169 girls have passed through it, and received its sheltering care; many of them have been permanently rescued from a life of shame. The superintendent and her assistant are devout Christian women, and thoroughly consecrated to the work. Girls from almost every part of the British Islands have been aided by this Institution.

◆

Notices.

MISS F. M. COWHERD, Stony Dale, Granges, Carnforth, will be glad to send a box of pressed faded leaves gratis to any who may desire them for use in the Lord's work.

A GREAT ADMIRER OF "THE CHRISTIAN."—We are much obliged by the suggestion, but there would not probably be any sufficient demand for the papers in separate form.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—J.H.T. A.T.W. W.C. J.A. C.M.H. C.H.H.C. J.D. D.S. R.W.G. A.F. G.S. C.R.H. W.J. J.F. E.E. J.C.P. G.P. M.E.P. M.S. G.H. C.M. C.T.P.L. T.R. F.B.M. A.E.C. R.D.F. L.F. A.L.C. F.W.L.J. W.W. A.W.A. A.W.W. S.R.G. F.M. H.M.B. E.W.M. G.K. J.T.M. M.E.G. R.M. W.H. K.S.W. J.C. E.T. G.F. C.H. J.B. T.P. A.J.B. G.C.N. M.G.P. T.F.W. H.E.H. W.G. G.H. M.B. C.E. J.M.S. J.P.H. R.C. M.G. F.H.W. O.R. W.S.T. J.H. F.B.M. J.F.M. E.G.T. T.G.S. W.F. J.W.A. O.A.D. C.J. T.J.Y. D.M.L. E.V.C. E.V. R.Y. G.M. S.E.S. E.H.K. J.G.P. H.G.M. T.J.P. M.J.M. E.F.B. J.J. D.F.L. A.C. A.D.A. C.C. E.H. J.K. C.R.H. R.M.B. J.B.W. W.H.W. E.S. W.J.M. A.P. M.W. S.A.B. A.M.G. W.A. T.F.R. J.L. F.H.W.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—H. Hall, 4, Carlisle-villas, Railway road, Teddington, Middlesex; W. Lippett, 1, Walker's-buildings, Lich-street, Worcester; L. Mackenzie, 59, Boyson-road, Walworth, S.E.; Miss Boning, 32, Trumpington-st., Cambridge; E. Dinnis, 16, County-road, Walton, Liverpool; Miss M. Traxler, 46, Spencer-road, Herne hill, S.E.; Miss S. Kilby, Mash Farm, Enfield Lock; Rev. J. J. Porter, Mount View, Hope Bay P.O., St. George, Jamaica, West Indies; S. Harris, Evangelist, Loughton, Essex.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most important that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

Y.M.C.A., NEW METAL EXCHANGE, Whittington-avenue, E.C.—Daily prayer-meeting at St. Peter's Vestry, Cornhill, 1.15 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Mission to young men, conducted by Mr. Harry Guinness, M.R.C.S., Nov. 21—25, 6 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sunday, November 20, 3 and 7 p.m., Rev. W. Tucker. Gospel services every evening, at 7.30, from November 21—26. November 19, Rev. J. Ossian Davies will preach.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Mission by Mr. Henry Varley, Nov. 20—27: Sundays, at 3.45; week nights, at 8. Mr. Harry Guinness, M.R.C.S., Sunday evenings, at 7. Mr. Axel Gustafson begins a course of four lectures on "The Drink Problem," Mon., Nov. 28.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 198, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, November 17, at 8.30, address, Mr. W. Edwyn Shipton. Special mission to young men, Sunday, November 20, to Sunday, 27, at 8.30 p.m. each evening.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—November 13—20, week of prayer, each evening at 8.45; mission week to follow—service, with address. Open to all young people.

SOUTHWARK Y.M.C.A., 26 & 28, Newington-causeway, S.E.—Special address to young men, Friday, November 18, at 8.45, by Mr. Henry Varley.

Y.M.C.A., STAFFORD ROOMS, Titchborne-st., Edgware-road, W.—Sunday, November 20, 3.15 p.m., address to young men by Mr. W. T. Paton. Monday, Nov. 21, and Wednesday, 23, at 9 p.m., address to young men by Mr. C. R. Hurditch. Fri., 25, 8 p.m., both sexes.

Y.M.C.A., FINSBURY PARK HALL, N.—Special mission to young men, November 20—27. Mr. A. M. Kyd each week night, at 8 30; Sundays, at 3.15 and 7.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE STREET, E.C.—Capt. Baring will give a special address to young men on Sunday next, at 3.30; also nightly, at 8, November 21—25.

Y.W.C.A., 17, OLD CAVENDISH STREET, W.—Special mission to young women to November 27; Sundays at 3.30; week nights at 8.45. Rev. W. Hay Chapman, Rev. N. Sherbrooke, Mr. Edward Trotter, and others.

MANCHESTER CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE, Nov. 22 and 23.—Subjects: "The Coming of the Lord," "The Deepening of Spiritual Life," and "The Evangelisation of the World." Tickets and particulars from the Conference Hall, Strangeways, Manchester.

MR. WILLIAM NOBLE conducts the meetings at Hoxton Hall, N., every Sunday, 6.30 p.m.

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Meetings at Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W., every Friday, at 3.30. November 18, Rev. S. A. Selwyn; November 25, Rev. C. A. Fox.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, Nov. 20, at 3.30, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7, Mr. Herbert Francis. Tuesday, November 22, 7.30 p.m., lecture by Rev. James Neil, on "Palestine as we now know it." Bible-reading, Thursday, November 24, 3 p.m., Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston, on "Strength."

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Friday, November 18, 7 p.m., meeting for the deepening of spiritual life; tea at 6.

POWIS HALL, Bayswater, W.—Sunday, November 20, morning and evening, Mr. Finlay Gibson.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile-end-road, E.—Sunday, November 20, at 11 and 6.30, and week nights, at 8, Mr. Henry Varley.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-st., S.W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch on Sunday, at 3.45 and 7; Fridays, 8 p.m.

STUDENTS AT HARVARD.—A correspondent of the New York Independent states that the results of making attendance at early prayers optional is very satisfactory. Those who come do so not of constraint but of their own free will, and in the attitude of worshippers. The whole tone of the service has been transformed. A visit from Professor Drummond occasioned great interest, and led many of the students to a deeper acquaintance with religious truth.

CHINA.—When a Chinese is asked to buy a book, his first question is, "What are its contents?" If it can be shown that the aim of the book is improvement, especially if it teaches the Chinese five cardinal virtues—Justice, Benevolence, Wisdom, Morality, and Truth, then many will eagerly seek to possess it. The Chinese also very generally recognise five great obligations: Duty between the Monarch and his ministers, between parents and children, husband and wife, elder and younger brothers, and between friend and friend. The Bible, containing all these, therefore finds much acceptance among many of the people of this great Empire.—Evan.-Kirch. Anzeiger.

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Monday, November 14, 1887.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

B.—No Order was enclosed in letter.

	£	s.	d.
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—J.G.	2	0	[illegible]
China Inland Mission—E.H.G., Manchester, 5s.; F.L. 5s.; G.F.E. 5s.; G.J. £1	1	15	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—H.J.D. 3s.; G.F.E. 5s.; F.T. 10s.; W.P.W. 5s.; M.U. 2s. 6d.; D.A. 2s. 6d.; E.L.S. £1; T.W. 10s.; D.B. £1 10s.; Miss L. 1s.; J.C.P. 5s.; H.M.A.S. £1	5	14	0
London Missionary Society—A.S.W.	5	0	0
Young Men and Women's Christian Mission, Poplar—M.S.	5	0	0
Christian Community—D.B. £1 10s.; (Relief of Poor) Ryde, £5; H.M.A.S. £1; M.S. £5 ..	12	10	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—"Esteem"	5	0	0
Railway Mission, 186, Aldersgate-street—M.M. ..	1	0	0
Field-lane Refuges—H.J.	0	3	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—G.F.E.	0	5	0
Friendless & Fallen—Gloucester, £1; W.P.W. 5s.; J.B. 10s.; Miss L. 1s.; J.C.P. 5s.	2	1	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—G.F.E. 5s.; L.H. 5s.; T.B.W. 5s.; T.W. 5s.; D.B. £1; (Night Lodging, &c.) Island, 10s.; H.M.A.S. £1	3	10	0
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—J.C. £1; W.P. 10s.; T.N.J. £1; J.D.P. £2; G.C. £3 3s.; Sir E.B. £1 1s.	8	14	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—D.W. & S.W.W. £2; Misses P. 10s.	2	10	0
Famine in Central Turkey—W.P.W.	0	5	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—W.P.W. 5s.; M.U. 2s. 6d.; J.B. 10s.; Mrs. D. 4s. 2d.	1	1	8
Blackdown Hills Mission—J.B. 10s.; J.C.P. 5s.; G.J. 10s.; (Mr. Brealey's Personal Expenses) J.B. 10s.; Misses P. 10s.	2	5	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—Misses P. £1; J.C.P. 5s.; G.J. 10s.	1	15	0
Dublin City Mission—Misses P.	0	10	0
Gray's-yard Ragged Schools, &c.—J.B. 10s.; (Building Fund) Misses P. 10s.	1	0	0
Sermon-lane Mission—(Mr. Fuller's Personal Expenses) Misses P.	0	10	0
Homes for Working Girls in London—M.S.	5	5	0
Salvation Army—Thank-offering	5	0	0
Figueras Mission (Pastor Rodriguez)—Thank-offering, £1; S.S. 10s.	1	10	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—M. £10 10s.; P.W. £10; J.B. 10s.; J.C.P. 5s.; C.W.H. £5	26	5	0
Tower Hamlets Msn.—D.A. 2s. 6d.; Miss L. 1s. ..	0	3	6
George-yard Ragged Schools, &c.—J.B. £1; D.B. £1 10s.	2	10
Nine Elms Mission (Mrs. Meredith)—J.B.	1	0
Home of Industry—J.B. £1; D.B. £1 10s.; C.W.H. £5	7	10
Bloomsbury Refuges (Mr. W. Williams)—J.B. ..	0	10
McAll Mission, Paris—J.B.	0	10
Miss Leigh's Work, Paris—J.B.	0	10
Joshua Poole—J.B.	0	10
Home for Worn-out Governesses—J.B.	0	10
Indigent Blind Visiting Society—J.B.	0	10
Home for Blind Children, Hackney—J.B.	0	10
Ladies' Samaritan Society—(Paralysed and Epileptic) J.B.	0	10
Midnight Meeting Movement—J.B.	0	10
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—J.B.	0	10
Ragged School Union—J.B.	0	10
Rescue Work, Poplar (Mrs. Wilkes)—J.B.	0	10
Relief of Poor (Mrs. G. Guinness)—D.B.	1	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—D.B. £1; H. G. Ridgwell, 3s.	1	3
Mrs. Wall's Work, Rome—E.J.	0	5
Gospel in China (Religious Tract Soc.)—Miss L.	0	1
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—S.S.	0	6
Orphan Homes (Mrs. Ginever)—J.C.P.	0	5
African Mission (Bishop Taylor)—J.C.P.	0	10
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—Mrs. T.	0	2
Bristol Orphan Houses—S.J.R.	0	5
Rev. F. H. White (Poor)—M.S.	5	0
Mr. Geo. Holland (Poor)—M.S.	10	0
Fuel for Poor (Rev. J. W. Atkinson)—Adelphos .	0	2
Hospital for Women and Children, Lupus-street—C.W.H.	5	0
Church Home Mission—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Y.W.C. Association—H.M.A.S.	0	10
London Orphan Asylum—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Lord's Day Observance Society—H.M.A.S. ..	0	5
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—H.M.A.S. ..	1	0
Metropolitan Tabernacle Colportage Association—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Paris City Mission—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—H.M.A.S.	1	0
Strangers' Friend Society—H.M.A.S.	1	0
Asylum for Fatherless Children, Reedham—H.M.A.S.	1	1
Special Religious Services in Theatres—H.M.A.S.	1	1
	£149	8

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Tower Hamlets Mission—"A B C," £5.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes—M.B. (Plumstead) 10s.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E.—"In Memory of Sam Hanson," £1 1s. Mr. F. A. Bevan, Treasurer, Lombard-street, E.C.

British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society, 55, New Br
street, E.C.—A Friend, £2; Anon. 10s.; Mr. E. E 5s.; Stoke Newington, 5s.; E. Slaughor, 2s.; F.M.A.
Misses Priaulx and Rainier, 5s.; E.L. 2s. 6d.; Ar
6s.; A Friend, 2s. 6d.; Anon. 2s. 6d. Chas. H. Al
F.R.G.S., Secretary.

"I was a stranger, and ye took me in."

The Committee of the Field Lane Refuges and Ragged Schools are compelled to make a very urgent appeal for Funds for the continuance of their work. The work is carried on amongst the most destitute of the poor, both old and young. The Institution possesses no reserve fund to fall back upon.

The Committee gratefully acknowledge the receipt of £230, but £1,270 is still required before the close of the year to free them from anxiety. Upwards of 200 persons are maintained weekly. The average weekly attendances at the Mission Meetings is about 3,000.

The Committee trust the Lord's people will help them in this time of difficulty and pressure. On behalf of the Committee,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C. PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary.

P.S.—Contributions will be thankfully received by the Secretary; or may be paid to our Bankers, Messrs. Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or Messrs. Ransom & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.; or to the Editor of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen.

Treasurer and Chairman of General Council: THOMAS B. MILLER, ESQ.
Chairman of Finance Committee: THOMAS GRAY, ESQ., C.B.
Bankers: MESSRS. LLOYDS, BARNETTS, & BOSANQUETS (LIMITED), Lombard Street, E.C.
Offices: BRIDGE HOUSE, BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE, LONDON, E.C.
Founder and Director: E. J. MATHER, ESQ.

OBJECTS.

1. To carry the glad tidings of God's love, mercy, and salvation in our Lord Jesus Christ to the thousands of Fishermen employed in trawling and other modes of fishing in the North Sea and elsewhere, and in every possible way to promote and minister to their spiritual welfare.

2. To mitigate the hard lot and improve the condition of the Fishermen, physically and mentally, by all practicable means, and to meet many urgent needs for which heretofore there has been no provision, especially in supplying medicine and simple surgical appliances, books, mufflers, mittens, &c.

For the above purposes Mission vessels are already stationed with seven fishing fleets, but it is of urgent importance that more vessels should be fitted for similar service, in order that Clerical and Lay Missionaries and Agents of the Mission may visit the Smacksmen.

The Bishop of London.—"The undertaking is a blessed one, and will be accepted by our Heavenly Father as an offering of true devotion."

The Bishop of Exeter.—"It does one's heart good to watch the benefit conferred by these Mission Smacks. God bless them! They go forth in the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ."

The Times.—"Ample proof has been furnished of the genuine and successful character of the Society's operations."

The Graphic.—"Founded barely six years ago, its efforts have already been crowned with wonderful success."

During the year 1886 three thousand six hundred and thirty-three cases of accident and sickness were successfully treated in the Dispensary on board the various Mission Vessels. Help is urgently needed to carry on this work.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS

FARNINGHAM AND SWANLEY (Commenced 1863).

President:—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

THE COTTAGE HOMES AT FARNINGHAM

Are for 300 Little Boys, homeless or in danger of falling into crime. They are clothed, fed, educated, and taught a trade, and then provided with outfit and placed in situations, while they are looked after as "Old Boys."

THE ORPHAN HOMES AT SWANLEY

Are for 200 Orphan or Fatherless Boys, who are wholly maintained and educated, and receive technical instruction in lithography, telegraphy, photography, chemistry, and other subjects, to fit them for a working life.

BASIS:—"The Institution is Scriptural, but Unsectarian; and the boys are educated in the fear of God and in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures."

FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED to maintain the 500 Boys now in the Homes. Over 1000 have already been sent out into the world.

Annual Subscriptions, Donations, Congregational Collections, and Bequests are earnestly solicited, and will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN; or the Secretary,

Offices:—BANK-BUILDINGS, LUDGATE-CIRCUS, E.C. A. O. CHARLES.

Bankers:—MESSRS. SMITH, PAYNE & SMITH, 1, LOMBARD-STREET, E.C.

THAMES CHURCH MISSION.

INSTITUTED 1844.

The late Mr. Sheriff Woolloton once made the following touching Appeal!—

"Let everyone whose heart is filled with love to Christ do something for this Society."

£50 ARE REQUIRED forthwith to meet the expenses of Cleaning and Heating our MISSION HALL at TILBURY. Will every Reader of THE CHRISTIAN please spare something towards this amount.

Offices—31, New Bridge-street, E.C. Rev. H. BLOOMER, Secretary.

ASYLUM for FATHERLESS CHILDREN, Reedham, near Caterham Junction, Surrey. This unsectarian Institution is entirely dependent upon public benevolence. It is open to fatherless children of either sex from all parts of the kingdom. They are received as early as three months old, and are retained and cared for in every way until they are 15 years of age.

Since the foundation of the Charity in 1844, 1 500 children have been admitted to its benefits and 310 are now in the Asylum. Their maintenance entails an expenditure of at least £8,000 per annum, but of that sum only £2,500 is provided by annual subscriptions.

The large balance is dependent upon donations and legacies. FUNDS are urgently NEEDED.

The Secretary will be pleased to give any further information. HENRY SPICER, Treasurer.
JOHN R. EDWARDS, Secretary.
Office, 35, Finsbury-circus, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President.
HIS GRACE LORD PLUNKET, ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN.
Late President.
THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

Offices:—27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
And 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, Reports, &c., can be obtained on application to the Secretary,
CAPTAIN JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

TEMPERANCE IN THE CHURCHES.—In connection with TEMPERANCE SUNDAY (Nov. 27), A SPECIAL PUBLIC MEETING of the National Temperance League will be held in EXETER HALL (Large Room), on MONDAY, NOVEMBER 28, at 7 p.m.

The Right Rev. the Lord BISHOP OF LONDON will preside; and the Meeting will be addressed by the Rev. ALEXANDER MACKENNAL, D.D. (Chairman, Congregational Union); Rev. HUGH PRICE HUGHES, M.A. (Wesleyan Conference); Rev. JOHN CLIFFORD, D.D. (Vice-President, Baptist Union); Rev. PETER CARMICHAEL, B.D. (Presbyterian Church of England); Rev. THOMAS WHITEHEAD (President, Primitive Methodist Connexion); Rev. M. T. MYERS (Corresponding Secretary, United Methodist Free Churches; Rev. W. B. LARK (Bible Christian Connexion); Rev. T. SCOWBY (Methodist New Connexion).

The TEMPERANCE CHORAL SOCIETY (Conductor Mr. BIRCH) will give a short Concert prior to the chair being taken, commencing at 6.30 p.m.; and will sing at intervals during the evening.

Admission Free. A few Tickets for Reserved Seats, 1s. each, may be obtained at the Offices of the League, 337, Strand.

The Anchorage.

HEBREWS vi. 19.

To Shelter, and give Spiritual care to, Young Women lately Fallen into Sin, whether or not about to become Mothers, with a special annexe and suitable arrangements for such as are of gentle birth.

ANYONE desiring admission for such cases to apply (by letter only) to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End-road, N.W., London, also for Servants trained in the Anchorage House. Donations may be sent to Mrs. Stuart-Wortley for the Anchorage Mission, or to Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

FASHIONABLE DRESS
MATERIALS

For Ladies', Children's, and Gentlemen's Dress. Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value. The Immense Variety of Patterns comprise Specialities to suit all Classes, all Climates, all Fashions, and all Purses, from 10½d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

NEW PATTERNS
FOR WINTER, 1887.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.
All Orders are executed direct.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

BONUS YEAR, 1887.

All now Insuring will share in the Division of Profits on 20th Nov., 1887.

NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION FOR MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE.

FOUNDED 1835.

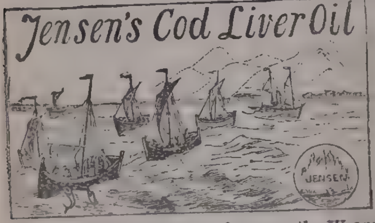
Claims Paid, £7,000,000. Profits Declared, £3,400,000. Funds, £4,280,000.

ECONOMICAL MANAGEMENT. LIBERAL CONDITIONS. LARGE BONUSES.
CLAIMS PAID IMMEDIATELY ON PROOF OF DEATH AND TITLE.

ARTHUR SMITHER,
Actuary and Secretary.
48, Gracechurch Street, London, E.C.

Recommended by the Royal Chelsea Hospital as the Cheapest and Best.
The Lancet: "Of excellent quality, and practically no taste."
British Medical Journal: "Children take it well."

JENSEN'S COD LIVER OIL



Is acknowledged as the best, because the only Oil made from absolutely fresh livers. It prevents Coughs, Colds, Asthma, and Bronchitis; it makes the digestive organs act, and is the only effectual remedy in cases of Consumption. Sweet and pleasant without any after-taste.

Sold everywhere at 1/-, 2/-, 3/6, and 6/6.

Every bottle, if genuine, bears on the Wrapper the Registered Trade Mark—an Iceberg.

HERTZ & COLLINGWOOD, 101, Leadenhall Street.

DEWHURST'S SEWING COTTON

TRADE MARK. THE "THREE SHELLS BRAND,"

Strong, Even, Elastic, and free from Knots.

Dewhurst's Cottons have been awarded PRIZE MEDALS for general excellence of quality wherever exhibited.

LATEST AWARDS—
GOLD MEDALS—AMSTERDAM, 1883;
CALCUTTA. 1883-4; ANTWERP, 1885.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS

TRADE-MARK
REGISTERED

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
MERINO WOOLS
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters

Prices and Patterns of which on Application.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.
If any difficulty is found in obtaining, apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide). Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES,
CURTAINS,
BLINDS,
DRAPERIES,
SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

CAN YOU READ THIS?

"COCOON" KNITTING WOOL

Numerous complaints having bee made that inferior wool balled i the same style is sold as Genuin COCOON Wool, please note tha none is genuine unless bearing th word COCOON, which is our regi tered Trade Mark, on the band.

Directions for knitting a number useful articles free of charge, receipt of Stamped and Address Envelope, mentioning name of th paper.

The fastest possible dyes are used Cocoon Wool.

WOOD & BURTT,
SPINNERS,
HOLMFIRTH.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.

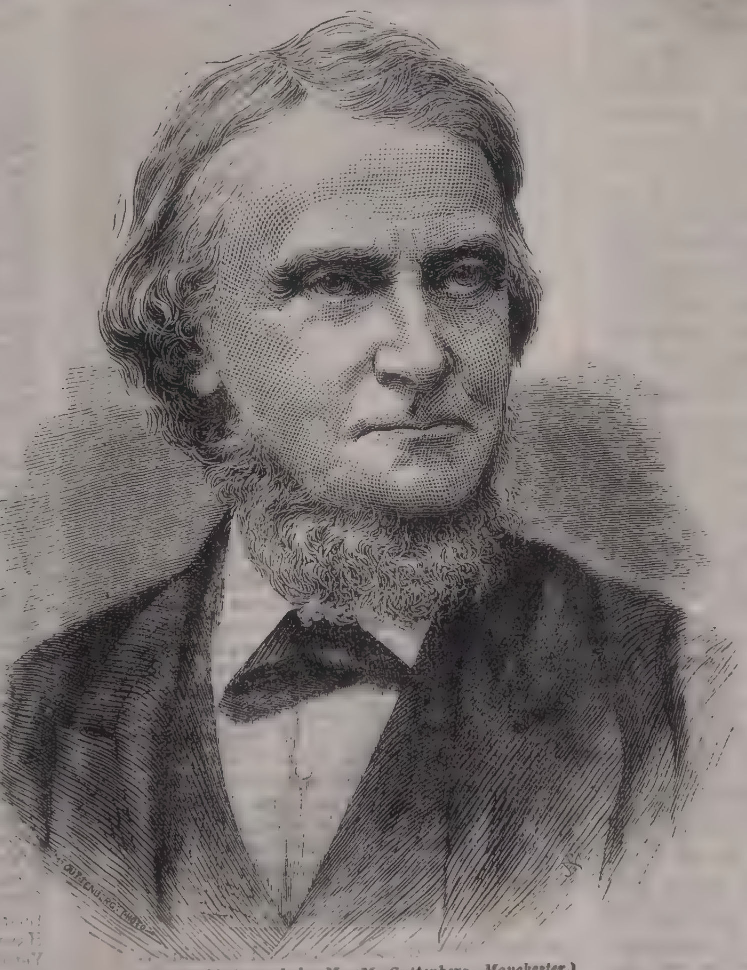
No. 930. | LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. | FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1887. | REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER. | PRICE ONE PENNY.

REV. ALEXANDER MACLAREN, D.D.,

Union Chapel, Manchester.

IF "Prince of Preachers" is a title aptly applied to Mr. Spurgeon, then "Prince of Teachers" is one that might well belong to Dr. Maclaren. Though members of the same denomination, their empires are very distinct. The one is mighty to rouse and to enforce: the other is great as a practical expositor of the Word of God. There is no man living of whom it can be said more truly than of Dr. Maclaren that he is one "who brings a great many wonderful things out of the Bible, but sets the Cross in the middle of them all." "We have heard him quoted," writes an old and intimate friend of his, "in the four quarters of the world, and acknowledged as one who wields the widest sway over the minds of the most cultured classes of this and other English-speaking lands."

The editor of The Expositor gives similar testimony:—"Our belief is that Dr. Maclaren, more than any other, except Robertson, has altered the whole manner of preaching in England and America, and that immeasurably for the better......There have been more subtile, learned, and poetical preachers in our time, though not many; there have been a few far more profound; but we believe Dr. Maclaren's sermons may be read when the rest are forgotten, because he, above all his contemporaries, has faithfully interpreted Scripture."



(From a Photograph by Mr. M. Guttenberg, Manchester.)

We are often asked, "How is it that ministers' sons generally turn out so badly?" We reply with a return question, "But do they?" Are not ill-doing children of the manse exceptions—exceptions painfully manifest and so much spoken about, but exceptions still? What of the multitudes who do well? or of the many who do famously? Both the great preachers mentioned at the beginning of this sketch support us by their own history. Mr. Spurgeon is the son of a minister, and so is Dr. Maclaren. It is true that, in the latter case, David Maclaren, the father, was merchant as well as minister; that during the week he took rank with the business men of Glasgow, while on Sunday he preached as the recognised Pastor of the Scotch Baptist Church which still exists and flourishes, and which now worships in John-street, Glasgow. From all accounts, he was an able minister, a man of great uprightness, very spiritual, and remarkable for his liberality of mind as well as of heart. He was "mighty in the Scriptures"—a gifted expositor. It is probable that the son owes not a little of his splendid gifts of exposition to the example and early training of the father. Nor was his mother one whit behind. Stray hints that have reached us lead us to believe that her character, her noble mind, her refinement, and her strong and tender love, went far to make him, her youngest child, what he is to-day. He was naturally very diffident and self-distrustful. It is not unlikely that a great light would have been lost to the world had not her faith in her son's powers been much stronger than his own. Many a time did he get from her those encouragements which he needed to nerve him for effort and success.

Dr. Maclaren's history should strengthen our faith in child-Christians. He was only eleven years old when, under the guiding care of his friend Rev. David Russell, who still labours, we understand, in Glasgow, as a minister of the Evangelical Union body, he gave himself to Jesus Christ; and long before that he had been the subject of deep religious impressions. He was not thirteen years old when he was publicly baptized, and admitted to the fellowship of the Hope-street (Glasgow) Baptist Church, by Dr. Paterson, its minister. This admirable act of generous confidence in a boy-Christian must surely have been a rare thing in those days, especially in Scotland.

Dr. Maclaren was educated first in the Glasgow High School, to which he was sent when very young; and afterwards at its University, where he remained till his family removed to London in 1841. He was but sixteen, a boy in a round jacket, when admitted to Stepney College (now Regent's Park) as a student for the Baptist ministry. From the very first he gained the love and high respect of his fellow-students, who spoke of him as "the foremost among them, and a very choice spirit." He must have been a first-class student, for he took the London B.A., a difficult degree, in 1845, when he was scarcely twenty.

In 1846, some months before he reached his majority, he began his public life as minister of Portland Chapel, Southampton. The church was in a low state, the congregation small, and the stipend only £70 per annum. Some good folk, too, were frightened at the bold, brave speech of the young pastor, and questioned if he were "sound in the faith." However, in a few years, the crowded chapel, and the invitations to more influential churches which came to him from time to time, and which were declined, told of his growing power and fame. For twelve years he continued with the church of his first love, often against the urgent advice of his best friends, till at last, in 1858, he yielded, and took the pastorate of Union Chapel, Manchester, where he has been ever since, the beloved and revered guide of a great company of highly cultured Christian men and women.

Dr. Maclaren cannot be described. We may speak of the small, spare figure, quivering with life and feeling; of the firm-set mouth, the unmistakable sign of a tremendous will; of that part of the face so full of thought, poetry, and spirituality; of eyes that pierce and shine, and seem to compass everybody and everything in their quick, lightning glance; or of the strangely magnetic voice—but in vain. We may describe his preaching as "logic on fire," or say that his words thrill like electricity; that he speaks like one wholly possessed by his theme; or that the speaker's tout ensemble gives one the best idea possible of etherealised matter—of spirit overpowering matter—but all fails. The man must be seen and heard to be understood.

He never preaches his doubts. He is a strong thinker, who has faced bravely most of the great theological problems of our day. But all mere speculations, and intellectualisms, he rigidly excludes from his pulpit. He speaks of "that abomination which maketh desolate called intellectual preaching." To him preaching is the solemn, authoritative proclamation of divinely revealed truth. Its natural end is conversion and practical improvement. His aim being to explain the Scriptures as the simple Word of God, leaving theology to take care of itself, he labours to do this with the utmost possible simplicity and point, and lucidity of illustration, ever striving to shape his exposition in view of the facts of human nature, the circumstances of life, and the practical duties and conflicts we are each called to face. A sacred reverence for Scripture, and a great faith in its many-sidedness and everlasting freshness, inspires his preaching, which is always clear, cogent, and practical, and ever the direct outcome of his text. "He is an exact and fresh exegete. It follows that while he always begins with a text, and always ends with Jesus Christ, his hearers are led delightfully from text to Christ by a new way; or, if the way is not new, it is bordered by fresh flowers." On the intellectual side, his preaching glows with poetry of thought and expression, so that he has been called "the Tennyson of preachers"; on the moral, it palpitates with human sympathy; while, on the spiritual, it never fails to breathe the very essence of unworldly spirituality, and pure devotion to the personal Saviour.

We had intended to have illustrated the foregoing remarks with various quotations; but limited space forbids more than the following from a sermon on 1 Cor. vii. 24, "Brethren, let every man, wherein he is called, therein abide with God."

Our text is a revolutionary one. It is dead against the watchwords that you fathers give your children — "push," "energy," "advancement," "get on whatever you do." You have made a philosophy of it, and you say that this restless discontent with a man's present position, and eager desire to get a little farther ahead in the scramble, underlies much modern civilisation and progress, and leads to the diffusion of wealth, and to the employment of the working classes, and to mechanical inventions and domestic comforts, and I don't know what besides. You have made a religion of it, and it is thought to be blasphemy for a man to stand up and say, "It is idolatry!" I declare, I solemnly believe, that if I were to go to the Manchester Exchange next Tuesday, and stand up and say, "There is no God!" I should not be thought half such a fool as if I were to go and say, "Poverty is not an evil, per se, and men do not come unto this world to get on, but to get up, nearer and liker to God." If you, by God's grace, lay hold of this principle of my text, and honestly resolve to work it out, trusting in that dear Lord who, "Though He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor," in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred you will have to make up your minds to let the big prizes of your trade go into other people's hands, and be content to say, "I live by peaceful, high, pure, Christ-like thoughts." For surely Christ is more than mammon; and a spirit nourished by calm desires and holy thoughts into growing virtues and increasing Christ-likeness is better than circumstance ordered to our will, in the whirl of which we have lost our God. "In everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God: and the peace of God, and the God of peace shall keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus."

We close this brief sketch with the remark that Dr. Maclaren's indirect influence for good has been simply immeasurable. He is a preacher to preachers, and that in a transition age when temptations to depart from the central truths of revelation are many and great. His clear and persistent testimony to the necessity of regeneration, the power of the Spirit, the substitutionary work of Christ, and similar truths, has been given with such power and true authority, that we must rank him among the very foremost defenders of the faith. Long may he be spared to continue his great work!

A SOLEMN FACT.—One hundred and ninety-two millions of our fellow-creatures are living upon the Dark Continent, of whom it may safely be said that none but the odd two millions have ever heard the news of salvation, pardon, and life eternal. Of the rest thousands pass from life every day into a Christless grave.—War Cry.

ANGLO-INDIAN EVANGELISATION SOCIETY.—Through the kindness of the Dowager Lady Kinnaird an association has been formed at Bromley to support this Society, with Mr. Lloyd, of Bromley House, as honorary treasurer. A few evenings ago a meeting was held in the Town Hall, when Rev. J. Fordyce gave a lecture on "India fifty years ago and now." Sir Arthur Blackwood, who presided, spoke heartily in behalf of the Society, and also Mr. M. H. Hodder and Mr. Lloyd.

GIDEON'S FALL.

JUDGES viii. 24.

Do ye see the hero standing
With raised hand, a hush demanding?
For around him rings the cheering,
He can scarce obtain a hearing,
As they cry in wild commotion,
Like the roaring of the ocean,
"Gideon king! Be our king!"
Brief his word:
"God's the glory; to reign o'er ye
Is his right.
When ye tell the wondrous story,
How proud Midian fled before ye,
Praise his might.

"Not the hundred pitchers crashing,
Not the red light's sudden flashing,
Not the trumpets' shrilly blast
On the midnight silence cast,
Not the wild confusing shout
Put the enemy to rout,
'Twas the Lord!

"Not the edge of Israel's sword,
But the might of Israel's Lord.
Not a foeman doth remain
On the mountain or the plain:
Let your shouts triumphant ring,
Israel's God is Israel's King,
Let Him reign!"

There was silence in the crowd,
And each warrior's head was bowed
As they listen, still as death,
For the next word Gideon saith.
Will he chant a victor psalm
As Debōrah 'neath her palm?
Will he sing as Moses sang,
While his sister's timbrel rang?
Will he bid us sacrifice,
And shall incense smoke arise
To the Lord who heareth prayer?
(Lo, the altar standeth there).

Oh, human heart, how strange,
How weak, how prompt to change!
What doth the hero say?
"Give me, my friends to-day,
The ear-rings of your prey!"

. . . . .

They will give them glad and gay,
Joyously their leader pay,
Cast the thought of God away.
Spread a mantle on the ground—
See them eager flocking round,
Every man in haste to fling
On the heap his golden ring,
While their leader's greedy eyes
Gloat enraptured o'er his prize.
Would to God that he had died
As he put the crown aside;
Of those rings and jewels rare,
He will make an ephod fair,
He who put aside the crown,
To that ephod will bow down.

Yes! thus did noble Gideon fall:
This the warning for us all;
From the oldest to the youngest,
We are weakness at our strongest.
When we think our standing steady,
Then our foot to slide is ready;
Whom ambition fails to win,
Lust of gold may tempt to sin.
Have we won a triumph glorious?
Yet the foe may be victorious;
If before our wandering eyes
He display earth's vanities;
Other soldiers of our King
Have been dazzled by a ring.

S. R. Geldard.

SCALLOWAY, SHETLAND.—Two years ago a few of the readers of The Christian kindly sent me for lending, and as Sunday-school prizes, suitable books for young people and children with whom I am constantly in contact here. These have done good service. I shall be happy to receive for the same objects other books and publications for use during the approaching winter.

William Falconer.

THE DOWN-GRADE QUESTION.

On Thursday evening last about a hundred ministers from the Pastors' College met, and after much discussion passed the following resolutions:—

This meeting of Metropolitan ministers of the Pastors' College desires hereby to declare its entire sympathy with their president, Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, in his earnest and bold defence of the evangelical faith. They all deplore with him the lack of clear doctrinal statement which characterises so much of the preaching of the present day, and they further desire to express their warmest thanks for his unflinching loyalty to his Lord, and to assure him of their hearty sympathy and support in the battle for the truth which they themselves hold so dear.

That we desire respectfully to urge the council of the Baptist Union to consider the possibility of devising some means whereby Rev. C. H. Spurgeon and the other brethren who have withdrawn from the Baptist Union could be induced to reconsider their position.

That with regard to the question of resignation from the Baptist Union, it be considered a matter of individual conscience, but that no united action be taken until after the report of the council of the Baptist Union has been received.

Copies of the resolutions have been sent to Dr. Booth, the secretary of the Baptist Union, and to Mr. Spurgeon. The circular calling the meeting was signed by Revs. A. G. Brown, W. Cuff, W. H. Burton, C. B. Sawday, E. Henderson, and E. H. Ellis.

The following address has been issued by three prominent and trusted ministers connected with the Baptist Union:—

We have learned with extreme regret that our dear friend and fellow-labourer, Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, has withdrawn from membership in the Baptist Union. We heartily agree with Mr. Spurgeon in regarding disloyalty to Christ and his Gospel as inconsistent with membership in the Baptist Union. From the beginning the Union has been an association of evangelical churches for evangelical purposes, and this is as true now as in any period of its history. In baptism we make profession of our faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and take our place among his disciples; we are baptized "into the name of the Father, the Son, and Holy Ghost"; and we avow our readiness to learn and observe "all things whatsoever Christ has commanded." In the Lord's Supper we show forth his death and gratefully receive his word, "This is my body, this is my blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." If anyone renounces the profession made in baptism and the Lord's Supper, he has no longer a legitimate place in the Union. According to the rules of the Union, "the constituencies and list of members may be revised by the Council, and their decision shall be duly notified to the persons concerned, who shall have the right of appeal to the assembly." The Union has exercised this power in past days. This power of revision must be exercised in conformity with the fundamental principle of the Union, that "every separate church has liberty to interpret and administer the laws of Christ, and that the immersion of believers is the only Christian baptism." We feel that the imposition of theological tests or a human creed would contravene this fundamental principle, and defeat the objects of the Union, which are declared to be: "to cultivate among its own members respect and love for one another, and to spread the Gospel of Christ in Great Britain and Ireland."

While differing from Mr. Spurgeon in the step he has taken, we are one with him in loyalty to Christ, in love for the Gospel, and in earnest longing of heart that it may be preached in simplicity, incorruptness, fulness and power in all the pulpits of the land, with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; and we rejoice that, though he has withdrawn from the Union, we shall continue to have fellowship and to engage in service with him, as members of the same denomination.

John Aldis.
Joseph Angus.
November 16. Alexander Maclaren.

With unqualified respect for these honoured names, we regret that, having felt called upon by the circumstances to say anything, they have not felt the necessity of saying and doing more. It is quite true that Baptism and the Lord's Supper imply all that is above stated; and that those who submit themselves to the one and partake of the other pledge themselves to those truths above stated. But the contention of Mr. Spurgeon is that there is unfaithfulness to those pledges on the part of some ministers, few or many, connected with the Baptist Union. The very painful letter signed "Agnostic" in our present issue, is an evidence of such unfaithfulness on the part of teachers in very influential positions. The testimony of this witness goes to show that the doctrine of the Gospel is falsified by some who are entrusted with the education and training of future ministers, and who are not prevented from so doing by all that is implied in Baptism and the Lord's Supper, which, doubtless, they observe.

The axiom that "every separate church has liberty to interpret and administer the laws of Christ," suggests, under present circumstances, such questions as these: "What is a church?" "If a church be removed off the one foundation, does it continue to be a church? And does it still retain the right to interpret and administer the laws of Christ?"

As a matter of fact, the outward observance of the two Christian ordinances is not enough to ensure sound doctrine, and the present need is not, we submit, met by the issue of the above address. It affirms that "the list of members may be revised by the Council," and that "the Union has exercised this power in past days." It is precisely the exercise of this power that is needed now, and the inquiries preliminary to this seem to be essential to prevent the disintegration of the Baptist and Congregational bodies.

◆

Mr. HENRY THORNE at TOTTENHAM.

The meetings conducted by Mr. Thorne at Tottenham, under the auspices of the United Gospel Mission, were brought to a close on Monday week. The mission was originally intended to last for one week only, but the success attending the meetings was so encouraging that it was decided to continue the mission.

The work was heartily taken up by Christians of all denominations, Mr. H. Thorne holding meetings in eight different places of worship. At the service at the Friends' Meeting-house, on the Saturday evening, when the subject was "The Higher Christian Life," many persons gave testimony of Christ's power of keeping them from sin, and of victory over sin, as they trusted in Him.

It is believed that nearly two hundred souls have been saved during the mission, besides many Christians being stirred to fresh consecration. Many will thank God for Mr. Thorne's visit to Tottenham, and pray that he may be abundantly blessed in his labours elsewhere.

"BRIGHT EYES" IN EDINBURGH.—Last week in Moray Free Church, Canongate, Rev. T. H. Tibbles and his Indian wife, Inshta Theamba ("Bright Eyes"), delivered addresses on "Real Life in the Wild West and Mission Work among the Red Indians." Mr. Tibbles said the North American Indians were the finest aborigines, both morally and physically, that he knew of. At first they covered the face of that great continent, but by gradual extermination they now numbered only some 300,000. Mr. Tibbles then gave an account of the gradual breaking down of the wall of prejudice erected against the Indians by the American public. In the United States, out of the one hundred and ten Indian tribes, there were about sixty who had never had a missionary, and had never heard the Gospel preached to them. "Bright Eyes" also addressed the meeting, and gave an interesting description of her life among the Indians.

THEATRE MISSION, CAMBRIDGE.

The ninth anniversary of the conversion of this evil haunt in Barnwell to the service of God was celebrated on Wednesday evening last week. Nearly 400 persons met for tea, and double that number attended the public meeting which followed.

The work has the hearty sympathy of the vicar of the parish, and of ministers of all denominations in the town, who supported the chairman, Rev. F. H. Griffin, either in person or by letter. A quiet, steady work for God is done all the year round, the secretary, Mr. W. K. Vawser, arranging for preachers weekly, who are largely supplied by the Evangelisation Society. Addresses were given by the vicar, Rev. J. Delme-Radcliffe, M.A., Revs. G. Kemp and E. Richardson, and Rev. W. R. Mowll, M.A., and Mr. G. E. Morgan, M.A., of London.

Affectionate allusion was made more than once to the memory of the late Professor Ion Keith-Falconer who had been a warm friend of the Mission from its commencement. He had given £50 toward the support of a visiting missionary and this sum his widow has kindly renewed for the current year. Visitors to Cambridge who are interested in mission work should take the opportunity of seeing this work for themselves.

◆

OBITUARY.

MRS. SMART, MADEIRA.

News respecting the death of Mrs. Smart, of Madeira, formerly of Cardiff and Bridgend, has come to hand. She was well known throughout South Wales. She had but just retired to Madeira for the winter, having spent a good part of last summer in Bridgend and Cardiff. In a letter she had begun to write to Rev. J. T. Jones, Bridgend, but which she was not permitted to finish, she states: "How I wish all the dear invalids could be got here together to this splendid climate. Yet even here are dangers to be avoided. I sat out in the gardens too late one evening last week, felt a little chilly, and have had ever since a severe cold. People forget to take care in this balmy air." This cold in a short time developed into inflammation, and this soon brought her life to a close. Though she received constant nursing and good medical attendance, all was of no avail, for she passed away at 4.40 a.m. on November 1. She was buried at the English Cemetery, Funchal. In her departure Madeira has lost a very sincere Christian worker.

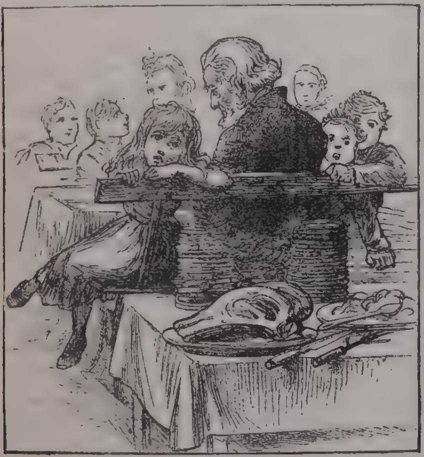
SIR WILLIAM M'ARTHUR.

This well-known Alderman and ex-Lord Mayor died suddenly on the Underground Railway one morning last week. Death is attributed to heart disease. It is difficult, says The Methodist Times, to estimate how great a loss his death inflicts upon the Methodist Church. He was the most representative, the most influential, and the most popular of Methodist laymen. His loss will be equally felt in his native country, Ireland, and in England. His Christian services extended to the ends of the earth, as Australia can testify. He was truly catholic in his sympathies, and readily assisted all churches and all philanthropic societies. His public career was characterized by wonderful prosperity and success. He and his brother have made the name of M'Arthur a household and beloved word in every Methodist church throughout the world.

The funeral took place on Monday. The cortège formed at Holland Park, and proceeded to Denbigh-road Wesleyan Chapel, Bayswater, where a short service was held. There were deputations representing the English and Irish Wesleyan Conferences, the Wesleyan Foreign Missionary Society, the Aborigines Protection Society, the Friends' Societies, the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Metropolitan Chapel Building Fund, the Wesleyan Army and Navy Committee, the Evangelical Alliance, the Governors of Leys School, Cambridge, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Orphan Working School, and the London City Mission. The remains were conveyed to Norwood Cemetery, where the interment took place, Rev. John Walton, President of the Wesleyan Conference, officiating.

A DINNER TO THE POOR.

The engravings on this and the following page partially represent the proceedings at a feast given on Tuesday last week in Mr. Harrison's hall, Meard-street, Soho, to a number of poor people, at the expense of Mr. Holt, late of Sydney.



Anticipation.

To each person on leaving there was presented a printed letter from the host to his guests. After expressing his regret that, being an invalid, he was not able to be present, Mr. Holt says :—

"I should have very much liked to have invited more, for I believe there are very many poor persons in London who are almost starving, and to whom a good meal would be a boon. I wish it were in my power to reach the masses, and not only provide each of them with one good meal, but do something which would be for their permanent relief.

"My object in bringing you together on these occasions is not only to feed your bodies, but also by the addresses you hear from friends, and the little books you receive, to feed your souls and warn you to prepare for ETERNITY. Although you are not rich enough to give dinners, &c., to the poor, there are scores, if not hundreds of ways, in which you may do good to your fellow creatures, and reap as rich a reward in the day of judgment, as those who are wealthy, and able to give substantial dinners. I will not point out how, or in what way, you can render this help, but if you consult your own hearts, you will easily perceive in what countless modes this can be done. What a happy world this might be made if we were all, from the highest to the lowest, intent upon this object—serving God and trying to make each other happy! What a happy ship that would be if all on board, from the captain to the youngest apprentice, were all intent on blessing and praising God, doing their duty, and striving to promote each other's happiness! What a happy manufactory that would be, if the owner and his overseers and all his workpeople were solely intent upon serving God and showing kindness to each other! And what happy families there would be, if each member were to set the Lord always before him—pray without ceasing—sing and make melody in his heart—then would that beautiful prayer of our Lord be fulfilled, 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.'

"But in order to make this a Christian country there is something more to do than to pray for it. We must first begin at home and ask, Am I saved? For however much we may wish for the salvation of others, it would be utterly useless to us if we should ourselves neglect this great salvation. However young and healthy you may be, you will find sooner or later, the truth of the poet's words :—

> "Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day, > Earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away."

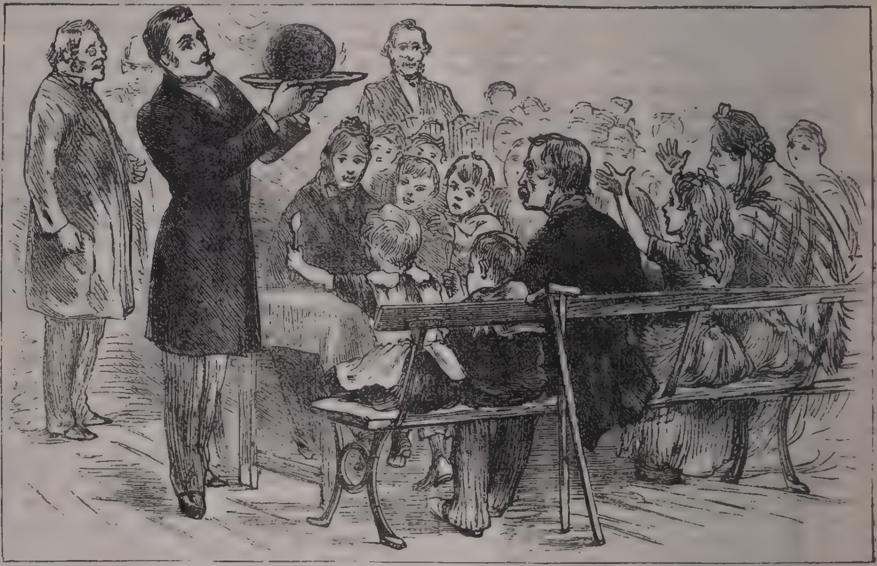
Now, do you ever consider what will become of you when 'life's little day' is brought to its close, when you will exchange time for eternity? In a beautiful Thanksgiving Prayer which is used in the Church of England, there are these words: 'We bless Thee for our creation, preservation, and all the blessings of this life.' Now, if you are only living for this world, can you join in thanking God for your creation, preservation, and all the blessings of this life? If you have nothing better to look to than the blessings you have had in this world, do you not think it had been better for you, that you had never been born?

"What happiness can a man have who is born in poverty, lives in poverty, works hard, and has scanty meals? And this is the fate of many, and their children, and their children's children have nothing better to look forward to. But all this privation and suffering might be cheerfully borne, if there were a certainty that it would terminate at a future time—when they would have everything that the heart of man could desire. Well, this is absolutely the case. There is not a soul in this room who may not, most assuredly, possess pleasures for evermore. There is an instance mentioned in the Good Old Book of a beggar, who was covered with sores and laid at a rich man's gate, where he desired to be fed from the crumbs that fell from his table. The poor fellow had no doctor to dress his sores, and the only relief he had was from the dogs coming to lick them. This is the man's daily life, to lie at the rich man's gate and beg his daily bread. Had this poor beggar any reason to bless God for his creation and preservation? Yes! he had. And he will have reason to do so to all eternity. For we read that when he died he was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The rich man, before whose gate the beggar was laid, was clothed in purple and fine linen and fared sumptuously every day. Now, had a man who was so well clad and fared so luxuriously cause to thank God that he had ever been created, preserved, and for all the good things he had enjoyed in this life? I will leave you to judge for yourselves, when you know what was the result. This rich man also died and was buried, and there is no doubt, it was a grand funeral; and many were probably there as mutes—

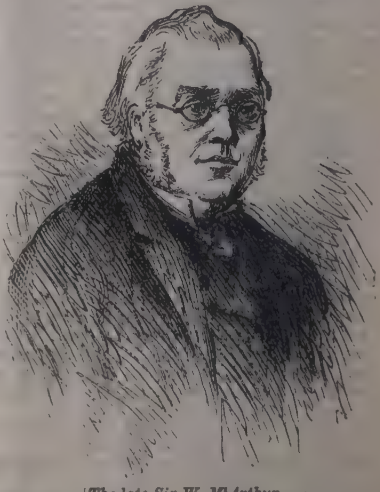
> To mimic sorrow where the hearts were not sad.

And there is no doubt that a splendid monument would be erected over the rich man's body, but what became of his soul? It is said in the Book I have alluded to that in hell he lifted up his eyes being in torment, and saw the beggar, who used to sit at his gate, in Abraham's bosom, and he cried out, 'Father Abraham, have mercy on me and send Lazarus' (that is the poor beggar), 'that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.' But Abraham told him there was a great gulf between them, so that they that 'would pass from hence to you cannot, neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence. Then he said, I pray thee send him to my father's house, for I have five brethren, that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment. Abraham said unto him, They have Moses and the Prophets, let them hear them. And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead they would repent. And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the Prophets, neither would they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.'



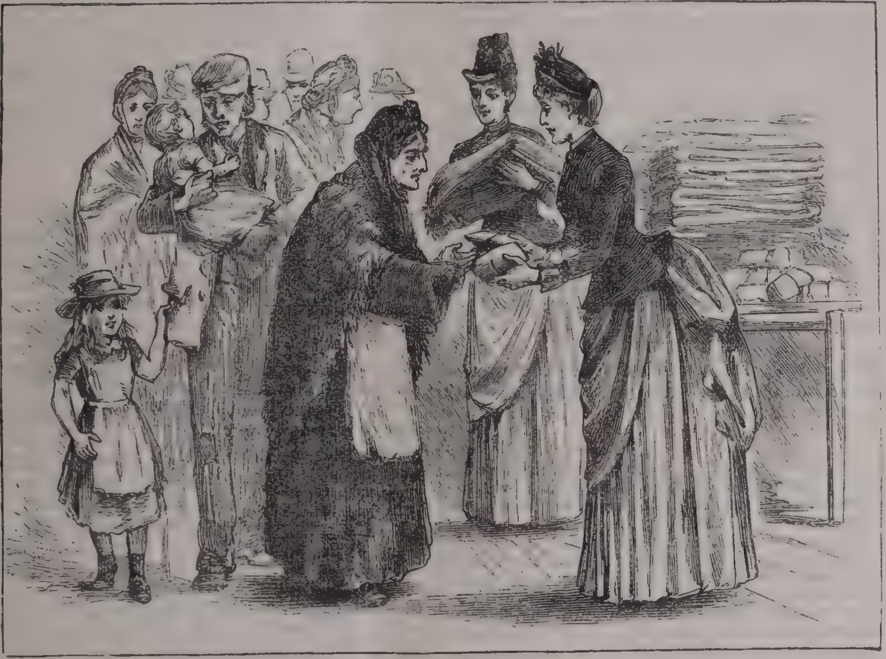
Bringing in the Pudding.

"Now, if you will reject the offers of salvation, which are offered to you so freely in the Bible, it is not likely that you would repent, though one rose from the dead. It is not probable that I shall ever see your faces in this world, and it is still more improbable that I shall ever come to you from the dead; but if I were permitted to do so, it would be as useless, in converting you, as if Lazarus had been sent to the rich man's brethren. It rests entirely with yourselves, whether you will accept or reject the offers of salvation. 'The poor have the Gospel preached to them.' And if we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ we shall all be saved and have everlasting life. The question I would ask each, and every one of you, is, Will you believe in the Son of God, that you may have everlasting life? Now do not procrastinate and put off an answer to the question, from day to day, but decide at once. And if you are resolved to believe, and give your hearts to God, your souls are as safe as those of the angels in heaven."



The late Sir W. M'Arthur.

Those invited to the repast were poor men, their wives and children, widows and widowers being also included. The cards of invitation stated that children between three and eight years might accompany their parents; altogether about 520 or 530 persons of all ages attended. Many couples brought two or more children, and infants in arms were admitted. By one o'clock the guests were seated, and many able and willing hands were ready to wait upon them. Alderman Sir William M'Arthur presided. Whilst the guests, who occupied the galleries as well as the body of the hall, were enjoying the repast, a glance round the building could not but excite mingled feelings of satisfaction and sadness. If ever there was an assemblage of deserving poor, there could be no doubt that they were the guests at the Meard-street Mission-hall. They were not of the "loafer" class, but respectable, well-behaved persons, who would only be too anxious to gain employment. Saddening was it to see so many deserving people anxious for employment, but unable to obtain it, and to think of all that is implied in the term "out of work;" but gratifying was it to see how heartily the dinner was enjoyed. After dinner, Mr. Harrison delivered a short address, in which he said that Mr. Holt, instead of calling together his rich friends and neighbours to partake of his hospitality and celebrate his birthday, had, through him, invited them to dine that day. Sir William M'Arthur expressed the pleasure he felt in being present, and said he had been asked to read Mr. Holt's letter to his guests. Mr. Walter Holt, who only arrived from Australia on the previous night, briefly responded to a hearty expression of thanks by repeating his father's welcome, and said he hoped they had all made a good dinner—a remark which evoked hearty applause. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Welsh, police-court missionary, Colonel Channer (Bexley), Rev. James Bailey (Bloomsbury Chapel), Rev. B. W. Chancellor (incumbent of St. John, Bexley), Rev. Thomas Hobbs (Norwood), Rev. Thomas Waddell (Crayford), and Mr. T. C. Chadwick. Upon leaving each family was presented with a packet of tea by the Misses Holt, whilst Mr. Holt's generosity was further displayed in the gift of a pair of blankets to each family and five publications, consisting of his letter, two tracts, a copy of the New Testament, and a book of family prayer.



Blanket and Tea Distribution.

A special interest attaches to the presence of Sir W. M'Arthur at this gathering, as it was his last appearance at a religious gathering. Next morning he was suddenly removed from this earthly scene, as mentioned elsewhere.

A TWOFOLD CELEBRATION.

UNDER the auspices of the Protestant Alliance a Conference was held on the 18th inst., at the National Club, Whitehall-gardens, in order to appoint a representative committee "to consider the best means for commemorating the tercentenary of the defeat of the Spanish Armada (1588) and the bi-centenary of the accession of the Protestant dynasty (1688), by which the liberties of the people were confirmed and consolidated, and the priceless blessings of the Reformation were retained and secured." Colonel Sandys, M.P., presided, and there was a large attendance of evangelical Protestants, clergymen of all denominations, and laymen who were interested in the movement. Delegates were present from all parts of the country. The proceedings having been opened with prayer,

The Chairman said he hoped ample opportunity would be given on a subsequent occasion to dilate upon the two subjects, throughout the length and breadth of Great Britain and the Colonies. As a nation, we should humiliate ourselves before God for unfaithfulness to the great trust which He has committed to us. One of the objects of the Conference was to afford an opportunity for the uniting together in common action of the various Christian Societies, and the principles of the Reformation would afford a common standing-ground. Another object in view was that of printing and publishing a short and ably-written account of historical facts connected with those two great events. The idea was to educate the people and to close up the ranks of Protestantism which of late had been somewhat broken by the enemy. Those to whom equal privileges had been accorded were endeavouring to break down the institutions of the land, and where they had been received upon a friendly footing, were seeking to gain supremacy, both in civil, religious, and political life; it became time to remember that this is a Protestant country and that the people enjoyed the blessing of a Protestant constitution. Let them stand shoulder to shoulder in order to vindicate those principles which were dear to them.

The hon. secretary, Mr. A. H. Guinness, read letters of apology from many gentlemen of high rank, from clergymen of all denominations, and friends resident throughout the country, expressing their fullest sympathy with the movement. Lord Robert Montagu moved a resolution which, among other matters, acknowledged God's mercies "in the providential deliverances of this country from despotic rule and Papal superstition by the defeat of the Spanish Armada, and by the accession of the Protestant dynasty to the throne of the realm." After describing the events connected with the voyage of the Spanish Armada after it left Spain, he asked whether the hand of Providence could not be seen in all the disasters that overtook the expedition and in the favourable circumstances that occurred to help the English fleets to defeat the Armada. Not only, he said, had the Spanish ships on board large numbers of troops but they contained the officers of and the instruments of torture used by the Inquisition. The resolution was ably seconded by Rev. James Kerr, delegate from the Scottish Protestant Alliance.

It was resolved, on the motion of the Hon. P. Carteret Hill, seconded by Rev. W. Barras, delegate from Glasgow, to hold commemorative meetings in the Metropolis and other parts of the country in the ensuing year, to invite all loyal subjects and associations in the United Kingdom and Ireland, as well as in the colonies and dependencies of the Empire, and all Protestants in the United States and on the Continent, to unite in the movement, and to draw up an address for presentation to Her Majesty, expressing the sincere congratulations of her loyal subjects on the jubilee anniversary of Her Majesty's coronation, and recording the firm resolve of her faithful people to uphold the Scriptural doctrines of the Reformation, and their determination to defend against all aggressions the constitutional liberties of the nation, as secured by the Protestant succession to the Throne.

The Conference was addressed by other delegates present, who stated that arrangements were being made for an imposing commemorative festival at Plymouth, for a series of lectures, and a meeting at Liverpool, for similar lectures at Leicester, and other places. It was the unanimous opinion of the Conference that meetings should be promoted in the chief local centres throughout the country, at which deputations should attend, and that pamphlets giving a concise narrative of the great events to be commemorated, and of the lessons to be enforced by the commemoration should be widely circulated. An influential committee was appointed to consider these suggestions, and carry out the arrangements.

WORK AMONG STUDENTS.—At a meeting of students, held in the Oddfellows' Hall, Edinburgh, on the 13th inst., to hear the report of the deputation who had visited the American colleges during the summer session, Prof. Henry Drummond said that every hour of their visit to America had paid them to the last degree; he never in his life had done anything which he felt was so well worth doing. They had confined their work to the colleges, and had awakened an amazing interest, not in themselves, not in the University of Edinburgh, but in the kingdom of God—an interest which would not die out, but would go on.

TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.—The simultaneous delivery of temperance sermons and addresses on Sunday next in the chapels and Sunday-schools of the leading religious denominations is indicative of a marked advance in the temperance movement. A public meeting to emphasise the importance of this "new departure" will be held in Exeter Hall on Monday evening next, when the Bishop of London will be supported by the Chairman of the Congregational Union and the Vice-President of the Baptist Union, together with representatives of the Presbyterians, Wesleyans, and four other Methodist Connexions, all of whom are uniting in the observance of Temperance Sunday.

CLOUDESLEY INSTITUTE.—The work this winter is full of encouragement. During some special meetings, real spiritual interest was awakened, and the attendance at the Sunday Bible-class has largely increased. The week evening classes have also been very attractive and efficient. We are anxious to make widely known the following arrangements: Classes for drawing and painting, by a lady artist; for singing, by Mrs. Watts-Hughes; home-nursing lectures by a qualified lady nurse; the Boarding Home is much valued, and there is seldom a vacant bed. New members are enrolled on Monday evenings. S. T. PATON, Hon. Sec

34, Barnsbury-street, Islington.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose to give portrait and sketch of Miss Frances Willard, President of the American Christian Women's Temperance Union.

We deeply regret to announce that, in consequence of a failure in his general health, Mr. Henry Varley has been compelled to relinquish, for the present, all his mission and other engagements. He is advised not to remain in England during the winter months, and will leave in a week or ten days for the Cape, en route for Australia, or possibly for Melbourne direct. He writes to us on this subject:—

> I am assured that the rest and quiet of a sea voyage, and the dry heat of Australia, for some months, will fortify me for succeeding years of service, if so be that our Lord permits me this honour. I am not forbidden to preach when I arrive in the colony. In other respects I am very well, and entirely recovered from the operation which I had in the spring. I shall value the loving sympathy and fervent prayers of God's remembrancers in view of the coming voyage and service on the other side.

We are sure that our readers will gladly respond to our esteemed brother's request. Any communications sent to his address, 48, Elgin-crescent, Notting-hill, W., during his absence, will be attended to by one of his sons.

The very distressing accounts of the Crown Prince of Germany, and his own heroic bearing, have touched all hearts with sympathy. It cannot be but that much prayer is being made for himself, the Crown Princess, and their family, and for the aged Emperor and Empress—that God may remove the terrible disease if it be his will, and, whatever the issue may be, over-rule it to his own glory and to the present and eternal welfare of the Imperial sufferer and all his kindred.

We trust that the example set by the new Mayor of Bridgewater will be followed by many other chief magistrates during the coming winter. Mr. Hurman, upon his being elected to fill the chief corporate office, expressed his disapproval of the customary dinner to the Corporation, and announced his intention to give, instead, a dinner to all the recipients of out-door relief in the town. There are few people who will not sympathise with the course which Mr. Hurman has taken, especially when it is considered how many poor and necessitous people may be fed with the money which the average "guinea a head" dinner costs.

All true friends of our deep sea fishermen will welcome the announcement that the six Powers bordering on the North Sea have—none too soon—signed an International Convention which, it is trusted, will be the means of sweeping away those pests, the Dutch "copers." By this agreement all sale and purchase of spirits to and from fishermen, and the bartering of any fish, gear, or nets for spirits are strictly prohibited; and vessels plying in the North Sea for the sale of other articles than spirits must be licensed by their respective Governments, and will be subject to rigorous inspection and stringent regulations. This arrangement will require the sanction of the Parliaments of the several contracting parties, which will also impose penalties for infringement of its provisions. It is earnestly to be hoped that in our own House of Commons the early and rapid progress of the requisite measure will be facilitated.

A friend sends us extracts from a letter just received from Bishop Parker, of Eastern Equatorial Africa, dated September 10:—

> I hope we shall reach Msalala in about five weeks' time. There Mackay is waiting for me, for probably you have heard that, through the enmity of the Arabs chiefly, he has left Buganda, and Gordon from Msalala has gone in to carry on the work till more permanent arrangements can be made. The king and many of the chiefs gave Mackay parting presents when he left as a token of goodwill, and the former requested him to return again in three months, or at any rate soon. The Christian converts latterly had been left more at peace, and a large number of portions of Scripture had been sold to them. At Msalala I hope to consult with Mackay, Blackburn, Hooper, Ashe, Walker, and Deekes, on the whole plan of working in Ungamwesi, Kaurondo, and Buganda. At present there seems to be no system or plan or organisation for these parts. We need your prayers very much.

We doubt not that our readers will earnestly bear on their hearts this little band of devoted missionaries, and pray that their conference may be productive of nothing but good. We note that Arab, that is Mohammedan, influence is, in Buganda as elsewhere, quite against the Gospel. This is another instance of the futility of the scheme recently proposed to treat Mohammedanism as a kind of half-way house to Christianity.

We have received the following note from Mr. J. J. Jones, of the London Samaritan Society, 98, High-street, Homerton, E.:—

> You kindly stated in your issue of last week that a conference of Christian workers would be called by me to take into consideration the improvements necessary to be made in the management of the casual wards and unions of the Metropolis. I am glad to state that the Local Government Board have within the past week issued orders of a most beneficial character, which remove nearly all reasonable causes of complaint. However, I shall be glad to hear from any Christian workers who would like to meet at an early date to confer together on how best to relieve the prevailing distress in London.

Several of our contemporaries, including The Record, The Rock, &c., have taken notice of the exclusion from the Lord's Supper of Rev. Newman Hall, during a recent visit at the Bel-Alp, by the chaplain representing the S P.G., on the ground of non-confirmation. The following extract from a letter is a sample of many similar expressions of disapproval:—

> I have just been reading the account of your being denied admission to the Holy Communion, as administered by the chaplain at Bel-Alp; as a clergyman of the Church of England, and one who has frequently acted as chaplain on the Continent, I desire to express the pain which such an announcement has caused me, and, I doubt not, many of my clerical brethren.
>
> My own practice when holding service on the Continent has been most emphatically to invite any members of sister Protestant churches who might be present, and feel so disposed, to join in our Communion. I have even used the words, The Table is The Lord's Table, not ours, and, therefore, free to all who love the Lord Jesus Christ.
>
> Be assured, Dear Sir, that there are many ministers in the Church of England who long for greater union with our Nonconformist brethren, and who hold that the only basis of Christian fellowship is that unity of faith which constitutes us members of Christ's body, and unity which is wholly independent of the relative claims of the existing forms of Church government—Episcopacy, Presbyterianism, or Congregationalism.

> The narrative of the garden of Eden, obviously a moral apologue or allegory, and, as a moral allegory, teeming with the finest perfection of ethical truth and the most exquisite knowledge of human nature and human life, was turned into literal history. This was to ruin it for all ethical purposes. The bread of spiritual instruction became a stone. The sin of one was theologically transferred to unborn millions. The Bible was thus flatly contradicted; for if there is one statement in prophetic Scripture made with more pungent intensity and more laboured iteration than another it is that every man answers for his own iniquity and not for that of his progenitors.—Christian World.

It is certain that the Apostle Paul did not consider the narrative of the Fall a moral apologue or allegory. It would have been impossible for so acute a logician, so severe a thinker, to have built up the argument of Romans v. on apologue or allegory. But the primal Author of that Epistle was not Paul but the Holy Ghost, who was also the Author of the Book of Genesis. To suppose that He inspired holy men to write the awful story of the Fall simply as an allegory, and then based upon it the no less awful truth, that "by one man's disobedience many were made sinners," is the depth of unreason and irreverence.

The denial of the imputation either of guilt or of righteousness is a revolt against the notion that the guilt of Adam, as an individual, is gratuitously reckoned to each member of the race; and the righteous acts of Christ to every believer; as though, contrary to God's assurance (Ezek. xviii. 20) the children were to be punished for the sins of the father; and as though Jesus wrought works of supererogation which were to be attributed to his people. Both these errors—or, to say the least, exaggerations of truth—are met, not by denying men's participation in the guilt of Adam, or believers' participation in the righteousness of Christ, but by the fact of the solidarity—the oneness—of the human race on the one hand, and of Christ and his members on the other. Every man was in Adam when he sinned, as the oak is in the acorn; all believers ("the bride of the Lamb") were in Christ when He died and rose again, as "Levi was yet in the loins of his father Abraham when Melchizedek met him."

Punch does not very often deal with religious questions, but when it does it generally hits the nail on the head. Much has been written on the subject of the gorgeous ritual at the consecration of Truro Cathedral; the "altar cross," "altar vessels," and the "Bishop's chalice," were some of the noteworthy adjuncts, the last being of pure gold encrusted with jewels. We question, however, if anything more apt has been said than Punch's simple summing up of the matter, as "scarletina at Truro," the phrase having a deeper application than its reference to the scarlet robe and train of the Archbishop, and the scarlet cassocks and caps of the acolytes who bore up the latter.

Rev. W. Adamson, Vicar of Old Ford, London, E., has called attention to what he has not hesitated to designate a "sickening aspect of the matter"—the facts that the new building has already cost £100,000; that there is not the slightest necessity for it at Truro, if anywhere, "unless parade and power be considered as sacred needs," while on the other hand "there are hundreds of parishes where Sunday-school buildings cannot be erected for the teaching of tens of thousands of children whose daily life only fits them for destruction," and hundreds of parishes "waiting to build mission churches to which would be attached populations of 5000 souls. Mr. Adamson feels deeply for the myriads who are spiritually destitute, and as his protest is made on behalf of the "tens of thousands who are being left as moral material to be moulded by Satan's hands into instruments of desolation and destruction," while "hundreds of thousands of pounds are being expended on gorgeous architecture," perhaps it is not to be wondered at that he uses strong language to express his righteous indignation.

The remarkable results which have followed missionary effort in the South Seas were recently referred to by the Bishop of Long Island, who said :—

> In more than fifty islands of the Pacific a great company have been reclaimed from idolatry and superstition. One of the largest congregations in the world, numbering 4500 members, is on the Island of Hawaii, recovered from savagery within the memory of living men. Over 90,000 Fijians gather regularly for Christian worship, who within the present generation feasted on human flesh. Fifty years ago there was not a native Christian in the Friendly Islands. Now there are 30,000 who contribute 15,000 dollars a year to religious objects.

Facts like these are striking when set against recent attacks upon mission work.

Evidences of the debasing influence which almost invariably attends the advent of Europeans among native races reach us with painful frequency. Samoa, amongst other countries, seems to be gradually reaping the usual fruits of European "civilisation." Mr. Churchward, British Consul there for four years, during which time he was brought into close contact with all classes, and had ample opportunities of studying every phase of life amongst both "whites" and natives, has published his experiences under the title of, "My Consulate in Samoa." The conclusion to which he apparently comes is that the Samoans were more peaceable, more temperate, and generally happier and better before the Europeans appeared upon their coasts than now. A large trade is carried on in adulterated spirits, which, judging from the consequences of the traffic upon other "savage" races, will utterly demoralise, if it does not exterminate the natives. It is but fair to say, however, that in this instance it is the German traders, not the English, who are the agents in this nefarious but profitable traffic.

No one can read without pain the letter signed "Agnostic" which appears in our correspondence columns. It is pitiable to think of the irreparable injury wrought by men who teach the precise opposite of that which they are expected and paid to inculcate. Our correspondent, who gives us his name and address, tells us that he has relinquished the idea of becoming a minister, and has entered into business. But how many others, similarly perverted from the truth, may be at this moment in charge of congregations as professed preachers of a Gospel which they have ceased to believe! We commend to the prayers of our readers this son of godly parents; that he may be led back to his early faith.

We are grieved to know that Mr. Denham Smith's condition continues to cause great anxiety; his state is one of slowly increasing prostration.

Readers in London are desired to note the announcements in connection with the Week of Prayer for Missions, at the Conference Hall, Mildmay, as given in our list of special meetings.

A Medical Students' Christian Association has been formed at Trinity College, Dublin; the opening meeting, a few nights ago, was largely attended. The Provost takes much interest in the movement and already it has been very successful.

Dr. Dale, of Birmingham, has given an address in South Australia on fifty years of Congregational life in England. Some things said have been criticised, but they deserve to be noted. The lecturer thought that the riotous and vulgar tunes to hymns of a former period have now been replaced by such as are extremely dignified and extremely dull; that as to chants the rhythm of music require rhythmical words; that many of the canticles now sung in congregations are wholly out of place; that people sang formerly with more fire to stringed or brass instruments than they now do to organs; that a meeting-house style of architecture for preaching is better than Gothic roofs; and that "thoughtful sermons," which some craved, have come to mean "essays." It is well someone has a good word for the past, which it is a modern cant to decry.

A propos of this address, we observe that Dr. Conder, another Congregational minister, in an address in London, has had a good word for Puritanism. It meant one of the most persistent forces that had ever appeared; its whole attitude was against every kind of profligacy and vice, and it proved that the most powerful and prevailing force in our national history is spiritual energy. The preachers do useful service who refuse to disparage the past after the fashion of the new "lights" of the age.

We are glad to learn that, as the result of Mr. Champion's letters on Socialism which have appeared in The Record, some of the clergy are reminding their congregations that there is among the poor a strong belief in the simple doctrines of the Gospel, but some doubt as to the sincerity of the churches. A reformation on this latter point is the supreme question of the times, and if Socialism opens the way, it may, spite of its dangers and extremes, help to make the church and the people one again.

Burslem, in the Staffordshire Potteries, contains a large population which mainly consists of intelligent workmen. A mission has been held there which might advantageously be imitated. There are four different orders of Methodists, and all these, with Congregationalists and Baptists, have united in a fortnight of special evangelistic services. They have prayed together, visited factories and workshops in unison, and have had their ten places of worship opened simultaneously every night. Visitors have invited to services without mentioning any one chapel. We do not feel surprised that the effect of such a manifestation of Christianity has been very marked.

Next Wednesday is the Day of Intercession for Missions to the Heathen. After the excited interest in the subject, awakened by Canon Taylor's mistaken attack, and the correspondence in The Times, the day comes opportunely. Praise for wonderful openings, and incontestible success is due; but may there not also be inquiry before God as to the reasons for failure in some places, and for wisdom in missionary methods, and especially in the location of devoted men. There should also be much request made that the spirit of courage may be given to Hindoos, and the case of their educated classes should lie on the heart of the Church. Prayer also for over-burdened workers, and native communities is suggested.

The statement that the issue of spirits is to be discontinued in the Indian army, and that the canteen will be an institution of the past, is something to thank God for. It is to be regretted that we have not someone at home with sufficient moral courage to defy vested interests and imitate Sir Frederick Roberts in thus drastically dealing with the question of the soldier's chief temptation. Some day the subject of drink and the army will have to be faced; perhaps the results which must necessarily follow the bold and Christian step taken by the Commander-in-Chief in India, will do something to hasten the time.

No wonder there is overcrowding in our large towns. Dr. Wallace estimates that in the ten years from 1871 to 1881, in England and Wales alone, two millions of people were "forced by the struggle for existence" to leave the country for the towns; as the fierceness of that sad warfare has been intensified since 1881, the exodus must have assumed even larger proportions. How long this can go on unchecked remains to be seen, for it seems to be impossible to induce statesmen to take up the question of emigration with a view not only to relieving the congested cities and towns, but of preventing the influx of those who can only be regarded as coming to swell the tides of pauperism and misery.

THE OPIUM TRADE.—On Thursday evening last week, at the Avenue-road Church, Shepherd's Bush, an address was given by Rev. Goodeve Mabbs, on "Our Opium Trade with China: a Dishonour to Great Britain, a Curse to China, and a Hindrance to the Gospel." Rev. Charles Graham, who presided, said that he never thought about our national sins without the Opium Trade taking a foremost place in his mind. He did not doubt that when the next Parliamentary candidate might be before the borough for election, they would be found ready to support any effort to induce the candidate to throw his influence into the scale against this abominable trade. He concluded by suggesting that a collection should be taken to support the movement, which was accordingly done.

THE BIBLE IN THE HIGHLANDS.—Dr. Somerville's evangelistic tour in the Highlands has led to one important result which was probably not in his thoughts when he conceived the idea of the tour. It brought to light a scarcity of the Scriptures in many of the remoter glens where the people are exceedingly poor; and, as the usual arrangements were unable to meet the need, it was agreed by the directors of the Scottish Bible Society, after consultation with friends in the localities, to offer Bibles at such prices as might enable even the poorest to obtain a copy. The offer has been eagerly and gratefully embraced; and of many a Highland glen it can now be said that never before were its lonely dwellings so well supplied with the Word of Life. The fruit of this unintended service by Dr. Somerville may be even richer and more enduring than the results of his spoken message to our Highland compatriots.—Christian Leader.

For the Young.

SHEPHERDS IN THE EAST.*

To see the sheep following the shepherd brought back to one's mind the words of our Lord, especially when I found that the goat or ram which led the flock, and some others that followed the shepherd closely, had a name to which they answered when called by him (John x. 3). As there are no fences, and many flocks, it is necessary that each flock should learn to follow its own shepherd; nor must it wander off to the open patches of wheat or barley, as it would if not thus trained. To go astray in the open plain brings danger, for a lost sheep is a ready prey to some chance wild beast from the mountains. But if it be lost in the desolate hills its destruction is almost certain if it be not found again, for there wolves and jackals abound, while leopards still prowl in the hills of Gilead, in those round the Dead Sea, and about Carmel and the hills of Galilee.

On the lonely, unfenced hills and stony mountains, the danger that wild beasts will attack the flock is always sufficient to make a careful guard necessary. The yell of the hyena, and the shriek of the jackal may, even this day, be heard close to Jerusalem, and venemous snakes are common in the hot season. The limestone rocks and chalky hills afford the serpent tribe the very haunts they love, and in summer they become very dangerous. The deadly cobra—perhaps the "asp" of the Bible, the viper in two varieties, and six other poisonous snakes, are more or less common; one of them, the horned snake, only twelve or eighteen inches long, being so deadly that a man bitten by it dies in half an hour. Besides these, the shepherd has to guard against huge birds of prey, which swoop down on a stray kid or lamb, and need all the vigour of the shepherd to beat them off. But none of these foes terrify the brave protector of the flock. If the flock be small, he is generally its owner, or one of the family, for though "hirelings" are necessary when the flocks are large, they cannot always be trusted (John x. 12—15).

There are no lions in Palestine now, and bears are only seen in the upper gorges of Lebanon; but the shepherds of to-day are often as manly and faithful as David long ago, when he went out, single-handed, at one time after a lion, and at another after a bear, and delivered the lambs out of their mouths (1 Sam. xvii. 35).

But wild beasts are not the only danger to a flock. The hills abound in caves and hiding-places which are often the resort of robbers, and the wandering Bedouins, in their black tents, are always ready to steal goats, sheep, or cattle when opportunity offers. Round Kerak, in Moab, the sheep masters give so much a year to the Bedouin sheikhs as a security that these hereditary thieves will not harry the folds—a state of things exactly like that of which David speaks when he reproaches Nabal at Carmel for refusing his followers food and refreshment (1 Sam. xxv. 7).

Shepherds often, like Jacob, or like the shepherds of Bethlehem, abide in the field or open country, keeping watch over their flock by night (Luke ii. 8); the parching drought consuming them by day and the frost by night (Gen. xxxi. 40). In the early spring the best pasturage is on the sea-coast plains; but, as the heat increases, the flocks are driven higher and higher, till the hot summer finds them on the tops of the mountains. When no sheepfold is near, a ring of thorny bushes is heaped up, but the wolf, after all, may leap into the guarded circle, though the dogs of the flock be watching outside. On the lowland plains the ruins of ancient towns and cities supply stones for permanent folds, the walls of which are often protected by a ring of thorns laid above them. A slight shelter near at hand is frequently all the protection through the night for their guardians; indeed, in the highest ridges of Lebanon, far above human habitation, they often have to content themselves with the shelter of some slight bend in the ground, setting stones round it, and strewing rushes within, for a bed. A fire kindled in the centre, so that they can lie with their feet to it, is their only comfort, and their furniture consists of nothing more than a few pots or pans, some sheep skins, and old rugs, under charge of faithful dogs during the day, when the shepherds are perhaps miles away. In the south they often sleep in the open air throughout the year.

With the dawn of day the shepherds wake, and each of them "putteth forth" his own sheep, counting them as he lets them pass slowly out under his rod, through the one doorway. To help him in doing so "he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out" (John x. 3), for flocks of different shepherds may have rested through the night in the same fold. Unlike the thief or robber who stealthily climbs the wall, he goes in through the door to bring out his flock; the shepherd who, for the time, is acting as gate-keeper gladly opening to him as he approaches.

The usual colour of the goat in Palestine is black, so that the comparison in Canticles of the locks of the Beloved, hanging in rich abundance over her shoulders, to a flock of long-haired goats, feeding on the slopes of the Gilead hills, one above the other, was as natural to a poet of the country as it is beautiful. The Beloved herself, exposed to the scorching heat, in the vineyards of which her brothers had made her keeper, says, as she thinks of her complexion, burnt black "because the sun hath looked upon her," that she is like the tents of Kedar, "beautiful" in their outline as an encampment, though the tent coverings, woven of goats' hair, were black, like her own sun-tanned features (Song of Sol. i. 5). One specially useful purpose once served by goats' hair is told us in David's history, when his wife, Michal, took one of the household images, or teraphim, and having duly laid it on a bed under the bed-clothes, put on its head an extemporised wig of goats' hair, no doubt like his own in colour, so that the counterfeit passed off as the young hero himself, and saved him from the emissaries of Saul (1 Sam. xix. 13—16). It must, however, have been the hair of a reddish-brown goat, not of a black one, that Michal used, as David had auburn hair (1 Sam. xvi. 12, xvii. 42, "ruddy"=red-haired). There is a kind of goat with such brownish-red hair, and there are also goats pied and speckled, like those which Jacob had for his share, though the black ones greatly predominate.

---

* From The Holy Land and the Bible: A Book of Scripture Illustrations gathered from Palestine. By Rev. Cunningham Geikie, D.D., vicar of St. Martin's-at-Palace, Norwich. With a map of Palestine. Two volumes. 21s. Cassell & Co., Limited.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. T. Sayer, Holland-street Schools, Blackfriars, Nov. 27 to December 2; Emmanuel Church Schools, West-end, Hampstead, December 5—9. Mr. Josiah Spiers, Willesden, Nov. 19—25. Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Liverpool and Southport, Nov. 20—27. Mr. Seagrove, Mission Room, Balls Pond, Nov. 21—25. Mr. Rickards, Longton, Staffs., Dec. 11—15. Mr. Hankinson, Godalming, Nov. 25. Messrs. J. Spiers, Martin J. Hall, H. Hutchinson, Herbert W. Pewtress, and others, General Mission. Paddington, Harrow-road, and Kensal Town, Nov. 27 to Dec. 9.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sunday, November 27, 2 Peter iii. 1—9; Monday, November 28, 2 Peter iii. 10—18; Tuesday, November 29, Jude 1—13; Wednesday, November 30, Jude 14—25; Thursday, December 1. Isaiah i. 1—17; Friday, December 2, Isaiah i. 18—31; Saturday, December 3, Isaiah ii. 1—11.

SHIPWRECKED FISHERMEN AND MARINERS' SOCIETY.—This Society has, during the quarter ending September 30, relieved over 2000 shipwrecked persons who have suffered from losses at sea, at a cost of £3759. A large number of these were members, and widows and orphans of former members, but relief is also given to shipwrecked seamen generally, besides special awards to those who have been instrumental in saving life at sea. The Shipwrecked Mariner, the quarterly magazine of the Society, published by Mr. T. Fisher Unwin, 26, Paternoster-square, gives full particulars of the work, and contains much other interesting matter. Communications should be addressed to Mr. W. R. Buck, at the office, Sailors' Home Chambers, Dock-street, London Docks, E.

THE STRANGERS' REST.

A goodly company of friends from various parts of the Metropolis found their way to the annual meeting of the Strangers' Rest in Ratcliff-highway last Friday evening. The repairs on the outside of the building having been completed, the Rest presented a brilliant appearance, and the change effected was the subject of much congratulation.

Mr. Gurney Sheppard presided, and spoke some opening words of congratulation. Of the interesting statement, by Mr. Isaac, with reference to the different branches of the work. we cannot give more than a brief summary. The meetings for English sailors have been well attended during the year, and there are many signs of definite blessing. The German meetings have been most encouraging. Some German Jews have been converted. The Scandinavian gatherings have been specially successful, many Swedes and Norwegians having been brought out of darkness into marvellous light. The French, Spanish, and Italian meetings have not been held so often as was desirable, owing to the difficulty of procuring regular workers who know the languages. Through the medium of the open-air work, hundreds have heard the glad tidings. Books to the number of two thousand have been given away to the sailors as they proceeded to sea. The latest development of the work—the effort to reach the rough lads of the Highway—is in every way successful. The Institute has been rendered as bright and cheerful as possible; instead of three nights in the week, as hitherto, it is to be open every evening. Mr. Isaac asked for help towards the various Christmas gatherings.

Rev. F. A. C. Lillingstone, in a lively and practical address, said he was particularly delighted with the missionary aspect of the work. Mr. George Holland spoke in high terms of the work, to which, with its two companions, the Welcome Home, and the Bridge of Hope, he ascribed the vast improvement which has taken place within recent years in Ratcliff-highway and the surrounding locality. He urged the necessity of vigorously prosecuting the work commenced among the young lads. They can only be turned from their vicious pursuits by having such places open to them. To be thoroughly successful there must be industrial work such as carpentry. He complained that Christians left the devil to provide nearly all the amusements for young people. Mr. H. Kellaway, the newly-appointed treasurer, having briefly spoken, Mr. T. A. Denny concurred with Mr. Holland in his remarks about the lads. He appealed to all Christians who truly love the Master to lend a helping hand in such glorious work. Mr. Reginald Radcliffe adverted to the close connection between the Strangers' Rest and Miss Child's Welcome Home. For more abundant fruit from the work at the Rest constant prayer must be made.

At the close of the meeting the Lord's Supper was observed as customary, Rev. Charles Spurgeon presiding.

FEMALE MISSION TO THE FALLEN.—The report of this Mission, commenced in 1858, gives a very encouraging account of the work. From the mission-houses in various districts of London, there is much the same evidence, that the efforts of the many loving and sympathetic missionaries labouring on behalf of their fallen sisters are being richly blessed. The missionary at Paddington observes that there is a very considerable diminution in the number of young girls about the streets. During the year the number of those assisted in various ways reached the large total of six hundred and seventy-three, of whom nearly two hundred were placed in homes, about two hundred and fifty provided with situations, and one hundred were temporarily assisted. About twenty agents, including nine regularly appointed missionaries, were engaged in this rescue and preventive work. The committee earnestly hope to be able soon to increase the number of missionaries. Communications should be addressed to the secretary, Mr. A. J. Maddison, at the office, 32, Charing-cross, S.W.

NOTTINGHAM MISSION.

From November 7 to November 14 a simultaneous mission was held by most of the Evangelical Free Churches of Nottingham. Each church made its own arrangements for mission services, and acted independently; but an address to the inhabitants of the town was issued by the central committee, and arrangements made for district visitation, so that each church might canvass a distinct neighbourhood. The movement was very successful. In most cases the congregations were large, and in all a spirit of earnestness and devotion prevailed. One experienced mission preacher stated in conversation that he had never addressed audiences in which there seemed to be so little mere curiosity, and so much earnest attention. Another said that such was the preparedness of the people, his work seemed scarcely needed. The fruit was ripe; he had only to shake the tree.

Of course the result of the mission cannot yet be fairly estimated, but so far as can been seen, the workers are greatly encouraged by the success of their efforts. One result has undoubtedly been a great quickening of activity among the churches themselves; new methods of work have been adopted in many cases which will not soon be given up. Another noteworthy feature, in almost every case, has been the large number of senior scholars whom these services have led to Christian decision. Where the work done has been so generally good and the services of such a high character, it would be invidious to single out individual churches for special mention. The joint mission at Castlegate and Friar-lane churches, in connection with which Dr. Macfadyen has conducted afternoon Bible-readings and evening services, and the visit of Rev. J. Surman Cooke to Broad-street, Wesleyan, naturally attracted much attention, while Rev. Newman Hall drew large congregations to Albion Chapel. But, as the effort of the churches was in all cases concentrated upon the districts of the town mutually agreed upon, and very little advertising done outside the boundaries, there was not much running after favourite preachers. Some of the largest results appear to have been obtained at Queen's-walk and Park-hill (Congregational), Woodborough-road (Baptist), Campbell-street (New Connexion), and the New Basford United Mission.

Besides the services in connection with the various churches of the town, there were special gatherings of the policemen and Post-Office employés, and meetings in some of the factories, &c., at which earnest and impressive addresses were delivered by Rev. R. Balgarnie, Mr. Uffen, and others. Open-air services were also held by various mission bands in spite of the unfavourable weather which prevailed throughout the week.

Appended is a list of churches and mission preachers. It should, however, be added that many other churches were in full sympathy with the mission, but unable to make their arrangements coincide in time:—

Addison-street (Congregational), Rev. R. Balgarnie; Albion Chapel (Congregational), Revs. Newman Hall and R. N. Goldthorpe; Alfred-street (U.M.F.C), Rev. J. B. Stoneham; Broad-street (Wesleyan), Rev. J. Surman Cooke; Campbell-street (New Connexion); Colwich-street (Congregational), Mr. J. Uffen; Forest-road (Primitive Methodist), Rev. J. H. Beckhurst and J. Waggott; George-street (Baptist), Rev. J. F. Jones; Park-hill (Congregational), Rev. Alfred Norris; Queen's-walk (Congregational), Rev. T. Davis; St. Ann's Well-road (Congregational), Rev. J. Hallowes; Woodborough-road (Baptist), Revs. J. F. Jones and J. G. Stuart.

Carrington. — Redcliffe-road (New Connexion), Rev. H. T. Marshall and J. W. Sims; Sherbrooke-road (Baptist), Rev. J. Lewitt; Congregational Mission Room, Students.

New Basford.—United Mission (Four Churches), Revs. W. Evans and J. Field.

Hyson Green.—Archer-street (New Connexion), Rev. W. H. Booker; Lindsay-street (U.M.F.C.), Mr. Hayes; Noel-street (Congregational), Rev. F. Newland, M.A. Palin-street (Baptist), Rev. George Eales.

CAMPBELTOWN Y.M.C.A. — At the recent annual social meeting a good report of progress was given by the secretary, Mr. Scobie. Animated and interesting addresses were given by various speakers, exhorting the members to earnestness of testimony and life.

AUSTRALIAN NOTES.

(By a Special Correspondent.)

At a meeting of the Federal Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, recently held in Melbourne, after a very aminated discussion it was unanimously resolved that the Centenary of British possession in Australia, which will be celebrated next year, should be signalised by a grand evangelistic work in which all the churches might take part.

A Bill, one of the objects of which is to make desertion a ground for the dissolution of marriage, is before the Victorian Parliament. The subject was vigorously discussed at the recent meeting of the Church of England Assembly in Melbourne. Bishop Goe spoke strongly against the Bill. The Dean of Melbourne moved a resolution declaring that "the Bill would be injurious to the best interests of the community." There was an immense preponderance of votes in favour of this resolution.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers are meeting with an enthusiastic reception here. On leaving Melbourne in August last, they went on a tour through Australia, visiting in turn New South Wales, New Zealand, South Australia, and Queensland. In all the places they had visited their concerts have been exceedingly successful. In New Zealand the Maoris, who seemed to recognise in the coloured singers a kind of brotherhood and sisterhood, attended their concerts in large numbers, and were extremely pleased with the singing. This band of freed slaves were well treated in all the colonies, invariably receiving great attention from the governors and the élite of society.

Sir Charles Mitchell's detailed report to Sir Henry Holland on the troubles in Tonga tells very decisively against Mr. Shirley Baker. The report makes it clear that there was persecution of a very persistent and cruel kind. The law was violated, and the most cruel outrages practised in order to compel the Wesleyans to abandon their Church. Sir Charles Mitchell adds that "the patience with which the Wesleyans endured the brutal ill-treatment, accompanied with robbery, to which they were exposed, astonishes me, and I can only attribute it to the good influence of Mr. Moulton."

The subject of Methodist Union is much discussed in the colonies at present. It would seem to be the opinion of the most thoughtful of the Australian Methodists that, though Methodist union is desirable, the time has not yet arrived for its consummation. There must be more Christian union before there can be a union of the Churches.

Dr. Cameron Lees' letters in The Scotsman on colonial affairs are read with much interest by Australians. Dr. Lees has a "gift of silence," and never committed himself to any public expression of opinion on disputed matters, whilst amongst us. The secular education in our State schools is a subject of deep anxiety to all thoughtful Christian men. The words in which Dr. Lees sums up his views on the result of our State school system, from so cautious a man, are of crushing weight. "A race," he says, "is growing up in ignorance of the commonest principles of religion, and even of morals. Whether the State or the Church is to blame, the effect in time is bound to be very pronounced and probably disastrous." These words have found an echo in many hearts here. A State School Religious Education League has just been formed in Melbourne.

Melbourne, September 30.

MEXICO.—The Protestant missionaries in the city of Mexico contemplate forming a General Assembly for all the Protestant workers in the Republic, for the discussion of subjects affecting Christian life and faith. Their first meeting will be held at the beginning of the New Year.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

THE TRAINING HOME ANNIVERSARY.

Our Army friends are adepts in the art of adopting novel ways of increasing and sustaining an interest in their work. Mr. Herbert Booth is credited with the idea of having an exhibition of gifts in connection with the anniversary of the Clapton Training Home last week. The response to the suggestion was of the heartiest kind, and the result was a singular and varied display of articles, brought together in a temporary structure. There were coals, potatoes, straw goods, bedroom furniture, stationery, boots, bread, groceries, &c., &c., and an assortment of live stock, including a cow, a calf, a pig, six sheep three goats, fowls, ducks, rabbits, pigeons, and doves.

Says The War Cry in its enumeration:—

> One table received careful scrutiny by many, and we imagine that no such exhibit was ever shown on any such occasion before. It consisted of some fifty articles, mostly very handsome, and some even costly, which were to be returned with thanks to the donors, because we could not sell them consistently with our principles. They included several opera shawls, handsome cushions, and similar articles, that we should consider hardly necessary in a Salvationist's house.

Such of the goods as could be used directly for the Training Home were to be so applied; the rest were for sale.

The exhibition was opened on Saturday afternoon, and in the evening a "love feast" was held.

A Holiness Council on Sunday morning was presided over by the General, who has lately returned from his Scandinavian trip. Mrs. Booth spoke on the nurture of children for God, and formally dedicated the youngest child of Mr. Bramwell Booth, a daughter, "to God for service in the Salvation Army, believing that to be the highest service of God on earth." The afternoon was devoted to "war memories," in which the General led off. After recounting some of his own life memories, he said he wondered what many feeble folk would have to talk about through eternity if ever they managed to get inside heaven. Among the others who recalled the past was Captain Jack Stoker, who told some episodes of his life. When he first saw the three little lasses with their coal-scuttle bonnets in the market-place of his native town, he stood with his hands in the pockets of a pair of borrowed "breeches" which were too big for him, having pawned his own on the Saturday night. A drinking mate remarked to him that The Army was right and they were wrong. After this Jack did not stop on the losing side long.

Gospel meetings were held in the evening, and the penitent form had not a few occupants.

On Monday several meetings were held. There was a luncheon, at which subscribers and friends, with one thousand officers and cadets sat down. At the afternoon meeting a report was read showing the work which had been done during the year in connection with the Training Homes. The total cost of training the cadets, fitting up buildings, &c., had been £13,000. At the present time there are 538 men and women in training in no less than thirty different parts of the country. In the evening Mr. H. H. Booth led a great musical festival, the choir of which was composed of about six hundred officers and cadets. The vast hall was crowded with an appreciative audience, all of whom had paid for admission.

General Booth conducted three meetings on Tuesday on the subject of holiness. In the afternoon meeting, which was attended by about five thousand persons, he said that if the whole of those present would rise up and do what they should do, the world would soon be in a different state. If they would but have faith in God they might do a great deal. To be useful, they must be willing for Him to do just what He wanted to do with them. They must give to Him their time, money, and everything they had, and then He would make them soul-winners.

GOOD TIDINGS FROM ITALY.

The account of three months' mission work in Umbria by the now well-known Italian reformer and evangelist, Count Campello, assisted by three of his countrymen, like-minded with himself, is given in a pamphlet with the above title.

The first services were held in Arrone, and Count Campello was soon able to write of triumphs won by the Cross of Christ, which were totally unexpected. Week after week the hall was crowded, and so eager were the people to hear the Gospel that they remained, filled with the deepest emotion, for some time after the meetings were closed. "We shall always attend these services—we have found what we want!" was their exclamation. Ferentillo was next visited, and here again the success of the mission was almost miraculous.

Many invitations having meanwhile been received from the surrounding villages, the people in which expressed themselves as hungering to hear the Word, several open-air services were held, with the result that a number of young men openly joined the movement. This led to the formation of a Young Men's "Redemption Army," somewhat on the model of the Salvation Army. Count Campello speaks with the greatest hopefulness of the success of this branch of the work, the youthful adherents manifesting the greatest enthusiasm and eagerness to take some part in making known the good news of salvation.

Altogether, the Count says, the results have been wonderful, and such as to fill him and his fellow-workers with the deepest joy and thankfulness to God for such blessing for their labours. He adds that the needs of the work are great. Miss Mayor, 20, The Avenue, Blackheath, S.E., is the hon. sec. of the ladies' committee, and will gladly give any further information about the work.

◆

THE CHURCH ARMY.

On Wednesday, last week, the anniversary of the Training Home was held, and there was also formally opened the new home for mission nurses, situated near the headquarters in Edgware-road. The most important of the meetings was that in St. Mary's Hall, Crawford-street in the afternoon; The Earl of Meath presided, and there was a large audience.

The Chairman said the Church Army has proved beyond doubt that it supplies a felt want. Its agents have succeeded in reaching the lower strata of society. The success which has attended it is a hopeful and encouraging sign for the future.

Rev. F. S. Webster said the great aim at the Training Home is to produce what is designated "a marketable article." Reports come to hand from all parts of the country that that result has been attained to a remarkable extent. The officers despatched from the Training Home possess three characteristics: they are thoroughly trained; they are itinerant workers; and they are self-supporting. Lady workers are doing right nobly in visiting the homes of the poor, and tending the sick. Mr. Webster told of a servant-girl who had been led to Christ through the instrumentality of the Army, and who had been so filled with gratitude for the change in her life, that she saved £20 from four years' wages, and sent it towards a fund for the erection of a mission-hall in the place where she lived.

The Vicar of St. Luke's, Hackney, having borne testimony to the blessing he had received in his parish from the Army, Rev. W. Carlile made the cheering announcement that the organisation is out of debt. £2000, however, are needed for the Training Fund. A number of the officers, all of whom seemed full of "go" and overflowing with enthusiasm, briefly addressed the meeting, delighting all, as they told of triumphs for the Master among the lowest and most degraded.

THE NEW HOME OF INDUSTRY.

On Wednesday evening of last week Miss Macpherson's many helpers, with a goodly number of the leaders of Christian work in the Metropolis, found their way through the dense fog to the admirable building which this honoured handmaid of the Lord has been enabled to purchase and fit up for her growing work. It is a large new warehouse, so altered and adapted as to be well suited to its various needs. Opportunity was given to all to inspect the commodious premises, from the policemen's retreat, workshops, and kitchens of the cellar, to the nicely arranged cubicles of the upper floor. The appointments of the place seem all that could be desired. The property, as well as all the fittings and furniture so far secured, are fully paid for. The old Home in Commercial-street is to still be retained for the present for work among young women, and to be called "Young Women's Institute."

After tea the friends assembled in the spacious room on the first floor, which was nearly full for the opening service. Mr. J. Mathieson, of Mildmay, presided. In his opening remarks, he referred to the ticklish times that are upon us. Everywhere "men's hearts are failing them for fear." The calamities that threaten can only be averted by spreading the sweet savour of Christ. Such a work as this "Home" is worth an additional five thousand policemen, if the authorities but knew it. Such agencies alone can "sweeten the breath of society." He also remarked on the importance of Christians loving one another. If they are not drawn together, they will soon be driven.

Mr. Dobbin read a statement to the effect that the work had begun in 1866 among matchbox makers and destitute children in some dwelling-houses. In 1869 the old Home in Commercial-street was opened, various branches being added from time to time. The emigration work began in 1870. The average in the seventeen years has been two hundred and fifty yearly. The total of children sent to Canada was 4,550. Of these only one per cent. had failed. In this very neighbourhood where they were now assembled, Miss Macpherson was working in the Bird Fair twenty-five years ago.

Miss Macpherson followed with one of her telling addresses. She made touching allusion to the devoted and venerable Miss Lowe, who led her into this work, and who, with Mr. Radcliffe, had met her in 1860 near that spot to pray for the locality. Then no lady thought of coming to the East-end for Christian work. Then all the now well-known methods of Christian effort were unbegun. They had toiled for twenty-five years to please Jesus, and He has been with them and has raised up many to help. She then called upon one after another of her helpers to rise and testify to the effects of their work. Mr. Howard has been a helper twelve years. In his department 450 weekly are influenced in the lodging-houses. Mr. Stewart superintends the Sunday-school of 400 girls. Mr. Gardiner has 100 in Bands of Hope, meeting Monday evenings. Miss Turner thought that 30,000 yearly were influenced in the factories she visited. Miss Hudson has a mother's meeting of 150; 500 mothers met one of the Princesses on one occasion, of these three-fourths are converted. A Jewish missionary, with an unpronounceable name, visits many Jewish families. He has a Saturday evening meeting among them of over fifty. Miss Grainger has forty-five in her school. Another lady worker has an infant class of 150 of from three to ten years of age, and had learned several languages as her work required it. Miss Macpherson said it was the underlying idea of her work to provide for retaining a grip on every one won. They must have something for each. She would teach women to make savoury dishes for their husbands, and lads to write love letters. She shows them how to figure out the fact that the guineas spent on beer and tobacco money would furnish a little home, like some rooms she fits up as a sample. She wants to send many of her lads to Manitoba, where she hopes to acquire a farm. They would be the property owners and thrifty farmers of the future Manitoba. The work of the Home requires £5000 a year. She closed with a pathetic allusion to God's goodness in giving her this place within two minutes of the spot where, with Mr. Radcliffe, she had knelt so long ago.

Mr. E. F. Baldwin, missionary from Morocco, gave an address. One of the secrets, he said, of this work was the link of sympathy and co-operation existing between Miss Macpherson and those whom God inclined to sustain her in it with prayer and practical help. This is the crying need of foreign mission work. Provision is not made in present methods for a close bond between the workers abroad and the churches at home. The remedy is to resort to the Scriptural plan of individual congregations sending out and sustaining from among themselves, missionaries. Plans were being laid by which some well-known brethren whose praise was in all the churches would co-operate with the speaker in seeking to put before churches the privilege and blessing of thus doing, and thus to seek to secure large numbers of approved labourers.

Rev. J. Hudson Taylor followed. He exhorted them not to wait until Miss Macpherson was in need before they gave. She was never really in need, for God always supplied it. He had asked the Lord for one hundred missionaries this year, but only one hundred and seven had been accepted. The £10,000 needed had also been given. The world needs men who know God. He goes before and makes the crooked places straight before we reach them. He delighted to think of Satan as God's servant, just doing His will after all. When the foe came in one way God could make him flee seven ways.

Mr. Reginald Radcliffe said great interests were represented here—China, North Africa, South Africa, the Jews, London's need, the Church Missionary Society. Let us not separate until God takes us with Him, like Abraham, to "count the stars," by faith to do the seemingly impossible thing. Don't look for little things.

Lord Radstock read a Scripture. The services were interspersed with excellent singing and frequent and fervent prayers.

On Friday afternoon the Home was opened to the widows and "mothers." Through fog and heavy rain 400 came. Lord Radstock spoke a few words which brought all into the felt presence of the Father. Hymns of praise rose from hearts to whom Jesus was all in all. Mrs. Frank Bevan then in a few solemn words of prayer whilst all stood, in the name of the Lord, declared the Home opened, after which she spoke of Jesus being "the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever." Many of the dear aged saints echoed "that's true, that's true," as the tender, motherly words were spoken to their hearts. Many breathings of praise followed. The women carried away a good bag of food and a little packet of tea to have a meal at home, and rejoiced with their families over the new Home being opened.

◆

CONQUERORS.

"We are more than conquerors through Him tha loved us."—Rom. viii. 37.

Glory be to Jesus! Tell what He hath done;
Sound aloud the praises of the Holy One!
Bind, O bind the laurels round the Victor's brow;
He who conquered for us conquers in us now.

Justice once hath smitten with its righteous sword;
Justice now acquits us, in our risen Lord.
Who shall now condemn us, since in Him we died?
Who shall separate us, from the Crucified?

'Tis for us to trust Him, watching unto prayer;
'Tis for Him to vanquish, always, everywhere;
'Tis for us to praise Him, resting in Him still.
'Tis for Him to triumph, and He surely will!

[Extracted from On the Wing: Scripture texts f each day in the month. With Verses by Lucy Bennett. Designs by Alice Price and F. Corb Price. Castell Brothers, London.]

The Blackest Blot on Britain's Fame.

A Scottish Crusade against Licensed Sin in India.

LAST week saw the opening of a new epoch in Scotland, we trust, in the great moral crusade which has for its object the purging of the statute books and official ordinances, throughout the British Empire, from the taint of complicity with the grossest vice and the cruellest wrong. We are finding out, more and more, how fast and easy is the descent towards wrongdoing, and how slow and toilsome are the steps backward to the plane of righteousness and purity and truth. The agitation in favour of the repeal of State-regulated vice abroad has not hitherto taken deep root in Scotland; probably because the true nature and extent of the evil have not been known. After the meetings of last week our friends north of the Tweed will scarcely have this excuse. The four largest towns have been visited by an English deputation, through whom, with the aid of local friends, the facts have been stated, more or less fully. This special movement took its rise at the meetings of the United Presbyterian Synod last May. It was then resolved that something should be done to rouse the Scottish Churches. The Free Church heartily co operated in the work, as also did the Edinburgh branch of the National Vigilance Association. The meetings last week at Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Dundee, and Glasgow were arranged for in order to focus the floating Christian opinion, and to create an opinion where it did not exist. It now remains for our Northern friends to translate that opinion into action. One thing is certain: if the earnest Christians do not, in the name and strength of their Master, exorcise the demon of State-protected lust, he will flourish unchecked. This modern Beelzebub will never cast himself out. We give a somewhat extended and specially secured report of the Edinburgh meeting, as typical of the whole series. Our summaries of the other gatherings are taken from local reports.

EDINBURGH.

The first of the series of meetings was held in the Free Assembly Hall on the evening of Tuesday. The audience, though large, was by no means so overflowing as the gravity of the subject would have warranted; still it was an encouraging one, inasmuch as it was largely composed of young women. If Scottish women will take up this cross and carry it bravely for the sake of their less favoured sisters in distant lands, the hour of redemption for these downtrodden ones must be nigh.

It was expected that Principal Rainy would preside at the Edinburgh meeting, and lend to the movement the weight of his earnest and well-balanced speech. Illness, unhappily, prevented this, but his place was well filled by Principal Cairns. After prayer by Mr. Kelman, of Leith, some letters of apology for absence were read by the secretary. Principal Rainy wrote that, while he did not question the motives of the supporters of the State-regulation system, he took his stand against it on the ground that any system which provides for the safe commission of vice is in itself indefensible, and will inevitably promote immorality, whatever may be the intention of those who favour it. Mr. Gladstone, in the capacity of M.P. for Midlothian, sent a postcard excusing himself on the ground of the pressure of other engagements. Mrs. Josephine Butler wrote:—

> I have continued to hope and to long to be able to come to the meetings in Scotland. I assure you that these would have been most welcome and most solemn opportunities for me in which to declare before a Christian public some of the deeper lessons which God has been teaching me during these last weeks of seclusion on the great subjects to be treated; but it seems that He wills me to be silent for a time, I trust in order that I may better accomplish something still to be done in the future. I am under the strictest medical orders to refrain from work for some six months; it is a great disappointment to me. Will you kindly convey to any friends interested the expression of my deep regret, and my hope and belief that all the churches of Scotland will speak out in such a way as effectually to influence those in power.

Mr. Childers, one of the Edinburgh M.P.'s, wrote expressing his entire sympathy with the object of the gatherings; as also did Mr. Buchanan, M.P. Lord Provost Clark thought that if the state of affairs in India was as represented, it was "a shame and a disgrace to us all"; a like opinion was expressed in a letter from Colonel Davidson. A number of local ministers of the Gospel wrote in hearty sympathy with the agitation for repeal.

PRINCIPAL CAIRNS

said he felt honoured in presiding over such an influential gathering convened for such an object; still it is a matter of deep regret that such an agitation should be needed. Since we have swept away the regulation system in our own country, where is the consistency of retaining it in our colonies and dependencies? We must be in dead earnest on this question. While we discuss it with becoming delicacy, we must speak out with all firmness and distinctness. We have a great duty to discharge, especially with reference to India. In Calcutta these abominable regulations have for some time been practically suspended, through the refusal of the late Viceroy, the Marquis of Ripon, to sanction their application. An attempt is now being made to revive them, but we must hope it will utterly fail. In Madras and Bombay they are in full operation. Colonel Davidson in his letter asserts, from personal knowledge, that these arrangements by the governing authority to provide vicious indulgence for European soldiers, aggravate rather than diminish the evil. Many other military men have testified to the same effect. This is not merely a question of liberty or of chivalry; it is a deeply religious question, and one that concerns the glory of our Redeemer, whose name, in the eyes of the heathen and of the Mohammedan, is dishonoured by our foul proceedings. As it was said in relation to the question of slavery, so we can say that we have all the attributes of the Almighty on our side; if God be for us our cause is a righteous and holy one, and it is certain to prevail.

MR. H. J. WILSON, M.P.,

a sturdy and warm-hearted Yorkshireman, and a strong defender of national purity, moved the first resolution, which was as follows:—

> That this meeting, representing all sections of the Church and classes of the community, enters its strong protest against any system, under whatever modifications, by which impurity is licensed or regulated; in particular, it denounces the Acts or Ordinances of that nature, passed and worked by the British Government, as cruel, unjust, unconstitutional, immoral, displeasing to the God of righteousness, purity, and love, and calculated to bring down his judgments on the nation,

After a brief résumé of the way in which this iniquitous system was surreptitiously smuggled through Parliament, some eighteen years ago, Mr. Wilson went on to say that in that legislation the devil rather overreached himself. The evil system has been adopted in other countries through military ordinances and police regulations, but never before was it attempted to make it the actual law of the land. This Act brought it definitely under the cognisance of the people, and aroused the strong opposition, which, happily, culminated in its total repeal in Great Britain. In the Crown Colonies, and India, the system has been introduced under various disguises, but there is a strong family likeness between them all, and the object is ever the same. All who have looked into the question from the Christian standpoint have condemned the whole business as being absolutely at variance with any true apprehension of what is meant by a moral system at all. It practically assumes that that is not wrong in men which its own advocates admit to be wrong in women. We must reassert the Divine law, that the practice of chastity is equally binding upon men and upon women. Under whatever name it is known, the system always involves the registration and setting apart of a particular class of women for the satisfaction of the worst passions of the other sex. It is necessarily accompanied, not only by immorality, but by excessive cruelty and injustice. Moreover, it has ever and everywhere resulted in encouraging men in their evil deeds. As someone has truly said, "You cannot prepare a great highway and keep it in order, and then tell men that it is an act of trespass to walk upon it." So, when the State undertakes to make vice healthful and safe, depend upon it, men will soon learn the lesson. Mr. Wilson proceeded to refer to certain of the "regulations" in force in some of our dependencies. He specially instanced the case of Labuan as one of the most unblushing in its nature. He quoted an official enactment whereby in this territory certain persons are licensed to open and keep brothels in such places as the Governor may approve. The keepers of such duly-licensed places are to pay to the Colonial surgeon in respect thereof such sums as may be fixed by order of the Governor or Council. The authorities thus derive a stated revenue from this wretched and unholy traffic. There are a number of regulations, the purport of which is to make this traffic as much a legitimate one as the trade in fireworks or in tobacco is in this country. Many of the provisions are of the most offensive character. It is said, with respect to the expenses of treating any brothel inmates in the Government hospitals, that it will be "a debt due to the Crown." This case of Labuan is very much typical of what we find in other Crown colonies. We are accustomed to regard the Crown as the symbol of honour, but the associations in which we find the Crown here are of a very different kind. Many of the proclamations are finished up with the words "God save the Queen!" Mr. Wilson referred in some detail to the atrocious doings of the police at Hong Kong. It has been the habit to get these minions of the law to entice native women into wrongdoing with themselves in order to secure evidence that would be held to justify their being registered as prostitutes! Could anything be more fiendish? And yet it is done by the official sanction of the representatives of the British Crown. At Shanghai, when it was desired to abolish the system several years ago, Vice-Admiral Hamilton, in command of the British fleet in the Chinese waters, telegraphed, protesting strongly against the proposed suppression, and declaring that in the event of its being done he would curtail the visit of the ships to Shanghai!

The system is also in full swing in Egypt in connection with the occupation of that country by our troops. This is amply proved by the Parliamentary Papers printed by order of the House of Commons. There also the representatives of this Christian nation are corrupting the people by forcing the system upon them. We find the same thing in the Fiji Islands, and indeed in every part of the world where our military system has sway. Surely, in the face of these facts, all right-minded persons ought to resolve at once to do what they can to sweep the system away. The churches in Scotland in times past have spoken out with no uncertain voice; let them not be backward now. Some say the people affected by these regulations are a long way off, and it is better not to stir up the matter at home. But while they and we are alike under British rule, we cannot rid ourselves of the responsibility. Besides, the soldiers in these lands, for whose supposed benefit the hateful regulations are made, go from our own Scottish and English village homes. Will they not come home and speak of the things that are done abroad, and thus corrupt our youth? Edinburgh is famed for its interest in medical missions. Do not forget that alongside of the medical missionary whom you send out to these foreign lands there is the colonial surgeon, who is appointed to carry out this accursed system. We must shake ourselves clear of the horrible inconsistency by every means in our power. As citizens of the British Empire, and as morality-loving Christian men and women, we must do whatever we possibly can, by vote and voice, to abolish this monstrous iniquity.

REV. JOHN M. SLOAN

seconded the resolution in a speech full of noble, holy protest; his uncompromising utterances were greatly cheered. He said:—

One is conscious of shame and indignation that the action of our Government, in connection with the State regulation of vice in our colonies and dependencies, should force on to public platforms ladies of refined Christian feeling, and compel them, under the highest constraints, to deal publicly with a subject in itself utterly revolting. The feeling of shame and indignation on this account is prominent. But there is also very prominent a feeling of admiration at the heroism of Christian principle, at the readiness to endure even a moral martyrdom, which brings such ladies into the field for the rescue of their sisters in other lands from the tyranny, the injustice, the hopeless degradation to which the lust of our countrymen consigns them. All honour, among others, to Mrs. Chant, Miss Wigham, Mrs. Josephine Butler, whose hand bears aloft the White Flag in the front rank of the army of Social Purity. What would men, even Christian men, what would our lukewarm churches attempt, or do, in this cause, without the stimulus of their yearning compassion; without the evidence of their feeling of womanhood itself being outraged openly and nationally by Christian Britain in such Acts; without the provocation to good works afforded by their prayerful and indomitable zeal in the interests of purity and justice? We need such women's help, to quicken our conscience, to inflame us with their zeal, to flash upon us the nobility of that purity of heart which will give no quarter to what is base, and to what is so degrading to their sex and to human nature.

In French history we read that, in the reign of Charles VII., when the national spirit was languid, and destitute of a lofty patriotism, and of faith in itself to achieve its unity and freedom, the faith and patriotism of a pure-minded young maiden gave her power in the councils, and with the armies of the king, till success crowned her enterprise. Joan of Arc stands forth as a notable monument of what faith in God and a passionate patriotism in the bosom of one woman can accomplish. And human nature has not greatly changed since then. Let high-toned Christian woman come forth in these days arrayed in the armour of light, in the strength of faith in God, and in the passion which a sense of outraged justice inspires, and she will slay the dragon as well as any St. George, no matter though its scales be iron, its breath poison, and its jaws vomit flames. We have seen in recent years what she has accomplished in our own country; and how, mainly through her, the odious and cowardly C.D. Acts, stolen through Parliament when our legislators were asleep, have of late been repealed. And under the same earnest and persistent determination that the true and the right shall be done, we shall, ere long, I doubt not, see this national disgrace, against which we are met to protest to-night, also wiped away.

This dragon—shall we call it?—the assault on which we are making to-night, is one whose security lies not in its strength, but in its sheer ugliness. Its hideous deformity—its loathsomeness to look on—is its strongest protection. Let the light of public opinion, of Christianised public opinion, of an intelligent democratic judgment, fall upon it, and it will die. Such monsters can live only in darkness. Now, such meetings as this are intended to cast the sunlight of enlightened Christian opinion full upon it. It may try some of our finer feelings to gaze. It may be painful to sensitive and delicate moral natures to listen. But, after all, there is something nobler and worthier to be done than closing our eyes, or holding our ears, when anything painful has to be seen or heard. Facts are more important than feelings. And if things are done under the sun which should cover the face of a Christian nation with a deep-dyed blush never to pass away till the cause of shame be removed, why, it is more Christlike to face the facts than to be excessively considerate of the feelings.

It was through Sir John Pope Hennessey, Governor of Hong Kong, that the British public was first startled by the atrocities which were being wrought under the sanction of British law. He himself came to know the obnoxious character of these laws only shortly after he became Governor—in 1877—ten years ago. It was the Parliamentary return moved for and obtained by Prof. Stuart, in the Blue Book printed June, 1886, only eighteen months ago, which really opened the eyes of the nation. This opening has since then been very gradual, and is still in progress. Some will be enabled to see a little more clearly here to-night, and others, no doubt, only to-morrow morning. Ay, and I daresay not even then. For many of our elegant and refined people will say as they see the report of this meeting, "Ugh! Why will our newspapers give room to such a horrible subject as that? Not fit to be read, take the paper away." But, my dear refined sisters and my dear masculine Pharisees, what your pure minds cannot bear to read, thousands of your sisters throughout the British Empire have to suffer—to suffer till they die—to suffer without a chance of escape, whether they will or not. "Woe unto you, Pharisees, for ye lade men," and women, too, "with burdens grievous to be borne"; ye lade them by continuing wilfully ignorant of them ye lade them in so far as you give your votes for men who impose, or who permit such burdens to be borne by any of the subjects of our Queen: "And ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers." Such a pity it is, when people become too refined to be able even to consider the wrongs, the oppression, the outrages inflicted on their fellow creatures!

Shameful in their operation as these Acts are—far more so than anything that has been said here to-night, or that will be said, can convey to you—we do not despair of our country. "An enemy hath sown these tares," and the accursed growth is not the purposeful and intelligent doing of the nation.

God has been giving us space for repentance; and He has been longsuffering, because, while his honour has been disregarded and compromised in the presence of the heathen, the nation has been kept in ignorance. But with knowledge comes full responsibility, and the imperative need of action. Our cry of shame and confession must go up to God. Our cry of indignation and remonstrance must go up to Parliament, and to our members in Parliament. And we must tell them that this shall no longer be.

We have been proud, justly proud, of Britain's place and influence among the nations. Britannia has been a benefactress to the world by her noble example of setting four millions of slaves free. Britannia has visited India, and brought with her the gift of Christianity, and civilisation, and education, and many of the arts of life. She has rescued her from many of the barbarities of her heathenism; stopped self-immolation under the car of Juggernaut; and the horrors of hook-swinging, and the pathetic cruelties of Suttee, or widow-burning. Has she, alas! on this mission of mercy and humanity, also brought with her a foul plague in her skirts? A plague that dishonours her Christianity, and perverts utterly the conceptions of the heathen as to the pure religion of Jesus Christ; a plague that shocks and revolts the heathen themselves, as an outrage on modesty, liberty, and justice. Has she rescued the widows of India from the funeral piles of their husbands that they may be flung into the streets as "registered prostitutes," and be consumed by the fires of British lust? More honourable, more humane even, the short, sharp agony of the flames, than the unutterable degradation of a life doomed to the service of the basest passions.

Such Acts are, as our motion says, "Cruel, unjust, immoral, unconstitutional, displeasing to God, and fitted to bring down his judgments upon us." They are an insult to the womanhood and lofty character of our beloved Queen, in whose name they, nevertheless, are enacted and enforced. They are a most lamentable snare and trap to our poor soldiers, who need all the supports a lofty public opinion can give them, to guard them against vice, rather than provision, under Government licence, for its fancied safe indulgence. They are a libel on human nature, inasmuch as they seem to recognise impurity as a necessity. They are a foul defacement of our national Christianity; and Satan's supreme stumbling-block to the advance of missionary effort.

How deplorable that a native Indian journal has this to testify: "Christianity ought not to have failed in India; but it has failed, because its proclamations are so different from its practices. Who could believe it possible, for instance," the writer asks, "that every British regiment that passes through a district requires so many maunds of wheat, so many goats and cows, and so many prostitutes? Shame!" Yes India—heathen India—in her hundreds of millions cries, Shame! And shall not Christendom also cry, Shame! Shall not Christian Scotland cry, Shame! God speed the time when Acts which are the scandal and disgrace of a Christian nation shall no longer dim the fai lustre of Britain's honour, or prevent the spread of the pure and salvation-bringing Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The resolution having been unanimously adopted,

MRS. ORMISTON CHANT

was called on to move as follows:—

> That this meeting deplores the fact that, while th system complained of was abolished eighteen month ago in the United Kingdom, it has since then been maintained and even extended in India and among the Crown Colonies and Dependencies, to the sullying o the name of our Queen and country, and to the prejudic of Christ's cause in foreign lands.

This resolution she supported in a speech which greatly charmed and impressed the assembly The fact that this system is still in force abroad she said, gives the lie to the voice of the nation that so recently declared in tremendous tone that it would not tolerate the thing at home Would that British men and women felt th sting of this insult as keenly as they ought t do. We are told on high authority to "be angr and sin not." Would it were possible to bur into every male British heart the passionate in dignation that many women feel with respect t this crying evil. There is no need for woman t apologise for taking an active part in the agita tion. It would mean moral death for Grea Britain if there were so little true womanlines among her daughters as to cause them to b silent. This legislation is an infringement o woman's liberty, and a blow to the sacrednes and sanctity of true marriage. The poisone atmosphere created by it is entering our homes and the sons whom we are bringing up to revere an respect God's high standard of purity are bein taught these false and degrading views of moralit and life. They go out into the world and mix with men whose consciences are darkened by their own sin and degradation, so that our teachings are given the lie by a system inherited from the Greeks, whose religion consisted merely in ministering to their own pleasure. The heart of humanity cries out for something more real and true and that can alone be found in the religion of Jesus Christ. It is not to be tolerated that those who sit in high places, and have the power to make or administer the law, shall act in direct defiance of the conscience and best and most religious feelings of the nation. Our hearts rebel at the thought of it. What is wrong for the individual is wrong for the nation. And we must protest against it, not only for our colonies, but for all the nations of the earth. What Britain has condemned for her own people she must condemn in others. Anything else would be incompatible with national righteousness. No one of the forms of infidelity in our midst today is so terrible as that which causes the manhood of the world to hold womanhood in contempt; but that contempt is bred by the vicious system against which we protest. It is a cycle and chain of inevitable sequence that if you would have noble men you must have noble women, and if you would have noble women you must have noble fathers. Mrs. Chant referred in tones of burning resentment and indignation to the pamphlet written by an ex-policeman of thirty years' standing, in which he makes the infamous assertion, supposed to be founded on his experience in dealing with crime and vice, that he has never known a pure woman anywhere, and does not believe in her existence. Yet this pamphlet has been extensively and gratuitously circulated among young men. Can anyone conceive a more appalling doctrine to be instilled into the minds of the youth of any nation? It is as bad as the saying of that gifted but miserable and hell-doomed genius, Lord Byron, who dared to write that every woman was a profligate at heart. Thank God, there was not a man hearing her who believed that, or would carry the belief into practice. No one, said Mrs. Chant, can feel the horror of the work in which we are engaged, more than I do; but whatever is most horrible needs us most. There are no nobler pictures to be found in the world's history than that furnished by the lives of those who have sacrificed all for the sake of others, and it is our glory if we seek to follow in their footsteps. Think of our poor sisters who have come under the power of bad men, and have been cast out of the pale of society, so that they are walking our streets bowed down with a sense of sin, and shame, and failure, longing for death to put an end to all their misery, because for them there seems no hope. Our Pharisees in Parliament have defended the legislation of the past because they say it would tend to the reformation of these poor ones. A strange way truly of bringing about their reformation by registering them as fit for a life of sin for months at a time! Does not every part of our nature cry out against such a perversion of the truth. Then as to our colonies: think what a farce it is to send out the missionary with the Bible in his hand; and, as he reads out the seventh commandment, and that other word, "Blessed are the pure in heart," there stands behind him the divisional surgeon, behind him the policeman, and behind them the army and the whole British nation virtually denying the truth of what the missionary has read! Surely it is high time that the people asserted their power, and decreed that such a thing shall be possible no more. Mrs. Chant went on to relate some recent personal experiences in London, in connection with visits she has paid to music-halls to find out the condition of matters as to the young. She recited most heartrending facts of the degradation she had witnessed caused by drink and the representations of depravity on the stage. She attributes the terrible demoralisation thus caused to the drink; if it were not for that, such places could not exist. One young girl she watched, who had drunk five glasses of brandy, and was about to drink a sixth! When remonstrated with, she said, "If you had got to do what I have to do you would have to liquor up well!" A lad of eighteen was also encountered, whom an older man was striving to initiate into the paths of evil. Mrs. Chant told how she interposed, and plucked the youth out of the toils of his fiendish tempter. Here are we, she said, in closing, doing our best to rescue our young men and women from the dangers that beset them, and here is our Government doing its best to degrade our young manhood and womanhood. Shall we not say, in the words of our Master, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon us, because we are anointed to preach the Gospel, to undo the heavy burdens, and let the oppressed go free"?

REV. GEORGE WILSON,

of Edinburgh, seconded the motion in a speech characterised by deep feeling and pathos. He said that Mrs. Chant touched the very core of the subject when she laid down the clear proposition that we cannot do as a nation what we would not dare to do in our individual lives. Each one of us, so far as we can affect the public thought or action of our nation, is responsible for the continuance of these shameful acts that still disgrace the statute-books of our colonial possessions. If in our least thoughtful moments we are obliged to say that our attitude towards this evil must be that of extermination, how can we ever allow ourselves, as citizens, to be reconciled to the condition of "regulation"? The ground on which these Acts is supported is the very worst feature about them. They are advocated on the ostensible ground of stepping in between vice and its natural, providential punishment. There is no disorder in our public life to be compared to that which will emerge from the continuance of such enactments. If there is a Providence in history, to say nothing of a personal God and a living Christ, we may be certain that, if these Acts are not repealed, God's judgments will fall upon the Government responsible for them. In referring to the part of the resolution that speaks of the way in which these Acts prejudice Christ's cause in foreign lands, Mr. Wilson exhibited a paper which he said almost burnt his fingers when he touched it. It was a Government certificate of licence granted to a native Indian woman, giving her name, age, complexion, and list of her official examinations. Is that, pathetically exclaimed the speaker, a reflection of British Christianity to a poor heathen? It is horrible. It is a mirror of our shameful and shameless neglect of duty. Let it be a mirror in which we shall see ourselves tonight, and it will cause us to wash our hands of this most iniquitous system. We do want to interpose between vice and its punishment, We do want to save our brothers and our sisters from that terrible and degraded life that so many of them are seduced into; but how? Not by a fruitless attempt to modify or change the law that links together a man's sowing and reaping, but by inducing him not to sow. If we would save a man from the punishment that must follow vice, let us save him from the vice itself. Let us bring all our pathos and indignation and calm Scotch courage of conviction to bear on every man who has a voice in making the laws of the country. We are the lawmakers. We have ourselves to blame. It makes one blush to turn round and abuse the British Parliament, for it is what we make it. Let us send the right men there. Let us dwarf many other comparatively trifling questions of party significance. Let us be found standing on the side of God; he who is on the side of God is on the side of the strongest cause.

MR. J. B. WOOKEY

moved the next resolution, which read thus:—

> That this meeting holds the British Government bound, and hereby respectfully but most firmly calls upon it, by a regard to common consistency and to great legal, moral, and spiritual considerations, to repeal immediately, universally, and totally, such Acts or Ordinances as this meeting gladly and gratefully acknowledges have been repealed in the United Kingdom and in some of our colonial possessions.

He strenuously combated the notion that this regulation of vice really promotes the health of those on whose behalf it is carried on. He believed that fifty per cent. of those found in the military hospitals, in the "regulated" places, were there through vice. At the Gibraltar hospital the other day he found a lad of fifteen suffering from disease communicated by a Government registered prostitute. As I looked on him, said Mr. Wookey, I thought if he were my brother I would rather that a bullet had been sent through his brain, or a dagger thrust into his heart, or his body buried fifty miles deep. These Acts lead our soldiers to believe that they can sin with impunity, and so they are carried more deeply into evil than they would otherwise be. Mr. Wookey drew the attention of the audience to the two large maps shown at the great Exeter Hall meeting, one depicting the position of the Government hospital in Madras, surrounded on all sides by churches, schools, and mission-houses, and the other representing the stations throughout India where the regulation system is known to be in force. To show how the Acts degrade men as much as women, he referred to Singapore, where the person responsible for carrying out the Acts bears the remarkable title of "Protector of the Chinese" (the nationality chiefly concerned). He blasphemously talks about "our Master," meaning, of course, Jesus Christ. This man superintends the licensing of houses of ill-fame, the registering, licensing, and surgical outraging of the inmates, and the photographing of the women by the police to prevent them from transferring their licences to others. He sends them out of the country to die in their Chinese homes when they are not "physically fit" for the lusts of men. To cap all, he finishes up with the astonishing statement quoted above, that he is a "Christian," and "endeavours, as far as his nature will allow, to conform his conduct to the standard of his religion."

News just to hand from Hong Kong confirms the statements that have been made with regard to the traffic between China and the Straits Settlements through this regulation of impurity. Sir John Pope Hennessey during his term of office at Hong Kong aroused the animosity of evil Europeans in that colony by his persistent respect for the operation and work of the Tung-Wah, a Chinese society for the protection and advancement of native interests. This society has lately captured a Chinese Mrs. Jefferies named To-Ing, who was taking away six Chinese girls whom she had bought for the English Government-licensed houses of ill-fame at Singapore and Penang. This capture was effected from the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company's steamer Deccan, just as she was starting from Hong Kong for Penang. The first girl, aged 19, said that her mother had sold her for two hundred and fifty dollars, and that she was being taken to Singapore against her will. The next, a younger sister of Ho Ayuk, knew she had been shipped to some foreign port, but what port she did not know. Another, eighteen years old, said To-ing, a relation of hers, was carrying her off to some foreign port. Her mother told her she had fetched 400 dollars. Mei Yok, aged sixteen years, and her younger sister, Me Tsoi, whose age is not reported, said they understood they were being shipped to Singapore, but they did not want to go. A girl, only thirteen years old, said To-ing had bought her for 170 dollars, to take her to some foreign port. The one piteous cry of this child-slave was, "Take me back to my sister."

The following extract, read by Mr. Wookey, from a memorial sent by nearly 1400 native women in India to Earl Dufferin, the Viceroy, is surely enough to make one's blood boil at the moral obliquity of a code which estimates the virtue of womanhood far lower than the price of a dog:—

> The penal code provides for the punishment of a man who injures an animal of the value of ten rupees or upwards with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with a fine, or with both. But while a man's dog, or horse, or elephant are taken care of by legislation, his young daughter, the light of his eyes, and the joy of his home, may be ruined, and her fair fame stolen with impunity, provided she has attained the age of ten years, is unmarried, and proof is wanting that she has resisted her seducer.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Wookey referred to Mr. Gladstone's apology for absence, and said that so far as his knowledge was concerned, the friends of national purity had received very little help at that eminent gentleman's hand. He did not see a word of sympathy even in the post-card. He supposed they were all Gladstonians. ("No! no!") He had ceased long ago to be either a Liberal or a Tory, but he was exceedingly anxious that they should bring political influence to bear on this question, and whoever might be their representative in Parliament; the shortest way of ridding India and the dependencies of these Acts was to send righteous men to the House of Commons. An extraordinary and almost incredible story was related by Mr. Wookey (as given in Miss Ellice Hopkins' tract, "Saved at Last") of a poor repentant girl, who trudged on foot to Gloucester, from a place fifteen miles distant, with the hope of being taken into a refuge. There was no room, and she was directed to Birmingham. She walked there, some seventy miles, with the same result, and subsequently to London, another 100 miles. There, too, at the place where she applied, there was no room, and finally she walked down to Brighton, an additional fifty miles, still seeking for admission to a Home. There, too, she was like to be unsuccessful, but happily Miss Hopkins saw her, and she was provided for. We suppose Miss Hopkins has verified her information, but the story, as we have said, seems incredible. Singularly enough, a lady connected with the Brighton Home was at this Edinburgh meeting, and informed Mr. Wookey at the close that the girl had been converted.

MISS ELIZA WIGHAM,

a much-esteemed member of the Society of Friends, and a well-known worker in the cause of social purity, seconded the resolution. How thankfully we accept, she said, the limited measure of repeal we have already secured, and how earnestly we rejoice that at least this modicum of justice has been done. We have this vantage ground on which to proceed in India and the Colonies; let us use it. We must go on; it will never do to stop now. We have always felt that what women have had to suffer, other women ought to know and to testify against. I often think of those wonderful words of the Apostle, "If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy. For the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." Not manhood only is meant to be the temple of God, but womanhood also. Else why all those efforts to save the souls of the poor women in heathen lands? Jesus is ready to save all, whatever their clime, whatever their colour, whatever their sex. So, if these thousands of women, of whom we have been hearing, have precious souls to be saved, they have bodies which are intended to be temples of the living God. And shall any man defile these temples! Nothing defiles these temples so much as laws such as these. Oh! to think that our beloved country has had Governments that have issued such terrible edicts. We profess to be a Christian country, and yet we go and subvert the laws of our holy and pure God. "Be ye holy, for I am holy." Is not this the most solemn injunction that could be issued? Yet, what are we doing as Christian people? We are saying, "Be ye unholy, and we shall protect you in your unholiness." Is not this an awful thing, and shall not God visit us for such things as these? I tremble for my country when I know that God reigns and that God is just. But He is Lord over all and He can save even the vilest and the lowest; He can rescue to the uttermost. What a terrible responsibility attaches to us. Let us hold out our hands to these poor degraded ones and help to lift them up. I think of those times long ago when the crusaders went forth from all countries to rescue the Holy Sepulchre from the infidel, because in that sepulchre the body of our blessed Lord had lain. Here is no mere sepulchre. Here are living temples, not made with hands, but fearfully and wonderfully constructed edifices, intended to hold, not the dead body, but the living presence of our Lord. Shall we not band ourselves into a holy crusade, and go forth to rescue these temples? Surely we shall. If we cannot do much, let us do what we can. Let us subscribe with our hands, as well as lift up our hearts in prayer to God, and undoubtedly our prayer will and must prevail.

Brief but weighty speeches followed from Mr. W. Coote, Secretary of the National Vigilance Association, and Professor Calderwood, of Edinburgh. Mr. Coote said he was filled with pain and shame at the narrative told by Mr. Wookey with respect to the girl who found it so difficult to find a place of shelter. The thing seemed to him impossible, and he could not understand it. At all events it could not happen in London to-day, for anyone had but to mention the name of Mrs. Butler, or Miss Hopkins, or Mrs. Chant, to receive a shelter and a welcome. Professor Calderwood said that he felt sure the Government would recognise that there is great moral force behind the claim now presented to them. That moral force, if it is acknowledged, must bring blessing to the world, far and wide, wherever the British name is known, wherever there are British treaties and consuls, and wherever the British flag is found.

ABERDEEN.

The meeting here was on Wednesday evening, in the Albert Hall. Lord Provost Henderson presided. Bishop Douglas wrote to say he had protested against the iniquity of those Acts for years, and should be thankful to render any aid. Dr. Robson stated in a letter, it was some years since he left India, but the state of things, he supposed, was much the same as then. The laws for the regulation of vice were applied to the European or Christain regiments, not to the native or heathen regiments. When a native regiment marched into a cantonment each soldier had his own hut in the lines, where he might live and have his wife with him. When a European regiment marched into a cantonment, all but a small percentage went to the barracks, where they were obliged to live single, and there followed them into the cantonment a bazaar of prostitutes, inspected under Government authority. That was the exhibition which a Christian Government gave to the natives of the place, of the provision it made for its "Christian" soldiers. The Government made this difference between its native and Christian regiments because it did not dare to offend Hindoo sentiment on the subject. When would Christian sentiment make itself felt so strongly that the Government would not dare to offend it?

The Chairman said that as Christians they were called upon to protest against such a system, because they believed that in licensing these places for immorality which were sanctioned by our Government they were contemning the laws of God. What could the heathen think of our Christianity when they saw that in a public way we licensed vice, and gave it a sort of standing before the heathen world. In moving the first resolution Mr. J. B. Wookey said he was not prepared to say that vice was no longer regulated in this country. He thought, if they saw some of the centres of immorality in London, they would be inclined to say it was regulated with a vengeance. The police seemed to be employed not to suppress the vice, but to keep it outwardly decent and orderly. Mr. William Ferguson, of Kinmundy, pointed out that in eleven British settlements, independent of the seventy-one districts in India, the Acts prevailed. Mr. H. J. Wilson, M.P., in the course of an earnest speech acknowledged that Sir Henry Holland, the Colonial Secretary, had been working so far as he was able to give effect to their views. He had been suggesting to the Governors of the colonies that they had better follow the example of the Imperial Parliament in this country and get rid of this system, and had even gone the length in certain cases of directing them to bring in repealing ordinances, practically telling them they must get rid especially of compulsory examination. Mr. Wilson spoke of the strong influences that they had to fight against; it was with the object of defeating such influences that they wanted the moral influence of Christians to back them in getting rid of this State licensing of immorality.

Professor Robertson said they had heard something within the last few days about aphorisms, and he would quote one: "A man who does a thing by means of another does it by himself." It is all very good to speak of the Crown and the Queen's Ministers being the parties who are enforcing the provisions of the orders complained against; but on the electors of the country the ultimate responsibility rests. Before he had left India a discussion took place in the Bombay Municipality on this question. It had been customary for the municipality to make a contribution year after year for the maintenance of certain hospitals. The municipality, dominated by non-Christians, resolved to discontinue their grant to these hospitals. So much for the native protest in Bombay. In Calcutta the native newspapers had been continually against the regulation, and so strong was the protest that in 1883 the Act was repealed as regarded Calcutta, and he believed that up to this moment it was still in that condition. He learned, however, that there was a movement on foot in Calcutta to bring pressure to bear on the Lieutenant-Governor to reintroduce the Act, and he found that the opposition to that came from Christian missionaries and non-Christian natives. They were told that if they repealed this legislation, they were bound to increase the Government expenses in another direction, but this was simply throwing dust in their eyes. We had no right to save our pockets by doing wrong. Christian statesmen had often felt a difficulty in undoing wrongs that they had found in existence, but there was one thing that they had uniformily shown that they could do, and that was to yield to pressure of a right kind when applied through the electorate of the country. Mrs. Ormiston Chant graphically and eloquently pleaded in favour of support being given to the movement for repeal. A committee was appointed to carry out the objects of the meeting.

[The local newspaper report of the Dundee meeting was so meagre as to be unworthy of reproduction.]

GLASGOW.

The meeting here was held in the hall of the Christian Institute. Ex-Bailie Dickson presided. In his address he said that in sending the Gospel to the colonies we had made many hearts glad; at the same time, by our drink and opium traffic, we were demoralising the natives and neutralising the good done by our missionaries. The legislation of vice was the lowest depth to which any Government could descend. He hoped the public would impress upon the Government that the nation would not allow these Acts to be forced upon those who had no voice in their introduction. Professor Lindsay said the subject interested all who had at heart the spread of the Gospel in foreign parts, and, as convener of the Free Church Foreign Mission Committee, he felt it his duty, in spite of a great pressure of other work, to attend and say a few words on the subject. Almost every one of our mission stations was injured by the action of our Government abroad. We sent the Gospel of grace, and sent also degrading legislation in the shape of our drink regulations for India, and in the shape of licensing of lust. What was the meaning of these Acts? It was to make sin safe. That was not God's plan of ruling the universe. Therefore, these Acts were bound to go down, or else those who promoted them would go down. God's blessing could never rest upon our Government or nation if government was conducted upon these principles. The Acts were founded upon the most ungenerous and unjust idea—namely, that women were weak, and therefore should be crushed down. Would the British nation stand that? It had not stood it for itself, and he believed it would drive these Acts from our colonies. We had got to appeal to the consciences of our brethren in the colonies to do this work for themselves, but the people in India could not speak out so forcibly, or at least, if they spoke out, their speaking was not attended to, and we had got to help them. He gathered that the people of India looked with disgust and indignation upon two things—our patronising the drink traffic and our branding the unfortunate women of India in this horrible way. There was nothing that stirred his soul more than the attempt to make the iniquities of men safe. Officialdom had got to be looked after continually. He appealed in the name of those interested in our foreign missions and in our common humanity, and in the name of those who believed that it was our Christian duty to protect weak woman, to support the movement.

Mr. J. B. Wookey said he was thoroughly convinced the general public and the churches did not know what these Acts meant. If they did know, they would be mentioned in prayer-meetings and in the pulpit; and if no other person condemned them, the Church would do so with no uncertain voice. In India some girls, rather than submit to the degrading medical examination, drowned themselves. He yielded to no man in his respect for soldiers; he had lately been in Gibraltar, where he left amongst the soldiers some of the best Christians he had ever met. None were more horrified and disgusted with these Acts than the Christian soldiers. Every soldier got a Bible and a prayer-book put into his knapsack, and when he left the church door in foreign stations he met licensed women, whose way was described in the Bible as the way to hell. We had forced these Acts upon the natives of India, although the natives almost unanimously condemned them. There were no greater friends of the army than the friends of social purity, because, whilst the licensing of this evil led thousands of women to an unhallowed grave, it also degraded the men.

Mr. H. J. Wilson, M.P., said that the Acts, when enforced at home, were described as Acts for the prevention of certain diseases in naval and military stations. But the introduction of the Acts was only the thin end of the wedge, for they would have been gradually extended to the whole population, the advocates of the Acts not having concealed that this was also their object. The electors would have to speak out, and the officials abroad would have to yield. This was all the more necessary that India was not a self-governing colony, but was ruled by the India Office. Probably, therefore, a great fight would have to take place in the House of Commons on the question. It might be said that other nations were worse than ourselves in this matter. But there was this difference that other nations dealt with the vice by police regulations, whereas ours was the first to do so by statute. This was done because there were a number of men who maintained boldly that it was necessary to make provisions for the lusts of the flesh, that it was necessary that there should be a class of women to satisfy the brutal lusts of men. Thank God, the people knew this was not true.

Mrs. Ormiston Chant said no man could feel the degradation of these Acts as a woman could do. She therefore wished there had been more women present. No man, young or old, would have doubts as to the iniquities of these Acts if he understood them. She had known even profligate men say that, bad as they were, they had not fallen so low as to be utterly destitute of the commonest principles of justice. It was an English Act of Parliament that declared that these Acts were for the better health of her Majesty's soldiers and sailors. She had no affection for the red coats, though she had much affection for the wearers of them. As a member of the Peace Society, she said that if we must be cursed with a standing army, she felt we should not insult our army more than we could help, and we should remember that soldiers and sailors were as capable of being good as other classes of the community. The whole of the legislation in this respect might be summed up in the sentence—it was the legislation of despair. The first time she read the Acts along with her husband she thought the lowest depths had been reached in Christian England. She would not speak of the physical horrors of the Acts; she preferred to talk of the spiritual degradation and what that meant. Even if they were sweeping away the Acts from the colonies, the spirit that put them in force would still remain. We got a Criminal Law Amendment Bill carried, and an association was formed to see that its provisions were carried out, because it was found to be rather difficult to convince some of our magistrates and judges that their duty was not to make laws on the bench but to administer them. Therefore it was necessary to have vigilance associations. There was work both for men and women in this movement, for this was a sin which damned the soul of the woman and the soul of the man. They could stop the immoral literature; she did not mean so much what was sold for a halfpenny or a penny; she rather meant the deadly immoral novels—novels which were sugur-coated, but which dealt with illicit love from beginning to end. These novels were far more dangerous than the painted women who walked the streets. The thousandth part of the horror of these Acts had not been told; but she hoped none would go away unconvinced, for those who did so must be more then unsound in mind—they must be unsound in heart.

REVIVAL IN PEEBLES-SHIRE.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

In various parts of Scotland at the present time there are many signs of spiritual awakening, but I do not suppose there are many places where these signs are so manifest as in Peebles-shire. In August two members of the Faith Mission visited Peebles for the purpose of conducting evangelistic services in that town for a few weeks. At the beginning very few stood by them; indeed, they had to stand quite alone on the street the first night. But this did not last long. The Town Hall was the first place taken for the meetings, but it soon became too small to hold the people who turned out. Then a larger hall was taken, and towards the end the Institution hall was not large enough to accommodate the crowds who came on the Sunday nights. The meetings were continued for six weeks, and during that time very many decided, some of them being the most careless in the town. The Christians, also, were stirred up to greater earnestness and fuller consecration.

When the work in Peebles was brought to a close, the "pilgrims," as they call themselves, were invited to Innerleithen. The meetings began on the last Sunday of September; but on the Saturday night it was agreed that we should all meet for prayer. After half an hour was spent in prayer we went and held a meeting on the street, as the evening was exceptionally fine, and as many were out of doors. In a short time considerably over 500 were around us, to whom a hearty invitation was given to attend the meeting on the following day. We went home that night feeling assured that times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord were at hand; and we were not disappointed, as the next five weeks clearly showed. Many were turned away from the door of the Congregational Chapel on the Sunday afternoon, and even more were turned away from the door of a large hall, taken for the meetings, in the evening. This hall holds five hundred or thereabout, and every night for three weeks it was nearly full, while on the Sunday evenings it was crowded to overflowing. To the Christians it was a source of great pleasure and gratitude to God to see so many of the young men turning out regularly to the meetings. Some nights, indeed, they formed the greater part of the audience. Not a few of them gave their hearts to Christ, and in the testimony meetings boldly bore witness to the saving and keeping power of the Saviour.

The meetings were held in Innerleithen for three weeks, and then arrangements were made for visiting Walkerburn, a town about a mile and a half distant. We were a little afraid of stormy meetings there, both from what we saw in the early meetings in Innerleithen, and from what had happened on previous occasions. The hall engaged for the meetings also holds about five hundred people, and on the very first evening it was crowded in every part with a quiet and attentive audience. We were fortunate that night in having the help of Mr. Govan, the chief of the mission, who delivered a very stirring address. Every night, without exception, during the fortnight, the hall was crowded, and the impression made on the minds and hearts of the people was far deeper and more extensive than in Innerleithen. I do not care to lay much stress upon mere numbers; but, with a view to show how great the impression made in the town was, I may say that sixty professed to decide for Christ on one night, while on two other nights the numbers were nearly as large.

I have said nothing about a meeting which was held every Sunday morning at 8.30, which, to many of us, was the most profitable of all. It was exclusively for Christians. It was really a sifting time, and many will look back to some of those morning meetings as a very critical time in their Christian experience. A tea-meeting brought the series to a close. It was held in the Volunteer Drill Hall, Innerleithen, and about six hundred were present, the greater part being those who professed conversion during the five weeks. "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." But we believe He will do greater things for us in the future.

A LONELY WORKER in S. AFRICA.

Dear Sir,—Two months ago I wrote to you, being very anxious that some missionary should come and carry on the Lord's work here. A few days after I wrote I heard of the sudden death of Rev. W. Sykes. It affected me very greatly, as he was here on a visit only a fortnight before, and for years he was such a true friend to me and my children. I immediately started to see and sympathise with his widow, who, for the twenty-three years I have been in Matebeleland, has been a true elder sister and friend to me. Amongst some little books Mrs. Sykes gave my children on leaving was one telling of wonderful answers to prayer by Miss Marsh in the hospital. I told my servants the story, and then said, "Now, here I have suffered for many months from dysentery; I am getting weaker daily, and unless I get better I must take my children down to their sister's, who can take care of them, if I die. If two of you who pray will unitedly pray for me, the Lord will hear you and restore me." They prayed earnestly, and their prayers were answered, for suddenly and effectually I lost the complaint.

I continue having daily services with them. The work is very interesting; but, alas! I see very little fruit, for those who learn to read or who pray and read the Bible are terribly persecuted. It is up-hill work, but I tell them the truth again and again, and I cannot but hope that some day some of them will rejoice in the knowledge of it. Last month a young Boer came here to trade with me. After being here a day, he said, "Mrs. Thomas, are you not afraid to be here by yourself?" I said, "No; God has placed me here and given me a work to do for Him. I shall remain until He sends someone better qualified to take my place." "But who would come to such a lonely place?" he said. "I have never been here before, and I do not think anyone would persuade me to come again. These Matebele are enough to frighten anyone."

If one or two missionaries would come here, I should be only two thankful. I receive no assistance from any society or fund, but support myself by trading. If two or three Christian men with their wives were helped to come here they could easily support themselves by farming, carpentering, smithing, or trading. It would be a glorious thing if half a dozen young couples who were God-fearing and steady, and aimed at working for Jesus, came and settled in Matebeleland. At present there is only one paid missionary in the country, but we hope soon to welcome Messrs. Elliott and Helm back to their stations, and I hear another one is appointed to take Mr. Sykes's place. I feel assured that some of your readers will prayerfully remember me in my loneliness.—Yours in the Lord Jesus, (Mrs.) C. H. Thomas.

Shiloh, Matebeleland, viâ Transvaal, S. Africa.

Letters to the Editor.

THE AUTHORITIES AND THE POOR.

Dear Sir,—Is it not possible that some influential persons may be induced to appeal to the Government, that while rightly putting down sedition with an iron hand, some effort ought to be made on a large scale to help the industrious poor, and thus keep them from being a prey to designing agitators?

The severity of the weather at this early period of the winter affords but scant encouragement to a system of neglect.—Yours truly,

C. H. Binstead.

60, Shooters Hill-road, Blackheath, S.E.

SCOTTISH VILLAGE WORK.

Dear Sir,—Mr. William Gourlay's sweeping statements in your issue of November 11 regarding Scottish ministers and churches are, to say the least, a gross misrepresentation. I say this not at haphazard, but advisedly. My knowledge as a layman, though limited for the most part to one of the churches (the Free Church of Scotland) has been very extensive, and I can bear the strongest testimony to the earnest, prayerful, and I may add appreciated and more or less owned labours of the great majority of our country ministers.

Did your space permit, I could produce the most incontestable evidence subversive of Mr. Gourlay's charges. Let the following extracts from the voluminous and deeply interesting report submitted to the General Assembly in May last, by the Committee on Religion and Morals, suffice:—

> "The Presbytery of Ellon strikes the key-note at the very outset with this statement, 'We could not help being struck with the superior class of the office-bearers, and their manifest desire for the increase and deepening of spiritual life in their several districts. For congregations manned by such elders and deacons the best hopes are to be cherished.'"
>
> "There is not one of the eleven reports in which there is not cordial acknowledgment of the services they render in regular visitation of their districts—in some cases even four times a year—in conducting cottage-meetings, assisting at prayer-meetings, teaching in Sabbath-schools, visiting the sick, &c. Even from the far-away region of 'Back,' in the island of Lewis, the testimony comes, 'Each elder visits his district four times a year, besides visiting the sick.' The deputies add, 'It was refreshing to meet so many office-bearers deeply interested in the conversion of souls.'"
>
> "It is worthy, too, of very special note, that in Lewis 'the Christian men of the townships have arranged among themselves, in co-operation with the session, to stay at home in turn for the purpose of gathering the young together for religious instruction while their parents and other relatives are at church.'"
>
> "The new congregation of Newbattle (Dalkeith) exhibits one or two features of work among the young worthy of notice. For instance, it has a Bible and sewing-class attended by seventy to eighty young women over fourteen years of age; also a lads' devotional Saturday evening meeting, and a meeting of young men and women on Sabbath afternoons, presided over by an office-bearer, for the reading and discussion of papers on Bible topics and passages."
>
> "Work of grace at Cromarty.—The most encouraging report is that from the Session of the Cromarty congregation:—'During the winter and spring of 1885-86 a spirit of earnest prayer for special blessing was given to the praying people. They longed, prayed, and looked for a shower of blessing. An unusual earnestness and seriousness pervaded the meetings for public worship, showing clearly that a deep work of the Spirit was being experienced by not a few; it was not until the beginning of May, 1886, however, that fruit began to be gathered in a marked way. It was resolved to hold special meetings in two country centres before beginning in the town. Mr. Gillies, of Redcastle, having agreed to assist for a few nights, a beginning was made in the remotest place of meeting in the parish, where it was proposed to be but for two evenings; but such was the interest, so deep was the impression, so unmistakably were we under the cloud of blessing, that we continued to meet there every night (except Saturdays) for three weeks. The whole district was moved, numbers were awakened, and led to joy and peace in believing. The numbers of parents blessed were very striking. Every household, and, in some cases, the whole household, shared the bountiful and marvellous blessing. In the town during the weeks that followed, the blessing was also enjoyed richly, but not to the same extent as at Peddiston. During the intervening months we have enjoyed tokens of the Holy Spirit's saving work among us, but the time of special power, when impression was almost universal in the country district, although distinctly less so in the town, did not last many weeks. All who made a public profession have been most consistent ever since.'"

Similar extracts relating to many other parts of the country might be given. I could add to these my own experiences in the numerous villages in which during the last twenty years and more my summer holidays have been spent. At one of these—a fishing village on the east coast—the minister, than whom no evangelist could have been more indefatigable in his efforts to win souls to Christ, informed me that there were a dozen and more office-bearers and others, upon whom he could always rely for assistance in connection with the weekly prayer-meeting. Other ministers elsewhere, as I happen to know, could bear the like testimony.

I only add that many of our ministers both in town and country thankfully avail themselves of the valued aid of "outside" evangelists, and that these, as a rule, do their utmost to strengthen their hands.—I am, &c.,

Edinburgh. Robert Young.

["A Constant Reader" writes in a directly contrary sense, and supports Mr. Gourlay's view. We suppose that in Scotland, as in England, the truth is that some villages have been well evangelised, as Mr. Young has described, while many others are in the neglected condition pourtrayed by Mr. Gourlay. Each speaks, no doubt, according to his own experience.—Ed.]

A CLERGYMAN AND THE THEATRE.

Sir,—I may be allowed, perhaps, to say a few words in reply to your criticism of my speech on the subject of the stage. Surely, the stage is not necessarily the world; and if you grant, as an increasing number of good people are willing to do, that the stage may be made a great power for good, then it is incumbent on all Christian people to raise and elevate its tone. To display that which answers to some of the deepest instincts of human nature, accompanied with a sound moral, and to present truthfully the comedies and tragedies of life to our toiling fellow-men, is certainly not debasing, but uplifting. A thing abused is very different from a thing used, and, whilst we condemn evil surroundings, and low and ambiguous plays, we emphatically say that prayer-meetings (which we frequently have) are quite compatible with that which may be, and frequently is, a healthful and helpful recreation for Christian people.

The play "Clito" (as I pointed out in The English Churchman) was only performed once in Bristol; and, not having seen it, I cannot undertake to say more than that its general tenor and drift was to warn young men against one of the most degrading influences of their lives.—Yours faithfully,

Mordaunt C. Crofton,
Rector of St. Stephen's, Bristol.

[We are very far from granting that the stage may be made a great power for good. It never has been, and we believe it never will. None know better than worldly men that it is inconsistent with the profession of Christ. The above letter presents the anomaly of a Rector (whose business it is to be right and keep other people right) apologising for a play which a secular paper denounces as unhealthy and immoral, and a Church paper hopes the Bishop will ask the Rector to explain how such a play can be "of great use to morality and religion." We should have hoped that this would of itself have opened the eyes of a minister of Christ to the utter inconsistency of his position.—Ed.]

"THE DOWN-GRADE."

Sir,—I have read Mr. Spurgeon's "Down-Grade" Manifesto, and to my most certain knowledge it contains a series of charges which are as just as they are severe. A year ago I entered a certain theological seminary with a view to study for the ministry. Partly as the result of the teaching I received there, I am now a convinced agnostic. I have therefore abandoned the ministry, to which from my early boyhood I had looked forward. These words are easy to write, but they tell of an exercise of mind and a wrench of life which I could not wish for my bitterest enemy.

I was trained up in a godly family, where warm personal piety was wedded to earnest evangelical belief. I gave a hearty concurrence to "the form of sound words"; and engaged with delight in evangelistic work of all kinds. At the University I came into contact with minds of a different school; but the contact did not in the deepest way affect me. "They are outsiders," I said to myself; "what do they know of the joys of Christian experience and fellowship?" So I mounted my higher platform, and stayed my mind. But, somehow, in the Theological Seminary this method did not work so well. My reverend professors were presumably on a platform at least as high as mine; and when they began with admirable candour and honesty to expose the weaknesses of the orthodox position, I was convinced. They were perfectly clear in the statement of damaging facts; but as to how the facts were to be refuted they were not clear. Their attitude to the creeds they had subscribed was not the attitude of enthusiastic and devoted loyalty. No, indeed! Rather it was that of groping, halting uncertainty, or of open hostility.

"Certain ministers," says Mr. Spurgeon, "are making infidels." True and just because certain infidels have the making of ministers nowadays. For honest faith like Mr. Spurgeon's, and for honest unbelief, I have a profound respect. But for men of the other stamp—men who subscribe creeds they do not believe, and use their position in orthodox churches to scatter the seeds of scepticism—be they never so kindly of heart and able of intellect—I have the most absolute contempt. As for me, since I have learned that the Bible is fallible, and the old Bible-founded faith is gone, the ministry is impossible. I do not call myself a Christian now; and I may be excused if I cherish some bitterness of soul with respect to those who have helped to transform an earnest and honest and happy evangelist into an equally honest but less happy Agnostic.

MESSRS. FULLERTON & SMITH.

These esteemed evangelists have now proceeded to Jersey, where arrangements are made for united services during the remainder of this month. From October 8 to 21 they were at Taunton, where all the Nonconformist ministers and churches entered heartily into the work. According to the testimony of some of the oldest inhabitants, the whole town was never so moved before. Meetings were held in the chapels, the buildings being crowded for every service. In the Castle Hall, the scene of "the Bloody Assize," when Judge Jeffries condemned upwards of a hundred to death in one afternoon, it was a cause for rejoicing to find the walls re-echoing to the proclamation of pardon, and souls passing from death unto life. The Saturday-night song services, Mrs. Fullerton's meetings, for women only, Mr. Smith's addresses to children, and Mr. Fullerton's Bible-readings, effectually supplemented the daily preaching of the Gospel. Such expedients as these are not only justified but demanded by the necessity and the resolve to reach all classes. Mr. M. Levi Palmer, one of the Baptist ministers, says, in reporting the mission, "From our list of those who professed to obtain a blessing, we find that no less than 175 were invited to the meeting for young converts."

From October 22 to November 7 the evangelists were at Weymouth, and the services here were of the most remarkable character. The new Royal Victoria Jubilee Hall was filled twice on the first Sunday; the meetings were the largest ever known in the town. On the last Sunday there was a scene which can never be forgotten by those who witnessed it. Scores of people rose from their places to signify their determination to follow Christ. All sections of the Church of God entered into the movement here with a zeal and prayerfulness which made success a certainty; for the Lord is graciously pleased to add the crown of his blessing to the labours of those who plead his promise, respond to his command, and dare great things in his name and for his glory! C.

TEWKESBURY.—A Y.W.C.A. here was recently opened with an impressive address by Mrs. Hind Smith. The Western Divisions Conference of Y.M.C.A.'s was held next day, and concluded with a large public meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, at which Mr. George E. Williams, evangelist, delivered an earnest address. It was arranged that he should hold a week's mission seven days later. He has left Tewkesbury after a time of great blessing.

The Book World.

Queer Chums. By C. H. Eden, F.R.C.S. 3s. 6d. S.P.C.K. A stirring narrative of adventure and life at sea in the "good old days of yore."

The Graphic Christmas Number (1s.) quite maintains its ancient prestige. The illustrations this year are extremely good, and will be appreciated alike by old and young.

The Atonement. A poem, in two parts. By W. Blane. 1d. Treasury Office, Maybole, N.B. About the doctrine of this metrical effort there is no mistake. Poetically considered, it is less successful. We should prefer the same truths in a four or eight-page tract of unfettered Anglo-Saxon prose.

Songs in the Night. By O. Winslow, D.D. 1s. Shaw & Co. These extracts from "Midnight Harmonies" will be welcome to all who "love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity." Christ is the keynote of each song; Christ the foreground of every picture. Spare moments are enriched by books like this.

The Story of the Crucifixion. W. Isbister, London. Strange that ordinary writers should rashly seek to describe scenes which inspired pens have immortalised, and on which the sanctified genius of Heber, Wesley, and Milman have shed a lesser radiance. The present effort cannot be commended, either for sublimity, pathos, or rhythm. It can only be described as pious prose.

Precious Truths for Everyone. By S. M. Haughton. New and complete edition. Marshall Bros. Here we have some valuable tracts, which have already proved useful, bound into a handy volume. The large, clear print will make the book especially valuable to the sick, and the aged. The different chapters treat of the most important subjects, and the clear Scriptural style is likely to rivet the reader's attention. (3s. 6d.)

Lessons on the Works and Claims of our Lord. By Flavel S. Cook, D.D. 1s. Nisbet & Co. A real gem of Scriptural information on that greatest of subjects the life and work of the Son of God. Mr. Cook's name is a guarantee for terseness, deep teaching, and sound theology. On every page shines out the Christ of the Gospels—perfect God and perfect Man. With the earlier volume this little book is a perfect compendium of our Lord's history, divided into fifty-two lessons.

Go and Tell Jesus. By O. Winslow, D.D. A word to Christians. Shaw & Co. Only next in importance to knowing Christ as the all-sufficient Saviour is cleaving to Christ as the everlasting Friend. In the first part Dr. Winslow points out, from Scripture and experience, the blessedness of frequent resort to the one authorised Confessor of sinners. In the second he dwells on the necessity of leaving with Jesus all we take to Him. Telling Jesus soothes, trusting Jesus satisfies the soul. May all readers say "Amen" to the writer's experience.

Papers on Preaching. 5s. Messrs. James Nisbet & Co. The chapters contained in this striking little volume first appeared in The Homiletic Magazine, and have been written by Bishop Baldwin, Dr. Rainy, and others of similar repute in the literary and theological world. Preachers of all denominations will do well to read the practical and instructive disquisitions which are thus reproduced, they are on a theme oft discussed, but have much freshness and piquancy nevertheless. The essay on "Expression in preaching" is specially good, from an elocutionary point of view.

A Manual of Introduction to the New Testament. By Dr. Bernhard Weiss. Translated from the German by J. K. Davidson. Vol. i. 7s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. The latest issue of the "Foreign Biblical Library" is the first volume of Dr. Bernhard Weiss's Manual of Introduction to the New Testament, containing, so far, a summary of the History of the Canon, and an account of the Pauline Epistles. We confess that we are on the whole somewhat disappointed with Dr. Weiss's work. The preface, indeed, is very attractive, and shows that the author is a man of faith as well as of knowledge, but the manual itself, though good, does not seem to us to be of any special excellence. Its chief value lies in its characteristically German contents of a summary of the views of other commentators, and in its adding the opinion of a distinguished scholar of moderate "conservative" tendencies. To those of our readers who have carefully studied the writings of the Bishop of Durham and Canon Westcott, Dr. Weiss's book will be useful—others will do well to lay a more solid foundation before beginning it.

Deacons and Elders. The Divine Pattern of the Christian Church. Religious Tract and Book Society, Edinburgh. A brief but suggestive treatise which ministers and office-bearers will do well to read. While not accepting all the writer's conclusions we commend the spirit and the consistency of many proposals they make.

The Saints' Days and their Teaching. By M. E. Chapman. 2s. Skeffington & Son. In this neat little volume the writer gives short accounts of the New Testament saints mentioned in the "Church of England Calendar." Each brief chapter is full of interesting facts, appropriate texts, and devout thoughts. It is a book calculated to inspire the preacher, instruct the teacher, and cheer the humblest of God's saints on earth.

Bible Models. By Rev. Richard Newton, D.D. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. Twenty papers on the model characters of the Bible from "Abel, the Model Speaker" to "Jesus, the Model of Perfection." The idea is a good and useful one to place before the young. The author shows the reasons for considering each character the Bible model, and furnishes a large collection of useful and interesting anecdotes evidently the ingathering of years. The book would be very useful to Sunday-school teachers and those who frequently address children.

Selections from the Book of Genesis. Old Testament Manuals (annotated). Rev. H. M. Clifford, M.A. 1s. 6d. Frowde, Oxford Press. If the rest of the series are equal to the volume before us, they will enrich any Christian's home library. The notes are brief, scholarly, and spiritual. Clear light is thrown on the chief difficulties — grammatical, historical, or geographical. The tone throughout is of a commentator who honours the living God, regards Genesis as an inspired book, and believes it can make readers "wise unto salvation." Two neat maps complete this excellent manual.

The Expositor's Bible. Edited by Rev. J. Robertson Nicholl, M.A. Colossians and Philemon, by Alexander Maclaren, D.D. 7s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. This is one of a series of expositions on the different books of the Bible by some of our foremost theologians and preachers. It is a splendid book of its kind. The printer and binder have done their very best, and so has the author. This is saying much when the author is Dr. Maclaren. He has published nothing more valuable than this, if anything quite so good. Christmas is coming. We hope that many who read this notice will think of this book as they look forward to the season, and remember their minister.

Studies in the Life and Character of St. Peter. By Rev. H. A. Birks, M.A. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. We congratulate Mr. Birks on his maiden effort at original work. He has indeed already edited his father's Review of the Bishop of Ossory's Sermons on the Nature and Effects of Faith, but this is, we believe, the first book that has really come from his own pen. His "studies" are, we should suppose, the outcome of sermons or week-day expositions of the chief events of St. Peter's life. The volume is scholarly, devotional, and suggestive. It is altogether a very valuable addition to the few books that deal with the life and character of St. Peter.

MESSRS. JAMES NISBET AND CO.

Eminent Workers. By Rev. A. W. Murray. 5s. We have here glimpses into the lives of some of the most devoted servants of God, and learn from whence their power for service was derived. In these days of doubt and controversy it is well to study the useful lives and happy deaths of those who have held fast for themselves, and taught to others the simple truths of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Autobiography of Maria Vernon Graham Havergal, with Journals and Letters. Edited by her sister, J. Miriam Crane. 6s. To read this book is truly to enjoy for a season the communion of saints. Maria Havergal became the friend and benefactress of a large circle of readers some years ago, by editing the memoirs of her gifted sister, Frances, and now it is a holy privilege to read her story of her own life, tracing step by step the guidance of a divine and loving hand, and showing how wonderfully her efforts for others were blessed to both bodies and souls. The whole book is full of interest and instruction, and, perhaps, no part of it is likely to prove more helpful, and fraught with deep teaching, than the closing part of the writer's diary in which she welcomes the near approach of death as her Lord's messenger to usher her into his loved presence. Some beautiful poems at the end of the book prove how sweetly this beloved Christian shared the family gift of song.

Winning his Laurels. By F. M. Holmes. 3s. 6d. This is a good story of school life, full of such incident as always finds a welcome in schoolboy minds.

Cross Corners. By Anna B. Warner. 3s. 6d. There is a lack of power in the story which fails to maintain an interest proportionate to its length. The prominence given, however, to Scripture promise and precept is a strong redeeming feature of the book.

Mistress Matchett's Mistake. A very old Story. By Emma Marshall. 3s. 6d. A capital book for girls, or, indeed, for readers of any age. So much is being now attempted in order to bridge the gulf between class and class, that the teachings of this interesting tale will be welcomed by many who are glad of guidance on so important a subject.

Streamlets of Song for the Young, by Frances Ridley Havergal. Collected by her sister, J. Miriam Crane. 3s. 6d. These verses from the pen of such a well-known sweet singer will meet with a hearty welcome for her sake as well as for their own merit. There are some charades and enigmas to delight the little ones, as well as many pieces suggesting sacred lessons, and conveying holy teaching in a most graceful and winning manner. We feel sure the book will be widely read and highly valued.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

The Welcome (10s. S. W. Partridge & Co.) always gains ready access to the home, and dispenses good cheer, entertainment, and profit amongst its readers. In this way it does a useful work month by month and year by year. It is abundantly illustrated, and contains a choice selection of interesting articles, stories and poems.

The Fireside (7s. 6d. Home Words Office) contains a store of good things adapted to varied tastes. The series of twelve "Sunday Readings," by eminent divines, and "Pleasant Readings for our Sons and Daughters," form leading features, whilst due prominence is accorded to fiction, biography, science, art, and history. Rev. Charles Bullock, its editor, succeeds in maintaining for it a deservedly prominent place amongst the annuals.

The Sunday at Home. 7s. 6d. Religious Tract Society. This old friend is as bright as ever, full of useful and instructive reading. Inter alia we note the following suggestive headings of series of articles: "Bible Expositions," "Homely Light on Hallowed Texts," "Natural History Notes on the Revised Version of the Bible," Missions and Missionaries," "Hymns and Hymn-writers of Wales," &c., whilst the tales and sketches are second to none in the season's publications.

The Leisure Hour. 7s. 6d. Religious Tract Society. A wider range of subject is chosen in this than in the preceding work, "Notes on Current Science, Invention, and Discovery," forms one of the most interesting features of the volume, "Mormonism, as it is," should open the eyes of those whose sympathies are likely to lead them into the meshes of this unholy sect. The book is true to its title, and no hours are wasted that are devoted to its perusal.

Home Words (2s.) and The Day of Days (2s.), also conducted by Rev. Charles Bullock, D.D., each deserve a word of warm commendation for the admirable service which they render as home literature. In the first an excellent series of articles on "Homely Talks on Homely Topics" deserves special mention, the divisions of the subject being "For Baby's Sake," "For the Husband's Sake," "For the Wife's Sake," "For Sister's Sake," "For Brother's Sake," "For my Health's Sake," "For my Work's Sake." The six papers entitled "Pictures at Home and Abroad" will interest many readers, while "Puzzledom" will be a favourite region for the exercise of youthful thought. The second-named work, as its title implies, is more especially confined to Sabbath reading, but in this the mind has plenty of food.

Joyful Tidings. Novello. 2d. An easy and effective Christmas Carol.

Early in December the National Temperance League will publish a Second Edition of The Life and Teachings of Joseph Livesey.

The price of In Immanuel's Land: Memorials of Sophia M. F. Wood, noticed in our issue of November 11, is 3s., post free. It can be had of Mr. A. Holness, 14, Paternoster-row, London; or from the Authoress, Mrs. Cheales, Brockham Vicarage, Betchworth, Surrey.

CHRISTMAS CARDS.

Mr. E. Kaufmann, of Lahr (Baden), the well-known chromo-lithographer, has opened a warehouse for his productions at 129, Cheapside. He has sent us some specimens of Christmas and New Year's cards, all executed in a superior style. Much intelligence is shown in the careful selection of the texts. Our readers should write for one of Mr. Kaufmann's catalogues.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Nottingham.—In connection with the Simultaneous Nonconformist Mission at Nottingham, Rev. J. F. S. Hallowes has been conducting services at St. Ann's, Well-road. Great blessing has been received by the church, and also by outsiders.

Dr. Munhall continues to meet with remarkable success in his Gospel mission at Columbus, Ohio. A local paper reports one meeting of 2500 young men, to whom the evangelist preached from Eccles. xi. 9. As a result of the discourse, "at least 1000 arose for prayer, and nearly 400 accepted Christ."

Frodsham.—A mission has been conducted here by Rev. R. D. Monro, assisted by Rev. A. P. Reynolds. The utmost interest was taken in the services. Special meetings for women were addressed by Mrs. Monro. God's blessing was upon the work in the conversion of souls, and in the refreshing of believers.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken commenced a mission on Nov. 20, in Christ Church, Everton, Liverpool (of which he was formerly the Vicar), and remains there over three Sundays. Prayer is requested for blessing on these services. Praise is desired for blessing during the last fortnight in St. Polycarp, in the same district.

Mr. James Sprunt, West Marylebone Mission, St. James's Hall, George-street, Lisson-grove, N.W., purposes to conduct evangelistic services in country towns and villages, to reach, if possible, the most neglected places. He will be glad to hear from any of our readers interested in any particular town, village, or hamlet.

Mr. J. W. Moodie, soldier evangelist, has closed a two weeks' mission in Dunkeld. The meetings commenced on Oct. 29, and were continued till Nov. 11. They were fairly well attended. A number of young men who are careless and indifferent found their way to the meetings. Servant-girls and others attended very regularly. A number were deeply impressed, stayed to the after-meetings, and several decided for Christ.

Galloway Christian Union.—Mr. W. Hall, evangelist, has just closed a very successful evangelistic campaign in Wigtownshire, under the auspices of this Union. Meetings extending from two to three weeks in each place were held nightly in Whitburn, Glenluce, Kirkcowan, Newton Stewart, and Stranraer. Mr. Hall's addresses were characterised by great earnestness and power, with remarkable clearness in stating Gospel truth. As the result, it is believed that many have received spiritual blessing.

Diocese of Manchester.—An eight days' mission has been conducted at St. Philip's, Hulme, by Mr. Augustine Wolfe, diocesan lay evangelist. The meetings have been well attended; there have also been nightly marches and open-air meetings in the parish. Mr. Wolfe addressed three hundred men during the dinner-hour at Sharp, Stewart's Atlas Works, and on Friday he addressed a hundred men at the great mackintosh works. Souls have been won for the Saviour's kingdom, and God's children have been much helped and blessed.

Mr. Charles Inglis has conducted a most successful mission at Southampton. Meetings were held twice and often three times a day, and not a service passed but what souls were blessed. The afternoon meetings, for women only, were very largely attended, and they proved a time of great spiritual profit to many. It was a cheering sight to see the crowds who came nightly to hear the old, old story, and to witness the many who were broken down under a deep sense of their sin, many of whom are now rejoicing in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Newport, Mon.—A correspondent writes:—We are full of hope that the Lord is again about to visit our town, and revive us as in 1871. Preparatory services for a general town mission still go on. On Sunday evening, 13th inst., at the close of the day's services, about 800 people met in one of our large halls and listened to a very earnest Gospel address by one of our Baptist ministers. His appeals were truly searching and solemn. Last evening a second "united prayer meeting" was held in the same hall, and over 1000 assembled to supplicate large spiritual blessings. The town and suburbs are mapped out for house-to-house visitation, and an invitation to the mission to be held from Sunday, December 4, to Saturday, December 10, in the Albert Hall, will then be given.

Dover.—Gospel services are being held here by Mrs. Horton and Miss Parker, Primitive Methodist evangelists. The holiness meetings have been well attended.

Mr. W. Gorham, of the Evangelisation Society, concluded a month's mission on Sunday, November 13, at Selby. The Gospel has been earnestly and lovingly preached by this gifted evangelist, and has, we believe, found an entrance into many hearts. Believers have been led to rejoice in Christ, and to surrender themselves more fully to his service. The power of the Spirit has been manifestly present in all the meetings, but the last week, especially, has produced such a revival amongst God's people as, we trust, will never be forgotten.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a special mission at Junction-road United Presbyterian Church, Leith, to Dec. 2.——For blessing on a mission at Swanscombe, Dartford, Dec. 3 to 13, to be conducted by Rev. John H. Haslam, M.A.——For blessing upon a mission in the Congregational Church, Staines, to Nov. 25.——For blessing on Gospel services by Mr. M. E. Steedman, at Fountainbridge, N.B.——For a blessing on meetings to be held in Edinburgh in January, by Messrs. Fullerton and Smith.

SERMON-LANE MISSION.—This Mission held its twentieth anniversary on Tuesday evening, the 15th inst. There was a very good gathering of the usual attendants, and friends interested in the various branches of this successful and blessed work. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. D. Lewis, who in feeling terms referred to the serious and long-continued illness of Mr. G. Fuller. At present he is quite laid aside. Interesting and encouraging addresses were delivered, many sympathetic allusions being made to the good man, who has laboured so long and faithfully among the poor in this neighbourhood. The operations of the Mission are being steadily sustained by the hearty co-operation of Christians of all denominations. Prayer is desired on behalf of the Mission. Mr. George Fuller, 54, Liverpool-road, Islington, N., is the superintendent.

JEWS IN GLASGOW.—A meeting in connection with the Scottish Home Mission to the Jews was held in the Christian Institute, Bothwell-street, Glasgow, last week. Rev. A. Simpson said that rather more than a year ago there was originated a Scottish Home Mission to the Jews. After consideration it was thought advisable that the new Mission should be affiliated with the British Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Jews. That had now been done, and Rev. Mr. Nachim who had been labouring among the Jews in Roumania and London, had been appointed to labour in Glasgow. The meeting was called for the purpose of introducing Mr. Nachim to the public of Glasgow. Mr. Nachim delivered an address, in which he alluded to the success that had attended his work among the Jews in Roumania and London, and expressing his desire so to conduct the work of the Mission in Glasgow as to bring about the results aimed at. Mr. Nachim was thanked for his address, and at the same time heartily welcomed to his new sphere of labour in Glasgow.

PEOPLE'S MISSION HALL, CUSTOM HOUSE, E.—A tea and public meeting of this Mission was lately held to celebrate its enlargement. A public meeting followed, at which Mr. Charles Hobday presided. In his report of the origin and progress of the Mission, the superintendent said that over a year ago it was laid on his heart to open a mission in that neighbourhood, and walking down Custom-street he saw a stable to let, which appeared to be in a good position for a mission, if a little money could be spent on it for alterations, &c. In dependence on God he ventured to rent the stables. He enlisted the sympathy of several Christians, who encouraged him in the good work. In answer to prayer, money had come from all quarters, but who had sent it he could not always tell; therefore he received it as from the Lord, and always thanked Him for it. As the work had been begun and carried on in dependence on God, he had no doubt the needs of the work would continue to be supplied. It appeared from the report that many had received spiritual good by attending the mission meetings. Some of the worst characters in the neighbourhood have been led to trust in Christ, and to abstain from strong drink. In his daily visitation among the poor, Mr. Waite, who acts as missionary as well as secretary for the Mission, finds many who would be glad to attend the mission services, but their clothing is so bad that they feel ashamed to show themselves. Mr. Waite's address is 27, Woodstock-street, Canning Town, E.

EVANGELISM IN GLASGOW.

UNDER the auspices of the Free Church Presbytery of Glasgow, a special evangelistic missio is at present being conducted in the East-end the city by Messrs. Scroggie and Mackenzi evangelists. The work began in September, ar it is to be continued throughout the winter, fortnight of meetings being held in each churc Large audiences assemble night after night, ar every Sabbath the places of meeting are crowde One feature of the services is the attendance many respectable non-churchgoers.

A rising tide of deep impression is followin the meetings over the district. Large numbe are being gathered into the kingdom, and t Lord's people are being greatly quickened.

◆

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTE

PADRE FREDERIC ANTOINE, a Capuchin preache twenty-eight years of age, has just unfrocked himse and entered the Evangelical Institute of the Itali Free Church at Rome.

TAHITI.—M. Lascarade, the French Governor Tahiti, writes to M. Viénot to acknowledge the help h administration has received through the moral elevati of the natives as a result of the teaching of the Fren pastors.

FLOODS IN CHINA.—A telegram from Shangh says:—The floods in Honan are increasing, a hundreds of thousands are reduced to destitution. one place 5000 men who were employed in repairing t embankments were overwhelmed, and 4000 in anothe

GERMANY. — Some Protestants, alarmed by t partial abolition of the "May laws," and proba further concessions to Rome, have formed an asso tion which they invite all Protestant denominations join, for the defence and protection of their country a Church.

PRUSSIA.—Pastor Thümmel, who was referred to our pages not long ago, having spoken and writt against certain Popish errors, was charged with bre ing a law which forbids a subject to attack any relig acknowledged by the State. The case has be thoroughly tried, and he is entirely acquitted.

IN HUNGARY, through the labours of various Chr tian workers associated with the National Bible Soci of Scotland, 400 Bibles and 3,500 Testaments were d tributed last year, and many souls are declared to ha been converted through the good seed thus so broadcast.

A DISCUSSION recently took place at Luckn between the Arya Somaj and the orthodox Hind when the attacks made upon Christianity by the form aroused the ire of the Mohammedans, who took si with the Christians, declaring that Christ was holy a sinless. It is noted as something quite new for Luckn Mohammedans to espouse the cause of the Christi missionaries.

RUSSIA.—The Nouveau Temps announces the appe ance of a new religious sect in the Government Saratoff. Its adherents do not recognise the use of mass or of images, and consequently do not frequent churches. Their canon of Holy Scripture consists o of the Pentateuch, the Psalms of David, and Gospels. They take their meals in common, abstain from meat, brandy, and tobacco.

SINGAPORE.—Rev. W. F. Oldham, a missionary the Methodist Episcopal Church of America, send short account of his growing work at Singapore. says:—"We are busy in the Master's service, and blessing rests upon us. We have now 240 boys and girls in our combined day and Sunday-schools. I h recently baptized a young Malay woman and th Tamils—one of these a very intelligent ex-preache Sivaism. He seems to be very earnest. I am orga ing a small Tamil church; and, amid the abound drunkenness of the Tamils, I rejoice that ours will an abstaining Church. We here reap fruit sown by American brethren in Jaffna, Ceylon. I am about receive a score of members into the church, some them converted from Romanism, some from heatheni and all I trust to God."

DR. WYLIE ON ROMANISM.—The session the Protestant Institute of Scotland was oper on Saturday by Dr. J. A. Wylie, with a lectu entitled, "Protestantism and the Permanence the British Empire." He said he could not c ceive at this hour a greater calamity than the ov throw of the British Empire, but there is at w at the heart of the Empire an influence persist and deadly which has already made fright ravages in its unity. That influence is revived extending Romanism, and the signs of a fall State are beheld in a demoralised Parliament the state of Ireland, in the embittered state political parties, and in the widespread defiance law among the masses. He spoke at length support of the proposition that Great Brit must be Protestant or nothing. Under all co tions, he held, Romanism has demoralised destroyed the nation in which it has found a s

Notes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, NOV. 27.—JEREMIAH XXVIII.

THE subject of this chapter might be called the apparent triumph of the false prophet, but it closes with God's solemn judgment on him two months afterwards.

1.—In the presence of the priests and of all the people.—The false prophet seeks popularity by hoosing his time and his audience.

3.—Within two full years will I bring again.—Within two full months (see ver. 17) this false prophet was brought to the grave.

6.—Amen: the Lord do so: the Lord perform hy words.—When we hear teaching which holds out the prospect of no wrath to come, or of non-eternity of punishment, or of universal restoraion, it may not be amiss to imitate the mode in which Jeremiah received the false message of Hananiah. One may cordially wish that it were so, and be ready to say, "Amen: the Lord do so." Christians should "have no pleasure" in contemplating the doom of the wicked, however bound they feel to maintain what they consider o be God's truth on the subject. (Ezek. xviii. 32.)

8.—The prophets that have been before me and before thee.—Jeremiah is not here speaking the word of the Lord (that follows in ver. 12), but gives his own meek and patient rejoinder to Hananiah's false message. Comp. 1 Cor. vii. 12—25. He goes back to the former prophets. In other words, his appeal is to Scripture.

13.—Thou shalt make for them yokes of iron.—"Men like Hananiah, by encouraging the Jews to rebel, would only make their lot the harder. Had Zedekiah obeyed Jeremiah he might have lived an honoured vassal of the Chaldees: as it was, after enduring the horrors of a siege, he saw his children slain before his eyes, his nobles put to death, his city burnt, his subjects carried into captivity, and, finally, his eyes were put out, and he was dragged in chains to die at Babylon."—S.C.

MONDAY, NOV. 28.—JEREMIAH XXIX.

4.—Whom I have caused to be carried away.—In the first verse we read, "Whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive." This was the outward or human aspect of the transaction. The true aspect from God's point of view is now given, that the captives may know God's will as to the length of the captivity, and acquiesce in it accordingly. It really held out a much brighter and happier prospect for them than did the restless craving for immediate restoraion which the zeal of the false prophets stirred up.

7.—Seek the peace of the city, &c.—There is a striking analogy between the position of the Jews in Babylon and that of God's people in the midst of the world, which is seen in the very similar exhortation in 1 Tim. ii. 1, 2; showing how Christians are interested in seeking the peace of the world, and how true it is of them also that "in the peace thereof shall ye have peace."

11.—To give you an expected end.—"Rather, 'a future and a hope.'"—S.C. R.V. renders it, "to give you hope in your latter end," putting in margin "Heb., 'a latter end and hope.'" This "future and hope," as the prophecies of Daniel delivered in Babylon show, did not stop short at the restoration under Cyrus after seventy years, but went on to the end of "seventy weeks" of years (Dan. ix. 24—27), when "Messiah, the Prince," should appear and be their "hope."

12.—Then shall ye call upon Me, &c.—Daniel's prayer (ix. 3) is but a very partial and preliminary fulfilment, having the same relation to the restoration under Cyrus that the far more real and exhaustive fulfilment spoken of in Zech. xii. 10 will have to the final restoration under Christ.

16.—Thus saith the Lord of the king that sitteth upon the throne of David.—"The great obstacle in the way of the Jews settling quietly at Babylon would be the existence of a king of David's line upon the throne at Jerusalem."—S.C.

TUESDAY, NOV. 29.—JEREMIAH XXX.

"Almost unanimously, critics regard chapters xxx.—xxxiii. as a united whole. A considerable portion of it was written in the tenth year of Zedekiah, when the siege was drawing to an end, famine and pestilence busy in the city, its capture daily more imminent, all hope of succour past, and the prophet himself in prison." —S.C. "Hitherto threatening had prevailed in the predictions of the prophet; but now, in the view of their fulfilment, when the thunders of the coming judgment were already heard, the promise flows in full streams."—Hengstenberg.

3.—My people Israel and Judah.—The promise contemplates the restoration of the ten tribes as well as Judah, showing that it goes far beyond the partial restoration under Cyrus.

7.—It is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but he shall be saved out of it.—An important parallel passage is Dan. xii. 1, which connects the time spoken of with that of the first resurrection.

8.—Strangers shall no more serve themselves of him.—This prophecy awaits its fulfilment.

9.—David their king.—"Not David in person, but the sprout of David (xxiii. 5, 6), and so the Jewish Targum paraphrases it, 'They shall serve Messiah, Son of David, their king.'"—S.C.

21.—And their nobles shall be of themselves, &c. —This is singular, not plural, in Hebrew; "their mighty one." R.V. reads it, "their prince shall be of themselves." S.C. renders it, "His glorious one shall be of himself." The Jewish Targum gives us the right interpretation, "Messiah shall be revealed to them out of their own midst." I will cause Him to draw near.—Two things are to be noted: Messiah's engagement of heart to approach God, and God's causing Him to draw near. The first is seen in the life and death of the Lord Jesus ("Lo, I come to do thy will, O God"). The second in the resurrection. God "raised Him up from the dead, and gave Him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God" (1 Peter i. 21).

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 30.—JEREMIAH XXXI.

2.—The people which were left of the sword, &c.—Does this refer to the exodus from Egypt, or to the return from Babylon? Manifestly to the latter, as the parallel expression, "Ye that have escaped the sword" (li. 50), shows. To illustrate, found grace in the wilderness, see Ezra viii. 21, 23, 31. As to a further application, see Rev. xii. 6—14.

3.—Therefore with lovingkindness have I drawn thee.—See John vi. 44, where our Lord uses the same Greek word for "draw" used by the LXX.

6.—Let us go up to Zion.—"Showing that the schism caused by Jeroboam is over."—S.C. The subject of this prophecy is the same as that in Ezek. xxxvii. 16. The union of the two sticks of Judah and Ephriam.

11.—From the hand of him that was stronger than he.—See Luke xi. 22, and Isaiah xlix. 25.

15.—A voice was heard in Ramah.—"Ramah is mentioned not as being Rachel's sepulchre (for which the passage usually quoted, 1 Sam. x. 2, is no proof), but because of its nearness to Jerusalem. As mother of three tribes, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh, Rachel is regarded as the mother of the whole ten."—S.C. The quotation in Matt. ii. 18 seems an application rather than the fulfilment of the prophecy, which represents in dramatic form a lamentation for the loss of the ten tribes, with a promise of their future restoration.

22.—A woman shall compass a man.—This, taken in the light of the preceding words, "the Lord hath created a new thing in the earth," is a striking prophecy of the Incarnation, and the best commentary upon it is Luke i. 34, 35. Modern commentators (except Wordsworth) seem afraid to adopt this view, but it was the prevailing explanation of the ancients.

31.—A new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah.—The rejection of this covenant by Israel and Judah, nationally at our Lord's first coming, does not hinder its future national imposition by Him ("I will put") at his second coming. In the meantime those who accept Christ, whether Jew or Gentile, are virtually partakers of its blessings, though they enjoy them in the higher sphere of "heavenly places," as restored Israel and Judah will hereafter in earthly places. See Eph. i. 10.

THURSDAY, DEC. 1.—JEREMIAH XXXII.

This chapter narrates Jeremiah's purchase of a property by God's direction, at the very time that the city was besieged, and about to be given into the hands of the Chaldeans, as a sign that the captivity would in time end, and that "houses, and fields, and vineyards, would again be bought."

10.—I subscribed the evidence.—"And I wrote (the particulars of the purchase) in the deed."—S.C. The Hebrew word for "deed" is the ordinary one for "book," and is rendered in the LXX. by the same Greek word used in Rev. v. 1. The formalities of purchase here described throw much light on Rev. v., and show that the subject of that chapter is the Lord Jesus opening, as lawful Claimant, the title-deed of the earth's inheritance, which He had purchased by his blood. See Rev. v. 5, 9.

14.—Both which is sealed, and...which is open. —Two copies of the roll would thus appear to have been provided. In Rev. v. the same result is attained by the sealed roll which contained the title-deed, being also written "on the back," with doubtless the same writing as that inside.

25.—And Thou hast said unto me, &c.—Jeremiah spreads before the Lord his view of the whole case, as though perplexed, whereupon the Lord opens up to him his mind, and ends with "exceeding great and precious promises" for the future.

FRIDAY, DEC. 2.—JEREMIAH XXXIII.

1.—While he was yet shut up in the court of the prison.—The particulars of Jeremiah's seizure and imprisonment will be found at xxxvii. 12.

3.—Call upon Me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee, &c.—Much of the darkness amongst Christians is to be traced to want of asking for light. "Ye have not, because ye ask not" (Jas. iv. 2). See Paul's prayer for his converts (Eph. i. 17).

15.—Will I cause the Branch of righteousness to grow up unto David.—"The principal differences in this and the next verse from xxiii. 5, 6 are, 'I will cause to grow up' for 'I will raise'; 'Branch of righteousness' for 'righteous Branch'; the omission of the clause, 'a King shall reign and prosper'; the substitution of 'Jerusalem'; for 'Israel'; and, chief of all, the application of the name 'Jehovah our righteousness' to that city."—S.C. The best explanation of this transfer of name is that as in Ezek. xlviii. 35. The chief privilege of the city (i.e., the Lord's presence) is there expressed in its name, "The Lord is there"; so here another chief privilege of all her citizens is expressed in the name, "The Lord (is) our righteousness."

18.—Neither shall the priests the Levites want a man.—To this day the priestly descendants of Levi are known amongst the Jews, and their services could be available in a restored temple (Ezek. xl.)

SATURDAY, DEC. 3.—JEREMIAH XXXIV.

5.—But thou shalt die in peace.—"Really, Zedekiah had no such peaceful end. After his sons and nobles had been slain before his face, he was deprived of his sight, dragged to Babylon in chains, and there cast into prison, where he died (lii. 10, 11). Probably the prophecy set before the king an alternative, and was conditional upon his submitting to the prophet's advice. In ver. 2, 3 is stated what is to happen if Zedekiah obstinately continues the war; in ver. 4, 5, there is the other alternative, to be attained to only by submission. Zedekiah chose the former, and lost kingdom, eyesight, and liberty."—S.C.

18.—When they cut the calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof.—See a similar mode of confirming a covenant in Gen. xv. 17, where the "smoking furnace and burning lamp" symbolise the Lord's presence. The dead victims over which covenants were ratified are supposed to set forth the fate of him who breaks the covenant, and this idea seems referred to in ver. 20, 'Their dead bodies shall be for meat," &c. Keil even translates this verse thus, "I shall make the men who have transgressed my covenant...like the calf which they cut in two," &c.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Bishop of Liverpool has now quite recovered from the effects of his recent illness.

Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe is to conduct a special mission at Oxford from December 1 to 5.

November 30 has been set apart as a special day of intercession for foreign missions in Anglican churches.

The Episcopal Synod of New South Wales has carried a resolution disapproving of raffles, lotteries, and all games of chance for raising church funds.

Rev. William Haslam commenced a ten days' special mission at St. George's Church, Tufnell Park, N., on Sunday last. He recently conducted a most successful mission in Liverpool.

Baroness Willoughby d'Eresby has set a good example to patrons of livings by placing the appointment to a vacant vicarage in Wales, which is in her gift, in the hands of the parishioners.

The Drapers' Company have resolved to appoint to the rectory of St. Michael's, Cornhill, in succession to the late Rev. W. Hunt, the clergyman who may be nominated by the Crown, second Suffragan Bishop for the diocese of London.

The Record says it is understood that the Committee of the Church Missionary Society have been unable to accept Bishop Blyth's proposal that they should contribute a sum of £200 for one year to aid in the establishment by Mrs. Meredith of a Woman's Mission-house at Jerusalem.

BAPTIST.

Last week's issue of The Rock contained a portrait and biographical sketch of Rev. C. H Spurgeon.

At the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday next Dr. Sinclair Paterson will preach in the morning, and Rev. Mark Guy Pearse in the evening.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Leicester, has been invited to the pastorate of the Regent's-park Chapel, vacant by the removal of Rev. David Davies to Brighton.

There is not a single Baptist minister stationed in Newcastle-on-Tyne. The population of the city is 150,000, and there are three Baptist Churches. All are without pastors.

Rev. David Davies, of Brighton, whose secession from the Baptist Union was announced, denies that he has any such intention, as he believes that the object which he has at heart, in common with Mr. Spurgeon, can best be furthered by remaining in the Union, for the present at least.

METHODIST.

Encouraging results are reported from mission services at Moffat-road Chapel, Thornton Heath.

Rev. Alexander McAulay, and Mr. William Sampson, the Cornish evangelist, sailed on Thursday last for an evangelistic tour in the West Indies.

A Chinese Wesleyan Mission Church has lately been completed at Tingha, New South Wales. A choir of Chinese took part in the opening proceedings.

The Sunderland and Newcastle District Primitive Methodist Committee has decided to employ one minister and one lay evangelist, to devote themselves to special evangelistic work in the district. It is intended for these agents to begin their work immediately after the Conference of 1888.

A united Sunday-school demonstration was lately held at Point Pedro, Ceylon, when the corner-stones of the new Wesleyan chapel were laid. There were 1250 children and 250 adult friends present. The girls of the boarding-school were in one corner; in another were the native Christian women. Twelve young men and girls were baptized.

The annual report of the Canadian Methodist Missions states that the College in Tokio, Japan, has been a marked success, and the demand for Mission-trained teachers in the Government schools is very large. In connection with the work amongst the Chinese in British Columbia, ten girls have been rescued from a terrible life, most of them being placed in a Home.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. W. A. Meaton is conducting a series of mission services in Eltham. Services for children are a feature in the mission. Mr. Meaton has given himself up to the work of mission preaching.

Rev. J. Guinness Rogers, preaching at St. Leonards on Wednesday, 9th instant, expressed the opinion that speaking generally the preaching in Nonconformist pulpits to-day approaches nearer in spirit and tone that of the apostolic age than does the preaching of any other time.

A very successful eight days' mission has recently been conducted by Miss Forsaith and Miss Dalton, at Maulden, Beds. Many came forward and consecrated their lives to the service of the Saviour, whilst there was a general quickening among his professed disciples.

Some of the ministers of the larger Congregational churches are taking co-pastors. Rev. Edward White has Dr. Basil Martin; and quite recently Mr. W. Robinson was ordained as assistant to Rev. J. Morley Wright, of Lewisham-road Church, specially to help on the mission work of the church at Deptford.

Rev. W. E. Richards, London Missionary Society, Raiatea, Society Islands, has received an invitation to become the pastor of the English-speaking community at Papeete, Tahiti. In harmony, however, with the unanimous wish of the native churches of Raiatea and Talma, he has decided to continue at his present post.

Rev. A. H. Storrow, of Falcon-square Church, E.C., intends preaching a series of special Sunday evening sermons on London Life. The series embraces the following subjects:—(1) Provincial and City Life; (2) Temptations, Amusements, &c.; (3) The Down Grade; (4) Light in Darkness; (5) Brotherhood. The first of these was taken on Sunday evening last, and will be followed by the others on consecutive Sunday evenings.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

At Ramallah, Jerusalem, on October 16, a new meeting-house was opened, with an excellent attendance, and the "word had free course."

Hettie Butler, of Ohio, has gone out to Nankin China, and hopes soon to represent the Friends' Church there. The Women's Foreign Missionary Society send her out.

On the first Sunday in October the new meeting was opened in Victoria, Mexico, under exceedingly interesting circumstances. One bishop and ten priests watched and opposed, yet seventy persons attended, and a Mexican native lady preached the Gospel with power.

A town called "Whittier" is rapidly rising in Southern California, peopled mostly by Friends. The poet writes a touching and large-hearted letter to Harvey Lindley, hoping "that in sobriety, industry, large charity, active benevolence, and educational privileges" it may have real success.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Dr. Marshall Lang, of Glasgow, has sailed for Australia to take the charge of the Scots' Church at Melbourne. He will be absent for about seven months.

Dr. Saphir does not purpose seeking another sphere of ministerial work. He will retire from the pastorate of Belgrave Church about the end of the year.

A tabernacle, to seat 3000 people, is to be erected in Edinburgh for Rev. John M'Neill, of the M'Crie-Roxburgh Church, who has recently become very popular.

The growing practice of cycling for pleasure on the Lord's day was one of the forms of Sabbath desecration referred to in a report submitted to Glasgow North U.P. Presbytery on Sabbath observance.

Rev. W. Swanson, late of China, Moderator of the English Synod, is creating new missionary zeal in all the congregations he visits. At the close of a recent address it was said of him, "That man is not a missionary—he is a statesman."

Missionary meetings for Sabbath-school children are being held throughout Glasgow Free Church Presbytery. The gatherings of young people have been very large, three or four neighbouring schools being brought together in each case.

The ministerial jubilee of Dr. Horatius Bonar, which was to have been celebrated this month, has been postponed on account of the venerable doctor's indisposition, till March, 1888. Dr. Bonar, we regret to learn, has been confined to bed for some time past.

Rev. Archibald R. S. Kennedy, B.D., has been appointed Professor of Oriental Languages in the University of Aberdeen, in place of Rev. John Forbes, D.D., LL.D., who has resigned. Few have attained to professional rank so young as Mr. Kennedy, he being still under thirty.

A Year-book of the Presbyterian Church of England has just been published by Mr. T. O. Smith, 14, Paternoster-square. It contains a complete list of all the ministers and churches, with a good deal of incidental information about the work in England. It will be very convenient for reference.

The Edinburgh Evening News announces that Dr. Gustavus Aird, of Creich, has definitely declined to accept the Moderatorship of the Inverness Free Assembly, and that Dr. Murray Mitchell will occupy that post of honour, if he is willing to accept it. Dr. Murray Mitchell is one of the pioneers of Free Church missionary enterprise.

SALVATION ARMY.

The Christmas Number of All the World has a portrait of Miss Eva Booth as a frontispiece.

In the canton of Vaud (Switzerland) there has recently been much opposition shown to the work.

A general order has been issued prohibiting the use of Salvation Army buildings for political meetings of any kind.

Two days' holiness meetings to be conducted by the "General" and Mrs. Booth, are to be held at Exeter Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 6 and 7.

Commissioner Tucker is issuing a monthly magazine called The Sepoy. It contains a summary of Salvation Army work in India and Ceylon and is published chiefly for foreign readers.

The General arrived in London on Thursday, the 10th inst., after a fortnight's absence in Denmark, Norway, and Sweden. He is exceedingly gratified with the work in those countries.

At Eynsham, Yorks, recently a gentleman said he was sure the Army was doing a wonderful work in the place, because all the publicans were complaining that the people went to the Army instead of to them, and they were therefore obliged to shut up earlier.

"Major" Oliphant reports that a Market Harborough farmer had two £10 notes picked from his pocket, and the thief's conscience was so uneasy that he went and dropped the notes into the Army ring. They were picked up by one of the soldiers, and handed to the rejoicing farmer.

The Army are desirous of extending the work into all the hamlets and villages of our country. Of these there are in England alone about 14,000, the population of which is in each case under 3000. Gospel work is carried on in nearly 1000 villages at present by the Army, and to reach the rest men and money are required.

Mrs. Bulman, who has worked among the natives of the Punjaub, says that none can estimate the blessing the Salvation Army lasses are to the villages in which they work. They take up their abode with the people and live in the same simple manner, holding prayer and salvation meetings continually; when the heathen get saved they are no longer left to face alone the persecution to which those of their own caste often subject them, but have spiritual help and counsel close at hand.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Presbyterian Church has received a legac
£1100 for Irish Missions.

A branch of the Y.M.C.A. has been establishe
Holywood under favourable auspices.

The Church Army are conducting successful mis services, at present, in Knockbreda parish.

A series of popular temperance lectures have delivered in Belfast by Mr. and Mrs. Ripley, of mouth.

The annual meeting of the Girls' Temperance was held in Belfast last week. The report was highly encouraging character.

At a meeting held in Belfast, last Thursday even under the auspices of the Presbyterian Board of sions, it was resolved to form an Irish Colportage A ciation in connection with the General Assembly.
society, which has been at work for some years semi-independent organisation, but is now placed u the special supervision of the Assembly, has thirty colporteurs at work in various parts of Ireland, and intended to add to this number.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Rev. R. S. Falcon-Steward, for nearly twenty y rector of Sulhampstead, near Reading.—Rev. Ge Wilkins, who has for more than half a century rend useful service in connection with the Congregati denomination, and for some time secretary of British and Foreign Sailors' Society.—Rev. Mo
Jackson, for many years a faithful minister of Gospel in Sligo, Ireland.—Mrs. Rainsford, wife of Marcus Rainsford, of Belgrave Chapel.—Rev. Eli
P. Swift, of the American United Presbyterian sion, Gujranwala, Punjaub, India.—Mr. Joseph L a well-known member of the Society of Friends in derland.—Mr. William Stevenson, for fifteen year elder in Bellgrove United Presbyterian Church, gow, and an earnest advocate of total abstinence.—
William Crown, of Great Yarmouth, an earnest devoted Christian, and for over fifty years a succ ful minister in the Primitive Methodist Connex and beloved by all who knew him for his kind ministerial visitations.—Rev. Robert Cameron, L for several years pastor of Montague-street and Fiel street Baptist Chapels, Blackburn.

◆

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

The Bishop of Bath and Wells thinks that Eng is a much more sober nation now than twenty ago.

The Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth is sa have devised a scheme for the prevention of dru ness in the Navy.

Application has been made for a patent for an matic drink supplier, on a similar plan to the mac in common use at railway-stations and elsewhere.

At some recent Assizes Baron Huddleston and Justice Grantham both stated their belief that dru ness was the cause of most of the crime now comm in England.

Mr. Axel Gustafson is announced to give a cou public lectures at the Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Stra
Monday evenings, commencing November 28, on Drink Problem."

The teetotal jubilee of Sir Edward Baines was brated, recently, at Leeds. At a large meeting, Charles Garrett in the chair, several addresses presented to Sir Edward.

The Watchword cautions temperance electors a seeking the triumph of any political party beca any promises made by its leaders. It holds th true policy is to secure representatives who will right on the liquor-question.

At a Glasgow soirée, in connection with the Sc
Temperance League, Sir William Collins refer Lord R. Churchill's suggested "compensation," said, emphatically, "Compensation, forsooth!
publican holds his licence only for one year."

Tynemouth has elected Mr. George Dodds, an fifty-year-old teetotaller, as Mayor. Newcastle-on has chosen a teetotaller, Mr. J. Baxter Ellis, as S so that both Mayor and Sheriff are total abst Sheffield has chosen as Mayor, Mr. Alderman C veteran abstainer.

FOREIGN.

The American National Temperance Society re accorded a very hearty reception in New York John Taylor, chairman of the English National perance League.

The Lancet contrasts the Austrian Government' posed measure for the prevention of intempe with "the impotence of the English Parliament," says, "freedom to get drunk is still jealously gua

The first international temperance conventi
South Australia was held lately at Adelaide, three days. Hon. James Munro expressed his that it had intensified their purpose to get rid drink traffic.

A CONFERENCE OF PROTESTANTS of nominations is to be held at Washington on the days commencing December 7, under the ausp the Evangelical Alliance.

ROME.—Rev. A. H. Lutman, from Sherborne, shire, has this season the chaplaincy of Trinity C
Piazza, S. Silvestro; he is a sound evangelical.
W. M. Falconer, of Edinburgh, is doing duty
Presbyterian Church during Dr. Gray's abse America.

ANNUAL VOLUMES

NOW READY.

"The budget of Messrs. Partridge & Co.'s Annuals is fully up to the usual mark, and that is saying much. There is nothing to beat them for a due admixture of solidity and artistic skill."
The Christian.

THE BRITISH WORKMAN. Containing Twelve full-page and many smaller Illustrations by the most eminent Artists. Stories and Articles specially suited for the Working Classes. Cover beautifully printed in Colours from Joseph Clark's Picture, "The Sailor's Return." Price 1s. 6d.

"Deserves the widest support."—Daily Chronicle.

THE BAND OF HOPE REVIEW. Full of Illustrations. Coloured Cover after Sir George Hayter's Picture of the Queen's Coronation. Price 1s.

"Splendidly drawn and engraved pictures."
Daily Telegraph.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND. Charming Stories, Interesting Articles, Beautiful Pictures, Puzzles, Music, &c., &c. Coloured Cover, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s.; Gilt Edges. 2s. 6d.

"A favourite among children.... Essentially religious in tone, the stories are so written as at once to rivet the attention."—Record.

THE INFANT'S MAGAZINE. Full of Bright Pictures and Merry Rhymes that will delight the little ones; also Baby Music, &c. Coloured Cover, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s.; Gilt Edges, 2s. 6d.

"Should be found in every nursery."—Christian Age.

THE MOTHERS' COMPANION. Edited by Mrs. BENJAMIN CLARKE. Contains Twelve Biographical Articles by Mrs. Henry Fawcett, in addition to Serial Stories and Articles by the most eminent Writers for Women. Freely Illustrated. Coloured Cover, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s.; Gilt Edges, 2s. 6d.

"It contains a large amount of secular information likely to be useful to wives and mothers."—Record.

Complete Catalogue of other Annuals and New Illustrated Books post free on application.

ALSO READY.

"The British Workman" AND

"Band of Hope" Sheet Almanacs

AND

EVERYONE'S ALMANAC.

(Book form, 16 pp., in cover.) All splendidly Illustrated. One Penny each.

Arrangements have been made by which the British Workman and Everyone's Almanac may be localised. Conditions and Terms on application.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.,
9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

THE BOOK SALOON,

9, PATERNOSTER ROW (Cheapside end)
(ESTABLISHED 1860),

Contains one of the largest and most varied collections of

EVANGELICAL, TEMPERANCE, & GENERAL LITERATURE,

Conveniently arranged for selection.

In addition to S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S own Publications, the Works of most of the leading Publishers are kept in Stock,

Annuals, New Books, Almanacs,
New Year's Addresses,
Christmas and New Year's Cards, &c.

EARLY INSPECTION INVITED.
Hours 9 till 6. Saturdays 9 till 2.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S new Illustrated Catalogue post free on application. Also specimen packet of their Illustrated Periodicals and Magazines.

9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

MARK GUY PEARSE'S BOOKS

Ten Volumes, Crown 8vo., Cloth, Gilt Edges. 2s. 6d. each.

1.—DANIEL QUORM, AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. First Series. 80 000.
2.—DANIEL QUORM, AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. Second Series. 33,000.
3.—SERMONS FOR CHILDREN. 23,000.
4.—MISTER HORN AND HIS FRIENDS; or, Givers and Giving. 26,000.
5.—SHORT STORIES. 11,000.
6.—"GOOD WILL;" Christmas Stories. [11,000
7.—SIMON JASPER. 17,000.
8.—CORNISH STORIES. 11,000.
9.—HOMELY TALKS. 14,000.
10.—JOHN TREGENOWETH, Rob Rat, and The Old Miller and His Mill. 23,000.

Cheap Editions of the above Ten Volumes are on Sale, Foolscap 8vo., 1s. 6d. each.

THOUGHTS ON HOLINESS. 19th Thousand. Royal 16mo. Cloth, red edges, 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition. Demy 16mo., 44th 1000. 1s.

PRAISE: Meditations in the 103rd Psalm. Royal 16mo., red lines round page, 2s. 6d.

SOME ASPECTS OF THE BLESSED LIFE. Eighth Thousand. Royal 16mo. 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition. Demy 16mo. 19th 1000. 1s.

DR. PUNSHON'S SERMONS. Two Vols. Crown 8vo., 5s. each.

DR. PUNSHON'S LECTURES. 5s.

LOVING COUNSELS: SERMONS AND ADDRESSES. By Rev. CHARLES GARRETT. Fourth Thousand. Cheap Edition. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d.

THE LIFE OF REV. JABEZ BUNTING, D.D. With Notices of Contemporary Persons and Events. By T. P. BUNTING, Esq., and Rev. G. STRINGER ROWE. 8vo., with Two Portraits. 10s. 6d.

THE BEGINNING OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE. By Rev. W. L. WATKINSON. 16mo., 1s.

GOD AND NATURE. By Rev. NEHEMIAH CURNOCK. 16mo, 1s.

THE WORD IN THE HEART. Notes on the Devotional Study of Holy Scripture. By Rev. W. T. DAVISON, M.A. 16mo., 1s.

A MANUAL OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE. By Rev. J. SHAW BANKS. Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d.

FATHER FERVENT. By Rev. JOHN M. BAMFORD. Crown 8vo. 18 Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE FERNLEY LECTURE OF 1887. The Creator, and What we may Know of the Method of Creation. By Rev. W. H. DALLINGER, LL D., F.R.S. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

LONDON T. WOOLMER, 2, CASTLE-ST., CITY-ROAD, E.C.; and 66, PATERNOSTER-ROW, E.C.

"THE REGIONS BEYOND."

Edited by LUCY GRATTAN GUINNESS.

☞ DECEMBER NO. NOW READY.

MISSIONARY NEWS FROM EUROPE, ASIA, AFRICA,

AMERICA.

15 ILLUSTRATIONS.

Order direct from THE SECRETARY, Harley House, Bow, London, E. Price Sixpence, Post Free.

WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.—The Best, the Most Complete, the Cheapest and the Most Useful Almanack published. The 1888 Edition, considerably improved, will be ready in December.

London: WHITAKER & SONS.

Sale already exceeds 900,000.

The Oxford Bible for Teachers,

In twelve sizes, corresponding page for page with each other.

REV. C. H. SPURGEON:—
"The very best."

THE BISHOP OF RIPON:—
"Invaluable."

REV. DR. OSBORN:—
"Has surpassed all competitors."

ARCHDEACON WATKINS:—
"A noble gift to all English speaking peoples."

The "TIMES":—
"A library of Biblical information."

The "CHRISTIAN WORLD":—
"The most complete Bible yet published."

The "CHRISTIAN":—
"Perfect."

The "PALL MALL GAZETTE":—
"Every Bible Student knows it to contain the best collection of Biblical information ever brought together in so small a compass."

At all Booksellers.

Henry Frowde,
Oxford University Press Warehouse, E.C.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC.

Cantatas.	Children's Operettas.
Services of Song.	Carols.
Anthems.	Men's Voice Carols.

Send for Catalogue to

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 & 9, WARWICK LANE, E.C.

SECOND EDITION (3000 Copies). Price 2s. 6d.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT FOR YOUNG MEN.

By MAJOR SETON CHURCHILL,

Author of "Stepping Stones to Higher Things," "Church Ordinances from the Layman's Standpoint," &c.

CONTENTS.

Forbidden Fruit: Its Raison d'Etre—Benefits of Temptation—The Moral Nature of Man—Self-Control—Human Responsibility—True to Nature—Accumulative Power of Sin—Promiscuous Intercourse—Polygamy—Marriage—Prostitution—Responsibilities of Parents—Influence of Medical Men in Questions of Morality—Impure Thoughts—Impure Pictures—Causes Exciting to Impurity—Aids to Purity—Treatment of the Fallen—Religion as an Aid to Purity.

FAMILY CHURCHMAN.—"This book is a model of the manner in which the Purity Question ought to be discussed with young men. The tone of the book is manly, straightforward, and simple, and we could wish it in the hands of every young man."

CHRISTIAN.—"The writer's wide experience in different parts of the world, combined with his knowledge of the Scriptures and deep spiritual experience, peculiarly fits him to be the author of such a book as this. We trust that every Young Men's Christian Association Librarian will order copies."

MORNING POST.—"The writer feels earnestly the importance of the work he has undertaken, and there is about his style a manliness and a healthy tone which can hardly fail to impress those to whom he addresses himself—young men."

AUSTRALIAN CHRISTIAN WORLD.—"It is a book which we can fearlessly recommend . . . . just the kind of advice which might come from a pure, high-minded, godly father to a dearly-beloved son."

Published by JAMES NISBET & CO., 21, Berners-street, London, W.

Mission Appeals.

GORDON HALL (Globe-road, Bethnal-green, E.).—Here in Bethnal-green and Mile-end we are in the midst of poor little waifs and strays, whose poor, pinched, pale faces plainly declare they are without the necessaries of life. We are anxious to give them an evening meal. We have the requsite kitchen utensils, but no food. If any Christians would send us some peas, rice, flour, &c., or small donations to purchase them, we shall indeed be very thankful for them. Children's left-off clothing, or evangelical literature for the sick and dying, would also be very welcome. These may be sent to Rev. T. BOWMAN STEPHENSON, LL.D.; or to J. CONNERS, Missionary.

MRS. W. H. WRIGLEY, New Wandsworth, I.W., will be glad of Christmas cards, scraps, large and small coloured pictures, which in past years have helped to brighten many homes, hospitals, &c.

THE "TRAVELLERS' AID" SOCIETY (16a, Old Cavendish-street, W.) stands greatly in need of £120 to cover expenses to the end of this year. This Society, as our readers may recollect, seeks to protect young women travelling by land or sea, from the many perils to which they are exposed. The Secretary is Miss M. E. DINNOCK.

DOVER SOLDIERS' HOME.—The need of funds is pressing upon the work in this Home to meet extra expenses, which have of necessity been incurred during the present year. About £50 is required before the year closes. The work has been greatly blessed in past years. Contributions will be received by Miss WRIGHT, Lady Superintendent, Soldiers' Home, 118, Snargate-street, Dover.

ALBERT YOUTHS' CHRISTIAN INSTITUTE (Jenkins'-yard, Eagle-street, High Holborn).—Mr. A. E. SPARROW, hon. secretary, 66, High Holborn, W.C., writes:—"Our numbers are largely increasing, but want of funds prevents us from doing what we would to keep the lads from the streets. Our work has been much blessed. It was encouraging to hear lately from one of our members at Buenos Ayres, and who was converted soon after joining our Institute. With another Christian, he is learning Spanish, that he may engage in Christian work among the natives. Many other lads have found in Jesus a Saviour through being connected with our Institute.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—In consequence of the prevailing Ritualism a few have come out boldly for the preaching of a pure Gospel, and have commenced a small church. I have also mission work in three other small harbours. Partial failure of the fisheries round this bay has caused a great drawback to our building prospects; trusting in the Lord to open hearts and raise up friends, we appeal to his stewards. £200 would suffice to build a small church in the two principal harbours, and a small mission house for the minister, beside giving employment to the poor and needy. Subscriptions will be received by Mr. W. MILLARD, Morant House, Chapel-street, Colchester, Essex.—Rev. C. F. HUBBARD, Ref. Eng. Ch., Newharbour, Trinity Bay, Newfoundland.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—F.W.D. R.S. R.S.H.S. J.C. W.H.P. J.P.W. M.C.C. G.H.J. I.A. W.H.M. A.L.W. E.J.M. T.F. C.N. C.H.T. F.G.H. C.S. E.A.B. W.J.M. J.E.S. J.H. R.D.F. J.F.C. V.J.C. W.D. T.A.B. J.T.D. N.P.A. N.T.L. T.S. L.C.M. C.B. R.L.B. W.L. A.B. W.J.S.D. W.F. R.H.G. E.M.B. J.G. W.C.B. E.M.T. L.K.S. M.E.D. G.C. J.S. J.B.A. H.V.M. R.H. G.M. J.G. A.J.B. C.M. J.K. W.H.C. F.H.W. A.M.S. R.H.O. R.W.E. J.G.J. M.N. J.F. I.M. J.P.J. W.C.S. C.H.B. M.E.S. J.C.P. A.L.C. A.H. W.H. F.E.W. J.M. H.E.B. G.M. R.S. M.J.R. M.H. J.B. C.R.S. A.W. R.C. S.T.P. T.G.S. C.R.A. W.F.K. R.A. R.R. H.H. G.F.H. S.A.R. D.J.R. J.W.L. J.P.H. E.S.D. M.E.I. A.E.M. H.E.S. S.A.B. J.P.C. G.H.H. L.L. C.W.M. H.V. J.T.C. E.S. R.W. A.J.B. E.C. G.A.H. P.A.H. J.O. S.R. S.T. A.L.W. G.H.B. J.J.J. M.M.K. J.D. N.H. B.L.W. G.B. E.J.W. J.J. V.W. C.I. J.N. C.L.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—Mary Ann Newton, 50, Clapton-common, N.; E. L. Roper, 11, Rosaline-road, Dawes-road, Fulham; W. H. Doggett, Cherryhinton, Cambridge; Rev. J. C. Wilcox, 7, London-road-terrace, Carlisle; Miss B. Beswick, 45, Egerton-street, Chester-road, Hulme, Manchester; H. Walmsley, Captain's Old Houses, Pilling, near Fleetwood; Rev. Anton Arbeiter, Moravian Missionary, Blewfields, Moskito Coast, Central America; W. Mortlock, 12, Inhedge, Dudley; V. Wiles, Bishop's Waltham, Hants; J. Travenor, 34, Wellesley-road, Kentish Town, N.W.; A. Russell, 2, Maynard-street, Leicester; F. W. Davis, 5, Vicars'-road, Haverstock-hill, N.W.

MISSION TO THE CHINESE BLIND.—An influential committee has been formed in Glasgow—with Dr. Elder Cumming as chairman—to assist Rev. W. H. Murray in carrying forward his great work among the blind in China. By an arrangement with the Bible Society, one-half of Mr. Murray's time will now be given to this work, while the National Bible Society of Scotland continue to provide the larger proportion of his support and to pay for the printing of his Scriptures for the Blind.

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Monday, November 21, 1887.

	£	s.	d.
F.T.—Please send full address.
Cow Cross Mission—M.A.H.	0	10	0
Clerkenwell Halfpenny Dinners—Boys, Old Hall School	0	7	8
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—J.B. £1; J.C. £1; W.J.C. £1 1s.; Collected at Avenue Church, W., £1 6s.	4	7	0
China Inland Mission—S.N. £5; J.H.W. 2s. 6d.; Gratitude, 5s.	5	7	6
London Samaritan Society, &c. (Mr. J. J. Jones)—W.H.S. £2 2s.; E.H. £2; L.B.R. 2s. 6d.; Eph. vi. 7, £5; P.N.Z. £1; H.B.R. £1; (Night Lodgings, &c.) A.A. 5s.	11	9	6
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—Lady G. 5s.; S.G. 5s.; Lev. xxvii. 32, 5s.; W.A. £2 1s. 1d.; Mrs. M.H. 2s. 6d.	2	18	7
Bristol Orphan Houses—J.H.W.	0	2	6
Home of Industry—J.H.W. 2s. 6d.; Keturah, £1 1s.; M.S. £20	21	3	6
Golden-lane Mission (Mr. Orsman)—J.H.W.	0	2	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—J.H.W. 5s.; C.T.P.L. £1; R.J. £3; S.T.B. £3; J.H.B. 10s.; Keturah, 10s.; Lev. xxvii. 32, 10s.; E.H. £1; Eph. vi. 7, £10; H., Natal, £1 1s.; P.N.Z. £2; H.B.R. 10s.	23	6	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Homes—J.H.W. 5s.; R.J. £1; Lev. xxvii. 32, 10s.; E.H. £1; H.B.R. 10s.	3	5	0
Turkish Missions' Aid Society—J.H.W. 2s. 6d.; Amicus, 1s.	0	3	6
St. Giles' Christian Mission—J.H.W. 2s. 6d.; J.H.W. 2s. 6d.; Eph. vi. 7, £10	10	5	0
Indian Female School Society—(Zenana Work) J.H.W.	0	2	6
National Vigilance Society—C.T.P.L.	1	0	0
Anti-Slavery Society—C.T.P.L.	1	0	0
Christian Community (Mr. J. Atkinson)—P.N.Z. £1; C.T.P.L. £1	2	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—J.S. 4s.; R.W. 2s. 6d.	0	6	6
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—C.P., Clifton, 5s.; M.B. 2s. 6d.; G.H.S. £5; Winifred, 5s.; H., Natal, 10s.	6	2	6
Working Lads' Inst., Whitechapel—C.P., Clifton	0	5	0
Y.W.C.A., Dawlish—(Purchase Fund) C.P., Clifton	0	5	0
Seamen in Italy (Rev. A. E. Carey)—C.P., Clifton	0	2	6
Asylums at La Force—C.P., Clifton, 5s.; L.B.R. 2s. 6d.	0	7	6
Repairing and Cleaning of Byrom Hall, Liverpool—C.P., Clifton	0	2	6
North Bow Msn.—(Breakfasts for Children) E.V.	1	0	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—Anon. £5; Lover of Jews, 4s.; M.F.C. 10s.; E.C. 18s. 6d.	6	12	6
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work—Anon.	5	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—Anon.	5	0	0
Salvation Army—Gratitude, 5s.; A.F.C., Bayswater, 5s.; (Slum and Gutter Work) Eph. vi. 7, £10; (Rescue Homes) Eph. vi. 7, £10	20	10	0
Railway Mission, 186, Aldersgate-street—T.W.C. £1; Y.Z. £20; M.A.H. 5s.	21	5	0
Miss Leigh's Work, Paris—R.B.W.	1	0	0
Soldiers' Home, Aldershot—R.J.	1	0	0
McAll Mission, Paris—R.J.	5	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth—R.J.	5	0	0
Work in Royal Navy (Miss Weston)—R.J. £3; H.M.A.S. 10s.; C.M. 10s.	4	0	0
Letters to Seamen (Mrs. Jeffery)—R.J.	1	0	0
Free Italian Church—R.J.	5	0	0
Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall—R.J.	2	1	0
Workmen's Hall (Mr. Hambledon)—R.J.	0	5	0
Bible and Colportage Society, Ireland—S.T.B.	2	0	0
Pastor Chiniquy—S.G. £1; L.W. 10s.	1	10	0
Field-lane Refuges—S.G.	0	10	0
Moravian Missions (London Assoc.)—Keturah, £1 1s.; H.M.A.S. 10s.	1	11	0
London Medical Mission—Keturah, £1 1s.; A.F.C., Bayswater, 5s.	1	6	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Mittendorff)—Keturah, £1 1s.; Eph. vi. 7, £10	11	1	0
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—Keturah, £1 1s.; E.H. £2	3	1	0
Dublin Prison-gate Mission—Keturah	2	2	0
Miss Whately's Schools, Cairo—Keturah	1	1	0
Crippled Boys' Home, Kensington—Keturah	1	1	0
Washing Charity (Mrs. Meredith)—Keturah	0	15	0
The Seychelles Islands—L.W.	0	10	0
George-yard Ragged Schools—M.E.G.	2	0	0
Fuel for the Poor (Rev. J. W. Atkinson)—A.F.C., Bayswater	0	5	0
Halfpenny Dinners—A.F.C., Bayswater, 5s.; P.N.Z. 10s.	0	15	0
Sermon-lane Mission—M.S.	5	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—Lev. xxvii. 32, 2s. 6d.; H., Natal, 8s.	0	10	6
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street—M.S. £5; P.N.Z. £1	6	0	0
N. E. London Gospel Mission—M.S.	5	0	0
Rescue Society—E.H.	2	0	0
Latymer-road Mission—E.H.	2	0	0
Blackdown Hills Msn.—L.B.R. 5s.; Eph. vi. 7, £5	5	5	0
Paris City Mission—L.B.R.	0	2	6
Broussa Orphanage—L.B.R.	0	2	6
Bethel-Santhal Mission—L.B.R.	0	2	6
Christian Life-boat Crew—L.B.R.	0	2	6
Thames Church Mission—C.P.	0	10	0
Invalid and Sick Children's Dinner Fund—H.M.A.S.	0	5	0
Homes for Working Girls, London—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
London Female Penitentiary—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—Eph. vi. 7	10	0	0
Rescue Work, Poplar (Mrs. Wilkes)—Eph. vi. 7, £10; B. 5s.; P.N.Z. £1	11	5	0
Sailors' Welcome Home (Miss Child)—Eph. vi. 7	10	0	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—Eph. vi. 7	10	0	0
Stockwell Orphanage (Rev. C. H. Spurgeon)—Eph. vi. 7	10	0	0
Children's Homes (Dr. Stephenson)—H., Natal	1	1
Free Breakfasts Fund—S.G.	0	5
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—Miss W.	0	1
Hoxton Hall Blue Ribbon Mission—P.N.Z.	0	10
London City Mission—P.N.Z.	1	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—P.N.Z.	1	0
City Young Women's Home (Miss Reynolds)—P.N.Z.	1	0
E. London Women's Christian Temperance Union—P.N.Z.	1	0
Y.W.C.A. (Miss Stewart)—(Poor) Eph. vi. 7	10	0
	£303	6

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Mr. Fegan's Homes—A.A.W. £1.

Home of Industry—In Memoriam £2.

Field-lane Refuges, Ragged Schools, &c.—H.W. 5s.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E. (towards £1,000)—H.T. £10. Mr. F. A. Bevan, Treasurer, 54, Lombard-st., E.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on du notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send eva gelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. App to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-me to any clergyman on due notice, for short or lo missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASS CIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to a chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E

Y.M.C.A., NEW METAL EXCHANGE, Whittington-avenu E.C.—Daily prayer-meeting at St. Peter's Vestr Cornhill, 1.15 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Gospel services Y.M.C.A. Mission Hall, Bermondsey, Sundays, 7 p. and Thursdays, 8 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sund November 27, 3 p.m., Mr. John McCall; 7 p.m., M Robert Farie. Monday, 28, 8 p.m., valedictory me ing of missionaries leaving for China. Mr. Theodo Howard in the chair.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sunday, Nov. at 7 (public), Mr. Harry Grattan Guinness. Mr. A Gustafson begins a course of four lectures on "T Drink Problem," Mon., Nov. 28. 8.30 p.m. Free to

Y.M.C.A., STAFFORD ROOMS, Titchborne-st., Edgwa road, W.—Sunday, November 27, 3.15 p.m., than giving service, conducted by Mr. George Willia Wednesday, Nov. 30, lecture by Rev. George Cousi of the London Missionary Society, 9 p.m. Subjec "Light in the Dark Continent."

Y.W.C.A., 17, OLD CAVENDISH STREET, W.—Special m sion to young women to November 27; Sunday at 3. week nights at 8.45.

MR. WILLIAM NOBLE conducts the meetings at Hox Hall, N., every Sunday, 6.30 p.m.

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Meetings at Staff Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W., ev Friday, at 3.30. November 25, Rev. C. A. Fox; De Rev. William Haslam.

WEEK OF PRAYER FOR MISSIONS.—Conference H Mildmay-park, N. The following meetings will held:—Sun., November 27 (Jewish Missions): 8 a prayer-meeting, Mr. James Adler; 3.30 p.m., serm Dr. Laseron; 7 p.m., sermon, Rev. J. Wilkins 8 p.m., prayer-meeting, Mr. David Baron. Mon Nov. 28 (Church of England Missions): 12 noon, Pe Rev. Dr. Bruce; 7 p.m., India, Mr. Eugene St Tuesday, Nov. 29 (Presbyterian Missions): 12 n China, Dr. J. L. Maxwell; 7 p.m., India, Rev. Joh Forman. Wednesday, Nov. 30 (Congregational sions): 12 noon, India, Rev. J. P. Ashton; 7 p South Seas, Rev. W. Wyatt Gill. Thursday, De (Baptist Missions): 12 noon, India, Rev. E. F. S mers; 7 p.m., Africa, Rev J. H. Weeks. Friday, D (Wesleyan Missions): 12 noon, Burmah, Rev. J Brown; 7 p.m., West Africa, Rev. Bryan Roe. Dec. 3: Mission to Mohammedans—12 noon, Ar &c., Major-Gen. Haig; China Inland Mission—4 China, Mr. B. Broomhall. Sunday, Dec. 4 (H Missions): 8 a.m., prayer-meeting, Mr. Robert Pa 3.30 p.m., sermon, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., ser Mr. C. Russell Hurditch; 8 p.m., prayer-meeting Robert Laidlaw.

A PRAYER MEETING is held at Alpha House, 43, Ha road, N.W., for all friends of the Vigilance and R Work, on the last Monday in each month, 8 p.m.

ALL SOULS' CHURCH, Langham-place, W.—Rev. H. Hopkins will give a course of instruction du Advent—December 2, 9, 16, and 23, at 11.30. Ser by Rev. Marcus Rainsford, jun., on Wednesdays, 30, December 7, 14, and 21, 8 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, No at 3.30, Dr. Laseron; 7, Rev. John Wilkinson.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, —Friday, December 2, all-day meetings—11 prayer for nations and missions; 3 p.m., Rev. R McAll on "The McAll Missions in France"; c man, Rev. J. Gosset Tanner. 7 p.m., Mr. C. R Hurditch.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, St. George's-st., Ra highway, E.—Monthly meeting of "Christian Lif Crew," Tuesday, December 6, 7 p.m.

FRANCE.—A new Home for Aged Protestants, fo by Madame Schneider, has been opened at Creuz

"I was a stranger, and ye took me in."

The Committee of the Field Lane Refuges and Ragged Schools are compelled to make a very urgent appeal for Funds for the continuance of their work. The work is carried on amongst the most destitute of the poor, both old and young. The Institution possesses no reserve fund to fall back upon.

The Committee gratefully acknowledge the receipt of £230, but £1,270 is still required before the close of the year to free them from anxiety. Upwards of 200 persons are maintained weekly. The average weekly attendances at the Mission Meetings is about 3,000.

The Committee trust the Lord's people will help them in this time of difficulty and pressure. On behalf of the Committee,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C. PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary.

P.S.—Contributions will be thankfully received by the Secretary; or may be paid to our Bankers, Messrs. Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or Messrs. Ransom & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.; or to the Editor of "THE CHRISTIAN."

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY.

ALL-NIGHT RESCUE WORK.

ALREADY 12,000 poor Homeless and Starving Men have been gathered from the streets in the dead of night, Sheltered, Fed, and otherwise assisted, with most gratifying results.

This season has commenced with more than usual severity. Hundreds of poor men have been gathered in, and their need supplied, while scores have been turned away, for want of room, in the most destitute condition.

The continuance of this much-needed work must depend upon the liberality of those having the means to support it. Contributions will be gratefully received by the SECRETARY; or Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or by the EDITORS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

JAMES ATKINSON, Secretary.
28, Enfield Road, Kingsland, N.

ASYLUM for FATHERLESS CHILDREN, Reedham, near Caterham Junction, Surrey. This unsectarian Institution is entirely dependent upon public benevolence. It is open to fatherless children of either sex from all parts of the kingdom. They are received as early as three months old, and are retained and cared for in every way until they are 15 years of age.

Since the foundation of the Charity in 1844, 1,500 children have been admitted to its benefits and 310 are now in the Asylum. Their maintenance entails an expenditure of at least £8,000 per annum, but of that sum only £2,500 is provided by annual subscriptions.

The large balance is dependent upon donations and legacies. FUNDS are urgently NEEDED.

The Secretary will be pleased to give any further information.

HENRY SPICER, Treasurer.
JOHN R. EDWARDS, Secretary.
Office, 35, Finsbury-circus, E.C.

GRAY'S YARD RAGGED CHURCH and SCHOOLS,

James Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

President—F. A. BEVAN, ESQ., 54, LOMBARD STREET, E.C.

Funds are Urgently Needed to meet the current Expenses of this Institution. From 500 to 700 Casuals and Tramps are here supplied with Bread and Coffee every Sunday, after Gospel Services. Nearly £3 per week required for Food alone.

Contributions will be thankfully received and acknowledged by GEORGE HANBURY, Esq., Treasurer, 21, Portman-square, W.; PHILIP GOUGH, Esq., Hon. Sub-Treasurer, 33, Cambridge-street, Hyde-park, W.; or by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

THAMES CHURCH MISSION.

INSTITUTED 1844.

The late Mr. Sheriff Woolloton once made the following touching Appeal:—

"Let everyone whose heart is filled with love to Christ do something for this Society."

£50 ARE REQUIRED forthwith to meet the expenses of Cleaning and Heating our MISSION HALL at TILBURY. Will every Reader of THE CHRISTIAN please spare something towards this amount.

Offices—31, New Bridge-street, E.C. Rev. H. BLOOMER, Secretary.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

DONATIONS
BEFORE CHRISTMAS
EARNESTLY SOLICITED.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

JUST FORTY YEARS AGO (viz. in 1847) I was led, I trust, by the HOLY SPIRIT, to commence EVANGELISTIC WORK in my own house, and from that time to the present have been GRACIOUSLY SUSTAINED by the good HAND OF THE LORD. Not ONE GOOD THING has failed in an ever widening path of usefulness, especially on behalf of YOUNG WOMEN AND GIRLS, and 11,359 HAVE BEEN ADMITTED to the Homes since 1857.

12,943 have been admitted to the OPEN ALL NIGHT Refuge since established in 1867.

Large numbers of the above have been WON FOR CHRIST, and happily established in comfortable positions as DOMESTIC SERVANTS, &c. BUT THE GREAT DAY ALONE will show full results.

DONATIONS are asked for maintaining of the Homes for 200 YOUNG WOMEN AND GIRLS.

Special for OPEN ALL NIGHT REFUGE.

Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Offices of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C., will receive donations; or they may be sent to Office, 200, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON, N.W. EDWARD W. THOMAS.

"THE PERFECTION OF DRESS FABRICS."—Extract from the COURT JOURNAL.

PRIESTLEY'S

DRESS FABRICS FOR GENTLEWOMEN.

To be obtained from Leading Drapers.

Trade Mark:
THE VARNISHED BOARD.

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is INVALUABLE during the WINTER for PRESERVING the SKIN from the effects of FROST, COLD WINDS, HARD WATER, &c.

Entirely removes and prevents all
ROUGHNESS, REDNESS, CHAPS, IRRITATION, &c., and soon renders
THE SKIN SOFT, SMOOTH, and WHITE.

It is the most perfect Emollient Milk for the Skin ever produced, and no lady should ever be without it, as for the Toilet and Nursery it is INVALUABLE. The intense irritation caused by Chilblains is wonderfully allayed by its use, and breaking is entirely prevented.

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists.

Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham.

FOR CAKES FOR BREAD
BORWICKS
5 GOLD MEDALS
BAKING POWDER FOR PASTRY FOR PUDDINGS

10/6—WATERBURY—15/-

THE WATERBURY WATCH.

A PERFECT TIMEKEEPER. GUARANTEED FOR 2 YEARS.

KEYLESS. RELIABLE.
DURABLE. ACCURATE.

Runs 28 hours with one winding. Regulates to a Minute a Month. Rarely gets Out of Order. Repairs Never Exceed 2/6.

£100 INSURANCE will be Paid to the Next-of-Kin of any Person Killed in a Railway Accident while Wearing a Waterbury in Great Britain or Ireland, Railway Servants excepted.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

At the Depots of the Company, and at W. H. Smith & Sons' Bookstalls.
Head Office: 17, HOLBORN VIADUCT.

WATERBURY WATCH CO.

2 3rds Size.

NOW READY.

THE NEW SHORT-WIND
WATERBURY

Embodies all the qualities which have made the WATERBURY famous throughout the World as a Timekeeper, and possesses, in addition, the following advantages:—

1.—IT WINDS IN A DOZEN TURNS OF THE CROWN.
2.—THE HANDS SET FROM THE OUTSIDE.
3.—IT HAS A VISIBLE ESCAPEMENT.

For Testimonials, Press Notices, &c., apply
17, HOLBORN VIADUCT, E.C.

MUSIC FOR THE HOME CIRCLE.

◆◆◆

MUSIC IN THE HOUSE

AN UNPARALLELED OFFER to the READERS of "THE CHRISTIAN."

OUR GRAND PRIZE MEDAL 'MINIATURE' MELODEON,

With Two Sets of Broad Reeds, Organ and Celestial Tone, and the Charming Bell Accompaniments, sent carefully packed and Carriage paid to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland on receipt of P.O.O. for 9s. 6d.

MAKES CHEERFUL HAPPY HOMES.

OUR GRAND 'PARAGON' MELODEON.

'By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent,' with Patent Visible Double Valves an Two Stops, Organ and Celestial Tone and Charming Bell Accompaniments, sent carefully packed and Carriage Paid t any Address in Great Brit in an Ireland on receipt of P.O.O. fo 13s. 6d.

OUR GRAND 'FAVOURITE' MELODEON.

'By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent,' with Patent Visible Double Valves Two Stops, Organ and Celestial Tone and Charming Bell Accompaniments, sent carefully packed and Carriage Paid to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland on receipt of P.O.O. for 15s. 6d

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND of our Patent Broad Reed Melodeons HAVE BEEN SOLD, and we have received the unprecedented number of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND TESTIMONIALS and PRESS NOTICES from all parts of the world. Before purchasing a Musical Instrument of any other description send for our NEW PRIVILEGE PRICE LIST for 1887, entitling the holder to have any Instrumen mentioned in the List sent, carefully Packed and Carriage Paid, to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland, at the very low price quoted. This valuable List contain numerous Illustrations of the Leading and most Popular Musical Instruments of the day, and is a Complete Guide to the purchase of Musical Instruments. All lovers o Music will find this Illustrated Catalogue a valuable acquisition. Upwards of One Hundred Thousand sent out yearly. Sent on receipt of One Penny Stamp t CAMPBELL & CO., Musical Instrument Makers, 116, Trongate, Glasgow. Established Fifty Years.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.

No. 931.] LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1887. REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

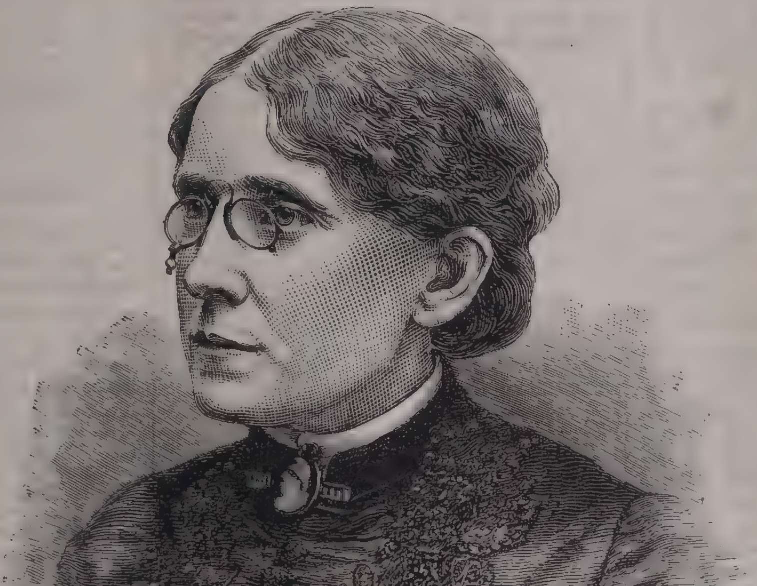
MISS FRANCES E. WILLARD,

President of the W.C.T.U. of the United States.

By Zadel Barnes Gustafson.

IN the pretty village of Churchville, near Rochester, New York, on September 28, 1839, FRANCES WILLARD was born. She claims an heredity almost wholly exempt from the alcohol and tobacco taints. Her ancestors on both sides were devoted Christian people of high-purposeful moral quality; of clear, active, mental life, and of simple, vigorous, physical habits, reaching a general average of great longevity.

The girlhood of Frances was passed on the banks of Rock River, Wisconsin, then a wild and beautiful environment of woods and prairies, utterly isolated from the influences and demands of modern conventional and fashionable life. She was under the guardianship of parents whose nobleness of mind and sensible methods of living were in themselves a rich moral and religious education. In this prairie home her sister Mary was born, the story of whose brief life has been told by Miss Willard in the book entitled "Nineteen Beautiful Years." Her brother Oliver, a young man of admirable character, at one time editor of The Chicago Post, died in 1878. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Thompson Willard, now in her eighty-third year, and in full possession of her exceptional mental and physical powers, is an ardent and close reader and thinker; a Christian of clear vision, flawless faith, and courageous practice. She is still not merely nominally but practically the mistress of Rest Cottage, the home at Evanston, Illinois, whither the family moved for the sake of greater educational advantages, when Frances was eighteen years old.



The Women's College at Evanston, one of a group of institutions on the co-educational plan included under the general name of University, from which Miss Willard graduated, elected her to its Professorship of Natural Science. She was then twenty-three years old. Upon her return from Europe, where she passed two and a half years, combining travels over Great Britain, the Continent, and the far East, she was made Dean of the College and Professor of Æsthetics in the University. She was the first woman ever elected president of a college.

In 1874 the life-work of this successful teacher and writer, then thirty-five years old, was apparently quite determined. She had been elected to life-long tenure of her eminent position; all things promised, and her own tastes strongly urged, her continuance in a quiet life of scholarly pursuits. Yet a great change was at hand. In that year the brave women of Ohio fought their temperance crusade; and though Miss Willard had neither witnessed nor taken part in it, their prayers, patient sufferings, and wonderful victories, stirred her heart to its very core. She acted characteristically—that is, with promptitude and courage. This new work challenged her conscience. She set herself free to do it by leaving the University—resigning a salary of 2400 dollars (about £480) a year, probably a larger sum than any other woman was at that time receiving for educational work. This step left her absolutely without income, for though her mother owned Rest Cottage free of incumbrance, it was upon the daughter's earnings that both depended for support.

In the face of contrary advice from many tried friends, she resolved to dedicate herself to temperance reform. How to do this was a question which baffled her, even after two months of the most earnest effort to discover a right place and method. She had no experience of temperance work; the movement, as the work of women, was new, without organisation, and therefore without defined departments of labour. One day in August of that year (1874), when every penny was gone, and she had still no prospect of either work or wage in the direction of her new resolution, she received a letter from the President of the Normal

Institution of New York City, offering her the position of Lady Principal, with a salary of 2500 dollars (£500) a year. Later in the same day came another letter, urging her to accept the Presidency of the W.C.T.U. of Chicago, a society which had neither funds, headquarters, nor methods, cemented as yet only by prayer and strong purpose, and without history except that its heroic women had carried a petition for Sunday-closing of Saloons to the City Council, and had been well nigh mobbed in the City Hall.

At this time Miss Willard held the view that faith, in the Scriptural sense, meant literally a blind and silent confidence, that God would, without any co-operation on her part, see that she was provided with the necessaries of life, because He would know that she "had need of all these things." Therefore she said "No" to the £500 salary, and went penniless to her new post. When the ladies who had elected her their chief, kindly inquired as to her means of support, her tranquil reply, "I shall be taken care of," naturally enough led them to suppose, either that she had means of her own or was sure of the financial backing of some wealthy friends. The next three months taught her that she had been mistaken; not in believing implicitly, but in forgetting the fact that God works by means rather than by miracles. She was literally "out at the elbow," had often gone hungry for want of money to buy food, and had walked many and many a weary mile, because unable to pay her fare.

At last, quite worn out with too hard work and too meagre living, she fell ill. On her asking for a physician, her uncomplaining mother sapiently said, "If you are going on faith, so be it; there is no need of a doctor!" This set Frances thinking as she tossed about in her pain. If a doctor might be God's means to an end in illness, surely a salary might be his means to the end that good work should be done. She wrote a frank statement of the situation to the executive committee of her society. It was read with tears, and answered with a bountiful cheque, and from that day to this "the wants of herself and her family have been well supplied by the devotion of the White Ribbon Women." But she values as beyond all price the experience of those memorable three months, in which she entered into practical sympathy with the poor and unfortunate, by suffering in her own person the pangs of actual want.

When the National Women's Christian Temperance Union was formed, her name was the first proposed for the presidency. She declined this supreme mark of trust so early in her labours, but she accepted the onerous post of corresponding secretary, which she held up to within a twelvemonth of her election to the presidency in 1879. After long thought and prayer she has been led to advocate woman suffrage as a fundamentally essential portion of the whole counsel of God, as she understands it, relative to the temperance movement. Largely as the result of this, the National W.C.T.U. of America is now almost a unit for the ballot of women as a temperance weapon. Later, with her great army of women, she joined forces with the National Prohibition Party.

Her sympathetic co-operation with the Social Purity White Cross movement resulted in its adoption by the National W.C.T.U. in 1885, and when no other woman could be found to accept the task of speaking in all the leading cities of the United States on this most difficult subject, she undertook it, and drew around her a noble corps of women workers in nearly every State of the Union. This society was never so prosperous as now; its auxiliaries are constantly multiplying, forty departments being already organised under the heads of preventive, educational, evangelistic, social, and legal work.

During the first ten years of her temperance work Miss Willard travelled from fifteen to twenty thousand miles a year, averaging one meeting a day throughout the entire period; writing letters and articles and planning work while en transit between the towns at which she spoke. In the year 1883 she visited every State and territory of the thirty-eight States and nine territories of the United States, besides some of the Canadian provinces; organising and energising the Women's Temperance Unions in nearly every town and place at which she paused. She is the real founder of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union, but preferred that Mrs. Margaret Bright Lucas, of England, should be its first president. She started "The World's Petition," which is now being circulated in every civilised country, and to which she hopes to secure two million names. It will then be presented by a delegation of White Ribbon Women to every civilised government. She will also probably be one of that delegation, which will set out on its travels within the next ten years. She is a contributor to an indefinite number of magazines and papers, and receives about twenty thousand letters a year; so that she may fairly be described as a busy woman.

Miss Willard is an extremely impressive speaker, an interesting and graphic writer. She is thoroughly and ably supported in her great lifework by many good men, and by tens of thousands of brave, earnest, and gifted women. Among these latter Miss Anna A. Gordon fills a special place, being not only Miss Willard's clever, tactful, energetic secretary, but her closest and most indefatigable home and travelling co-worker and companion. Miss Willard's home, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill., is a lovely spot in the shadow of superb elms, and within sight of the flashing currents of Lake Michigan. Here she purposes now to remain for longer intervals, labouring chiefly with the pen.

CHELSEA.—On Friday week a meeting was held to inaugurate an institute for young women at the St. John's Mission Hall, Chelsea. Rev. F. W. A. Wilkinson presided, and Mrs. F. A. Bevan gave an address. There was a very large attendance, and over eighty young women enrolled themselves as members. When funds come in, several rooms will be provided for the young women

"HE LEADETH."

NOT always doth Christ lead his flock
  Beneath a sunny sky;
Not always among pastures green
  Makes He his sheep to lie;
Not always by the waters still
  Doth He then needs supply.

O'er rugged paths they oft must climb,
  With aching weary limb;
Through lonely deserts they must go
  Though light is growing dim;
He trod a dreary path, and they Must follow after Him.

Sometimes He turns their joy to pain,
  Their sunshine into gloom,
And oft the things they cherished most
  He hides within the tomb,
That they within their hearts may have
  For Him more ample room.

He fears lest, loving earth too well,
  Their hearts be turned astray
From Him, who with such tender love
  Has led them all the way,
And who will surely lead them on
  To everlasting day.

If only they will follow Him
  Where He has gone before.
Though narrow may the pathway be,
  And low and dark the door,
He'll guide them to the fold above,
  To dwell for evermore.

No thirst nor hunger there they'll know,
  For Christ Himself doth feed
His own; and wipes all tears away,
  Supplies their ev'ry need,
And where the living fountains flow,
  His blood-bought flock doth lead.

M. M. HUNTER.

SOLDIERS AT THE CAPE.

MANY of your readers have become interested i the work in my hands at Cape Town, an through their prayers God has blessed us. Per mit me to say for their information that I hop to leave for the Cape early next year, accom panied by two ladies who have been led to devo themselves to the Lord's work there. My wis is to extend our work among soldiers to Wy berg, ten miles from Cape Town, where barrac for 1500 men have recently been erected. regiment is there now, and many appeals f help reach me. A sergeant writes:—"There not a place where the men can go, except th canteens. It is really painful to see them wal ing up and down the huts, or lounging on the bed-cots, scores of them, every night, longi for the evening to pass so that they may go bed."

THE CHRISTIAN, of November 11, contains remark from the Bishop of Cape Town, wi reference to the prevalent intemperance a immorality in the colony, as the chief hi drances to Christian work. With the knowled of what this remark implies, and the fact befo me, that our soldiers have from four to sev hours daily, to spend out of barracks if they li and as they like, and that at Wynberg they ha absolutely no place to resort to but the publ houses, I feel bound to help them. Some them are young Christians, won to Chr through the labours of Mr. Hannington others, when the regiment was stationed at Ca
Town. They are now exposed to terrible tem tation.

One of the ladies going with me, an expe enced worker, will take up this new branch work, and reside at Wynberg, as soon as we h
the much-needed rooms.

Our sale of work will take place about Dec.
at Eastbourne. Miss Gurney, Granville-lod
Granville-road, Eastbourne, will kindly rece parcels of work from friends who are intend to contribute.

M. S. OSBORN

12, Camden-hill, Upper Norwood, S.E.

UNION IN PRAYER.

Some months ago the following call to union in prayer was issued, as noted in our columns at the time :—

> Many persons feel that there is much in the state of our country, and in the condition of the Church of Christ, that calls for special prayer, and that more than ever all who love the Lord Jesus should hold the truth in unity of the Spirit, and in devotedness of life.
>
> Therefore many persons, acknowledging their responsibility to the Lord, the Head of the Church, to live in obedience to Him, have agreed to pray more earnestly and strive more constantly in the Holy Spirit:—
>
> (1) That Christian life and teaching may be increasingly subject to the Holy Ghost.
>
> (2) That all who own Jesus Christ as their Lord may be witnesses unto Him by living in unity and Godly love.
>
> (3) That the rulers of our country may be guided by the Lord, and that the nation at large may reverence the living God and his law in its national life (a) at home (b) abroad.

Copies of the circular can be had gratis on application to the printers, Hunt, Barnard & Co., Blandford-street, London, W.

There is much reason to be thankful to the Lord for the remarkable way in which the call has been received. There is evidently a very widespread preparation of heart among the Lord's people. The names published (only a small proportion of the names sent in) indicate that many who differ very widely as to their methods and their understanding as to what way the Lord's commands to his Church are to be understood—are yet "of one heart" in desiring that his will may be done, and are agreed in looking to Him, as the Head of the Church, to rule that Church. It is seen that however they may differ in teaching and method they are agreed on the fundamental truths of the Christian faith, and that they are bound to love all who belong to Him, even when they cannot conscientiously endorse their methods.

Increasingly men recognise that there may be great "diversity of operation," and yet "the same Spirit;" and that when some would say, "Master, forbid him, because he followeth not us," the Master's answer is, as of old, "Forbid him not." More clearly do men see "there is one body," and that the unity of that body is not evidenced by one form of manifestation, but by "one Spirit" seen in "diversities of operation."

It is also beginning to be understood that errors are to be corrected or counteracted by love and prayer rather than by rebuke, and still less by invective. The growth of this spirit of united prayer is evidenced by the fact of many large unions already existing, and also by the fact of increasing earnestness in intercession in ordinary public worship. For these we must be most grateful; but they are associations either limited in their extent, or conterminous only with one form of Christian worship. Therefore, it is very desirable that those who already are "praying and striving" for an increase of holiness and unity in his Church should see that they are not invited to undertake some fresh duty, but to recognise their privilege of owning their common faith, their common aspirations, before the Church and before the world, and thus evidence practically their desire to live in unity and godly love, and "in lowliness of mind each to esteem others better than themselves."

Already, in spite of the interruption caused by Jubilee and autumn holidays, many hundreds of clergy, Nonconformist ministers, and laity, have joined heartily; and such is the readiness, that in some cases single individuals in the course of two or three months have induced two or three hundred to join; and this before the matter has been brought before the great majority of the Church of Christ—"the poor, rich in faith,"—from whose prayers and fellowship we shall gain so much. The command "to love one another" hitherto has been limited in its application; but if we remember that if each member of the Union would only induce one other Christian to join every week, the whole of Christendom would be enrolled in less than four months. We need "to stir up our pure minds by way of remembrance," "till we all come, in the unity of the faith and in the knowledge of the Son of God, to a perfect man."

It is to be remarked that differences among Christians are often due, not so much to opposition of principles, but rather to the imperfection of the Christian who represents them. Now, the response to the call to prayer and unity is rather adhesion to certain recognised principles than to any man, or set of men, and thus it is desirable that those who are helpers in this effort should not make "Join us" the condition of unity, but rather join with the Church of Christ at large in waiting on Him that He would "rule and direct his Church in the right way," and thus those who would otherwise be divided would be "of the same mind in the Lord."

The apostles, pastors, teachers are given for the "jointing in of the (katartismon) saints, till we all come to the perfect man." Meanwhile He is with us; it is not only his desire but his purpose that they "all may be one." Let us, therefore, rejoicingly go forward, confident that He is "able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power which worketh in us." And that to Him is to be "glory in the Church throughout all ages," and that He will "present the Church to Himself as a glorious Church, without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing."

◆

A MISSION-HALL for JEWS IN PARIS.

A new mission-hall for work among the Jew in Paris, the results of Mr. Mamlock's labours, was recently opened at 6, Rue Malher. Now, thank God, the Jew will be cared for, and the Gospel will be proclaimed to him in a hall dedicated for this special work. The inauguration began with a gathering of Hebrew Christians, the most of whom were brought to the knowledge of the true Messiah by Mr. Mamlock.

At the general meeting the hall was crowded with Christian friends and Jews. Professor Yeatman took the chair, and delivered a most impressive address. He depicted the wondrous history of the Jewish people, and vividly delineated their past history, their present state, and future glory. The president's address was translated into French by Pasteur Anderson.

Mr. Mamlock gave a short account of the work among the Jews in Paris, which began in 1856, was carried on by many others missionaries, until 1877, when he was appointed. Through Pasteur Théodore Monod he obtained the use of a room belonging to his church, and there delivered lectures, and also Mr. McAll's Hall in the Boulevard de Sébastopol. The Lord blessed the work, and sent friends who took an interest in it, provided funds, and the result is this new hall.

Pasteur Monod said the Jewish people certainly occupy a large place in God's design, and the Church has too long neglected them. We ought to repair the evil, and preach the Gospel to them, for to them should the message first have been delivered, and then to other nations. Rev. Thomas H. Gill, and Pasteur Mettetal also spoke commending the work.

FROM SOUTHERN SEAS.

One of the foreign missionaries who receive copies of this paper through the kindness of friends and subscribers is Rev. E. V. Cooper, of the L.M.S., Society Islands, South Pacific. Writing from Huahine, viâ Tahiti, on September 12, he warmly expresses his appreciation of the help he receives from the paper, and says :—

I sent a parcel of Christians the other day on board a whaling vessel in our port, and I have reason to know that the papers were greatly appreciated by the captain and his officers, and the English-reading portion of the crew. We hold on our way here in this the senior mission of the London Missionary Society with great hopes for the future. Without doubt the Lord has done great things in and through this mission, and we have need to praise Him, and in his name press on to still greater achievements. True, there is much to depress, and anxiety is often in the mind—but where is the sphere free from depressing aspects, and giving rise to no anxiety?—yet there is more to rejoice the heart.

A very high standard of Christian life cannot well be looked for from a people barely eighty years removed from the grossest heathenism and ignorance, and especially when we remember the influences ever at work around them. Our two greatest obstacles to Christian progress may be set forth as liquor and lax morality, or rather the want of morality. To the foreign and civilised element we are indebted for these hindrances. Taking the two points into consideration, and surveying the field, we have much to rejoice over in the deeply grounded attachment everywhere shown by the native populations of these islands to the Gospel and Gospel work.

◆

LIGHT SPREADING IN MEXICO.

Writing from Ixtapan del Oro, Mexico, October 22, Mr. James Pascoe says :—

News from here is of a very varied kind, much mixed with rumours of Catholic encroachments on all sides. In San Telmo we are at peace, and hard at work, doing all we can by tongue and pen, platform and press, to make all Mexico hear of Christ's saving grace and redeeming love. The good news spreads very rapidly. Our hard-working brother from the Tierra Caliente, Don Emilio del Toro, left us two days ago. He came on a brief visit from Huetamo, and has filled me with wonder and rejoicing to find how much God has owned our publications in that vast region. What has been accomplished here in these mountains is a standing marvel, even to Mexicans, but really far more seems to have been done in the Shah country by means of our Press, and these earnest converts, who all work to send on the glad tidings. They hold services also, and not a single paid preacher among them.

Especially am I thankful to hear that the Indians there are accepting the Gospel by whole towns. Then here the Indians are a distinct race—the most benighted, and the hardest to win, but like pure gold when once they accept the Gospel. Without the Indians, Roman Catholicism will crumble to dust in Mexico, the white Mexicans being indifferent Catholics as a rule, and hard to win on any side, and I fear work little when won.

We watch with intense interest the effects of our incessant attacks on the great stronghold of Mexican idolatry—the worship of the Virgin of Guadalupe. The whole citadel is tottering to its ruin, and its seems very probable the coronation will all collapse, no wonder they hate us and the Gospel we proclaim.

DAYBREAK IN BULGARIA.—Under this title a brief sketch of Mrs. Mumford and her mission work in Philippopolis has been published. The advisory committee wish to raise £1200 to complete school buildings, enclose the premises with walls, and sink cisterns for rain water, the latter being an imperative necessity. Copies of the little book may be had from Mrs. Mahan, Sandringham House, 55, Grand-parade, Eastbourne.

MERCHANT, POLITICIAN, PHILANTHROPIST, CHRISTIAN.

The critic must be a very captious one who can find much to say about Mr. Hodder's handsome volume except by way of praise. We have observed that one reviewer describes the book as a eulogy rather than a biography; with every desire to be impartial we cannot follow him. The author says he has aimed at presenting to the reader "a faithful portrait of the man as he was, and, without varnish or exaggeration, to show the place he occupied and the power he held." In our opinion, he has admirably succeeded in this design. To say that Samuel Morley had his failings is only to say that he was human; these foibles, however, were both few and comparatively venial, and they are not hidden from sight in this record. Would that all our public men could leave such a heritage of achievement and influence behind them when they go hence! For purity of personal character, loftiness and integrity of aim, and catholic sympathy, Mr. Morley, as depicted in this volume, constantly reminds us of his contemporary and fellow-worker, the late Earl of Shaftesbury. Mr. Hodder may count himself highly favoured in being the historian of two such noble lives.

Samuel Morley's career naturally divides itself into the four divisions indicated by the heading of our notice. We shall best show the quality of the book, and the characteristics of the life, by some specimen extracts, dealing with these successive phases.

MR. MORLEY IN WOOD-STREET.

An interesting sketch is given here of the founding and progress of the world-renowned firm of "I. and R. Morley," but we pass on to the time when Samuel, at the age of sixteen, "left school and went straight into his father's business in Wood-street." A vivid picture of his early business habits and proclivities is furnished by Rev. J. C. Harrison, of Camden Town, who was for some time in the employment of the firm, and was on terms of special intimacy with the young partner—an intimacy which was continued till the very close of Mr. Morley's life. Mr. Harrison, speaking of a time when Mr. Morley had been five years in the business and "had become proficient in every department," says:—

> He was a great favourite both with his employés and his customers, for he was singularly frank and open, cordial, and even affectionate. No one suspected him of being insincere, or of keeping back anything which, if revealed, would give a different tone or meaning to what he said. Nevertheless, he was firm in maintaining discipline; very decided in keeping everyone he dealt with up to the mark. He would tolerate no irregularities, and quickly closed the account of those who appeared to him to be untrustworthy. Trickery of all kinds he abhorred, and took the earliest opportunity of shaking off those whom he found to be guilty of it.
>
> He was remarkable for his diligence. As soon as he arrived in the morning he was at work, and never flagged till he had finished what he had to do. He was a very rapid, and, at the same time, a very careful worker, and got through a great deal in the day with singular accuracy. He would have everything done in the very best style. He would not tolerate second-class work. The ledgers, as soon as he ruled in the counting-house, became pictures of neatness and beauty of penmanship.
>
> He was ever learning. If he passed through the streets, or called at any other large house, or conversed with men of business, he kept his eyes and ears open. He never was content so long as anything better could be attained. He wished his house in style and mode of transacting business to be second to none.

These extracts furnish a clue to the great success Mr. Morley achieved in the region of commerce. His elder brother, Mr. John Morley (who survives him), retired from the partnership at a somewhat early stage, leaving Samuel as sole head for a long series of years of the great trading enterprise. Like most public men, he had to run the gauntlet of criticism, and did not escape the attention of busy-tongued and baseless rumour. It was said in the heat of an election contest that his workpeople were oppressed, but this libel was conclusively refuted. As to his relations with those whose toil helped to build up his business and his fortune, it will be sufficient to quote the following paragraph:—

> For the benefit of the workpeople at the Nottingham factories a most beneficent system of annuities was instituted. It is an open secret that Mr. Morley's treament of old and faithful employés in the way of pension and allowance was altogether unprecedented in the annals of commercial houses. The pension scheme was suggested by Mr. Samuel Morley, and for many years he went down and paid the first instalment of gifts and pensions to the old hands. The cost of this was borne by the firm, and the amount paid in any one year was never less than £2000. The system still remains in force.

In all matters affecting trade and commerce he took a lively and practical interest, seeking to purge his vocation of all that was subversive of its true interests. Amongst other things he laboured to reform the drinking usages of the Commercial Room. Always of temperate habits, he early became a total abstainer for the sake of example, and boldly avowed his principles on every befitting occasion. Another brief extract on this phrase of his life will suffice:—

> The influence of Mr. Morley as a man of business was felt, not only throughout the City, but throughout the country. His immovable integrity, his great capacity, and clear-headedness, his absolute sincerity, his gift of seeing into men and things, his enormous success, and above all the high tone of his principles, made him stand out in all commercial circles as the typical man of business......He protested against every form of commercial immorality, and proved the possibility of carrying on business to an unprecedented success, in accordance with the letter as well as the spirit of the Gospel.

MR. MORLEY AS A POLITICIAN.

There is not much temptation for a man of strict integrity and high Christian principle to enter the field of politics as at present conducted. Mr. Morley showed a natural aversion to seek the suffrages of a constituency, but eventually did so as a matter of duty, and solely with the view to help on what he deemed to be necessary movements of legislative reform. While in the House of Commons he was not a good "party" man in the sense of being ready to vote blindly at the call of the "whips;" but he was a staunch Liberal, and worked earnestly on behalf of all measures for securing full religious equality, and for promoting social reform.

The one episode in his political career that caused him genuine pain and regret was the famous telegram favouring the election of Mr. C. Bradlaugh for Northampton, the transmission of which he authorised in a moment of haste. On this point the biographer says:—

> In the protracted struggle and angry discussions which arose out of the question whether Mr. Bradlaugh was competent or entitled to take his seat Mr. Morley separated himself from his leader and from his party, and voted steadily against the admission to the House of Commons of the man whose return had been assisted by his interposition; thus, in effect, confessing his regret for the action he had inadvertently taken. Further still, he offered to his constituents to resign his seat in Parliament rather than support Mr. Bradlaugh's claim......He could not soon forget the painful episode, and the recollection of it remained a bitter memory as long as he lived.

THE OFFER OF A PEERAGE.

In 1885 he retired from the House of Commons, and a peerage was offered to him by Mr. Gladstone, then Prime Minister. If real disinterested service to his country were a title to the honour, no man deserved it better; but, with characteristic modesty, he respectfully declined it.

> Probably nothing could have happened to have intensified the respect and affection in which Mr. Morley was held, more than the decision at which he arrived. "The people" were rejoiced that he would not take a step that should have even the appearance of removing him from their midst. His name was a household word throughout the kingdom as a synonym of every quality that gives nobility of character, and they would have regretted that it should have been lost in some aristocratic title. As for himself, he never hesitated for five minutes as to the answer he would give. Like Richard Cobden and John Bright, he preferred to "dwell among his own people."

We hope to give some further extracts in a succeeding issue.

◆

WAR TROUBLES IN AFRICA.

Dr. Gwynne Jones, Secretary of the Freedmen's Missions' Aid Society, 18, Adam-street, Strand, London, informs us that the late war on the West Coast of Africa did considerable damage to Mission premises to which their funds go. This Mission is situated sixty miles south of Freetown, the capital of Sierra Leone, and extends along the coast about a hundred miles, and about fifty miles inland. There are eighteen central stations occupied, at three of which the mission chapels were destroyed. On Strengay, the chief stations, the war party made a very determined attack with the view of capturing the missionaries, but they were repulsed. A company of Government constables came to help the missionaries, and prevented any damage being done. The leaders of the war were captured, and are now in prison at Freetown waiting their trial for murder as a score or more lives were lost; though through the wonderful Providence of God the lives of all the missionaries and their helpers have been preserved.

The Society is anxious to send missionaries into the interior where the door is now open, and appeals for £1000 for this purpose, and £500 towards repairing the damage caused by the war.

A letter was received on November 24 from Rev. J. Gomer, general superintendent of the Freedmen's Mission, dated October 27, in which he says:—"I have just completed the round of my quarterly meetings to all the stations. Though many of the people carried away by the warriors have not yet returned, I had crowded congregations everywhere. The headman of Mampoo, a Mohammedan, whom I have known for years, and a number of his people, came to Mannoh, a distance of four miles, on Sunday morning, and he and five others were baptized, having given evidence of a real change of heart. They pressed me to go to their town to hold an afternoon service, which I did, and found about eighty persons present anxious to hear the word. Now that we have the headman and several others on the side of Christ, if a school and regular service could be established there, the whole town, I believe, would soon be won for Christ.

"I am much encouraged with our work. The war greatly shook up the people, and now they are more than ever ready to hear us. They look upon the Mission as a place of security, as indeed it has been to many. The three chapels destroyed are much needed. I hope the Lord will incline the hearts of some friends to send us the money to rebuild them."

---

* The Life of Samuel Morley. By Edwin Hodder. 14s. Hodder & Stoughton.

THE DOWN-GRADE.

Sir,—With a view of ascertaining the opinions of some Congregational ministers upon the serious question started by Mr. Spurgeon, the editor of The Congregational Review sent out two interrogatories to which he solicited replies. On what principle the selection of persons to be interrogated was made I do not know; but answers have been received from the following gentlemen, and published in The Congregational Review of October and November. I wish to call attention to the admissions made by the respective writers—admissions which stand unshaken by any qualifications accompanying them—admissions which go to prove to the hilt the solemn charges brought in the "Down-Grade" articles:—

Rev. J. C. Harrison says: "There are some few men still known as Congregational Ministers who do not scruple to express their disbelief in certain great doctrines, at least in the form in which they are held by our churches;" and, "I have been again and again distressed to hear the avowal of opinions which appeared to me inconsistent with the old faith."

Dr. Reynolds writes: "Some preachers conspicuously keep to the human, natural, ethical, formal aspects of the Gospel;" and he adds, "The lifeless sentimentality of a de-spiritualised Christianity, the heartlessly uttered sing-song about self-denial in lieu of the reasons for all self-sacrifice in the sacrificial death of the Son of God, is the most offensive cant of all."

Dr. Allon says that "The ascetic distinctions between "The World" and "the Church" are lessened, the apprehension of the Church itself is different, the culture of the Church life is different. Every measure of liberty is a corresponding possibility of licentiousness; and the incidental effect has possibly been a greater worldliness and unfaithfulness to Christian and to Church life."

Rev. H. Arnold Thomas says, "Certainly there are points in regard to which they (the ministers) feel less confident than their fathers did."

Rev. Dr. Hannay admits that "many interpretations of Scripture which were relied upon by the preachers of the last generation, and some forms of presenting the Gospel which they used with great power, are not now heard in any but in a very small number of Congregational pulpits." He allows also that, "A few have drifted from their moorings," and adds that, "This unsettlement is not distinctive of the Congregational ministry, nor peculiar to this generation."

Rev. Dr. Mackennal testifies to "a widespread hesitancy to speak a markedly spiritual language," and adds, "It would be insincere if I affected to believe that we had a universal or even largely diffused vigorous preaching of evangelical doctrine."

Rev. Dr. Fairbairn laments that "the old simple home-life which allowed and even encouraged the cultivation of piety has been broken into—often, indeed, altogether broken down...The older religious ambitions have decayed; men have not consecrated their sons to God; how many men enter our colleges with the fragrance of ancient and early consecration upon them?"

Rev. Dr. Chapman says: "I do not think our modern ministry asserts this doctrine (the Atonement) with the frequency and emphasis of former times. On this and kindred topics there is too much of an apologetic tone."..."On the question of the future there is much uncertainty."..."There is, I think, a tendency to what in theological circles is called Dornerism in reference to the possibility of redemption being effected after death for those who in their life being outside true Christian influence never had the chance of coming face to face with Christ." Professor Chapman also writes of "many of our pastors" living "largely in an atmosphere of doubt," and of the "saturation of the mind of the Church with a scornful or sceptical literature during the week."

Rev. Samuel Pearson, of Liverpool, thinks there is "too much time spent over late dinners, concerts, and business; and the fellowship of the saints is forsaken."

Rev. W. F. Adeney says: "I cannot but feel that a very great change indeed has come over the theological position of the Congregational ministry. ...It is the abandonment of what was once regarded as central and essential to the strength and vigour of the Christian religion."

Surely, Sir, we have here most saddening men who may be deemed capable of forming opinions concerning the state of Congregational Churches. Thank God, there are many Congregational ministers known to myself and others, who are still true to the faith once delivered to the saints, and who still preach the Gospel of Christ in all its fulness, simplicity, and force; but here, the supporters of "modern thought" being judges, it is shown that there are in the Congregational ministry "great changes," "uncertainty," "unsettlement," "an atmosphere of doubt," and "a wide-spread hesitancy to speak a markedly spiritual language;" whilst in the Churches "possibly greater worldliness and unfaithfulness," a decay of the "older religious ambitions," and "the old simple home life which allowed and encouraged the cultivation of piety," a "saturation of the mind with a scornful and sceptical literature," a "passion for amusements," and a forsaking of the "fellowship of the saints."

What severer charges has Mr. Spurgeon brought than these brethren here bring? Mr. Spurgeon has simply said the same thing in other words. Alas! Sir, it is too true; scepticism and socialism are eating into the very heart of many of our churches, to the dishonour of Christ and to the ruination of Christian life, labour, and liberality.—Yours truly,

A Lover of the Old Truth.

The following "Notes" for the December issue of The Sword and Trowel is Mr. Spurgeon's latest deliverance on this subject:—

Certain antagonists have tried to represent the Down-Grade controversy as a revival of the old feud between Calvinists and Arminians. It is nothing of the kind. Many evangelical Arminians are as earnestly on our side as men can be. We do not conceal our own Calvinism in the least; but this conflict is for truths which are common to all believers. This is no battle over words, but it deals with the eternal verities—those foundation truths which belong not exclusively to this party or to that. It is of no use attempting to drag this red herring across our path; we can argue other points and maintain Christian harmony at the same time; but with those who treat the Bible as waste paper, and regard the death of Christ as no substitution, we have no desire for fellowship. We have come out in earnest protest, and feel great content of conscience in having done so.

The barefaced manner in which certain persons assert that to separate from men who hold vital errors is contrary to the mind of Christ, would be amusing if it was not saddening. They write as if such a Book as the New Testament were not in existence; they evidently decide what the mind of Christ ought to be, without referring to such poor creatures as the Apostles. As for us, we think more of Paul and John than of the whole body of modern thinkers. What saith the Scripture? "If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: for he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds" (2 John 10, 11). "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other Gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other Gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed." (Galatians i. 8, 9). The spirit of Scripture is one, and therefore we may be sure that decision for truth, and separation from the erring, are in full consistency with the charity of 1 Corinthians xiii., to which we are so continually pointed. It is true charity to those who err to refuse to aid and abet them in their errors. "Charity" sounds very prettily in the mouths of those who wish to screen themselves, but, if they had exercised it rom among the people to whom we naturally belong.

---

Whether other ministers are going to leave the Union also, remains to be seen. We do not expect that they will do so; but we trust that, if they remain, they will resolve that reform shall be carried out, and truth vindicated.

UNION TABERNACLE, S.W.

A successful fourteen days' mission, conducted by Mr. John McAuliffe and the South London Evangelistic choir, was closed on Monday week by a tea and thanksgiving meeting. Between three and four hundred of the working men and their wives and families, residing in the neighbourhood, were present. Mr. T. A. Denny presided, and earnest addresses were given by various friends, all of them well fitted to stimulate and strengthen the faith of the young converts just entering upon the Christian life. A number of stirring testimonies came from the body of the hall, as to the power of Christ to save and keep.

We are much exercised on behalf of the temporal distress with which we are brought into dail contact. We have met with some most heartt rending cases of suffering and poverty from wan of employment. Last winter we were able to supply soup and bread to numerous starving families, besides giving dinners to hundreds of unemployed working men. If the need was great then it seems greater now.

D. M. Cameron.

515, Wandsworth-road, S.W.

JEWS IN JERUSALEM.

In a recent letter from Jerusalem, Mr. D. C. Joseph writes:—During the Jewish festivals we were not able to go so much among the people and our meetings were not so good; but now we hope to have better access to them. The Lord has sent us a good Christian helper from Scotland. He has come to the Holy Land to spend the remainder of his years. He is very active in distributing the Word of God among the Jews, and is a great help to us. Our co-worker, Mr. Hamburger, is again restored to health. For several weeks he suffered with fever. There is at present much sickness in town; the heat is very oppresssive.

We need special grace at this time, and special prayer. Jerusalem is in an awful state. Every day the Turk makes new laws, and the poor Jews are driven about from place to place. There is a new law that every medical man must go to Constantinople to be examined and obtain a diploma from the Turkish Government, which will cost altogether about a hundred pounds. There are poor doctors in Jerusalem who have been a blessing to the poor people, but now they will be forbidden to practise, and the pestilence will increase.

The winter will soon be at hand, and we are told that it is very severe in Jerusalem, and the poverty is great. Our income has as yet not been what we have hoped for. We had three co-workers, but I was obliged to send one away, so we have only two men and Mr. Pendridge, our Scotch friend. We are still five witnesses for the Lord, but what are these for so many? We see the Catholics go about in their hundreds, and the Greeks in their thousands, having command of large sums of money. They are building palaces and churches.

RAGGED SCHOOL UNION.—The Mercers' Company have contributed twenty-five guineas to the funds of this Mission.

THE SABBATH.—Mr. T. W. Bradbury, 26, Hanover-gardens, Kennington-park, S.E., has written a pamphlet on "The Sabbath-day and the Lord's-day." He will be glad to forward a copy to any person who may apply to him and send a

CHRISTIAN LIVING.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

II.—CHRIST'S PROPRIETORSHIP.

In the Song of Songs, which is Solomon's, there is a beautiful gradation of expression, which significantly illustrates the successive steps in the experience of the soul. Thrice does the bride speak of the Bridegroom in similar terms, but in each case there is a slight alteration in the phraseology, which speaks volumes of her deepening character, and truer attitude towards Him.

"My Beloved is mine, and I am his" (Song of Solomon ii. 16). "I am my Beloved's, and my Beloved is mine" (vi. 3). "I am my Beloved's, and his desire is toward me" (vii. 10).

At first she lays the chief stress on the thought that all her Beloved was hers, and that she had a right to employ of Him the appropriating pronoun My; it was only a secondary consideration that she was also His.

But as her thought ran on she changed the relative place of the two clauses of the sentence, and laid her primal emphasis not on her appropriation of Him, but on his proprietorship of her. "I am His."

And, lastly, this conception so filled her mind that she had no thought of her side of the matter, and was altogether absorbed in the happy consciousness that she belonged utterly, and for ever, to the object of her supreme and adoring love.

This is also the history of each scholar in the school of grace. We begin by calculating how much there is in Christ for us. We appropriate his fulness, and count ourselves millionaires in his wealth. And there is no wrong or harm in this. But, as the days pass on, we realise that there is a yet profounder truth on which this rests, and to have that is to have in addition all that Christ can be and do for the soul which clings to Him as the limpet to the rock on which the long line of waves breaks, with boom of thunder and clouds of spray, without detaching it. We begin by saying Christ is mine, we go on to say, I am his. We pass from the appropriation of Christ by us to the proprietorship of us by Christ. And this is surely a happier and better standing-ground; because the hand, which appropriates only, may become numbed and tired; but that which is locked in the hand of Christ, in the tight grasp of ownership, can never be withdrawn.

Did you, my Christian reader, ever realise the conception that you are absolutely Christ's? You may not own it; you may not live beneath its power; nay, you may seek to cast the thought aside; as Onesimus, who, when he fled from Ephesus to hide himself, truant that he was, in the slums of Rome, tried to forget the claims which Philemon, his master, had over him, by right of purchase. All this you may do, and yet, in spite of all, you are as much Christ's property as any slave would be the chattel of the man who had paid down his price in the market, or who had received him as part of the family estate by right of inheritance.

And not only are you the property of Christ, but all you are and have is his also. The master owns not only the slave, but all the proceeds of his toils; and all the personal or other property which he may acquire. The hapless serf can point to nothing as his, all is his master's. At the best he is but a steward, bound to account for the way in which every coin is expended; of the estate a bare sufficiency only for his personal maintenance; but expected to forward all the rest to his master, or expend it on such interests as he may direct. This is our rightful position with respect to Christ. Paul was proud to call himself the bond-slave of Jesus Christ. He chose as his motto the immortal words (badge of a slavery which does not degrade, but ennobles all who bend beneath its yoke), "Whose I am, and whom I serve."

I. Christ's Proprietorship rests on many Grounds.

We are his by Creation; his image and superscription have been stamped upon every lineament of our face, though almost obliterated as the effigy of the sovereign from a well-worn coin. "It is He that hath made us, and his we are."

We are his by Purchase; for never was slave more certainly acquired by silver and gold than we have been bought by his precious blood. "Ye are not your own, ye are bought with a price, wherefore glorify God in your body and spirit, which are his."

We are his by Deed of Gift; for the Father has given to Him all who shall come to Him, and it is impossible to believe that that donation could be of anything less than our whole being. When God gave us, He gave all of us.

We are his by Conquest; for the Mansoul of our inner nature has opened to him her gates, unable longer to resist; and, even though He be not as yet recognised in all her environs, there is no doubt that He is her rightful Lord and King.

Ah! it is impossible to escape the fact, that in the thought of God, and according to the rights of the case, we are the absolute property of Jesus Christ, our Lord; and He thinks much of that fact, as is evident in the frequent references of his High-priestly prayer (John xvii.), though we, alas! are too forgetful of his claims.

II. The Act of Consecration consists in the Recognition of Christ's absolute Proprietorship.

Men often ask and wonder what that consecration is to which they are urged. They suppose that it is something altogether over and beyond what is expected from ordinary Christians. But it is a profound mistake. Consecration is simply giving Christ his own, and restoring stolen property to its rightful owner. Consecration is to give to Christ by choice that which is his by indefeasible right, but which He will not snatch from anyone.

The men of Israel were David's by God's appointment, but they could not rest content until they had swum the Jordan at its flood, and had fallen at the feet of their rightful king, crying, "Thine are we, David, and on thy side, thou son of Jesse." Should we be content without saying as much to our Saviour, Jesus?

Of course we all in a general way recognise Christ's ownership. "We are his people, and the sheep of his pasture." But we must do it in a particular and personal sense. We must crown Him King of our hearts and lives by our own glad choice. We must bring the whole of our nature and life under his direct control. We must be willing that his will should be as supreme, and as universally honoured, in us, as it is in his own bright home. We must come to the point of saying something like this: "Lord Jesus, I am thine by right; forgive me for having lived so long as if I were mine own. I now gladly recognise that Thou hast a rightful claim on all I have and am; I want to live as thine from henceforth; and I do solemnly at choice. Thine entirely. Thine in life and death. Thine for ever."

III. There are a few Cautions and Directions necessary in this Act of Consecration.

(1) The act of consecration is the taking up of an attitude; which must never be renounced; or if it is lost for a moment, it must instantly be resumed, with prayer for forgiveness and for cleansing. But this is only possible through the gracious aid of the Eternal Spirit, through whom the Lord Jesus offered Himself without spot to God.

(2) As the light grows we shall become increasingly aware of new departments of our heart and life, that were not consciously included in our first glad act of surrender. But as they come to view, we must hand them also into the governorship of the King. We must send them on, as we might send on the loose sheets of a book to a friend, who had already taken away the bulk.

(3) There is no reason, in the nature of the case, why the children of God should not become consecrated from the very moment of conversion. It should be the normal state of Christians. And with many it is so. Redeemed from eternal death, they instantly give themselves to their Deliverer, as those alive from the dead. But with most this is not the case. And so it is necessary, at some future period of their lives, when the claims of Christ suddenly break on them, that they should come to the definite point of self-surrender.

(4) It matters little when, and how, we do it; whether by speech or in writing; whether alone or in company. But we must not be content with a vague desire; there should be a definite act, at a given moment of time, when we shall gladly sign and seal and confess that we are his (Isa. xliv. 5).

(5) Sometimes we may feel unable to GIVE all; but we are willing that He should TAKE all. But this is equally acceptable to Him. And is it not a better and more Scriptural way of putting the truth? For we might be troubled by grievous questionings, as to whether we had really given all, or whether there were not some fatal flaw in our act. But if the question is simply one of his taking, or of our being willing for Him to take entire possession, so that every imagination is cast down, every thought brought into captivity, and our wills moulded into harmony with his; then rough places are made smooth, and crooked ones straight. This is the charm of Miss Havergal's consecration hymn; its keyword is take.

(6) The act of consecration is cancelled by one reserve. To give ninety-nine parts and to withhold the hundredth undoes the whole transaction; because in that one piece of reserve the whole of the self-life entrenches itself, defying Him. It may seem impossible to renounce that one thing, but in clinging to it, you forego for ever all right to his blessed fulness. Let Him have that one last thing, the last barrier and film to a life of blessedness, and glory will come, filling your soul.

(7) What we give, Christ takes, and at the moment of our giving it. There may be no rush of emotion. We may have no inward evidence of the momentous change in our position. The reckoning may have for many days to be one, not of feeling, but of faith. We can only say, "I am his, because I gave, and He took." But it will not be long ere we are aware that the flames of the heavenly fire have fallen on our sacrifice; feeding on it; appropriating it; cleansin

What we give, God takes, and He takes it in fire. We do not always realise all that is involved. But it is sublime to tread the glowing embers of that fire, with the Son of God at our side, knowing that the restraining bonds are shrivelling at every step, and that not a hair of our head can perish.

This is consecration, and from that glad hour the surrendered one dares to begin appropriating Christ. A blessed habit, which by the grace of the Holy Spirit becomes the practice of the life Reader, be persuaded to take this step. Seek some lonely spot, some still hour, and give yourself to Him who gave Himself for you on the Cross, and waits to give Himself continually to you in response to the claims of your appropriating faith.

◆

MR. QUARRIER'S ORPHAN HOMES.

THE sixteenth annual meeting in connection with the Orphan Homes of Scotland and Destitute Children's Mission was lately held in the Hall, James Morrison-street, Glasgow. Dr. CHARLES CAMERON, M.P., who presided, said, a very long acquaintance with Mr. Quarrier—extending over some twenty years—had confirmed him in a conviction that long ago impressed itself upon him, that there was not to be found in the United Kingdom a more earnest, a more faithful, a more talented, a more business-like, or a more enthusiastic man in the noble work to which he had devoted his life. Mr. Quarrier was not one of those who wrapped up their talent in a napkin. He put it forth to try and earn more. That, he had not the smallest hesitation in saying, appeared to be the true way in which works of charity and philanthropy should be conducted. He was certain that were Mr. Quarrier's example more widely followed they would have a great deal more done and more good accomplished with the money which was subscribed by the public. Dr. Cameron was certain that no one with a heart in his body could go down and look at the Bridge-of-Weir Homes without becoming a living advertisement of the beneficent and noble work in which Mr. Quarrier is engaged.

The annual report stated that during the year 878 children had been permanently helped; in the same time temporary assistance had been given to 122 casuals, giving a total of 1000 who had passed through the Homes. During the year 724 homeless, friendless wanderers were provided with a night's shelter in the model lodging-houses, and in many cases with food. The total amount received during the year was £12,483 14s. 4½d., besides large quantities of clothing and provisions. This amount, large as it was, had all been needed for the increased work of the year, and they would require more in the coming year if they were to rescue more of the perishing little ones. At present the expenses for maintenance amounted to about £30 a day, or £930 a month; but as new members were constantly being added to the family the needs were daily increasing. Bethesda, the Invalids' Home at Bridge-of-Weir, had been fully occupied through the whole of the year, and, as there had been some of the older boys ill with consumption and other troubles, and as many boys had to be refused because of being diseased, they felt the want of a house where such could be cared for. £2000 would build one, and some of the Lord's children might wish to do this piece of service for Him. Money to complete the class and other rooms connected with the church, and for more school accommodation, road making, &c., at Bridge-of-Weir, was also needed. They would also require £2500 for the new Home in Canada; £400 had been received as an earnest towards this. In addition to this, £2000 or more would be needed for the passages and outfits of the children, so that their wants were great. For the 622 children in the [illegible] and the others who were to be taken in shirts, pairs of stockings, dresses, petticoats, and other garments, and they believed their lady friends would esteem it a pleasure to help thus to clothe the naked.

Sir WILLIAM COLLINS felt this report was a rebuke to the littleness of their faith, and a strong proof—sufficient to convince even the most sceptical in their midst—that there was a prayer-hearing and prayer-answering God. He prided himself upon being an economist, and had even gone so far as to stop his contributions to some institutions, because too much of the money was spent in the payment of secretaries, treasurers, clerks, and so on. In this case, however, the subscribers had the feeling that their money was directly spent for the purpose intended. Mr. Quarrier spent about £12,000 a year in the maintenance of children whom he had rescued from the streets of Glasgow and the country. These very children would, but for his labours, be of the identical class that formed our criminal population; and from his own experience in matters relating to prison and other institutions, he quite believed that by means of that £12,000 the ratepayers of Glasgow and the surrounding district were saved perhaps four times that amount. Prevention was always better than cure, and Mr. Quarrier's work, looked at from the lowest point of view, was to prevent these children becoming criminals and paupers, and consequently a very heavy charge on the ratepayers; but beyond giving them comfortable homes, feeding and clothing and training them for honest work, he steadfastly endeavoured to lead them in the path by which they would grow up religious men and women—and then sent them away to another country where, amid more promising surroundings, they might rise to positions of usefulness in the future.

Mr. J. CAMPBELL WHITE remarked that people were saying just now the great majority of investments were yielding less and less results, but that was not true of this particular investment. To see even one little life saved from ruin would more than repay anything they might give, but when they realised that the one was multiplied by hundreds, they would thank God and try to interest others in this great cause.

Mr. QUARRIER, speaking of the work of the Homes, viewed it successively in three aspects—for God, for humanity, and for the city. Taking the last-mentioned aspect first, he showed they were relieving the ratepayers of the city of a burden equal to about £20,000 a year. The point was real and tangible, for every child that entered the Homes from the city had either been going to get parochial relief or had been already on the poor's roll, and out of that class came the criminals, who went further to swell the rates. That was a practical question, and, as one who knew the citizens of Glasgow, he was there to say that she did not respond to the work done for her. But for the generous sympathy of a few, and but for the help of the many beyond the city, he would have required to have stopped helping the needy of the city, and have gone back on the lesser work. As to the humanity of the work, it dealt with the whole of Scotland. Looking at the religious aspect of the work, he had to say that all through the twenty-three years he had passed in this public duty he had witnessed every year a larger increase of fruitfulness of spiritual life among those to whom he had been the means of stretching forth a helping hand. He had been anxious that the city of Glasgow should signalise this year by contributing a Jubilee Home to the Bridge-of-Weir. The Citizens of Glasgow certainly raised money for a jubilee offering, but they sent it—£10,000—to the jubilee building in London; and they sent £300 in all to the Orphan Homes of Scotland. In the coming year he would like about £10,000 for building. His ultimate aim was to deal with from 1600 to 1800 children annually, lodging 1000, and hiving off 600 or 700 every year. To do this, thirteen more houses were required.

Rev. Dr. WALLACE said this work might be termed the romance of philanthropy. If any one doubted the aphorism that "truth is stranger than fiction," they had only to read some of the details given in Mr. Quarrier's in-

SEVEN DIALS AND SOHO

DEAR SIR,—It is now thirty-nine years ago since the work of the Domestic Mission was begun in the Seven Dials and Soho districts. During the whole of that time the friends and workers of the Mission have with zeal and devotion sought to carry the Gospel to the poorest and the most neglected. Our Mission is the parent of many useful missions and institutions, not only in and about St. Giles's but in other parts of the country also.

Although we have pursued our work without much public observation, it has been our joy to know that hundreds have been converted to God and have become useful members of society.

At the present time in connection with our work carried on at Bloomsbury Hall, Meard-street, Soho, W., we have about one thousand meetings a year, in addition to our sick and house-to-house visitation. At the present time we are using every effort to meet the needs of the poor. On Thursday week nearly four hundred poor children sat at our dinner table; as this company presents itself at our Mission door week by week, the dark secrets of poverty and woe come home to us with overwhelming force. About three hundred poor women attend our mothers' meetings, and we have organisations to meet the physical, moral, and spiritual needs of the people, but the demands on our help are more than our supplies. At our last committee meeting our treasurer reported that our general account is £250 behind. As the leader of the work, I am naturally anxious that this debt should be at once removed, and that we may have funds in hand to meet the crying needs of the approaching winter season.

Yours very truly, WM. HARRISON.
20, Merrick-square, Newington, S.E.

◆

MISS SHARMAN'S ORPHAN HOME.

MISS SHARMAN'S report is some months behindhand this year, in consequence of her late severe illness, from which happily she has now sufficiently recovered to give the account of the year's work. This year, she says, in which the institutions under her care attain their majority, is the best through which the Home has passed. It is best as regards the seaside scheme, best in the prosperity of the two country branches at Gravesend and Tunbridge Wells, best as to the health of the children, and best, so far as it is possible to judge, in the spiritual part of the work. "Three detachments of happy little people" were sent to Dover, much to the benefit of their health. At Christmas there were two hundred and eighty orphans in the various Homes. All receive a plain English education, and are, as a rule, trained for domestic service, no servants being employed either in the London, Gravesend, or Tunbridge Wells Homes; the girls who do the work are thus kept longer than would otherwise be possible.

Miss Sharman adheres to the grand principle with which she commenced the work—viz., complete and absolute trust in God for everything. At the same time that there is no begging or advertising for funds, there is a total abstinence from buying anything—"from a freehold estate to a loaf of bread—unless the money is in hand to pay for it." How abundantly this confidence in God's promises to his waiting children has been justified is proved by the wonderful progress the work has made by every year's—nay, every day's—experience. The London Home is at Austral-street, West-square, Southwark, where communications should be sent to Miss Charlotte Sharman.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—A meeting on behalf of the London City Mission was recently held in the Town Hall. Very interesting and stirring addresses were given on the work of this valuable Society by Rev. B. F. Barton, clerical secretary, and

For the Young.

PUTTING THREE THINGS TOGETHER.

Come along, little one, to me, here by the cosy fire this cold winter afternoon! Tired of play? Well—listen, I have got something to tell you!

In a certain old house I have heard of, a wee bit of wood is lying in a corner of a shelf—a bit of wood, long and thin, with a red head at one end of it. We will call him "No. 1." Close at hand a little shabby box is lying on the table—a yellow-blue box, with heavy black printing across it. We will call him—you and I—"No. 2." And in the dark room, where these two are lying, an unlighted black gaselier is hanging from the ceiling. "No. 3" shall be his name.

Now so long as these three things stay here separate—apart from one another, you know—the room is dark and gloomy, you cannot see your way. But let somebody come in, take up the little read-headed match, strike it on the yellow-blue box, and turning on the gas hold up the lighted match to it, and what happens? Suddenly all the darkness has gone! A flask—a gleam—a blaze of light—and the way is plain enough now!

What makes the light come. Just putting those three things together.

Remember that well!

. . . . . .

Deep down in the pocket of somebody that I know, there are some big, brown pennies, lying safe and snug. Somebody means to spend them, out in the street one day, on all sorts of good things! Only an extra penny or two, spent on bon-bons or cakes, perhaps in smoke or ribbons and finery; we will call them, if you please, "No. 1."

"No. 2" is a little blue box that stands on the corner of the shelf. And "No. 3" is a little boy or girl—perhaps, indeed, a grown-up boy or girl, for the matter of that!

Now so long as three things stay separate—apart from one another, you know—each goes its own way making no particular change in the big world, one way or another. That world is all the time very dark—so dark that I could not tell you how very, very dark it is!

But let a friend of mine—we will call him Unselfish Resolution, if you like (those are two great long words, but mother will tell you what they mean), come into the heart of that little boy or girl—or into the hearts of grown-up children, for the matter of that—and what happens? Oh, little one, what a wonderful change there is! As soon as Unselfish Resolution gets into somebody's heart, those pennies that would have been trifled away on all sorts of things for oneself, go instead into the little blue box—the missionary box that stands there on the shelf. They keep dropping in, dropping in, till by and by the box is full; is posted up to the Mission Institute, and helps to send men out to make the dark world light.

Do you see the meaning, children—little and big? If not, listen a little longer, and perhaps you will understand.

. . . . . .

"But is the big world so very dark—quite dark?"

Yes, little childie, it is very dark indeed! Far away from here, where the poor black people live, it is a bad world and a very sorry world. The people are not good and kind like mother.

"Why?" Because they do not know our dear Jesus as we do; they never pray to God, like you and I, wee pet. Look at the poor heathen woman in the picture there.

See! It is night time, there are the moon and stars shining in the cold sky behind her. She is all alone. The fire she has made is a sacred thing to her. She thinks it is very holy and is praying there by it. Is it really a holy, fire? Not a bit! No better than this cosy fire in your nursery, that burns so bright this winter afternoon. Yet there are people living in—because they never heard about our Jesus. They do not know that He loves them, so they are cruel and bad. Would you like to tell them about Jesus and how He loves us all? They would come to love Him then, and learn to be happy and good.

Somebody has plenty of pennies; how small and trifling they seem! Yet how heavy they are to carry in your pocket! They soon get too heavy, and so you spend them quickly; on smoke and finery, and bon-bons and what not! but chiefly on Self.

Now on our shelves here at Harley House are standing certain little blue boxes. Empty and inviting they stand there, looking ever so pretty, and waiting for pennies to come. Suppose some of those pennies of yours, that do not do you much good, were dropped into the little blue box instead of—(in bon-bon shape!) into your mouth. What would the difference be?

Why, do you know those very pennies could help to lighten this great world of ours? Sent up here to Harley House, they would go quite a long way in helping to send out missionaries to the far, dark, heathen lands! What is wanting to make the change? Only Unselfish Resolution in your heart!

Shall he come in— Unselfish Resolution?

I should say—Yes!—Regions Beyond.

THE LAMB LOST AND FOUND.

A SONG FOR THE LAMBS OF THE FLOCK.

A lamb had left the fold,
  And wandered far away,
In search of greener grass,
  And flowers more sweet and gay.

But no true food it found;
  The flowers that seemed so fair
Were bitter to the taste;
  Poison was present there.

The lamb still further strayed,
  But searched and searched in vain;
Stumbling along the ground,
  Weary and weak with pain.

It sank in miry bogs,
  With thorns its fleece was torn;
In fear of wolves, it soon
  Began to bleat and mourn.

The Shepherd heard its voice
  And sought the lamb astray;
He gladly gave his life
  To drive the wolf away.

Within his loving arms
  The wandering lamb He brought,
Rejoicing He had found
  The treasure He had sought.

Now, welcomed by the flock,
  Happy and safe at home,
The grateful lamb resolves
  It ne'er again will roam.

Dear Shepherd! give me grace
  Never to leave thy side,
Nor seek strange food, content
  With all Thou dost provide.

Still may I hear thy voice,
  And follow at thy call;
Each whispered word obey,
  And love Thee above all.

Newman Hall.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. T. Sayer, Holland-street Schools, Blackfriars, Nov. 27 to December 2; Emmanuel Church Schools, West-end, Hampstead, Dec. 5—9. Mr. Rickards, Longton, Staffs., Dec. 11—15. Mr. Josiah Spiers, Congregational Church, Harrow-road, Nov. 28 to Dec. 2; Trinity Wesleyan Schools, Fernhead-road, St. Peter's-park, Dec. 4—9, at 7. Messrs. H. Hutchinson and Martin J. Hall, St. Peter's, Elgin-rd., St. Peter's-park, Nov. 28 to Dec. 2, at 7; Emmanuel Schools, Harrow-road, Dec. 4—9, at 7. Mr. Martin J. Hall, Kensal Hall, Kensal-road, Dec. 4—9, at 7. Mr. Herbert W. Pewtress, St. Andrew's Mission Hall, Hazelwood-crescent, Kensal-road, Dec. 4—9, at 7.

Mr. J. DENMAN, of the Evangelisation Society, has concluded a three weeks' united mission at Builth Wells (Breconshire). Many have professed SHAFTESBURY HOUSE, MARGATE.

Many of our readers may not know that this excellent seaside Home, connected with the London Y.M.C. Associations, is available during the winter season for ladies, and also for married people. Margate is justly famed for its healthiness, and for the bracing properties of its air. To those who desire a health-giving retreat on the south coast during the winter, the town may be highly commended. It is declared, indeed, to be the healthiest place in the kingdom, taken all the year round. The many advantages to be found at Shaftesbury House, not the least being the warm Christian, homely atmosphere fostered by Mr. and Mrs. Mell, the superintendents, make it a very desirable resting-place for earnest Christians.

During the past summer the Home has done good service in housing and ministering to the happiness of young men from town during their holiday. We doubt not the new winter arrangements will be increasingly successful, and that the place will be more and more the centre of life and blessing.

◆

EYES TO THE BLIND.

Last week two free teas to the indigent blind of London were held in the Jubilee Hall at the back of the "North London Home for the Blind," Hanley-road, Hornsey-rise, N., making a total of 200 blind, with an equal number of guides, who had been invited by ticket. These teas are defrayed by the generous contributions of the friends of the blind. The object is twofold: one being to brighten the life of those whose circumstances are trying and dark, as well as their vision; secondly, the bringing before them the truths of the Gospel. That the effort was appreciated was proved by the fact that on the present occasion several came from Camberwell, Holborn, Westminster, and various parts of the East of London. One of them in the meeting expressed his gratitude to the kind friends who had provided such an enjoyable evening for them, and he was sure he only spoke the sentiments of all when he thanked them most heartily.

On both evenings there was a musical entertainment of one hour, Mr. Bright and Miss Thornton (an inmate of the Home) singing solos, the meeting joining heartily in the choruses. Miss Thornton and Miss Robinson also gave recitals. Mr. Bright announced that on Sunday afternoons a tea would be provided for those who attended the Bible-class, so that they could remain for the seven o'clock Gospel service. He welcomed them all to the Jubilee Hall, and only hoped they would make as free use of it as the welcome was hearty. Rev. D. Mace, Mr. Barry Wake, and others gave Gospel addresses. Several of the blind in the meeting gave interesting and touching testimony of their state and experience, and Mr. Bright in a few words endeavoured to apply the words which had been addressed to them.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sunday, December 4, Isaiah v. 1—7; Monday, December 5, Isaiah v. 11—25; Tuesday, December 6, Isaiah vi. 1—13; Wednesday, December 7, Isaiah viii. 13—22; Thursday, December 8, Isaiah ix. 1—7; Friday, December 9, Isaiah xi. 1—12; Saturday, December 10, Isaiah xii. 1—6.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES FOR CHILDREN and young people have been held in Cambridge Heath Congregational Church, Hackney. They were well attended and much enjoyed, and it is believed that many young souls were led to an intelligent acceptance of the Lord Jesus as their Saviour and Friend. Mr. Josiah Spiers, who conducted the service, has a very warm and interesting way of speaking about Jesus and his love. Nothing but good can result from the wise and winning words, to which he gave utterance. He also circulated 15,000 tracts and religious papers in the neighbourhood during his brief visit, from which it is hoped that much blessing may result. Churches of all denominations will do well to secure the aid of this faithful and enthusiastic servant of the Lord, on

SAILORS IN SHANGHAI.

One of "the hundred" missionaries chosen this year, in connection with the China Inland Mission, writes on September 14:—

Please spare me a corner to ask some of the friends in the homeland to join us just now in prayer for Miss Fowles' deeply interesting work amongst our sailors at Shanghai. It may be remembered that Miss Fowles came out to China about two years ago as Miss Minchin's fellow-helper. After a very few months of happy service Miss Minchin was "taken home," and Miss Fowles chose to remain at Shanghai, and carry on the work, for which she has clearly proved her fitness. God has blessed her greatly to the salvation of some hundreds of souls.

Up to a recent date, however, the work has been crippled, by having to be carried on in premises that were in many respects unsuitable. Now that difficulty is removed, for on September 9 a new room was opened, where Miss Fowles will be more free to pull in the net. She has always worked on purely Gospel lines, which no doubt is the great secret of her success in soul-winning. And now she will be perfectly free and unhampered to deliver her joyful message, if God incline the hearts of some of his children to supply the needs of the work. There must be many friends of our sailors who would gladly help this good sister to give a loving welcome to our warm-hearted bluejackets, and tell them of the love of Jesus, which alone can satisfy their hearts.

MISSION TO ITALIAN SOLDIERS.

Sig. Capellini's latest letters give encouraging accounts of the vigour of this work. He has established classes for mathematics, history, geography, and language, presided over by two fully certificated professors. At present the soldier-students number fifty-seven, and others are daily coming forward. An English lady and Madame Capellini continue to teach English. Many of the men who attend the classes are induced to attend the church, where they come into direct contact with Cav. Capellini, and his preaching and rare personal influence are blessed to many. The members of the military church form now a large body scattered throughout Italy, in frequent communication with their teacher and friend, and carrying wherever they go the Gospel lessons which he has been the instrument of first declaring to them. The time is ripe for the scattering of such precious seed.

Besides the classes, the soldiers are invited to spend their holiday evenings with the Cavaliere and Madame Capellini, and then they read books and newspapers. Copies of English illustrated papers will be especially welcomed, and should be addressed to Cav. Capellini, 14, Pozzo delle Cornacchie, Roma, Italy. After being read there, they are forwarded to the Italian regiments in Africa, where are many members of the military church, and where they are greatly valued. The more sent to Rome, the more there are for division amongst the different corps in Africa. These men have been recommended to the care of the Superintendent of the Swedish Mission, who speaks Italian, and shows them much care and attention. They are besides provided with Bibles, New Testaments and tracts, and Cav. Capellini writes to them every week.

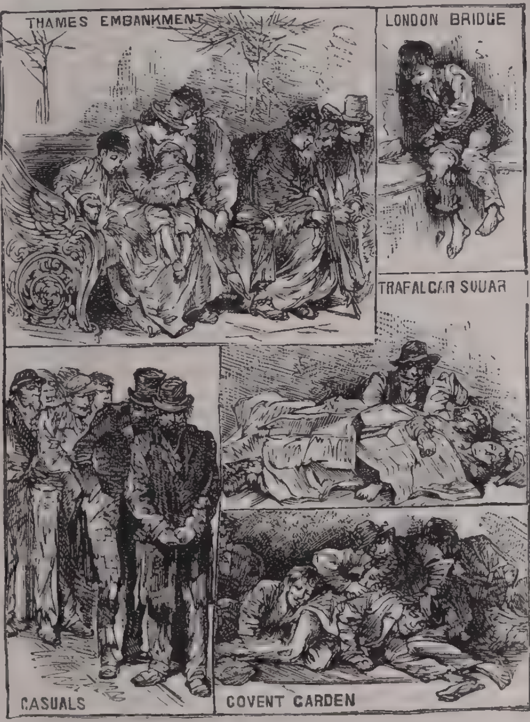
The hon. sec. for this country is Miss Stoddard, 36, Dennington-park, West Hampstead, N.W. She will supply those desirous of knowing the work more fully with the necessary information.

CROSSLEY HALL, OPENSHAW, MANCHESTER.—Mr. Macknight, minister in charge of this Mission, reports that he has begun his fourth year of service with all the agencies in successful working order; 392 persons have signed the Gospel temperance pledge, and fifty-four men the White Cross pledge at the services during the year. The foreign missionary collection amounted to £13, which Mr. F. W. Crossley forwarded to the China Inland Mission.

FEEDING THE HUNGRY.

The trade stagnation, which for some time past has been leaving its mark upon most of the industries in the kingdom, has nowhere been more severely felt than in the Metropolis, where the evil seems to concentrate itself. In London, there are to-day thousands upon thousands of artisans and unskilled workmen out of employ, whose chance of immediate employment will certainly not improve as the winter moves slowly on, with its attendant horrors to the workless and the destitute.

It is a significant fact that at a comparatively early hour on Sunday mornings, crowds besiege the mission-halls where the London Samaritan Society distributes free breakfasts, consisting of a pint of cocoa, and a pound of bread. After the meal the Gospel of Jesus Christ is preached to them as the power that will lift them up out of their present troubles, fit them for the warfare of this life, and give them a living hope for the future. Free tickets for these meals are distributed by the missionaries and workers amongst the poor.



The manner in which most of the poor people devour their portions show that they are in a condition little short of starvation. Amongst the applicants are very old men and women, as well as young men who have come up from the country in search of employment, but who have failed to find it. Too often they are compelled to sleep in some retired corner of the streets or under arches, if they have not found shelter in a casual ward.

Mr. Jones, of the London Samaritan Society, 98, High-street, Homerton, hopes to arrange for these free breakfasts, not only on Sunday mornings, but on other days, and in fifteen or twenty different parts of the Metropolis, if the funds are provided by the charitable public. Much may thus be done to reduce the sum total of human misery. It seems a mockery to offer these people a Gospel address till the pangs of hunger have been satisfied.

REV. E. VANORDEN has received cheering news from Rio Grande do Sul. During his absence, Senhor Luiz Memoli, who so faithfully worked amongst the children in Bagé, has been removed to Rio Grande, where he will labour during Mr. Vanorden's absence. Mrs. Vanorden writes that the Sunday-school and public meetings are very well attended, and that the good work amongst the soldiers is going on steadily.

AN EX-LAWYER'S WIFE.

"Could you just come over and see a sad case I've been looking into, sir?" said our missionary to me, one foggy afternon last week.

"Certainly, I'll be with you directly;" and, as soon as I could dismiss other matters, we started. The contrast of a bright and cheerful home to the dark and dirty streets is great; but our visit that day taught us that there are homes—ay, and close by our own homes, too—even more cheerless than the streets of London in a November fog!

We reach the house to which we are bound. A most respectable, superior sort of girl opens the door, and takes us up to her sick mother.

I had been into scores of the poorest houses in the East-end, but never before entered one in which there was absolutely no furniture. After passing up the dark stairs we entered the invalid's sick-room, where we found lying on a heap of straw in one corner a silvery-haired, sharp-featured, intelligent-looking woman, wearing an old thin black dress and red cross-over, and covered with a cotton petticoat and a woman's mackintosh. She is very ill; her voice feeble and broken, so that her words come with difficulty as she tells of how everything the little home contained had been seized by the broker or sold by the husband who had deserted her and her five children.

We discovered, on investigating the case, that her eldest daughter was apprenticed but not as yet earning anything, and that they were dependent on the scanty wages of the two eldest boys, who, in their desperate circumstances, had taken to billiard marking to save themselves from sheer starvation.

"Where do you sleep at night?" we asked the nice respectable-looking daughter. "Oh, sister and I, we take a little straw from under mother, and we sleep in the next room." "But you can't undress?" "No, we don't undress." "And your brothers?" "They lie on the floor down stairs," she said quietly.

I am thankful to say we were enabled not only to relieve them at once, but to get the poor woman into hospital next morning. These cases, which are by no means solitary, make us think of the abundance of many homes—ay, of the superabundance! Of the blankets and warm clothing that could be well spared, of the boots and shoes lying by in lumber rooms, of the many unused but useful things in West-end houses that ought to find their way to such empty East-end homes; of the well-spread tables and well-filled purses of many—of Him who, though He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor, and said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive!" Harry Grattan Guinness.

Harley House, Bow, E.

HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN (9 and 32, Lupus-street, S.W.)—A sale of work for the Free Bed Fund of this hospital will take place on December 2, at 34, St. George's-square, from 3 to 9 p.m.

THE LATE SIR WILLIAM M'ARTHUR.—The following incident was narrated by Rev. R. Foster, on Sunday week, in his evening sermon at Lancaster-road Chapel, Bayswater:—"We dined on Tuesday (the day before Sir William's death) at Holland-park, before the lecture of Rev. Peter Mackenzie, delivered in this chapel. Sir William had just returned from the dinner given by the Hon. Thomas Holt to 500 poor people at Bloomsbury, at which he had presided. He brought a copy of Mr. Holt's printed letter with him, and read some extracts. One was an exhortation 'to be ready,' for 'to-day' was the only time of which we could be certain. Sir William then remarked how near we might be to the unseen world, and what a grand thing it was to be ready. He had been too busy to get lunch, and had had to get out of his carriage, feeling faint, and buy a few buns. When asked why he did not get his dinner with them, he said, 'Oh! I was too much engaged in looking after others.' Sir William's life was most unselfish, and this incident is a true type of the whole."

MANCHESTER CONVENTION.

The Boys' Refuge, Strangeways, was last week the scene of very practical and profitable gatherings, the subjects considered being the Coming of the Lord, Sanctification, and the Evangelisation of the World. Amongst others, the following occupied the platform: Revs. Canon Faussett, D.D., Prebendary Macdonald, M.A., John Wilkinson, H. Lindsay Young, M.A., F. B. Meyer, B.A., W. Fuller Gooch; Messrs. H. F. Bowker, J. E. Mathieson, G. H. Pember, M.A., and Leonard K. Shaw.

A happy keynote was struck on Monday evening at a preliminary prayer-meeting, and on the Conference proper commenced, with a prayer meeting and Bible-reading, under the presidency of Mr. J. E. Mathieson, and Canon Faussett, from Malachi iii. 13, showed that the times are very similar to those described by that prophet. The signs of the times, dark as well as bright, seemed to point to the early coming of the Lord.

TUESDAY

The subject for consideration at the eleven o'clock session was "The Advent in relation to the Jew."

Mr. Mathieson (chairman) said that there were in the Bible special promises of blessing to those who thought most of the Coming of the Lord. He thought that the subject of the Advent and the glorious time God intended to give his Son on the "new earth" should be used as an argument with serious Socialists, for their wildest dreams were far outdone by the glories promised by the prophets of God.

After prayer by Rev. Preb. Macdonald,

Mr. Shaw read a paper from Rev. Chas. Graham (who was unavoidably absent) upon the Advent, and its Object, treating the subject from the Futurist standpoint.

Rev. John Wilkinson then considered "The Lord's Coming in its relation to the Jew." When a difficulty in Messianic prophecies presents itself to Christian teachers, they usually spiritualise it, and say, "That is for spiritual Israel." But the Jew rightly says, I cannot accept a Messiah who does not fulfil all the conditions laid down in the Scriptures. Do we honour Christ by applying any other principle? The Jews were to "walk in the light of the Lord." Is the house of Jacob so walking? "Our troubles seem to begin with the opening of Christianity on the earth. Christian nations are the greatest fighters in the world. Little sign here of 'swords being beaten into ploughshares.'" What will you do with a Jew who talks like that, and demands a Messiah who fulfils the prophecies concerning Him? You may destroy a Jew's expectation of a Messiah to reign in Jerusalem, but at what cost? You shake and may even destroy his faith in the inspiration of the Old Testament. What were the Jews led by prophecy to expect? A Messiah who by his atoning death would give meaning to all the types and symbols of the Jewish worship? A Messiah from Bethlehem? A full-grown Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven? (Dan. vii. 13). How does the Jew understand "Messiah shall be cut off," "Messiah shall come a full-grown man"? The Jews leapt over the cross to the crown, and, indeed, in the prophecies about the Messiah there is more about reigning than suffering.

Mr. Wilkinson quoted various passages referring to the reign of Messiah, and deprecated the expedients which Christian expositors adopt to reconcile them with the rejection of the doctrine of the Advent. Eighteen hundred years ago at Jerusalem the Jewish Christians wondered where they were in relation to the Gentiles, for they knew through the Jew the Gentile was to be blessed. Paul tells us, "Blindness, in part, hath happened to Israel." But that blindness is not to last until all the Gentile world be gathered in, but until the Gentile portion of the Church, the Bride of Christ, be saved.

Rev. H. Lindsay Young and Mr. Pember followed on the same theme. After an instructive exposition of portions of the Book of Revelation, Mr. Pember gave an interesting address on the Epistles to the Seven Churches of Asia.

EVENING MEETING.

Mr. Isaac Hoyle, M.P., who was to have presided, was unavoidably absent from town.

Canon Faussett spoke at length on the appointed subject, "The Advent in relation to the World."

Rev. W. Fuller Gooch read a beautiful paper on the same topic: Christ was coming again (1) to change the present dispensation, (2) then to the world of iniquity, (3) to usher in a new era.

Rev. David Maxwell then read portions of a paper sent by Mr. Robert Anderson, LL.D., who was unable to be present in person. Mr. Anderson's views on the subject are so widely known by his published work, "The Coming Prince," that we need not reproduce them here.

WEDNESDAY.

Rev. J. Wilkinson presided at the morning prayer-meeting, and gave a brief address on Communion in Prayer. Requests for special prayer were presented, several of which were very touching and pathetic. According to promise the previous evening, Mr. Pember gave a brief exposition of the Epistle to the Church of the Laodiceans. He pointed out that this epistle was addressed—not to the Church in Laodicea—as in the case of the previous epistles, that is, to the Church of Christ in Sardis, or in Philadelphia, but to the Church of the Laodiceans, indicating it was no longer the Church of Christ, but a church in which the will of the people was put in the place of the will of God. This thought was impressively developed, and the entire and absolute supremacy of Christ was set forth as the only safety of a church.

Mr. H. F. Bowker presided at the meeting at eleven o'clock, and after a few introductory remarks and prayer by Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, Rev. F. B. Meyer gave an effective and profitable address on "The Promises of God in relation to our Daily Life." The children of God are heirs to 30,000 promises in all things pertaining to life and godliness; important amongst these are those of Guidance. So much depends on knowing where God would have us be, and to be there. If this is so, He will provide food and raiment, as in the cases of Israel in the wilderness, and Elijah at Cherith. There are four foundation promises of guidance: Ps. xxxii. 8; Prov. iii. 6, with iv. 11; Isaiah liv. 13; John x. 4. Some think that because they are not naturally quick God does not make known his will to them. But how do loving parents treat the dull ones of the family? Do they not with much endearment patiently teach them what they want them to do? So God will come to the level of the dullest of his children willing to learn his will. There are seven texts by which we may discover why we do not understand God's will: (1) Ps. xxxii. 8. He promises: "I will guide thee with mine eye." The movement of the eye is subtle, and often only seen and understood by those familiar with the face. Some may look for startling indications of God's will, and, failing this, think that God is withholding guidance; we must look out for the indications of his will, even in little things. (2) Luke xi. 34. Our eye must be single, not looking at two things at the same time. It must be our one purpose to do the will of God. (3) John v. 30 compared with John vii. 16. Perhaps we have not known his will, because we were not ready to do it. Moses, when he was on the mount, was so absorbed with God, and the instructions he received, that he was able to go and make the Tabernacle on the exact pattern which he had seen. (4) Psalm xxv. 8, 9. Meekness is essential. He "will teach," when we lie in his hands as the plastic clay in those of the potter. (5) Psalm xxxvii. 23. Our "steps" shall be ordered. Not the next hour, but this hour, has He promised to be our guide. Expect more, and darkness comes. (6) Acts xii. 12. We expect supernatural guidance where sanctified common sense is sufficient. When Peter was brought past the "first and second ward," and had come to himself, and knew where he was, "the angel departed from him," and left him to his own resources. (7) Exodus xiv. 13. The Israelites were, apparently, in a hopeless difficulty, and the answer to their cry was "Stand still and see the salvation of God." Silence is often God's answer, but He opens the way.

The great question for us all is: What is our personal attitude towards Christ? Are we content to do any work, however mean; to fill any post, however obscure; to endure any sorrow, however dark; to suffer on any Calvary, however keen the anguish? If we are willing, as soldiers, to lie in the ditch while our Captain rides on to victory, then all else will be easy. God deals with us as with sons, and if we yield our wills to Him, He will not take advantage of our submission to impose hardship upon us.

After singing, and prayer by Rev. Preb. Macdonald, Mr. Bowker followed, and in a solemn, quiet manner pressed home lessons on the power of sin and how it may be conquered.

In the afternoon Mr. Bowker presided. The subject was "the Provision made for the Believer's Walk, and the Effect of Receiving It."

Rev. H. Lindsay Young was the first speaker, upon Isa. xxxiii. 16, 17.

(1) The Believer's Dwelling-place.—"He shall dwell on high" (margin, "Heights, or high places"), and to this "life on the heights" he has been called, to association with the Son of God in Ascension life. How is this enjoyed? We come to the cross for forgiveness, we then go to the open grave and claim our newness of life by oneness with the risen Saviour, but we go further and claim our association with the ascended Saviour in his Ascension life. Read Eph. i. 20—23, and connect it with Eph. ii. 1, where we see Christ, not merely raised from the dead, but set at the Father's right hand in the heavenly places, far above all principality.

Read also Eph. ii. 6, "Hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus." These are glorious truths, and reveal the true dwelling-place provided for the child of God, and it is the work of the Holy Ghost to make real these truths, and to translate them into our experience and enjoyment.

(2) The Place of Defence.—Here we have a double metaphor, "munitions of rocks." Christ is not merely a solid rock to stand upon, but He is also a fortress of rocks round about his people, "Kept by the power of God," that is, preserved as in a fortress.

An illustration of this double security is afforded by the island of Malta, which is naturally a bed of rock. Some centuries past the monks and their followers excavated this bed of rock, and founded, and reared the present fortresses upon it, which really form "munitions of rocks," so that the troops of the garrison not only stand upon a basis of rock, but they are encompassed by rocky battlements.

This is a true picture of the defence of the child of God, and though all will admit that the believer is on the rock, yet it is forgotten that God has provided Christ as an impregnable fortress of rock set round him on every side, that he may be Christ-encompassed and Christ-enclosed. Victory is thus secured, because a believer has Christ in between him and all his foes, and thus all the fiery darts of the wicked one will be quenched. Paul's prayer was very significant, "That I may be found in Him." Paul's desire was to be known as a man who had but one address where he could only and always be found, either by Satan, temptation, trial—that was "in Christ." When this position is occupied the aspect of the conflict is changed, and, strange to say, this is the latest idea of modern warfare.

Let me illustrate this from naval architecture: The great aim is so to construct ironclads that, when they go into action, every man should be out of sight, and the massive walls of iron shall be between them and the projectiles of the enemy. Take, for instance, the Inflexible, which is so constructed that you may shoot away her stem and stern, and her iron citadel in the centre, where the fighting men are placed, will remain impregnable. It is no longer the old-fashioned warfare of hand-to-hand fight, but the new method of securing the protection of the crew behind the iron walls.

(3) The Provisions of the Believer.—"Bread shall be given him and his waters shall be sure."

Thus dwelling on high and at home in Jesus, the believer banquets on the bread of life and drinks of the waters of salvation.

Jesus is that bread of life and of Him it is said, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, ye have no life in you." What is meant by his flesh? Turn to 1 Cor. xv. 39: "All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds."

"Flesh" denotes the nature of the animal. Therefore, when Scripturally considered, "eating the flesh of Son of Man," means partaking of and assimilating the very nature of Christ. What strengthening food is this! What a real partaking of the Divine nature is here! This is the true work of life to invigorate the soul. May we ever plead, "Lord, ever more give us this bread," and hear his reply, "Bread shall be given him."

But, further, "His waters shall be sure." Our Lord, in his conversation with the woman of Samaria, said: "The water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." Observe, "the water shall be in him a well of water." Christ, the true well, becomes the centre of the believer's life. He is Himself in the heart, therefore the waters never fail; they will be "sure." Jesus never fails. Oh, to know Him more as a well within!

Constantinople has resisted various sieges. Because the wells of water are within the city, and it does not depend on outside supply. Thus it is with the child of God who has been provisioned by his Father with Jesus for the bread of life, with Jesus for the well of water, inside the heart, where Satan cannot cut off the supply.

(4) His Vision.—"Thine eyes shall see the King in his beauty." It is most natural to suppose that when the child of God is "dwelling on high," when he has as his "place of defence" the "munitions of rocks," when his provision is "bread and water," in other words, when Christ is "all and in all" to him, it is, indeed, most natural to understand his vision, "Thine eyes shall see the King in his beauty." It cannot be otherwise; such a vision is the most natural outcome of such a condition. We have seen Him as a Saviour from the guilt of sin, blotting out transgression; but we want to see Him as an "all-round" Saviour, saving from the tyranny of sin.

In the absence of Rev. C. A. Fox, Mr. MEYER gave an impressive address upon the necessity for the Spirit's baptism. Consecration is, he said, the negative side of the attitude which the believer should assume—the relinquishing of all that hinders. The positive side is to "be filled with the Spirit." If this is experienced there will be no lack of assurance of forgiveness and sonship; no trouble with besetting sins; no discouragement at a callous congregation, or a careless class. If it is the right of the Christian to appropriate the other commands in Eph. v. (e.g., the obedience to parents, the training of children), it is also his right to "be filled with the Spirit."

Mr. BOWKER also addressed the meeting, and at five o'clock Mr. PEMBER gave a Bible-reading on the Parable of the Talents. He held that the parable refers to spiritual, not material gifts. It is to the use or misuse of these that its promises and threatenings are directed.

EVENING.

The closing meeting was held in the Central Hall, Oldham-st. F. W. Crossley, Esq., who occupied the chair, referred to the National Education Acts as having failed to make people really better; they could not change the heart. He described the audience he had seen lately in a low music hall in Manchester, and contrasted it with a Salvation Army meeting, where persons of the same class were assembled, but were transformed and elevated, and with bright faces worshipping God.

Miss CAMPBELL, of Mildmay, who is just leaving for China, gave an account of the Lord's leading in her life. For some years she has carried on a useful work among railway men. And I do not regret, said she, the time I have spent at work here, for I believe I was guided of God. But now I believe He has called me to China. I have not a single personal wish to go; but, if my Lord wants me, for Him I long to go. Mr. BALDWIN, of Morocco, drew some practical lessons from the incident of Hagar and Ishmael in the desert. The latter representing the Mohammedans, and the former the Church of God; Hagar's words have been universally used of the Mohammedans, the Church having to a great extent decided that to take the water of life to them is well-nigh a hopeless task. He pleaded earnestly for the salvation of Ishmael. Miss LEIGH and Mr. P. ASHKENASI followed with brief notes of their work, amongst young women in Paris, and Jews in London, respectively. Then Colonel WILMOT BROOKE spoke of the blessing which had attended his son on his way out to the Soudan, whither he has gone, accompanied by a converted native. His remarks were supplemented by an announcement that a number of converted drunkards about twelve miles from Manchester had regularly remembered this young missionary in prayer though they did not know who he was, and they would be rejoiced when they heard of his father's testimony. Mr. REGINALD RADCLIFFE also spoke warmly to the same effect, and then Mr. MEYER expressed his disappointment that although thirty persons volunteered last year to go out, funds had only been forthcoming to send one. He felt therefore that he could not appeal for more such workers until this need had been met. He urged his hearers to adopt greater simplicity of living, greater self-denial, a larger scale of giving, &c.

After the Benediction, Mr. Meyer met those especially interested in an ante-room, and in this concluding hour the power of God was felt as a seal of blessing upon the whole Convention.

◆

UNION IN EFFORT AT WILLESDEN.

FOR the second year the Baptist, Primitive Methodist, and Congregational Churches at Willesden have united for special services. They were held in the Congregational Chapel, as being the largest building, and were conducted by Mr. W. Packer, of the Evangelisation Society. On Sunday, November 6, there was a united communion service conducted by the pastors of the Congregational and Primitive Methodist churches (the pastor of the Baptist was too ill to attend). About three hundred persons partook of the Lord's Supper, including sixty members of the Salvation Army. The meetings closed on Sunday the 13th, when the building was packed at the evening service.

In continuation of this special effort, services for the children were conducted by Mr. Spiers. Many of them testified to having found the Saviour during the mission, and others at the former services for adults. I would urge the advantage of small churches uniting as we have done. There is a greater blessing where there is a marked unity for the Master's work, the meetings are larger and heartier, a better band of workers is secured, and the expenses are reduced to a minimum. The sectarian aspect of the thing to outside observers is cleared away, in the one effort to bring the people unto Christ for forgiveness and healing.

F. M. STEER.

21, Bruce-road, Stonebridge-park, N.W.

DON PEDRO CASTRO, a faithful preacher of the Gospel in Spain since 1882, in connection with the Episcopalian Mission in Madrid, and previously for several years my helper in the Chamberi Mission, fell asleep in Jesus in the month of September last, leaving a widow and five young children unprovided for. Senor Don Juan Cabrera, the director of the Episcopal Mission, invites me to co-operate with himself, and with the other missions, in raising a fund to assist the family. This I most heartily do. I am sure you will kindly consent to receive any sums forwarded to you for this object. Should any prefer to send to me direct, they can do so before Dec. 5, care of Mr. E. Lynn, 70, Fleet-street, London, E.C., about which time I hope to be returning to my work in Spain; or at any time to my address there, Cardenal Cisneros, 55, Madrid.

DR. GEIKIE'S NEW BOOK.

ONE of the most important features of the development of present-day travel is the attention which is now being given to the Holy Land. Every year sees increasing numbers of intelligent Christians, with their Bibles in their hands, traversing its sacred soil, and visiting the spots with which the life of their Lord is so intimately associated. A few of these have turned their experiences to useful account by chronicling them for the benefit of their readers at home, thus augmenting the interest already created. Others who have penetrated more deeply into the subject have given to the world the results of their observation and research in copious description of Oriental custom, life, and character.

High amongst these ranks Dr. Cunningham Geikie, whose work, "The Life and Work of Christ," has met with such wide acceptance. This able writer has now added another to the list of books, which bear his name*, the especial object of which the author in his preface sets forth as follows:—

> I visited Palestine to gather illustrations of the sacred writings from its hills and valleys, its rivers and lakes, its plains and uplands, its plants and animals, its skies, its soil, and, above all, from the pictures of ancient times still presented on every side in the daily life of its people. Nothing is more instructive or can be more charming in reading Scripture than the illumination of its text from such sources, throwing light as they do on its constantly recurring Oriental imagery and local allusions, and revealing the exact meaning of words and phrases which otherwise could not be adequately understood. Its simple narratives, its Divine poetry, its prophetic visions, and its varied teachings, alike catch additional vividness and force when read with such aids. The Land is, in fact, made a natural commentary on the sacred writings which it has given us, and we study them as it were amidst the life, scenery, and local peculiarities which surrounded those to whom they were first addressed.
>
> While describing the various districts of the Holy Land, therefore, and noting their ancient sites, past history, and present state, I have sought to gather at every step contributions towards the illustration of the inspired text from all local sources.

In our last issue we gave an extract upon the "Shepherd and the Sheep," in our column for the young," which was more elementary than the general contents of the book; but the graphic description and minute detail which characterise the entire work only lend it greater charm, and render it easy to be understood by the simplest, and pleasing alike to old and young. The ordinary objects of everyday Eastern life are brought vividly before the reader, each bearing its own interest, and teaching its own lesson, whilst abundant reference to Scripture connects them with the sacred narrative, shedding light on many a difficult passage, and explaining many an obscure allusion.

The arrangement of the work is such as to familiarise the reader with the length and breadth of the land, the chapters being geographically classified, recalling to the mind the Biblical incidents identified with each. It will, without doubt, prove an invaluable help to Bible students and preachers, and all who are interested in the land and life of the Lord.

---

* THE HOLY LAND AND THE BIBLE: A Book of Scripture Illustrations gathered from Palestine. By Rev. CUNNINGHAM GEIKIE, D.D. Demy 8vo. 2 vols. 24s. Cassell & Co.

DEFINITE PRAYER.—A Sunday-school teacher writes:—Till quite recently I have taught Gospel truth, and yet have had no conversions among the children. A Christian worker showed me my mistake, and told me I ought to ask God definitely for conversions, and then as definitely to expect them. I adopted this plan, and since that time many of the children have manifestly passed from death to life, and have also become busy little workers in the Lord's vineyard.

MILDMAY MISSION TO THE JEWS.—A young Jew converted to the Christian faith through this Mission, writes to express his gratitude. "I shall always look up to God with a thankful heart for ever having brought me to Mildmay, for it was here that I found that Jesus is my Messiah. Here I received heavenly peace, by knowing that my sins were forgiven." The writer adds that the Mission is reaching thousands of Jews all over the world, and the work it accomplishes by little means is really wonderful.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Mr. J. M. Weylland, of the London City Mission.

Mr. Ira D. Sankey arrived in this country last week on a short visit. He is in excellent health.

We regret that there is no improvement in the health of Mr. Denham Smith. Although experiencing increasing prostration, and all the complications of his long and trying illness, he still exhibits the same peace of soul which has throughout been a joy to himself and a blessing to those privileged to see and wait on him.

As will be seen from our advertising announcements, a two days' Conference on "Holy Living," convened by the Salvation Army, is to be held at Exeter Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday next. It is announced that the meetings will be devoted exclusively to personal religion, and disconnected from any special department of the work. The following are the subjects for the respective meetings :—

TUESDAY, 11, 2.30, & 7.

Morning.—The helplessness and misery of those who are not fully delivered from sin and wholly given up to God; and their only remedy.

Afternoon.—The blessedness of those who are fully saved and walking with God, explained and exemplified by the personal experience of different speakers.

Evening.—How to come into the immediate possession of that glorious fulness of purity, peace, and power, which Christ has purchased, and which God awaits to impart.

WEDNESDAY, 10.30, 2.30, & 7.0.

Morning.—The constant victory over the world, the flesh, and the devil, enjoyed by those who are wholly possessed by God.

Afternoon.—The joy experienced by those whose lives are fully in harmony with God, and who are fighting for Him.

Evening.—The sacrifice which is the only fitting response to the love of God and the claims of a dying world.

Amidst the many causes for perplexity and apprehension, socially, politically, and religiously, the outlook is not all gloom. There never was a time when so many earnest Christians were at work for God; and the testimony is constantly being heard concerning all classes, that there is an eager ear for the truth in Jesus. Mr. G. Clarke told us at the Noon-meeting last week that in Dublin numbers of Roman Catholics went to the Mission at the Christian Union-buildings, and when one was asked why he came, and if he would not have to make confession of it, he replied, "Sure you're not a clergyman, and this is not a church." In some of the most Romish parts of Ireland the evangelist finds an open door. The fields are white for God's true labourers.

Amongst the upper classes, notwithstanding the pleasure, folly, and dissipation which abound, there are many hearts aching for peace with God. If the appalling silence concerning eternity were oftener broken by those who know the way of salvation in their own experience, it would be found that the Holy Spirit has been convicting peers and peeresses, no less than the common people, of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. It seems as though the sifting process had begun, and that the children of God and the children of the wicked one are to be distinctively separated into their respective camps.

☛ We beg to remind our readers that the enclosing of circulars, &c., in The Christian subjects it to extra postage. All such enclosures sent from this office are headed, "Supplement to The Christian," and are sufficiently prepaid; we are not responsible for any not so headed. It is, therefore, important that our readers who forward copies of the paper containing such circulars (whether inserted by themselves or by us) should ascertain the correct postage, as we are constantly receiving complaints from those who have had to pay double postage on receiving copies from friends who have omitted to pay this extra postage.

The greatest power in the world is love. Said He who is the embodiment of the love of God, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all unto Me;" and this He said, signifying by what death He should die. Men may be won by love to union in the truth, who never will be influenced by denunciation. There are stout Protestants who are feeble Christians, and zealous evangelicals who are timorous evangelists. The poor and weary world, lying in the wicked one, cries, "Who will show us any good?" Just as we hear and respond to that appeal of Satan's captives, by evidently setting forth before their eyes Jesus Christ crucified for them, our own differences will sink into their true proportions, and we shall be drawn together by love for the lost into love toward one another.

Many who have seen with regret the announcement of Dr. Saphir's resignation of the pastorate at Belgrave-square will be glad to learn that probably he will yet be retained for a season in his West-end pulpit. A committee of the London Presbytery, backed up by his church and congregation, have pressed on him an arrangement by which he should preach on Sunday mornings for six months in the year, he being relieved of all pastoral work. Dr. Saphir has consented to reconsider the matter; every friend of Gospel truth will hope and pray that he may be able to continue his useful ministry as a public teacher.

We would take the opportunity of directing attention to an intensely interesting pamphlet, which Dr. Saphir has prepared, on "Rabinowich and his Mission to Israel" (2d. Shaw & Co.). It sets forth, vividly and impressively, the present condition of the remarkable work among Russian Jews which Mr. Rabinowich has clearly been raised up of God to perform. As far as human foresight can judge, the movement seems destined to exercise a powerful influence for good on the future of the Jewish people; and at this crisis it demands the most sympathetic attention of Gentile Christians. This pamphlet, so full of striking and encouraging facts, ought to be scattered far and wide among the churches.

Having attained to "several years above the three score and ten," Principal McCosh, of Princeton University, thinks it time for him to resign his important office, and to make way for a younger man. He has requested the Board of Trustees to accept his resignation in February next. In making this announcement he adds that, thanks to God and his many helpers, he leaves the College "in a healthy state, intellectually, morally, and religiously." It is no small thing to be able to assert so much, in these days when our Colleges and Divinity Halls seem to be on their trial. Dr. McCosh has done splendid service to his generation on both sides of the Atlantic during his professorship, and he will be followed into a well-earned retirement with the prayers and good wishes of his many friends.

We have constantly maintained in this journal that alarm, or even anxiety, in relation to scientific theories, was premature. The certainties of science and the ideas which some entertain of its achievements do not agree. The ideas are far in excess of the results. A remarkable proof of this comes out in astronomy. About half a century ago Dr. Chalmers sought to allay the fears of Christians by his eloquent Astronomical Discourses, and afterwards Sir David Brewster all but contended that every planet in our system was an inhabited world. But the evidence of habitation in other planetary worlds has diminished rather than grown.

The new theory of the universe which was propounded a fortnight ago, before the Royal Society, by Mr. Norman Lockyer, remarkably confirms the attitude of patient waiting. Mr. Froude has said he gave up Christianity when he learnt the vastness of the universe. If the historian now reads what Mr. Lockyer, after long trials with the spectroscope has advanced, he will probably be as silent as were the Fellows of the Royal Society. The new meteoric theory cannot be explained in a note. But it goes to magnify the importance of a world into which the Son of God came, and teaches that science is only on its way to truth, and has not yet reached it.

In further illustration of the physical mutability of the stars it may be mentioned that the author of the recently published work, "Unfinished Worlds" (Hodder & Stoughton), tells us these facts:—The star Algol changed its magnitude in two days; another, Mira, faded in eleven months from a star of the first magnitude to a point invisible to the naked eye; numbers of new stars suddenly appear and as suddenly fade away; in 1866 a star from being minute was seen to become a star of second magnitude and then all but disappeared. Certainly these changes show that all things do not continue as they were, and enforce much weighty teaching of Scripture.

When a clergyman like Dr. Jex-Blake writes, as in last week's Record, of the imitation of Roman Catholic practices at the opening of Truro Cathedral, there ought to be concern. He adds very grave words:—

> There seems little hope that our Church can continue much longer Protestant, as every year she is becoming more and more Romanised, and no protest of any sort is made. No one is called to order by those in authority. Everyone is allowed to do what is right in his own eyes. We find fault with the law-breakers in Ireland, who say they have a law of their own, and with the lawlessness of the people in Trafalgar-square. But who has set them the example? The law-breakers amongst our clergy.

These things will give force to the Protestant celebrations of next year.

Every practical and well-considered attempt to relieve our congested cities of their surplus population of unemployed is deserving of the utmost encouragement.

We therefore have pleasure in directing attention to the prospectus which we have received of a "Home Colonisation Society." Its object, in brief, is to organise "Industrial Settlements" in different parts of England, where remunerative occupation, on a co-operative basis, may be found for those who are willing to do good, useful work, but cannot find it. These settlements, it is believed, would be self-supporting, after having got a fair start in the acquisition of land, homes, and implements. In any event the experiment, which has answered admirably in Holland, is well worth making, and we trust it will be fairly tried. Some of our Christian capitalists might lend it their countenance and support. Copies of the prospectus, and other papers bearing on the subject, can be had from the hon. sec., Rev. Herbert V. Mills, of 9, Hackin's Hey, Liverpool.

If the project succeeds, it ought to revolutionise our Poor Law methods. It does seem an inexcusable waste of labour to confine the tasks imposed on our State paupers to such unproductive channels as those in which they run at present. If our workhouses and tramp-wards could in some way be converted into industrial communities, according to the ability of the workers, the results ought to be beneficial, not only from the physical, but from the social and moral point of view.

Mr. Henry Varley sailed on Wednesday last in the ss. Hankow, bound for Cape Town. He proposes to make a brief stay there, engaging in Christian work as time and opportunity may offer, and then proceed to Melbourne, which he hopes to reach in February. Our readers, we trust, will follow him with their prayers.

Our energetic friend, Mr. John Shrimpton, of 38. Lincoln's Inn-fields, W.C., complains of the lack of sympathy among Christians, especially those belonging to the wealthier ranks of society. He strongly reprobates the stiffness and want of Christian brotherhood among those who attend the same church or chapel. He says:—

> A cultured man (not long a Christian) said lately that he had been introduced to So-and-So, but when he goes in and out of church Sunday after Sunday they merely bow to him; whereas in his new life he is longing for Christian society. Before he became a Christian he had no end of friends whom he could visit.

Mr. Shrimpton mentions similar instances of frigidity unbecoming the Christian profession, and, as an antidote, suggests the establishment of drawing-room Bible-meetings during the winter; the elders and juniors to meet those of their own ages respectively. It should be understood that all who attend these meetings must appear in evening dress. Prophetic subjects should be avoided; evangelistic meetings would be unwise; but good singing should be arranged for, as also tea and coffee. Nine o'clock would be the best hour. Proper cards of invitation should be sent out.

A memorial and protest with respect to the recent drunken orgy at the People's Palace, Mile End, having been sent to the Queen by Messrs. F. N. Charrington, H. Varley, and E. H. Kerwin, Her Majesty has replied, through Colonel Ponsonby, that the matter has been referred to the Trustees of the Palace. We are glad to know that the committee to whom the matter was entrusted for consideration, have recommended that the Trustees should not in future permit any intoxicants to be introduced into the Palace.

Why is it that our local rulers are so slow—to all appearance so unwilling—to adopt reforms, the need for which must be apparent to everybody? In her eloquent remarks at the recent anniversary of the National Vigilance Association, Mrs. Foster, of America, said:—

> With regard to the subject of police matrons, I may say that we have these appointed in many of our large cities—in the city of Chicago notably, and more recently in the city of Boston. You can have no conception as to the amount of good to be accomplished by these women. A woman brought in in a state of intoxication ought to be cared for by a woman, and not be submitted to the rough handling of men.

The truth of the last sentence is so self-evident that we cannot help again asking, Why is the system not adopted in this professing Christian country?

PAINTING FOR MORAL ENDS.

At the Grosvenor Gallery, New Bond-street, a number of paintings are being exhibited of infinitely deeper import, a thousand times more touching, and far more truly religious, than anything Doré ever gave the world. They are the work of a Russian, Verestchagin, a painter equal to any of his contemporaries in artistic ability, and beyond any painter who ever lived in the grandeur of his moral aims, and the application of his lessons to the consciences of all who take the least pains to understand him.

Never has the true character of war been more powerfully depicted than in the series of pictures delineating the Siege and Battle of Plevna. From the moment when the Russian soldiers are all crowding down in the damp grass awaiting the signal for the bloody conflict, to the time when a line of jolting waggons bear the dead and dying victors to their obscure graves, we behold each scene in the terrible drama excepting—and this is most characteristic—the one which appeals to the brutal sporting-man, namely, the actual sight of thousands of human beings murdering each other. Verestchagin is no sensationalist, who, like too many of the French school, depends on the ostentatious display of the horrible. He touches by showing us the sad reality, not the theatrical idea of a battle and its results.

Thus, "After Victory," the chief objects in the picture are the heaps of slain. In the distance a wonderful bit of painting, represents the generals riding furiously along the ranks, waving the national flag, while the soldiers throw up their caps in exultation. But then comes the fate of the vast number who lie in lines at the bottom of a valley on the hill-side, in various degrees of suffering, and more or less near to death, according to their wounds. But neither here nor in the melancholy picture, "A Turkish Hospital," is there an attempt to horrify by stage tricks so easy to artists. No; this Russian painter has himself gone through it all. He has not only risked his life, but at the so-called voice of patriotism he has slain his fellow-men. And it was in this very Turkish hospital that he went to seek his brother, who, like himself, was a soldier.

But Verestchagin, as all truly great geniuses since the Christian era, has been drawn by the force of things to the centre of life. As a painter he has evidently felt compelled to go to the very scenes where the drama of dramas was played out—where Jesus lived and died. And not the least interesting or the least precious things in this exhibition are the pictures of scenes illustrating the Old and New Testament. They are so numerous (there are about forty of them) that I cannot even name them. They are actual landscapes painted in the Holy Land, often with figures introduced illustrating some passage from Old Testament or Gospel history.

But the whole series has a meaning, as we may see by the one with which the painter concludes. In "The Prophecy" (56) Jesus sits alone on the hills overlooking the Sea of Galilee; the white walls of Chorazin and Bethsaida are just visible on the opposite shore. We see only the back of the prophet (Deut. xviii. 15), for the painter is in too serious a mood to imagine that he can give any adequate idea of that Face, marred more than any man's, and he is content to use the mere folds of the seamless robe to depict the agony of the wearer.

But that lonely figure, foreseeing the woes about to fall on those Galilean towns, is certainly meant by the painter as coming to-day with a message for London—a message exactly the same as that to Chorazin and Bethsaida; and if we would understand why, we must spend a serious quarter of an hour in trying to find out all that is meant by the pictures hung in juxtaposition at the end of the principal gallery. The catalogue, which on other subjects gives details, and even points the moral, on these, the pictures of the exhibition, is content to confine itself to these lines:—

94f. Crucifixion by the Romans.
94g. Blowing from guns in British India.
94h. Hanging in Russia.

I will imitate the wisdom of this course, and only say that he who misses seeing these paintings will miss the best opportunity he may ever have of understanding the age in which he lives; for if ever the nineteenth century has had a prophet, it is the Russian painter, Verestchagin.

R. H.

REQUESTS FOR PRAISE AND PRAYER.—Praise God for much blessing and the conversion of many souls, in the united services in the Free Churches in East Glasgow. Prayer for continued and far greater blessing on future meetings.——For blessing on special services by Mr. Opie Rodway, at Tylorstown, Glamorganshire, Dec. 3 to 6; also for annual railway mission services at Dowlais, Glam., Dec. 7 to 13.——For blessing on special Gospel services, to be held in Stebbing, Chelmsford, by Mr. Wood, of the Evangelisation Society.——For a great blessing on a twenty-two days' mission at Oxford, by Mr. G. Hefford, of the Evangelisation Society.

A SAILORS' REST FOR FOWEY.—A well-attended and most interesting meeting was held on November 24, at Christ Church school-room, Chislehurst, on behalf of the movement for the erection of a Sailors' Rest at this Cornish port. Rev. W. Fleming, LL.B., who occupied the chair, read a letter from the Vicar of Fowey, urging the speedy erection of the building. The meeting was addressed by Rev. G. J. and Mrs. Hill, Messrs. H. W. Maynard, M. H. Hodder, Theodore Howard, and Rev. R. Wallis Boyns. Mr. and Mrs. Townend, of Chislehurst, who spent a few weeks at Fowey, and saw the work of the Seamen's Christian Friend Society on the Cornish coast, have formed a Chislehurst branch, of which Mr. Townend will act as honorary secretary. A collection taken at the close of the meeting, together with contributions per Mr. and Mrs. Townend, amounted to over £35. About £1000 is needed, towards which above £150 has been received or promised.

BAPTISTS AND MISSIONS.

IMPORTANT MINISTERS' CONFERENCE.

About the month of June last Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Leicester, was the means of forming a union of Baptist ministers and missionaries, who would agree to pray, on each Lord's Day morning, for an increase of spiritual power for themselves and their churches. The membership of the union has steadily grown, and now numbers 170. On Thursday, November 24th, the brethren met for conference and prayer in Melbourne Hall, Leicester, by the kind invitation of Mr. Meyer and his friends. Not more than seventy were able to be present, and these gathered on Wednesday evening to seek God's blessing on the work of the following day. A most appropriate and inspiring address was delivered by Rev. W. Williams, of Upton Chapel, London, on the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming?" It was thoughtful, earnest, and spiritual, and excited confident expectation of "more to follow."

The brethren gathered on Thursday morning, evidently conscious of their need of more spiritual power, and earnest in their desire to receive a fresh anointing. All the meetings were conducted by Mr. Meyer; and brief, pointed addresses were delivered—in the morning, by Rev. J. H. Atkinson, of Liverpool; afternoon, by Rev. W. J. Mayers, of Bristol; evening, by Rev. F. B. Meyer; and at the Communion service, by Revs. W. Hackney, of Birmingham, and A. Macdonald, of Chard. From ten to twelve, the subject was, "Confession"; from three to five, "Consecration"; from six to eight, "The Gift of the Holy Spirit."

It is not possible, nor desirable, to speak in detail of all that was done at the meetings. There was perfect freedom of utterance in prayer, and much silent waiting upon God. At the morning meeting all seemed desirous of getting into direct contact with God, of placing the whole life, and all its parts, under his searching sight, and of confessing honestly whatever He might reprove. And in the afternoon and evening there was an earnest and resolute purpose to surrender all to God, and to accept of his will concerning every part of the life and work, and a quiet confident trust in Him for the fulness of the Spirit's indwelling, which He commands and promises. It was a memorable day, and will never be forgotten by those permitted to be present. One brother described it as "one of the days of heaven on earth"; for may not every day be so described in which we take our own place, and gladly give the Saviour his? Another said he had come to the Conference after much prayer, and cherishing very large expectations, but the blessing received had far exceeded them all. Of course, it is not by the feelings produced at the time that the value of the Conference is to be judged. Will it result in more saintly lives, more earnest service, and more spiritual power? We confidently believe it will. G. W.

CABMEN.—The annual meeting of the Cabmen's Gospel Temperance Association was recently held in the Denbigh-road schools, Bayswater. One hundred and forty cabmen and their wives sat down to tea. Mr. W. A. Bewes presided, and a most enthusiastic meeting followed. Mr. T. Gent, missionary to cabmen, presented an encouraging report of pledges taken and lives reformed. One great need is a mission-room to carry on the good work. Lady Robinson gave a hearty address to the men and their wives, being followed by speeches from converted cabdrivers and others.

EURASIAN GIRLS IN CHINA.—Rev. Arnold Foster, of the London Missionary Society, is furthering a movement to provide a Home in Hankow for this class of girls, who, by reason of their social status, are often little cared for, and are therefore in great danger of moral ruin. In addition to the establishment of a Home, he is anxious that Christian friends should co-operate with him in getting some of these girls educated and trained in England, where they would have better prospects for the future. The project is warmly supported by well-known friends of China. Mr. Foster may be communicated with at the London Missionary Society's Mission-house, 14, Blomfield-street, E.C.

OBITUARY.

MR. W. H. SPAULL, PECKHAM.

This Christian worker has been somewhat suddenly called to his rest. As an evangelist and honorary secretary of the Metropolitan Tabernacle Training Class he will be much missed. In his office he was a faithful witness for Christ before his fellow clerks, who, on hearing of his death, went to the rooms of the Y.M.C.A., Whittington-avenue, where Mr. Spaull was a member and an active mission worker, and expressed their desire to present some useful gift to the Association as a mark of their appreciation of his consistent life.

DR. WALTER STEWART, LEGHORN.

In the Free Church of Scotland, and particularly in its Continental missionary connections, deep regret will be felt at the death of Rev. Dr. Robert Walter Stewart, which took place on Wednesday, last week, at Leghorn, the scene of his late labours. Among the oldest ministers of the Free Church, Dr. Stewart did a great deal in widening the missionary influence of that body on the Continent, and was, indeed, the occupant of the first Continental station of the Free Church, that established at Leghorn. Himself a son of the manse, Dr. Stewart was ordained in 1873 to the parish of Erskine, where his father had for years been minister. The winters of 1842 and 1843 he passed in Malta, under the instructions of the Colonial Committee of the Church of Scotland, and he returned from the Mediterranean just in time to sign the famous Deed of Demission. After passing a year in London, he accepted from the Colonial Committee of the Free Church the call to Leghorn, whither he proceeded in 1845. Through his exertions first Florence, then Rome, and then Naples became recognised Free Church stations, and subsequently were constituted into the Presbytery of Italy. He took a most lively interest in the Waldenses, and it was said of him by Dr. Duff, his predecessor in the Moderator's Chair, in proposing him, that mainly through his powerful stimulus, applied for nearly a whole generation, the Waldenses had emerged from obscurity and a contracted sphere of usefulness, and had become the successful propagators of Apostolic evangelism.

A DAILY PRAYER-MEETING is held at St. Katherine Cree Church, Leadenhall-street, between one and two o'clock. Visitors are invited, if only for a few minutes. Requests for prayer may be sent to Mr. Wilmshurst, at the church.

AYR FREE BREAKFASTS.—The report of this movement for the half year just closed states that free breakfasts have been given on Sunday mornings in the Wooden Kirk, Limond's Wynd, to 4450 individuals, 1355 of whom were adults, and 3095 were young persons. The work is carried on by a band of twenty-six workers. A Gospel address is given, and an after-meeting is held, at which any who may wish it are conversed with. Many non-church going people have heard theglad sound of salvation by this means.

G.P.O. TOTAL ABSTINENCE SOCIETY.—The tenth annual meeting of this Society was held at the Shaftesbury Hall, Aldersgate-street, on Thursday week. The report states that the past year has been the most successful since the formation of the Association. An effort has been made to establish branches in the provinces, which has resulted in an addition of 817 members to the Society. The total number enrolled was 1042, inclusive of an increase of 555 during the year, of which 242 belong to the London General Post Office. Sir Arthur Blackwood, Miss Agnes E. Weston, Lady John Manners, Dr. Ridge, and others addressed the meeting.

HOMES FOR WORKING GIRLS IN LONDON.—Mr. John Shrimpton, 38, Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, W.C., the hon. secretary, writes:—After reading the account of "the work of the year, 1886," an unsolicited donation of £500 has been given by "Thank-offering" for the extension of Victoria House; and, as the adjoining premises are unoccupied, this gift is most opportune. The £2100 given by "Anonymous" towards founding another Home—Domgay House—remains on deposit at the bankers'; but no portion of either of these sums can be devoted towards redeeming the debt of £1075, due to the current expenses of the existent Homes, all of which are abodes of daily blessing, 1824 having dwelt in them during the past year.

A CHILD'S GRAVE,

PATCHAM, SUSSEX.

I sit at rest 'neath the ancient tower,
All weather-worn by many a shower;

White clouds sweep over the distant town,
Their shadows shift o'er the pathless down.

A south breeze sighs in the chestnut tree,
It wanders up from the sunlit sea,

And brings to this God's acre of graves
The sound and scent of the rolling waves,

The laugh of girls in the fields of wheat,
The noise of life from the village street,

Where children shout and sing in their play,
Glad in the joy of the summer day.

The winds, that stay for a while, and pass,
Take on their wings from amid the grass

Odours of flowers, that adorn the tomb
With beauty pure, and their spotless bloom—

The bloom that speaks of the life to be,
The tearless life by the crystal sea.

Like a beacon on a sea-beat shore,
A cross gleams white by the old porch door,

With the record, full of pathos deep,
How Cicely Nevill "fell asleep,"

And the verse, in marble undefiled,
That tells how Christ "called a little child;"

And I know a mother's faith has seen
That death and grave do but come between

The pain of earth and the bliss above,
The partings here and the endless love.

And I see, as in a waking dream,
The child beyond the boundary stream

Amid the throng of the angels stand,
With a lily in her little hand.

James Bowker.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

Dr. Richardson's text-books are now used in seventeen States of America.

"Letters to Ladies on Alcoholic Drinks," by a lady, are appearing in The Temperance Record.

The students of Regent's Park Baptist College, London, are willing to address temperance societies within reasonable distances; travelling expenses only required.

Mr. William Noble visited Southampton last Thursday, at the invitation of Rev. Canon Wilberforce, and addressed an audience of between two and three thousand persons. Ninety-six pledges were taken.

The twenty-third anniversary of the Pastors' College Temperance Society was lately held at Newington Butts. The report showed that eighty-one out of the eighty-two students totally abstain from intoxicating liquor.

In addressing the annual general meeting of the Dublin University Temperance Society, held last week in Trinity College, Dr. McDowell Cosgrove asserted that the nervous system of the present race has degenerated, causing epilepsy, hysteria, and drunkennes.

Last week's number of Rev. T. Champness's paper, Joyful News, contained a striking picture entitled, "The English Juggernaut," representing the people as eager to be crushed under the wheels of the brewer's van, on which is riding triumphantly the publican loaded with money.

FOREIGN.

In The Yorkshire Post, Mr. Fretwell compares English and German workmen to the advantage of the former as regards steadiness and sobriety.

The New South Wales Intoxicating Drink Inquiry Commission has presented its report. It opposes even partial Sunday opening, and favours an extension of Local Option.

Referring to a recent note, a correspondent in Valladolid says, there are in Spain at least two teetotal societies, both in connection with the "Blue Cross Society," of Switzerland.

At the International Temperance Convention, South Australia, Sir Henry Ayres stated that the use of intoxicants—even by those who could afford them—in the colony had greatly decreased.

Mr. John Ferguson, of The Ceylon Observer, has written to the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Traffic, calling attention to the value of quinine as a specific against the taste for opium.

At Long Island, U.S.A., says The Voice, a movement to secure the observation of the Sunday-closing law lately was paralysed by a threat of the saloon-keepers to stop their contributions to the churches.

Dr. Mays, Stockton, California, in a report to the State Board of Health, says that, owing to the unwillingness of relatives to tell the truth, many cases of insanity due to drink are put down to other causes.

Letters to the Editor.

TRURO CATHEDRAL.

DEAR SIR,—I am glad that some voice has been raised in protest with reference to Truro Cathedral. What a spectacle, in the face of the crying needs of the age, in the face of God, and of his poor, is that of the Christian Church spending thousands upon bricks and mortar, and her priests masquerading in scarlet and gold.

If we would, indeed, "worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness," we must care less for splendid cathedrals, and more for the spiritual and temporal needs of the people. We have not yet "put away childish things."—Yours truly,

A CHURCHWOMAN.

OUR SOLDIERS.

SIR,—Will you not avail yourself of your own columns to suggest the united thanksgiving to Almighty God of all persons interested in Soldiers' Homes, or other agencies for their welfare, for the enactment to which you refer in your issue of the 25th ult., for the discontinuance of the issue of spirits in the Indian Army, and for the abolition of canteens? Will it not stir up all friends of righteousness and sobriety to prayer that a like course may be adopted by order of the Commander-in-Chief of the Army, and by the Lords of the Admiralty in the Navy?

A memorial, addressed to both these authorities, embracing the above, would, I believe, be well responded to, and would also tend to strengthen hands, it may be, well disposed to so plainly righteous and sensible a course.—Yours,

M. H. SYNGE, Retired Major-Gen.

SCOTTISH VILLAGES.

DEAR SIR,—Allow me in a few words to point out that Mr. Young in his letter has quite missed the point of mine of November 11. My contention was that villages that have been left entirely to the "ordinary means" are almost invariably in a state of great spiritual destitution.

I might go a step further, and say that, in my experience, not almost, but always.

Again, I do not see how my experience can be one sided, as I have been more or less connected with Gospel tent work since the year 1876, ranging from Sutherland in the north to Wigtown in the south.

I quite believe with Mr. Young there are some ministers who welcome evangelists, but I have come into contact with very few of this class; they are the exception, and not the rule.

It is curious that, with regard to this latter fact, there is the greatest reluctance on the part of many evangelists and other workers to speak out, while freely admitting it in private meetings or conversation. I fail, however, to see how any good can come by concealing the truth.

Next year I hope to furnish you with a report of Gospel work amongst Scotch villages, and will give full details. There are villages within a few miles of Edinburgh just in the condition described by me in my letter of November 11. If Mr. Young would like to visit them, I can send him the names of the places.—I am, yours truly,

WILLIAM GOURLAY.

Bellwood, St. Albans-road, Edinburgh.

DEAR SIR,—The article on "Scottish Ministerial Training," which appeared in the pages of your weekly on the 11th November, excited not a little attention and comment among a number of Christian workers with whom I am privileged to be in communication. Their verdict, which I will call a representative one, was marked with unity of expression. From not one of them was a verdict given adverse to the statements penned by the writer of the article. All had the conviction that what Mr. Gourlay had written was only too true.

The writer of the letter headed "Scottish Village Work," which appears in your last issue, combats the truthfulness of Mr. Gourlay's charges, and speaks of them as a "gross misrepresentation." The evidence he cites, and all evidence of the same kind within his reach, though brought forward in the measure he claims to have it, could not possibly overturn the sad truthfulness of Mr. Gourlay's statements. If many of the returns from which his evidence is culled were sifted to the bottom, it might be found that much of the good accomplished in conversion-work was likely enough to have been done among those who were already church members, but who had been admitted to church membership in an unconverted state. You can scarcely have any conception of the extent to which this evil exists in Scotland. Young people pass through the minister's Bible-class, study so many Bible lessons, answer so many questions, and after a short term of such instruction are admitted into church membership. Others who have not gone through this method, and who have entered the marriage state, will, for fear of their children "going without a name," "join the church" to get their children "christened." The way for such into church membership is often made very easy. Regeneration is a thing of which no mention is made. They are received on the ground of having an earnest desire to "join the church," and, of course, on admission, are entitled to what are called the benefits of "Church Privileges." Then, again, many who hold back because of conscious unfitness are pressed to "come forward" on the ground that the "Communion table" is "a means of grace." A minister once told me that though he was not sure about some people, he would not care for them to stay away at the "Communion season," because they might get converted at the "Lord's table." Such a system is subversive of all New Testament law.

Not unlikely, if you were to open the pages of your paper wide enough, there would be a mass of the "most incontestable evidence" brought forward from church returns, to prove that things are quite contrary to what I have stated in supporting Mr. Gourlay's note, but in the revelation day that is ahead of us it will be found that Mr. Gourlay has only too clearly described things as they are. I was admitted to church membership when in an unconverted state, and I did not profess conversion when I was admitted, nor was I asked or told anything about conversion. Others in the same condition of soul and life were admitted at the same time. Further, let me say, that out of at least fifteen families who went to the same church in town, out of the village where I resided, all were unconverted, save one woman. I knew them by name, and I knew them by life. Some of them have since filled untimely graves. Over and above, there were four or five of the publicans in town in membership, the most of whom have now gone to render their account. I can stand cross-questioning on all I have said.

During a Christian experience of nearly twelve years, I have come into contact with hundreds of churches, and with Christians of all denominations, and from many much the same soul-harrowing story has fallen on my ears as that which I have described, in narrating my early connection with church life. As a Christian worker, I have been in some twelve or thirteen counties in Scotland, ranging from Caithness in the north to Dumfries in the south, so that my range of observation is not a limited one.

I am glad to acknowledge, without fear of contradiction, that the Free Church which Mr. Young speaks for, is the leading denomination in Scotland in evangelistic work. Many of its ministers are hearty evangelistic workers, and some of its elders are noble men, not to speak of the host of worthies in the pews, who, though without a seat in the Presbytery, are yet true heaven-born ministers of the Gospel. In special, as in stated, Gospel work, the U.P. Church is following hard in its wake, but its ecclesiastical dimensions are much less than those of the Free Church, and its evangelistic area as well.

As to the work in Cromarty which Mr. Young mentions as part of his "incontestable evidence," who began it? The Free Church did a good and blessed work, but who began the work in Cromarty? The Free Church or the Salvation Army? But, apart from this query, Mr. Young's extract shows that, with the help of Mr. Gillies, special meetings were held for three weeks, over and above the "ordinary means," so that Cromarty has come "under the success of modern evangelism," and such places Mr. Gourlay excepts.

19, Greenhill-road, Paisley. JOHN CLIMIE.

MONTHLY TRACT SOCIETY.—Mr. J. R. Mackenzie, the secretary of this excellent body, has recently visited many of the towns in Scotland, stirring up an interest in its work.

WAREHOUSEMEN'S, CLERKS' AND DRAPERS' SCHOOLS.—The annual general court of these schools took place last week at the Guildhall Tavern. Mr. J. Wells Thatcher, secretary, stated that there were at present 183 children in the schools, 120 boys and 63 girls, the health of all of whom had happily been good. The 15 children to be elected next day would raise the number of inmates to 198. The 26 children who had left during the past year had nearly all been put in situations. One of the chief educational features of the schools was that the French and German languages were now being taught by native professors of high qualifications.

*WARNING TO SERVANTS.

(1) In applying for situations at registry offices make quite sure of the character of the office at which you apply.

(2) Do not complete your engagement with any employer without making inquiry as to the character of the household for which your services are required.

(3) Do not be beguiled by advertisements that you see in newspapers, whether in London or the country, promising high wages and very little work. In most cases these situations do not exist at all. The advertisements are put in by people who wish to draw you to their office, and who, when you arrive there, assure you that that particular situation is already filled, but that they will soon find you another. Their promises may lead you into making very undesirable engagements.

(4) If you live in the country, be most careful in answering advertisements by letter to get some proof of the respectability of the advertiser. Many innocent girls have been drawn up to London and other large towns to their ruin by making engagements by letter with an advertiser of whom they know nothing. Better by far stay in the country all your life than run any such risks.

(5) Be on your guard against entering any home connected with a registry office unless you have taken pains to know its character. Many a girl has gone with her box into such a house in the hope of very soon being provided with a situation. Day after day has gone on, a heavy bill has been run up which she has not enough money to pay, and she is turned out—often late at night—to shift for herself, without money, as best she can, her box being detained by the people of the house.

(6) Do not be misled by strangers, whether men or women, who may speak to you on the landing-places or railway stations in London or other large towns, offering help, and inviting you to go with them. Apply to the station-master if you are in difficulty; he will probably know the character of the stranger who speaks to you, and whether he or she is trustworthy.

There are many highly respectable offices in London, and other large towns, and also some temporary Homes for Servants which may be entirely trusted. A list of London offices will be sent and further information will be given to you on applying by letter or personally at the office of the National Vigilance Association, 267, Strand, London, W.C.; where also any cases of fraud or deception by registry offices will be carefully considered, or inquiries will be made (on writing to the Secretary) as to the character of any place advertised.

---

* May be had in leaflet form, price 9d. per 100, at the National Vigilance Association Office, 267, Strand, W.C.

SOUL-WINNING AND PRAYER UNION.—Text for December 10 (Proverbs iii. 6):—"In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

LODGING-HOUSE WORK.—Last winter, with a young Christian man, I went into a lodging-house in Wandsworth, with some tickets for a free tea. After distributing them we obtained permission to preach the Gospel, and they listened very attentively. Another house in the same district was visited, with equally good results. We discontinued the work during the summer months, but commenced again last September, and have had very great blessing. There may be among your readers young men in other parts of London who have spare evenings in which they might visit similar places. A. J.

COLLEGE PLACE CHAPEL, CHELSEA.—A meeting for the fallen was held here on Monday night, 21st ultimo. Mr. James Pye and friends brought together a number of women. A good tea was furnished. From one till two o'clock all listened attentively to words of hope and life sung by Mr. and Mrs. Dale and Mr. Millbank, and spoken by Messrs. Bilbow, Browning, and others. At the close several expressed an earnest desire to be saved. These were pointed to Jesus and recommended to Homes. There is a crying necessity for multiplied efforts in this direction. We heartily wish that those who enjoy the fullest advantage of home life could see and hear what we have seen and heard. Tears of remorseful anguish, sighs charged with bitterest sorrow, tales of woe, and souls filled with dark despair, are the rule among these, whose spiritual affections are supposed to be dead. They are very thankful for the kindness which seeks to save them. Mr. James Pye's address is 22, Ifield-road, Fulham-road, S.W. J. R. P.

MR. GEORGE CLARKE IN CORK.

On Wednesday, November 23, Mr. Clarke's mission here was brought to a close. He came to the city on the urgent invitation of a number of gentlemen representing the various Protestant communities. The largest hall in the city was secured for the services, and the crowds that daily thronged the building proved that the arrangements made by the Committee were none too extensive.

It would occupy too much space to give anything like a fair idea of the many impressive addresses delivered during these days of refreshing. Those given at the women's meeting on the Sunday afternoons, and to the men at the half-past eight o'clock Sunday evening services, will never be forgotten by large numbers of those who were present. We have spoken to many who have referred to these occasions as the solemn turning-point in their lives. On the first Monday evening of the mission, Mr. Clarke gave his lecture on "The Christian Athlete." Numbers of Roman Catholics were present at this and other meetings, but some of them have already received priestly admonition on the subject. The Bible-readings were attended largely by persons who came daily long distances by rail or road, in order to avail themselves of the privileges which were proving "such a blessing" to the more favoured folk in the city. Mr. Clarke's closing address on the ability of Christ to keep, was a word that led many of us to encourage ourselves in God.

During the last two services of the mission thankofferings to the amount of £60 were given, in acknowledgement of blessings received. The objects to which these various gifts were to be appropriated embraced about twenty different religious and philanthropic societies. It would be impossible to convey any idea of the good results following Mr. Clarke's visit. Happy hearts, happy homes, happy service, and hallowed memories—these rise up before our minds, almost unbidden, as among the fruit of these days of the right hand of the Most High.

J. D. L.

Notices.

T. H. Morgan.—We are sorry not to be able to give you the information asked for. You had better apply to some missionary in Calcutta

Will the friend who sends The Christian to Mr. Friedr. W. Schulz (formerly of Anenheim, Strassburg, Germany, and now at Wertheim, Baden) kindly send us his address?

Communications Received with Thanks.—C.D.C. E.N. J.L. E.W.M. S.R. J.B. C.F.R. W.T.H. H.W.L.G. C.H. S.G. J.D. C.S. M.M. B.C. W.S. E.A.J. J.S. R.M. P.A.D. A.L.W. A.H. M.B. J.L. W.C. F.W.A.W. W.H. T.J.C.H. E.M. M.C. F.N.C. C.H.G. H.W.J. J.M. B.F. H.B.W. A.W.B. F.A.M.K. A.R.P. A.D. W.T. M.McK. A.S. H.B. T.H.M. J.K.W. R.D.F. H.M. M.A.L. R.T.S. C.G. F.E. R. L.B.A. P.E.E. S.F. E.A.F. L.B. A.R.F. A.O. J.R. A.W. E.J.W. M.B. H.N. J.C. M.P.U. S.P.S. C.T.P.L. F.L. J.H.M. A.J.D. C.W.W. H.L.Y. M.R.S. D.M. W.A. W.G. T.G.S. E.B.S. J.D.L. G.W. R.C. J.H. M.C.B. G.F.A. C.S.K. G.H. A.G.B. W.E.P. J.T.B. J.F. R.Y. H.W.H. R.B. W.R. J.B.G. W.F. J.S.B. G.J.H. N.R.H. R.H. S.J. T.G.J. R.B.W. G.E.F. G.T. J.M.S. P.W. J.T.P. E.S.H.R. R.A.E. S.R. W.M. A.H.

Applicants for Tracts.—R. Burt, 12, Willingham-terrace, Leighton-road, Kentish Town; L. Davis, 168, High-street, Stratford, E.; C. W. Baxter, 64, Medcalf-road, Enfield Lock; E. Peters, High-street, Stevenage, Herts; Miss Carter, 164, West Ferry-road, Millwall, E.; M. Towell, 33, Green-road, Southsea; G. Crisp, 68, Wellington-road, Forest-gate, E.; H. Beswick, 66, Colliery-Houses, Hucknall, Nottingham; E. Marsh, 24, High-st., Aldershot; C. Budd, 33, Peckham-grove, Camberwell, S.E.; G. Waight, Station-road, Earley, Reading; E. A. Jackson, Cottage Mission, 18, Spenser-road, S. Hornsey, N.; A. Fenn, 33c, Middleton-road, Dalston, E.; E. F. McQuilters, 35, Jeffery-street, New Brompton, Chatham; T. De La Mare, Post Office, Guernsey.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most important that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

AT NICE there is a society whose members call themselves "Gospel Volunteers." All but two were converted in the McAll Mission. They engage to speak evil of no one, to witness for the Gospel by purity of life, and by speech, whenever opportunity permits.

Mission Appeals.

East London.—Rev. W. Evans Hurndall, 16, Cottage-grove, Bow-road, London, E., writes:—We are hoping to supply to ten thousand of the very needy and suffering, in their own homes, a substantial Christmas dinner. Day by day we are helping the unemployed and starving, as funds reach us. Every case is strictly inquired into. The sending of these gifts into homes of poverty and sorrow enables us, at the same time, to send some sound Gospel literature, and by establishing friendly relations with the people often paves the way for words for the Master.

Spitalfields Gospel Mission.—The winter is upon us, and thousands of the poor out of work; some homeless and without food will soon be pressing around our missions looking for help. For the past two winters we have opened our Mission-hall in Osborne-place, Brick-lane, on Saturday nights, for the outcast and homeless. They are glad of the warm shelter, friendly greeting, and, above all, for a mug of hot coffee and bread and butter which is supplied them through the kind help of friends. As many as 5600 attended these gatherings last winter—many have been raised up, and are now with their families. We purpose reopening as soon as sufficient funds are in hand.—James Sharpless, Superintendent, 14, Sidney-square, Commercial-road, E.

Sermon Lane Mission.—Mr. George Fuller, the superintendent of this Mission, writing from his sick-room, says:—For the last six months I have been quite laid aside by a severe attack of rheumatic fever. This, with my other complaint, has disabled me from work entirely, not being able even to use my arm to write a letter. Our funds have greatly suffered. We have not only no funds, but are in debt, and all our winter work is before us. The work is being carried on by my wife and a band of devoted Christian workers. All the meetings are well attended, and much blessing is experienced. I ask your readers to come to our help and cheer me this Christmas in my affliction by sending sufficient funds to clear the debt and to enable us to give to our suffering poor the same relief as we have given for many years past. We need at least £100. We have a great many sad cases of very deep distress.—Your afflicted fellow-worker in Christ, George Fuller, Superintendent, 54, Liverpool-road, Islington, N.

Mrs. W. H. Wrigley, New Wandsworth, S.W., will be glad of Christmas cards, scraps, large and small coloured pictures, which in past years have helped to brighten many homes, hospitals, &c.

The Sick Poor.—Miss Stanley, 7, The Crescent, Clapham Common, S.W., is anxious to distribute packets of Scripture cards, books, &c., among the poor and sick in some of our workhouse infirmaries and hospitals. She will be glad to receive parcels for this purpose.

Chiswick.—Three hundred chairs are needed to reseat the Mission Hall at Chiswick. The evangelist, Mr. Robert T. Smith, 13, Barrowgate-road, Chiswick, who has just completed seven years' labours in this district, will gladly welcome any help. Free breakfasts are given every morning, and a weekly penny dinner, to relieve the existing distress.

Madeira.—For years Mrs. Smart, whose death we recorded last week, was the chief means of carrying on an important Protestant day school at Santa Cruz, Madeira. She took the entire charge and responsibility herself. Any Christians constrained to co-operate in supporting the school can correspond with Rev. J. P. Jones, Caerwent House, Bridgend, Glam.

Victoria Docks.—At this time of the year there is great scarcity of work. The number of men seeking employment is largely increased, owing to slackness in the building and other trades. Last winter we provided breakfasts for the men in our Lecture Hall at Tidal Basin, and we intend to do the same this winter, if possible. I desire also to help cases which come under my personal notice in visitation.—Joseph Overton, Congregational Minister.

Home Teaching Society for the Blind.—The Secretary, Mr. R. Tait, 31, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C., writes:—"We need £200 by the last day of jubilee year to put us in sailing trim for 1888. I have just been amongst a number of our blind pupils—old, young, and middle-aged—and they one and all testify to the benefit and consolation they derive from the regular visits of our teachers. We have seventeen teachers—all blind but one—to pay, and books, &c., to provide."

Latymer-road Mission.—The work includes evening shelters and night schools, where about two hundred boys and girls spend their time happily and healthfully—a gymnasium, an infant day nursery, a men's club, Sunday-schools, and temperance meetings. The soup kitchen has been re-opened, and free dinners have been started for hungry children. Christmas dinners will also be provided for some of the destitute poor. The committee are this year much crippled for want of funds. Contributions may be sent to Florence M. Gladstone, hon. sec., Latymer-road Mission, Blechynden-street, Notting-hill, W.

Lambeth Ragged School Society.—The arrival of winter calls for immediate action in meeting the demands which will be made for warm clothing, boots, woollen articles, &c. There are a thousand children connected with the schools, and a large proportion of them have to endure many privations. Gifts of clothing, &c., and subscriptions for providing children's dinners, will be thankfully received.—E. Nicholls, hon. sec., Lambeth Ragged Schools, Newport-street, Lambeth Walk, S.E.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Miss North, of Axminster, has concluded a Gospel mission at the Methodist Free Church, St. Columb, with good spiritual results.

Mr. Moody is to visit Louisville, Ky. A temporary building, capable of seating five thousand persons, will be erected. The series of meetings will continue for one month, commencing with the New Year.

Rev. G. Frankling Owen has conducted a successful eight days' Gospel mission at the Baptist Chapel, Salcombe, South Devon. The meetings were characterised by much earnestness on the part of the preacher, and were well sustained.

Mr. Todd Osborne, of Glasgow, and Miss Johnstone, of Dumfries, held a series of meetings in connection with the Young Women's Christian Association in Victoria Hall, Belfast, last week, and much good is believed to have been done.

North Tawton, Devon.—A fifteen days' mission has been conducted here by Mr. George Hefford. Large audiences gathered night by night. Some have been awakened, and others professed conversion to God. The Christians have also been stirred and quickened.

Mr. G. D. Shipley, of Welwyn, Herts, and his helpers have paid a visit to some of the villages in the neighbourhood of Croydon, Cambs., and much success has attended their evangelistic labours. At the close of the meetings a number gave in their names as willing to join Bible and other classes.

Major and Mrs. Evered Poole are about to conduct a mission in the Skating Rink, Croydon, from Dec. 3 to 18, in which Canon Wilberforce, Canon Barker, Lady Sebright, Mr. Maynard, and other well-known speakers will take part. They ask for the prayers of God's people, that much blessing may rest upon this mission.

Galway.—On Friday evening, November 18, a most interesting evangelistic meeting was held here. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Robert Moon and Mr. David Miller, students of the Queen's College, the whole meeting was most impressive. It is intended that these meetings be continued at intervals during the winter.

Heaton Chapel, Stockport.—A very successful twelve days' mission was concluded a few days ago in the parish church here. Rev. Sholto D. C. Douglas was the preacher. Meetings for women only were addressed by Miss Cowen, whose appeals produced a remarkable effect. The mission has created much religious interest, which promises to be lasting.

Mr. Scroggie in Glasgow.—For the past fortnight Mr. J. M. Scroggie has been carrying on meetings in Wellpark Free Church, which have been in every sense most successful. On week nights the attendance has kept up steadily, and the number of inquirers has increased as the work has gone on. The Lord has been present in saving power. On Sunday, the 20th, it was arranged to have an overflow meeting in the hall adjoining the church, and expectations were not disappointed, for both church and hall were filled. Fruit was gathered from both, and the closing week has been crowned with much blessing. On Sunday last Mr. Scroggie began work in Dennistoun Free Church.

FLOWER GIRLS' MISSION.—The labours of our missionaries and Bible-woman are greatly blessed. Last winter over thirty thousand meals were provided for poor women and children. Many garments, coal tickets, &c., distributed, while fifty-six girls were taken into the Flower Brigade receiving its shelter and training. The winter brings a renewal of these claims; the Brigade has been re-opened, and the free meals and distribution of clothing. The Committee have made alterations in the Mission premises, and have opened an institute for work girls in the evenings, clubs, classes, &c., being held in connection with them. The claims of these poor creatures are very pressing this winter.

John A. Groom, Hon. Supt.

8, Sekforde-street, Clerkenwell, E.C.

TEMPERANCE and the CHURCHES.

TEMPERANCE SUNDAY was very largely observed over London, and numerous discourses were delivered. At St. James's Hall, in the morning, Rev. Mark Guy Pearse described the steps by which he was led to become an abstainer. In the afternoon, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes preached to an enormous congregation, and denounced the liquor traffic, root and branch. He held both political parties in the State to be guilty in this matter. He professed his profound amazement that any Christian man, who knew what the curse of drink was, could continue to take, or give to others, intoxicating liquors.

On Monday evening a great demonstration was held in Exeter Hall, called by the National Temperance League, organised by the secretary, Mr. Robert Rae. The LORD BISHOP of LONDON presided. His Lordship said those who had looked into the lives of the people at large knew in how very many places the promotion of the temperance cause had substituted happy for miserable homes, health for wretchedness and disease, comfort for privation and poverty; and, what was far more, had enabled many to acknowledge their Creator and Saviour, who, before, were hindered from accepting his loving message, and obeying his holy will.

Rev. Dr. MCKENNAL (Chairman of the Congregational Union) said that was his first appearance on a temperance platform. He became an abstainer because he felt that when he was appointed to his present office he must "lighten the cargo" if he was to get through the labours that came down upon him. Such was the benefit he had derived that he did not think he was likely to become a moderate drinker again. It was always a matter of great grief when the Christian Church stood aloof from great moral movements, for in that she was totally at variance with the example of her Master. One of the most striking features of the life of Christ was his human-divine sympathy with what was going on around, which led Him to break the bonds of national and religious custom in his time. The speaker went on to say that he believed a real awakening to the mode by which a high spiritual life might be attained, would be coincident with an abandonment of intoxicating drinks, which were antagonistic in their influences to closer union with God.

Rev. HUGH PRICE HUGHES reproached Mr. John Bright and Mr. Gladstone in having done little or nothing to further this movement, though both had spoken strongly on it. He despaired of success in the temperance cause until temperance electors were prepared to register their convictions at the polling-booth. England is still grovelling at the foot of the beer barrel. Wales, Scotland, and Ireland have thrown off the shackles of the Sunday liquor traffic, but England is still fettered by them. Temperance electors are strong enough to turn the balance of the political scale if only they were true to their convictions.

Rev. Dr. CLIFFORD (Vice-President, Baptist Union) said the consciences of members of Christian churches had been quickened to a sense of responsibility not only for their own evils, but for the evils that were in the way of their fellows, causing them to assert concerning them that it was their duty to lift every stumbling-stone out of the path of human progress, and get rid of every rock of offence. Temperance, however, is but on the fringe of the churches at present. Every Christian needs to be brought into battle line, so that as one great sacramental host of God they may go forth to combat this giant evil.

Rev. Peter Carmichael (Presbyterian Church of England) having spoken, Rev. Thomas Whitehead (President Primitive Methodist Connexion) urged the desirability of inculcating temperance principles in schools. Rev. W. B. Lark, of the Bible Christian Connexion, said the branch of the Methodist Church to which he belonged had a clean history in regard to the temperance movement. Their ministers were total abstainers to a man. Rev. Thomas Scowby, of the Methodist New Connexion, held that it was the duty as well as the privilege of the churches of Christ to take the lead in this

The Book World.

A New Church History.*

To bring the religious and ecclesiastical history of nineteen centuries, in a succinct and readable form, within the limits of one portable volume, is a gigantic undertaking. Professor G. P. Fisher, of Yale University, has accomplished the task, however, in a way that entitles him to the heartiest thanks of Christendom. As a Professor of Ecclesiastical History he has presumable qualifications and opportunities for the due discharge of such work; but it is one thing to have acquaintance with the facts, and another to present them so as to secure the attention and ensure the profit of the average reader. The author expressly states that he has not written "for technical students exclusively, but for intelligent readers generally." He has produced a book which is pleasant to read and easy to understand, and which must be invaluable to remember. No one can properly estimate the Church life of to-day without knowing something of the links that bind it to the past. Here is the complete chain—or, at least, the chain as complete as existing records will permit. It is truly a magnum opus, and would constitute a worthy monument of the most laborious and industrious life.

The scheme of the work is systematic and excellent. The Christian era is divided into three portions—the ancient, the mediæval, and the modern. These divisions are subdivided into periods, embracing some well-defined course of years. This plan is at once orderly and helpful to the apprehension and the memory. The periods in their turn are dealt with from different standpoints: first, as to the broad facts of the history, then as to the developments in Christian life, worship, and doctrine peculiar to the time. In the third, or modern, era the new topic of "Christian Missions" is introduced, and other aspects of the outcome of the Christian faith are noted. Maps representing the political and religious apportionment of the known world at the periods under consideration, assist the mind of the reader in grasping the whole.

Where the field is so extensive there must necessarily be a selection as to the leading events, personages, and movements that are embodied in the history. Dr. Fisher anticipates that this will give rise to differences of view respecting his admissions and his exclusions. There will also be inaccuracies more or less important. Allowing for all this, we feel that the author has done all that could be expected from any man, and far more than could have been achieved by most. His summary of the early days of the Christian Church, covering the period represented by the sacred writings, seems to us most admirable, and, if, as we must assume, the subsequent periods are treated with equal fidelity, the volume is one that no student of the Christian religion, in its world-wide scope and influence, can afford to be without. We might add a word of minor criticism as to the closing period, which the author terminates at the present year of grace. Seeing, however, that among the names of living persons he only mentions three who can be said to be prominent actors in the making of Church history to-day, the close of his final period is somewhat post dated. Still, it is a noble gift to this generation, and we hope to dip full often into its eminently instructive pages. We ought to add a word of commendation of the full index, which greatly enhances the worth of the book for purposes of reference.

Miss Holt's New Story.

IN CONVENT WALLS (5s. J. F. Shaw & Co.) is Miss Holt's new historical tale. It contains three connected narratives, of which the third affords the title of the book. It is an admirably drawn picture of the lights and shadows of convent life at its best—and truly cruel and contemptible is its best. None of the darkest and wickedest features are introduced. Like all this gifted lady's writings, it is of thrilling and sustained interest; high-toned, Scriptural, and excellent in every respect.

The Good Prince.

Rev. W. W. Tulloch's STORY OF THE PRINCE CONSORT, written for English boys and girls, has been approved of by Her Majesty, and may, therefore, be accepted as authentic. We heartily commend it as a gift book for the season. It is got up in royal style, by Messrs. Nisbet & Co. (3s. 6d.)

Two Books for "Stay-at-Homes."

The next best thing to visiting foreign lands oneself is to read the accounts written by those who have travelled. Mr. E. H. Riches' MY TOUR EASTWARD is so well written, the descriptions are so graphic, and the pictures drawn so well, both by pen and pencil, that, after finishing the little volume, it is difficult to realise that the Eastern lands have been seen only with the mind's eye. (English Publishing Company.)

DAILY LIFE AND WORK IN INDIA, by Rev. W. J. Wilkins, of the London Missionary Society, is a most interesting book. It gives information, not only about missionary work, but, as its title indicates, on all subjects connected with Indian life, native customs and religions. It closes with a powerful statement of the spiritual needs of our vast dependency. The illustrations make it well suited to interest the young. (Fisher Unwin.)

Annuals, &c.

A graphically written tale by Sarah Tytler, recording the sayings and doings of a Gipsy girl, rejoicing in the curious name of VASHTI SAVAGE, is the extra Christmas number of The Sunday Magazine. Apart from the pleasure to be derived from the author's excellent character-sketching, the story should awaken interest in this neglected class for whose welfare Mr. George Smith, of Coalville, is deeply concerned (6d. Isbister). The annual for 1888 of Little Folks is a children's story of the fairy order, by L. T. Meade, THE HOUSE OF SURPRISES. It is got up in Messrs. Cassell's best style and capitally illustrated. Cassell's ILLUSTRATED ALMANACK (6d.) is as attractive in its pictoria resources and as full of information as ever.

Stories for the Young.

HER ONLY SON, by the Author of Nelly's Dark Days (Scottish Temperance League), is one of Hesba Stretton's touching tales, written to expose the fearful evils of intemperance and of the liquor traffic. The same house sends out THE ADVISER; the annual volume of which is full of good advice from beginning to end. It is, in short, a first-rate temperance publication. THE BOY WITHOUT A NAME (1s. 6d.), by the well-known writer of boys' books, W. M. Thayer, is a true life-story ably told. It has many lessons for children, and for parents, and also some valuable suggestions on the subject of adoption. In THE BOY FRIENDS, by Rose Jay (1s. G. Stoneman, 67, Paternoster-row), we have a pleasing and well-written story in which is some good advice to the young. Miss Maria Havergal has left a touching memorial behind her in a fragrant little "story of God's grace," CRIPPLE JOSEPH (1s. Nisbet & Co.). The fact that it revives the memory of her still more gifted sister, Frances, will secure for it a hearty welcome.

A Gift for the New Year.*

The salient features of this elegant and instructive chart are:—

(1) The parallel lines, giving at a glance the progress of the world's kingdoms in relationship to that of the Jews, and bringing out the continuity of a seed having God's name put upon it, throughout all history.

(2) Two special points demand careful study as being freshly brought out:—

(a) In the Note on Babylon, the link between the Old Testament Babylon Apostasy and that of the Babylon of the Revelation is brought to light with a definiteness of Scripture proof which seems to establish an indisputable identity between the woman of Zech. v. returning "to her own place in the land of Shinar," and the harlot on the seven hills of Rev. xvii.; St. Paul, in 2 Thess. ii., fastens the chain of evidence with marked and verbal allusion. "Let us make us a name"—the earliest motto of apostasy—finds its antithesis in the awful, "In her forehead a name...." "Let us build us a city and a tower whose top shall reach unto heaven," finds its antithesis in "Her sins have reached unto heaven;" "her smoke ascendeth for ever and ever." A careful study of the whole note would seem to furnish a weapon in the Romish controversy too long allowed to hang unused in the Scripture armoury.

---

* HISTORY OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH. By G. P. Fisher, D.D., LL.D. 12s. Hodder & Stoughton.

* THE HOLY SEED. A CHART. By Miss E. S. Elliott. Beautifully engraved in gold and colours, bringing out the connectedness throughout Scripture history of God's chosen out Remnant, in its relationship to the course of the world's kingdoms, up to the establishment of the Millennial reign. Suitable for binding in Bibles. Price 1s. Post free. S. Bagster & Sons.

(b) In a second note the transfer to the Church in the Upper Chamber of the New Covenant of Jeremiah xxxi. by our Lord "in the night in which he was betrayed" appears in detail so forcible that it is as though a family archive were brought to light to which each member of that family may immediately lay claim with fresh impulse and assurance — a "Divine Magna Charta" preached now "to the humblest believers." This the Church is seen to hold ad interim. "A nationally restored Israel will yet claim it."

For other points brought to light—the parallelism of the Jewish "great tribulation" and the Church "tribulation of Jesus Christ," the transfer of "the Name" in the Ascension-blessing, &c., &c., we refer our readers to the chart itself. Of course to many some of these will seem debatable subjects, but no one can fail to derive profit from such suggestive parallels.

Mr. Haslam's New Book.

Under the title of Gleanings from the Harvest, Rev. W. Haslam gives us a racy volume of ministerial and mission experiences on the same lines as his two previous autobiographical works—"From Death into Life," and "Yet Not I." All who have read with interest and pleasure those narratives will welcome these "Gleanings." Though a complete and independent work, it goes, in some sense, to serve as a continuation of the other two. We have the same liveliness of style, the same vigour of expression, and the same fidelity to Gospel truth. The book will prove specially serviceable as a gift-book to any who have Ritualistic leanings, or who but dimly apprehend the great truth pressed by the Lord upon Nicodemus in that midnight interview, "Ye must be born again." (2s. 6d. Morgan & Scott.)

Miscellaneous.

Dr. Geikie's Life of Christ is now published in four editions; 2 vols. illustrated, 30s.; library edition, 2 vols., 30s.; student's edition, 2 vols., 16s.; and cheap edition, 1 vol., 7s. 6d. The last-named meets a largely felt want.

In the Dashing Days of Old; or, The Worldwide Adventures of Willie Grant. By Gordon Stables, C.M., M.D., R.N. 5s. Shaw & Co. This is a stirring narrative of naval life in the early part of the present century, and will be a delight to boys, as the works of this writer always are.

Captain Dawson's Brave Hearts and Busy Hands (6d. John F. Shaw & Co.) conveys stirring and prayerful lessons, based on the record of the lives and doings of Nehemiah, Ezra, and Haggai; these are practically applied to the individual, ecclesiastical, and national experiences and circumstances of to-day.

Specially interesting just now is the Sketch of the Life of C. H. Spurgeon, issued in a twopenny pamphlet by Messrs. Passmore & Alabaster. The sketch is full, and, of course, authentic, and there are thirteen engravings, including portraits of the Tabernacle pastor, his grandfather, his father, his brother James, and his two sons.

Messrs. Cassell & Co. have added another brick to their pile of popular literature by the serial issue of The Dictionary of English History. Such a work, prepared in the thorough and reliable style of this house, will prove invaluable for purposes of reference. With this first number is given a handsome fac-simile reproduction of "Magna Charta," well worth framing.

Dr. Barnardo is somewhat late with his Oct.-Nov. issue of Night and Day (4d. 20, Stepney-causeway, E.), but most readers will be too engrossed with the deeply interesting contents to look at the date. They will here find full details of the Doctor's new Manitoba farming project, and much information, of a pathetic kind, relating to the work of the Homes and the poor children of our great city.

The Christmas Letter Mission.—We have received from Messrs. Hazell, Watson & Viney an album containing specimens of the publications of the above Mission. It contains elegant picture and music cards for Christmas, the New Year, and other occasions, and the printed and illustrated letters which have been issued year by year. It is a useful sample case to order from, and would be an acceptable present anywhere.

Correspondencies of Faith and Views of Madame Guyon. By Rev. Henry T. Cheever. Elliot Stock. We have read this work with the deepest interest, and feel that upon the whole it deserves to be warmly commended. Although occasionally bordering on the questionable and transcendental, it seems to us eminently calculated to confer spiritual benefit. It is a wonderfully live book, and treats the grand subject of fellowship with God in a way at once soul-refreshing and enlarging. The object is to lead Christians into the enjoyment, if possible, of the perfect life. It is not controversial in its tone, nor can it be regarded as advocating perfectionism in the flesh. Rather, it is an endeavour to bring before us in concrete fulness the possibilities of Christian experience and to supply healthy stimulus and aim.

CHRISTMAS CARDS.

Messrs. Castell Brothers, Warwick-lane, E.C., publish a large variety of cards for Christmas and the New Year, under the generic title of the "Peniel" series. The designs are excellent, and the colourings in most cases of a very attractive kind, while the selection of Scriptures and verses from well-known Christian poets is unexceptionable.

A packet of very cheap and tastefully got up cards comes from Messrs. Wheeler Brothers, 88, Mildmay-park, N. We are especially pleased with the "Crown" and "Peace be Still" packets, the former containing pretty floral designs and texts, and the latter sea and river views, with appropriate flowers, texts, and wishes for the season. The Motto cards, printed in large type, in scarlet and blue, are very striking. Friends in Canada can get these cards at the Willard Tract Repository, Toronto.

NEW YEAR'S ADDRESSES.

A little budget of these annual reminders of the flight of time comes to us from Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co. No More; or, Bright Thoughts for 1888 (9d. per doz.), hints at the glories of the future state, when the believer shall not only possess much that he lacks here, but lack much that he would now gladly be without.—Learners, by Mrs. Cronyn (1d.), extols the beauty and blessedness of a whole-souled obedience to the Divine command and will.—In Thou Winnowest My Path (1d.), Miss S. M. Nugent takes up the idea of the believer being the property of his God, and made to pass through the process of separation and purification, as the good grain is winnowed in the fan. The simile is well worked out, and the address sparkles with bright flashes of helpful thought.—Christ Possessed, by Rev. E. W. Moore (1d.), is on somewhat similar lines. He quotes with approval a saying that "sanctification is a God-possessed soul," and amplifies the truth that Christ is in as well as for the believer.—Memorials of Jordan (1d.) is the title of Rev. F. H. White's address. From the experiences of the Israelites in their entrance upon the Promised Land many practical lessons for the Christian are drawn.—A further stage in the same line of teaching is reached by Rev. C. A. Fox in New Year in the Land (2d.). In the first part the Christian's inheritance is unfolded and illustrated with Mr. Fox's customary wealth of expression and elevation of tone. The second half of the address deals with the fulness of the Spirit as the power for service. The whole is an eminently practical and stimulating utterance.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Mr. G. Stoneman, 67, Paternoster-row: — The Boy Friends; or, More than Brothers, by Rose Jay. 1s.

Messrs. Cassell & Co., Limited, Ludgate-hill:—The Palace Beautiful: A Story for Girls, by L. T. Meade.

Messrs. Macniven & Wallace, 138, Prince's-street, Edinburgh:—The Girls' Friendly Society Hymn-book. With tunes. 1s. 6d.

The Indian Female Normal School and Instruction Society, 2, Adelphi-terrace, W.C.:—Our Sisters in India, by Rev. A. H. Lash. 1s.

Griffith & Farran:—Manual of Sonography: A new joined-vowel script system of phonetic shorthand, by Rev. D. S. Davies, Carmarthen. 2s.

Messrs. Marshall Brothers, 10, Paternoster-row:—Christians and Christians, by Rev. F. S. Webster, M.A., Principal of the Church Army Training Home. 1s.—Hymns for Conferences and Bible-readings, Compiled by W. Spencer Walton. 1d.

Messrs. Sampson, Low & Co., Dunstan's House, Fetter-lane, E.C.:—Through Central Asia: with a Map and Appendix on the Diplomacy and Delimitation of the Russo-Afghan Frontier, by Rev. Henry Lansdell, D.D., M.R.A.S., F.R.G.S. With seventy-four illustrations. 12s.

Messrs. T. & T. Clark, 38, George-street, Edinburgh:—A Manual of Biblical Archæology, by Carl Friedrich. Vol. i. Translated from the German by Rev. Peter Christie. Edited by Rev. Frederick Crombie, D.D. (Clark's Foreign Theological Library. New Series. Vol. xxxii.). 10s. 6d.

Mr. James Nisbet & Co.:—God's Garden, by "Heart's-ease." 3s. 6d.—Three Friends of God: Records from the lives of John Tauler, Nicholas, of Basle, and Henry Suso, by Frances Bevan. 5s.—Lotta's Life Mistake, by Mrs. Eva Travers Evered Poole. 1s.—Seek, and ye shall Find: Studies in Holy Scripture. The Four Greater Prophets. Part i., Isaiah; Part iv., Daniel, by C. M. and S. I. M. 1s. each.

Messrs. Wyman & Sons, 75, Great Queen-street, E.C.:—Hymns and Meditations, by W. T. N.

Mr. Elliot Stock:—With the Prophets Joel, Amos, and Jonah, by Rev. Alfred Clayton Thiselton. 4s.

W. Isbister, Limited, 56, Ludgate-hill, E.C.:—Social Wreckage, by Francis Peck. New edition. 3s. 6d.

Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.:—"Nothing to You," by Charlotte Elizabeth Tidy. Second Edition. 1s. 6d

Mr. J. Pulsford, 80, Terminus-road, Eastbourne:—Beauty for Ashes; and other Sermons, by Rev. A. A. Toms.

Messrs. Brook & Chrystal, 11, Market-street, Manchester:—Sermons from a Sick Room, by Rev. Alexander Mackennal, B.A., D.D.

Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling:—The Romance of the Ranks: Reminiscences of Army Work, by Miss M. S. S. Herdman, founder of the Soldiers' Scripture Union.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—The Minister's Pocket Diary and Clerical Vade Mecum, 1888. 2s.—Soul-winning, by Forster Crozier. 1s. 6d.—Notes on the Books of the Bible, by the late Dr. W. P. Mackay. 2s. 6d.

Sunday-school Union:—The Biblical Treasury of Expositions and Illustrations (Old Testament Series. Vol. viii.). Ezekiel to Obadiah. 2s.—A Day in the Country; A Cantata for Sunday-schools, by John Gummer. 4d.

Messrs. John F. Shaw & Co.:—In Convent Walls: The Story of the Despensers, by Emily S. Holt. 5s.—City Snowdrops; or, The House of Flowers, by M. E. Winchester. 5s.—The Shepherd's Darling, by Brenda. 3s. 6d.—Mr. Bartholomew's Little Girl, by L. Marston. 2s. 6d.—The Story of Little Hal and the Golden Gate, by Maude M. Butler. 3s. 6d.—Froggy's Little Brother, by Brenda. Illustrated edition. 3s. 6d.—Sweet Home, by Grace Stebbing. 1s.—Shaw's Playtime Stories: At Home, by Grace Stebbing, and Play by the Sea, by Catherine Shaw. 3d. each.

Religious Tract Society:—The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's: A School Story, by Talbot Baines Reed. 5s.—Joint Guardians, by Evelyn Everett-Green. 5s.—The Black Troopers, and other stories. Strange Tales of Peril and Adventure. Remarkable Adventures from Real Life. Adventures Ashore and Afloat. 2s. 6d. each—Winning Her Way. 1s. 6d.—Singed by the Fire, by Mrs. Grant. 1s.—That Vulgar Girl, by Emma Leslie. 1s.—Listening to Jesus: Sunday Readings for the Little Ones, by E. M. Waterworth. 1s. 6d.—Betel Nut Island: Personal Experiences and Adventures in the Eastern Tropics, by John T. Beighton. 2s. 6d.—The Religious Tract Society Pocket Book and Scripture Calendar for 1888. 1s. 6d.—The Boys' Own Annual. The Girls' Own Annual. 8s. each.

PAMPHLETS RECEIVED.

Mr. J. E. Hawkins:—Take Him at His Word, by Mrs. W. E. Legg. 1d.—Mr. Elliot Stock:—"Believe:" helpful words for the anxious and the doubting. 1d.—"The Daily Bread Almanack," compiled by Rev. J. Smith, Dufftown. 1d.—Messrs. Ford & Coghill, Glasgow:—"Timely Decision:" An Address to the Young. By Rev. W. Duncan, Glasgow. 1½d.—Mr. T. Woolmer:—A Word in Season: A Lecture on the People of the West Indies; their duties to themselves and others, by Rev. Thomas M. Chambers, M.A.

Almanacks.—Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.:—The British Workman Almanack; The Band of Hope Almanack; The People's Almanack, 1d. each.—Messrs. Wheeler Bros., 88, Mildmay-park, N:—The Ruby Illustrated Almanack and Text Book. 1d.—Messrs. Passmore & Allabaster, 4, Paternoster-buildings:—Spurgeon's Illustrated Almanack. 1d.—The Scripture-subject Searching Almanack, by E. L. S. (1d. Marshall Bros., 10, Paternoster-row).—Religious Tract Society:—The People's Almanack; The Child's Companion Almanack; Illustrated Sheet Almanack. 1d. each.—The Pocket Book Almanack, 1d. and 2d.

The annual volume of Our Own Magazine (2s. Children's Special Service Mission, 13, Warwick-lane, E.C.), is strong in Gospel truth, put in a bright and attractive style.

Wayside Pearls, by Cecilia Havergal (Dean & Son, 160a, Fleet-street, E.C.), contains a text and verse for each day of the month; it is tastefully got up, and prettily illuminated.

The Illustrated Missionary News for 1888 will contain—in addition to a general review of the foreign mission field—biographical sketches of eminent missionaries, illustrated descriptions of special scenes and incidents in connection with mission works, statistical information, original papers on missionary subjects, topographical notices of mission lands and stations, &c. (Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.).

THE ISLAND AND COAST SOCIETY FOR IRELAND has been labouring for fifty-four years in the remote coasts and adjacent islands of Ireland. It maintains at present forty-one Scriptural schools, which must of necessity be closed without its help. It is most necessary to keep alive these centres of truth, and thus to encourage our Protestant poor amidst their present difficulties

BURIAL REFORM.—A meeting of the Council of the Church of England Burial Reform Association has been held in London, when it was resolved to ask for the co-operation of the Sanitary Institute of Great Britain, and the sanitary authorities generally throughout the kingdom, in the effort now being made by this Society to bring back the nation to the mode of burial indicated in the Burial Service—namely that known as the "earth-to-earth" method.

lotes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, DEC. 4.—JEREMIAH XXXV.

HE subject of this chapter takes us back seven-een years, to the days of Jehoiakim, shortly efore the appearance of Nebuchadnezzar at erusalem (ver. 11).

2.—The house of the Rechabites.—"The Recha-ites were a nomad tribe, not of Jewish but of Kenite race (1 Chron. ii. 55). While the main ody of the Kenites gradually adopted settled abits and dwelt in cities (1 Sam. xxx. 29), the Rechabites persisted in living the free desert ife, under the influence and authority of onadab, a remarkable man of their tribe, who ived in Jehu's reign. From the part he took n helping Jehu to root out the worship of Baal, it seems plain that he was a zealous adherent of Jehovah (2 Kings x. 15—17)."—S.C. Their punctilious obedience to Jonadab's precepts is employed by the Lord to point out n dark contrast the very different treatment He had received from his people.

11.—Let us go to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans.—Probably, supposing that Jerusalem was safe from the Chaldean invasion through the Lord's protection, but they did not expect to find a disobedient people, about to be punished for their disobedience.

14.—I have spoken unto you...but ye have not inclined your ear.—The contrast is between the Rechabites' obedience to an earthly father, or chief, one of themselves; and Israel's disobedience to their heavenly protector and friend, the God who had done so much for them.

19.—Shall not want a man to stand before Me for ever.—"Stripped of the metaphor it means that their welfare should ever be the object of the Divine care, and accordingly Dr. Wolff and Signor Pieratti bear witness to the existence of a large tribe who represent themselves as the descendants of the Rechabites."—S.C.

MONDAY, DEC. 5.—JEREMIAH XXXVI.

"We have now reached the end of the prophecies relating to Israel and Judah, and find very fittingly attached to them an account of the circumstances under which very many of them, and also the prophecies concerning the Gentiles, were first formed into one volume."—S.C.

5.—I am shut up; I cannot go into the house of the Lord.—"Hindered" is the meaning of "shut up." What the hindrance was we are not told. He was not yet in prison, as ver. 19 shows; possibly it may have been some ceremonial defilement.

6.—Upon the fasting day.—The only legal fast in the Jewish year was the tenth day of the seventh month—the Day of Atonement; but it would appear from ver. 9 that what is here meant is the special fast day appointed for public humiliation on the occasion of the approach of the Chaldean army.

19.—Go, hide thee, thou and Jeremiah.—"The princes whose friendly feelings towards Jeremiah we have seen in xxvi. 16, before reporting the matter to the king, were anxious to provide for the prophet's safety, well knowing the mind of so jealous a tyrant as Jehoiakim."—S.C.

24.—Yet they were not afraid.—See how differently good king Josiah acted (2 Kings xxii. 11).

30.—He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David.—"This is not contradicted by his son Jehoiakin ascending the throne after his death, for he was immediately besieged in Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, and compelled to surrender after three months, then to go into exile to Babylon. This could not be called a sitting on the throne."—Keil. His dead body shall be cast out.—See xxii. 19 for Jehoiakim's burial. His insult to the word of God brought dishonour upon himself. See 1 Sam. ii. 30.

TUESDAY, DEC. 6.—JEREMIAH XXXVII.

3.—Pray now unto the Lord our God for us.—Even evil men will at times appear to value the intercessions of others for them, though having no communion with the Lord themselves. Strange that he should not hearken to the words of the Lord through the prophet, and yet think that the Lord would hearken to his words

5.—Then Pharaoh's army was come forth out of Egypt.—This was Pharaoh-Hophra (xliv. 30). We learn from Ezek. xvii. 15 that he was an ally of Zedekiah, who had applied to him for help. We learn here how vain his help was.

12.—To separate himself thence.—Lit., "to receive a share thence."—S.C. "To receive his portion there."—R.V. "When the siege was for a time raised, the first object with everybody would be to receive supplies of food, accordingly Jeremiah accompanied by others started for Anathoth to see if any stores still remained."—S.C.

17.—Thou shalt be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon.—After faithfully delivering his message, not fearing the offence it might cause, Jeremiah appeals for more merciful treatment, and his prayer is granted.

21.—Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.—It was during this mitigation of his imprisonment (see xxxii. 2) that he wrote those four chapters, xxx.—xxxiii., which contain the most cheering prospects as to Israel's future, and set forth the most glorious Messianic hopes of all his prophecies. The king's kindness, such as it was, had its reward, and at least helped towards drawing forth some of the most glorious promises the Scripture contains concerning the greatness and glory of the coming King.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 7.—JEREMIAH XXXVIII.

"The object of the princes in imprisoning Jeremiah in Jonathan's house (xxxvii. 15, 20) had been to get him out of the way, as no doubt his predictions did depress the minds of the people. This purpose was frustrated by his removal to the "court of the prison," where his friends had free access to him. Shortly, therefore, before the capture of the city (as Zedekiah was powerless (ver. 5), and his unwilling assent soon gained), Jeremiah was cast into a miry pit."—S.C.

4—We beseech thee, let this man be put to death.—These words, connected with those with which the verse closes, "This man seeketh not the welfare of this people, but the hurt," resemble those which were spoken (John xi. 50) of the expediency of One whom Jeremiah foreshadowed dying for the people, "that the whole nation perish not." There is a close analogy between the king's words (ver. 5, "Behold, he is in your hand") and Pilate's act, "he delivered Jesus to their will" (Luke xxiii. 25).

6.—So Jeremiah sunk in the mire.—So Jesus speaks in Spirit, through the mouth of David, "I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing," and prays, "Deliver Me out of the mire, and let Me not sink" (Ps. lxix. 2, 14), a prayer answered in the resurrection.

10.—Then the king commanded...take up Jeremiah.—This change of mind, though that of a weak and vascillating king, may typify the "determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God," by which, justice having been satisfied, God raised Him from the dead. The further act of the king, who "sent, and took Jeremiah the prophet unto him into the third entry that is in the house of the Lord," is typically significant, nor ought we, perhaps, even to overlook the introduction of the word "third," for which the commentators can assign no reason. Significant, too, is the solemn oath of the king to preserve Jeremiah's life. See Ps. cx. 4.

19.—I am afraid of the Jews.—Strange infatuation of poor fallen nature that would rather disobey God than offend man.

27.—He told them according to all these words.—"He told them what was true, but not what they wanted to know. He was also ordered to be silent by One to whom obedience was due."—S.C.

THURSDAY, DEC. 8.—JEREMIAH XXXIX.

2.—And in the eleventh year of Zedekiah.—"We gather from this verse that the siege lasted one day short of eighteen months."—Streane.

5.—Overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho.—Jericho, the first city that withstood Israel, and whose rebuilding was forbidden under penalty of a curse (Josh. vi. 26, 1 Kings xvi. 34) is thus connected with disaster, as in our Lord's parable of the good Samaritan (Luke x. 30), where it indeed come down morally from Jerusalem to Jericho (if not farther, Is. i. 10), when her last king (before the "Lion of the tribe of Judah") was thus captured near the city of the curse.

6.—Slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes.—This judgment upon the grandsons of the good king Josiah was in consequence of their father's wickedness. He had, in addition to all his previous disobedience, handed over to death (so far as his intention went) the prophet of the Lord (xxxviii. 4, 5). Doubtless, too, their own wickedness justified God in thus treating them (xxxi. 30).

10.—Left of the poor of the people, which had nothing.—It is not unfrequently an advantage to be "poor" and "have nothing." It is so distinctly in spiritual things (Matt. v. 3), as the first words of our Lord's public teaching show.

12.—Take him, and look well to him, and do him no harm.—Jeremiah could say, as a greater than he did, "The Lord thinketh upon me" (Ps. xl. 17).

18.—I will surely deliver thee.—Ebed-melech had been kind to a prophet (xxxviii. 7), and now receives a prophet's reward, as well as a Divine recognition of his faith.

FRIDAY, DEC. 9.—JEREMIAH XL.

1.—The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord.—These words present a difficulty, as there is no prophetic utterance recorded till xlii. 7. It is best to take them as the heading of the section xl.—xliv., the early part of which is only a historical introduction.

3.—Therefore this thing is come upon you.—This verse, spoken by a Gentile conqueror to a Jewish captive, must have been profoundly humiliating.

4.—I will look well unto thee.—The Hebrew is lit., "I will put my eye upon thee." Comp. a similar expression in Ps. xxxii. 8, where "I will guide thee with mine eye" is lit. "I will counsel thee with mine eye upon thee."

5.—And a reward.—Better rendered in R.V., "and a present."

7.—The captains of the forces.—"The various leaders of bands among the Jews, who would keep out of the way during the presence of the Babylonian army."—Streane.

14.—Baalis the king of the Ammonites.—He may have had a spite against Gedaliah as being a friend of Jeremiah, who had refused the alliance against the Chaldæans offered by the Ammonites and others (xxvii.).

16.—Thou speakest falsely of Ishmael.—Had Jeremiah been consulted as to the truth of this charge against Ishmael there might have been (as subsequently, xlii. 3) a word from the Lord throwing light upon the matter. Gedaliah's confidence in his own opinion was his destruction.

SATURDAY, DEC. 10.—JEREMIAH XLI.

1.—Ishmael...of the seed royal.—The motive of Ishmael's conspiracy seems here disclosed. It was jealousy that one who was not "of the seed royal" should be ruler over the Jewish remnant left in the land, whilst there was amongst them a descendant of their kings.

2.—Ishmael...and the ten men that were with him.—It would be difficult to account for eleven men accomplishing such a feat, were it not that Josephus speaks (Ant. x. 9) of Gedaliah's helplessness, as caused by intoxication at the feast (ver. 1).

9.—Filled it with them that were slain.—As was done at the well at Cawnpore during the Indian mutiny.

14.—Cast about and returned.—I.e., turned round, faced about. Ishmael and his ten men were too few to control them as soon as aid was near. He had been driving them eastward towards the land of Ammon, but at the sight of Johanan they wheeled about and hastened towards him."—S.C.

17, 18.—To go to enter into Egypt, because of the Chaldeans.—The reason why "they were afraid of them" was probably that they expected the Chaldeans to avenge the murder of Gedaliah, "whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land," and they feared that this might involve them in the charge of guilt, as the vengeance might be executed without much dis-

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Rev. Herbert E. Ryle, M.A., Fellow of King's College Cambridge, son of the Bishop of Liverpool, has been elected Hulsean Professor of Divinity at Cambridge University, in succession to Dr. Hort.

The late Miss Maria V. G. Havergal has left legacies to the Church Missionary Society, the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Church of England Scripture Readers' Society, and the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews.

The Record says that the practical reply of the C.M.S. to the criticisms of Canon Isaac Taylor will take the form of an earnest appeal for well-qualified men to prosecute still more vigorously the work of existing missions amongst the Mohammedans.

The first Church Army Station in Wales has celebrated its anniversary at Esclusham. In the opinion of the vicar, the Army shows "plainly what is the pressing need of the Church in Wales" at the present time. The Church Army has also been introduced into Rhos, Llangollen, Oswestry, Overton, and Denbigh.

METHODIST.

Mr. Charles Garnett has recently conducted a ten days' mission at Caistor, with most gratifying results.

Two ladies, who do not wish their names known, have sent £1000 to the Treasurer of the West London Mission.

West-street Chapel, in which John Wesley, Whitfield, and Fletcher of Madeley formerly preached, is to be offered for sale on December 15.

The Wesleyans at Bacup have commenced Saturday evening entertainments for the people, at which audiences of nearly two thousand gather.

The Rescue Home at Brixton, started by Mrs. Price Hughes, is overcrowded, and efforts are being made to secure the enlargement of the premises.

Great activity is being manifested by the Primitive Methodists in missionary matters. A determined effort is to be made to carry out the new enterprises in Africa which have been decided upon.

Rev. Thomas Cook has been conducting an eleven days' mission at Dunstable. The meetings have been abundantly blessed of God. Over a hundred adults, and nearly forty juveniles have confessed Christ. The work is still going on.

A remarkable spiritual awakening is reported from Hyde, near Manchester, in connection with services conducted by Rev. A. T. Guttery and Rev. J. Squires. Numbers have openly professed conversion, and been accepted into church fellowship.

The Methodist Recorder hopes that without delay a "Life" of Sir William M'Arthur will be written. "Ample materials for a book of moderate size must be immediately accessible. Judiciously handled, they should ensure a most interesting and useful book."

Rev. Ellis Roberts is returning home on furlough, after twelve years of hard and successful toil in India. By his knowledge of Hindoo philosophy and intense devotion to his work, he has secured for himself a prominent place among the missionary heroes of Southern India.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Notes and News announces that Dr. Joseph Parker will sail from New York on December 10 by the steamer Etruria.

Rev. J. Thorpe has been conducting special services which were much appreciated, at Burnt Ash and New Malden.

A mission chapel to seat 350 persons is in course of erection at Nether-green, Woodhouse, in connection with Headingley-hill Church. With the chapel are to be four class-rooms.

Rev. J. Jackson Wray, who was expected home before this, has been detained at New York, owing to the serious illness of Mrs. Wray.

Rev. B. Shankland has completed the 14th year of his ministry at Castle-street Church, Tredegar, Mon., during which time he has received 316 persons into church fellowship.

Rev. D. Evans, pastor of Audley Range Church, Blackburn, has commenced holding a monthly service for the Welsh residents in the district conducted wholly in their own language.

Rev. R. Balgarnie has been holding mission services at Addison-street Church, Nottingham. A large number have found peace by believing, and one Sunday-school teacher had the joy of seeing all her class converted.

Rev. Dr. Thomas, speaking at the Tabernacle Welsh Chapel, Liverpool, said the four chapels they had thirty-four years ago have increased to nine, with two mission-rooms, and their membership has in the same period increased from 750 to over 2000.

Rev. G. S. Reaney will commence his ministry at Cavendish-street Chapel, Manchester, on the second Sunday in January. In the afternoon of that day Mrs. Reaney will commence holding services in the chapel similar to those which she has so successfully conducted at Stepney.

For seven months past there has been a gracious revival of the desire for prayer in the church under the pastorate of Rev. G. W. McCree, Borough-road, Southwark. After a time of spiritual dearth "the dew of Hermon" seemed, in answer to the fervent prayers of many, to fall upon the church. Then the Sunday-school teachers met weekly for prayer, and elder scholars joined them in supplication. Conversions followed, and several of the young people joined the church. A young people's prayer-meeting was formed, placed under proper supervision, and it has already had precious results. Now the choir—a large one—wishes to meet

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Joseph James Neave, who has been for many years engaged in ministerial work in Australia, looks to returning home early in the coming year.

Frederic Sessions and W. I. Sayce have been engaged in a Gospel mission and in Bible-readings in Hitchin, Herts, and the latter has conducted a series of meetings in Luton.

The anniversary services of New-street Mission Sunday-school, Bristol, were held on November 20, and were very successful. Next evening about three hundred took tea, and had an enthusiastic meeting in connection with No 1 class of the Friars Adult School.

Some years ago the meeting at Long Sutton, Somerset, had almost expired, but through the efforts of a lady friend, and by missions subsequently held by others, there is now a lively and useful meeting sustained, influencing and permeating the neighbourhood for good. Wm. Hobson has just concluded a helpful week's mission there. The devoted labours of Thomas Dyer are greatly valued.

SALVATION ARMY.

A graphic story of life in "the London slums," by Mrs. Carleton, is given in last week's issue of The War Cry.

From the Training Home at Clapton an average of nearly one hundred officers are sent out monthly. During this year 981 have been sent out.

Mrs. Bramwell Booth has in the Rescue Homes several young women whom she can recommend as general and other servants. Her address is 259, Mare-street, Hackney, E.

Major Clibborn, who has returned to Geneva from a tour of the Swiss corps, writes: "The faithful little band that have withstood years of persecution are still at their posts. The result is that the 'publicans and sinners' begin to feel that their true friend is the Salvation Army."

Rescue work is being vigorously carried on in Australia. The Sydney War Cry says that police magistrates, professional men, and policemen send poor, fallen girls to the Army rather than to jail, while the prison authorities willingly allow inmates to be communicated with if they desire to live a better life.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Liverpool Presbytery is organising large missionary meetings in that city, and in Birkenhead.

Dr. Gray, of Liberton, has been selected for the Moderatorship of the next Established Assembly.

Rev. Alex. Gregory, of the English Presbyterian Church, Wooler, it is expected will be appointed to work in Amoy, China.

A fortnight's special mission has been held at St. Andrew's Church, Cardiff, by Mr. W. Thomson. Many were brought to a full decision for Christ.

"Dr. Thain Davidson at Home" is the title of an article in the December number of The Young Man, which also contains a portrait of the Doctor.

The English Presbyterian Church has suffered a severe loss in the death, on Saturday evening, of Professor Graham, of the College in Queen-square.

Dr. Oswald Dykes, of Regent-square Church, has been elected Moderator of the next Assembly of the English Presbyterian Church, which meets at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

At present there are only eighteen vacant charges in connection with the English Presbyterian Church. This is considerably under the average the number at the corresponding date during the past two years being about twenty-six.

A gentleman connected with the English Presbyterian Church has promised a subscription of £500 to the Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund on condition that the capital of the Fund be increased within the next year by £3000. Three donations of £100 have also been promised.

BAPTIST.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Leicester, is on a short visit to Tangier, Morocco.

The Baptist Magazine for December contains a portrait and biographical sketch of Rev. Frederick Trestrail, D.D.

At the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday next Mr. Archibald G. Brown will be the preacher in the morning, and Rev. James A. Spurgeon in the evening.

Rev. T. Vincent Tymms, Downs Chapel, Clapton, resumed his monthly lectures to young men on Sunday evening last. His subject was "Modern Thought; its Influence on Character."

A "Stowell Brown" Guild, having for its object the spiritual, moral, and physical culture of the young men and women of the congregation, has been formed in connection with Myrtle-street Chapel, Liverpool. Rev. D. P. Macpherson, pastor, is the president.

Rev. C. Douglas Crouch, Worthing, reported at his fourth anniversary that during these years the membership had increased from 30 to 112, over £3500 had been contributed. and the congregations had greatly increased. The Church is looking for yet greater blessings in days to come.

On Friday afternoon Mr. Archibald G. Brown met the ladies of the "Brixton Clothing Society" at a drawing-room meeting in the home of Mrs. Higgs. Mr. Brown gave an account of the work in his hands, which occupied over an hour. At the close, the ladies presented him with 1500 garments for the poor, and the sum of £100.

Rev. W. J. Mayers addressed an audience of 3500 people on the afternoon of Sunday week in Colston Hall, Bristol, on the "Down-Grade." He entered a protest against the denial of man's fallen nature, and the attempt to substitute "evolution" for "regeneration," and uttered some earnest and homely counsels concerning "gambling," "drinking," "loose living,"

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Protestant Orphan Society for the Counties o Antrim and Down have received a bequest of £500.

During the month of December a series of sermon will be preached to young men in the Episcopal churche of Dublin.

Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, of the China Inland Mission conducted a series of meetings in the Christian Union Buildings, Dublin, last week.

Evangelistic services have been held in the Crumlin-road Wesleyan Church, Belfast. Over four hundred persons are said to have professed conversion.

A meeting was lately held at Belfast in connection with rescue work. An address by Mr. J. H. L. Christien, of the Midnight Movement, was much appreciated.

Mrs. Hannah Millar, who had a vivid recollection of the Irish Rebellion of 1798, and who had been an earnest member of the Presbyterian Church, has just died at Lame, in the one hundred and second year of her age.

A society, entitled the Dublin University Medical Students' Christian Association, has been inaugurated in Trinity College. There was a large attendance of students and others, including the Provost, at the opening meeting.

It is announced that the late Sir William M'Arthur has made provision in his will for the erection of the M'Arthur Hall at Belfast, and for the carrying out of the other matters in Ireland with which his name has been connected.

A new Baptist chapel was opened on Nov. 11, by Mr. Archibald G. Brown, of London. For the past three years Mr. Hugh D. Brown has been zealously labouring as the pastor of the Baptist congregation of Little Abbey-street, and during his ministry the church there has received great spiritual impulse, and has grown manifestly in the knowledge of the Lord. Finding that the chapel in Abbey-street was not altogether suitable as the central point for the members of the denomination, Mr. Brown determined to erect a more commodious building elsewhere, and the chapel just opened must be regarded as the finest Nonconformist place of worship in the city, and has, moreover, the advantages of a most central position.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Mrs. Pellissier, widow of the late Rev. H. Pellissier, missionary to the Basutos, at Betherlie, Orange Free State, South Africa; deeply regretted by a large circle of relatives and friends.—Rev. Samuel E. M'Quire, an esteemed minister of the Methodist New Connexion.—Rev. W. S. Shanks, parish minister of Maryhill, Glasgow, since 1859.—Rev. Owen Owen, the oldest Wesleyan minister in South Wales.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES.

The annual public meeting of the Belfast Association was held on Monday week, and was well attended.

This Association at Bolton, Lancashire, is little more than a year old. At the recent annual meeting, the hon. secretary, Mrs. Abbott, reported good progress, and a varied programme of effort for the welfare of the young women of the town. More lady workers are needed.

The Torquay Association here has nearly attained its majority. The twentieth report tells of an increased membership and of abounding life among the workers. There has been a deepened interest in foreign missions, as well as in work at home. The hon. secretary, Miss Jessie Coombs, Holmleigh, Kingskerswell, is constantly meeting with causes for encouragement and hope.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

The Association at Callander, N.B., s endeavouring to secure a building for its exclusive use, and for the extension of the work among young men.

At the annual meeting of the Ilfracombe Association recently held, the hon. sec., Mr. J. Coats, reported a considerable advance in the membership, and activity in all branches of the work.

Mr. Newett, the Secretary of the Manchester Y.M.C.A., has published a neat little book called, "Hats Off," containing some of his "straight talks"; one of these is on the question of emigration.

We have good tidings from several London Y.M.C.A.'s with respect to the Week of Prayer for young men. As a result of the special efforts made, not a few conversions are recorded. We hope to furnish some details in our next issue.

Mr. Edward Evans, of Montreal, has had a week of special meetings to young men at the Shoreditch Young Men's Christian Association, and the work has been greatly blessed; between forty and fifty professed to find peace in believing.

Mr. J. N. Foreman, of America, delivered last week in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, Belfast, a series of addresses to young men and students, and at the closing meeting eleven young men offered themselves for mission work.

A week's mission to young men, recently held at the Southwark branch, will long be remembered. Night by night, the Gospel was proclaimed by Messrs. H. Grattan Guinness, C. Russell Hurditch, and W. H. Seagram. Young fellows in great numbers closed with the offer of salvation, and found peace in believing. Besides many who were known to have been deeply impressed, over fifty gave in their names and addresses, as having received definite blessing. These cases will be followed up. Over a dozen at our last ordinary meeting, which was addressed by Rev. W. R. Mowll, also indicated their desire to obtain the new life.

MACNIVEN & WALLACE,

Publishers,

EDINBURGH.

The People of the Pilgrimage.

An Expository Study of the "Pilgrim's Progress" as a Book of Character. First Series: True Pilgrims. By the Rev. J. A. KERR BAIN, Livingstone. Crown 8vo., 6s.

The Dawn of the Modern Mission.

By the late Rev. WM. FLEMING STEVENSON, D.D. With a Preface by Rev. Professor CHARTERIS, D.D. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d.

Personal Reminiscences and Biographical Sketches.

By the late Rev. JAMES DODDS, Dunbar. With a Brief Memoir by his Wife. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d.

"The Papers in this Volume, giving as they do the writer's personal recollections of such men as Chalmers, Candlish, Hugh Miller, Sir William Hamilton, and Sir Walter Scott, have an interest which appeals to readers of every denomination. They have a charm of manner and style which make them always pleasant and suggestive to read."—Scotsman.

"One of the best books of its kind that has emanated from the Scottish Press for many years."—Glasgow Mail.

"A collection of truly delightful sketches by a keen observer."—Christian.

Edinburgh: MACNIVEN & WALLACE.
London: HODDER & STOUGHTON.

Sale already exceeds 900,000.

The Oxford Bible for Teachers,

In twelve sizes, corresponding page for page with each other.

REV. C. H. SPURGEON:—
"The very best."

THE BISHOP OF RIPON:—
"Invaluable."

REV. DR. OSBORN:—
"Has surpassed all competitors."

ARCHDEACON WATKINS:—
"A noble gift to all English speaking peoples."

The "TIMES":—
"A library of Biblical information."

The "CHRISTIAN WORLD":—
"The most complete Bible yet published."

The "CHRISTIAN":—
"Perfect."

The "PALL MALL GAZETTE":—
"Every Bible Student knows it to contain the best collection of Biblical information ever brought together in so small a compass."

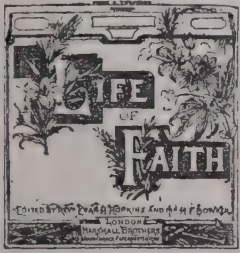
At all Booksellers.

Henry Frowde,
Oxford University Press Warehouse, E.C.

J. DENHAM SMITH.

A beautifully executed portrait of Mr. J. DENHAM SMITH forms the centre illustration of GRACE AND TRUTH SHEET ALMANACK FOR 1888. Distributors will find this Sheet Almanack very suitable for Evangelistic work. Besides the Daily Texts for the year, it contains strikingly displayed Texts, choice extracts, and several Illustrations. Price One Penny; 12 copies, post free, 1s.; 100 copies, 7s. Larger quantities at reduced rates on application to the publishers:

W. B. HORNER & SON, 27, Paternoster-square; and 10, D'Olier-street, Dublin; and all Booksellers.



Book and Tract Saloon.

MARSHALL BROTHERS

Choice assortment of Christmas & New Year's Cards.

Bibles, Prayer Books, and Church Services.

Books for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Sunday School Rewards, Books for Bible Students, &c.

AGENTS for WILLARD TRACT REPOSITORY and for H. L. HASTINGS' PUBLICATIONS.

10, PATERNOSTER ROW.

THE BOOK SALOON,

9, PATERNOSTER ROW (Cheapside end)
(ESTABLISHED 1860),

Contains one of the largest and most varied collections of

EVANGELICAL, TEMPERANCE, & GENERAL LITERATURE,

Conveniently arranged for selection.

In addition to S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S own Publications, the Works of most of the leading Publishers are kept in Stock,

Annuals, New Books, Almanacs,
New Year's Addresses,
Christmas and New Year's Cards, &c.

EARLY INSPECTION INVITED.
Hours 9 till 6. Saturdays 9 till 2.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S new Illustrated Catalogue post free on application. Also specimen packet of their Illustrated Periodicals and Magazines.

9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

JESUS ALL AND IN ALL. 235 pp.

5th Edition. 50,000 in all!

Price 6d., 1s., 1s. 6d.

Rev. JOSIAH BULL, M.A.:—"I have read your little book. I hail it as one of the best of its class I have met with for many a day."

Rev. Dr. SPENCE:—"I greatly value your little book. It is one of the best, perhaps the very best, of its kind and for its purpose."

JESUS SAVES. 64 pp., price 2d.

130,000 in all!

THE OMNIBUS. 64 pp., price 2d.

The last two are admirably adapted for Mission Work and Mothers' Meetings. A considerable reduction for Distribution is made on application to

THE BOOK SOCIETY,
28, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.—The Best, the Most Complete, the Cheapest and the Most Useful Almanack published. The 1888 Edition, considerably improved, will be ready in December.

London: WHITAKER & SONS.

MONTHLY, ONE PENNY.

"SUNSHINE,"

ILLUSTRATED, COLOURED COVERS.

Edited by the Rev. W. M. WHITTEMORE, D.D., Rector of St. Katherine Cree, London.

A Monthly Magazine for all Girls and Boys. We know the sort of reading which we liked at their age, and we try to give them the same. Nothing dull or dry, no tedious moralisings, so easily skipped. Bright and interesting Continued Tales by clever story-writers, papers on Natural History, Old Customs, Remarkable Adventures, Scripture Questions, Enigmas, Puzzles, Poetry, and last, not least, the merry and outspoken Children in Council. The large sale of Sunshine shows how the young folk appreciate our efforts to please them. Boys and Girls in all parts of the world are our true and loving friends. May the circle of our child-friendship widen more and more till it includes all the children who have eyes to read, hearts to feel, and minds to understand. Wherever the sun shines on children—black, brown, yellow, or white—there Sunshine, of course, must be found. The Annual Volumes are excellent Gift-Books. 1/6, 2/-, 2,6.

LITTLE STAR.

BY THE SAME EDITOR. PRICE ONE PENNY MONTHLY.

A NEW Magazine for Little Children. Easy Words, Beautiful Pictures, Large Type.

A COLOURED FRONTISPIECE will be given with the January Magazine, but no extra charge will be made. Each Number next year will have a bright Cover. The Volumes are 1/6 boards, and 2/- cloth, gilt edges.

GEORGE STONEMAN, 67, Paternoster-row, London. And all Booksellers and Newsvendors everywhere.

SECOND EDITION (3000 Copies). Price 2s. 6d.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT FOR YOUNG MEN.

By MAJOR SETON CHURCHILL,

Author of "Stepping Stones to Higher Things," "Church Ordinances from the Layman's Standpoint," &c.

CONTENTS.

Forbidden Fruit: Its Raison d'Etre—Benefits of Temptation—The Moral Nature of Man—Self-Control—Human Responsibility—True to Nature—Accumulative Power of Sin—Promiscuous Intercourse—Polygamy—Marriage—Prostitution—Responsibilities of Parents—Influence of Medical Men in Questions of Morality—Impure Thoughts—Impure Pictures—Causes Exciting to Impurity—Aids to Purity—Treatment of the Fallen—Religion as an Aid to Purity.

FAMILY CHURCHMAN.—"This book is a model of the manner in which the Purity Question ought to be discussed with young men. The tone of the book is manly, straightforward, and simple, and we could wish it in the hands of every young man."

CHRISTIAN.—"The writer's wide experience in different parts of the world, combined with his knowledge of the Scriptures and deep spiritual experience, peculiarly fits him to be the author of such a book as this. We trust that every Young Men's Christian Association Librarian will order copies."

MORNING POST.—"The writer feels earnestly the importance of the work he has undertaken, and there is about his style a manliness and a healthy tone which can hardly fail to impress those to whom he addresses himself—young men."

AUSTRALIAN CHRISTIAN WORLD.—"It is a book which we can fearlessly recommend . . . . just the kind of advice which might come from a pure, high-minded, godly father to a dearly-beloved son."

Published by JAMES NISBET & CO., 21, Berners-street, London, W.

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

PROTESTANT EMIGRATION to the French Colonies.—The French Signal is about to open its columns to a discussion on this question.

BASUTOLAND.—A letter from Dr. Casalis, dated Morija, Lessonto, Sept., 22, mentions a very remarkable revival in the surrounding villages.

PARIS.—In addition to the eight missionary students already in the new mission house, the second son of Pastor Th. Monod has just entered.

THE CONGO.—The Committee of the French Foreign Missions are sending out three teachers to the Gaboon. They are to be placed in the most important centres of the American Presbyterian Mission.

REV. NARCISSE CYR, a French preacher, and a professor in Boston University, has accepted an invitation to return to France to labour in connection with the McAll Mission, and in the Reformed Church.

BELGIAN COLPORTAGE and evangelisation meets with much encouragement in Brussels; more opposition is shown in the surrounding villages. Many Bibles and portions are sold as well as given away.—Le Chrétien Belge.

FRENCH EMIGRATION.—The editor of The Signal following up the proposed plan for the encouragement of Protestant emigration to the French colonies, Algiers and Tahiti, invites co-operation, and promises to advise any who seek information.

BISHOP TAYLOR.—The Bishop has now, working under him in Africa, on the West Coast and on the Congo, about one hundred missionaries, besides a party of twenty-six now on their way out, and constant reinforcements which he is receiving.

INDIA.—Rev. A. Haegert, of the Bethel Santhal Mission, writes:—News from India just received states that the rice crop on the high lands has failed, that the farmers have only recovered their seed. There will be famine and starvation in thousands of homes.

PARIS.—Mr. Victor Vander Beken, son of the zealous and venerable missionary at Belleville, so well known to visitors, has been ordained a pastor of the Eglise libre. He is to take charge of a mission church at Ledrun Rollin, a populous district near the Bastille.

KANSAS.—Rev. G. Marsh writing from Elk Falls' Elk County, Kansas, says: The Lord is blessing his Word here to many. Your readers are requested to pray for the work I have just commenced in this place. I need Gospel books and tracts for distribution very much.

WEST PRUSSIA.—In reply to an address from the Synod, the German Emperor says: "Your pious wishes for my sorely-afflicted son have done my deeply troubled heart good. May the all-powerful and gracious God soon remove this heavy trial from my family and our Fatherland."

JERUSALEM.—The Czar of Russia and his brothers are said to be building a church in Jerusalem to the memory of their mother. It stands near the gate where tradition places Gethsemane. The building, which is to have seven towers and a dome, is small, but is to be very richly decorated.

MADAGASCAR.—The London Missionary Society has in Madagascar, in spite of Jesuit opposition, thirty English missionaries, 828 native ordained ministers, 4395 native preachers, 61,000 church members, and over 230,000 adherents. At least half the population of the island are still outside the pale of the Gospel.

FRANCE.—The Seine group of Y.M.C. Associations held its half-yearly meeting, November 1, in the Reformed Church, Batignolles. Several pastors took part in the proceedings. M. de Pressensé strongly recommended their forming a movement to petition the Senate to repress immoral literature and pictures.

THE FRENCH BIBLE SOCIETY has this year decided to supply the Y.M.C.A. with New Testaments, Gospels, and portions, in consideration of their being judiciously distributed, especially among soldiers. A large print New Testament is also offered gratuitously to every public library that will ensure free access to it.

ALGIERS.—M. José Yepes, missionary pastor, is evangelising among the Spaniards in Algiers. At St. Cloud, a small town near Oran, three-fourths of the inhabitants are Spaniards. About two years ago M. Yepes first visited it, and now there are about thirty Protestant Christians who regularly attend the evangelist's meetings.

MADAGASCAR.—The Norwegian Lutheran Mission continues to grow in Madagascar. In the year 1885, 2567 natives were baptized; in 1886, 3000. The schools, which are conducted by 733 teachers and native evangelists, are attended by 25,000 children. Besides this work in the interior of the island, they have two stations on the West Coast.

MR. ARMSTRONG, through ill health, has been obliged to leave Valladolid for a warmer climate. During his absence, two ladies, with Don Luis Perez will take charge of the work at Valladolid, paying frequent visits to the neighbouring villages. An evangelist is much needed in the Asturias. Signs are not wanting of a revival of strength in the Romish Church in Spain; the Jesuits are active and successful.

SALVATION ARMY.—The Paris Temps writes that one evening lately some of the Army offered their journal in the Rue d'Allemagne, and spoke a few words which were not to the taste of M. Louis Paillard, a young journalist eighteen years of age, who immediately insulted them. A crowd soon gathered, and the Salvationists received some hard blows. The police, however, appeared, and Paillard was arrested. The Temps adds, "It is perfectly certain if the Salvationists had distributed some immoral song, they would not have been molested."

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., NEW METAL EXCHANGE, Whittington-avenue, E.C.—Daily prayer-meeting at St. Peter's Vestry, Cornhill, 1.15 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Gospel services at Y.M.C.A. Mission Hall, Bermondsey, Sundays, 7 p.m., and Thursdays, 8 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sunday, December 4, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. John H. Lydall. Rev. J. H. Lynn will address young men on Tuesday, Dec. 6, 8.15 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sunday, at 3.45, Mr. E. J. Kennedy (men only); 7 (public), Mr. Harry Grattan Guinness. Mr. Axel Gustafson gives a lecture on "The Drink Problem" on Monday, at 8.30. Rev. Chas. Moinet's workers' training-class, Tuesdays, at 8.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 198, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, December 1, at 8.30, foreign missionary prayer-meeting. Sunday, Dec. 4, at 3.30, special address, Rev. John Clegg. Wed., 6 to 10, anxious inquirers and strangers.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—Friday, December 2, at 8.30, Christian Evidence lecture: "Jesus Christ, the Ideal of Humanity."

Y.M.C.A., STAFFORD ROOMS, Titchborne-st., Edgware-road, W.—Wednesday, December 7, 9 p.m., address to young men by Rev. W. Stott (Abbey-road Chapel).

SOUTHWARK Y.M.C.A., 26 & 28, Newington-causeway, S.E.—Monday, December 5, 8.45 p.m., lecture by Colonel Duncan, M.P., "Egypt and the Egyptians." Thursday, December 8, 9 p.m., address to young men, Rev. E. A. Stuart.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE STREET, E.C.—Address to young men by Mr. Charles Inglis each evening next week, 8 p.m.

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Meetings at Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W., every Friday, at 3.30. December 2, Rev. William Haslam; Dec. 9, Rev. E. W. Moore.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, St. George's-st., Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly meeting of "Christian Lifeboat Crew," Tuesday, December 6, 7 p.m.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile-end-road, E.—Sunday, December 4, at 11 and 6.30, Mr. William Nobbs.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Tuesday, Dec. 6, 7.30 p.m., lecture by Rev. James Neil; subject, "Life on a Palestine Farm." Thursday, December 8, 3 p.m., Bible-reading by Mr. G. H. Pember, "The Gentiles."

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Friday, December 2, all-day meetings—11 a.m, prayer for nations and missions; 3 p.m., Rev. Robert McAll on "The McAll Mission in France"; chairman, Rev. J. Gosset Tanner; 7 p.m., Mr. C. Russell Hurditch. Friday, Dec. 9, 7 p.m., "Deepening of Spiritual Life"; tea at 6.

RAILWAY MISSION HALL, Lower Mortlake-road, New Richmond.—A few friends will meet on Fri., Dec. 2, 7.30 p.m., to commend to God Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Francis, about to proceed to Virginia, U.S., to evangelise amongst the coloured population. Any interested will be welcome.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sunday, Dec. 4, 11 and 7 p.m., Dr. Barnardo; 3, Rev. Henry Bright.

LAWYERS' PRAYER UNION.—Social meeting for barristers, solicitors, and their clerks, Thursday evening, Dec. 15. Any desiring to attend should apply to Mr. H. C. Nisbet, 35, Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.

PROFESSOR DE LAUNAY will lecture in the Powis Hall, Bayswater, on the Catacombs of Rome, Dec. 13 & 14.

ANTI-SUNDAY TRAVELLING UNION.—Public meeting in Tollington Hall, Hornsey-road, Tuesday, Dec. 6, 8 p.m.

THE CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.—Applications from families requiring foreign governesses for the Christmas holidays may be sent to Miss C. F. Ryffel, directress, Bienvenue, 3, Colville Houses, Talbot-road London, W.

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Railway Mission—A Thank-offering, 5s.

Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—A.Z. £1 and Eight Comforters.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—B.A.A. £1; Mr. E.P. £1; Mrs. A.H.G. 7s. 6d.; Mrs. B. 5s.

Destitute Poor—Pastor Philip Gast acknowledges: Harrogate, £1; Leicester-square, 2s. 6d.; Kilburn and Inverness, Parcels of Clothing.

North Bow Mission (J. F. Porter)—(Breakfastless Children) H.M.A. 5s. and a Parcel of Boots, &c.; Otis L. Leonard, 10s.; Miss E. Langton, 10s.

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Monday, November 28, 1887.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
I.C.—Please send full address.
Dock Labourers (Mr. Coleman)—H.C. £1 1s.; Miss D. £4; B. & B. £5; J.W. & K.A. £4	14	1	0
Mr. E. Wright (Personal Expenses)—M.J.F.	5	0	0
Work in Royal Navy (Miss Weston)—M.J.F.	1	0	0
Families of Men lost in "Breeze"—M.J.F.	1	0	0
Sailors' Welcome Home (Miss Child)—M.J.F.	1	0	0
Sailors' Rest, Marseilles—M.J.F.	1	0	0
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—M.J.F.	1	0	0
Latimer Church, Bow (Fuel, &c., for the Poor)—M.G.G. 5s.; S.A.T. 5s.; Maggie, 2s. 6d.; E.M.J. 10s.; M.P. £1; T.N.J. 10s.	2	12	6
Halfpenny Dinners—M.G.G. 5s. E.M.J. 10s.	0	15	0
Gratuitous Circ. of THE CHRISTIAN—Miss S.	0	2	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Sharman)—M.R.	1	1	0
Relief of London Poor—Miss S.	2	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—Miss S. £2; Miss C. 10s.; R.H.S. £1 1s.	3	11	0
Homes for Aged Poor—M.E.R. 2s. 6d.; S.L.R. 10s.	0	12	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—S.A.T. 5s.; Miss M. 3s.; M.S. £25; M.P. £1; A.C.H. £1; J.H.M. £2; E.M.J. £1; Speranza, 5s.	30	13	0
Railway Mission, 186, Aldersgate-street—S.A.T. 5s.; Gratitude, 2s.	0	7	0
Christian Community—M.R. 10s. 6d.; Maggie, 2s. 6d.; C.J.P. £4	4	13	0
George-yard Ragged Schools—M.R. 10s. 6d.; F.V. £5; M.P. £1; C.J.P. £4; J.H.M. £2	12	10	6
Gray's-yard Casuals—M.R. 10s. 6d.; C.J.P. £4	4	10	6
Poor of Clerkenwell (Rev. P. Gast)—M.R.	0	10	6
Bible Stand, Crystal Palace—M.S.	1	1	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses—M.D.	0	5	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—Sixteen Little Girls, Lewis, 2s.; Maggie, 2s. 6d.; H.H.S. £1; J.W. & K.A. £4	5	4	6
National Vigilance Association—A.W.D.	1	1	0
Golden-lane Mission (Mr. Orsman)—Maggie, 2s. 6d.; F.V. £10	10	2	6
North Bow Mission (Free Breakfasts for Children)—Sympathising Mother, 5s.; Maggie, 2s. 6d.	0	7	6
Field-lane Refuges and Ragged Schools—Maggie, 2s. 6d.; Miss C. 10s.; Miriam, £5	5	12	6
Gray's-yard Ragged Schools—Maggie	0	2	6
Mr. Archibald G. Brown's Work—Mrs. E.H. £1 2s.; F.V. £5; A.C., Brixton, 3s.	6	5	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—F.V. £5; H.S.B. £2 2s.; M.P. £1; C.J.P. £4; A.E.H. £1; H.H.S. £1	14	2	0
Free Church of Scotland (Foreign Missions)—F.V.	5	0	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Mittendorff)—S. 5s.; A.E.H. £2	2	5	0
Salvation Army—Thank-offering, Cantab, £1; (Clapton Training Home) M. £20	21	0	0
Watercress and Flower Sellers' Mission—M.S.	3	3	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—R.H.S. £1 1s.; H.H.S. £1	2	1	0
London Female Penitentiary—Mrs. P.L.	1	0	0
Distressed Irish Ladies (Mrs. Lalor)—H.S.B.	5	5	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—H.S.B.	5	5	0
London City Mission—H.S.B. £2 2s.; J.H.M. £2; E.M.J. £1; H.H.S. £1	6	2	0
Paris City Mission—H.S.B. £2 2s.; T.N.J. 10s.	2	12	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—H.S.B.	2	2	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—H.S.B. £2 2s.; H.H.S. £1	3	2	0
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—W.H. £5; J.C. 10s.; Rev. J.F.B.T. 10s.	6	0	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—M.P. £1; (Night Lodging, &c.) C.J.P. £4; A.C., Brixton, 7s.	5	7	0
Printers' Pension Society—M.S.	1	1	0
City of London Abstainers' Union—M.S.	1	1	0
Free Breakfasts Fund—Maggie	0	2	6
Joshua Poole—T.J.B.	10	10	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—A.E.H. £1; H.H.S. £1; J.W. & K.A. £4	6	0	0
South London Tabernacle (Baptist Church)—M.S.	1	1	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Homes—J.H.M. £2; E.M.J. £1	3	0	0
Home for Working Girls, London—J.H.M. £2; E.M.J. £1	3	0	0
Bethel-Santhal Mission—T.N.J.	0	10	0
Hall at La Mancha, Spain—T.N.J.	0	10	0
Dock Labourers' Free Breakfasts—Lady G.	0	5	0
Church Missionary Society—X.Y.	25	0	0
Famine in Central Turkey—X.Y.	10	0	0
Evangelisation Society—X.Y. £5; H.H.S. £1	6	0	0
Soc. for Distribution of Scripture Truth—X.Y.	10	0	0
McAll Mission, Paris—Speranza, 5s.; H.H.S. £1	1	5	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—H.H.S.	1	0	0
Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall—J.W. & K.A.	4	0	0
Y.M.C.A., Islington—J.W. & K.A.	4	0	0
Y.M.C.A., Stafford Rooms—J.W. & K.A.	4	0	0
Orphan Homes (Late Miss Coles)—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
Lock Hospital, Soho—(Out Patients) J.W. & K.A.	2	0	0
Zenana Medical Msn. (Dr. Griffiths)—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
Working Lads' Inst. (Mr. H. Hill)—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
Poor Pious Clergymen's Society—J.W. & K.A.	6	0	0
Madeira's Sailors' Rest—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
Church Association—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
Chichester, &c., Training Ship—J.W. & K.A.	5	0	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
Christmas Letter Mission—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
Missionary Training College, Puerto Santa Maria—J.W. & K.A.	4	0	0
Sailors' Welcome Home, Cardiff—J.W. & K.A.	3	0	0
	£335	12	6

"I was a stranger, and ye took me in."

The Committee of the Field Lane Refuges and Ragged Schools are compelled to make a very urgent appeal for Funds for the continuance of their work. The work is carried on amongst the most destitute of the poor, both old and young. The Institution possesses no reserve fund to fall back upon.

The Committee gratefully acknowledge the receipt of £230, but £1,270 is still required before the close of the year to free them from anxiety. Upwards of 200 persons are maintained weekly. The average weekly attendances at the Mission Meetings is about 3,000.

The Committee trust the Lord's people will help them in this time of difficulty and pressure.

On behalf of the Committee,
PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary.

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.

*P.S.—Contributions will be thankfully received by the Secretary; or may be paid to our Bankers, Messrs. Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or Messrs. Ransom & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.; or to the Editor of "THE CHRISTIAN."*

THE SALVATION ARMY.

TWO DAYS'

HOLINESS CONVENTION

IN

Exeter Hall,

TUESDAY & WEDNESDAY, December 6 & 7,

Conducted by General and Mrs. BOOTH, assisted by Hundreds of Officers.

Meetings to commence 10.30 a.m., 3, and 6.30 p.m.

Admission by Ticket only. Reserved Seats, 1s. each meeting; or all-day ticket, 2s. for each day. Apply, enclosing remittance and stamped addressed envelope, to Headquarters, 101, Queen Victoria-st., London, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President.
HIS GRACE LORD PLUNKET, ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN.

Late President.
THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

Offices:—27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
And 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, Reports, &c., can be obtained on application to the Secretary,

CAPTAIN JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

THE

Flower ◆ Girl ◆ Mission

AND BRIGADE

WILL BE GLAD TO SUPPLY
ALL KINDS OF ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS,
HOLLY WREATHING, PLANTS, &c.
SUITABLE FOR
CHRISTMAS AND TABLE DECORATION.
Flower Vases, Room Decorations, &c.

PLANTS, from 6d. to 5s. each.
HOLLY and other WREATHING from 3d. yard.
ROSES, CHRYSANTHEMUMS, &c., from 6d. Spray.
PACKAGES SENT BY PARCELS POST (SECURELY PACKED).

Orders to be sent to Hon. Superintendent,
Flower Girl Mission, 11 & 12, Clerkenwell Close, E.C.

21st Annual Report of Mission on application.

The Anchorage.

HEBREWS vi. 19.

To Shelter, and give Spiritual care to, Young Women lately Fallen into Sin, whether or not about to become Mothers, with a special annexe and suitable arrangements for such as are of gentle birth.

ANYONE desiring admission for such cases to apply (by letter only) to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End-road, N.W., London, also for Servants trained in the Anchorage House. Donations may be sent to Mrs. Stuart-Wortley for the Anchorage Mission, or to Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen.

Treasurer and Chairman of General Council: THOMAS B. MILLER, ESQ.
Chairman of Finance Committee: THOMAS GRAY, ESQ., C.B.
Bankers: MESSRS. LLOYDS, BARNETTS, & BOSANQUETS (LIMITED), Lombard Street, E.C.
Offices: BRIDGE HOUSE, BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE, LONDON, E.C.
Founder and Director: E. J. MATHER, ESQ.

OBJECTS.

1. To carry the glad tidings of God's love, mercy, and salvation in our Lord Jesus Christ to the thousands of Fishermen employed in trawling and other modes of fishing in the North Sea and elsewhere, and in every possible way to promote and minister to their spiritual welfare.

2. To mitigate the hard lot and improve the condition of the Fishermen, physically and mentally, by all practicable means, and to meet many urgent needs for which heretofore there has been no provision, especially in supplying medicine and simple surgical appliances, books, mufflers, mittens, &c.

For the above purposes Mission vessels are already stationed with eight fishing fleets, but it is of urgent importance that more vessels should be fitted for similar service, in order that Clerical and Lay Missionaries and Agents of the Mission may visit the Smacksmen.

The Bishop of London.—"The undertaking is a blessed one, and will be accepted by our Heavenly Father as an offering of true devotion."

The Bishop of Exeter.—"It does one's heart good to watch the benefit conferred by these Mission Smacks. God bless them! They go forth in the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ."

The Times.—"Ample proof has been furnished of the genuine and successful character of the Society's operations."

The Graphic.—"Founded barely six years ago, its efforts have already been crowned with wonderful success."

During the year 1886 three thousand six hundred and thirty-three cases of accident and sickness were successfully treated in the Dispensary on board the various Mission Vessels. Help is urgently needed to carry on this work.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS

FARNINGHAM AND SWANLEY (Commenced 1863).

President:—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

THE COTTAGE HOMES AT FARNINGHAM

Are for 300 Little Boys, homeless or in danger of falling into crime. They are clothed, fed, educated, and taught a trade, and then provided with outfit and placed in situations, while they are looked after as "Old Boys."

THE ORPHAN HOMES AT SWANLEY

Are for 200 Orphan or Fatherless Boys, who are wholly maintained and educated, and receive technical instruction in lithography, telegraphy, photography, chemistry, and other subjects, to fit them for a working life.

BASIS:—"The Institution is Scriptural, but Unsectarian; and the boys are educated in the fear of God and in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures."

FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED to maintain the 500 Boys now in the Homes. Over 1000 have already been sent out into the world.

Annual Subscriptions, Donations, Congregational Collections, and Bequests are earnestly solicited, and will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN; or the Secretary,

A. O. CHARLES.

Offices:—BANK-BUILDINGS, LUDGATE-CIRCUS, E.C.
Bankers:—MESSRS. SMITH, PAYNE & SMITH, 1, LOMBARD-STREET, E.C.

HELP IS URGENTLY REQUIRED

TO CARRY ON THE WORK OF THE

LATYMER ROAD MISSION,

Which includes Evening Shelters for Boys and Girls, Night Schools, Infant Day Nursery, Temperance Meetings, Soup Kitchen, Free Dinners to Hungry Children, Christmas Dinners to Destitute Poor, and many other agencies. Will every Reader of "The Christian" who sees this appeal kindly send a trifle, if only a Shilling, so that the Committee may be able to continue their Winter Work amongst the suffering Poor? £320 are needed before Christmas! Contributions will be gratefully received, and may be sent to the NATIONAL BANK, 158, High-street, Notting-hill, W.; or to Miss GLADSTONE, Hon. Sec. Latymer-road Mission, Blechynden-street, Notting-hill, W.

MISSIONARY TRAINING COLLEGE,

PUERTO SANTA MARIA, SPAIN.

Principal—THE REV. WILLIAM MOORE, M.A.

OBJECT.—To train pious and talented young men as teachers and evangelists for Spain.

CONTRIBUTIONS will be thankfully received by D. MATHESON, Esq., Hon. Sec., 120, Queen's Gate, S.W.; or by Messrs. RANSOM, BOUVERIE & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, London, S.W.

MANUFACTURERS to HER MAJESTY the QUEEN.

Wm. Polson's CORN FLOUR.

The Original and First Manufactured in Great Britain.

UNRIVALLED FOOD OF HEALTH, for Children and Invalids; THE BEST KNOWN MATERIAL for PUDDINGS, CUSTARDS, CAKES, BLANCMANGE, and a variety of delicious Preparations for the Table.

Every Packet is Warranted Pure, and its genuine qualities are certified by the highest medical authorities in the kingdom.

The Lancet affirms:—"It is preferable to most descriptions of Arrowroot, on account of its sweeter flavour." Dr. Lankester, Superintendent of Government Food Collection at Kensington, in a note to the Manufacturers said:—". . . I am so well satisfied with your Corn Flour that I have given directions for its use in my own family."

Wm. Polson & Co., Paisley and London.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY. WOOLS

TRADE-MARK
Registered

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
MERINO WOOLS
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters Prices and Patterns of which on Application.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.

If any difficulty is found in obtaining apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies', Children's, and Gentlemen's Dress. Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value. The Immense Variety of Patterns comprise Specialities to suit all Classes, all Climates, all Fashions, and all Purses, from 10½d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal ♛ Serges REGISTERED.

NEW PATTERNS FOR WINTER, 1887.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

All Orders are executed direct.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

CAN YOU READ THIS?

"COCOON" KNITTING WOOL.

Numerous complaints having been made that inferior wool balled in the same style is sold as Genuine COCOON Wool, please note that none is genuine unless bearing the word COCOON, which is our registered Trade Mark, on the band.

Directions for knitting a number of useful articles free of charge, on receipt of Stamped and Addressed Envelope, mentioning name of this paper.

The fastest possible dyes are used for Cocoon Wool.

WOOD & BURTT,
SPINNERS,
HOLMFIRTH.

FOR PUDDINGS, BLANC-MANGE, CUSTARDS, CHILDREN'S AND INVALIDS' DIET, AND ALL THE USES OF ARROWROOT,

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

HAS A WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION, AND IS DISTINGUISHED FOR UNIFORMLY SUPERIOR QUALITY.

NOTE.—Purchasers should insist on being supplied with BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR.

Inferior kinds, asserting fictitious claims, are being offered.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide). Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES,
CURTAINS,
BLINDS,
DRAPERIES,
SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

DEWHURST'S SEWING COTTON

TRADE MARK.

THE "THREE SHELLS BRAND,"

Strong, Even, Elastic, and free from Knots.

Dewhurst's Cottons have been awarded PRIZE MEDALS for general excellence of quality wherever exhibited.

LATEST AWARDS—

GOLD MEDALS—AMSTERDAM, 1883;
CALCUTTA, 1883-4; ANTWERP, 1885.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."
A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.
No. 932.] London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1887. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

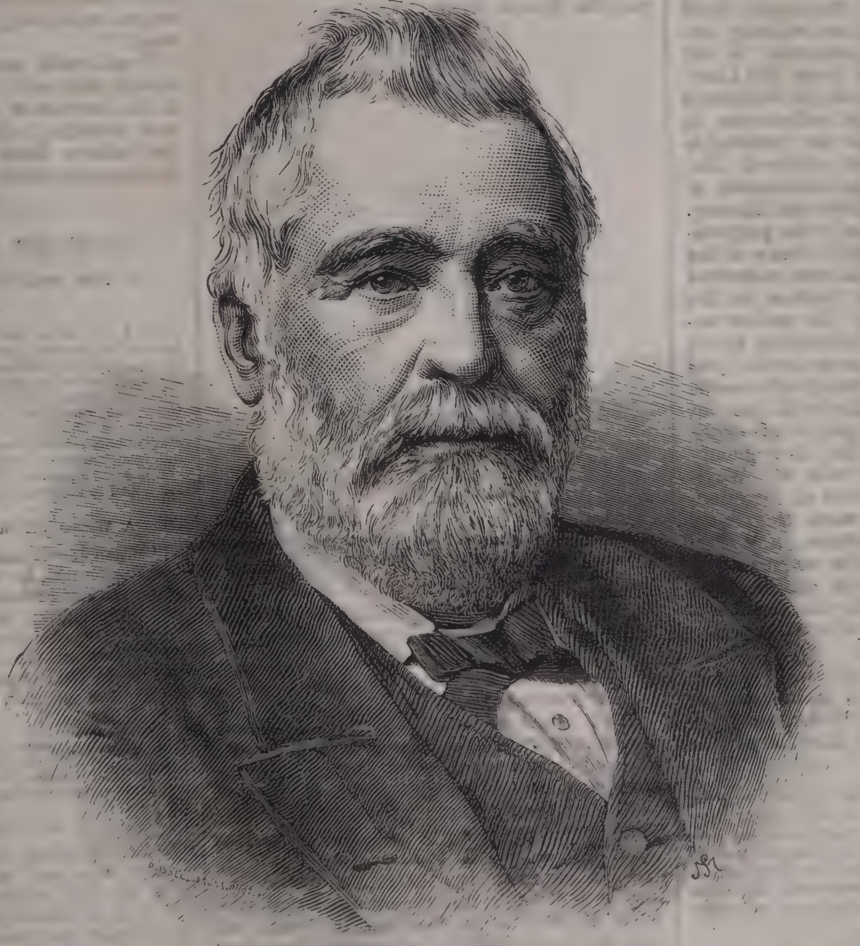
MR. J. M. WEYLLAND,

Of the London City Mission.

THE other day, at a meeting in Great Malvern, Mr. J. M. WEYLLAND, the subject of this sketch, said:—"I am a sort of Paganini; I play upon a harp of one string, and that is the London City Mission." The simile was no exaggerated one; during the past forty years of unceasing labour in connection with the Society, he has extended its operations and linked it and himself with many departments of Christian and philanthropic effort.

The son of a captain in the mercantile marine, with a mother devout and intelligent, he had the advantage of a good Scriptural training; but he was not brought to early decision for Christ. His great desire was to become a sailor, but this purpose was frustrated. At the age of nineteen he obtained the position of Queen's messenger in a Foreign Legation. This, no doubt, prepared the way for his future career, as he was brought into contact with many persons in high position. He delivered despatches and received confidential messages from the Duke of Wellington, Lord Palmerston, and many distinguished men of that day. He received much attention from Cardinal Wiseman, who gave him books, and conversed with him about the Roman Catholic faith.

A circumstance may here be related which, while preserving him from joining the Romish Church, influenced the future of his life. One Saturday morning he was sent with a despatch to the Spanish Consul at Portsmouth. Remaining there on the Sunday, he spent part of the morning wandering over the fortifications. Attracted by the singing in a Wesleyan chapel, he threw away his cigar and entered in time to hear the sermon, which was on the words: "Be sure your sin will find you out." That sermon brought conviction to the soul of the young man, and set Christ so vividly before him as the Sin-bearer that it led to his conversion and awakened the desire to lead a consecrated life. After this he told his Roman Catholic friends that he now believed that pardon and peace came as a direct act of grace from God, and that he had decided to remain in the Protestant Church of England.



(From a Photograph by Messrs. Russell & Sons.)

Friendships were now formed with Christian workers. He was asked to visit a City Mission meeting in Marylebone, where he found a company of depraved men and women listening attentively to the Gospel. From that time he took a personal interest in the work of the Society. About a year after, the foreign ambassador whom he served was recalled, and Mr. Weylland relinquished all prospects of advancement, desiring the work of an evangelist. He entered the service of the City Mission in his twenty-fourth year, and at once went to work. His first appointment was to the very degraded district of Lisson-grove. Here he laboured, and read the Scriptures, amid many discouragements. He had the joy, however, of seeing a little company gathered into the fold of Christ. His years of toil there gave him much of the material for his first literary effort, "The Man with the Book;" a work which has passed through many editions, and has been translated into French. It is a vivid and graphic narration of the triumphs of the Gospel among the lowest of the low, and gives an excellent idea of how the work of the City Mission is carried on.

As Mr. Weylland had gained influence and esteem among the frequenters of public-houses he was appointed to visit the gin-bars and beer-houses in Marylebone. At that time public-houses were kept open all night, except Saturday night. There were places known as dens, opening at midnight and closing in the morning. Mr. Weylland visited these and became acquainted with many burglars and depraved people. The authorities of the Police and the Home Office consulted him as to the state of matters, and he gave important evidence before a Committee of the House of Commons. A Bill for the closing of public-houses at night, and for the abolition of the dens, was introduced into Parliament, and so these centres of evil were swept away.

From the time he entered on Christian work, Mr. Weylland frequently addressed public meetings in the interests of the better observance of the Sabbath. At the great Exhibition in Paris under the Empire, and also at the Vienna Exhibition, he represented the Lord's Day Observance Society, and was able to exercise a decided influence in favour of Sabbath rest among those engaged in the British, American, and Australian departments. At these Exhibitions he conducted evangelistic work, and one outcome of his work was his interesting volume, "A Thought for the World," a narrative of Christian effort in Great Exhibitions. Her Majesty graciously accepted and expressed her thanks for a copy of this interesting record.

In the course of his active life, Mr. Weylland has taken part in many movements for the elevation and well-being of the people. He was instrumental in forming the pioneer society, in Marylebone, for improving the dwellings of the poor. He also organised the "Metropolitan Drinking Fountains and Cattle Trough Association," and the "National Industrial Home for Crippled Boys" at Kensington. For the past twenty-eight years the camp of the National Rifle Association has been pitched at Wimbledon for shooting competitions. All these years Mr. Weylland has engaged in Gospel work at this gathering, and has given away many hundreds of books to officials, prize-men, to patients in the field hospital, and others.

For more than thirty years Mr. Weylland was honoured with the friendship of the good Earl Shaftesbury. In the recently published "Life," by Mr. Edwin Hodder, we read that "for Mr. Weylland, Lord Shaftesbury entertained no ordinary regard." Being deeply interested in all kinds of work among the poor, his Lordship heartily co-operated with Mr. Weylland in the many schemes and endeavours in which he took a share. To the invaluable counsel and support thus received, Mr. Weylland largely attributes the success of his various efforts, evangelistic and literary. This was specially the case in the preparation of the Jubilee Memorial Volume of the London City Mission, which was entrusted to Mr. Weylland. In his preface to the book, "These Fifty Years," the author acknowledges his great indebtedness to his noble friend for suggestions as to the plan of the work. Lord Shaftesbury afterwards wrote an introduction to the book, but not before he had read the proofs of every chapter. To each of the five goodly volumes that have come from Mr. Weylland's pen his Lordship wrote an introduction. The two friends were frequently in council on public matters, and Mr. Weylland was able to render considerable help to Lord Shaftesbury in collating information, and in preparing the measures which he pressed on the attention of the Legislature and the public. We may here quote a sentence or two from Mr. Hodder's biography, with respect to a bequest of £60,000 left by a lady in 1885 for distribution among the charities of London at the discretion of the Earl:—

> The toil and anxiety entailed by this bequest can only be understood by those who knew how scrupulously conscientious and exact Lord Shaftesbury was in dealing with every farthing of money of which he was the trustee. In this distribution Mr. Weylland gave invaluable assistance, and made possible a task which Lord Shaftesbury could not have performed alone.

For some years Mr. Weylland was accustomed to accompany his Lordship to the House of Lords, whenever he was about to make an important speech, so that he might have the benefit of consultation in the lobby. To the last hours of his life Lord Shaftesbury took an interest in public affairs.

As we have stated, Mr. Weylland has not only been an incessant speaker and worker on behalf of good causes, but his pen has never lain idle. In addition to the volumes we have mentioned, he has written other two in the interests of the London City Mission: "Round the Tower," a record of work in the region of the Docks; and "Our Veterans," an able plea on behalf of the work and the workers among whom he himself has laboured so long. These works form a body of religious literature, in the way of good work recorded, that can scarcely be matched, we suppose, in the archives of any similar society. Among the many pamphlets he has written, perhaps the most notable is "Crape on the Whip," which relates the experiences of an omnibus driver, and the lack of religious privileges in consequence of Sabbath work. While we write this sketch there comes to us a copy of Mr. Weylland's latest brochure, "The After Glow," which tells something of the London City Missionaries' "disabled fund," the need for it, and the good work it accomplishes. How true is the remark with which we commenced our notice—that the subject of it plays on but one string, that of the London City Mission. Mr. Weylland, however, does spare a little of his time and advocacy for the kindred organisation, the Paris City Mission, of which he is the hon. secretary for Great Britain, and which he virtually established with the aid of the late Lord Shaftesbury and Mr. Frank Bevan.

Of late years Mr. Weylland's health has failed to some extent. The Committee of the London City Mission has, therefore, kindly relieved him of part of his duties, but he is now District Secretary to all the special work of the Society, including missionaries to public-houses in London, to cab and omnibus men, the Docks, and the staff of missionaries who teach foreigners in all the leading languages of the earth. He is also secretary to the Disabled Missionaries', Widows', and Orphans' Fund of the Mission, in raising the funds of which he has been largely instrumental. Upon the 24th of last June he was 63 years of age, and he calls it "the happiest birthday of his life," as twenty-three widows, with whose husbands he had laboured for years in the Gospel, on that day received their first pension pay of £20 a year. Their gratitude found expression in praising and blessing God.

As the result of his long experience, Mr. Weylland lately wrote: "We evangelists have many faults, the result of weak faith and doubtful motives; and our only comfort and hope of acceptance is the assurance that the pure robe of the Redeemer's righteousness will cover every defect of service."

JOYFUL CHRISTIANS.

Oh that all believers could be made to feel how greatly the Church of Christ needs to be filled with joy in the Holy Ghost. Let us serve the Lord with gladness, that the world may be won to Jesus. I know an old gentleman who was persuaded to attend a religious meeting, but the gloomy looks and long faces of the people there met together left such a depressing impression on his mind that he cannot be persuaded to go again. People sings hymns of praise as if they were funeral dirges, forgetting that joy attracts worldlings and facilitates their conversion.

If we desire to be joyful Christians, we must place ourselves in the hand of Jesus. If Satan has such power to make his servants do as he wants, surely our Saviour has greater power to enable us to fulfil his Father's command: "Rejoice evermore." Even when our wills are thwarted, we may rejoice as we think over the words of a Christian of old who said, "the saints in heaven would all say, 'not only have we found God's denials his greatest mercies, but our souls were never in so great peril as when, after being over urgent with God, He let us have our own way.'"

I end with some words by Francis of Assisi, who said, "It is not befitting when in the service of God to look melancholy and scowling; always wear a look of joy, for sadness leads to discouragement, and discouragement to despair." I. M.

◆

FROM MR. DENHAM SMITH

TO THE BRETHREN AT CLAPTON HALL.

J. C. A., to whom we have at various times been indebted for reports of addresses at Clapton Hall, sends us the following message from Mr. Denham Smith to the brethren worshipping there, and says:—

"This morning Mr. Denham Smith expressed a wish to see me, and I had the great privilege of being with him for a short time. Although very prostrate and scarcely able to say much, he was as cheerful and as happy as any saint of God could be on earth. His face shone as an angel's. His intense desire was to see the Lord and to be with Him."

A WORD FROM THE SICK CHAMBER.

"When Jacob attempted to wrestle against the wrestling angel, he had his own strength; but when the Lord touched his thigh he had no footing, no standing, and could only hang on the angel. Our past lives, and all our performances, and all else that is ours, may seem as a footing; but when God touches them we are left like Jacob, and can only hang on Christ; and He is infinitely enough."

Both my arms are clasped around Thee,
 And my head is on thy breast,
And my weary soul hath found Thee
 Such a perfect—perfect rest.

My own persuasion—

"For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."

"I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

"For yet a little while (oh, how little!) and He that shall come will come, and will not tarry."

"I will come again, and receive you unto Myself."

THE RAILWAY-MEN'S BIBLE UNION, formed in 1880, will for the future be carried on under the auspices of the Railway Mission, with which the hon. assistant secretary, Miss Kingstone, will cooperate. Miss Kingstone may be addressed care of Railway Mission, 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

THE VALUE OF MISSIONARY WORK.

Canon Taylor's attack, in our opinion a mistaken one, upon the work of Protestant missionaries abroad, has had the effect of directing a considerable amount of public attention to a consideration of the character of the influence of missionaries upon the peoples among whom they work, as well as to the number of the persons converted to Christianity by their teaching and preaching. Part of Canon Taylor's contention, though it is not the whole of it, coincides with the idea, which is a popular one, that the missionary who cannot express the results of his labours by the number of his converts has laboured in vain. We will subsequently deal with the great religious good effected by the many devoted men and women who are labouring in faith amidst many discouragements in distant lands, but at this time we desire to point out the very large amount of good they do by their secular work. This is necessary as being preliminary to the consideration of their higher and more important work.

As an example, we take China, one of the most interesting, most vast, and most difficult, of the missionary arenas. The Chinese are a people proud of their past, suspicious of other peoples, and devoted to the reverence of Confucius and his dogmas, dogmas which they have held for twenty-five centuries, and which they cannot be drawn from at once, nor in one generation, nor without much patient and prayerful teaching. In dealing with such a people there must be a preparation of the soil, and amidst such an immense population, Christianity will be for some time the little grain of mustard seed which, without doubt, will eventually grow into such proportions that its branches will cover the Empire. But it must be many years before the number of converts, of real and professing Christians, amongst the natives, will be any considerable part of the stupendous population in China. Yet there is no test, which may well be applied to missionaries and their labours, from which the missionaries in China have any reason to shrink.

For the most part, the missionary is a little speck of civilisation in the midst of barbarism, or a different form of civilisation. One of the things he has first to do is to make himself acquainted with the people amongst whom he lives, and with the principles or prejudices that he is going to fight. Primarily he must make himself acquainted with their language, and acquire a clear conception of their mental attitude, that he may know how to influence them. The more a missionary knows the people about him, and the more he is known of them, the better he is a missionary. From this point of view, let us see how the missionaries in China have hitherto done their work. If you ask what is the best general work on China, the book which is the vade mecum for anyone desiring to become acquainted with China, you will be told it is the work of a missionary, Dr. Wells Williams, entitled, "The Middle Kingdom," a book which was originally published forty years ago, and which, notwithstanding the great amount of study which has since been devoted to China, still "holds the field" against all others. If you wish to know the character and substance of the Chinese classics, which have existed for more than twenty centuries, and which are taught to every Chinese in his youth, you have to go to a missionary's work for the information. You will find what you want in Dr. Legge's translation of the Chinese Classics, which he began nearly forty years ago, and which is now being published in its latest form by the Clarendon Press. If you want the best and the most complete dictionary of the Chinese language, the dictionary which no student is or can safely be without, you have to go to a missionary's work, Williams's "Dictionary of the Chinese Language." If you desire to study the religions of China, to know the principles of its people, to understand the various forms of ritual and worship, as, for instance, the various forms which Buddhism has in China, you have to go to a missionary's works, Dr. Edkins' on the Religions of China.

We have referred only to four of the most conspicuous of the books written by missionaries; but, on any Chinese subject that can be suggested, the missionaries are the principal guides for the student. There is now published in Shanghai a journal called The Chinese Recorder, largely devoted to Chinese scholarship and the questions connected therewith. It is edited by a missionary, published by a missionary body, and almost wholly written by missionaries. Similarly, the scholarly Chinese Review, published in Hong Kong, owes its great excellence to the pens of missionaries. Not a year passes that we in England do not have one or more books connected with China, and written by missionaries; such as the work on China by Archdeacon Gray, of Canton, or Mr. Henry's remarkable little volume of Travels in Southern China and Hainan.

In short, the missionaries in China have proved themselves to have been, and to be, the leading investigators of Chinese knowledge, habits, and customs, and the leaders in the publication of such knowledge. To them is due all the credit of the political and commercial benefits which have resulted from a larger knowledge in Great Britain of China and its people; and the importance of the friendly relationship of the two Empires is yearly increasing by leaps and bounds, a relationship which can be maintained only if the two nations understand each other. This is by no means the most important result of their secular work. Whereas in past years the missionary has had to acquire through the experience of a lifetime an acquaintance with the inner life of the Chinese, the young missionary may now start with this acquaintance, and, commencing where his predecessor had been compelled to stop, he may make such further progress in the conquest of China for Christ as would have been only remotely possible but for his predecessors' secular work.

Again, let us see what the missionaries are doing to make England known to China, a work the importance of which is the greater, because the ignorance in China is crasser and denser than with us. Moreover, there the popular mind is subject to sudden gusts of passion, which have great effect upon the Government of the country, and therefore upon the lives and interests of Europeans. The missionaries are absolutely the only persons who are bringing home to the Chinese public mind a knowledge of the West. They are doing it by publishing, at a price so low that it will startle many people here to learn it, vast numbers of little books at a penny and twopence each, which are adaptations, or reprints of, or treatises upon, the greatest books of, and the principles of life in, the Western world. These little books are circulated in myriads throughout the length and breadth of China; and convey to hundreds of thousands of Chinese the only notion they have ever had of a world outside their own country. It is obviously of the highest importance that these earliest notions should be given by Protestant missionaries. In fact the missionary is the interpreter between China and his own country, and between his own country and China, a position which alone would warrant his existence. Nor must we omit to point out that now throughout China there are missionaries living as Chinese, indistinguishable by their dress or habits from the Chinese themselves, in places which no other European has ever visited, who in these spots, far off from the rest of mankind, amidst a mass of benighted and grossly ignorant people, have formed schools which are attended by Chinese boys and girls, who are taught the knowledge of the Western world, and the Christian religion.

It must not be thought, because we have dwelt on the secular side of their labour, that missionaries in China are engaged solely in educational or literary work. There are many missionaries there who never put pen to paper except to make their own reports of their work, who are purely teachers and preachers of religion.

There is a branch of the secular work of the missionaries in China of the highest value to which reference must be made. The Medical Missions are doing an amount of good which is incredible to all but those intimately acquainted with the multitudes of Chinese whose notions of Europeans and of their religions have been affected by these missions. We take, for an example, the case of the Medical Mission of Tien Tsin. Miss Howard, an American, was three years ago a missionary doctor there. She was requested by the most powerful statesman in China, the great Viceroy, Li Hung Chang, to go down into the interior of the country to see his mother who had been ill for many years, and, by the etiquette of China, ladies may not be attended by male doctors. Miss Howard travelled many hundred miles into the interior, and afforded the lady such great relief that, in gratitude for her services, and as she refused to accept any remuneration for herself, the Viceroy, Li Hung Chang, had constructed at his own cost in Tien Tsin an enormous hospital, of which he put Dr. Howard in charge, and which affords relief to hundreds every year of afflicted Chinese in that city. This work is giving the missionaries a hold upon the respect and affections of the Chinese which is more permanent in effect, and of infinitely more importance and value, than all the diplomatic actions and treaties of ministers and ambassadors.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS.—Friends desirous of helping a good work whilst ornamenting their rooms at Christmas, should send orders for artificial flowers, holly wreathing, &c., to the Flower Sellers' Mission, 11 and 12, Clerkenwell-close, E.C. The annual report will gladly be sent by the secretary, Mr. J. A. Groom, to those interested in the work.

EVANGELICAL SOCIETY OF GENEVA.—Pastor Elie Vernier, who has been an itinerating preacher of the Gospel in France for the last twelve years, is about to visit Great Britain to plead the cause of evangelisation in the wide and open field of France. The Evangelical Society of Geneva, formed in 1831, has witnessed since that time wonderful scenes of revival in many of its stations. Five hundred young Christians have been trained in the College, founded by such men of God as Dr. Merle d'Aubigné and Dr. Gaussen, and have been, or are still, at work in France, Belgium, Italy, and other countries. Sixty-one students are at present attending the College. The Committee for colportage and evangelisation supports annually about sixty agents in several departments of France.

SUCCESS IN LIFE.

The competition in journalism is as keen as in any pursuit for public favour, and as those who are engaged in it are among the most sharp-witted of men, the developments of journalistic enterprise are many and interesting. One of these is a fast-increasing practice of appealing to eminent men for their written opinions on all sorts of subjects, for the purpose of publication. The "eminent men" appear to raise no objection to competing in this form of "public examination," and their replies are often useful.

The latest examination of this sort has been conducted by The Northern Weekly Leader, which has asked the best-known men in Newcastle-on-Tyne for their opinions on "the way to win success in life," and, having got them, published them a few days since. For the most part "success" is taken to be synonymous with "prosperity," and the sum total of the opinions of these "eminent men" is not very new, and probably is from their point of view true. They say "a man should have a purpose in life, should know what he desires to be and to do;"..."to a purpose in life we must add as the second requisite, concentration of energy, and that characteristic of genius which has been described as the capacity for taking infinite pains;" ..."to do what you are doing with all your might...perfect trustworthiness and scrupulous adherence to your word;"..."we must find out our literary or scientific work, of whatever kind it is to be. We must hold on to that like grim death, and refuse to be diverted from it;"..."indomitable perseverance and capacity for work stand first. Good ability I would place second, and good temper third; ... bad temper, in fact, is a constant impediment to success, and often a fatal one."

In this hard dry desert of words, wherein the mirage of worldly prosperity is lauded as though acquisitiveness, selfishness, egotism, greed, and love of adulation, were not vices, but admirable qualities, it is refreshing to find the invigorating spring of truth in the replies of Dr. Spence Watson and Mr. T. Hodgkin, D.C.L. The former wrote, "Success in life. It is a thing which I have very little sympathy with. I feel more for those who fail. They seem to me the men chiefly to be honoured;" and Mr. Hodgkin wrote, amongst other things, "I very strongly feel, when I hear such proverbs as, 'Nothing succeeds like success,' and all the vulgar glorification of vulgar prosperity, how true it is that we are like children handling in the dark the bottles in a chemist's shop, little knowing which are medicines and which are poisons. We can all see how fatal great and early success often is to the character of him who achieves it. On the other hand, failure is often God's own tool for carving out some of the finest outlines in the character of his children. And even as to this life, bitter and almost crushing failures have often in them the germs of new and quite unimagined happiness. Some of us have found it so." These are manly, health-giving, Christian words. The anxious plotting and planning for the acquisition of wealth or distinction is opposed to the spirit of Christianity, which is evinced in a calm repose of life, resulting from a "rest in the Lord." The Christian is required to do the will of the Master now, and leave the question of the result to Him; to carve out no imaginary career for himself, but tranquilly to leave to-morrow in the hands of Him who guides to-day, ceaselessly praying, whether hardship or prosperity be his lot, "Thy will be done."

The Christian's estimate of the relative values of the circumstances of life differs entirely from the estimate of others. Wisdom consists in the possession of an accurate power of mental perspective, which, like a skilful artist, puts the objects of real importance in the foreground, and, with increasing diminution towards the background, pushes into insignificance or oblivion the objects of little value. The mental perspective of the Christian is governed by his faith in and love for the eternal truth as revealed in Jesus Christ. Christ is in the foreground of all his mental pictures of life. The light from Him determines the prominence or indistinctness of his objects, and many things which a selfish world applauds are altogether lost in the Christian's picture of his life, and many things of no account in the eyes of the worldly wise are to him of the utmost importance and value.

Apropos of these remarks are the words of Count Tolstoi, the celebrated Russian poet and artist, who has recently given up rank, office, and property, and now earns his bread by the labour of his own hands. He writes: "I believe in Christ's commandments, and this faith changes my whole former estimate of what is good and great, bad and low, in human life...Everything which I used to think bad and low—the rusticity of the peasant, the plainness of lodging, food, clothing, manners—all this has become good and great in my eyes." The young man who is wanting to know the way to win success in life should learn Matt. xvi. 25: "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it."

◆

MR. WOOKEY AT MANCHESTER.

This earnest evangelist concluded a ten days' mission in connection with Lees-street Congregational Church, Openshaw. From first to last the meetings were deeply interesting, and God's saving power was manifested in a wonderful degree.

Three special meetings were held for men only. At one of these, Mr. Wookey spoke on "Licensed Immorality in India and elsewhere, and our responsibilities in connection with it." He urged with great force that this abomination would never be removed, except as the result of the united efforts of the Christian men and women in England. Meetings of great power were also held for women only, and hundreds will not forget the earnest solemn words of warning and entreaty spoken at these services. Nor were the boys and girls forgotten. One evening the place was filled by those between ten and fifteen years of age. The great interest shown by them clearly pointed out how important it is not to overlook this branch of the work in a general mission.

It is impossible at present to measure the results of the work, but between eighty and ninety inquirers were dealt with, nearly every one of whom is now rejoicing in the assurance of Christ's love. One of many interesting incidents may be mentioned. A woman left her children at home and went to hear Mr. Wookey. The Holy Spirit strove with her, and she gave her heart to the Lord during the service. On the following morning, her eldest son, a boy of nine years, said to her, "Mother, did you go to the mission last night?" and she said "Yes." "Did you go into the vestry?" "Yes." "I thought so, because we've not been 'clouted' so much this morning." Not only have many been led to Christ as a result of the mission, but the Christians have got a real blessing from the Lord.

"THIS MAN RECEIVETH SINNERS."

Glad news! The Lord of glory and of heaven
Looks not with cold disdain and haughty pride
On human frailty; but receives at once,
With open arms, and gracious, loving words,
The poor returning, pleading prodigal.
His eye, all-piercing, searcheth all the thoughts
Of men and angels, yet He spurneth not
Those, humble and sincere, who crave the boon
Of his forgiveness! He receiveth sinners!
Then shall we not, in gracious awe, fall low
Before his throne, and, telling all the truth,
Calmly await the promised glorious light
Of that dread face whose smile makes highest heaven?
Almighty Lord, this truth, once held in scorn,
Is my best hope in this dark, evil world.
In my weak heart dwells nought of light and good
Apart from Thee. How then can I appear Before thine awful bar? But this glad word—
"Receiveth sinners"—full of hope divine,
Doth draw me near that sprinkled mercy-seat,
Whence flows, in ever wider, deeper stream,
The grace and cleansing I so sorely need.

Take up, and then repeat, O ransomed soul,
This faith of thine; nor ever dare to build
On other ground than this. The Man who once
Upon the accursèd tree was spread, and there,
Before a raging crowd of mocking men,
Shed his heart's blood for crimson human guilt,
To thee hath breathed, in accents soft and low,
"I suffer this for thee! Go now in peace.
I say to thee, in virtue of my death,
As God and I are true, thou art forgiven,
Art now a child of God, and in due time
With Me shalt reign."

Thy quickened soul was filled, as thou didst look
On Him thy sins had pierced, with tender sense
Of joy unspeakable; thy cleansèd heart
Did fill with fervent love, and incense brought
Of deep and fragrant praise: as also once
In thy Lord's life a sad and sinful soul
Anointed his blest feet, and so did show
Her grateful love. Thou too canst set thy seal
That it is true; this Man, the Son of God,
Thy Maker, and thy King, receiveth sinners;
On them doth freely shed the holy flame;
Who all their earthly course shall surely guide,
Through pathless wilderness and starless night,
Into the bright, eternal, fadeless day.
Spread far and wide, with all thy ransomed powers,
What thou hast freely gained. Tell to the sad,
And e'en the sinful, with a lowing heart,
How all the sons of men may come; yea, all—
Without delay—and balm and healing find,
And peace and joy. Nor ever dare refuse
To utter forth, through all thy pilgrim days,
The gracious Gospel news. Thou dwellest here
To show thy fellow-men the wondrous truth
Thy Saviour died to prove—that God is love.

George Evans.

◆

AFRICAN PIONEERS.

From this somewhat far-off corner of the earth we wish to express our best thanks for the receipt of The Christian. This is one of Bishop William Taylor's self-supporting stations, and as yet the furthest one inland on the line from Loanda. From various causes it is a difficult field, but God is blessing us, and the work is encouraging. We wish to ask prayer for ourselves and for the progress of God's cause here.

Rev. Samuel J. Mead is the superintendent of this station, and has associated with him, besides his wife, four men and two ladies, including Dr. Reid, who was reported in the papers as having been eaten by cannibals, but in fact is still enjoying good health and practising his profession here in Malange. My wife is with me. We thank God that through his goodness we now find ourselves self-supporting, mainly through the work of our own hands. Hard work it is, too—such as holding the plough, hauling logs, hewing timber, sowing and shop work, &c. We trust God for such health as shall be to his praise. Many risk their lives in this country to gain wealth. Should not a servant of Jesus Christ be willing to risk as much to obey and gain that which shall never perish? W. H. Mead.

Malange, South Central Africa.

FROM THE AUSTRALIAN BUSH.

It is many months since I wrote a line for The Christian. Times have been hard with us owing to six long weary years of continuous drought, and I have had little time for correspondence. According to the reading of Mr. Meyer's interesting and instructive lessons on Elijah, we were first at Cherith — separation — since then at Zarephath—smelting and refining furnace. The last year has been an extraordinary one for rain; the season has consequently been superb, and by God's good help we may yet pull through. Many have completely "gone broke," as they say here, in the past few years. Friends here and there have been raised up who have helped us along. The New South Wales land laws are still wretched, and their administration worse. The new ministry talk of bringing in a better condition of things. But, like Sir Wilfred Lawson's work in the Home Parliament, good measures are very slowly brought about here. As yet, I cannot encourage emigration to this colony.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN PARKES.

The diggings township of Parkes has been the scene of quite a number of mission services of one sort and another for some months past. The Good Templar Lodge had been revived about two years ago, and there was much need of it. A mission, held some months since by the district visitor, who preached as well as lectured on temperance, resulted in a great accession to the lodge. Then, as the two Protestant ministers, Wesleyan and Episcopal, were good men, and had been working assiduously, hearty prayer-meetings were held, and good results followed. Mr. Matthew Burnett, the well-known Australian apostle of temperance, who had, curiously enough, never been through New South Wales before, entered it from the South, and gradually worked on from town to town till he reached Parkes. He was most cordially received, and held a week's temperance mission, and wound up with several nights of evangelistic work, in which he was heartily assisted by Revs. F. G. Nield (Church of England), and J. Tarn (Wesleyan), and the members of their congregations, so that Parkes was thoroughly stirred.

A travelling evangelist, named John Graham, arrived a day or two afterward, and conducted special services in the Wesleyan Church, which deepened the work previously carried on. Soon after, a special united covenant service was held amongst the Lord's people, in which a number took part. The cause of God in Parkes is stronger than ever, and the ministrations of the two evangelical clergymen are much appreciated.

Mr. Matthew Burnett has reappeared somewhat suddenly in our neighbourhood. Since he left Parkes, about ten weeks ago, he has given the temperance pledge to about 3000 people, and many have given evidence of conversion to God. He has been doing the back blocks, where travelling is monotonous and trying; but, notwithstanding, Mr. Burnett appeared fresher looking even than before. At Molong he met with a very cordial reception. One incident there was most touching. Amongst others who greeted him in public was the venerable Presbyterian minister, recently appointed to Molong, Mr. Jennings. This reverend gentleman, though eighty-four years of age, does a large amount of driving about in the discharge of his pastoral pioneer duties. In welcoming Mr. Burnett, he stated that he had met him eighteen years ago in Victoria, when his family attended the reformer's meetings. One night his wife came home confirmed in faith, and rejoicing in the Lord. She has since passed away to her reward. Other members of his family were, one after another, in a few days brought to the Lord at Mr. Burnett's meetings. There was great joy and rejoicing in his home. One son is now in the ministry, and the others are holding on to their faith, and serving God in their various avocations. It was a most effective, as well as affecting, testimony.

Mr. Burnett drove fifty miles one day and fifty miles back the next to pay a farewell visit to his Parkes friends, when a few more signed the pledge. During his absence one public-house had closed up and a temperance hotel had been opened. He is a most systematic worker, and does his work thoroughly. It is twenty years since I first sang in the open air in Victoria at his missions, and he had been labouring for several years then; and, with the exception of his home visit when his voice gave way, he has been constantly in harness. He intends, if spared, to devote two or three years more to New South Wales and Queensland, take a spell of rest, and then do a similar work in England, Ireland, Wales, and Scotland. He is influencing people of every class and rank here. D. M. Logan.

Moura, Bumberry, viâ Molong,
New South Wales.

◆

THE STORY of our FIRST COTTAGE.

By Dr. BARNARDO.

I shall never forget how I got the first cottage at Ilford. Would you like to know the story? I will tell it very briefly. I had felt that the work of massing a number of little girls together in Mossford Lodge was wrong. I resolved that, by God's help, I would close that house as a home for girls, and if we could not gather a family more in accordance with what I knew to be right principles, I would give up that phase of work altogether, However, in a very wonderful way the money to purchase the land on which to build separate cottages was sent to me. So I had the land, but as yet I had no cottages. I drew up a scheme of what I intended to do; it appeared in the pages of The Christian. Some weeks passed. I received from my oldest friends only letters of rebuke for the presumption, as they called it, of my scheme. I do not think I had, in response, one letter of sympathy or offer of help from anybody! I was very sad when I reflected upon this, as you may suppose.

Well, going down to certain meetings then about to be held at Oxford, one day I met at the railway station a Christian brother in a humble sphere of life, whom I knew as one of the godliest men it was ever my privilege to meet; a man of prayer, a man of faith, a man whose very face told you something of the peace of God which reigned within. We met on the platform, and he told me he was going to Oxford too. We talked together, up and down the platform, and then in the carriage when we got in. I had many burdens on my mind then, and was feeling sad and downcast about them. I suppose I showed my grief in the expression of my face, for he said to me, in a tone of very sincere sympathy, when we were in the railway carriage alone, "How is your work going on?" Then I told him all about my heavy burdens. We were alone. This man of God thought for a moment, and then he turned to me and said, "If God shows you that your proposed scheme is too large, and that you should give it up, are you prepared to give it up?" I thought for a moment, too. I thought if God's approval and blessing were not with me, it were better I did not succeed from an earthly point of view. So I said, "Yes; I am quite prepared." He replied, after a moment's pause, "We are going down to Oxford for a special purpose—for spiritual refreshment. Let us here, in this carriage alone, kneel down and commit your case to God, and let us ask Him, if it be his will, to show you clearly, before you leave Oxford, whether you should go on or turn back."

We knelt down together in that carriage. We committed the case of the children to God. We rose up after prayer, lightened and refreshed. We soon reached our journey's end. I went to my hotel. My friend said, "Good-bye." He was stopping somewhere else, but he arranged to breakfast with me at the hotel at eight o'clock the next morning. Well, in the morning, while I was dressing, a man came to the door, and knocked. I thought it was the servant bringing up hot water. I said, "Come in." The door was opened just about wide enough for a man to put his head in. A head was thrust in, but so that I could hardly see who the owner of it was. His hair was all dishevelled, and he was evidently not yet fully dressed. "Is your name Barnardo?" he asked. I said "Yes." "You are thinking of building a village for little girls at Ilford, are you not? You want some cottages?" Well, I was scarcely able to answer him. But I said, "Yes—yes." He asked, "Have you got any?"—never coming in beyond putting his head through the door. I replied, "No—not yet." "Well," he cried, "put me down for the first cottage; good morning;" and away he went.

But as to putting him down, I did not know his name; I had not seen his face properly. I rushed down the corridor after him, and caught him. I said, "You must come back." I got him back into the room. He came into my room. What was the history of his gift? He had had a dear child, a daughter, whom he had lost some months before; and he had resolved in his mind to commemorate that daughter by rearing some institution, such as his means would enable him to do. He had heard of our work, and had determined to help us, but had hitherto done nothing. The appeal in The Christian came before him and his wife, and they said to each other, "This is what we will do; we can afford that amount; we will build one of these cottages for little destitute girls." He never sent me word of his intention, but down there at Oxford, whither I had gone after having specially asked God's guidance, the message came to me in that striking manner. In the morning, while he was dressing, he had asked the "boots," who were in the hotel—"Whom have you got there? Who has arrived lately?" The man replied, "I will get you the book, and you can see." He went down and got him the book of arrivals. There was my name, and my number! On the spur of the moment, in his impulsive manner, he dashed away, without finishing his dressing, got to my room, just opened the door, and made his announcement in the fashion I have told you. I need not assure you we did not leave that bedroom without both prayer and praise!

I went presently down to the breakfast room. My poor-rich friend of the previous night was there by appointment. When I came up to him, I suppose he saw in my face an expression somewhat different from that of the former evening, and he just looked at me, and then quietly said, "'It shall come to pass that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear.'" And we together there and then gave God thanks for that wonderful answer to prayer.—Night and Day.

GIFFORD HALL.—A very successful industrial exhibition, and one possessing somewhat novel features, was recently held at Gifford Hall, Caledonian-road. Efforts had been made to interest the scholars of three neighbouring Board Schools, and with some success, for there were many exhibits which had formed the subject of school exercises, none the less pleasant because of the thought of their ultimate exhibition. Some of these won prizes, which have encouraged not only the fortunate winners, but also their parents and their day-school teachers. Most of the exhibitors (numbering over 400) were directly connected with the mission, and many of these were far beyond the ordinary day-school age—some of them being married men and women.

PROTECTION OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN.—The Associate Institution for Improving and Enforcing the Laws for the Protection of Women, have published the details of a case of horrible depravity, as illustrating the difficulties that often beset the poor, and the need for such societies to prevent lamentable failures of justice. The published statement reflects very severely on the action taken by Mr. Paget, the police magistrate before whom the case was originally heard. Justice was ultimately vindicated, at a great expense to the Society, which deserves the fullest public support. In all cases of outrages upon women or children, in which advice or assistance may be required, application should be made to the secretary, Mr. H. J. Newman, at the offices of the Institution, 30, Cockspur-street, Charing Cross; or to the Prosecuting Officer, Mr. William Moore, 174, Spa-road, Bermondsey, S.E.

CHRISTIAN LIVING.

BY REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

III.—RECIPROCAL INDWELLING.

JOHN XV. 4.

"THAT I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life" was the aspiration of the man after God's own heart. It became his saintly soul, but it cannot be literally realised in these days, when there is no longer one material earthly sanctuary. And yet there is a sense in which that wish may be verified in the history of us all. What is the house of the Lord but the conscious presence of the Lord? And they who have acquired the blessed habit of perpetually recollecting the nearness of Jesus know something, at least, of that dwelling in the secret place of the Most High, and abiding under the shadow of the Almighty, of which the Psalmist sang.

If only we could acquire that blessed habit, and maintain that hallowed attitude of spirit, we should need few exhortations beside. We should be perfectly satisfied with Himself. We should hold all things in Him. We should fear no foe, fighting under the Captain's eye. We should be set free from the power of besetting sin, as the fire in our grates is extinguished when the sun shines brilliantly upon the glowing embers. How strong! how sweet! how happy! should we be, if only we could dwell in the unbroken enjoyment of the presence of the King; so that He should be first in every thought, and act, and moment of life.

You say that this may be possible for the priest, or the saint, but not for those who are harassed with daily care; for the cloister, but not for the market; for the holy day, but not for the working day. Yet, surely, since the Master bids us all to abide in Him, and stays not to limit his meaning, or define the character of those who are welcome to stand continually in his presence, we must infer that He wishes to make no distinctions, but to admit all his servants to share in the bright and blessed privilege.

But can the mind be occupied with two thoughts at once? Perhaps not: yet, though it may be impossible for the mind to entertain at the same instant more than one train of ideas, beneath the mind there is the heart, with all its sensibilities and deep emotional life, instantly and always alive to the presence or absence of some beloved object, even when the mind is most busily engaged.

The orator is conscious of the presence and appreciation of his audience, even when his intellect is most busily engaged in furnishing the thought which he is uttering. The business man, absorbed in counting up his books, whilst his wife is quietly occupied with her work by his side, is aware of her sweet presence, at the very moment when he is adding up the longest column of figures. The young mother may be very busy about the house, tidying the rooms in the upper storeys, but her heart is always on the alert for the cry of the babe, whose crib is beside the kitchen fire. So we may be fully occupied in thought and act, and yet our heart may be abiding in holy and blessed communion with our Lord, as a living bright reality,

> More present to faith's vision keen
> Than any earthly object seen;
> More dear, more intimately nigh
> Than e'en the closest earthly tie.

But before this blessed consciousness of the presence of Christ can be ours, we must know experimentally the meaning of the Apostle's words, "Christ liveth in me." In point of fact, there is a lovely reciprocity in this indwelling. We abide in Him, because He abides in us. In the translucent depths of southern seas, the voyager is aware of the infinite variety of sponge-growth, waving to and fro with the gentle movement of the tide; and the ocean is in the sponge, whilst the sponge is in the ocean, illustrating the reciprocal indwelling of the believer in Christ, and Christ in the believer. Take the common iron poker from your fireside, and place it amid the fiery bed of burning coals, and soon it becomes red-hot, because the fire is in it whilst it is in the fire. Shall the time not come when we shall learn the secret of a life of ardent devotion and glowing zeal, because we have mastered the lesson of the reciprocal indwelling of the saint and the Saviour?

This was the secret of the human life of Christ. He dwelt in his Father's love, whilst there rang through his being the glad consciousness that He did always those things which gave pleasure to his Father's heart. And the Father dwelt in Him, manifesting his Divine presence by words of grace and works of power. Have you ever truly realised that Jesus Christ is literally within you; the Divine tenant and occupant of the inner shrine? Do not feel obliged to dilute or water down this wondrous fact, as if it were too marvellous to be accepted in its literal force. We cannot understand it; we cannot reason it out with our poor logic; we cannot account for it; we can only sit down in amazed wonder and exclaim, "Wherefore is this come to me, that I should become a temple for the Lord God of Hosts?" And when once we can realise the literal force of "I in you," we shall enter upon the glorious and perpetual enjoyment of "Ye in Me." The two are reciprocal, and the measure of our appreciation of the one is the measure of our enjoyment of the other.

There are four texts in the New Testament in which the truth of this reciprocity of indwelling is taught, each time with a specific purpose.

I. AS TO FELLOWSHIP.—"He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in Me, and I in him" (John vii. 56). Whatever else is meant in that mystic feeding on Christ, this at least is included, that through the help of the Holy Ghost, we are to set apart daily periods of time for fellowship with the living Saviour. The early morning hour, when we go forth to gather manna, while the day is young; the evening twilight, when men go forth to meditate; the hour of solemn worship and gathering with the people of God; all these, and many other golden seasons, are opportunities of nourishing the inner life, with his flesh, which is meat indeed, and his blood, which is drink indeed.

But how often, at such times, the spirit seems to fail and faint. It cannot disengage itself from the birdlime of worldliness which fastens it down. It cannot shake off the buzzing cloud of teasing, wandering thoughts. It resembles, as Jeremy Taylor says, a lark trying in vain to rise against a strong east wind.

What should be our resource then? We may turn from personal supplication to intercession on the behalf of others; or we may open the Word of God, and begin to study its pages, as men pour water into a dry pump to make it draw; or we may appropriate the prayers of the saints of former days. But there is a more excellent way. Let us sit quietly down to meditate. Let us remember that the living Saviour, who ever liveth to pray, is literally within us. He who, in the days of his flesh, climbed the mountains for fellowship with his Father, while the towns that bordered on the lake were still swathed in morning mist, is now dwelling in the heart. Stand aside, then, cease your strivings and efforts, and let Him pour forth in and through you the mighty torrent of his strong cryings and ceaseless prayers.

It will not be long before you find your prayers mounting up with freedom and conscious power to heaven; and in a moment, by the reciprocity which we are now considering, you shall become aware of the literal presence around you, as a Divine environment, of Him who once lit up the lone isle of Patmos by the irradiation of his manifested glory.

II. AS TO OBEDIENCE.—"He that keepeth his commandments, dwelleth in Him, and He in him" (1 John iii. 24). There are three things which must focus in one point before we can be sure of the will of God. The prompting of the Spirit within, the teaching of the Word without, and the concurrence of Providence around, in the events of daily life. We should never take a step unless these three concur. If they do not, we may be sure that God's hour is not yet come, and we should stand still and see his salvation.

But there are times when we clearly know the Lord's will, but seem unable to do it. Our heart and flesh fail. We cower before strong opposition. The good we would, we do not; the evil we would not, we do.

How shall we do then? Shall we lash ourselves forward by reproaches and remonstrances, as the galley slaves of old were urged to more frantic exertions by the strokes of the knout? Not so. We are no longer under the law, but under grace. God does not leave us thus to cope with ourselves. There is another and a better way, which lies within the text already cited, if its identical propositions are reversed, "He that dwelleth in Him, and He in him, keepeth his commandments."

Remember, again, that the Lord Jesus is in you as the very power of God. During his earthly life He bore the significant title of Servant of God, who, when the Lord God opened his ear, was not rebellious nor turned away back, nor swerved a hairsbreadth from the narrow path of implicit obedience. Why should not He work in you and through you as of old He wrought of Himself? Let Him have the opportunity. Cease from your own works, as the Son did from his. And as He emptied Himself, so that the Father which dwelt in Him was really the doer of his works, so empty yourself of your own efforts and strivings and let Him work in you to will and to do of his own good pleasure. You will soon be delivered from impotence, and indolence, and failure, and you will find yourself energised mightily in all manner of strenuous and noble deeds.

And this will be the result by the law of reciprocity, which we are elaborating, that you will become aware of the literal presence of Him who appeared to Joshua as the Captain of the Lord's host. You will be ready to kneel before Him in lowly homage, and to await his commands; and you will carry with you a consciousness of the fact that you are ever living in the very midst of the encompassing glory of the King of saints. "In Him we live, and move, and have our being."

III. AS TO CONFESSION.—"Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God" (1 John iv. 15). The days are past in which every confessor was called to be a martyr. And yet confession is hard enough—not easy to stand up for Christ in the commercial room, or in the workshop, in the railway carriage, or amid the frivolities of a drawing-room. There is a natural proneness in us all to a false shame, which gags our mouths, and chokes our utterance, and keeps us silent, when we know we ought to speak.

Ah, how bitterly we reproach ourselves then and afterwards, as we see the opening gradually close; and feel that the chance for quiet remonstrance, or for words of entreaty and expostulation, has gone never to return.

And yet we have failed so often, we have almost lost heart. Can it ever be different, we being what we are? Can we ever resemble Antipas the faithful confessor? Shall we ever be bold as a lion for Him who has never given us just cause for shame? Indeed, matters will never mend until we abandon our own feeble attempts and draw heavily on the glorious fact of his mighty indwelling. We can do nothing, but all things are possible to Him. Let us only give Him the chance. Let us place ourselves at his disposal to speak in us, and through us, as He will. Let Him have his blessed way with us. Before Pontius Pilate He witnessed a good confession; why may we not expect Him to repeat it, through us, the meanest of the members of his body, who long to be possessed of Him, as of old men were the mediums through which lost spirits spoke and wrought.

And none can thus abandon themselves to Him without becoming aware, through the law of reciprocal indwelling, that Christ in the heart means the heart in Christ; and that dependence on the indwelling Saviour will invariably induce a vivid consciousness of the indwelling of the human spirit in the light of his gracious presence.

IV. AS TO LOVE.—"He that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in Him" (1 John iv. 16). We must love people whom we cannot like, with whom we have no natural sympathy, and who seem made to irritate us. It is easy to like nice people. No special grace is required for this. Our affections naturally entwine around the amiable and gentle; and, if these alone filled our homes, there would be no education in the Divine art of loving. We only learn what the love of God is when we have to do with people who defy our own powers of affection. The fairest powers of nature are never so apparent as when they are called in to drape the rents in the earth's surface, or some unsightly rock, rearing its form amid a paradise of beauty.

Is there such a person in your life, the source of constant chafe, annoyance, fret, you feel you cannot love, you cannot talk gently to, or stroke that fretful face, or find pleasure in that uncongenial presence? Anything but that. You could be lovely if only you were thrown with a congenial temperament. Yet how much you would miss of Divine education! Do this. Fall back on the memory of the Divine indwelling; and since the strong Son of God, who is Immortal Love, is in you, let Him love that loveless one through you; let Him pour a torrent of love through you, as the channel and medium of blessing; let his love speak through your voice, and look through your eyes, and nerve your fingers. Love with his love. You can do all things through Christ that strengtheneth you.

And, again, let us repeat it. You will find that you cannot act thus without bringing into operation that reciprocity of indwelling which is our theme; and you will know, as never before, what it is to have Christ encompassing you behind and before, and covering you with the warm, safe protection of those feathers, to which He called Jerusalem.

What more need we say? The Spirit can alone reveal the truth we try to teach. But He will gladly perform this his appointed office. And thus we shall come to understand what it is ever "to dwell in the secret place of the Most High, and to abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

◆

THE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE.

CONFERENCE AT PHILADELPHIA, U.S.A.

THIS city has been the rendezvous of many ministers and laymen who assembled to take part in a four days' conference on the important subject of the "Inspiration of the Bible." The Conference did not include discussion, but consisted of eighteen essays or papers on various subjects allied to the main theme, and contributed by clergymen from various cities and States. Dr. Brookes travelled above a thousand miles, from St. Louis; his subject was "Different Theories of Inspiration"; Dr. Bishop, of Orange, N.J., treated of the "Testimony of Scripture to Itself"; Professor Stifler dealt with the "Relation of the Gospels to the Pentateuch"; Dr. Johnson, of Virginia, wrote on the "Testimony of the Apostles to Inspiration"; Bishop Nicholson, of Philadelphia, on the "Bearing of Prophecy on Inspiration." Dr. Chambers and Dr. Howard Crosby both came from New York, and the actual promoter of the Conference, Evangelist George C. Needham, spoke of "The Spirit and the Word."

Most of the addresses were nearly an hour in length, and all will be printed in a volume to be published by Mr. Revell of 148, Nassau Street, New York. As the careful research and mature expression of so many minds, the book cannot fail to be useful in colleges and in private libraries. The committee which arranged the Conference was unsectarian. The sessions were held in Chambers' Memorial Church, Broad-street, Philadelphia. The ground floor of the church seats one thousand persons, and was well filled at each session.

It is not possible to give even an outline of the many addresses delivered, but a few of the ideas presented by Professor Stifler in his very able paper may be acceptable to readers of THE CHRISTIAN. The Professor declared that the Pentateuch and the Gospels stand in the same relation to each other as the Old Testament to the New; they are parts of one whole. There was profound meaning in the analogy of their genealogical tables. There was a relation in their subject-matter—the same origin, the same God, the same peculiar nation, the same ancestry. The whole relation was of the most intimate character. The attack upon the Old Testament is not to-day so much rationalistic and mystical as critical. It is not unreasonable, and is apparently supported by facts. But it is being confronted, and will no doubt be confounded, by the application of its own method of criticism. It is said, for example, that Deuteronomy was written during the Captivity; whence then the Samaritan Pentateuch? The continuity of the New Testament is a great argument against the critics. It is the key which unlocks the cypher of the Old. The skeleton which Moses sketched with the roughness of a charcoal drawing becomes the finished picture when presented by the Evangelists. The Messiah came to fulfil the law; He lent vitality to the treasure house of Moses. There would have been no Gospel in the spotless lily, in the falling sparrow, and in the human family tie, if Jesus of Nazareth had not indicated that Gospel.

The relation of the Pentateuch is maintained by direct quotations in the Gospels. Out of one hundred references to the Old Testament in the New, thirty-eight are from the Pentateuch, and most of them made by our Lord Himself. There is peril, however, in supposing that by thus quoting He saved us the necessity of interpreting the Pentateuch. All He did was incidental. Referring to the argument of the critics, that the progress of Scripture criticism has advanced far beyond the human knowledge our Lord possessed, the speaker said, "It would be sublimely ridiculous, if it were not so offensive, to suppose that the critics of this century knew more than the Son of God. "May grace not fail us, nor patience," he exclaimed, amid considerable applause, "as we think of so puerile an argument. One cannot help asking what is the meaning of the words, 'I and My Father are one'; 'This commandment have I received of My Father.' A little religion does not come amiss," he observed, "even in criticism."

Then he quoted in substance Professor Briggs, who said:—Through the whole course of Scripture we go to find Jesus—a Saviour. Jesus Christ knew the Old Testament well, and interpreted it as One who knew the mind of God. He needed no help to climb the pyramid of interpretation; He lived on the summit. Then, in sarcastic vein, he said, Piety may not atone for the lack of Greek, nor prayer for an ignorance of Hebrew, but piety and prayer will give us a better idea of God. "I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes."

The critic dwells in another region; God interprets his own Word, and the critical scalpel has no function till life has ceased. Jesus never aimed at being a textual or literal quoter of Old Testament passages, but his frequent references show their value and trustworthiness. When questioned as to the law of divorce, He brought in the Divine authority, "God made them male and female." What God does interprets what He says, and the one reason for monogamy which Jesus advanced was drawn from Mosaic law. He who could speak of the Sodom of the future was textually critical enough to know of the past, and it is safe to use his own words, "The Scripture cannot be broken." Concluding his paper, Professor Stifler said, "The spiritual breaks through the natural. He who has been humbled under the sense of his forgiveness will not find the difficulties created by cold analytical study. He will not stumble at the supernatural who has experienced it in his own soul."

◆

LADIES' MISSION-HOUSE AT JERUSALEM.

DEAR SIR,—I spent six weeks in Jerusalem with two of my associates this year. We felt very much distressed at the state of the Moslem and Jewish women all over the parts of the East that we visited. They truly sit as captives in the shadow of death, and nowhere more so than in that city so dear to all Christian hearts, where the Lord was crucified. Only women full of love and zeal for souls can help them, and it is pressingly needed now for such to give their testimony to the power of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, to their sisters who are sunk in deepest degradation in all the lands where the power of Islam reigns.

We purpose to open a women's medical mission in Jerusalem as a beginning for the work of our household there. Some of our experienced associates will go out as soon as our arrangements are complete. We want funds to start the work, and ladies, either to re-inforce our staff at home, or to go to Jerusalem and carry it on with us on the same lines so blessed of God in our land. Those who are disposed to join us should come and see me or Miss Cavendish on any Monday at four o'clock.—Yours in Christian bonds,

MARTHA A. LLOYD

143, Clapham-road, London, S.W.

"MY LITTLE CRIPPLE." — "R. B.," who recently wrote the touching statement to which so many of our readers kindly responded, desires heartily to thank all, old and young, who rendered help in the matter. "You will all rejoice to learn (says R. B.) that Arthur has now comforts and pleasures of which he never even dreamed: he is being taught many little fancy works, &c., which may help him later on to earn his bread."

For the Young.

VILLAGE WORK IN CHINA.

BY MISS M. E. SCOTT.

Yang-chau, Sept. 3.

To-day I have had my first experience of village work, and most delightfully interesting it has been. Of course at present my own words are very few, but I went to-day chiefly to learn. Miss Lily Davis and our Christian woman were my companions. After a delightful little time of prayer with the sisters here for blessing on our undertaking, we started on a wheelbarrow about eleven a.m.; I only wish our friends at home could see what capital contrivances they are, and how well adapted to these narrow streets.

It was a glorious morning, and we felt in the best of spirits, and confident that our prayers were heard, and that we should have a real good time. We went first of all through some streets that rather reminded one of East than of West-end London life, and then, passing through one of the city gates, reached the canal and the shipping. There were some very interesting shops and warehouses just here. Soon we saw a queer-looking raft, which proved to be our ferry-boat. We had for companions a man with a number of lanterns, a man and donkey, our own, and, if I remember rightly, another wheelbarrow, and a few more passengers. These rafts are poled across by one man. Once I thought we were in imminent peril from a collision with a large boat that was coming down the canal with a good breeze; but our clever boatman used his long pole to help himself, and very soon we reached the other bank, where we and our curious cargo were disembarked—my first experience of a Chinese ferry, else I should not have entered into such minute details; I want my dear ones at home to be able to picture it.

We had not gone far on the other side, when we were greatly encouraged by a nice-looking Chinaman coming up and buying two Gospels, and someone else bought a third. We had not been able to go out of the city for some time on account of the hot weather, so to-day we thoroughly enjoyed the fresh breeze and open country, and some handsome sunflowers looked very home like.

Our first halt was at a resting-place in a little hamlet. Here some seats were brought us, and Miss Davis and the woman began to talk to a very interested and rapidly-increasing congregation. I should think that, including children, thirty or forty people collected, and two or three Gospels and tracts were sold. One poor man with weak eyes seemed particularly interested, and quite agreed with what Miss Davis said about the powerlessness of idols to help us in any way.

We then went on to another road-side resting place, and here a man said to us, "What is the use of bringing opium first, and then coming to preach the doctrine?" and a great deal more in the same strain; so you see how our national shame meets us at every turn. From the lowest standpoint it is only our duty to bring to these poor Chinese the only real cure for this and every other sin.

We stopped again a little further on, where a good many women were gathered, and one woman bought a tract; she could not read herself, she said, but her neighbour could, so she bought her tract, and carefully folded it up. I always feel happy and satisfied when we scatter some of God's own Word, for have we not his faithful word of promise that it shall not return unto Him void, but shall accomplish the end for which He sent it? I wish I could picture these little crowds for you; they seem to make the Gospel story so much more real. Men, women, and children, many rather ragged and dirty, but others, again, clean and nice as you might wish to see; many with really lovely dark eyes, and very lovable, smiling faces; and then, again, sad and careworn faces, with here and there bad eyes and other disfigurements. Very, very few had ever heard before of Jesus, or of the one true God. It seemed to bring us very near to Him as they crowded round us, and made us think of those Judæan crowds; but, oh, how we longed to bring the knowledge of the great Healer of soul and body to them!

Presently we sat down in the shade of a little grove of bamboos to have some lunch, and a poor woman offered to make us some tea, when she heard Miss Davis say how thirsty she was (and no wonder, after talking for so long). We followed this woman up a little path to her house—such a queer little mud dwelling; but there again we had quite a nice meeting, and once more dear Lily told the good news. The kind receptions we received greatly encouraged us.

A CHILD'S PRAYER.

Some of the mothers on Mount Lebanon are now beginning to teach their children to pray to the Lord Jesus, and the little ones themselves are learning that prayer is just asking Him for what they really want. To show you how simply some of these little children pray, a mother was one day teaching her little boy to say the Lord's Prayer, and had got as far as "Give us this day our daily bread," when the child went on in his own way: "Give us to-day our daily bread and olives." For most of the people eat olives with their bread; you may often see a man go off to his daily work with a handful of bitter olives wrapped in one of their pancake-like loaves, and tied into the back of the scarf which he uses as a girdle.—Friend of Missions.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

Off the hurry and bustle of the Commercial-road we turn suddenly down a dark entry, which is so narrow that two people can hardly pass each other. The passage is so small that unless you knew of its existence you would pass it, never dreaming that it leads into a perfect network of courts and alleys. After a minute or so the passage widens, and we come upon a forlorn-looking row of houses that even in brightest summer never look anything but dingy. We go down a step into the second of these, and find a dark, unwholesome place, with everything in its aspect to depress and sadden. The father of the family, who works at the docks, has now been fifteen weeks out of work, and the wife and six children in this cheerless home have been half starved. How they exist is a mystery to themselves. They can find no work, and no prospect of work, though hours are spent seeking it.

Coming out of this house, we continue our way through the alley, past more wretched houses, from which (if it is washing day) lines of questionably clean garments flap in your face; then a sharp turn brings us down past an old unused factory, and again we go through a narrow passage with such a sharp turn that one is obliged to make some sound in order to avoid collision with whoever has entered it from the other end. At the end of this passage comes another row of houses facing a blank wall, under which stagnate the unsavoury waters of "Limehouse Butt." We now enter the last house of the row, and find ourselves in the presence of a tall, thin, careworn-looking woman. The furniture of the room consists of a large bed, a chair, a table, and a few cups and saucers. Here live a father, mother, and four children. The room is clean, though so poor. Work, she tells us, is so bad that she has been obliged to part with her shawl; and this is the reason she has not been able to come to the meetings. One shilling was all she could get for it, but the children were crying for bread, and as it was the last thing she could possibly part with, it had to go, for the children must not starve.

Close to the river, down a lonely alley, we reach a curious-looking house, at the door of which we knock. It opens most abruptly on a staircase, which we ascend, and then we get into a passage so pitch dark that it seems quite dangerous. At the end of this is a room, which is over a stable, the fumes of which make the air most unpleasant and oppressive. The room is bare and comfortless, and in this unhealthy atmosphere lives and works a poor little woman, toiling hard to get her living by trouser finishing. Her husband is old and constantly out of work, and she has one little lad living; her privations have been terrible, and yet she never grumbles; for she has learned to trust in the Lord. Working very hard, she is only able to earn from 5s. to 5s. 7d. per week, and when rent is paid, it only leaves about 3s. 6d. for the three to live on. —Woman's Work.

A CHILD OVERBOARD.

There was a strong wind and a flowing sea. We were down below; suddenly a woman's shriek pierced the cabin, then the cry, "Man overboard!" then a quick shuffling of feet, then hauling of ropes, and down went the boat. We rushed up the gangway, searched the ship's angry, eddying track, and there—appalling sight!—there, in the trough of the sea, was the pallid, upturned face, agony-stricken, of a little native lad, and he of barely nine summers. He had been washed overboard, and was, as men speak, at the mercy of the sharks and the waves. His father (foster) was dumb-stricken; his mother, frenzied, threw herself at Mr. Pease's feet, and hugging them, wailed: "O God, save my boy! O God, save my boy!" We in turn cried out to solace her: "See, the boy lives! See, he swims bravely! There, the boat sees him! God is strong! God will save! See, they are dragging him into the boat! There, there, he is saved!"

Within ten minutes of that first cruel wave the poor little waif was aboard again, and then, naked and shivering, he fell into the soft, warm shelter of his mother's bosom, and there they wept together. Nor were the eyes of the weather-beaten sailors dry. Two days later and little Teina's cheery voice was again trilling out from the forecastle one of our South Sea Island ditties. —L. M. S. Chronicle.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. T. Sayer, Emmanuel Church Schools, West-end, Hampstead, December 5—9, at 7. Mr. Rickards, Longton, Staffs., Dec. 11—15. Mr. Josiah Spiers, Trinity Wesleyan Schools, Fernhead-road, St. Peter's-park, Paddington, Dec. 4—9, at 7. Mr. H. Hutchinson, Emmanuel Schools, Harrow-road, Paddington, Dec. 4—9, at 7. Mr. Herbert J. Pewtress, Kensal Hall, Kensal-road, Dec. 4—9, at 7. Mr. Martin J. Hall, St. Andrew's, Hazelwood-crescent, Kensal-road, Dec. 4—9, at 7; Crosby, Liverpool, Dec. 26 to January 2, 1888; Bournemouth, January 3—9; Southsea, January 8—13.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sunday, December 11, Isaiah xxv. 1—12; Monday, December 12, Isaiah xxvi. 1—13; Tuesday, December 13, Isaiah xxviii. 9—20; Wednesday, December 14, Isaiah xxix. 13—24; Thursday, December 15, Isaiah xxx. 8—21; Friday, December 16, Isaiah xxxii. 1—20; Saturday, December 17, Isaiah xxxiii. 13—24.

PENNY DINNERS IN DUBLIN.—Arrangements have been made in Dublin for giving penny dinners to the poor. The only difficulty which, up to the present, has been experienced by the four charitable ladies who are at the head of the movement is that of dealing with the crowds of starving people who present themselves. On some days the services of policemen are necessary to keep the people from the doors. We trust it may be possible to extend the arrangements so as to overcome this difficulty, especially as the movement is an unsectarian one, a very desirable thing in a city like Dublin.

MR. H. COOK, OF GOSPORT, has paid us a visit, and, by the kind permission of Rev. Nevile Sherbrooke, addressed a meeting, at which Mr. George Williams presided, at the Reeve Mission Room, on Wednesday week, giving a brief account of his thirty-four years' work among seamen, fishermen, and the "waifs and strays" at the different ports he has visited in England and France. I have had the privilege of witnessing the result of this work at Torquay and at Folkestone, where the "power of God" has been manifested in the salvation of precious souls. During the late heavy gales Mr. Cook sustained a severe loss in the wreck of the large boat used by him in visiting the ships in the harbour and roadsteads. He is very desirous to purchase another boat, so necessary for the carrying on of his work.

R. William.

23, Alfred-place, Bedford-square, W.

A WOMAN'S WORK.

At the recent meeting of the National Vigilance Association, Mrs. Raymond Pelly, of Stratford said:—

Like many others, I was in ignorance of the moral degradation around me, and the systematic traffic in sin, till between four and five years ago, when my eyes were opened by attending a meeting addressed by Miss Ellice Hopkins. What I heard then burnt into my very soul. I had only lately gone to work in the East-end and the thought pressed upon my heart that if these things were so, they must be in the very spot where I myself was living. But I would not take what others told me; I would see with my own eyes and hear with my own ears. So I asked my husband for permission to spend one whole night in the streets alone, and he gave me leave. That night, spent entirely alone in the London streets to see what was going on, is one I shall never forget if I live to old age. There were young girls half drunk, and girls as young as my own children at home, plying their unholy trade. I went straight home to my own house at two o'clock in the morning, and, going into my bedroom, I there and then gave myself to God for this work. I asked Him to make use of me and to show me what I could do. I saw a small house and took it, and opened it in faith; and in faith from that day to this, more than four years ago, I have worked at this work.

At the end of a very few months the little house proved much too small, and I was obliged to enlarge my borders and take a much bigger house. It is nearly four years since it was opened, and it has always been completely full. Many a girl who has entered the gates of the garden from the crowded streets, where she has only known sin and sorrow, has said, "Isn't it nice? isn't it like home?" "Like home"—that has been the principle of my work all these four years. Love has been the foundation of my work, and I have always felt that love is the key that will open every heart sooner or later. In the four years love has conquered the hardest of hearts, and I can point to 150 girls who in that period have been reclaimed and are now doing well. At the end of a year's work I found out a great mistake I had made. I found I was getting good and bad into the same house together, and very soon I discovered I was doing more harm than good by mixing innocent children and girls who had taken only one false step with girls steeped in sin. This made me see the necessity of taking another house, which I did, and opened as a preventive home; so that I have now two large houses, the one a refuge and the other a preventive home.

Do not let us be idle. There is need for everybody to work in this world. Do not stand on one side and say it does not concern you. I can only say that I am never in the presence of one erring sister but I always think that, were it not for my own bringing up, I might have been such a one myself. Dear friends, if you are purer and more holy than they, then, will you not hold out your hand to those in the mire, and raise your sisters, so following the example of our blessed Lord and Saviour who came to seek and save those who were lost?

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.—On Wednesday evening last week there was held at the Central Home, 200, Euston-road, a deeply interesting meeting of ladies and gentlemen who conduct evangelistic services, Bible classes, and temperance meetings in the Homes of the London Female Preventive and Reformatory Institution. Mr. Theodore Barnes, who presided, pointed out the modern tendency to gloss over the cardinal doctrines of salvation. His remarks were received most cordially, bearing abundant testimony to the sympathy with which the workers present still regarded the old-fashioned Gospel. Mr. Thomas addressed the meeting, dwelling especially upon the progress made with the arrangements for the extension of the Open All-Night Refuge, which was established in 1867. A brief but very important

AN INCIDENT FROM NORTHFIELD.

During the last Convention Mr. Moody was speaking upon Prayer, and an incident occurred illustrating his subject, which made a profound impression, and came home to everyone. He said true prayer consisted of ten elements, Adoration, Confession, Restitution, Thanksgiving, Unity, or Brotherly Love, the Spirit of Forgiveness, Faith, Ask (with a beggar's importunity, a servant's docility, and a friend's confidence), Perseverance, and, last, Submission. When he came to the third element, Restitution, a man rose in the audience and cried out:—

Mr. Moody, let me cut in here. I went to Texas five years ago, having cheated my creditors of 15,000 dollars. My wife and I thought we were real smart. We settled in one of the cities, bought a nice house and furnished it tip top, grand piano, Brussels carpets, and my wife thought no end of the lace curtains. But we had hardly got settled down when Mr. Moody came along, and, like others, we followed the crowd of "professors" and church members. He preached the same sermon we have so far heard to-night. The Spirit of God convicted me and my wife both of sin, on this head of Restitution, and we went home perfectly miserable. I said, "Loo, what are we to do?" "Do!" says she; "you know what to do without asking me; repay everybody to the last cent." No sooner said than done; the house was sold and an auction called right away, and, oh, the joy I had in handing up the silverware and the china. The piano and all went, but my wife was so happy at parting with the lace curtains it was really curious. Then we took two little rooms, a bed-room and a kitchen, and the only table we had was the one we had used in the kitchen for chopping meat on; but the Lord filled us with Himself, and we had peace and joy, because we had pardon and a clean conscience. The dear Lord has blessed me far above my desert and beyond what the devil led me to steal, and we have come to Northfield to praise the Lord and carry back with us to Texas a fresh baptism of the blessed power which set us free five years ago.

There was hardly a dry eye in the great audience, and to watch Mr. Moody was a study—he did not say a word, but looked over his glasses now on one side, now on the other, all over the house; then, after the pause had had its effect, he quietly went on with the next head of his discourse.

PLYMOUTH.—Lord Kinnaird inaugurated last week a new Y.W.C.A. Institute at Plymouth. The Institute has cost about £2000, half of which has been subscribed.

LAMB AND FLAG RAGGED SCHOOLS (10, Red Lion-street, Clerkenwell-green).—Mr. Sherrard, the hon. superintendent of this old-established mission, says in his latest report:—"During the ten years that I have had the privilege of managing this School and Mission, I have never before sat down to pen a report with such a sinking heart. The painful distress prevailing among the inhabitants of the Cow-cross District is too great not to call out one's warmest sympathies, even while it must be acknowledged that much of the most apparent misery is due to idleness, extravagance, and vice, and especially to drink. Perhaps the saddest part of the suffering now is that it has reached the class above that of the very poor. The work of the school and mission goes on as usual, but there is a falling off in the number of both scholars and teachers. Over 100 garments of different kinds have been provided during the past year by the female teachers in the school, who have given not only the labour of their hands, but also a portion of the cost of the materials out of their own pockets. I should be very thankful for any materials or old clothes. Open-air meetings, held on Clerkenwell-green through the summer months, attracted large crowds, who listened with attention to the Gospel addresses. The library, with its 1000 volumes, is still in great favour." Mr. Sherrard appeals to the generosity of our friends to help in this mournful year. His address is 7,

JEWISH GIRLS IN RUSSIA.

In 1863, three Jewish missionaries came to St Petersburg, commissioned by the Jewish Missionary Society. A circle of ten ladies, four of whom were English, formed the plan of taking charge of little destitute Jewish girls. They founded a small asylum to which Christian friends contributed furniture and maintenance. The committee succeeded in gaining the ratification of the rules, so that the existence of the asylum is guaranteed by the State. Six children were admitted in 1864. They received an elementary education, and were instructed in the Scriptures. According to the Russian law, a Jewish maiden, at the age of fourteen, can join the Christian Church without the consent of her parents. In many cases the parents withdraw their children before they attain this age. Even in these cases their stay in the asylum has not been in vain, as their souls have been drawn to the Saviour, and they have embraced Him in child-like faith. Many, however, have remained to the end of the fixed term, and seventeen have been baptized.

During twenty-four years, the number of the children has occasionally amounted to eighteen, at present there are fourteen. The expenditure has greatly increased, while the income has proportionally decreased. The state of the institution is at present such that the question arises whether it would not be advisable to close it. Before having recourse to this painful step, we have resolved to appeal for help to Christians in England. We require £350 a year for the support of our asylum; were it not that the children are taught gratuitously, the expenditure would be much greater.

Wilhelmina Doepp, President.
Heinrich Jentter, Treasurer.

Catherinen Canal, N. 10, loag. N. 9,
St. Petersburg.

◆

WORKING LADS in FINSBURY PARK.

For some time past a most useful work, under the direction of Mr. J. B. Carnelly, has been carried on amongst the working lads of Finsbury Park and district—about forty lads meeting together one evening in the week for recreation and improvement. On Sunday evenings well-attended services have been held, resulting in an increase in the number of attendants, for whom there was no adequate accommodation. It was decided to form an Institute whereby the lads of the neighbourhood might be benefited and cared for, and a house (10, Clifton-terrace, Fonthill-road, N.) was taken in which to carry on the work. The house has been considerably altered and fitted up for the requirements of the work, and is well adapted for the purpose. It is intended to carry it on on very much the same lines as the Working Lads' Institute in Whitechapel.

The opening meeting was held on Saturday week, and was presided over by Mr. James Robertson, of the Aldenham Institute. The secretary, Mr. H. W. Jackson, said the Institute is intended to be a place of resort, as homely and bright as possible, for the working boys of the neighbourhood. Its object is the physical, mental, and spiritual development of its members. It is intended to hold elementary and technical educational classes, a savings bank, temperance society, Sunday services, and Bible-classes, at which unsectarian instruction will be given. There are some seventy boys already waiting to be admitted, while there is accommodation for about 120.

Mr. Henry Hill congratulated the workers on the success which has already followed their efforts, and said that if the work is carried on in the right way it is bound to succeed. He mentioned that there are about twenty institutes of this kind in London, one in Liverpool, and one in Manchester. The Chairman, Mr. Carnelly, and Mr. J. Carroll also spoke. The Secretarys'

READY.

Let Jesus take me when He will,
His time will surely be the best,
When to my longing soul He'll say,
"O enter now, and take thy rest."

Above the voices that I love,
I'll hear his whisper soft and low,
And leaving all I hold most dear,
And, nothing fearing, I shall go.

"With Christ, which is far better!" Oh,
My soul lives on the precious thought;
My home of "many mansions" has
With such a priceless price been bought.

Let Jesus take me when He will—
The time must ever be the best,
When my imperfect life shall in
His "finished work" find perfect rest.

M. Hedderwick Browne.

◆

SONG SERVICES AT SEA.

Accompanied by two young ministers, destined for our work in New Zealand, I left Tilbury Docks in the Orient Company's ss. Liguria, on the morning of August 19. In the evening, as I was strolling upon the third-class deck, I came upon a knot who were engaged in discussing the different merits of a limited and universal offer of salvation. Both sides seemed very well satisfied with their own arguments, but I observed that the question had occupied many mighty minds, and that it was not likely that they could satisfy universal intelligence, if they continued the discussion all night; it might be spending the time more profitably if occupied in a hymn of praise to God. Starting off with "Whosoever Will," about half a dozen hymns were sung, and such remarks made between them as the truths of the hymns suggested. The service was enjoyable and effective, and some intimated that they would like something of the sort regularly.

With the captain's permission, we went on the next night after the same manner, and every night during the voyage, except a few when it was too rough, or we were in port for coaling or lading purposes. A little opposition from Atheism and Roman Catholicism manifested itself, but we quietly and determinedly held on our way, many declaring that it was the one enjoyable period of the day. While some were confirmed in the faith, and brought out to confess Christ, doubtless others were prevented from sinking into that spiritual death which is so infectious in life at sea.

We held services in the second saloon on Sabbaths, distributed a great number of illustrated publications and tracts, and so were kept from that ennui and weariness which affects many on board who know not the Lord. The services rose in attractive force, and the last was among the best; at this we distributed a great number of New Testaments, which seemed greatly appreciated by the recipients. We worked down most of the opposition before we ended our voyage, and our opponents admitted that we were among the best-tempered fellows with whom they ever came into collision. We had, on the whole, a very favourable voyage, and landed at Melbourne on the forty-third day. I am better in health, and hope to do some little work here for the Master ere I return.

George Warner, Prim. Meth. Minister.
39, Eyre-street, Ballarat, Victoria.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Canon Scott Robertson, on completing his Annual Summary, finds that the British Isles contributed less, by £33,237, to foreign missionary work for the year 1886 than they did for 1885. This results from the general depression in trade and agriculture. The total for 1886 is £1,195,714. Of this amount, £486,082 was contributed through Church of England Societies, £193,617 through unsectarian or joint societies, £330,128 through Nonconformist Societies, £177,184

A MISSION TOUR IN INDIA.—7.

Almora, in the Himalayas, N.W.P., is a station of the London Missionary Society. The Leper Asylum here is an institution of very long standing; and upon it, in a very marked manner, has rested the blessing of God from the first. Rev. J. H. Budden has lovingly watched over the lepers for many years, and now that he is laid aside by failing health, Rev. Henry Coley has cheerfully taken up the work. Since the foundation of the institution 340 baptisms have taken place, and at the present moment more than two-thirds of the whole number of inmates (107) are Christians.

I visited the asylum several times during my stay in Almora. I had the privilege of addressing the inmates on the Sunday, and of examining twelve candidates for baptism. I was greatly pleased with the clear answers I got from them; I had afterwards the joy of seeing them received into the Church. The women were all members of a Bible class which Miss Budden was in the habit of holding in the asylum, and one of them was the special protegée of a women's Bible-class in Brighton. It is very remarkable how many of our converts are those who are being specially cared for and prayed for by friends at home.

The Mission to Lepers in India has just commenced a new asylum at Pithora, about 40 miles from Almora, which is under the care of Dr. Dease, of the American Episcopal Methodist Mission. At the entrance to the Pithora asylum, and facing the high road, is a large black board on which is clearly painted in white letters, in Hindi, John iii. 16. I had the privilege of preaching the Gospel to these lepers, taking as my text this verse. Will our friends bear this new asylum on their hearts, that here also, as in Almora, many may find the Saviour.

At Dehra, N.W.P., at the foot of the hills, I visited another very good asylum, under the able management of Dr. McLaren, the civil surgeon of the station. It is a local charity, and the Mission to Lepers is allowed to carry on Christian work amongst the inmates. The society has sent a leper missionary, himself a leper, to teach his fellow-sufferers, and as the result of his labours many have been baptized. The Sunday I was present two more converts were baptized by a native pastor, Rev. K. Manoah, and after the service an address was read to me as the representative of the Leper Mission. This address was from the lepers themselves, and set forth in very touching terms the gratitude these poor afflicted men and women felt at the interest that was being taken in them by people in this country. Rev. D. Herron for many years superintended the Christian work in this asylum, and still takes the most loving interest in it, though now living at a station many miles away.

I should like to draw a contrast between these three asylums and two others which I saw at Saharanpore. On an open plain, outside the city, stands a long row of bare houses without any verandah, or anything to shelter the inmates from the fearful rays of the sun—this is the abode of the leper men. When we arrived at this place there were seven men present, who looked the picture of utter desolation; they looked at us in amazement, as if wondering why we should take sufficient interest in them to come there. When we spoke kindly to them it seemed to touch a chord in their poor desolate hearts. What a pitiable picture they presented as we drove away: this little change in the terrible monotony of their daily lives was after all but momentary, and had only too quickly come to an end. As we moved off we left them saláming vigorously with their poor fingerless hands.

The women's abode is in a better place, near some old gardens on the other side of the city, and the little huts are much more comfortable, but their own personal condition is truly pitiable. There were six out of eighteen present when I visited them. They told me everything, but they get no medical care, and no one ever comes near them, except the official whose business it is to give them their monthly allowance. On my asking one of them what was her state (physically I meant), she replied impatiently, "See my state," and throwing off her chaddar—the cloth she had thrown round her—displayed to me her arm and one leg: the whole of the elbow was one open sore, and on her leg were raw sores of the same kind. And these things need not be—none such are to be seen in the asylums of Almora and Dehra. God grant that we may yet have Christian love and care, with Christ's own teaching, for these poor forlorn ones.

Wellesley C. Bailey.
17, Glengyle-terrace, Edinburgh.

◆

FROM DR. CHURCHER, TANGIER.

My Dear Friend,—I feel very much indebted to you for your very kind notice of me in The Christian at the time of my accident. It was a severe lesson in the school of Christ, especially as for some time the prospect was one of great gloom—viz., total blindness.

I am thankful, however, to say that the Lord has been better to me than my fears. The eye that was so badly hurt, for the glass passed right through to the posterior chamber, has improved greatly; almost all inflammation has disappeared, and the sight in it is partially restored, though, owing to about half the curtain of the iris being torn away, and the lens injured, it must ever remain a damaged organ. It has been a great comfort to me to remember that the affliction is only a concealed blessing, and my prayer is that henceforth I may live more simply to the Lord's glory.

Our little mission hospital, in memory of good Miss Tulloch (who, you will recollect, died from typhoid on the premises), is nearly complete. If means are forthcoming for furnishing, and for buying medicines, and food for the poor patients, we shall be ready to commence active work with the New Year.

You will be sorry to hear that we have been obliged to give up our Arabic teacher for the present; but, by helping each other, we are still making good progress.

We were cheered by the profession of faith in the Lord Jesus made by a dropsical patient a few weeks ago. He seemed so thankful and so bright in his faith. One feels very much how much more courage is required in the healthy than in the sick and dying, to profess their faith, and confess Christ openly, because the latter have not to face what the former will surely meet with—viz., most bitter persecution. Indeed they need our earnest prayers. It seems to me so sad that almost their only contact with Christians should result in evil to them, our drink traffic and the bad example of so-called Christians forming really a means of closing the door, and preventing the light of Christ from reaching them.

I desire to open a small shop as a medical missionary dispensary in the midst of the town, as soon as we have a few pounds available. It would be a great help to our work, so many sick being unable to come as far as Hope House, and the whole expense would not exceed, I think, £50 per annum.—Yours in Christian bonds,

T. Gillard Churcher.
Kabyle Mission, Hope House, Tangier.

MR. J. F. SAUNDERS, who has been elected Alderman of Coleman-street Ward, in succession to the late Sir W. McArthur, has served the City on the Common Council for a very long period, so that by length of service he has earned this distinction which his fellow-citizens have bestowed upon him. Mr. Saunders is busily engaged in active professional duties, yet we gratefully record, says The Sunday-school Chronicle, that he is always ready to give time and attention to Sunday-school work. As Chairman of the Committee of the Sunday-school Union, his services are as freely

MISSIONARY NOTES.

UNOCCUPIED FIELDS.

The Indian Methodist Times draws attention to the vast field for labour presented in the tea-gardens of Assam and the hill slopes of the mysterious Tartary. The millions resident in this district are at present almost wholly unreached by the Gospel.

FROM THE LAND OF MINARETS.

Please convey my thanks to the unknown friend who kindly and regularly sends me The Christian. If anywhere, it is needed and welcomed in the land of Minarets, which look like extinguishers. The Christian arrives and says:—"The candle of the Gospel is still burning clearly and powerfully…'for the Lamb is the light thereof.'"—Yours faithfully,

J. B. Crichton-Ginsburg.

Ortakeuy, Constantinople.

TELEGRAPHS IN MADAGASCAR.

A good deal of interest and inquiry has been excited among the people of Antanànarivo and its neighbourhood by the completion of the first line of electric telegraph in Madagascar, from Tamatave to the capital. This has been done by a French company, and is to be taken over by the native Government on payment of a considerable sum. Great is the wonder of the people as to how messages are sent through this insignificant-looking wire. It seems strangely familiar, yet novel, to the European residents, to see the line of poles and wire crossing the hills and valleys of Imèrina.

REV. G. A. SHAW IN MADAGASCAR.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw reached Tamatave in safety on September 12, and were most heartily welcomed by their old friends, the native Christians and officials, all of whom, from the Governor downwards, expressed much joy in seeing them back again. After a brief stay in Tamatave, they continued their voyage in the coasting vessel which had taken them across from Mauritius. The schooner was partly laden with rum, the stench of which filled it from stem to stern; and the accommodation on board was of the most meagre description. Later news tells of their landing at Mànanjàra.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society have accepted five new missionaries, Rev. H. C. Knox and Mr. J. Rigg, for China; Mr. G. F. Packer, an architect, for the Niger, West Africa; Miss A. S. H. Vidal for Palestine; and Mr. H. S. Phillips. Letters from East Africa announce that Bishop Parker and Rev. J. Blackburn arrived at Uyui on Sept. 16. They were going forward in a few days to Msalala, where Mr. Mackay was awaiting them. Revs. R. P. Ashe and R. H. Walker had arrived at Mpwapwa. Mr. Mackay's journal of his last two months in Uganda has arrived, and will be printed in due course. Rev. A. D. Shaw, of Frere Town, Mombasa, has been invalided home.

AN INDIAN PRINCE'S TESTIMONY.

A valuable testimony to the importance of the work of the Anglo-Indian Evangelisation Society comes from the Kanwar Hurnam Singh, C.I.E., one of the Indian princes present at the Jubilee of the Queen. He is said to be the only Christian native prince in India. Writing to Rev. J. Fordyce, the secretary of the Society, he says:—If liberal donors knew what a very important work the Society is trying to carry out, they would ungrudgingly give more for this, which is only an indirect way of working for the good of the natives of India. If the Europeans and Eurasians in India would only exemplify a real Christianity before the people of India, in their walk and conversation, their influence for good would be a power in itself, and would soon be felt. I wish the good Christian people of this land took a greater interest in their Christian brothers and sisters out in India, who are living in out-of-the way places, and are isolated from every

LAKE TANGANYIKA.

It is now our pleasure, says the L. M. S. Chronicle, to report the commencement of the work of Dr. Tomory at Kavala Islands. He writes:—"I have begun my medical work, and have treated above fifty patients already. I have also managed to get one bed set aside for use of patients, and have thus the nucleus of a hospital."

MEDICAL MISSIONS.

A weekly prayer-meeting for medical missionaries and their work, and for the further development of Medical Missions as an agency for spreading and commending the Gospel of Christ, was begun on Wednesday last, December 7, 11 to 12 a.m. The meetings will be held at the Mission House, 104, Petherton-road, N., and all interested in medical missions are heartily invited.

"THE MISSIONARY REVIEW."

This interesting American monthly (whose late editor, Rev. R. G. Wilder, died in October) is now in the editorial charge of Rev. Dr. Sherwood and Rev. Dr. Pierson. It will be entitled The Missionary Review of the World. If it is permeated by the spirit of its first editor, and enlarged and enriched on the same lines, it will be worthy of its name in a double sense, as an exponent of the missionary work of the whole world, and as a missionary magazine which will hold its own against all existing rivals. The publishers are Messrs. Funk & Wagnall, 18-20, Astor-place, New York, and Fleet-street, London.

EN ROUTE FOR INDIA AND CHINA.

Last Saturday a party of five American missionaries sailed for India by the steamer Persia from Liverpool. The party consists of Rev. Jacob Chamberlain, D.D., M.D., and wife, Rev. W. T. Chamberlain, the Misses M. and D. Root, and Rev. J. G. Fagg. Dr. Chamberlain is one of the veteran missionaries of the Reformed Church of America, and returns to the Arcot Mission, having obtained from friends 65,000 dollars for a new theological seminary in India.

Mr. Fagg's ultimate destination is Amoy, China, where the Reformed Church co-operates with the English Presbyterian Church in the province of Fuhkien. He has just returned from a brief visit to the Netherlands in the interest of the missions in China. The Reformed Church of the Netherlands years ago supported the distinguished missionary Gutlaff at Canton. Since his death it has not been represented in China. A permanent committee was recently organised at Amsterdam, with Mr. J. Van't Lindenhout, of the large Neerbosch Orphanage, at the head, with a view to co-operation with the daughter Reformed (Dutch) Church of America in missionary effort in China. Three thousand guilder have already been received for a hospital near Amoy, under the supervision of Dr. A. J. Otte, newly appointed medical missionary under the Reformed Board.

A DESOLATE STATION.

Tupuai is 405 miles S.S.E, of Raiatea, South Seas. It is a French possession; and when we landed, the "tricolor" was floating over the chief village, the weather-worn stump of a withered iron-wood tree serving as a flag-staff. Everything about the island has a most depressing effect. Many years ago a cruel epidemic decimated the islanders, and of a population of 1000 but 250 remain; commerce with neighbouring islands is fettered; healthy pride in erecting pretty houses and churches is a thing of the past; squalor and poverty remain undisturbed; an absence of all motive for development is apparent everywhere. The people seem to have lost their first love for the Gospel, and all that now remains of their former zeal is the aged and feeble pastor Tiraha, and he forsaken by all save twenty-nine members, who make up the struggling church of Tupuai. The majority of the Tupuaians are Mormons, and have become perverts through the zeal of Mormon missionaries in the Tuamotu Group. The French resident received us with considerable civility, and permitted us to leave some hymn-books and Bible the French Government, which pays the native pastors and teachers their miserable pittance, our Society has no control over its churches and schools; but a visit from us now and then shows the pastor and church that they have not been left entirely orphans.—L. M. S. Chronicle.

AN AFRICAN CHIEF.

The tribes around are very much weaker than the Garenganze, and, instead of attempting to raid on the Garenganze, they suffer immensely at their hands. Moshide, who on the one hand can take into his care some poor useless stranger, with a body deformed by disease and sin, and provide for him, giving him a wife and house, with a small barn full of corn—on the simple plea that the man is poor, does not hesitate, on the other hand, to form and send out with the greatest gusto his war parties, which devastate whole districts, bringing in slaves (women and children), ivory, &c., with the heads of the slain. Such ghastliness delights this strangely inconsistent man greatly. I can only account for it by repeating an old remark of mine, that avarice eats up all other passions and feelings in the African, once that passion is roused. Poor Moshide is a man with a noble mind. He has a very grandly shaped head, and a high appreciation of that which is good and noble. For instance, when I said to him some time ago, in Umbundu, things that would have highly irritated the Barotse chief, he only admitted the excellence of my words. He knew also how noble a people the English were, for it was their delight to watch for slaves and liberate them. How strangely incongruous to hear such words from such a man!—F. S. Arnot.

THE BEDFORD INSTITUTE.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the First Day School and Home Mission Association was held at Devonshire House, Bishopsgate, on December 1. Mr. William Fowler presided. The secretary, Mr. G. Armatage, read the annual report, which described the work at the six centres in the Metropolis as being generally satisfactory. The various schools and Gospel meetings showed mostly increased attendances, and in the temperance work a great amount of vitality exists. At Bunhill-fields, the centre of adult school work, where over 300 men assemble on Sunday mornings, good work is being done not only in this, but in other departments. An increased income is needful in order to keep the multitudinous operations of the Association in a healthy state.

Addresses were delivered by John S. Rowntree and Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. The latter dealt with the subject of Home Missions in an interesting and practical way. His allusions to the lavish expenditure of money in the building and embellishment of music halls and the parsimonious support of religious work were particularly telling; no less powerful were the facts given in favour of combining with mission work a united crusade against a number of evils at present tolerated under the plea of custom. Ellwood Scott, of Indiana, made a few remarks in reference to mission work in his native country.

WORTHING.—The Y.M.C.A. here held a meeting on Nov. 30, in order to place the financial position of the Association before the public, and clear a large debt that had been incurred. The meeting was presided over by Colonel R. V. P. Doran, the speakers being Mr. Hind-Smith, Mr. A. H. Wheeler, and Mr. W. Frost. There was a large attendance, and, with the exception of a few pounds, the whole of the money required was raised.

SOLDIERS' HOME, WINDSOR.—For years past a quiet but effectual work has been carried on at the Soldiers' Home in Frances-road, which owes its existence to Mr. Statham, a gentleman who greatly interests himself in the welfare of soldiers. Since 1882 it has been largely visited by the soldiers of different regiments quartered in Windsor. A caretaker is provided to look after the home; men are invited almost every day to a tea, and pleasant evenings may be spent. Almost the entire annual cost—which is considerable—is borne by Mr. Stat-

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Mr. J. Townsend Trench, Evangelist and Land Agent, Ireland.

Although exhibiting no signs of any real improvement, yet we are glad this week to be able to report that Mr. Denham Smith has shown a greater freedom from some of the symptoms which have all along given rise to much discomfort and prostration; consequently he is in this respect somewhat better.

Many of our readers personally knew that faithful and honoured evangelist, Duncan Matheson, and many more know him through the memoir written by his fellow-labourer, Rev. John Macpherson. They will now be interested in learning that Duncan's widow and two sons are to sail on the 27th instant for Brisbane, the delicate health of the young men requiring this change of climate.

The approach of Christmas brings with it the usual appeals from Christian workers in London for help in giving to the poor some good cheer of a temporal kind on the day that is intended to commemorate the Saviour's advent. The custom within due limits is a most excellent and appropriate one, and we trust that the generosity of our readers will enable us, as in former years, to aid these workers in their deeds of mercy.

The Public Records Office has issued a notice that no one will be permitted in the future to use ink in copying from the works there kept and consulted by readers. Those who have had occasion to endeavour to decipher some of the black-letter books amongst the Public Records, know how entirely this notice is justified by the careless use of ink. Black-letter books are always difficult to read, but this difficulty is greatly increased by blots and blotches of ink, and by the impressions of ink writing which have been made by thoughtless readers closing the book with their undried copy between the leaves. It is pitiful to see the parchment and vellum documents and books, which are of priceless value, disfigured by inky smudges. We understand the authorities of the British Museum have abundant cause to complain of similar evils, and though they have no immediate intention to forbid the use of ink in the reading-room, it is probable that unless the copyists amend their ways such a notice will have to be issued for the sake of the readers and copyists who will come after us.

An assertion by a Major-General to the effect that British officers in India avoid engaging those native servants who are Christians, has called forth a strong reply from Dr. Trevor, who was formerly chaplain at Bangalore, and who declares that he had there a congregation of 300 native Christians, all of them servants. Dr. Trevor says, "A staff officer once asked me where I kept my native Christians, as he never fell in with them. I replied that there was one standing behind his chair." The fact is, there are many such, who are unostentatious Christians, and who are the better servants for being Christians. Christianity fits us for our duties, and enables us to fulfil them with willingness and diligence. If, instead of raising objections to all native servants who profess Christianity, British officials in India encouraged those who by their lives show the fruits of their faith and the reality of their conversion, they would assist the missionaries in their work; but by their sweeping condemnation of the class they do great injury to the cause of Christianity.

We recently noted the statement that Unitarianism is almost extinct in Ireland. A A similar result appears to be not unlikely so far as the English bodies are concerned, in view of the fact that two of the Unitarian publications are coming to a dead stop. We do not anticipate that these periodicals will be greatly missed. As the struggle between the Church and the world becomes intensified, others will probably follow; for those who are battling for the truth must have a living Christ to fall back upon.

In these days when we hear so many doleful tales as to agricultural depression and tracts of land falling out of cultivation, it is deeply interesting to read the remarkable pamphlet lately issued by Mr. J. H. Boddy, of the Land's End Vineries, Penzance, in which he tells the "Story of an Acre and a Half." The perusal of it must surely inspire fresh hope in the minds of many a discouraged farmer and cultivator of the soil. Mr. Boddy's suggestions as to how Britain's social and industrial needs may be remedied, deserve the best attention of statesmen and social reformers.

Mr. Boddy's panacea is the starting of new industries, and the improvement of those that are capable of improvement. As a practical man his opinions are of great weight, and they go to support the contention that the opening up of fresh avenues of honest employment in connection with the cultivation of the land is the only feasible and permanent way out of the present distress. Hear Mr. Boddy's testimony:—

> The acre and a half which I occupy has made no perceivable difference to the farm from which it was taken, whereas that which fed little more than a solitary snipe now gives healthy employment to a family, and has to provide sustenance for them also.

The pamphlet, price 6d., can be obtained from the office of The Horticultural Times, 127, Strand, W.C.

It is inexpressibly comforting, amidst the political turmoil of the moment, and the gloomy vaticinations of many prophets, to read these words of hope and cheer which appear in the current issue of The Christian Irishman:—

> We believe in a future for Ireland, bright and not very far off. "Religious despotism" is by no means so strong or complete as it was once. All Irishmen are not "poor blind followers of an interested priesthood." We trust that a better religion than that of "bondage and fear" is beginning to prevail. Not a few hearts rejoice in the love of God, as it is set forth in the Gospel of his Son. Many truly love their spiritual instructors, and many love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. The slavish sort of religion is also passing away. Knowledge is spreading, and all sorts of Christians are becoming more tolerant of each other. The baser passions of the "times of our ignorance," are disappearing with the reign of exclusiveness and oppression, and there is such warmth in the Irish heart, and such fine quick elements in the Irish character, that we believe our country is destined yet to shine forth among the nations in pre eminent brightness and power.

After reading a slanderous article in an evening paper, an anonymous friend sent to the Church Missionary Society, as a protest, a cheque for one thousand pounds. We hope this truly Christian act will be extensively imitated.

We believe the Dagon of State-fostered vice in India and our colonies is destined to fall. It would be an ineradicable disgrace to our common Christianity if this idol of lust were allowed in perpetuity to rear its horrible head under our rule. But we cannot conceal from ourselves the fact that there is still much apathy among the churches on the subject. Our congregations need to know the facts, unpleasant though they be. When the truth is known, action must follow. We counsel the friends of purity throughout the country to arrange with Mr. J. B. Wookey for a talk on this question; his address is 90, Almack-road, Clapton, E.

We have read with much interest in an evening contemporary an account of the way in which the unemployed are dealt with in Germany. "Workmen's Colonies" have been established in some sixteen parts of the Empire; that in Berlin, which is of an industrial character, is fully described. At the head of the Institution are an Inspector (a pastor) and a "Hausvater," who together are responsible for its proper working. The men engage in diversified employment, eleven hours a day, for six days in the week. Says the writer:—

> One great feature of the work of the colony is the religious teaching imparted to the inmates. Morning and evening the colonists assemble for prayers, and both by precept and example the Inspector and Hausvater endeavour to raise the unfortunates from the low condition into which the majority of them have fallen. The discipline is strict, in the sense that implicit obedience is required to all regulations and orders; but it is at the same time friendly, for the colonists are treated as free men rather than paupers, and this makes the yoke of submission light. When I asked Pastor Weber his candid opinion of the results so far achieved, he answered, with complete unreserve that the workmen's colony was doing a social and moral work of great importance, and such was the opinion forced upon me by careful inspection and searching inquiry.

If such results can be achieved in Holland and Germany, why not in England?

We earnestly commend to the attention of all Christians who are interested in economic questions, the report issued by the Board of Trade, prepared by its "Labour Correspondent," Mr. John Burnett, on the "sweating system" at the East-end of London and in other quarters. In its simple statements the report is a terribly painful one, and amply proves that economic conditions are the chief causes of the social evil. The work is given out from contractor to contractor, and from middleman to middleman, until, when it reaches the operative, the remuneration is at its lowest level.

Mr. Burnett states that there are at least 2000 sweaters' dens in the East-end, and of these, he says, not a third can be known to the factory inspector. Of the remedies which he proposes, however, few seem to be practicable. Much may be said both for and against that of the substitution of a large factory system, where all the advantages of subdivision and organisation of labour might be obtained without the intervention of middlemen, but little can be urged against the proposal to enable the workers themselves to establish such factories or central workshops. As there are references in the report to Post-office coats being made in these dens, perhaps a start might be made in one of the directions Mr. Barnett has indicated, by entrusting the Post-office tailoring to an association of the kind. Surely there are plenty of philanthropic people who would, in the sole interest of the workers, take a practical interest in such a movement.

It has, however, been pointed out that all middlemen are not sweaters, and that in some cases the middleman is a necessity.

A correspondent of one of the daily papers draws attention to a painful instance of starvation wages in South London. The embroidered, intertwined letters which adorn the sleeves and collars of the uniforms of railway officials, volunteer regiments, &c., are made by girls at home; cloth and embroidery thread are provided, but the worker has to paste the backing to each, to find her own thread with which to fasten it to the frame, and then to cut out the letters from the backing when the embroidery is finished. Day in, day out, she toils, stooping over her frame, often to the ruin of her health, and for two sets of letters she receives—three halfpence! Complaints are only met with laughter. Is it to be wondered at that many a girl, failing to keep body and soul together on such a pittance, is driven to evil courses?

Is there no remedy? At the first blush one would say: Let public bodies refuse their contracts to those firms which pay such miserable wages; but this would not improbably result in depriving these poor workers of their employment altogether. But is it too much to hope that the directors of railway companies, heads of volunteer regiments, and others, when they realise the terrible results of the present system, will cease to permit feminine purity and life to be any longer crushed beneath the Juggernaut wheels of "economy"?

The subject of what to do with our boys and girls during the Christmas holidays is one of growing importance. We commend to the earnest attention of parents and others Mr. Hutchinson's letter which appears in our correspondence column. It seems to us that the project he suggests is a happy practical solution of the difficulty that many Christian parents feel about "children's parties." A "party" spent in this way will be both enjoyable and recreative, and above all an opportunity of real spiritual blessing.

A Roman Catholic contemporary, referring to the consecration of a Protestant church the other day at Kensington, alludes to it as "perhaps the most successful imitation of the ceremonies of High Mass which has ever been made in England." It goes on to say, "The ritual included a string band, sixty candles in and around the altar, incense, acolytes, vestments, adoration of the elements, and benediction, with the 'sacrament' by the clergyman." The Bishop of London, it appears, consecrated the church at the very unusual hour of 8 a.m., and these popish ceremonials were held in the building three hours after he left. It would be interesting to know his opinion of them, and whether he was cognisant of what was about to take place. We are glad to see that the Church Association have addressed

An address recently delivered by Rev. Newman Hall at a meeting of Congregational ministers, on "The Theology of the Working Classes," contains much strong common sense, and deserves wide circulation. Mr. Hall stated it as his opinion that the working classes are not more opposed to Christianity than the wealthy and cultured, "although with the latter attention to outward forms is the more fashionable." He went on to say:—

> They have no regard for sectarian tenets. The evident aim to promote denominationalism will drive them away. They care not for elaborate discourses on theological dogmas. But they do appreciate Christian truth preached plainly, forcibly, lovingly, with practical application to the difficulties, struggles, temptations, duties, joys, and sorrows of their daily life.

In this there is a word for many of our preachers who, as a working-man said to us the other day, "live upon forgotten heresies," and who are preaching theology, rather than Jesus Christ and Him crucified.

We are very thankful to see that at our great universities, at any rate, the views of Canon Taylor with respect to Mohammedanism are not likely to be endorsed. Professor Monier Williams's opinions, at Oxford, are well known, and now Canon Westcott has taken the opportunity of the Day of Intercession for Missions to speak out very strongly at Cambridge. Those who know and love Cambridge make it a matter of thankfulness to God that the Regius Professor of Divinity in that great University should during all the years of his professorship have put missionary work into the foreground, and missionary work among the very races whom Canon Taylor thinks we ought to pass by for a more convenient season.

As at this season many farmers engage their men for next year, the Secretary of the Church of England Temperance Society draws timely attention to the alteration of the law effected by the Truck Amendment Act passed in September. By the original Truck Act farmers were excepted from the provision which made it illegal to pay wages in any form but money; by the new Act this exception is abolished, and any farmer who gives his labourers beer, cider, or any other intoxicating drink, in addition to money wages, as remuneration for work done, is liable to a fine of £10 for the first offence, £20 for the second, and £100 for the third. It ought not to have required an Act of Parliament to effect such a beneficial reform. Those farmers who have voluntarily abandoned the custom of providing intoxicating drinks have seen the great benefit both to themselves and their men, and those who are now compelled to do so will without doubt be able to bear similar testimony.

The month's Contemporary Review contains an article by Professor Elmslie, on the First Chapter of Genesis, which is a very valuable contribution to modern discussion. The chapter is termed a masterpiece of exquisite artistic workmanship, and profound religious inspiration; its days, after the parlance of the Old Testament, are steps or stages of great achievements; its design was not to inform men about historical geology, but to reveal religious truth, and yet to work into its framework scientific facts. God "names" his works —i.e., gives fixity; and the sovereign theme of all is not so much creation as the Creator. The paper is timely, especially when these early Bible chapters are spoken of in great ecclesiastical assemblies as merely legendary.

We have just received Dr. Wylie's new book, entitled "Which Sovereign: Queen Victoria or The Pope?" It is published at the office of this paper, price 3s. 6d. The synopsis at the beginning, in large type, contains every important idea and statement in the work. It is as startling as the subsequent pages are outspoken and eloquent.

The current Nineteenth Century contains an article on Mohammedanism and Africa, by Mr. Bosworth Smith. There is in it, we fear, too much of the couleur de rose as to the influence of Islamism. Nevertheless, amid conflicting opinions, much may be learnt from the article. The testimony as to the gigantic evil of Polygamy, as corrupting society at its fountain head, is very valuable just now when Utah is pressing a plea to be a State of the American Republic.

The same Review has two papers in reply to Mr. Justice Stephen's late article, not on Catholicism merely, but on the deepest Christian beliefs. Without in any way questioning the right of Mr. Justice Stephen to his anti-Christian opinions, it seems to us somewhat unhappy that the State, while it compels witnesses to take an oath on the New Testament, should appoint a judge who openly proclaims his unbelief of the contents of the Book.

The Nonconformist and Independent quotes Rev. Dr. Strong, of New York, a statistical authority, for the statement that of the sixty millions of the United States, one half rarely, if ever, enter a place of worship; and another authority to the effect that of Congregational ministers, who have been educated and trained for their work, no less than a thousand of them are unemployed. The first statement is painful enough, but it is not for us to point the finger at the Americans. The latter indicates that when churches are left to choose their ministers they do not regard culture as the best qualification. The age will not endure unrealities, either in churches or ministers. A hundred and sixty-four Baptist churches are said to be without pastors in the State of New York, and the fact has its lessons.

Missionaries have now much said to them as to the manner in which they should offer Christianity to the heathen. Doubtless the advice is right that the Thirty-nine Articles need not at first be taught, and that our Lord's words should be remembered, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." But when the example of Paul's method at Athens is urged, it is well to recall the facts that, while courteous, Paul shows the Athenians their ignorance, opposes their ideas about the Godhead, enforces repentance, and does not withhold the doctrines of Christ's resurrection and a coming judgment.

SOUTH MOLTON, DEVON.—Mr. H. Rathbone Hanson has concluded a fortnight's revival mission in the Wesleyan chapel here.

THE McALL MISSION.—At the all-day meeting in the House of Rest at Kilburn on Friday last, a most interesting sketch of this Mission was given by Rev. Robert McAll, the cousin of the founder of the Mission. He has resigned his pastorate in order to devote himself entirely to the interests of this work amongst the French people. The address was interspersed with incidents in connection with the work; it was most helpful and encouraging in its deeply spiritual tone to all engaged in Christian work. More workers and increased funds are needed. Inquiries should be addressed to Rev. Robert McAll, 17, Tressillian-crescent, St. Jonhs, S.E.

WORK AMONG YOUNG MEN.

ISLINGTON AND HIGHBURY.

Mr. J. J. Atkinson, the secretary, writes:—The eight days' mission to young men has been signally blessed of God in the conversion of young men, and the quickening of the spiritual life of the members. Every evening the converting power of God was in our midst, and sometimes anxious ones remained to be directed to the Saviour till nearly midnight. Valuable addresses were given by a number of well-known friends. The week preceding, for universal prayer, was a time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

FINSBURY PARK.

"Full measure, pressed down, and running over:" such is a by no means overdrawn description of the blessing vouchsafed to us at Finsbury Park Hall, Y.M.C.A., during the week of prayer and the special mission week for young men. Our young men thoroughly canvassed the whole neighbourhood, and were everywhere accorded most encouraging receptions. Many cases of blessing through their calls have been reported, and not a few young men attended the mission in response to the personal invitations given at their own doors. Thirteen ministers and clergy of the district preached special discourses for young men, in connection with our mission, either on November 20 or 27. Our prayer-meetings, four nights of the prayer week, were conducted respectively by Revs. D. E. Holland, A. Rowland, Rowland Evans, and W. R. Skerry. Young men were never treated to more appropriate and practical discourses.

The special mission to young men was conducted throughout by Mr. A. M. Kyd, with the exception of two nights, when Mr. Morris gave the address, the Walthamstow Male Choir rendering very efficient help. The addresses were pregnant with Divine unction. Christ was the theme from first to last. All who took part in the mission work were greatly strengthened in grace; many openly confessed their decision for Christ, and others were manifestly convicted.

A blessed constraining influence seemed to possess the place, speedily dispelling inquirers' misgivings. The anxiety for salvation depicted on the faces of so many young men during the week, and the sight of little knots of workers gathered around kneeling seekers after God night after night, have left an indelible impression on our hearts. We thank God, and take courage.

R. A. E.

RESCUE WORK IN POPLAR.—A three days' sale of needlework will take place (D.V.) in the Town Hall, Poplar, in the early part of the coming year, for the benefit of this good work carried on at Manor Cottage, Kerbey-street, Poplar. Contributions of needlework, plain and ornamental, clothing, and articles of all kinds suitable for sale, will be thankfully received by Mrs. Wilkes, Manor Cottage, Kerbey-street, Poplar, E.

FLOWER MISSION, HASTINGS.—This Mission, carried on by Miss Lockwood and a few earnest helpers, exerts much influence for good. Primarily directed towards the religious instruction of the girl flower-sellers on the beach, it has extended its operations, and a night school was held last winter for young men of a similar class. Several of the young men seem to have been thoroughly reclaimed, and in many cases have given evidence of real conversion. If the work is to be carried on this winter, help must be obtained. Miss Lockwood's address is 1, Geneva-terrace, Clive Vale, Hasting.

BROTHERLY LOVE.—A hopeful display of Christian charity was witnessed recently at York. The occasion of it was the presentation of a public testimonial to Rev. A. Illingworth, who had for a large number of years ministered at Lendal Congregational Chapel, and was leaving the city. The Dean of York and Canon Fleming were present at the meeting, and gave very hearty addresses. The Dean remarked that deeper even than sincerity in holding to the doctrines of one's own Church was the charity that could love the common truths underlying all varieties; and the Canon declared that truth was everyday becoming a dearer principle to him than any Church.

THE "HOMES OF HOPE."

The report of this Institution for the year 1887 tells a most interesting and important story. Opening with some impressive and sympathetic remarks as to the dangers and temptations besetting young domestic servants, the report gives cheering instances of the entire recovery to "a right mind," and to social positions of honour and usefulness, of some of those to whom these Homes were enabled to extend their Christlike aid. The efforts made for this class gain additional point when it is seen from the statistics of the report how large a proportion of the fallen who are found on our streets comes from the class of domestic servants.

The "Homes of Hope" have this peculiar claim upon the sympathy and support of Christian and merciful people—they follow up further the general efforts of similar societies for the rescue of the fallen, by making special provision for the reception of tempted girls, whose histories prove, after special investigation, that they have really been the victims of craft. This institution, in such cases, affords a few weeks' or months' timely shelter, bringing the wanderer under the very best influences, and then, when renewed in health, hope, and heart, appealing to the latent energies of self-help, and sending back to the world of work, the young mother, to support herself and her child in the future, by her own honest exertions. Very touching are the testimonies which the report affords to the success of the Homes in this and other cases. Should any of our readers care for further information they may obtain copies from the secretary (to whom contributions may be sent), Mr. W. Hornibrook, 4, 5, and 6, Regent-square, Gray's Inn-road, W.C.

◆

A VILLAGE EVANGELIST.

There resides at 100, Park-street, Stoke Newington, N., an aged evangelist, named John Wilson, who, fifty years ago, was a postman in that district, but who, having come under Divine visitation, subsequently devoted himself to the work of the Gospel in the home counties in connection with the Primitive Methodist churches, and especially with the encouragement of members of the Society of Friends. He laboured extensively for many years in and around Leighton Buzzard, Staines, and various places in Bedfordshire, Buckingham, Shropshire, Surrey, and Middlesex. Chiefly through his instrumentality, about thirty Primitive Methodist chapels have been built in these districts and made centres of Gospel and temperance activity amongst the poorest class of the population. Although a decided teetotaller, and an uncompromising advocate of the total abstinence cause, John Wilson has on several occasions been liberally assisted in his chapel-building efforts by brewers and publicans who have been impressed by his earnest labours to reclaim the degraded and sinful, for whose souls no one else seemed to be caring. In one instance a wealthy Jew gave him a site and materials for the erection of a chapel. Mr. Benjamin Scott, the Chamberlain of the City of London, has, for more than fifty years, been one of his chief helpers in these various good works. Two other supporters were Mr. Samuel Morley and Mr. J. Tindall Harris, of Staines, and others.

Rev. William Cuff (Minister of Shoreditch Tabernacle), Lordship-road, Stoke Newington, is much interested in this dear old Christian worker.

"THE CHRISTMAS BOAT" at the Sailors' Welcome Home, Ratcliff-highway, London, E., is rigged by sailors, and is looked forward to by numbers of them who are still on the ocean with great delight and expectancy. It is loaded with useful gifts, such as books, scarves, mittens, socks, helmets, needle-books, handkerchiefs, &c., &c. Miss Child will gladly receive gifts.

LONDON CITY MISSION.—A monthly prayer-meeting for the friends of the Mission has been recently begun. This meeting is held on the second Monday of every month, from a quarter to five to a quarter to six, in the Mission House, Bridewell-place, Ludgate-circus. The first meeting was held in November, and was addressed by Rev. W. Hay Chapman, of All Souls', Langham-place. The next meeting will be held on Monday next, the 12th inst., when the address will be given by Rev. J. C. Harrison, of Park Chapel, Camden Town.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Rev. H. Armstrong Hall recently conducted a very successful mission at St. Michael's Church, Bournemouth.

Mr. W. Spencer Walton commences a mission at the Edinburgh Castle, Rhodeswell-road, Limehouse, E., on Sunday next.

Rev. W. Haslam having concluded a very successful mission at St. George's, Tufnell-park, N., has commenced another at Christ Church, Coventry.

Mr. Opie Rodway writes:—"I have worked very hard the last few months. Since August 27 I have visited eighteen places; held 113 services; 488 have stayed behind as anxious souls; and I think over 200 have professed to find peace."

Falkirk, N.B.—Mr. J. W. Moodie has conducted Gospel meetings during the past fortnight, in connection with the Falkirk evangelistic band. Many souls have been stirred to anxiety; it is believed over a hundred have decided for Christ.

Portglenone, Ireland.—A most blessed work of grace is going on at present here in connection with meetings conducted by Mr. J. Thompson, of the Irish Evangelisation Society. As the meetings are likely to be continued for another week, earnest prayer is requested for the work.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken is engaged in a special mission at Christ Church, Everton, Liverpool, of which for many years he had the charge. Great interest has been manifested throughout. On Sundays the church has been crowded to its utmost capacity, and on week-days large congregations have been drawn together. It is estimated that a vast amount of good is being done by this mission.

Deptford.—The evangelistic services conducted in the Greek-street Mission Hall during the last two weeks have produced good results. The missioners have been Mr. A. Mead and Mr. H. Hilton (of the Evangelisation Society). About seven months ago a similar mission was held here by Mr. Hilton, and many of those who professed conversion then are still working faithfully for the Master.

Ealing.—A ten days' mission has lately been held at the Mission Hall, Baker's-lane, Ealing, in connection with the work of Mr. F. G. Parsons, the City missionary. Various friend assisted in the work. On the last afternoon Mrs. Ormiston Chant gave a very earnest address. A tea and public meeting followed in the evening. Miss Stoughton presided, and Mrs. Ormiston Chant again spoke in her earnest and effective style. Mr. Parsons appealed to all present to live a very decided Christian life. During the course of the mission a goodly number professed conversion.

Mr. Charles Inglis at Huntingdon.—This quiet county town and neighbourhood has been wonderfully stirred during the past ten days by a mission conducted by Mr. Charles Inglis. The Corn Exchange has been packed night after night by all classes. Many have come in from villages round, walking four or five miles, some of whom have returned rejoicing in Jesus. Husbands and wives, parents and children, have entered the inquiry-room anxious, and left it in peace. The afternoon Bible-readings were well attended by Christians from the various denominations in the town.

Dr. Pentecost closed, on November 7, a four weeks' mission at Amesbury, Mass. The Gospel message as presented by the evangelist was gladly received and acted on by not a few. Near the close of the mission a Christian Conference was held to discuss "Method and Fellowship in Evangelistic Work." All the churches of neighbouring cities and towns were invited. A deep interest was evident in the problems of evangelisation, and an eagerness for more light upon them. It was a most satisfactory conference, and will make more hearty and intelligent the future efforts in behalf of the unsaved. Dr. Pentecost was aided in the work by Mr. Stebbins.

South London Gospel Male Choir.—Musical Christians residing in the southern districts of London are earnestly invited to join this Choir. All applications for the services of the Choir, and for membership, to be made to the hon. secretary and leader, Mr. Rowland Cross, 2, Oak Villas, Gipsy-road, Norwood, S.E.

HOME TEACHING SOCIETY FOR THE BLIND—The Grocers' Company have given a donation of £50 to this Mission.

MESSRS. FULLERTON AND SMITH.

Vell known as are the Channel Islands to the rivileged tourists who resort there for health or leasure, they have never been regarded with pecial favour as a mission field. During the ast three weeks, however, Messrs. Fullerton and Smith have conducted evangelistic services in Jersey with considerable results. With St. Helier's as their base of operations, they have been the means of stirring up the churches of the island, and of gathering to their fellowship upwards of a hundred converts. A local paper says, in a leader, "Every building in which these gifted evangelists have appeared, on Sundays or week days, wet or fine, has been taxed to its utmost capacity. But, judged by a higher standard than mere numbers, the mission has proved very successful. Not only have many professed conversion, but the Christian community, as a whole, has been aroused, and incited to greater zeal in the Divine service, whilst the different churches, too, have been drawn closer together in the bonds of Christian fellowship."

The preliminary steps were taken by Pastor C. O. Fellowes, of the Vauxhall Baptist Church, and other pastors and churches gladly co-operated in the arrangements for the mission. "Prayer was made unto the Lord continually," and the evangelists found on their arrival "an open door"; or, rather, many open doors, for every chapel in the town was placed at their service, including that of the French Methodists, capable of holding upwards of 2000 people. The Presbyterians, whose church was under repair, engaged the Odd Fellows' Hall when their turn came. This was crowded, and an overflow meeting held in the lower hall. As the work progressed, people came two hours before the time of service, to ensure admission. Such earnestness has rarely been seen in the island. The instances of usefulness were manifold, the wave of blessing reaching all classes of the community, and penetrating out-of-the-way nooks and corners.

Mr. Fullerton writes: — "Last Monday at St. Ouen's eight or nine conveyances with the choir and friends started from St. Helier's. We sang as we went a French verse from McAll's Cantique Populaire, alternating with an English verse. The service was held in a chapel capable of holding 1000 people, and was of a character quite unique. The audiences being of various nationalities, it was necessary to employ both the French and English languages so that all might hear in their own tongue 'the wonderful words of life.'" Bible-readings, meetings for men and women, children's services, and services of song on Saturday evenings kept the evangelists fully occupied throughout the days of the week, and led up to the crowning successes of the Sunday gatherings. Everybody was in earnest, and all worked for one end—the glory of God in the salvation of souls.

For the closing meeting there were upwards of 1200 tickets for tea purchased, and had the accommodation been adequate, the demands for hundreds more would have been gladly met. Pasteur Audibert gave a touching and eloquent farewell address in French, and, in behalf of upwards of twenty French churches, requested the evangelists to return to Jersey at an early date.

On leaving the island early in the morning, a company of about fifty came to the pier to take farewell of the evangelists; and, as the boat moved away, Mr. Smith played on his silver cornet the tune, and the people on the shore sang, "Oh, think of the home over there." So terminated a visit which, in the annals of the churches of Jersey, has had no parallel.

C.

RAILWAY MISSION.—A branch of this Mission was inaugurated at Richmond, Surrey, on November 25, when about one hundred and thirty railway men and their wives evidenced their interest in the movement by being present at a tea and meeting. One man, at least, professed

Letters to the Editor.

PERFECTION.

Sir,—The following is from Mason's "Spiritual Treasury," first published in 1765:—

"Satan never baits his hook with a more alluring bait than pride. He aims to make us think more highly of ourselves than we ought to think; and to say, 'I am not like other men.' I have no sin, I am perfect. This is the very essence of Pharisaism. That soul is under the influence of a lying deceitful spirit; 'he bridleth not his tongue,' he deceiveth his own heart, his religion is vain.

"Beware, O soul! Satan transforms himself into an angel of light, and makes thee think and say thou hast no sin, for another reason than to glorify Christ, even to glorify thyself in thine own eyes and the sight of others.

"Awful effects are not wanting in our day (1765) of such whom Satan has puffed up with this unscriptural notion of being sinless, most dreadful evils have followed." Y.

9, Ferndale-road, Stamford-hill.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.

Dear Sir,—Permit me to address a few words to Christian parents on the very great importance of seeking to make the Christmas holidays a time of spiritual help and blessing to the many young people who will then be at home from school for several weeks? It is surely a sad fact that in some instances this holiday season is rather a hindrance than otherwise to boys and girls, owing to the many doubtful forms of recreation that present themselves.

The members of the Children's Special Service Mission will be glad, as in previous years, to arrange to conduct either drawing-room services for children, or Scripture Union meetings, and some of them will also be able to offer to give magic lantern lectures. I should like to emphasise the fact that this is intended as a special evangelistic effort. The subject of the lectures will be Scriptural, and it is desired that earnest prayer should be offered that definite blessing may accompany this means of seeking to reach boys and girls to win them for Christ.

Any friends desiring information as to the magic lantern lectures are requested to send a stamped addressed envelope to Mr. E. T. M. Dennes, Thirlmere, Homefield-road, Bromley, Kent. Judging from the numerous applications we had last winter, I need hardly add that very early application is requisite.—Yours faithfully, H. Hutchinson,

Organising Secretary,
Children's Special Service Mission.

13, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.

OUR EAST END POOR.

Dear Sir,—In the December number of The Sunday Magazine, under heading, "Homes for the East End Poor," I have given a detailed account of Hope House, Cotton-street, Poplar. Since that article was written I have had, with sorrow, to awake to the fact that our stay in the East End of London is limited. At the commencement of the New Year we move to Manchester.

Must Hope House be given up? The question arises again and again, and I answer "No." I feel both hopeful and expectant regarding the future of this branch of my privileged work. It only needs to be taken up by those willing and able to work it. It is to shelter those who are down in life before they get further down. A penniless and nearly starving couple spend three weeks here, get good food, and are helped into situations which have given them a new start in life. Two sempstresses—both dismissed from a workhouse infirmary, where they had become friends—find rest and shelter here, until one returns to a West-end employer, and the other goes into service. These are typical cases. The Home is only a small one, and could be kept up at about £3 a week. There are two rooms well suited for a lady worker, three rooms occupied by the manager and his wife (I have been fortunate in having Gipsy Smith, of the Evangelisation Society, and his wife in this capacity), this leaves two good rooms and one sitting-room for the general visitors, who are, of course, incessantly moving on.

I shall be very pleased to communicate with any who feel led to know more of this Hope House.

Yours faithfully, Isabel Reaney.

THE LETTER OF "AGNOSTIC."

Sir,—Will you allow me to say a word of warm sympathy with "Agnostic," who writes in your issue of November 25. But for God's grace his case might have been mine. I read for the Oxford Theological School 1872-1874, and I must say the lectures on Isaiah and Eusebius provided by my College could have but one result—that of making men rationalists, unless, indeed, they possessed beforehand living faith in the living Christ.

"Agnostic," however, is not, I think, logical. For if he has known "the joys of Christian experience and fellowship," why exchange these for Agnosticism? An Agnostic is not exactly an atheist. He simply declares his inability to arrive at any certainty on religious questions.

I am sure many of your readers will earnestly pray that this honest doubter, who has been so cruelly led astray, may be led by grace to the Christ of God, the only deliverer from sin and Satan.

F. Harper, M.A.,
Rector of Hinton-Waldrist, Faringdon, Berks.

CHRISTMAS PRIZE DRAWINGS.

Sir,—Working men are swindled wholesale about this time of the year by means of the public-house "Christmas Prize Drawings," or "Specs." The chief of police at Aston, in giving notice that he intended to prosecute the promoters of public-house "Specs," instanced a case where tickets to the value of £351 4s. were sold, whilst the prizes, consisting of bottles of wines, spirits, geese, &c., were worth at the outside only £67, thus enabling the publican to clear £283 4s. cash, in addition to his 30 or 50 per cent. profit. Children are large purchasers of tickets, and fatal consequences have been known to ensue from the little ones drinking their spirituous winnings.

Every well-wisher of the poor should warn these victims of the publicans' greed against this popular plan of robbing the toilers of their earnings, or better still, he should stop these illegal proceedings. That is easily done. All that is necessary is to state the facts in a letter to the chief constable and to the chairman of the watch committee, if the raffle be announced in a borough; or to the chief of police and one of the magistrates, if it be in the country. If the "draws" be not abandoned in three days, a note to the Home Secretary, or the solicitors to the Treasury, Whitehall, London, enclosing a copy of the first letter will bring a sharp reminder of their duty to the inferior authorities. The result will be a prompt suppression of the fraudulent lottery. This course was successfully adopted in reference to the Berkshire police who had declined to interfere with the local publican law-breakers.

At Wolverhampton, the writer of "No Vested Interest in Licences," called the attention of the head constable to an annual raffle which was announced to be held in a public-house, and inquired if it would be necessary to communicate with the Home Secretary to stop the lottery. "No," said that officer, "the publicans know very well they are breaking the law, and I will send at once to this man and tell him that if he proceeds I shall prosecute him." The head constable of Birmingham issued a notice stating that any publican breaking the law was liable to a penalty of £500 and to six months' imprisonment as a rogue and a vagabond, and that in future offenders would be prosecuted. At many other towns similar action has been taken, yet still the practice continues elsewhere.

At Hanley, Bristol, Christchurch, and other places, publicans were fined for allowing illegal lotteries to take place on their premises, and in London two prisoners were sentenced, without the option of a fine, to 14 days' imprisonment with hard labour for a similar offence.—Yours, &c.,

Birmingham. W. C. Amery.

A MISSION TO THE ESQUIMAUX.—A public meeting to consider the most advisable means for establishing a Christian mission to the Esquimaux in British territory on the west side of Davis Straits has been held in Dundee. Addresses were delivered, showing the necessity for such a Mission, and comparing the results of work done for the Esquimaux in Greenland by Denmark, with the miserable condition of the natives under British rule on the west side of the Straits. A resolution was passed approving of the proposal to establish the Mission, and a committee was appointed to raise subscriptions and carry the proposal into

Notes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, DEC. 11.—JEREMIAH XLII.

This chapter presents a remarkable instance of the treachery and deceitfulness of the heart even whilst making a high profession of obedience to the Lord. He only who "searcheth the reins and the heart" could discover this, before its manifestation in the next chapter.

6.—We will obey the voice of the Lord our God.—A reminiscence of the voice of Israel at the foot of Sinai (Ex. xix. 8, xxiv. 3), and as hollow as the promise and vow then made.

7.—After ten days.—As on similar occasions the answer came at once (xxi. 3, xxxvii. 6, xxxviii. 17), this delay of ten days would suggest something wrong, or may have been intended to give space for repentance before exposure of their deceit.

12.—Cause you to return to your own land.—This is the reading of the Masoretic pointing of the Hebrew as well as of the LXX., but a slight alteration of the pointing (supported by the Syriac and Vulgate) makes it read "cause you to dwell in." "We may accept this reading of the Vulgate, &c., as probably right."—S.C. The promise would then be one of protection while dwelling in Palestine, rather than of the return from Babylon.

19.—I have admonished you.—"Lit., 'I have called to witness against you,' an abbreviation of the formula in Deut. iv. 26, xxx. 19. It answers more nearly to our phrase, 'to protest.'"—S.C.

20.—Ye dissembled in your hearts.—The simplest explanation is that they professed unreserved obedience to God's will, whereas inwardly ("in your hearts") there was the self-deceiving reservation, "if it accords with ours." It is well to beware of such a profession of conformity to God's will as that which means that our will is assumed to be so conformed to God's, that what we will to do may be regarded as what He wills us to do.

MONDAY, DEC. 12.—JEREMIAH XLIII.

2.—Thou speakest falsely.—They did not profess to refuse to submit to God's will, but charged God's prophet with falsehood. Thus often when the plain sense of Scripture is denied to follow some favourite notion more congenial to the inclination, there is practically this same giving of the lie to God's prophetic Word.

3.—Baruch the son of Neriah setteth thee on against us.—"They assume that had he been left to himself he would have approved of their policy. But he is under the influence, they say, of Baruch."—S C.

4.—Obeyed not the voice of the Lord.—This is not as they put it; but it is the way in which God describes their conduct.

7.—Thus came they even to Tahpanhes.—"Tahpanhes was a frontier town in Egypt on the Pelusian branch of the Nile, named Daphne by the Greeks."—Keil. The site was discovered a few months ago, and "Pharaoh's house" identified, with a brick pavement before it, here called "brickkiln" (ver. 9), or "brickwork" (R.V.). The people to this day call it "the castle of the Jews' daughter," as being the place of captivity of "the king's daughters" (ver. 6).

10.—His royal pavilion over them.—"Rather 'his canopy,' or 'parasol,' still in use throughout the East, reserved exclusively for the monarch."—Rawlinson.

12.—He shall array himself with the land of Egypt.—"Lit., 'He shall wrap himself in the land of Egypt, as the shepherd wrappeth himself in his cloak.' With as great ease as a shepherd throws his cloak round him...shall the king of Babylon take possession of all the wealth and glory of Egypt."—S C.

13.—The images of Bethshemesh.—Better, "the obelisks of Heliopolis." One of these may now be seen on the Thames Embankment.

TUESDAY, DEC. 13.—JEREMIAH XLIV.

"We have in this chapter the record of Jeremiah's last prophecy. Undeterred by the recent violence of the Jews, who had dragged him into Egypt against his will, we find him boldly rebuking their tendencies to idolatry which seem to have grown only the stronger in their tribulation. Untaught by chastisement, they clung more closely than ever to their superstitions, and even ascribed their former prosperity to the benign influence of the Queen of Heaven."—S.C.

4.—Oh, do not this abominable thing that I hate.—One of the most touching expostulations recorded in Scripture against the sin of idolatry.

5.—To burn no incense unto other gods.—The burning of incense was an outward and visible sign of the worship of the being so honoured. In the early days of the persecution by Pagan Rome, the testing point lay generally in requiring Christians to throw a few grains of incense on fire burning before the image of the Emperor, which was supposed to represent the divinity which the Romans attributed to their State and its head.

14.—None shall return but such as shall escape.—This seems to contradict the former part of the verse, but "broad statements of Holy Scripture are often thus qualified afterwards."—S.C. See this exception to the general rule further referred to in ver. 28; see also a similar instance in the New Testament (1 Cor. vi. 10, 11).

15.—All the women that stood by, a great multitude.—"It seems plain that this appeal of the prophet was made at a public festival held somewhere in Pathros, i e, Upper Egypt. Jeremiah meets them, makes the procession halt upon its way, and pronounces in Jehovah's name words of solemn warning."—S C.

17.—Whatsoever thing goeth forth out of our own mouth.—Referring to vows they had made (ver. 25).

19.—Without our men.—Better as in R V., "our husbands," the object of the wives is to involve their husbands in their responsibility.

28.—Whose words shall stand.—It should be "word" (R V.).

30.—I will give Pharaoh-hophra ... into the hand of his enemies.—Herodotus, who calls him Apries, thus describes his death. "Amasis (a rival), gave Apries over into the hands of his former subjects to deal with as they chose. Then the Egyptians took him and strangled him" (ii. 169).

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 14.—JEREMIAH XLV.

1.—In the fourth year of Jehoiakim.—This prophetic utterance touching Baruch took place in the first year of the captivity (see xxxvi.).

2.—Thus saith the Lord...unto thee, O Baruch.—"Baruch was a man of high birth (xxxii. 12; 2 Chron. xxxiv. 8), who seems to have expected either high office in the State, or—more probably—the gift of prophecy bestowed upon him. His ambition was destined not to be gratified, and the prophet here warns him of the fact."—Streane.

4.—Even this whole land.—"This does not mean the whole 'land,' but the whole 'earth.'"—Keil. So also S.C. The word is ambiguous, but the word of wider meaning is for us more true; it also more accords with "I will bring evil upon all flesh" of ver. 5.

5.—Seekest thou great things for thyself? seek them not.—The New Testament version of this lesson is Col. iii. 1: "Seek the things that are above where Christ is....Set your affection on things above, not on the things that are upon the earth. For ye died."—R V. Thy life will I give unto thee for a prey.— Keble has well rendered this with a Christian application:—

> Happy if in that dreadful day
> Thy life be given thee for a prey.
> Snatched sudden from th' avenging rod,
> Safe in the bosom of thy God;
> How wilt thou then look back and smile
> On thoughts that bitterest seemed erewhile,
> And bless the pangs that made thee see
> This was no world of rest for thee!

THURSDAY, DEC. 15.—JEREMIAH XLVI.

"The custom of placing in a group, as here, prophecies against heathen nations, is illustrated by Isaiah (xiii.—xxiii.), Ezek. (xxv.—xxxii.), and Amos (i—ii. 3). The prophecies against Egypt and Babylon agree in containing a promise of restoration to Israel (xlvi. 27, 28, l. 19, 20).—Streane.

2.—Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt.—"This monarch had defeated and slain Josiah at Megiddo, and set Jehoahaz on the throne. In three months he had deposed him and set up Jehoiakim. He was extending his conquests in the Asiatic direction, when in the fourth year of Jehoiakim's reign he was overthrown by Nebuchadnezzar at Carchemish."—Ibid.

19.—O thou daughter dwelling in Egypt.—As the "daughter of Zion," properly means, the people of Zion, so the "daughter dwelling in Egypt" would mean Egypt's inhabitants.

27.—But fear not thou, O my servant Jacob.—"These two verses are a repetition of xxx. 10, 11, but with those slight variations which Jeremiah always makes when quoting himself. As they are more closely connected with the subject in chap. xxx., it is probable that they are repeated here to remind the Jews of the whole purport of that prophecy."—S.C.

28.—I will not make a full end of thee.—This is a parallel promise to that in Isaiah vi. 13. The words which follow—will I not leave thee wholly unpunished—are a quotation of Exod. xxxiv. 7, where they are rendered, "will by no means clear (the guilty)." This means that though God is ready to pardon sin, He by no means ignores or disregards it. He chastens as a Father, even where He has forgiven as a Judge. See 2 Sam. xii. 13, 14.

FRIDAY, DEC. 16.—JEREMIAH XLVII.

1.—Before that Pharaoh smote Gaza.—There is much controversy as to who this Pharaoh was, and as to when Gaza was smitten. Dean Payne Smith thinks it was Pharaoh-necho, and that, "though defeated at Carchemish, he was able to seize this place upon his retreat."

2.—Waters rise up out of the north.—"To understand the metaphors of Scripture, we must keep the natural phenomena of the country clearly in mind. Our rivers flow, summer and winter, with nearly equable course, varied by an occasional flood. In Palestine they are torrents dashing furiously along in rainy seasons, and dry, or nearly so, in the summer."—S.C.

3.—The fathers shall not look back to the children.—"Their terror in the flight shall be so great, that a father will not care for his children's safety."—Streane.

5.—Baldness has come upon Gaza.—"In token of mourning. See xvi. 6."—S.C.

6—How can it be quiet?—When once the sword of the Lord is unsheathed for judgment it cannot rest until that work be done. We may be thankful that it was so when the sword of the Lord awoke against his Shepherd (Zech. xiii. 7; John xix. 30), whose dying words proclaimed that it was finished, and that the sword of justice might henceforth "rest and be still" as to all who are "found in Him."

SATURDAY, DEC. 17.—JEREMIAH XLVIII.

"Amos (ii. 1—3) and Isaiah (xv. xvi.) have already, before Jeremiah, threatened Moab with destruction, because of the acts of hostility against Israel of which they have been guilty. Jeremiah takes up anew the utterances of the old prophets regarding Moab, and reproduces them, in his own peculiar manner, not only regarding Moab, but also regarding the whole heathen world now ripe for judgment."—Keil.

1.—Woe unto Nebo!—"Not the mountain of that name, but the city, probably not far from it."—Ibid.

7.—Chemosh shall go forth into captivity.—Chemosh was the god of Moab. He is frequently mentioned in the inscription discovered not long since on the Moabite stone.

10.—Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully.—"A curse upon the ministers of Divine justice, if, when sent to destroy Moab, they are remiss in executing the sentence."—S.C.

11.—Moab hath been at ease from his youth.—The spiritual teaching of this is important. See the other side of the question set forth in Lam. iii. 27.

29.—We have heard the pride of Moab.—Another point in which Moab represents unregenerate human nature. R.V. renders the last clause "His boastings have wrought nothing."

47.—Yet will I bring again the captivity of Moab in the latter days.—"A similar promise is given to Egypt, Ammon, and Elam" (xlvi. 26,

The Book World.

The World's Workers.

Messrs. Cassell have published another of this most admirable and handy series of shilling volumes. These narratives of busy and beneficent lives we count as the very best of reading. This volume recounts the lifework of three working women—Sarah Robinson, Agnes Weston, and Susanna Meredith. The sketches are full and ably written; the small portraits are excellent.

God's Garden.

This little work, by "Heartsease," is a poetical manual of the gifts and graces of the present life. The author writes in a didactic and figurative style upon such matters as patience, hope, love, mercy, &c., and trusts to promote their culture in the lives of his readers. We confess to not caring for this somewhat out-of-date method of teaching; but no doubt the book will find those who will appreciate its lessons, and its easy and excellent verse (3s. 6d. Nisbet & Co.).

A Chapter of the Past.

The Scottish Covenanters, by James Taylor, D.D. (1s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton), is a freshly written and somewhat condensed record of the memorable "fifty years' struggle." The noble doings of these witnesses "for God and truth and right" deserve to be kept fresh in the minds of the present generation. The story is so ably told that the reader pursues it with fascinated interest. The young especially cannot fail to derive from the reading of it a higher moral tone, and imbibe a dash of true Christian chivalry.

Three Friends of God.

These records from the lives of John Tauler, Nicholas of Basle, and Henry Suso, by Mrs. Bevan, read like a page of sunshine and blessing out of the old Apostolic days. Whether we take the beautiful vigorous life of Doctor Tauler, the equally beautiful, saintly life of Nicholas, or the strange, mysticism of "the servant of the Eternal Wisdom," as Suso delighted to call himself, we recognise in each that which entitled him to be called the "Friend of God." The volume is as an alabaster box of precious ointment, and those who open it will find in it rich odours of holy truth and heavenly grace. We wish there were more books like it (5s. Nisbet & Co.).

Messrs. Shaw & Co.'s Story Books.

We have received a further instalment of these attractive volumes:—

Mr. Bartholomew's Little Girl, by L. Marston (2s. 6d.), is a story that should turn the hearts of many to the Saviour. It is well written, and the teaching is pure and true.

Shaw's Playtime Stories—"At Home," "Play by the Sea," "Sweet Home." By Grace Stebbing. 3d. each. These are wholesome, happy, brightly illustrated little narratives, and when bound in one volume (1s.) form a charming Christmas present for the nursery.

The Story of Little Hal and the Golden Gate, by Maude M. Butler (3s. 6d.), is luxuriously got up, charmingly written, and spiritually alive. It is the story of a bright and happy boy, and the very thing to put into the hands of juveniles at this Christmas-time.

Acting on the Square, by H. Boultwood (1s. 6d.), is a tale of schoolboy life, pervaded by a healthy, moral tone.—Charlie's Success, by M. Seymour (1s. 6d.), and Left Behind, by Jennie Chappell (1s.), are capital tales for young folks, and very suitable for reward books or Sunday-school libraries.

City Snowdrops, by M. E. Winchester (5s.), is a beautiful story, which turns upon the precept that we should return good for evil. It is unfortunate, however, that the writers of this kind of story so often select narrow spheres of Christian work, and make those who fill them belong to the very humblest class.

The Shepherd's Darling. By Brenda. 3s. 6d. We read this story in its serial issue and thought how improbable and yet how pleasant it was in the reading. In its present form it seems pleasanter still, and will doubtless be read by many with quickened sympathies as they trace Bonnie's fall and her final restoration.—We have a finely illustrated edition of "Froggy's Little Brother" (3s. 6d.) from the same pen.

Mrs. Booth on Popular Christianity.

In these burning pages our plain-speaking friend proves that she has a message from God to deliver. Would that the Christianity she advocates were "popular" in the widest sense of the term! She is strong in the exposure of those fallacies which too often make precious truths resemble pernicious error. Let all slip-shod Christians read the book from cover to cover, and they will, because they must (setting aside some arbitrary expressions), confess to the truth and reality of its contents, by a change in heart and life (1s. and 2s. 101, Queen Victoria-street).

An Addition to Bunyan Literature.

In a goodly volume, entitled The People of the Pilgrimage, Rev. J. A. Kerr Bain has certainly given us a rich and varied study of the beautiful characters of Bunyan's immortal Allegory. The sketch of Bunyan himself is clear, analytical, and faithful, and the author's handling of the various "true pilgrims" is distinctively concise, spiritual, and careful. No reader of these excellent sketches will fail to trace a master hand. They are interesting, full of thought, suggestive of deep intuition, and deserve to be carefully read. There is a mine of precious truth on every page, which admirers of the "Pilgrim's Progress" will love to dig into (6s. Macniven & Wallace, Edinburgh).

Apologetics.

The third volume of the translation of Dr. Ebrard's Apologetics (Messrs. T. & T. Clark's "Foreign Theological Library") contains what can only be described as a mass of information with regard to the heathen nations. It is mainly concerned with proving how the different races of men show deterioration, rather than advance from fetishism to polytheism, and thence to monotheism. Sin has wrought out its effect only too clearly; and though there are traces of a primitive revelation, yet the history of the nations represents a gradually increasing forgetfulness of it, and opposition to its teaching. The Author also points out that this was the natural tendency even of the Semitic race, and that if this race has handed down to us a pure religion, it is not because of, but in spite of, itself. "The one God is not the product of Israel, but Israel is the product of the one God." It is, of course, possible that, among the immense number of facts presented, some may prove, on further investigation, to be inaccurate, but the volume is very valuable in the present state of our knowledge (10s. 6d.)

ANNUALS.

The Girl's Own Annual. All who have read this paper week by week will be glad to possess the year's volume; and those who have not will find in it material that will at once entertain, instruct, and amuse. It forms a very attractive and useful budget. The Boy's Own Paper can always be commended for providing good, wholesome reading for our boys. The annual volume is brimfull of thrilling stories and other matter interesting to those for whom it is intended, and will make a very elegant Christmas present. Religious Tract Society. 8s. each. In Hand and Heart, Rev. Charles Bullock provides a good stock of bright, entertaining, and useful reading for the household, interspersed with numerous illustrations. 2s. "Home Words" Office.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Baby. An illustrated magazine for mothers. This new serial will no doubt prove very useful to those who have the care of children. There is a good selection of articles on a variety of kindred topics, by eminent writers, which combine to give the magazine a good start. The Editor also invites the co-operation of his readers in contributing the results of their experience in matters of clothing, food, &c., in the hope of establishing "a friendly and useful relationship" between himself and them (4d. Wyman & Sons, Great Queen-street.)

Our Sisters in India. By Rev. A. H. Lash. We wish we could put this little book into the hands of all who are capable of being touched by the wonderful story of love as revealed in the lives of the missionaries to the women of India. Miss Marston and Dr. Alice Marston give such facts as cause our hearts to burn within us that we might be permitted to go and give the Gospel of God's grace to thirsting thousands in India. Under four heads are tabulated facts as to the condition of India's women; medical missions to them; normal and other schools, and Zenana visiting (1s. Nisbet & Co.).

Lotta's Life Mistake, by E. T. E. Poole, is somewhat sensationally illustrated, but with plenty of incident, some love-making, and a happy ending, will, no doubt, be popular with young ladies, for whom, undoubtedly, the authoress has written it (1s. Nisbet & Co.).

DECEMBER MAGAZINES.

THE QUIVER.

We congratulate the Editor on this number. The printing and illustrations are so good that we are reminded of the American monthlies. Many of the pictures are very charming. Nor is all the merit in the illustrations. The stories are good and the more solid articles are well written. One of these latter—Dr. Hugh Macmillan's "Growth under Pressure"—is most suggestive.

THE LEISURE HOUR.

This is an average number, with one or two articles which deserve the best attention of thinking men and women. Rev. H. Solly's second paper on "Our Vagrant and Criminal Classes," is one we specially allude to, for it becomes every Christian and every patriot to exercise his mind on the great social problems dealt with in this paper. It is certain that both our Poor Law system, and our method of dealing with criminals, have failed miserably. We must try again and do better. Mr. Solly's paper abounds with valuable suggestions of possible improvements. This number has also a biographical sketch of Dean Collet which deserves notice.

THE MODERN STAGE.

Under the new régime, that elegant monthly The Woman's World (Cassell) is doing some good and serious work. Every reader of the current issue will turn with interest to the paper by the late Mrs. Craik—the last product of her fertile pen and brain. It is virtually an impeachment of the modern stage, taken as a whole. Here is plain enough speaking:—"That euphuistic glossing over of sin which makes one shrink from taking one's young daughters to almost any modern play."... "That condoning and plastering over of vice which is the curse of the modern stage."..."This fatal tide which is drifting us into the lowest depths of Greek and Roman degradation."..."To many people, coming away from a modern play is like quitting a moral hell—a very ingenious, elegant, amusing hell, but nevertheless as black as Avernus, and into which the descent is quite as easy." These are sentences scattered over her article, and, coming from one who was confessedly an inveterate playgoer, they must carry great weight. She seems to have thought that the English stage could be purified by all the good managers and actors, and specially the good actresses, combining to abhor that which is evil and cleave to that which is good. What might be done and what will be done, however, are very different things.

Another article in the magazine that ought to do good service is the Countess of Meath's description of the work of the "Ministering Children's League," an association for teaching the children of the rich to take an interest in the needs of the poor.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME.

In this number the current story, "Geneviève, a Story of Old France," is ended in masterly fashion. We are greatly interested in "A Philanthropist in Humble Life," a life-sketch of Wm. Bilborough, a member of Mr. Spurgeon's church, who was formerly a bricklayer, and then a licensed broker. How he shone for Christ his Lord in an avocation which is usually full of most distressing and hateful incidents, and how he lived to rescue multitudes of the fallen women who congregated in his immediate neighbourhood, is a remarkable story. He used to set the following in his window: "Notice: Any poor unfortunate sister that requires a good home, will she kindly inquire within?" He kept a record of those he helped. So successful was he, that he could account for 148 of those who have stood fast, and who are now honest women. "Lost by a Poor Clerk" is a capital story, instinct with human interest and high principle. Mr. Glover's paper on the last Beatitude, "Blessed are they who are persecuted for righteousness sake," &c., is exceedingly fine. For instance, speaking of the reasons why real godliness will meet with opposition, he says:—"True saintliness will always be an aggressive thing. Where it is such its activities arouse enmity. We have different views from the Saviour on this subject of aggressive goodness. We think saintliness is at liberty to be an obtrusive, silent, self-saving thing; carefully restricting its service to the quiet influence of its example, content to develop its own life sweetly. But the Saviour calls for something more vigorous than passive piety. Prince of Peace as He was, He proclaims: 'I came not to send peace on earth, but a sword,' to set a man at 'variance' with those around him. He assumes that evil must be assailed, that evil will be contradicted, and sin denounced. He intends true peace to be reached by the disturbance of the false. He expects sanctity ever to have something of the soldierly quality, and that the life will be a fight of faith. He did not contemplate sanctity adopting a live and let live policy in the presence of falsehood and evil. Silence is the earth in which the talent of truth is buried. He bids us say 'Repent,' not merely to men in general, but to sinners in particular; expects us to reprove all evil, as well as to point to Him who is the source and pattern of all good...Wherever love is thus aggressive, truth thus bold, mercy thus active—hatred of the intensest kind must rise. For who can bear to have his ways denounced as evil; his views as false; his destiny, perdition; his duty, repentance."

MESSRS. CASSELL AND CO.

With this month The Family Physician is complete, the current number containing title and contents sheets. We have repeatedly had occasion to call attention to the contents of the monthly parts; and, now that the series is finished, we cordially commend the volume to our readers. It is a standard work, well executed and eminently useful. Bishop Ellicott's Old Testament Commentary (7d.), in its 39th part, brings the reader to 2 Kings vii. The Countries of the World (Part 43, 7d.) is exclusively devoted to parts of China. The plates are beautifully engraved and highly realistic in effect.

TOILERS OF THE DEEP.

A special interest attaches to this issue, as it records tokens of Royal sympathy with the work, on the part of Her Majesty and the Princess Christian. The Queen has contributed to the funds, has consented to be its "patron," and permits her name to be given to a proposed cruising hospital-ship in connection with the work. We heartily commend this project to our readers. Mr. Mather, the esteemed founder and director of the Mission, has just written the story of the inception and progress of this young but splendidly successful Christian effort. His book is called "Nor'ard of the Dogger," and is published by Messrs. Nisbet & Co., price 5s.

The Railway Signal is a very good number, containing several stirring and swinging poems, stories, sketches in Cornwall and on the Midland, and reports of work done throughout the country.

Perhaps the most readable of the contents of Good Words are two contributions on American topics. Mr. Underhill's sketch of "Emerson," and a paper, well illustrated, describing the chief features of the "Empire City," New York.

The Christmas number of The Christian Million (6d. 4, Ludgate Circus Buildings) forms an attractive budget.

A sermon by Rev. John McNeill, of Edinburgh, is announced to appear every month next year in The Christian Treasury.

The Bells of the Heart. 1s. Marshall Bros. An elegantly got-up booklet, printed on tinted cardboard; suitable for a New Year or birthday offering.

Missing! By Eva Travers Poole. 1s. per dozen. Partridge & Co. A fresh and bright exposition of the shepherd and the sheep, well written, tastefully illustrated, and in every respect attractively got up.

The R.T.S. Pocket Book and Scripture Calendar for 1888 contains a mass of useful information, which will render it one of the most valuable vade mecums published for the ensuing year (1s. Religious Tract Society).

Yule Tide is this year published by Messrs. Cassell & Co. In addition to a story by Mr. R. L. Stevenson, there are numerous coloured pictures, the chief being a representation of Nelson as a boy leaving home (1s.)

Miss Sarah Robinson, of the Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth, has issued an excellent New Year's address for soldiers and sailors, at home and abroad. With a card it may be obtained from the Institute at 2s. 3d. per dozen.

Wintering Abroad. By Dr. Alfred Drysdale, of Cannes. 6d. Virtue & Co. A useful little manual, setting forth what diseases are likely to be mitigated by various winter resorts. It is clear, concise, and eminently practical.

Mr. F. Sherlock, who recently edited The Church of England Temperance Chronicle, is about to bring out The Church Monthly, with illustrations, one penny. The first number, for January, 1888, is already issued, in anticipation of the New Year.

New Year's and Birthday Cards to Paint. A series of six cards, representing Virginian creeper, ivy, bramble, haws, hips, and spindle, designed in outline with directions as to suitable colours, &c. The idea is a good one, and these little souvenirs will, when finished, bear a personal interest not conveyed by ordinary cards. Post free 6½d. a packet. N.E.F.C., care of Mr. Warman, Queen-street, Ipswich.

Excelsior, by Rev. R. Ballantine, Peebles (2d. H. Broadhead, Bookseller, Peebles), is an address to young Christians, on the secret of soul prosperity.

The annual volume of Old Jonathan (1s. 6d. Collingridge) has plenty of good, varied reading for old and young, with an abundance of telling illustrations.

Rev. J. T. Wrenford has written a helpful little booklet, entitled Sympathy (3 for 2d. Partridge & Co.) for the New Year. It is suitable for enclosing in letters.

Four sheets of new and prettily got up Sunday-school reward cards come from the Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling (2d. per sheet). Sunday-school superintendents and teachers should get a supply.

Mr. W. Mack, 28, Paternoster-row, has published some coloured ornamental cards for the use of ministers, superintendents, Sunday-school teachers, &c., with blank centres suitable for use as motto cards, &c.

Rev. Thomas Champness has issued a series of illustrated tracts that are splendidly suited for general circulation. They are short and pointed, and, with a good illustration to wing the arrow in its flight, are sure to hit the mark (1s. per 1000. Joyful News Depôt, Rochdale).

Evergreen, the Christmas number of The Girl's Own Paper is full of seasonable reading, most attractively presented. The Christmas part of The Boy's Own Paper has an imposing array of able contributors, who between them furnish a rare dish of Christmas fare for their peculiar clients (R. T. S. 6d. each).

A new monthly magazine, called Ready, conducted by Miss Robinson, of the Portsmouth Soldiers' Institute, will be published on the fifteenth of each month, commencing January 15. Price twopence. The first number will include a portrait of Miss Robinson on separate sheet. It is intended to be interesting and helpful to thousands besides soldiers and sailors. It will be illustrated.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Messrs. John F. Shaw & Co.:—Bible Light. Annual Volume.

Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling, N.B.:—The British Messenger Annual Volume. 1s.

Messrs. Cassell & Co.:—The World's Workers Series: The Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, by Henry Frith. 1s.

Mr. James Speirs, 36, Bloomsbury-street, W.C.:—The Divine Word Opened: Sermons by the late Rev. Jonathan Bayley.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin, 26, Paternoster-square:—The Story of the Nations: Ireland, by Hon. Emily Lawless. 5s.—The Making of the Great West, by F. A. Drake.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—One Thousand new Illustrations for Pulpit, Platform, and Class, by Rev. H. O. Mackey.—The Mother's Friend Annual Volume. 2s. 6d.—Emmanuel. 1s.

Messrs. Macniven & Wallace, 138, Princes-street, Edinburgh:—The Dawn of the Modern Mission, by the late Rev. William Fleming Stevenson, D.D. With Prefatory Note by Rev. Professor A. H. Charteris, D.D. 2s. 6d.

Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.:—The Two Babylons, by late Rev. Alexander Hislop. Seventh edition. 5s. Glory Gleams: Scripture Texts and Poems for a month, selected by Charlotte Murray. 1s. The Illustrated Missionary News. Annual Volume. 2s. 6d.

◆

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

Nearly four hundred of the boys on the training ship Shaftesbury, Grays, Essex, are pledged abstainers.

The Sunday-school Chronicle urges that time should be found on Sunday for definite temperance teaching in the schools.

There are now 350 members, 75 associates, and three branches connected with the British Medical Temperance Association.

A new mission hall in connection with the C.E.T.S. Police Court and Prison Gate Mission, Liverpool, was opened, November 25, by Mr. Clarke Aspinall, J.P.

The Women of England's Petition to the Queen in favour of Sunday closing has obtained about 1,250,000 signatures, and a lorry would be required to move it.

The annual report of the chief constable of Newcastle-on-Tyne states that during the year the arrests for drunkenness were 750 fewer than in the previous year.

At a recent inquest, in Salford, on a child whose death was due to its mother's intemperance, the coroner said the number of children found dead in bed was appalling.

Dublin and several of the towns in Ulster, including Donegal, Belfast, Londonderry, and others, have lately been visited by Mr. E. T. Smith, whose popular and effective recital of J. B. Gough's famous orations have been enthusiastically received in each place.

On Tuesday, November 29, an important conference was held at the Central Hall, Newcastle. There were large audiences afternoon and evening, and much valuable information on various aspects of the temperance cause was given by the speakers.

A branch of the British Women's Temperance Association has been formed at Matlock Bridge. It is proposed to erect a Workmen's Hall and Temperance Rest, and a meeting was recently held in support of the movement. The drink evil has been sorely felt in this beautiful spot.

FOREIGN.

The Lahore Tribune, an Indian native journal of repute, protests against "the great sin and shame of teaching the soberest people in the world to drink."

The Queen of the Amatongas, Africa, has sent a deputation to the Queen beseeching her aid to stop the ruin of her people through the spirits imported by the Portuguese colony, Delagoa Bay.

Mission Appeals.

Marylebone Medical Mission.—As there is much distress amongst the poor, we are in great need of help, including blankets and warm clothing. —Dr. R. Chambers, 43, Carlisle-street, Edgware-road, N.W.

Gray's Yard Ragged Church.—The exceptional distress now prevailing has driven large numbers of hungry persons into our Sunday morning and afternoon meetings. We are now sorely in need of substantial assistance, if this work is to be continued. The great majority of those who attend have no other food during the day than that which we supply to them; indeed, often have men and women declared to me that they have not tasted food for two, and even three, days. It is our custom to give a more solid meal to about 1600 persons on the first Sunday in the New Year. I earnestly hope that we shall be able to do the same again on January 1, but for this we absolutely require about £80.—Philip Gough, 33, Cambridge-street, Hyde-park, W.

Gipsies in Chobham.—A good work appears to be done among this nomadic class by the Mission at Chobham, Surrey, carried on by Mr. Stanley Alder. He appeals for help to erect an iron room, in which to hold services during the winter.

Hoxton Hall.—Mrs. Wm. Noble asks for help in relieving the great distress among women and children in this poor and crowded district. Gifts of warm clothing, books, toys, money will be most gratefully received by her at Ashfield, Seven Sisters-road, Finsbury-park, N.

Persecuted Jews.—Mrs. Finn, of the Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews (41, Parliament-street, S.W.), earnestly appeals for help in relieving and succouring the many Jews who are driven to this country by persecution in Russia, Persia, and elsewhere. She states that many of these refugees are in a very destitute condition.

Evangelical Society of Geneva.—The amount raised for the general work by Geneva Christians is £2400. About £5000 have to be subscribed by the friends of other countries of all denominations. There is a deficit of £680. Donations and subscriptions will be thankfully received, and may be sent to Pastor Rimond, Oratoire, Geneva.

Jerusalem.—The Training Home for Girls stands much in need of help. There are twenty-two inmates, and more asking admission, but beds and bedding, additional furniture and clothing are needed. With a few exceptions, all are daughters of Jerusalem. Help will be received by the Secretary of the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, 16, Lincoln's Inn-fields, London, W.C.

Cow Cross Mission.—Help is greatly needed at this moment on behalf of this evangelistic work, that it may continue to be a means of spiritual blessing to perishing sinners, and that help in temporal things may not be lacking for the sick poor during the inclement season of winter. It is desired to resume the halfpenny dinners to thousands of poor little children during the winter.—William Catlin, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London, N.

Plaistow, E.—A mission cottage has been opened in one of the poorest parts of this poor district, where it is hoped to relieve bodily and spiritual prevalent distress. One room will be used as a class-room, and on other evenings as a playroom for the children, providing for them picture-books, scrap-books, puzzles, &c. Help in the shape of books, toys, clothing, or money will be gratefully received by T. J. Price (Curate of St. Mary's, Plaistow), 4, Park-road, St. Mary's-road, Plaistow, E.

Working Lads in the West.—Miss Elphinstone, 27, Arundel-gardens, Kensington-park, W., Secretary of the Working Lads' Institute, 95, Tavistock-crescent, Notting-hill, writes:—"We are about to open our Night School for the winter, and are very anxious to form a library of good wholesome literature for their use, in order to counteract the evil influence of the pernicious literature so eagerly devoured. The lads who attend it are quite as much neglected and depraved as any street arab in the East-end. Will friends send us suitable books?

Naval Anti-Infidel Crusade.—Our object is to provide an antidote to the corrupting influences of infidel literature in the Navy, by the circulation of good, sound, moral literature. Nearly a quarter of a ton has gone forward to Miss Weston, as the generous gifts from some of our leading publishing houses. Will friends assist by subscriptions to furnish the actual cost price of anti-infidel pamphlets? Parcels of Christian temperance, anti-infidel literature or subscriptions will be thankfully accepted.—J. H. Mitchell, care of Messrs. Marshall, Bros., 10, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

Fox Court Ragged School and Mission, Gray's Inn-road.—The Committee appeal again for funds towards the relief of the sick and poor. For upwards of thirty years they have carried on a quiet work of timely help, and in the present scarcity of employment such help is more urgently needed than ever to relieve the most pressing wants of the deserving poor. None but such are assisted. They wish also to provide a little Christmas cheer for a few of the poorest. Contributions in money, clothing, &c., will be thankfully received by Mr. H. W. Elcum, 13, Bedford-row, W.C.; or Henry Allen, 264, St. Paul's-road, Canonbury, N.

"I was a stranger, and ye took me in."

The Committee of the Field Lane Refuges and Ragged Schools are compelled to make a very urgent appeal for Funds for the continuance of their work. The work is carried on amongst the most destitute of the poor, both old and young. The Institution possesses no reserve fund to fall back upon.

The Committee gratefully acknowledge the receipt of £230, but £1,270 is still required before the close of the year to free them from anxiety. Upwards of 200 persons are maintained weekly. The average weekly attendances at the Mission Meetings is about 3,000.

The Committee trust the Lord's people will help them in this time of difficulty and pressure. On behalf of the Committee,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C. PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary.

P.S.—Contributions will be thankfully received by the Secretary; or may be paid to our Bankers, Messrs. Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or Messrs. Ransom & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.; or to the Editor of "The Christian."

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY.

ALL-NIGHT RESCUE WORK.

ALREADY 12,000 poor Homeless and Starving Men have been gathered from the streets in the dead of night, Sheltered, Fed, and otherwise assisted, with most gratifying results.

This season has commenced with more than usual severity. Hundreds of poor men have been gathered in, and their need supplied, while scores have been turned away, for want of room, in the most destitute condition.

The continuance of this much-needed work must depend upon the liberality of those having the means to support it. Contributions will be gratefully received by the SECRETARY; or Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or by the EDITORS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

JAMES ATKINSON, Secretary.
28, Enfield Road, Kingsland, N.

THE Flower ◆ Girl ◆ Mission

AND BRIGADE

WILL BE GLAD TO SUPPLY
ALL KINDS OF ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS,
HOLLY WREATHING, PLANTS, &c.
SUITABLE FOR
CHRISTMAS AND TABLE DECORATION.
Flower Vases, Room Decorations, &c.

PLANTS, from 6d. to 5s. each.
HOLLY and other WREATHING from 3d. yard.
ROSES, CHRYSANTHEMUMS, &c., from 6d. Spray.
PACKAGES SENT BY PARCELS POST (SECURELY PACKED).

Orders to be sent to Hon. Superintendent,
Flower Girl Mission, 11 & 12, Clerkenwell Close, E.C.

21st Annual Report of Mission on application.

The Anchorage.

HEBREWS vi. 19.

To Shelter, and give Spiritual care to, Young Women lately Fallen into Sin, whether or not about to become Mothers, with a special annexe and suitable arrangements for such as are of gentle birth.

ANYONE desiring admission for such cases to apply (by letter only) to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End-road, N.W., London, also for Servants trained in the Anchorage House. Donations may be sent to Mrs. Stuart-Wortley for the Anchorage Mission, or to Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

For New Year. 8d. per dozen.
"SYMPATHY." By J. T. WRENFORD.
ROLL-TEXT ALMANACK. 1½d.
STORY OF A SURRENDER. 6d. per dozen.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

DOCK LABOURERS' MISSION.

We have the convenience now for feeding 2000 people daily. Funds are very much needed; not for clearing off debts, but for assisting the unemployed labourers and families.

C. COLEMAN, 32, Chamber-street, London Docks.

WORKING MEN'S MISSION,

Collingwood Street, New Cut.

Appeal to the Readers of "The Christian" on behalf of the Poor and Distressed of the New Cut and District.

Last year, through the sympathy of the Christian public, we were enabled to give some thousands of Meals to men, women, and children, besides Clothing. The distress is greater now than last Winter, and we are quite unable to alleviate it, owing to our Funds being exhausted.

Letter from Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in reference to the WORKING MEN'S MISSION.

Westwood, Beulah Hill, Upper Norwood, October 28, 1887.

DEAR BRETHREN,—I heartily commend your work as one of the soundest and most real known to me. Knowing you as I do, and seeing your zeal and self-sacrifice, I hope you will never be at a loss for funds. I am up to the neck myself in the stream, and cannot therefore help you as I would like; but I recommend your holy service to all the Lord's stewards who have not yet exhausted their dedicated store.—Yours heartily,

C. H. SPURGEON.

We feel sure kind friends will continue to assist the good work of this Mission.

GEO. HATTON, J. PEARCE, } Finance
W. STUBBS, J. B. PARKER, } Committee.

Contributions will be thankfully received by the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-st., E.C.; the Superintendents, T. and J. YOUNG, 32, Nelson-square Blackfriars-road, S.E.; or may be sent to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN IN CLERKENWELL.

(Address Letters and Parcels, 17, Claremont Square, Pentonville.)

THE COW CROSS MISSION,

WILLIAM CATLIN, Gen. Supt.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED. COLLECTING CARDS ON APPLICATION.

SOME OF THE

NEW CARDS

FOR

CHRISTMAS and the NEW YEAR

PUBLISHED BY JAMES E. HAWKINS.

Voices of Song. A Set of Six Cards, with designs of English Song Birds, with bevelled edges. Price 2s. (Mildmay.)

Counsel and Might. A Set of Eight Cards, by A. Schleinz. With Flowers and Berries, and large Initial Letters. Price 2s. (Mildmay.)

Light at Eventide. Four Cards, with designs in Monochrome, by E. L. With Landscape and Figures. Price 1s. (Mildmay.)

Joyous Melodies. A Set of Twelve Cards, with designs of Birds in Monochrome, by E. St. B. H. Price 2s. (Mildmay.)

Winter Sketches. Twelve Cards, with Landscape Vignettes in Sepia, by E. L. Price 1s. (Mildmay.)

Forest Treasures. Twelve Cards, with brilliant Fungi. Coloured from nature by E. St. B. H. Price 1s. (Mildmay.)

A Threefold Card. Six Cards, by E. L. With Snow scenes and figures of Children in sunshine and storm. Price 1s. (Mildmay.)

"Fear Not." A Set of Twelve square Text Cards, bevelled, with Landscape and Floral designs. Price 2s.

Greetings of Peace. A Packet of Eight bevelled edge Text Cards, with Landscape in colours. Price 2s.

Royal Grace. A Packet of Twelve Floral Text Cards, with Vignette Landscapes. Price 1s.

Tender Mercies. A Packet of Twelve Text Cards, with Marine designs. Price 1s.

Life Eternal. A Packet of Twelve Text Cards, with Sprays of Flowers in colours. Price 6d.

☞ Send for COMPLETE LIST, post-free on application.

London: James E. Hawkins, 36, Baker-street, W.;
and 17, Paternoster-row, E.C.

MARK GUY PEARSE'S BOOKS

Ten Volumes, Crown 8vo., Cloth, Gilt Edges. 2s. 6d. each.

1.—DANIEL QUORM, AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. First Series. 80,000.
2.—DANIEL QUORM, AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. Second Series. 33,000.
3.—SERMONS FOR CHILDREN. 23,000.
4.—MISTER HORN AND HIS FRIENDS; or, Givers and Giving. 26,000.
5.—SHORT STORIES. 11,000. [11,000
6.—"GOOD WILL;" Christmas Stories.
7.—SIMON JASPER. 17,000.
8.—CORNISH STORIES. 11,000.
9.—HOMELY TALKS. 14,000.
10.—JOHN TREGENOWETH, Rob Rat, and The Old Miller and His Mill. 23,000.

Cheap Editions of the above Ten Volumes are on Sale, Foolscap 8vo., 1s. 6d. each.

THOUGHTS ON HOLINESS. 19th Thousand. Royal 16mo. Cloth, red edges, 2s. 6d.
Cheap Edition. Demy 16mo., 44th 1000. 1s.

PRAISE: Meditations in the 103rd Psalm. Royal 16mo., red lines round page, 2s. 6d.

SOME ASPECTS OF THE BLESSED LIFE. Eighth Thousand. Royal 16mo. 2s. 6d.
Cheap Edition. Demy 16mo. 19th 1000. 1s.

DR. PUNSHON'S SERMONS. Two Vols. Crown 8vo., 5s. each.

DR. PUNSHON'S LECTURES. 5s.

LOVING COUNSELS: SERMONS AND ADDRESSES. By Rev. Charles Garrett. Fourth Thousand. Cheap Edition. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d.

THE LIFE OF REV. JABEZ BUNTING, D.D. With Notices of Contemporary Persons and Events. By T. P. Bunting, Esq., and Rev. G. Stringer Rowe. 8vo., with Two Portraits. 10s. 6d.

THE BEGINNING OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE. By Rev. W. L. Watkinson. 16mo., 1s.

GOD AND NATURE. By Rev. Nehemiah Curnock. 16mo, 1s.

THE WORD IN THE HEART. Notes on the Devotional Study of Holy Scripture. By Rev. W. T. Davison, M.A. 16mo., 1s.

A MANUAL OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE. By Rev. J. Shaw Banks. Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d.

FATHER FERVENT. By Rev. John M. Bamford. Crown 8vo. 18 Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE FERNLEY LECTURE OF 1887. The Creator, and What we may Know of the Method of Creation. By Rev. W. H. Dallinger, LL.D., F.R.S. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London T. Woolmer, 2, Castle-st., City-road, E.C.;
and 66, Paternoster-row, E.C.

MACNIVEN & WALLACE,

Publishers,

EDINBURGH.

The People of the Pilgrimage.

An Expository Study of the "Pilgrim's Progress" as a Book of Character. First Series: True Pilgrims. By the Rev. J. A. Kerr Bain, Livingstone. Crown 8vo., 6s.

The Dawn of the Modern Mission.

By the late Rev. Wm. Fleming Stevenson, D.D. With a Preface by Rev. Professor Charteris, D.D. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d.

Personal Reminiscences and Biographical Sketches.

By the late Rev. James Dodds, Dunbar. With a Brief Memoir by his Wife. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d.

"The Papers in this Volume, giving as they do the writer's personal recollections of such men as Chalmers, Candlish, Hugh Miller, Sir William Hamilton, and Sir Walter Scott, have an interest which appeals to readers of every denomination. They have a charm of manner and style which make them always pleasant and suggestive to read."—Scotsman.

"One of the best books of its kind that has emanated from the Scottish Press for many years."—Glasgow Mail.

"A collection of truly delightful sketches by a keen observer."—Christian.

Edinburgh: MACNIVEN & WALLACE.
London: HODDER & STOUGHTON.

CHRISTMAS LETTERS.

A Large Variety suitable for Parochial and General Distribution among all classes are now ready. District Visitors, Teachers, Mothers' Meetings, Hospitals, Schools, Institutions, &c.

Samples may be had from Hazell, Watson, & Viney, Ld., 6, Kirby-street, Hatton-garden, E.C., as follows:—

	s.	d.
Specimen Packet	0	3
Letter and Card Packet	1	6
Complete Sample Packet	4	0

Post Free.

Reports or Hints to Workers, with Catalogues, free on application.

Specimens may be seen at
Partridge's Book Saloon, 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

CHRISTMAS CARDS, Specially adapted for above, are also ready. Just the material wanted by Christian Workers at Christmas time.

THE BOOK SALOON,

9, PATERNOSTER ROW (Cheapside end)
(Established 1860),

Contains one of the largest and most varied collections of

EVANGELICAL, TEMPERANCE, & GENERAL LITERATURE,

Conveniently arranged for selection.

In addition to S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S own Publications, the Works of most of the leading Publishers are kept in Stock,

Annuals, New Books, Almanacs,
New Year's Addresses,
Christmas and New Year's Cards, &c.

EARLY INSPECTION INVITED.
Hours 9 till 6. Saturdays 9 till 2.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S new Illustrated Catalogue post free on application. Also specimen packet of their Illustrated Periodicals and Magazines.

9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

WILLIAM HUNT & CO.'S LIST.

By the Lord Bishop of Liverpool.

New and thoroughly Revised Edition. Complete in 4 vols. Post 8vo., extra cloth, £1 11s. 6d.

EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON THE GOSPELS Designed for Family and Private Reading, with the text and copious notes This work has been revised with great care, is printed upon specially prepared paper, and bound in extra cloth.

"THE UPPER ROOM." Being the New Volume in the "Knots Untied" Series. 7s. 6d.

Uniform with above, each 7s. 6d.

Knots Untied.	Facts and Men.
Principles for Churchmen	Old Paths.
Practical Religion.	Holiness.

The above also in morocco binding, 15s. each.

THOUGHTS ON CHRISTIAN JOYFULNESS. By the Rev. Henry Sharpe, B.D., Vicar of Trinity Church, Hampstead. With Introduction by the Rev. H. C. G. Moule, M.A., Principal of Ridley Hall, Cambridge. 32mo., cloth, 1s.

THE TWIN BROTHERS, and other Addresses to Children. By the Rev. Gordon Calthrop, M.A. Being Series 1 of the Children's Pulpit. New Edition, 2s.

OURSELVES. A Picture Sketched from the History of the Children of Israel. By Brownlow North. New edition in large type and large paper, extra cloth, 2s.

SIR EVELYN'S CHARGE; or, A Child's Influence. Crown 8vo., Fifteenth edition, extra cloth, 5s.

HOME VISITOR ANNUAL, 1887. Edited by Clergymen of the Church of England. Handsomely bound in ultramarine cloth, numerous engravings, 2s.

ANNUAL ADDRESSES, 1888.

By the Lord Bishop of Liverpool.

ALWAYS TO PRAY. Thoughts on Luke xviii. 2s. per dozen.
WHAT WILL THE END BE? A Question for 1888. A Broadsheet in large type. 6d. per dozen.
LET HIM THAT IS ATHIRST COME. Being Thoughts on Revelation xxii. 7. 1s. per dozen.
PERILOUS TIMES. A Thought for the Times. 55th thousand. 1s. per dozen.

London: WILLIAM HUNT & CO., 12. Paternoster-row, E.C.

Just published, price Fifteen Shillings.

A HANDY CONCORDANCE TO THE SEPTUAGINT, giving Various Readings from Codices Vaticanus, Alexandrinus, Sinaiticus, and Ephraemi.

A work like this has long been a desideratum in English Biblical literature. We introduce it therefore to our readers, who will welcome it, as we do ourselves, as an efficient work of reference, which may often be valuable in their studies.
The Literary Churchman.

Fourth Edition, Price Two Guineas.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S HEBREW AND CHALDEE CONCORDANCE, shewing a Verbal Connection between the Original and the English Text.

Price Two Guineas.

A CONCORDANCE OF THE HEBREW AND CHALDEE SCRIPTURES. Revised and corrected by B. Davidson. The quotations are in Hebrew, arranged according to Grammar.

Price Fifteen Shillings.

A HANDY HEBREW CONCORDANCE (hitherto called The Hebraist's Vade Mecum). A Complete Verbal Index to the Hebrew Scriptures, arranged according to Grammar.

Eighth Edition, Price One Guinea.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK CONCORDANCE OF THE NEW TESTAMENT, showing a Verbal Connection between the Greek and the English Texts. To which is added a CONCORDANCE OF VARIOUS READINGS from Griesbach to "The Revisers" (sold separately at Five Shillings).

Price Ten Shillings.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK NEW TESTAMENT, giving Various Readings from Griesbach to Wordsworth; with an interlinear Translation and the Authorised Version of 1611.

S. BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED,
Paternoster-row.

MONTHLY, ONE PENNY.

"SUNSHINE,"

ILLUSTRATED, COLOURED COVERS.

Edited by the Rev. W. M. Whittemore, D.D., Rector of St. Katherine Cree, London.

A Monthly Magazine for all Girls and Boys. We know the sort of reading which we liked at their age, and we try to give them the same. Nothing dull or dry, no tedious moralisings, so easily skipped. Bright and interesting Continued Tales by clever story-writers, papers on Natural History, Old Customs, Remarkable Adventures, Scripture Questions, Enigmas, Puzzles, Poetry, and last, not least, the merry and outspoken Children in Council. The large sale of Sunshine shows how the young folk appreciate our efforts to please them. Boys and Girls in all parts of the world are our true and loving friends. May the circle of our child-friendship widen more and more till it includes all the children who have eyes to read, hearts to feel, and minds to understand. Wherever the sun shines on children—black, brown, yellow, or white—there Sunshine, of course, must be found. The Annual Volumes are excellent Gift-Books. 1/6, 2/-, 2/6.

LITTLE STAR. By the Same Editor. PRICE ONE PENNY MONTHLY.

A NEW Magazine for Little Children. Easy Words, Beautiful Pictures, Large Type.

A COLOURED FRONTISPIECE will be given with the January Magazine, but no extra charge will be made. Each Number next year will have a bright Cover. The Volumes are 1/6 boards, and 2/- cloth, gilt edges.

George Stoneman, 67, Paternoster-row, London. And all Booksellers and Newsvendors everywhere.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Bishop Burdon has appointed Rev. J. R. Wolfe, Archdeacon of Fuh-chau. Mr. Wolfe joined the Fuh-kien mission in 1861.

The Dowager Lady Sampson has given a donation of £2000 to the Church Society for Providing Homes for Waifs and Strays.

Mr. Eugene Stock, editorial secretary of the Church Missionary Society, makes a crushing reply to the advocates of Islamism, in a letter to The Times of Wednesday last week.

At St. Olave's Church, Southwark, the rector, Rev. Dr. Maguire, commenced a series of Advent evening services on Sunday week on "Four Characters from Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress.'"

The Church Army require the services of several hundred more men and women, the former to be trained as evangelists and the latter as mission nurses to labour among the poor. The Training Home is at 130, Edgware-road, W.

Referring to the recent attack on Christianity by Canon Taylor and others, Dr. Temple, Bishop of London, says the faith of missionaries of Christ should rest on what the Lord has done for his people during the centuries, and nothing should weaken their trust or discourage them in their grand and glorious work.

Rev. Robert Bruce, D.D., of Persia, said at a meeting of the Church Missionary Society, at Kensington last week, that so far from mission work among Mohamedans being a forlorn hope, he had the privilege of being acquainted with three Church of England clergymen who were once Mohamedans, and one of them had baptized fifty converts.

Rev. A. W. Jephson, vicar of St. John's, Waterloo-road, S.E., was, at the half-yearly meeting of the congregation on Monday evening last, presented with a gold watch and chain, and a purse containing over £130, subscribed for by some four hundred parishioners and friends, in token of appreciation of his earnest labours during the seven years he has been in the district. That Mr. Jephson has rendered himself beloved among all branches of the Christian Church was proved by the fact that among the subscribers and those on the platform were members of various Dissenting bodies.

CONGREGATIONAL.

A successful eight days' mission has been conducted in connection with the church at Rye by Mr. J. Barnabas Bain. Christians and the unconverted have alike received a rich spiritual blessing.

In contradiction of a statement published in our "Continental and Foreign Notes" on the authority of an American newspaper, we learn that it is incorrect that Rev. Narcisse Cyr has been invited to work in France in connection with the McAll Mission.

At Albion Chapel, Southampton, a series of "Special Services for the People" are held during the winter months. On Sunday week the pastor, Rev. S. G. Matthews, B.A., dwelt upon the condition of the unemployed, urging it as a duty to the Christian Church to "open its eyes to see and open its heart to feel what it should do in this matter."

PRESBYTERIAN.

The monthly lectures given by Rev. Peter Carmichael at Highbury are attracting attention.

The art students in Edinburgh University, at a meeting presided over by Professor Calderwood, have agreed to form a Christian association.

Mr. Hope Waddell Hogg, who is going to Egypt under the auspices of the American Missionary Society, was recently ordained by the Edinburgh U. P. Presbytery.

The Federal Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Australia, has resolved to signalise the centennial year of the British possession of Australia by some great evangelistic work.

Rev. J. W. Youngson, of the Church of Scotland Mission, Sealkote, Punjaub, India, reports the number of baptisms from the beginning of the year to October 24, as 451. These are direct gains from heathenism.

At a pleasant meeting at Glasgow recently, the wife of Bailie Lamberton was presented by the class of domestic servants, taught by her in the church at Pollokshields, with a handsomely bound Bible and a book of Meditations.

The Brondesbury congregation has celebrated its first anniversary by special services and a social gathering. The year has been so full of promise that there is great encouragement to proceed with the building of the church. The hall is filled every Sunday.

Inverness Presbytery of the Established Church of Scotland, encouraged by the success of last year's observance of a Mission Sunday, held another on Sunday week. The ministers of the different parishes exchanged pulpits, and urged the claims of home mission work upon the congregations.

Rev. J. A. B. Cook, English Presbyterian missionary at Singapore, has been seriously ill. He was ordered by his medical adviser to proceed to Poonah, in India, in the hope that the change might restore him to health. Mr. Cook has arrived in Poonah, and the voyage to Bombay greatly benefited him.

Rev. Wm. Logan, of Bloomgate U. P. Church, Lanark, has taken a new departure in order to reach the working classes, by starting a series of special Sabbath afternoon services, at which short evangelistic addresses are given and hymns sung. The experiment is highly successful, as is evidenced by the large and interested audiences of men and women.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

The Bunhill Fields Adult School Tract Society reports visits from January to October this year 85,400, or 885 weekly. More visitors are needed.

A United Conference has been held in the meeting-house, St. Ives (Hunts), of ministers, local preachers, and workers on (1) The ingathering of souls, and feeding, shepherding, and keeping them; (2) How to reach those outside the churches; (3) Mission work; (4) Individual consecration.

A Mexican Friend, Gomez Farias, has been imprisoned three days for refusing to assist in repairing a Roman Catholic chapel. In spite of the priests, the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor of Tamaulipas, and the Mayor of the city of Tula, send their children to the Friends' school. The Friends' semi-monthly paper replies to the bishops, and wins its way.

SALVATION ARMY.

A new barracks has been opened at Colnbrook.

The number of cadets in training at the London Homes is to be increased to 1000.

About one hundred officers will leave the Clapham Training Home at the beginning of January. Twenty-one of these go to South Africa.

In Sweden there are twenty-three corps, fifty officers and cadets in the field, and thirteen cadets in the Training Home. Other towns are ready for opening.

It is reported from Sweden that in spite of opposition and police hindrances the number of corps have been almost doubled, while soul-saving has been going on with wonderful success.

The "Jubilee Fifty" are, without a single exception, enjoying splendid health. Ten have been transferred to Ceylon. The language difficulty is being overcome by constant prayer and steady application. The progress they have already made in acquiring Tamil and Indian habits is extraordinary.

Commissioner Tucker has visited Ceylon, and is delighted with the progress of the work there. Nearly every station is advancing; drunkards, house-breakers, cattle-stealers, and the most desperate and disreputable characters are being converted. Buddhists of all classes are coming out boldly and confessing Christ, often suffering much persecution by so doing.

METHODIST.

The special services for the benefit of Scotch fishermen at Lowestoft during the fishing season have been concluded.

Rev. W. N. Barleycorn, a coloured missionary from Africa, is creating much interest in African missions in Primitive Methodist churches.

Rev. William Vivian, Methodist Free Church missionary, has arrived in Sierra Leone, and entered upon his labours with every prospect of success.

Rev. Thomas Moran, jun., of Tinahely, Ireland, has recently published a sermon in verse. It is founded on Isa. lxxxv. 10, and is pervaded by a warm evangelistic tone.

The question of the admission of women as lay delegates will come up at the next conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in America. Several women, including Miss Frances E. Willard, have been elected, and the question of their eligibility will no doubt give rise to considerable discussion. Hitherto the Conference has refused to license women as local preachers.

Rev. John Smith, of South Africa, has been visiting the French missionaries in Basutoland. On his way he preached in Dutch to the native congregation in the Primitive Methodist Mission Church at Rouxville, and as a result of the day's services fifteen persons professed conversion. Mr. Smith was greatly impressed and delighted with the efficiency and completeness of the educational and evangelistic work done by the French brethren.

BAPTIST.

Five students left Regent's Park College for active pastoral work at the end of last session.

Rev. Hugh D. Brown, of Dublin, will be the preacher at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday next.

The council of the Baptist Union meets on Tuesday next to take into consideration Mr. Spurgeon's resignation.

The Baptist Tabernacle at Auckland, New Zealand, with Rev. Thomas Spurgeon as pastor, has a membership of 745.

Out of the 155 Baptist ministers in London, 125 assembled at the recent meeting at Dalston, called to consider the "Down-Grade" question.

Miss Cassie Silvey, of Manchester, has been accepted for work in connection with the Congo Mission. Mrs. Silvey and Miss Edith Butcher will probably proceed to Africa in April or May next.

The Martyrs' Memorial Church at Beccles has withdrawn from the Baptist Union. Mr. Richard Cory, the well-known philanthropist of Cardiff, has also severed his connection with the Union.

At the annual meetings of the Suffolk Home Missionary Society it was reported that seventy preaching stations are supported by the society, and upwards of thirty others by individual churches.

A successful fourteen days' mission has been held at the Bromley-road Chapel, Lee, S.E. At the annual church meeting it was reported that during the year the membership has been more than doubled.

Rev. T. Vincent Tymms, Downs Chapel, Clapton, commenced a series of Sunday evening lectures on "Modern Thought" on Sunday week. His next lecture will be on December 18, and will be on "The New Theology."

A Gospel Band in connection with the Young Men's Bible Class of the East London Tabernacle has just been formed, the object being the preaching and singing the Gospel in chapels, mission-halls, &c. The Band is now prepared to accept engagements. All communications to be addressed to the secretary, Mr. R. A. Everett, 17, Caxton-street, Addington-road, Bow, E.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

Evangelistic services have been held in the Methodist Church, Antrim. The results were cheering.

The annual meeting of the Belfast Charitable Society was held on Tuesday week. The income last year was nearly £3000, and there are now 169 inmates.

It is proposed to establish two scholarships for ladies in Alexandra College, Dublin, in memory of the late Archbishop Trench, and also, if possible, to endow a professorship to be connected with his name.

The meetings for men which have been held on Saturday nights for several months past in St. George's Hall, Belfast, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., are being attended with the most encouraging results.

The first of a series of lectures by doctors on the Medical Aspect of Intemperance was delivered on Wednesday week to Donegal-square Methodist Church Temperance Society, Belfast, by Dr. Weir, of Dromore.

Mission services have been held in Stillorgan Episcopal Church by Rev. Joseph Potter, of Londonderry. A spirit of the deepest solemnity rested upon the congregations, which were very large, and it is believed much good has been done.

Addresses on mission work in China were delivered in Cork on Tuesday week by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor and Mr. T. W. Pigott. Mr. Taylor also addressed a meeting at Holywood on Friday evening, and in Belfast on Saturday evening, and is to address during the week meetings in several of the leading towns of Ulster.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Rev. Robert Scott, D.D., Dean of Rochester, one of the revisers of the New Testament, and well known as joint author, with Dean Liddell, of the Standard Greek Lexicon.—Rev. Henry Heys, of Manchester, for many years a minister of the Primitive Methodist Connexion.—Rev. Robert P. Hoctor, rector of Carnlough, an earnest evangelical, godly man.—Rev. Robert Gamble, Presbyterian minister of Castledawson, a devoted minister of the Gospel.—Mr. James Griffin, a leading member of the Methodist Church on the Drogheda Circuit.—Rev. F. Morell Holmes, for many years Congregational minister at Alton, Hants.—Rev. William Hazell, for over thirty years a Primitive Methodist minister, and one of the oldest ministers of the Connexion.—Rev. W. Jones, Methodist Free Church minister of Davenport, and for over fifty years in the ministry.—Rev. Duncan Morison, Free Church minister of Uig.—Mr. John Stewart, of Kilmarnock, who during the greater part of his life officiated as lay pastor of a small congregation that met in a schoolroom belonging to himself.—Rev. William Burnet, parish minister of Half-Morton, Dumfriesshire.

◆

SHELTERING HOMES, LIVERPOOL.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the friends and supporters of these Homes for Children was held last week in the Town Hall. The Mayor of Liverpool presided, supported by the Bishop of Liverpool, Rev. R. H. Lundie, the Earl of Aberdeen, Messrs. S. Williamson, M.P., S. Smith, M.P., &c.

The Mayor said that during the fourteen years which had elapsed since the Sheltering Homes were opened in May, 1873, each year had seen two, and sometimes three, bands of children taken from the streets, trained, outfitted, and sent to the Dominion of Canada, where they had received a warm and hearty welcome. The elder boys had been hired as "helps" on the farms, and the elder girls had been engaged for domestic service. Two hundred boys and girls were admitted yearly for training and teaching, previous to emigrating, and during the past year 135 had been placed in homes in Canada. He might add that about 10,000 street children had been fed and assisted in various ways at Christmas each year. Through the efforts of the ladies, £5000 was raised at the bazaar in 1884; but it had not been found sufficient to purchase a site and erect a commodious building, so that the work was in the position of being too much cramped for lack of suitable accommodation in which to house, train, and outfit seventy-five to one hundred girls and the same number of boys. It was now earnestly hoped by those who had this grand rescue work in hand that the ladies' efforts would be supplemented, and their hands strengthened in such a way as to enable them to get ere long what was so sadly needed by the charity—namely, a commodious and convenient Training Home, where poor little children, from the ages of four to fourteen, could be educated to habits of order, obedience, and cleanliness before proceeding to Canada. His worship then announced donations amounting to £860, with a further promise of £20 for five years from a friend.

Addresses followed from several speakers. The Homes are situated in Sugnall-street, Liverpool, Mrs. Birt being the directress.

SOLDIERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—On Friday, December 2, the members of the Hounslow branch held a public meeting in the Primitive Methodist Chapel, Staines-road. A very interesting meeting was addressed by Colonel Taylor, Rev., B. Scott, Major Michael, Rev. E. Bruce Pearson Major Thompson, and others. At the close of the meeting God answered prayer, for two young soldiers found the Saviour.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks.—H.A. R.S. M.G. A.R.F. A.W.B. T.R.P. A.T.S. J.J.N. M.A.P. J.T. J.W.B. E.P.H. A.L.S. J.W.C.F. K.H. E.W. C.R.G.P. L.A.B. W.T. M.E. J.E. M.E.S. A.H. A.M.G. S.H.F. A.B.K. J.A.S. M.H. M.I. W.H. S.A. E.A.D. A.M.T. R.C. W.B. M.E.T. S.O.C.G. H.E.H. W.F. A.R. J.P.F. W.T.F. T.L. C.D.J. J.T.W. R.W. A.W.W. G.E.H. J.L.M. A.W.S. G.H. W.C. A.J.B. A.W. W.G. J.O. J.F. F.J.T. J.C.H. G.A. G.S. W.C.A. M.C. J.B.A. J.B.B. S.C.J. R.W. L.T. F.B.M. J.W.P. E.B. G.F.F. H.S.N. F.G.A. E.A.B. J.B. A.H. K.F. H.C.L. T.P. A.J.B. I.R. G.K. G.R. J.P. C.M. A.S.D. C.A.W. A.R. W.J.S. E.W. E.A.S. W.D. F.H. J.C.T. S.H.F. M.M. J.C.W. W.H.R. W.H. P.T. J.C.A. H.D. T.D. W.T. A.S. H.M.G. T.A.F. J.F. M.C. S.R. M.B.G. W.M. J.A. R.L.B. A.C.B. P.K. V.J.C. J.M. A.W.C. H.R.H. R.A.E. A.W.W. H.R.S. H.M. J.L.M.

Applicants for Tracts.—C. D. Judd, Stirling House, Wells, Norfolk; F. P. Keen White, 62, Palmerston-road, Holloway, N.; J. Bilke, 17, Greyhound-road, Kensal Green; T. Hardy, 18, Brunswick-place, N. Brighton R. Miller, care of Messrs. Langsdorf & Co., 21, Mincing-lane, E.C.; F. G. Adams, 17, Canonbury-terrace, Canonbury, N.; A. Hazeldine, Dover Villa, 71, Upper Falkner-street, Gloucester; V. Wiles, Bishops Waltham, Hants; Mrs. Fifield, Chapel House, Pirbright, Woking; W. E. Bailey, 13, Shard-square, Peckham-park-road, Old Kent-rd., S.E.; G. Burton, Easter Cottage, Hailsham, Sussex; R. Bastable, Kilmington, Devon; Miss E. A. Davies, 85, Saxton-street, New Brompton, Chatham, Kent; F. C. Robinson, Main-street, Boyle, Ireland; E. A. Jackson, 18, Spenser-rd., South Hornsey, N.; G. Waight, Station-road, Earley, Reading; W. J. Smith, 55, Naylor-road, Peckham, S.E.; Mrs. Such, Horley, near Banbury; Miss E. Waskett, 7, Queen Anne-terrace, Battersea-park, S.W. (For Cabmen and Invalids); W. Foreman, 137, Green-lane-villa, New Evington, Leicester; W. Lippett, 1, Walker's-buildings, Lich-street, Worcester; T. Pearce, Gospel Hall, East Ferry-road, Poplar, E. (English and Russian); Miss J. E. Bing, 24, Russell-road, St. Ann's-rd., Stamford-hill, N.; Miss Elliott, Blennerville, Tralee.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most important that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

◆

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

IN ALSACE-LORRAINE, although the Protestant are only one-fifth of the population yet the secondary schools contain more Protestant than Catholic children

NIMES.—A three days' Conference, to be led by Pastor Theodore Monod, is announced for the beginning of December. The subjects for consideration are Law, Grace, Life.

SIMLA, PUNJAUB.—Rev. W. Carey, of the Baptist Mission here, writes:—This year I have baptized forty-three converts, and of the inquirers I hope to baptize a few more before the close of the year.

A MOVEMENT has been set on foot for presenting Rev. Dr. J. V. N. Talmage with a token of esteem and brotherly regard from Presbyterian missionaries at Amoy, in China, on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of his arrival there.

JAPAN.—Under Count Ito, the present Prime Minister of Japan, an institution for the higher education of native women is to be established at Tokio, with a branch at Ohosaka. Count Ito and the Governor of the latter city have each subscribed £2000, and eight English ladies and one gentleman are already at work.

PARIS.—The McAll Mission has opened several new halls at Paris, and in a few days halls will also be opened at St. Germain-en-Laye, Nantes (2nd hall), Antibes, Thiers, Sainte-Florence. The Church at Reims has opened two popular halls for evangelistic and social work, the whole expense of erection being borne by the Church.

REV. J. T. VINE has held a two weeks' mission in the Union Avenue Baptist Church, Paterson, New Jersey. The Lord has given much blessing with the word. From Paterson Mr. Vine went to the Baptist Church, Tottenville, Staten Island; afterwards he was to hold meetings during December in Baptist churches in the North-western part of the State of New York.

ENGLISH GOVERNESSES IN VIENNA.—The Home for English Governesses was opened here last week without ceremony, several governesses having already entered themselves on the list of inmates. It is very well situated in the centre of the town, and has a reading-room, to which other governesses besides those staying in the house have access, by paying a small subscription. The fund which was collected in honour of the Queen's Jubilee amounts to £10,000. The Institution is under the patronage of the Empress.

THE METHODISTS OF BROOKLYN have been engaged celebrating the centennial of Methodism in that city. From small beginnings, Methodism grew and spread until now there are fifty places of worship, including missions, with a membership of nearly fifteen thousand. Amid all this growth and prosperity there has arisen a new difficulty. The members of the older churches are moving further out, and their places are being filled by strangers, chiefly foreigners, of the poorer class, who do not attend any church, and over whom the Church has no control. Nothing can meet the case but earnest and vigorous mission work.

Forthcoming Meetings.

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., New Metal Exchange, Whittington-avenue, E.C.—December 12, 7 p.m., Gospel address by Captain Sherrard. Dec. 13, annual meeting, London Banks' Prayer Union, 5 30 p.m.

Conference Hall and Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sunday, December 11, 3 and 7 p.m., Rev. J. T. Butlin. Mon., Dec. 12, 7.30 p.m., meeting for the deepening of spiritual life, conducted by Rev. J. T. Butlin.

Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.—Sunday, at 3.45, Mr. E. J. Kennedy (men only): "The Road to Ruin"; 7 (public), Mr. H. Grattan Guinness. Mon., 8.30 p.m., Mr. Axel Gustafson on "The Drink Problem." Tues., 8 p.m., Rev. C. Moinet's workers' training-class.

Y.M.C.A., Burlington Hall, 23, Savile-row, W.—Friday, December 9, at 8.30, lecture by Rev. T. T. Waterman; subject—"Jesus Christ not the Production of His Age."

Wesleyan West Central Mission.—St. James's Hall: Fridays, at 12 noon, Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 7.30 p m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Sundays, 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Wardour Hall: Mondays, 8 p.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse. All seats free.

Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Meetings at Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W., every Friday, at 3.30. December 9, Rev. E. W. Moore; Dec. 16, Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Dr. McKilliam during December: Sundays, at 11 and 7; Wednesdays, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, 8 p.m.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday, Dec. 11, 11 a.m. and 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. W. Spencer Walton.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sunday, December 11, at 11 and 6.30, Mr. William Nobbs; week nights, at 8, Mr. William Dunn.

Christmas Letter Mission.—Annual meeting, Wed., December 14, 3 p.m., ladies' waiting-room, Mildmay Conference Hall. Those interested in the work are invited.

Friends' Meeting House, Mercers'-road, Holloway, N.—Conversational Bible-reading every Thursday, 8 p.m. Any friends will be heartily welcome.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N.—Sunday, Dec. 11, 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Mr. C. Russell Hurditch. Tuesday, Dec. 13, 7.30 p.m., lecture on Palestine by Rev. James Neil; subject—"Life in the Desert." Thursday, Dec. 15, 3 p.m., Bible-reading by Mr. G. H. Pember; subject—"The Jews."

Dr. Thain Davidson's monthly sermon to young men, Islington Presbyterian Church, Colebrooke-row, N., Sunday, December 11, 6.30 p.m.

Open-air Mission (West London Auxiliary).—Quarterly meeting, Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, Tuesday, December 13, 8 p.m.

House of Rest, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Friday, December 9, 7 p.m., meeting for the deepening of Spiritual Life"; tea at 6. Sunday, Dec. 11, 3.30 p.m., "The Forerunner's Witness to the Coming Christ" (John i. 29—34).

Professor Jules De Launay, of Paris, will lecture in the Powis Hall, Bayswater, W., on "The Catacombs of Rome," Monday and Tuesday, December 12 and 13, 7.30 p.m.

MR. GEORGE SOLTAU writes from Tasmania:—The work here goes on well. Conversions take place frequently, and our rescue work flourishes. The difficulties are many, and the hindrances as great as at home. The Colonies are no Edens in any sense, save that the serpent is there in full force and living power.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on special services at Hazelbury-Plucknett, from Dec. 4 to 18, to be conducted by Mr. John Bennett, of the Evangelisation Society.——For blessing on a mission at Folkestone, from Dec. 11 to 23, to be conducted by Mrs. Horton and Miss Parker.——For a week's services by Mr. Opie Rodway, at Oddfellows' Hall, Dowlais, commenced on Dec. 7; and for five days' services at Llanelly, to commence on Dec. 14.——For much blessing on meetings in Huntly, conducted by Mr. J. A. Smith.——For blessing on two weeks' services in Portmoak and Flockhouse, Fife, commenced on Dec. 4, being conducted by Mr. M. E. Steedman.——For blessing on a free Convalescent Home at Battersea-park.——For blessing on a mission in St. Stephen's, Battersea, shortly to be held by Rev. J. H. Haslam.——That God will send a man after his own heart to take charge of the British Sailors' Home, in Havre.

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Monday, December 5, 1887.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be ackowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—J.D.	1	0	0
Rev. Wm. Adamson, Old Ford—(Food for Poor) Mrs. S.	5	0	0
Work among Soldiers (Miss Daniell)—Rosa ..	5	0	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—C.	0	5	0
Field-lane Refuges & Ragged Schools—Knutsford	0	5	0
Gray's-yard Ragged Church and Schools—Knutsford, 5s.; M.S. £3 3s.	3	8	0
Chrstn. Community—Knutsford, 5s.; M.S. £1 1s.	1	6	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—Knutsford, 5s.; Lady G. 5s.; E.C. 2s.	0	12	0
Mr. Geo. Brealey (Personal Expenses)—S.O.B. ..	0	2	6
Midnight Meeting Movement—K.T.	0	5	0
Free Italian Church—Sympathy	0	3	0
Shaftesbury House, Margate (Special Furnishing)—M.S...	2	2	0
Y.W.C.A., Morley Rooms—M.S.	5	5	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Mittendorff)—"A Friend," £5; A.B. 5s.; Miss J.B. £2; M.S. £5	12	5	0
St. Paul's Medical Mission (Mrs. Griffith)—M.S..	1	1	0
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work—L.A.W.	1	0	0
London Samrtn. Soc., &c.—L.A.W. £1; F.T. 10s.	1	10	0
House of Rest (Miss Mason)—F.A.V.	0	10	0
Home of Industry—F.A.V. 10s.; A.J.C. £2; M.A. 2s.; A.C. 5s.	2	17	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—A.J.C.	2	0	0
Thames Church Mission—A.J.C. £1; M.E.B. 5s.	1	5	0
Gray's-yard Casuals—Lady G.	0	10	0
Dock Labourers (Mr. Coleman)—Lady G. 5s.; W.C.L. £2..	2	5	0
China Inland Mission—E.G. 10s.; M.J.H. £1; A.C. 5s.; M.S. £10	11	15	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—E.G. 10s.; Miss J.B. £2; Mrs. J. £1	3	10	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
Irish Church Colportage Society—H.M.A.S. ..	0	10	0
Friendless and Fallen—A.B. 5s.; A.W.D. £1 ..	1	5	0
Salvation Army—J.K. & J.F.A. 5s. (re Post-card)	0	5	0
Castle-yard Ragged Schools—Miss J.B.	2	0	0
Blind Chinese Scripture Readers—Miss J.B. ..	2	0	0
Free Breakfasts—Miss J.B.	2	3	11
Home for Worn-out Governesses, &c.—M.S. £2 2s.; A.G. £1	3	2	0
Working Women National Conference—M.S. ..	2	2	0
Latimer Church, Bow (Rev. J. W. Atkinson)—(Fuel, &c., for the Poor) Asbestos	0	1	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C.L.M.T...	1	0	0
London Female Bible Missions—C.L.M.T... ..	1	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—A.C. 5s.; A.G. 10s. ..	0	15	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—A.C. 5s.; Mrs. M.K. 10s.	0	15	0
Union Hall Mission—G.C. £6 6s.; M.S. £2 ..	8	6	0
Church Missionary Society—Mrs. M.K.	0	10	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—Mrs. M.K. ..	0	10	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—Mrs. M.K. ..	0	10	0
Irish Church Msns.—Mrs. M.K. 10s.; M.E.B. 5s.	0	15	0
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—Mrs. L H.	0	5	0
Figueras Mission (Pastor Rodriguez)—T.A.D. ..	10	0	0
Homes for Aged Poor—A.G.	0	10	0
Nine Elms Mission (Mrs. Meredith)—A.G.	0	10	0
Ladies' Samaritan Society — (Paralysed and Epileptic) A.G..	0	10	0
London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews—M.E.B.	0	10	0
Persecuted Jews (Syrian Colonisation Fund)—Poor Widow	0	1	0
Mission Work (Mr. Archibald G. Brown)—M.S..	10	0	0
Blind Pension Society, Southwark—M.S.	1	1	0
National Refuges (Mr. W. Williams)—M.S... ..	5	0	0
Christmas Help to the Poor—M.S...	20	0	0
Christian Colportage Association—M.S.	5	0	0
Colar Mission—M.S.	5	0	0
Railway Mission, 186, Aldersgate-street—M.S. ..	2	2	0
Evangelisation Society—M.S..	3	3	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—M.S.	20	0	0
Free Distribution of the Scriptures—M.S.	1	1	0
E. L. Trning. Inst. (Rev. H. G. Guinness)—M.S..	10	0	0
George-yard Ragged Schools, &c.—M.S.	5	5	0
Orphan Homes (Mrs. Ginever)—M.S.	5	0	0
Golden-lane Mission (Mr. Orsman)—M.S.	5	0	0
	£203	9

◆

[Advertisements.]

Sailors' Welcome Home—"Ena," A beautiful Parcel o Cuffs and Scripture Texts.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—Mr. E.A.B. £1 Miss E.M. 10s. 6d.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E.—The Committee grate fully acknowledge: One who has Known "The Joyles City" Thirty Years, £5. F. A. Bevan, Esq., Treasurer 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

Mission Hall, Monte Video—Miss M. Carlisle wishes t acknowledge receipt of £25 received through Mr Arrowsmith for above Hall, in response to appea made at Annual meeting of Children's Special Servic Mission in Exeter Hall.

THE NORTH-EAST LONDON GOSPEL MISSIONS.

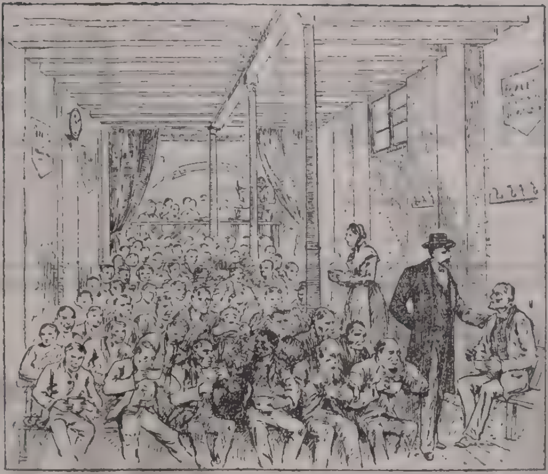
DOCK LABOURERS.

THE close touch three of our Gospel Halls in the far East of London brings us into with the sufferings of the poor, more especially the casual dock and other day labourers, enables us to realise how pitiable their present position is.

We have this week canvassed the streets near the Millwall and West India Docks, house by house, which has confirmed our knowledge as to the severe struggle large numbers are undergoing.

With a little already to hand we have done what we could in their homes, and have commenced giving the hungry men, many of whom have no homes, free meals.

We earnestly ask the prayerful and practical sympathy of the readers of "THE CHRISTIAN." It is our prayer that many may be led to hunger for the Bread of Life in this their hour of darkness and dire affliction, cheering tokens of which are not wanting.



FACTORY GIRLS.

WE need add little to what has been written lately to call forth warm and practical fellowship with efforts for the poor Match Factory Girls.

We are enlarging our available premises at Bow Common, so as to afford instant relief to cases of urgency. Under our new arrangements a lady will sleep on the premises and be at the service of these poor girls in illness, and be able to afford a temporary lodging for any whose circumstances may require it.

Among the last admissions to our FACTORY GIRLS' TRAINING HOME were two factory girls who, from destitution, had been sleeping through the late severe weather in empty houses in a disreputable street, living on the barest supplies, and only half clad.

We are commencing our free monthly teas and pleasant Gospel chats with these friendless lasses next week. Any help, personal or otherwise in this difficult work, would be most gratefully accepted.

Contributions would be thankfully received by our Bankers, Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster Buildings; or by

WILLIAM CHORLEY, Director,
2, Marquess Grove, Canonbury, London, N.

The Annual Report for 1887, with Balance Sheet, forwarded on application.

Hon. Auditors: Messrs. THEO. JONES, HILL & VELLACOTT, 1, FINSBURY CIRCUS, E.C.

THE EARLSWOOD ASYLUM for IDIOTS

has accommodation for 700 Patients.
THE PRESENT INCOME ENABLES the COMMITTEE to RECEIVE ONLY 5/0.
150 APPLICANTS are EARNESTLY SEEKING ADMISSION by ELECTION.
MANY OF THESE MUST BE DISAPPOINTED UNLESS FUNDS ARE FORTHCOMING.
CONTRIBUTIONS GRATEFULLY RECEIVED.
SUPERIOR PROVISION MADE for PRIVATE CASES on Payments regulated by the Board of Management.
Bankers—Messrs. Hoare, 37, Fleet-street, E.C.
H. GERARD HOARE, Esq., Treasurer.
JAMES DOWNING, Secretary.
Offices, 36, King William-street, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President.
HIS GRACE LORD PLUNKET, ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN.

Late President.
THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

Offices:—27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
And 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, Reports, &c., can be obtained on application to the Secretary,

CAPTAIN JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

International Bible-Reading Association

HAS enrolled 160,000 members during 1887. The Daily Scripture Portions illustrate the Sunday-school lesson. Branches formed in every Sunday-school, &c.; Subscription—ONE PENNY Annually. Members receive Card and Monthly "Hints" free. Branches in many of the Colonies and other Countries.

C. C. WATERS.
56, Old Bailey, London, E.C.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC.

Cantatas. Children's Operettas.
Services of Song. Carols.
Anthems. Men's Voice Carols.

Send for Catalogue to
J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 & 9, WARWICK LANE, E.C.

GRAY'S YARD RAGGED CHURCH and SCHOOLS,

James Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

President—F. A. BEVAN, ESQ., 54, LOMBARD STREET, E.C.

Funds are Urgently Needed to meet the current Expenses of this Institution. From 500 to 700 Casuals and Tramps are here supplied with Bread and Coffee every Sunday, after Gospel Services. Nearly £3 per week required for Food alone.

Contributions will be thankfully received and acknowledged by GEORGE HANBURY, Esq., Treasurer, 21, Portman-square, W.; PHILIP GOUGH, Esq., Hon. Sub-Treasurer, 33, Cambridge-street, Hyde-park, W.; or by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

"Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days."—ECCLES. xi. 1.

THE THAMES CHURCH MISSION.

INSTITUTED 1844.

31, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, London, E.C.,
Nov. 25, 1887.

CHRISTIAN FRIEND,

I want you to help us. For 43 years the Missionaries of our Society have been going from ship to ship and boat to boat on the Thames, taking to Sailors, Soldiers, Emigrants, Passengers, and others the blessed news of a full salvation from the guilt and power of sin through the all-atoning Blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. A volume would not contain the testimonies we have received to the value and reality of the work. The necessity for the work was well pointed out by the Bishop of London at our last Annual Meeting, when he said "that the men on the River would be, but for this Mission, outside the range of Christian influence."

Often our agents are afloat on the River in all sorts of weather for eight hours at a stretch, and even then they cannot cope with the large number of vessels that come in their way. We will not rest until every vessel has become a floating "House of God." Most earnestly do I plead with you to lend us a helping hand. Is it too much to ask you to spare a little for the Thames Church Mission? We spend £100 every week, and I can assure you that financial cares cause us serious anxiety. If it be objected that the work is too local, I may be permitted to remind you that there are thousands of men who come under our influence who leave in a few days for all parts of the world. No! not a local work. It is an international work.

Believe me to be,
Yours in the King's Cause,
H. BLOOMER,
Clerical Superintendent and Secretary.

Contributions may be sent to the care of Messrs. Morgan & Scott, Office of "The Christian."

Allen & Hanbury's "Perfected" COD-LIVER OIL

"Is as nearly tasteless as Cod-Liver Oil can be."—Lancet.
"Has almost the delicacy of salad oil."—British Medical Journal.
"No nauseous eructations follow after it is swallowed."—Medical Press.

It can be borne and digested by the most delicate; is the only oil which does not "repeat;" and for these reasons the most efficacious kind in use. In capsuled bottles only, at 1s. 4d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 9d., and 9s. Sold everywhere.

BYNIN LIQUID MALT forms a valuable adjunct to Cod-Liver Oil. Highly concentrated and nutritious. A powerful aid to digestion. It is a valuable aliment in Consumption and Wasting Diseases. In bottles at 1s. 9d. each.

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER

DINNER AND SUPPER DAINTIES.
CLEVER RECIPES are GIVEN AWAY!
With Every Packet of Bird's Custard Powder.
This admirable substitute for Eggs is most enjoyable with Tinned and Preserved Fruits, and provides an Endless Variety of Choice Dishes.

A GREAT LUXURY.
Sold Everywhere, in 6d. Boxes, sufficient for 3 Pints; 1s. Boxes, for 7 pints.

PUBLIC CAUTION.
Refuse Imitations of BIRD'S Choice, Delicious CUSTARD POWDER.

"PASTRY AND SWEETS," GRATIS.
The new and enlarged edition of this valuable little work, containing Practical Hints and Original Recipes for Tasty Dishes for the Dinner and Supper Table, will be sent, post-free, on receipt of Address, by ALFRED BIRD & SONS, Birmingham.
N.B.—Grocers can have copies for distribution among their customers on application.

See that you always get

JAMES' DOME BLACK LEAD

Used in the Royal Household.
E. JAMES & SONS, Sole Makers, PLYMOUTH.

Tonga

The SPECIFIC
FOR NEURALGIA.

"Tonga maintains its reputation in the treatment of Neuralgia."
Lancet.

"Invaluable in facial Neuralgia. Has proved effective in all those cases in which we have prescribed it."—Medical Press.

2/9, 4/6, & 11/. Of all Chemists.

KNITTERS.

Ladies can now obtain their Wools and Silks Direct from the Spinning Mills, making sure of Full Weight, and Fast Colours in all the Newest Tints, and Graduated Shades, and Saving both the Wholesale and Retail Profit—from Threepence in the Shilling. Ladies should see the beautiful Samples which are sent Free of Charge to any Address in Town or Country, and may be kept.

When writing please mention this Paper.

THE PROVIDENCE MILLS SPINNING CO.,
BRADFORD, YORKSHIRE, ENGLAND.

USED BY HER MAJESTY'S SERVANTS.
Gold Medals and Diplomas of Merit at all Exhibitions.

Needham's Polishing Paste

Dazzling Mirror Finish.

The reputation of nearly a century as the most reliable preparation for Cleaning and Brilliantly Polishing BRASS, COPPER, TIN, BRITANNIA METAL, PLATINOID, &c. Can be obtained Retail everywhere, in 6d. and 1s. Pots, 2d. and 1d. Tins, and 1d. Cardboard Boxes. Inventors and Sole Manufacturers—

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
LONDON OFFICE: St. George's House, Eastcheap, E.C.

ALWAYS ASK FOR

Cadbury's

Guaranteed PURE & SOLUBLE

Cocoa

(REGISTERED.)

Always examine your purchase. See that you have not been induced to accept an imitation, as the great esteem in which Cadbury's Cocoa is held has led to the most unscrupulous Copying of Labels and Packages, for the sake of extra profit.

Be wary of highly-coloured and drugged preparations offered as PURE Cocoa. Anything of a medicated character associated with Cocoa proclaims it at once to be an imposture.

PARIS DEPOT: 90, FAUBOURG ST. HONORÉ.

PEARS' SOAP

Fair White Hands.
Bright Clear Complexion.
Soft Healthful Skin.

[THE INLAND POSTAGE OF THIS ISSUE IS ONE PENNY.]

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.

No. 933.] LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1887. REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

MR. J. TOWNSEND TRENCH,

Land Agent and Evangelist.

AT the time of the great evangelistic work in Ireland, which followed the Revival of 1859, there were twelve young men of the name of Trench, all more or less related, who preached the Gospel throughout the country, and were known as the twelve apostles.

The subject of our sketch, Mr. J. TOWNSEND TRENCH, is the second son of the late William Stewart Trench, the author of "Realities of Irish Life," and was with his father in most of the scenes described in that book. When young he was an able oarsman, particularly in a heavy sea. He was once capsized with two men, neither of whom could swim, and was the means of saving their lives by keeping them both afloat until a boat arrived and picked them up, for which he got the medal of the Royal Humane Society.

In the "Realities of Irish Life" we find an extraordinary escapade of Mr. Townsend Trench's some years after the event we have recorded. He swam at midnight into a cave off the West Coast of Ireland, armed with a club, to attack some seals. He killed one, and brought it out to the boat where the rest of the party were waiting near Ballinskelligs Bay.

Some twenty-eight years ago, when Mr. Townsend Trench was quite a young man, a religious revival took place in the County Kerry, where he resided. At that time a man named Fernley, commission boatman, under Captain Kearney White, Commander of the Coastguard Division of Valencia, County Kerry, who was a zealous Christian, spoke to him about his careless life, and urged on him that the life beyond the grave ought to be his first concern. At a prayer-meeting at which Fernley took part he said that Jesus Christ came down to give pardon and eternal life to bad people. Mr. Trench asked him why he made so wrong a statement.

(From a Photograph by Mr. Lafayette, Dublin.)

Fernley inquired, "But whom, then, did He come to save?"

Mr. T. "Oh, good people, of course."

F. "But God says, 'There is none good.'"

Mr. T. "Oh, that is only quibbling, for you know that one is a deal worse than another."

F. "But, sir, God says, 'There is no difference, for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God.'"

Mr. T. "Why, man, if that were true, there would be salvation for me."

F. "And that is the very thing I am trying to tell you all this evening."

Not long after this, Mr. Trench wrote to his father to tell him that he had learned from the coastguardsman that pardon, life, and peace were to be had freely, and that he had sought and found these blessings. His father wrote back to say, "My dear boy, I rather think you must have found what I have been searching for during the past five and twenty years." After some time he too found that peace with God which the world can neither give nor take away, and took part in Gospel meetings for many years afterwards.

His brother, likewise, Thomas Weldon Trench, became a very active evangelist, and lost his life in his efforts to assist the suffering soldiers at the time of the Franco-German war.

Having followed the profession of his father, that of land agent, Mr. Trench, of course, found himself on many occasions in troublous waters. He is known to be one of the best shots with a revolver in Ireland. At the same time, we learn, upon inquiry, that he is by no means unpopular. The Irish tenants give him credit for consideration as well as firmness in the discharge of his difficult duties, and if "Paddy at home" is to be believed, he wins the heart of many of the peasantry by his skill and kindness as a doctor.

When the plan of campaign was adopted in Ireland, the estates under Mr. Trench's management did not altogether escape, particularly at a place called Luggacurran. There it appears that Mr. O'Brien (who is now in gaol) hoisted the campaign flag. The rental of that estate is about £7000 a year. The landlord has expended, since Mr. Trench became agent, £20,000 upon the improvement of that estate, and for the benefit of his tenants, and for this large expenditure he has made an addition to his rental of only £300 a year. The holdings are mostly large, and the tenants comfortable, paying rents varying from £20 to about £1000 a year. The houses are slated and well appointed, and the landlord offered his tenants an abatement of 20 per cent. But these terms the agitators refused. Mr. Kilbride, one of the leading tenants, who paid a rent of £700 a year, declared that they were able to pay but would not pay, on principle, as the tenants, and not the landlord, must decide what abatement should be given. Thereupon several of the tenants, who had refused the terms offered, were evicted, and this led to Mr. O'Brien declaring that he would go over and drive Lord Lansdowne out of Canada. But, as we all know, the Canadian feeling was entirely with Lord Lansdowne, and the only result of Mr. O'Brien's visit to Canada was enormously to increase Lord Lansdowne's popularity.

We have recently been in Ireland, and, although we have made considerable inquiry, we have not heard Mr. Trench spoken of as a harsh agent. On the contrary, we have heard that he is sometimes regarded by the landlords as somewhat too lenient, and inclined to side with the tenants. He never has been fired at, has never received a threatening letter, or even an insult. He never has had police protection, and to this hour rides his bicycle by day or night through Luggacurran, the scene of Mr. O'Brien's most violent agitation, as well as in all other parts of the country, particularly in County Kerry, where he principally resides.

In the midst of this strange career and occupation, Mr. Trench is an active evangelist. Gifted with a strong voice, a clear head, and excellent health, he preaches where invited, in barns, churches, or the open air.

Mr. Trench seems to be, strange to say, on excellent terms with the priests and their flocks. We heard recently a charcteristic story about him, and a priest in the County Wicklow for whom he is said to have entertained the greatest friendship. It appears that the priest had hurt his leg in getting off a car. Mr. Trench said he thought he could cure him. "God bless you, sir," said the priest; "I wish you would do so. I have suffered a great deal with it for a good while past."

Mr. T. "Well, let me see the leg."

Priest. "Here it is—very sore, and very painful."

Mr. T. "I will call on you at six this evening with an ointment."

He did so, applied the ointment with bandages steeped in cold water, and in a few days the leg was perfectly cured.

"My dear Trench," said the priest afterwards, "I pray for you every morning of my life." To which Mr. Trench replied, "I am very grateful, for I believe God will hear your prayers; and I believe that we shall meet in heaven."

Ireland is a strange but, in our opinion, a noble country, and her people a noble people. The great Daniel O'Connell stated many times in the House of Commons that she had "the finest pisantry in the world" (as he called them), for proof of which, without going to the army and navy, we have only to look nearer home, and Her Majesty has not in all her dominions a finer body of men than the Royal Irish Constabulary—of whom two-thirds are Roman Catholics, and the great majority of whom are taken from the Irish peasantry, and are sons of Irish farmers. We cannot but feel that if the resources of this noble country were developed, and that if this generous people had received more of that love from those in authority which God commands, and had a greater acquaintance with the riches of God's Word, there would be much less material poverty, and much less social disaffection, than prevail in the Ireland of 1887.

MR. J. DENHAM SMITH.

Mr. Townsend Trench has sent us the following letter, dated December 12:—

Passing through London, I went to see Mr. Denham Smith, and found him lying on a comfortable little couch in the room adjoining his bed-room. He looked very weak, but otherwise very much as heretofore, and kissed me most affectionately, and with his arm round my neck spoke so lovingly. I asked him to remember me most tenderly to my father, my brother, and others whom I named, and whom he would very soon see.

He said:—Yes, yes, dear fellow, what a meeting it will be. God fills me now with the thought that He was in Christ—in Christ—reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them. I was deep down in the mire when God said to me; "Now take all your failures, all your sins, and place them to the account of my dear Son. I will not impute them to you." I soon shall be on the shoreless continent of glory, and then I shall understand the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ. I have preached it, oh! so poorly. I have lived in it, and now I am going to occupy it, for He has gone to prepare a place for me. My life and work for Him are not what I rest on now; but on his blood. You know He is clothed in a vesture dipped in blood. But then people cannot understand that. I often think of the infatuated religious men who do not know Christ. They have plenty of religion, but no Christ. Now, do you understand about the cloak that was over the tabernacle. Those outside could see no beauty in it, but those inside saw the glory of the Lord.

And that dear fellow Gilbart [his son]. His love to me is wonderful. Three times every day he comes to see me, and he brought me so tenderly from the Isle of Wight; and then he had an ambulance to bring me here. He called it bringing me home, but this is not home. I am going home.

But be sure to preach the Gospel all you can, for only that is wisdom; the world thinks it folly, but on a deathbed it is wisdom. Now I rejoice more than ever in it. Do you remember those happy days long ago in Ireland when first we knew the power of the Gospel—those wondrous days? They began at Kingstown. And now one word of prayer. God bless you. Good-bye. It won't be long till we meet again.

◆

A WORKING GIRLS' TEA-PARTY.

In connection with the Homes for Working Girls in London, of which there are now eight, Mr. John Shrimpton arranges, once a year at least, that all the residents should meet together under one roof, for a social evening. On Wednesday evening, last week, Mrs. S. Hope Morley was the hostess. The gathering took place in Portman-rooms, Baker-street. Tea and coffee were served to successive arrivals of guests, from 7·30 to 8·30. Round the room were placed for display, pictures, plants, and mechanical figures; and various other methods were adopted for affording both profit and entertainment.

After prayer by Rev. M. Washington, musical performances were gone through which elicited much commendation from the guests. Before calling on Rev. M. Guy Pearse to speak, Mr. Hope Morley, on behalf of his wife, tendered to the guests some hearty words of welcome. Mr. Pearse spoke briefly and tersely. He had never, he said, been in any place that made one feel so lonely as in London. Nowhere else had he felt more need for the presence and help of Jesus Christ. He went on to tell about a Cornishman whom he had met, and from whom he had heard a good story about his wife's conversion. When this Cornishman was brought to the Lord, the Spirit was likewise striving with his wife; but she was "sort of contrairy," though she wanted to have the joy of salvation. When Anthony—that was the Cornishman's name—came to be filled with joy and peace, his wife seemed to have set herself to see how much vexation he could bear. Anthony prayed that he might be made the means of showing to her what God's grace could do. In old times he was a man with a temper, and she knew then just how far she could go. When she became what Anthony called "aggravokable," he used, after his conversion, to "look love" at her, and breathe the prayer, "Lord, show what thy grace can do." He tried to serve her in all manner of ways; but, the more he did the more "aggravokable" she became. One evening he reached home somewhat late, from a Gospel meeting, and found the door shut and bolted. Putting up a prayer for help, he quietly went and leaned on a hedge. "Jesus came and leaned with him, and he felt like praising the Lord the whole time." At half-past two his wife appeared, like an apparition, threw herself at his feet, and asked his forgiveness. He said there was nothing in his heart but love towards her. They went in, knelt down together, and "the dear Lord put his grace in Susan's heart," and they had been "werry comfortable" ever since.

Dr. Sinclair Paterson, in a piquant address, told the story of two spiritual births he had witnessed in a church during a revival in Glasgow. The great question, he urged, is that we should be born from above. The addresses were listened to with profound attention, and the whole proceedings, which concluded with the singing of a hymn at a late hour, were full o interest and were manifestly impressive.

PAU.—The work amongst the Spaniards ha steadily progressed under the direction of Seño Toribio de la Cruz. There are now two Sunday schools, one in Jurançon, and one in the town o Pau, numbering between seventy to eighty children There are meetings of some kind almost every da of the week. The proposal to start a day schoo has been relinquished for want of funds. Any in formation will gladly be given by Monsieur Pasteur Pozzi, Au Presbytère, Passage de Ségure Pau, France.

"UNSEEN FORCES."

AN ADDRESS

By Mr. J. TOWNSEND TRENCH,

At the Christian Union Buildings, Dublin.

Man's instinct and man's reason combine to persuade him that some Security of Tenure beyond the grave, some prospect of a happiness to be prolonged beyond this miserable world, is, indeed, desirable, and, if it be within the range of practical politics, is worthy of man's best energies to attain. This is not a question of ecclesiastical preferences, or of doctrinal hair-splitting, but of practical and vital interest to the individual, the family, and the nation. For if in this life only men have hope, sin-stricken man is, of all God's creatures, the most miserable.

Now there can be no doubt that very brilliant prospects and possibilities are held out in that Book which professing Christians pretend to revere, but actually disregard in too many cases. For if clever men of business seriously believed, as they believe in earthly politics or speculations, that beyond the grave they must face the alternative of the doom of perdition or the rapture of paradise, most unquestionably their best energies would at once—yes, now and at once—be directed to obtaining a place in heaven. "In my Father's house are many mansions," said Christ, and "I go to prepare a place for you." Half an acre in heaven would be better worth having than the best landed property in the whole world.

"That's all rubbish," says one. "That man is a fanatic," says another. Well, if that is all rubbish, why do you wish to see your children going to church, and your wife going to the sacrament? Do you call it wise, manly, or logical, to educate them in what you candidly believe is a fanatical delusion? Your position is unworthy of your manhood—by the laws of logic and morality it stands self-condemned.

The realisation of the prospects held out to those who repent and believe the Gospel, however, depends upon the unseen forces at God's command, to give his promises effect—his promises, including resurrection, judgment, and grace. And the achievements of Divine power in the past and the present are God's earnest to man that He is able and willing to fulfil the remainder of the drama as disclosed in the Scriptures.

And, first, let us look at resurrection. It may fairly be asked, how can a corpse be raised in life and beauty? But Christ has solved that problem, during the forty days that He appeared in his resurrection body to many witnesses. Yet some will say, "That evidence is remote and obscure. Is there nothing newer to point to?" Well, yes. There are God's witnesses dressed in red, white, and blue. Come, ye lovely witnesses, and speak to this people. What hast thou to say, bright rose? Thou sayest, "All the long winter my leaves were fallen and dead, my stalk looked brown and withered, but in spring I put forth my powers that for many months had been dead. I selected from sun and earth those rays of exquisite red and particles that could frame a flower. I drew them by my roots, and inhaled them through my stalk. I distributed and placed those atoms in the form of a rose-bud. I painted my leaves, and at length bloomed in perfection, and I utilised the materials in the ground to fill the air with perfume. And all this I did by Divine power, given to raise me from the dead, and I bloom to-day a glad witness for the God of resurrection."

And what hast thou to say, thou lily of the valley? "I speak because my Master has said, 'Consider the lilies of the field.' I was but a little brown bulb, ugly and worthless; when spring's resurrection breezes sounded in mine ears, I awoke from winter's slumber; I turned aside the sods that formed my grave; I burst forth from my little tomb, and, clothed in white raiment, I stand, to-day, a glad witness for the God of resurrection."

And what hast thou to say, sweet bluebell? "I lay during a long winter's gloom buried beneath yon wooded glen; but at length I was awaked from the dead by the resurrection songs of the spring birds; I arose in new life and power; and now my little blue bells ring the praises of the God of resurrection."

Thank you, sweet and blessed witnesses of God's power. It is no greater miracle that He should raise his saints in celestial bodies than that He should raise you robed in red, white, and blue.

But, again. What witnesses have we of his judgments? Listen, as we hear Noah tell of the flood: when for 120 years he preached righteousness to a people that would not hear; and the flood came and swept them all away.

Listen to Nebuchadnezzar, who was God's servant to carry captive rebellious Judah after centuries of warning.

Listen to Titus, who was sent by God to destroy Jerusalem when it had refused the appeals of Jesus Christ, and crucified the Son of God.

What say the two angels that smote sinful Sodom? What says the angel that smote the soldiers of Sennacherib? What say the horses and chariots of fire that protected Elisha from the hand of the king of Syria?

Yes. The judgments of the past on sinful man are enough to warn him against defying the Almighty to put his threats against the impenitent into execution.

But, again, what evidence have we that the promises held out by the riches of his grace will ever be fulfilled at the other side of the grave to those who accept of his love, and yield their hearts wholly to Him here? We hear of a mansion beyond the sky; we hear of a loving welcome; we hear of an inheritance commensurate only with the confines of the universe; we hear of crowns to be given to those who are saved by free grace in recognition of service rendered here below; we hear of harps that will make all heaven ring as we sing the new song. The question for men of business is this—Are these lying snares, empty shams, or glories that will certainly be realised by those who come to the foot of the cross to obtain the pardon of their sins, resolved to yield their whole life, body, soul, and spirit, to Him that was and is despised and rejected of men?

Now, as to what God has prepared for them that love Him; let us look at what He has already done. That extraordinary personage who revolutionised the religions of the world, who overthrew the heathen gods, and superseded the Jewish organisation, came down to deliver man. Came down from where? No astronomer can discover where heaven is. But from heaven's height, from heaven's music, from heaven's royal throne, He came down to this wretched world of sin and tears, from the throne to the manger, from the manger to the mission field, from the mission field to blood-stained Calvary. Ah! there is a love that many waters cannot quench. Men of business, He lays that love at your feet; men of business, if you turn your back on Jesus Christ; men of business, if you think yourselves too clever to become whole-hearted Christians, what will be the verdict hereafter of an assembled universe? Will there be one voice, from the worm of the earth to the seraph in heaven, to justify your career in being a sham Christian, and actually proud of being only an empty professor?

But it is not too late. Pardon and life are free to all who seek through Him salvation. Men and women here to-day, God has blessed you with many advantages, and not in vain, for many have turned from sin to God; have come as true penitents; have let the dear Master come in and rule supreme in their hearts; have appropriated by faith the saving efficacy of his atoning sacrifice; but many have not. Men and women, I nail you to the wall with that question: Have you got eternal life? or have you not? If not, you had better become to-day a participator in the riches of his grace, and a confessor of Christ before men. You ask me how. I reply in the words of the Master that, as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so was the Son of Man lifted up upon the cross, "that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Beyond these chilling winds and cloudy skies,
  Beyond death's gloomy portal,
There is a land where beauty never dies,
  And love becomes immortal.

QUEENSLAND KANAKA MISSION.

A correspondent sends an account of a work lately begun among the South Sea Islanders in Queensland. He says that a great number of these people are employed on the sugar plantations in Queensland. They are engaged for a period of three years, when they usually return to their islands, and as in the district of Bundaberg alone there are over 2,000 islanders, there is ample opportunity of spreading the glad tidings of the Gospel among them.

On going to Bundaberg about five years ago, Miss F. Young began a class on Sundays and found the "Boys," as they are called, very bright and eager to learn. There is a very earnest and devoted missionary, Mr. C. F. Johnson, at work, and another coming. There are nine classes held on various plantations every week, with an average attendance of about thirty-two at each, and God is most graciously working in the hearts of many. Humanly speaking the work is very difficult. Most of the "Boys" are in utter gross darkness; some are very dull, others can only understand a few words of English. The time is short, with so much to learn; and many return to Islands where there are no missionaries and no prospect of obtaining any for years to come.

Mrs. Arthur Brown, St. Elmo, Tunbridge Wells, is at present acting as hon. treasurer in England, and will be glad to give further information about the work.

WORKING MEN AND WINTER EVENINGS.—Mr. W. Catlin, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, writes, urging that, as a counter attraction to the public-house during the dark winter evenings, pleasant and profitable entertainments should be arranged for, with the aid of the magic lantern. Gospel subjects may easily be introduced, in order to make the entertainments a means of grace as well as a preservative from evil.

FROM LONDON TO BOMBAY.

BY A SECOND-CLASS PASSENGER.

The human freight of an ocean steamship is a miniature world in its representation of all sorts and conditions of people. Such was emphatically the case in reference to the P. and O. steamship Coromandel, on its latest voyage to the East. Our population ranged in social rank from a grand-daughter of Queen Victoria to an Indian ayah.

Our own little party stood the adieus of many friends bravely, conscious that in leaving our native land we were about our Father's business. However far we might travel, we should never get outside the bound of his dominions, nor beyond his loving presence and care.

The day we started was a Thursday. I was kept awake for some time at night, not so much by the excitement of the few previous hours, and the strangeness of my surroundings, as by the groans and exclamations of a well-educated young man in the next cabin to mine, who had come on board raving drunk. As he sobered down a little he seemed to realise his folly and sin with some acuteness. "My God, my Father, while I stray," was one of the exclamations that fell from him in a tone, as I thought, of mingled remorse and anguish. He told the fellow-occupant of his cabin that he wished the ship would sink, a wish which, to my surprise, his new acquaintance immediately echoed! The first mentioned was evidently not making a voyage of this kind for the first time. I thought of the marvellous infatuation and inconsistency of some parents who teach their boys in childhood to pray, "Lead us not into temptation," and then in early manhood send them forth to far-off lands, unsaved, where there are few moral restraints and many temptations, and all for the mere sake of advancing their worldly interests. The very heathen are presently cursed by their presence. Viewed in the light of eternity, it would be better for the boys to sweep crossings at home. "They that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition."

The following forenoon I was delighted to hear the piano in the second-class saloon, under the skilful fingers of a young lady, ring with a familiar melody from "Sacred Songs and Solos." That tune was a refreshing reminder of "the fellowship of kindred minds," and of the true brotherhood of the disciples of the Lord. I was busy on a literary task then, so no word was said. The next day I made the usual discovery that I was not on "mother earth," and was thankful that I felt no worse. But when the same hands were making the piano tuneful immediately after breakfast on Sunday morning, I said, "Do you know 'Take my life, and let it be'?" I wish Miss Havergal could have seen the look of pleasure which flushed the face of her Christian sister (the family in heaven and on earth are one), as she replied, and caused the piano to voice forth the soul-stirring music of that hymn of consecration, accompanied by the vocal utterances of a little band that had now gathered around.

At a quarter past eleven o'clock there was service in the first-class saloon. Having often heard of the cold formalism that is frequently met with on such occasions on board ship, I went to it with no great expectations. I was agreeably disappointed. The preacher was Rev. G. C. Grubb, an Irish clergyman, one of the deputation going out to India and Ceylon from the Church Missionary Society, to conduct a four months' mission at its mission centres. Other members of the deputation were on board the Khedive, which followed us within an hour from London, bound for Madras. Mr. Grubb's sermon was a powerful setting forth of evangelical truth. There was nothing of the "down-grade" about it. As Mr. Grubb insisted upon the fundamental necessity of the new birth, the forgiveness of sin only through the atoning sacrifice on Calvary, and upon personal holiness without which no man shall see God, my lips could not refrain from an occasional exclamation of praise that was not in the order of service as laid down in the Book of Common Prayer.

I had been thinking of holding a meeting in the second-class saloon in the afternoon, but as Mr. Grubb announced that he would preach there in the evening, I felt myself relieved from what I otherwise should have regarded as a duty. There were several protests against Mr. Grubb's anticipated visit on the part of the card-players among my fellow-passengers, and some ostentatiously announced that the service would be favoured by their absence. But Mr. Grubb had a good number of listeners as he fervently enforced the subject of the morning; and perhaps not the least attentive were the aforesaid absentees, who stood on deck around the open hatchway by which the saloon was ventilated, and who could there hear every word.

We reached the "Rock," as Gibraltar is familiarly called, about eight o'clock in the morning of the fifth day out. It did not present such a barren appearance as I had anticipated. The ship did not remain here many minutes. The agent of the P. and O. Company came off to us in a tiny boat, and, having received from the captain a satisfactory answer to the question, "Have you had any deaths or sickness on board?" he said he had no instructions for us, and off we started into the blue waters of the Mediterranean. I could not help feeling a peculiar interest in this land-bounded sea, the scene of the missionary voyages of the Apostle Paul; nor forbear looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to seeing Malta, our next stopping-place, where the great Apostle to the Gentiles was so hospitably treated by Publius, the chief man of the island, and by the inhabitants generally, on the occasion of his shipwreck.

But such thoughts were speedily interfered with by the rising of a storm, which will ever cause me to read with an experimental interest Acts xxvii. Our ship was a leviathan compared with that in which the Apostle sailed, but it was none too large nor strong to ride safely through the tempest which for two days raged around us. The hollow mirth of the godless among the passengers had now departed, and doubtless not a few envied the trustful calmness of those to whom "the worst that could happen" would be but a translation from the storms of time to the calm of eternity.

Where loyal hearts and true
  Stand ever in the light,
All rapture through and through,
  In God's most holy sight.

Even the officers of the ship, who are usually given to make light of storms, confessed to the exceptional severity of this one; and on riding into the harbour of Valetta, at Malta, we found our companion vessel, the Khedive, which had just arrived along with the P. and O. steamship Massilia, bound for Australia, was not without outward evidence of the tempest through which she had carried her precious freight, including not only the majority of the Church Missionary Society's special missioners for India, but also a company of ten or eleven elect ladies going out as ambassadors for Christ to the great Empire of China, under the auspices of the China Inland Mission, and about forty other missionaries.

The storm abated before we reached the quiet harbour of Valetta on Saturday morning, and we, therefore, had a good opportunity of viewing, in passing, the traditional and probable bay where "two seas met," where Paul and his fellow-voyagers, on the wreck of their vessel, some swimming, and the rest on boards or broken pieces of the ship "escaped all safe to land." Being my first visit to any of the scenes of sacred history, it seemed inexpressibly strange to be actually looking upon a spot about which I had read from the days when I first spelled out the stories of the Book of books at my mother's knee.

Valetta itself, the principal town of Malta, is much larger and more picturesque than I had been led to suppose. It wears quite an Eastern aspect. The houses, built of a cream-coloured stone, are square and flat-roofed, many with curious-looking bay windows projecting from the upper stories. A number of streets run steeply up-hill, so as to necessitate the ascent by steps. Such was Valetta, as viewed from the spacious harbour; for, in consequence of cholera having been prevalent, quarantine regulations were in force. No passengers were allowed to land, except those who had arrived at their destination. Each of the many semi-gondola-looking little boats in the harbour had a quarantine officer on board to prevent any personal contact between their occupants and the passengers on the ships. The steps were let down on each side of our vessel, and we could talk to the Maltese, but even relatives could not shake hands with each other. Princess Louis of Battenberg with her child went off the ship here. Her husband came in a boat to meet her, but even he was not allowed to board the ship.

The strictness of the quarantine regulations to prevent infection were very striking. How I wished, as I stood on the deck and watched, that the children of light would be equally careful, and heed God's call to keep up a perpetual quarantine against the infection of evil (2 Cor. vi. 14—18). It is not fellowship with God, but the contaminating fellowship with evil, that causes the astounding paradox of those who name the name of the crucified Saviour to defend the soul-destroying traffic in drink and opium, and to grieve the Holy Spirit by regarding with indifference or favour the official degradation of heathen women that their more guilty paramours may be protected in that sin against which God in the Bible not so much speaks as thunders. "Be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing." "Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils." "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them."

Our next stopping-place was Port Said, at the entrance to the Suez Canal. There seemed to be a concensus of opinion on board that this town is one of the most wicked places on the face of the earth, where is congregated the scum of many nations. It owes its material prosperity to the Canal. Before that was constructed it was a mere village. Its appearance is that of a town of mushroom growth, which a good hurricane might sweep away.

The sole industry of Port Said, beyond ministering to the passing wants, fancies, and follies of travellers, appears to be the loading of steamships with coal, which is brought from Cardiff and other English ports for that purpose. We arrived just as the sun was setting; and the coaling of our vessel was an animated and curious scene, indeed. Coal barges were soon moored on both sides of the ship, on each of which were two large hanging iron baskets, open-grated, from which blazed the light of a flaming coal fire. The barges were thickly covered with Arabs, who swarmed in single file up steep planks to our coal shoots, carrying flag baskets on their shoulders, each holding about half a hundredweight. Every Arab seemed to be possessed with a marvellous gift of speech, which not even clouds of coal dust could hold in check. The sound was as weird as the sight. Whether the noise acted as a stimulant, I cannot say, but in this fashion about 200 tons were taken on board in three hours.

(To be concluded.)

YOUNG WOMEN IN NEW ORLEANS.—A good work was commenced by Mrs. M. M. Wolfe over three years ago, and is still continued at 90, Pleasant-street, in this city. The special object is that of reclaiming young women from evil paths. Mrs. Wolfe writes:—Deceivers are continually luring their young victims to this city, and young girls are daily flocking here to hide their shame. We confine our aid to young women and girls who have been deceived, or who have made their first misstep, and to those who are in danger of being led astray. Many have been brought to the light and saved from utter abandonment or suicide. The Home is too small to accommodate all who need its shelter.

A SIGNAL OF DISTRESS

Dear Readers of "The Christian,"

We are in peculiarly sharp straits just now, so that I am reluctantly compelled by dint of pressing necessities to entreat your help in behalf of the 250 waifs and strays cared for in Christ's name in our Homes.

Our Home here is the most central one in the Metropolis. Its doors are open day and night to any homeless boy. No votes, subscribers' letters, stipulated payments, &c., are required. Antecedents, however dark, never close this door of hope against a boy who appears truly anxious to do better.

Orphan, homeless, starving, ragged, erring criminal boys—social wreckage drifting on the troubled sea of London street-life—find here, not a passing relief (a hearty meal that leaves them as hungry as ever in a few hours, or just a single night's lodging, to wake up in the morning and find themselves shelterless wanderers), but

HOME, HAPPINESS, AND HOPE

—all the enduring benefits which we associate with Christian home-life, bodily comfort, mental development, and prayerful Scriptural training in the nurture and admonition of the Lord—with, by and by, a thorough good start in life in some honest, remunerative calling, or Emigration to Canada, with settlement and careful supervision in some respectable, prosperous homestead through our Distributing Home in Toronto.

This is my 16th winter of Christian work amongst the street-arabs of our great City. I can look back with an overflowing heart upon the many hundreds who have been rescued from misery and sin these past years. But as I think of the possibilities of another vigorous comprehensive winter campaign, I am filled with an intense longing to gather in hundreds more of our juvenile home-heathen, to enjoy that godliness which is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life that now is, and that which is to come.

Will you help me in either of the following ways?—

(a) By sending some pecuniary token of your sympathy in the work, and your loving interest in "Nobody's Boys." Cheques crossed "London and County Bank."

(b) By sending some supplies of food, tea, sugar, cocoa, rice, oatmeal, flour, potatoes, fruit, jam, or any other articles that your knowledge of boy-nature at Christmas may suggest.

(c) By obtaining from me a Collecting Card to gather small sums from your friends and neighbours at this season, when so many are disposed to liberally consider the needs of the poor.

(d) By sending any left-off clothes that may be filling up room in your wardrobes, when it might be covering some deserving poor persons against the chill of winter. Men's, women's, boys' and girls' apparel, boots, shoes, &c., of every kind, will be most acceptable for careful distribution, especially amongst the "household of faith."

I remain, dear Friends,

Your Companion in labour,

The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

J. W. C. Fegan

THE COW CROSS MISSION.

Under the General Superintendence of

MR. WILLIAM CATLIN.

24th ANNUAL APPEAL.

This Mission has for its primary object the preaching of the Gospel in the Mission Hall, and in adjacent Factories, Hospitals, Workhouses, Prisons, Public Houses, in Open Air, by the Sale of Bibles, and reading aloud the Word of God in great thoroughfares; by Cottage Meetings and House-to House visitation; also Bible Readings, Mothers' Meetings, Temperance Lectures, Sunday and Week Evening Instruction to the Inhabitants of the parish of Clerkenwell, which has a population of 70,000 souls.

The efforts of the Mission are conducted under the general supervision of well-known Christian Friends, on purely undenominational principles.

The prayerful sympathy and pecuniary help of the people of God are greatly needed at this moment, and are earnestly appealed to, on behalf of this thoroughly Evangelistic work, that it may continue, as in past years, to be a means of spiritual blessing to perishing sinners, and that help in temporal things may not be lacking for the sick poor during the inclement season of Winter. It is sincerely to be hoped that through such help we may be enabled to continue our Halfpenny Dinners to the thousands of poor little children who will doubtless crowd in upon us till the second week in March.

A SPECIAL APPEAL.

"Retiring poverty still hides its head," and must be sought out to be relieved. We are particularly anxious to provide a plain but substantial dinner for a certain number of poor families, well known to us, especially those of the "household of faith," on Christmas Day at their own homes; also during the first week of the New Year, to give our Sunday School and Band of Hope Children an extra dinner of Roast Beef and Plum Pudding, and some articles of Warm Winter Clothing, &c.

Contributions will be thankfully received at the Office of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.; at the Office of WORD AND WORK, 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.; by Mr. G. KIRKHAM, 15, Beresford-road, Highbury, N.; Mr. F. NEWTH, 44, Percival-street, Clerkenwell, E.C.; also by

Yours obediently in the Lord Jesus,
WILLIAM CATLIN,
Gen. Supt.

Collecting Cards on application.

17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London, N, to whom all parcels should be addressed.

Post Office Orders to be made payable at Amwell-street Post Office, Pentonville. Cheques to be crossed "The London Joint Stock" Bank.

SPECIAL APPEAL FOR

The London Samaritan Society and Homerton Mission.

ITS CHIEF OBJECTS.

To provide Breakfasts, Soup Dinners, and Suppers to the Destitute Poor in all parts of London.
To provide Dinners, Boots, and Clothing to Destitute Children.
To provide Lodgings and Employment to the Destitute Poor.
To provide Convalescent Homes at Sandgate, Bournemouth, and Brighton for Men, Women, and Children from all parts of the Kingdom.
To provide Tickets for Coal, Bread, Grocery, Lodgings, &c. These Tickets are available in any part of London and its Suburbs.
To Assist intending Emigrants by Loans or otherwise.

A GLIMPSE of SOME OF THE WAYS in which THE SOCIETY is PROVIDED WITH FUNDS.

WE rejoice greatly that in such circumstances the hearts of many in all parts of the land, and in all ranks of society, from the titled and noble, to the poor widow; of all ages, from the dear old saint tottering to her grave, to the tiniest child, have been stirred to help the work. The following few extracts will illustrate the varied circumstances under which money has been sent:—

"It was the wish of my dear departed sister I should send you £50 of her money. I enclose it herewith. S. A. Y."

"Having no spare money at the moment, I send you a valuable brooch, which should realise £30. D. L."

"Caroline ———'s farewell gift (£1). She is fast approaching her heavenly home."

"This is one-eleventh of all the cash I possess, I trust that, like the 'loaves and fishes,' it will soon be so multiplied by the donations of those who have enough and to spare, that you may be enabled to feed thousands and still have something left. S. M."

"Enclosed is P.O.O. for 12s., collected amongst my fellow-servants for your work. A. E. H."

"Cottage Garden Show Prizes.—Cabbages (first), 3s.; marrows (first), 3s.; geranium (second), 1s.; potatoes (second), 2s.; cultivation of garden, 10s.—19s.; 2s. added, £1 1s. Please to receive cheque as above for children's outing. W. G."

A hospital nurse writes:—"The enclosed was collected amongst our patients. E. M."

"I enclose £2 17s. 4d., collected by the girls in our Sunday-school. M. C."

"Miss B—— has pleasure in sending a small contribution from her mothers' meeting."

"I enclose 10s. for your Convalescent Home. It is all I can afford, being a poor crippled widow, with a very small income...Praying the Lord may give a sufficiency for all your needs, L. P."

From the Children's Letters we extract the following:—

A very little boy addresses his letter to the poor children we help:—"My dear Children,—I have saved up six market pennies for you to have some dinner on Christmas Day; and my sister Beatrice has sent 6d., which she had given to her yesterday. With kind love, STANLEY W."

"I send you the contents of my box, hoping it may bring a little sunshine in a few little hearts. ANN A."

"Mamma has given me 2s. 6d. for a birthday present. I send you a shilling of it, and will try and collect some more. BERTIE H——."

"I send you 4s. more for the poor children, collected by my children. M. E. T. S."

"My sister Rose and I send you the enclosed for your free breakfasts; it is from the sale of our rabbits. A. M. P."

"My little daughters saw your appeal, and said they would like to help. The youngest has collected 11s. 6d. in small sums. In addition they have got up a 'juvenile bazaar,' just held in the vicarage, and have realised £1 11s. for your work. G. T. B."

"I enclose 10s. towards the free breakfasts, being a collection made by our choir boys. M. D."

"I enclose 12s. sent by the boys in this house (a master's house in a public school) for your work. E. J. E."

"My little son has collected 15s. 7d. for your work, and 2s. 7d. is taken from the box of 'little Elsie,' now taken to be with Jesus. I felt her money so precious, we could not put it to a holier use than in providing for some of Christ's little ones. F. P.

Subscriptions and Donations will be most gratefully received by Mr. JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-street, Homerton, London, E.
(Please state title or usual style of postal address—Rev., Col., Mr., Mrs. or Miss, &c.)

Cheques and Drafts to be crossed ——— & Co. ——— P.O. Orders to be drawn on General Post Office.

Donations for the London Samaritan Society are also received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.; the Bankers, LONDON & COUNTY BANK, Amhurst-road, Hackney, London, E.; and by the Auditors, Messrs. JOSIAH BEDDOW & SON, Chartered Accountants, 2, Gresham-buildings, Basinghall-street, London, E.C.

DAILY LIGHT ON THE DAILY PATH.
IN THE VERY WORDS OF SCRIPTURE.
Two Volumes. Morning Hour, and Evening Hour. Sold separately or in sets.
"These are very precious little books, and few more suitable gifts could be found."—Christian.
New Edition, with red lines—a very handsome volume. Prices from 1s. 9d. Small Edition, each volume, cloth, 1s.; French morocco, gilt edges, 2s.
Various Styles in calf, morocco, and German calf.
London: SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, Limited, 15, Paternoster-row.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
98, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

THE JUBILEE HOME OF INDUSTRY.

HOW WE SPENT THE FIRST SUNDAY.

With grateful hearts we arose, after a night of refreshing sleep, on this memorable Lord's Day morning, the first we should spend in the new Home. Our little band of workers met for praise and prayer, and soon after ten o'clock we were ready to go forth into Bird Fair, which is now close to our doors. It was a chill, gray December morning. The week-day noise and traffic were in some measure stopped, but already, even at our doorstep, were groups of men leading dogs for sale, or the favourite bird in its cage, carefully tied with a red handkerchief.

Passing a group of seven, we accosted two young fellows, aged about seventeen or eighteen. They looked thin and miserable, said they "lived anyhow," could get little work, and less to eat, so they trafficked in birds to earn a few pence. Pointing to our house and asking them to come in on a week evening, they turned confidingly towards us, and asked if we would teach them to read and write; just the old East-end cry of twenty years ago. Our reply was, "Yes, my lads, that's just why we have come to live in your midst." They never went to church, and had but little idea of Sabbath rest, so they asked if they might come to-night. We gave them tickets to come and hear our young evangelist, David Donald, a Bethnal-green young preacher, who for two years has helped us in the Fair, and knows the difficulties and temptations of the young fellows in this parish of 180,000 souls.

Mrs. Merry went to assist at the service under Brick-lane arch, and the report of a young Scotchman at the close was, "We had a glorious time." The long archway in Wheeler-street was bitterly cold, with the East wind surging through it; the poor men with their thin, worn clothing could not stand long, so we sang and told the Gospel story in turn; fresh voices giving five minutes at a time, till about twelve o'clock, when a dense crowd gathered, and two students from Harley House spoke for half an hour. They had been out all night finding the lost, and inviting them to a Sunday-morning breakfast at Mrs. Finn's Mission in Artillery-lane.

On crossing the road to the Home, soon after one o'clock, three little bands of our workers met. One of them had been through the Fair, distributing tracts and picture leaflets to the thousands thronging through the street, while they sang the Gospel and held aloft the blue banner with the words, "Behold the Lamb of God," &c. We dined together in our large hall, and bright were the faces which gathered around the table. Not one would have missed that morning's opportunity of witnessing for our blessed Saviour among the careless multitude. Words fail to express the joy of those allowed the privilege of seeking out the lost and the wanderer.

At 2.15 we gathered to remember our Lord's death "till He come." What a privilege was ours! A sweet calm; the presence of the Master realised. "How good is the God we adore!" rang out from full hearts, while shining faces showed the joy that all experienced of having this brief hour apart with Himself amid our ceaseless activities.

A three o'clock the large hall was filled with over two hundred of our widows and "mothers," singing out with heart and voice the sweet songs of Zion. Mr. Merry opened with prayer, and he was followed by poor women and men filled with the Holy Spirit, praising God for the beautiful Home, where there was room and a welcome for their unconverted kindred and neighbours to hear the glad tidings of salvation. At 4.30 the meeting was closed, and the aged widow with the wrinkled brow, the young mother with her many home cares, went away brightened through His felt presence, to shine for the Lord they loved in their streets and alleys. Thirteen of the unconverted in the gathering expressed their desire to start afresh that day by receiving Jesus as their own Saviour. Thus we workers had the desire of our hearts in seeing souls deciding for the Lord, a crowning blessing on our pening day.

At five o'clock fresh workers arrived from mission schools and various branches of Gospel work, ready to aid in the evening hours of this happy day. Some were young in the faith, but full of love and zeal. Others were evangelists who had been long in the battlefield, and had gained experience in drawing in the Gospel net. During the brief tea hour the breathings were all praise, and then we again knelt together, seeking strength for the remaining work of the day.

At six o'clock followed the division of labour. Scouts were sent to the now more distant lodging-houses. We cannot relinquish altogether the visitation of the old dens. Some of our brightest jewels have been gathered from them during the past twenty years. Some are already safely garnered. Some are toiling in home mission work or among the heathen. Stalwart lads are earning an honest independence in Canada. Best of all, many an orphan little one has been snatched from these sad places; many have been happily adopted, and every antecedent blotted from their memory.

We have a "prophet's chamber" ready, and will extend hospitality to those who are thoroughly in earnest to go forth and illumine the dark corners in our East-end. There must be no wasted time now; the enemy rages; let us hasten on his appearing, by seeking to gather in his own lost ones. We need an awakening among our thousands of young factory women; among the thousands of young men going unwarned into eternity, who have not even heard of the mighty remedial power which salvation gives. The drunkards need to be won for Christ; and little ones from every nook and corner of streets and courts are appealing for the hand of help to be stretched out to rescue them.

At seven o'clock Mrs. Merry is at the Training Home among our fifty children. Mr. Merry is speaking to the class of forty to fifty boys. Miss Kelso and her helpers are busy with nearly 200 infants. Mr. Stewart has the upper hall well filled with young girls, and some of the elder ones are in the adjacent class-rooms. In the lower hall a goodly number are gathered—fathers, mothers with babes in their arms, listening to the Gospel message. We walk over the three floors, now all alive with about 650 souls being instructed. We could not speak our deep-felt praise for the possibilities of this Bethel gift of the Lord to our poor East-enders. The new Home is "in working order." The prayer of many a midnight hour is answered, the dear people echoing on every side, "We are going to have a revival." "Oh, that my husband, my son, my daughter, may be saved."

By 8 30 the children have all gone home. Teachers and elder girls have joined the gathering in the hall. Some of the fathers and mothers have left, but more are coming in. Mr. Mateer, an evangelist, who came to see the new Home, has given a message of power, urging all unsaved to decide for Christ. After earnest prayer and pleading, nine rose in response to the question, Who will yield this very night? The workers scattered themselves among the crowd, speaking to and praying with the anxious so that none were sent away without receiving a message from the Lord.

At 9.30, speakers and hearers have left. The house soon becomes quiet and the household shortly retire, praising God for the souls that day brought out of the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of his dear Son.

We ask the continued prayers of the Lord's remembrancers. Annie Macpherson.

Home of Industry, 29, Bethnal Green-road, E.

FREE CONVALESCENT HOME.—In a quiet road close to the south gate of Battersea Park, a free Convalescent Home is to be opened for temporary rest for weary Christian workers and invalid ladies in reduced circumstances. The Home is intended for those who are poor in temporal circumstances, but rich in faith. Communications and inquiries may be addressed to Miss Waskett, hon. superintendent, 7, Queen Anne-terrace, Albert-road, Battersea Park, S.W.

HEREAFTER.

By-and by we shall meet in the glory,
And understand everything there:
We shall then see the King in his beauty,
And thank Him for all his kind care.

We shall then know the beautiful meaning
Of things that so puzzled us here;
We shall spell out their wonderful "wherefore,"
In letters all-radiantly clear.

Shall we wonder we never had seen it?
That sight was so short and so dim?
Shall we grieve that we did not more gladly
Leave all explanations with Him?

Shall we wish that we never had worried
When everything seemed to go wrong?
That we then had dispelled dark delusions
With glad hallelujahs of song?

Dear Master, forgive us, we pray Thee,
For all our dishonouring fear;
Afresh take us into thy keeping,
To perfect thy work in us here.

Charlotte Murray.

◆

BIBLES AND TRACTS IN ITALY.

In a private letter to a friend, Mr. E. C. Newbery writes from Treirso :—

My hands are full of God's work, and I rejoice to say his power is working in the hearts of the people. A number of Italian soldiers are just leaving Naples for Massowah. I have two men at work there (Naples), and they are losing no opportunity to preach the Gospel, and to give to the soldiers Testaments and tracts. I have sent all the aid I could to keep them going, and have been pleading for them continually, for they have been fearfully handled and maltreated at a town called Maddaloni, an hour from Naples. They were recently arrested and locked up by a delegate of police, but, on his telegraphing to the Prefect of Caserta, they were released. Hearing of this, the colonel of the African regiment gave them permission to go into barracks, when they distributed a large number of books the night before the men left for Africa. The following week the mob at Naples stoned them, and one man, an old monk, was badly cut about the legs, but is still going on with the work; the other, a retired captain in the army, has lost courage and backed out. Another man who had been stoned many times came to offer his services, which we accepted. They are now hard at it. The expenses of going to and fro have been very heavy. We have agents at work in four towns—Caserta, Castellamare, Maddaloni, and Naples. The books have to be taken in cases, and cabs are needed always, but a soul won for Christ by the Word given will repay us for all the trouble. Another reserve force of 20,000 men is to be at once sent to Naples, to be ready to leave there in case the first 20,000 should need reinforcement. There will then be another splendid occasion for us to go and sow the seed of the Word of God in the hearts of the youth of Italy—the lever that will make it a better nation.

I much desire to go to Naples, but my desires often have to be laid aside. I am here at Treviso because I believe God truly led me here. A fair lasting eight days, followed by four days of horse races, put it into my mind to come here. I brought my man and his wife, with a stock of 16,000 tracts, 3600 portions of the Word, 40 Testaments, and a few Bibles. There is here a Mission in charge of a minister who came from Spezia a few weeks ago to recommence a ruined work. Some years ago a very inconsistent man was here, and scattered the few sheep, and then died. I took advantage of the occasion to come and leave my testimony. I feel a great love for the man now here; he has a very humble spirit, and he is not afraid to face a crowd and come out to give tracts and to preach the Gospel.

REFORMING THE LAWBREAKERS.

OUR criminal law, essential though it may be for the protection of society, is a hard and unlovely thing. Moreover, it is a very inefficient instrument, as far as the reclamation of the offender is concerned. Else, how comes it that so many convicted thieves and vagabonds reappear in our police and criminal courts with such unfailing regularity? The fact is that our methods of punishment almost invariably harden and scarcely ever reform. We are getting to recognise this, for last session an Act was passed permitting magistrates to grant parole to first offenders, in the hope that they may turn over a new leaf and escape the prison taint, which, once contracted, clings to a man for life. This merciful enactment is largely due to the endeavours of Mr. Howard Vincent, M.P. We cannot be far wrong in supposing that he was convinced of its necessity very much by his experience of the success achieved, in reclaiming convicts, by the St. Giles' Christian Mission.

In presiding at the "annual supper" of this Mission last week, Mr. Vincent was in his right place. It is the custom to call it a "thieves' supper," but the invited guests are mainly those who have "done their turn," and may be supposed to have left the ranks of the dishonest. At least they are presumably anxious to do so; in this desire they have every possible assistance and sympathy from Mr. George Hatton; and still more from Mr. W. Wheatley, who has really accomplished such great things on behalf of this class as to entitle him to a high place in the muster roll of social reformers. The motto of these good men is "Let him that stole steal no more; but rather let him labour, working with his hands." For a time the difficulty was to furnish their discredited brethren with the chance of labour; people were naturally suspicious of employing a man or a youth with an itching palm. Experience has dissipated this reluctance, and it was extremely pleasant to hear Mr. Wheatley last week acknowledge so heartily the co-operation he has received from employers of labour. Without such aid the efforts of the St. Giles' Mission would soon be hopelessly blocked. When men come out of prison, having tasted the bitterness of its enforced seclusion, not to speak of the pangs of an outraged conscience, they are mostly glad to bear a hand at any kind of honest toil that will keep body and soul together. They are willing to go to sea, or to go abroad, if no avenue is open at home. Thus Mr. Wheatley has a large field of choice in getting work for his peculiar clients, though even his ingenuity and industry are often tested severely in finding the right niche for the man or the boy. The happy fact that magistrates and police officials, as well as employers, are warmly in favour of his efforts, does much to facilitate the return of the ex-criminal to respectable society.

It is often difficult to invest statistics with the degree of living interest that will cause them to impress the mind and unfold the wealth of meaning that they contain. But the figures given by Mr. Hatton at last week's meeting need little explanation or exposition. Think of this one fact, that, during the ten years of its existence, this branch of the St. Giles' Mission has helped to an honest career, no fewer than twenty-four thousand men and boys. What an immensity of patient and painstaking effort is involved in the statement. Breakfasts have been given to 83,000 on the morning of their discharge, and 30,000 have signed the temperance pledge. During the year just passed, out of the twenty thousand males discharged from the four great London gaols, more than six thousand two hundred have accepted and received the friendly aid of the Society. Fifteen thousand have attended the breakfast, at which there are always addressed to them words of warning and sound advice; over four thousand have signed the pledge. The Brooke-street Home gives a temporary lodging to many, and also employment to a small battalion of bootmakers and tailors, &c., who earned among them during the year a sum of £450. Increasing attention is being given to preventive work among youths who have by some misdemeanour brought themselves within the grasp of the law. Two hundred of these have been dealt with in the course of the year. The recently passed Act will be of signal service in preventing these lads from entering on a career of crime. Thus the evil will be checked at its fountain head.

Such figures surely tell their own story, and are the most powerful witnesses that could be adduced to the worth of the Society's beneficent work. At the meeting on Tuesday week, many words of hearty advocacy were spoken out of full hearts, by the chairman, Mr. F. Bevan, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, and others. Indeed, everybody who knows anything of the work cannot but be loud in its praise; it is pre-eminently of the kind that Christ Himself said He had come to do—seeking and saving the lost. We sincerely wish the Christian public at large knew more of it; then it would receive the unstinted support that it deserves.

A TRAINING COLLEGE IN SPAIN.

THE Missionary Institute at Puerto Santa Maria, under the charge of Rev. W. Moore, has entered on its fifth year, and a review of both past and present gives cause for much thankfulness. Its object is to prepare evangelists, pastors, and schoolmasters for work in Spain. As evidence of the crying need, it is enough to say that if there were to be a vacancy in any of the churches for either a pastor, teacher, or evangelist, no competent person could be found to fill it. The college began with three students; at the end of the third year there were five. Now there are twelve.

As they are almost all from the humbler classes, there is not only the difficulty to contend with of their very low state of education, but the necessity of providing in most cases for their entire support. Six out of the twelve are supported by a few Christian ladies. The other six are dependent on the liberality of the Christian public. The work is not one, from its nature, calculated to awaken so much sympathy as direct mission efforts. But when we take into account that a native teacher, especially in Spain, is far more acceptable than the most gifted foreigner could be, and that ordinary native converts have not only everything to learn, but nearly everything to unlearn of their previous training—to be fit to teach others—is it not the truest mission work to help to provide labourers for this whitening harvest? Any friends in England who wish to know more of the work may communicate with Mr. Donald Matheson, 120, Queen's-gate, S.W.

"LITTLE WOMEN."—This quarterly paper, devoted to the interests of the Housewifery Association, brings before us pleasant scenes, in which girls of various ages are being instructed to fulfil their mission in the home. It is gratifying to note that next year the paper will be published monthly. There is a scheme on foot for acquiring a house, in which one hundred girls may be trained, when the work would become self-supporting. The foundress is Miss Headdon, The Villa Bullo, Newnham-on-Severn.

BRITISH WOMEN'S TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION.—The many unions of women which form this Association are blessings wherever established. They hold drawing-room meetings to win educated women on the side of right and abstinence, and to be workers for Christ. In mothers' meetings, meetings for young girls, where they often supply a mother's lack of warning and guidance, in public meetings to guide opinion into sympathy with God's laws often outraged by human legislation. Branches are being formed everywhere. Help, in the offer of drawing-room or public meetings, or subscriptions to carry on the work of extension, will be welcomed by the Secretary, or Mrs. Eynon, organising secretary, at the office, 16, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C.

THE MARCHMONT HOME,

ONTARIO.

THE following is extracted from Mrs. E. A. Bilbrough Wallace's Occasional Paper:—Since the Home was established in 1870, some 5000 children have been received from various sources, provided with good homes and a new start in life given. Many of these are now comfortably settled in homes and families of their own—very grateful for the help extended to them—thus proving the success of the work and encouraging us to go forward.

We heartily rejoice in the increasing interest taken in foreign missions, knowing that Christians who have their sympathies widened and extended to the heathen, will not forget the needy and perishing at home. Some of our own older lads are now studying with a view to spending their lives in the mission field.

It is interesting to note where the children come from. Some are from Bridge of Weir; others from Mrs. Blaikie's Emigration Home in Edinburgh; the Isle of Man; a party of boys, and one of girls, from Manchester; from Miss Wemyss' Cottage Homes on the Cotswold Hills; from Croydon, while our last detachment was from Bristol. Mr. Quarrier has now a Home of his own for the Bridge of Weir children.

There are many and varied ways in which friends can share our burdens. One lady for many years has undertaken the sale of articles made by friends in Croydon and Montrose, and the money realised in this way has supplied us with winter fuel. Another lady superintends our sewing circle; we meet from month to month in each other's houses, to sew for the children during the afternoon; and after tea conclude with a Bible-reading in the evening, which others attend. Only this morning one of our earliest and most faithful helpers, Miss D. Allan, has sent me contributions from various Canadian friends, amounting to over one hundred dollars, which I need hardly say, are most welcome. This friend and my own dear mother are rapidly losing their sight, but still their busy fingers keep knitting away, either articles to sell or little garments for the children. For many years past, about Christmas time, there has come from Toronto a large parcel of mits, socks, &c., from our loved invalid friend Miss Howard, who, though a constant sufferer, spends her hours in loving labour for the needy ones.

PAARL, CAPE COLONY.—An interesting and efficient work is going on in this place, two hours distant from Cape Town. A new Gospel hall was recently opened, which promises to be a centre of active evangelistic effort among the neglected and ignorant. A recent visit from Mr. J. Hannington has resulted in good, both to the careless and to the Christians. Work has been begun among ragged children, who were largely uncared for, and several Sunday-schools have been opened. Dutch tracts and copies of the Dutch Scriptures are needed for distribution among the people. Mr. James Gribble, Paarl, Cape Colony, will gladly give further information, and any parcels for him may be sent to the care of Messrs. Marion & Co., 22, Soho-square, London, W.

GIPSY CHILDREN.—In a letter with respect to the condition of these neglected children, Mr. George Smith, of Coalville, says:—As a rule the gipsies and van-dwellers are stationed in backyards and other nooks and corners in towns and villages from the end of November to the end of March, so that the van and gipsy children could, with my system of educational pass books, make almost the required number of school attendances. Even when they cannot do this, they are frequently during the summer a week in a place, which school attendances would help to keep together the education they gained in the winter. Our gipsy and van-dwelling children can be brought under the influences of education and sanitation more easily than children living in canal boats. During the last two or three weeks I have been among travelling children in different parts of Scotland, and the sights I have seen have made my heart bleed. Next session I hope they will be included in the scope of the Bill I am promoting for the welfare of the poor travelling children.

MR. S. WALTON at EASTBOURNE.

A fourteen days' mission, of unusual interest and blessing, has been concluded here, followed by a two days' Missionary Conference, in which the claims of the heathen were forcibly pressed by various speakers. The numbers in attendance and the interest manifested in the daily mission services continued steadily to increase, until the large gatherings in the new Town Hall, on the 6th and 7th, were a most solemn proof of the widespread interest aroused.

The afternoon Bible-readings were times of real blessing, and at the evangelistic services numbers were led to decide for Christ. The missioner dwelt strongly on the necessity of separation from the world as a condition for receiving the fulness of the Spirit for service. His teaching was emphasised by the addresses at the Conference.

Mr. Spencer Walton hopes to leave England soon, for a few months' stay at the Cape.

E. M. H.

MR. HUDSON TAYLOR IN IRELAND.

This well-known missionary has paid a visit to Ireland. In Dublin and its suburbs he addressed several crowded assemblages, in all of which the needs of the heathen world were brought before Christians. Mr. Taylor subsequently held meetings in Waterford, Cork, and Limerick, all the gatherings being full of interest.

He afterwards proceeded North. At Holywood he referred to the fact that four ladies (the Misses Black) had gone out from that town in connection with the China Inland Mission. A crowded meeting in Fisherwick-place Lecture Hall, Belfast on the subject of Consecration, was followed by an interview with a number of young ladies anxious to talk about going to the mission field. Later the same evening he spoke to a meeting of men, giving interesting missionary intelligence, and closing with an earnest appeal to obey the Master's marching orders. On Lord's Day, December 4, two crowded congregations heard the solemn message of the Master. Next day Mr. Taylor addressed a drawing-room meeting, and afterwards met some thirty students, when he answered many questions relating to missionary life and methods in China. In the evening he spoke to a great audience in the large hall of the Y.M.C.A., setting forth the great need for consecrated men and women in the foreign field.

Ballymena, Londonderry, and Coleraine were visited in succession, and Mr. Taylor returned to Belfast on Friday, December 9, where a farewell meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. Ministers of various denominations attended and took part in the meetings. Over and above the interest which was manifested in the C.I.M. the general interest in missions has been greatly stimulated by the visit. Many have been stirred to consider the claims of God and the heathen, as never before. Mr. Taylor's words on individual consecration as being at the root of all true missionary work, were most timely and helpful.

H. M.

MIDDLESEX SOUP AND DINNER KITCHEN, 12, Windmill-street, Tottenham Court-road, W.—The Institution was established in 1869 for the purpose of affording relief to persons who have fallen into poverty through no fault of their own. Relief is given to them in the shape of tickets, each of which entitles the bearer to a good and substantial meal from the Institution. During the eighteen years of the existence of the Institution several thousands of persons have annually participated in its benefits. In the year just ended 15,135 dinners have been served in exchange for tickets, besides a great number which have been given without tickets. The price of two sheets of tickets (16 in each) is £1 1s. Each ticket entitles the bearer, on presentation at the Kitchen, to a dinner comprising soup, meat, vegetables, and bread. The Kitchen is open from 12 to 2 every day, except Sundays and Mondays, from October 18 to March 17, and from that date to the end of the season, three days a week.

SCOTCHMEN IN LONDON.

OPENING OF A CALEDONIAN CHRISTIAN CLUB.

It has been said, with what truth we wot not, that there are more Scotchmen in London than in Edinburgh. Anyhow, they are numerous enough to constitute a large community. In the northern half of the island the synonym of Horace Greeley's famous watchword for New England young men—"Go West"—is "Gang Sooth." South they come; and, to all appearance, they find encouragement enough to make them stay. Here they retain their proverbial clannishness, and many Scottish counties have their London Associations for the social intercourse and mutual help of the members.

In bygone years a good deal has been attempted in the way of seeking the spiritual welfare of these northern friends, especially those acquainted with the ancient, but now somewhat decaying Gaelic tongue. These intermittent endeavours have culminated in the establishment of a "Caledonian and Christian Temperance Union," which will combine the advantages of a club and advisory agency with its more strictly religious efforts. A committee, formed last year, have secured central and excellent premises at 5, Southampton-street, Bloomsbury; these, after the needful alterations, were formally opened by meetings on Friday afternoon and evening. On both occasions there was a good muster of ladies and gentlemen, all of them, with scarce an exception, hailing from the far North. Stags' heads, tartan drapery, and sprigs of heather, and, most of all, the "skirling" of the bagpipes, carried the thoughts and hearts of many away to their native hills and straths, and gave colour to the remark of one speaker, that the place was intended to be a real "Highland Home" for those away from home. The superintendence of the work has been placed in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Robertson (late of the Highland Temperance League) and his wife.

The evening gathering was presided over by Rev. W. B. Alexander, of the Drury-lane Presbyterian Church, and one of the leading spirits in the movement. The proceedings of the evening were thoroughly characteristic. They began with the first Psalm sung in Gaelic, in true orthodox fashion, transporting some of those present back to well-remembered scenes. There were also the reading of the Scriptures, prayer, and speech in the same vernacular, that seems so uncouth to the ears of the ignorant barbarian, but is so dear and expressive to all who once learned to lisp it at their mother's knee. Even Dr. Donald Fraser, of Marylebone, a genuine, but not a Gaelic-speaking, Highlander, declared enthusiastically that he had been well rewarded in coming there after a hard day's work, by hearing the weird music of the mountains so faithfully reproduced in London's centre. Dr. Fraser himself spoke admirably, knowing well, as he must do, the need for such a centre of healthy attraction and influence among his countrymen who find themselves cut off from the old moorings; who too often drift into the sweltering sea of religious indifference, and finally make soul shipwreck on the rocks of downright ungodliness. He said that during his residence in London he had known many a Scotchman go down to physical and moral ruin, but not one except in connection with the drink.

In his introductory statement Mr. Robertson also alluded to the perils that beset the Scot in London, through his partiality for strong drink, begotten and fostered, perhaps, by the customs of his native land; he hoped that the temperance branch of the work would be heartily taken up. The desire and intention of the committee are to make the club a centre of all kinds of healthy and helpful endeavour, by welcoming, advising, and aiding new comers of both sexes; by affording a rendezvous for Scotch residents in the Metropolis, and by social as well as religious agencies. We have not space to reproduce any of the congratulatory addresses made by many of the friends present, but we heartily wish success to the club. Scotchmen in London should enrol themselves in its ranks if only for the help it will render to others who may need it. We counsel all our readers north of the Tweed to make it known, through their local journals, that at 5, Southampton-street, Bloomsbury, W.C. (within fifteen minutes from the three northern termini), a real Highland welcome and a helping hand await any young and friendless youth or maiden arriving in this "vast and lonely wilderness."

MR. RABINOWICH AND HIS WORK.

In answer to several inquiries, we beg to repeat former statements concerning the Council formed in London, at the earnest request of Professor Delitzsch, of Leipsic, to help the movement among the Jews, originated by Joseph Rabinowitz. The Council consists of the following gentlemen:—

Revs. E. W. Bullinger, D.D., St. Stephen's, Walthamstow, E.; Gordon Calthrop, M.A., St. Augustine's, Highbury, N.; Theodore J. Meyer, 49, Charles-square, Notting-hill, W.; Adolph Saphir, D.D., 19, Lansdowne-road, Notting-hill, W.; H. Sinclair Paterson, M.D., Bassett-road, Notting-hill, W.; John Wilkinson, 79, Mildmay-road, N.; Lord Kinnaird, 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.; Mr. J. Herbert Tritton, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.: James E. Mathieson, hon. secretary and treasurer, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N.

About £500 a year will be required for the support of Mr. Rabinowich and his assistant, for rent of hall, colportage, printing tracts in furtherance of the movement, &c. Help is also needed for the building fund, a site having been secured in Kischeneff, and paid for. Further particulars may be found in "The First Ripe Fig"; "The Everlasting Nation"; "Rabinowich and his Mission to Israel"; all published by Messrs. J. F. Shaw & Co.

GEORGE YARD MISSION, WHITECHAPEL.—This Mission has issued its report, and a striking one it is. The statistics reveal an amazing amount of work. The buildings during the twelve months have been open 2330 times—for adults alone 640 times—and the total attendances have reached a large figure. Mr. Holland has chosen for his motto, "All for Christ." It is well known how entirely this motto is carried out. Communications should be addressed to Mr. George Holland, 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E.

SCANDINAVIAN SAILORS IN HAMBURG.—During the last four or five years a Christian man and woman have conducted a home for Scandinavian seamen which has been a blessing to many. This year they have been obliged to give up this good work. A committee, consisting of Rev. J. England, Swedish pastor, Herr Svedberg, Swedish sailors' missionary, and Rev. J. C. Aston, pastor of the Jerusalem Church in Hamburg, have taken it up, and have rented and furnished a flat at the harbour in which Swedish services are held. The Home was lately opened in the presence of a considerable number of Scandinavians, and it is hoped the committee will be able to take another flat in the same house, which will soon be vacant. To do this, help will be required. As Scandinavian seamen often do good service in English ships, it is hoped that some help will come from England for this good work. Inquiries will be answered by Rev. J. C. Aston, Waterloostrasse, 7, Altona, bei Hamburg.

BLIND IN BELFAST.—Mrs. R. B. Pim's annual entertainment to the blind people of Belfast recently took place in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Wellington-place. About three hundred blind persons and their friends sat down to tea. The entertainment was given in connection with the home mission work among the blind. This Society was started by Mrs. R. B. Pim nearly two years ago, and since that time the work has been increasing rapidly. The ladies connected with the Society teach the uneducated blind persons of the town how to read the raised type, and some of them have made wonderful progress. The Society has now a large library of books in Moon's raised type. They visit about one hundred and sixty families, and where they meet with sickness or distress they relieve it in whatever way seems best. They give ample employment to those who are able to knit, and already they have paid for over one hundred articles. Their object is to help the blind to help themselves, but they place spiritual work in the front of their programme.

MEETING OF SCRIPTURE READERS.

During my last visit to Ireland some Scripture readers and a few friends met at the house of Captain Kearney White, the secretary of the Scripture Readers' Society of Ireland.

Rev. Mr. Quarry, Wesleyan Army Chaplain, related some experiences as to his work in 1856—1859. He was the first Methodist preacher in a certain town near which was a village with ten Protestant families, but none of them were seen at a place of worship except at a christening, a wedding, or a burial. While preaching one day it came into his mind to announce a meeting next morning at ten o'clock for prayer. The house was crammed, and after much prayer they all went to that colony. An old man over eighty sat by his fire; the people were invited and the room filled. "After preaching I thought I had done nothing, but I saw a young man with head bowed and the table wet with his tears. 'Oh, sir,' he said, 'I am a terrible sinner.' At their earnest entreaty I went back in a week and preached that the Son of Man was come to seek and save the lost. Before I had half done my voice was drowned. Eighteen old and middle-aged men and women were soon rejoicing in God. From then till now I have often stayed there. Many went to Australia, eighty in one batch. One man told me, 'The priests have been humbugging us, and we are going for the sole purpose of joining the church out there, for here our lives wouldn't be safe.'" referred to an occasion when the priests had become greatly incensed on account of what some Orange lecturer had said, and as the reader was preaching a man struck him on the head, but the people defended him. He gave the people portions of Scripture and books, and as he met them afterwards they would show him a portion, or "The Religion of St. Patrick," and tell him, "We should never have known the Gospel but for your words and books."

A READER

ANOTHER READER

said he went to a place twenty-seven years ago, and in six months the church had increased one-third in number. When some political tracts were left about, the priest said, from the altar, no doubt the Scripture reader had done that. But one of his people replied, "Please do not speak ill of that man: he has been fourteen years among us. God bless him." At another time his window was broken. The priest said he could not tell how it grieved him to hear it. It was a mistake. Fifty Roman Catholics had come to shake hands with him. If a Scripture reader does his work faithfully he suffers no molestation. In three months his journals showed he had read and prayed with 195 Roman Catholics. It is a good thing to go and live among them, and as one of themselves; they will hear all you have to say about Jesus. You never hear of a Scripture Reader being boycotted.

THOMAS MAVITTY

had been sent to blood-stained Maamtrasna. "Sixteen people followed me into a cabin. 'Ma'am,' says I, to the good woman, after a long conversation, 'this may be the last time we'll meet; have you any objection that we all get on our knees and pray to the Almighty God for his blessing?' They all knelt and I prayed; while the pig was eating my coat behind. I shall never forget the sorrow on that woman's face. All the food they had was a little yellow meal. I stood in the house where the old bailiff was shot, and never met kinder or more civil people—all Roman Catholics. I entered every house and prayed, and distributed Testaments and portions. If only we had Ireland converted we should soon have the millennium.

CAPTAIN KEARNEY WHITE

said there was no place on earth where the people were more ready to receive the truth in Jesus than in Ireland. But we must go back to the old rule, "Do as we would be done by."

MR. J. TOWNSEND TRENCH

said the railroad across America was projected by a few men in a little dingy room. They said they were able to carry it out. They discussed their plans, arranged a syndicate, and now we travel across that continent in seven days. So I think this is a remarkable meeting. We have an editor of a London paper, a sea captain who has taken up the cause of God, a lot of rough-and-ready workers called Scripture readers, and here is one of a class under considerable odium—a landlord's agent.

Christian people are going to pray for Ireland. Then the first thing is to lay the rentals on the altar of Jesus Christ and say, "I am ready in righteousness to sacrifice what is right, and not feel sore with the tenant." Then we can pray. After referring to the Church of Ireland, to the Brethren, to Methodism, &c., Mr. Trench said: I do not see any organisation more likely to promulgate the Gospel in Ireland than this Scripture Readers' Society. Your agents are pursuing the best course. I think that, England having misgoverned Ireland for hundreds of years, the Christians of England owe us a great debt. I do not see why this Society should not extend its work. As far as I can see you have come to a little room, like that of those who projected the railway from New York to San Francisco, and the results of this meeting should be as great as that, and far more beneficent.

Men like these Scripture readers, of a simple, loving, unsectarian, apostolic spirit, giving themselves to the work of God and prayer, going amongst the people as men like themselves, understanding their habits, and adapting their methods to them, can accomplish a work which to others would be impossible. You, Captain Kearney White, are gifted specially for this work, and God has appointed you to it. In England you should get sympathy, if the facts were known. I believe, if you had means, you could easily extend the work, and as funds come they can be utilised. You want Irishmen—men suited physically, mentally, spiritually; and, when you have the right men, God will do great things.

R. C. M.

THE AGED PILGRIMS' FRIEND SOCIETY gives life pensions of five, seven, and ten guineas per annum to the aged Christian poor, of both sexes, and of every Protestant denomination, who are not under sixty years of age, and who give Scriptural evidence that they are of the "Household of Faith." The Society has, at the present time, 1,155 pensioners on its books, and is distributing in pensions alone upwards of £7200 per annum. To meet this amount the ordinary income is inadequate. These aged recipients live in all parts of the country; 830 are over seventy years of age, 273 of this number being over eighty. In the Society's four Asylums, or Homes, 180 of the pensioners have comfortable abodes. Reports and further particulars supplied from the office. Mr. J. E. Hazelton, 83, Finsbury-pavement, E. C., is secretary.

ARBITRATION AND PEACE IN AMERICA.—Mr. William Jones, the secretary of the English Peace Society (47, New Broad-street, London), has recently paid three visits to the Presidential Mansion or "White House," at Washington, in the interests of the cause of International Arbitration. He has subsequently been actively engaged in the delivery of peace addresses in the States of Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Massachusetts, Indiana, Illinois, and Tennessee. In the last State he attended the great annual Convention of the "Women's Christian Temperance Union," of America, held at Nashville. After he had addressed that gathering, a unanimous resolution was adopted by the Convention, commending the support of the arbitration movement to all the branches of their Union in the United States. Mr. Jones has everywhere throughout his extensive journeyings in America met with hearty kindness, and has elicited from all sections of society expressions of genuine sympathy with the special object of his visit.

A HOLINESS CAMPAIGN.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, last week, the large Exeter Hall was occupied morning, afternoon, and evening by the Salvation Army for a "Holiness Campaign." In response to a circular issued from headquarters, inviting all members of the Army who desired a fresh baptism of the Spirit to be present, a large number attended from various parts of the country, and throughout the entire session great earnestness prevailed.

But the audiences were by no means composed exclusively of Salvationists, for at the evening meetings especially, when the Hall was each night crowded to excess, there were many hundreds of persons who wore no outward token that they were connected with the Army at all. Yet from the hearty responses it was evident that they were nearly all in full sympathy with the object of the "campaign," and had come to seek a share in the blessing. The principal addresses were given by Mr. and Mrs. Booth, Mr. Bramwell Booth also taking a prominent part. The absence through illness of Mrs. Booth-Clibborn was the cause of a universal and widely expressed regret. On the Tuesday evening upwards of twenty men and women, some with their children, who were volunteers to go to Zululand and other parts of South Africa, were introduced to the meeting, among them being a Salvation Zulu, who gave his experience in his own language with very great energy.

The proceedings generally were characterised by more quietness and solemnity than are usually found in Army meetings, owing, no doubt, to the fact that it was not to report success and victory that the gatherings were convened, but for self-examination and consecration. This was kept in view by all the speakers, and when past achievements were alluded to it was only to show that they were the fruit of consecrated lives, and that "still greater things" might be accomplished by entire surrender to the will of God. There was ample evidence of the effect produced upon the hearers, and in the after-meetings many dedicated their lives afresh to God.

No language uttered was, perhaps, more impressive than were Mrs. Booth's burning words at the last meeting. "It is not for lack of teaching," she said, "that multitudes of Christians are not wholly surrendered to God. They know perfectly what is required of them, but the great hindrance to blessing is that, although they know God's opinion, they study their own and that of other people, instead of accepting God's way of putting it—his version of what a Christian life ought to be. God will be very practical in the last day. He will not say, 'Inasmuch as ye meant, or thought, or promised,' but 'Inasmuch as ye DID.'" She then went on to say that the Salvation Army was the outcome of the dedication by two people of themselves and their children unreservedly to God, deducing from this the argument that "If such a mighty result be attained from the consecration of one family, what might not God do if the thousands of Christian families in this country were equally at his service!" She vehemently deprecated the custom of parents making it their first object to train their children for professions and earthly position, believing that, if they were brought up for the work and service of God, He would provide for their temporal necessities, "and when He had no more bread and butter for them on earth He would take them home!"

On Thursday and Friday smaller meetings of a more private nature were held for the officers, and a confident expectation prevails that the outcome of the campaign as a whole will prove to be a great increase in the spiritual life and power of the Salvation Army in every corps which was represented at the Conference, and through them to the community at large.

A NEW GYMNASIUM in connection with the Whitechapel Working Lads' Institute was opened last week.

For the Young.

A CHILDREN'S SERVICE IN DENVER.

The Denver Republican of November 21 contains this striking account of a service for young people conducted by Rev. E. P. Hammond at that city, in the State of Colorado:—

"Now, that wasn't half sung. What are you going to do when you get to heaven? You won't enjoy being there if you don't sing better than that." This is what Mr. Hammond said to the hundreds of children at the Rink yesterday afternoon, who, having been thus reproved, sang with all their might a hymn composed by Mr. Hammond himself, beginning, "I feel like singing all the time."

It was remarkable to observe the crowds of children who were coming in. The rink swarmed with them. They came in groups of fours, and sixes, eights and tens and twenties. Some of them were accompanied by their mothers, others by their Sunday-school teachers; but many of them came alone. These little people came in assorted sizes and styles. There was every type of face among them; every variety of carriage; every imaginable expression. Some had beautiful faces, from which streamed rays of intelligence and happiness. The features of others were hardened with care, young as they were; and the eyes of some of them looked as if they had never been dazzled by looking at pretty things. Some were fashionably dressed in rich winter garments of the latest cut. Others were very plainly clad. But they were all alike in one respect: they were very much excited. The fact had been impressed upon their little minds that the great meeting was for them. The doors of the rink had been opened for their special benefit. In they came running, crowding, looking anxiously for seats, clinging to each other, and sometimes growing very impatient at the necessary delay occasioned in obtaining seats for them; but at last all were seated, and the work of the meeting began.

The building was densely packed with children. Chairs were placed up to the very extreme rear, and pews were brought in and placed directly in front of the stage, so that scarcely an inch of space was wasted. There were probably 3000 children present. Of these 200 or 300 have professed conversion since the beginning of Mr. Hammond's meetings last Sunday. It is observed that there are more little girls than boys among the young converts. Several little girls, anywhere from nine to eleven years of age, sat in the front pew and wept bitterly. One fashionably-dressed little lady, with a pair of lovely dark violet eyes, sat with them filled with tears throughout the service, and occasionally covered them with her little gloved hand.

There are a great many little boy converts, too, but the girls are in the ascendency, and seem to be the most sincere. They take the lead in religion as they do in everything else. The boys follow amiably, and many of them are doubtless converted through the influence of their little sisters and friends.

When the flutter of excitement had subsided, and all the four-year-old babies and those that are younger had been tucked carefully away in chairs and on the laps of their elders, Mr. Hammond began by telling the children what a great meeting he had had at Deacon Walker's church yesterday morning, where several hundred persons had professed conversion.

He told them that souls had come to Christ like shoals of fish—like flocks of sheep and lambs. The evangelist began the meeting by telling in his pleasing, simple fashion which all children love, the wonderful story of Daniel in the lions' den. All the dramatic strength of the Scriptural tale was cleverly introduced by the speaker, but always so simply that the children could not but understand it. He illustrated everything by acting it. But if he told the story dramatically, Mr. Hammond drew his moral gently. Easily and softly he led the young minds with which he dealt up to the saving power of the Saviour's love, which was so infinite that it could release Daniel from the ferocious lions.

Then he said, "He died for you, little boy and girl; will you give Him your heart?"

After this Mr. Hammond asked the children to repeat after him these words:—

I'll have a place and a time to play
And read the Bible every day.

He then told or rather acted to them a story about a little convert whose scoffing father ordered him out of the house for being a Christian. Mr. Hammond picked up several small articles, tied them up into a bundle in his handkerchief and started down an imaginary rough and stony road, impersonating the homeless little convert, to the intense delight of the little folks, who received this impromptu acting with a religious moral, with open-mouthed wonder.

So he went on telling them story after story in the same pleasing fashion, making them thoroughly entertaining; acting every character he described, and never failing to draw his religious moral, and point them the way to salvation.

Sometimes he was an irate father; sometimes the Queen's Guard—but whatever he was, and whatever story he told, the children were delighted and infatuated. To children, Mr. Hammond is a living, talking volume of "Arabian Nights"—a sort of unending fairy tale serial. The quantity of stories he has at his command are surprising, and they never fail to interest those for whom they are intended, and seldom to sway them in the direction he desires.

The scene at the inquiry meeting was particularly striking. The children who had already professed conversion were invited to sit on the stage and sing while the workers made their way through the crowd, and dropped words of advice in the ears of those not yet convicted of sin.

There was a rush for the stage, and such a throng about Mr. Hammond that the noise was like that of a swarm of bees. With the scores of children that surrounded him Mr. Hammond shook hands, and asked them when they came to Jesus, and how they knew they had found Him.

After this he was beset by teachers and by little boys and girls who came to ask him to intercede for little friends of theirs who were under conviction. These weeping little sinners came to Mr. Hammond, and contritely threw themselves on his breast while he comforted them. All those not supposed to have been converted before, wept bitterly as they approached the evangelist. Those who had experienced conversion some days since smiled sweetly. To those who wept Mr. Hammond spoke seriously; to those who smiled he spoke encouragingly. One bright little fellow who flung himself into the evangelist's arms, Mr. Hammond said was his cousin.

There came to the evangelist several little girls who said that they had always been Christians. These seemed a little difficult to classify, but they were given a blessing, and told to persevere in their religious lives.

The young converts who had passed a satisfactory examination at the hands of their religious advisers were furnished with slips of paper bearing their names, addresses, and ages. These were presented to Mr. Hammond as an evidence of good faith. The children then received a covenant card, to be signed by them, bearing the following inscription:—

"I believe I have found Jesus to be my precious Saviour, and I promise, with his help, to live as his loving child and faithful servant all my life.

"'I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them to do them good; but I will put my fear in their hearts, that they shall not depart from Me' (Jer. xxxii. 40).

"At the end of a year please write to Mr. Hammond at Vernon Centre, Connecticut, and tell him if you are still trusting in Jesus, and working for Him."

WORK IN MADAGASCAR.

Rev. J. Peill, of the London Missionary Society, writes from Ambohimanga, Madagascar:—

I am glad to see the increase in missionary interest in England. It should and must increase. As to the methods of missionary work, there may be room for much diversity of opinion; but, as to the need of it and its claims upon all Christians, none whatever. I care not which evangelical society gains the most support. I care for no society, except as a means of doing good, and the one that does the most good I shall be most grateful to. A devoted friend of missions, and formerly a missionary herself to Siberia, sent us out a copy of the book telling about the work of those young Cambridge men who went out under the China Inland Mission some time ago. It is a stirring record, and did us good to read it. God bless all earnest faithful workers for Him, under whatever name they labour!

We have always striven to make work among the young a chief object of our labours out here. We see many most interesting young men and women who have a few years ago been in the school here. Many of them are regular in their attendance at chapel, and interested in all good things. It cheers my heart greatly to look at their faces, and I believe some of them are really Christians, trying to live for Jesus and obey Him. It is hard work for them with their semi-heathen and heathen surroundings; but we have far more hope of them than of most of the adults who still cling to much of heathenism, while calling themselves by the name of Christ.

Just now the Queen is away out west, followed by all her Court, and all school work and most other teaching is either at a standstill or in a very poor condition. She has gone out to encourage the people in their repairing the great dykes and embankments, which are necessary to keep the river from flooding the great rice plains, and destroying the rice crop. Last year there was much destruction of rice, and it was quite time to attend to matters. All the people have been up working at this for the last six weeks, and they are not completed yet. As all Government business is unpaid service, and all the people have to do their share, other employments are greatly interrupted at present.

We have a native missionary society here, and many young men are just now greatly moved with regard to their duty in the matter. There are not wanting signs among us of growth in grace and realisation of the duty of Christians with regard to the heathen; but self-sacrifice here for Christ is but in its infancy, and we long to see greater things.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sunday, December 18, Isaiah xxxv. 1—10; Monday, December 19, Isaiah xxxviii. 1—8; Tuesday, December 20, Isaiah xxxviii. 9—22; Wednesday, December 21, Isaiah xxxix. 1—8; Thursday, December 22, Ps. xxxiv. 1—22; Friday, December 23, Ps. xxxv. 1—17; Saturday, December 24, Ps. xxxv. 18—28.

ISLINGTON.—On account of the Cattle Show the usual afternoon service could not be held in the Agricultural Hall on Sunday week. Rev. W. E. Haigh, vicar of Holy Trinity, offered the use of his church, adjacent to the hall. There the service was held, Dr. Thain Davidson conducting the entire devotional part, and Rev. G. D. Wyatt, of St. John's Church, Highbury Vale, preaching the sermon.

EALING Y.M.C.A.—This Association had an interesting anniversary lately in its new premises, Shaftesbury Hall. A good report was given of the year's progress; the agencies at work embrace Bible-classes, evangelistic, temperance, and prayer-meetings, &c. A missionary society has been started, which gives promise of increasing the practical interest of the members in the state of the heathen world. The secretary, Mr. Gray, being compelled by other claims to relinquish the post, he is succeeded by Mr. Kidner.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Martin J. Hall, Crosby, Liverpool, December 26 to January 2, 1888; Bournemouth, January 3—9; Southsea, January 8—13. Mr. George Banaster, Brooklands, Manchester, January 16—22; Yardley-end, Birmingham, Jan. 28 to February 4. Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Newcastle-on-Tyne, in January.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Rev. George Bowen, of Bombay.

As Christmas and New Year's days fall on Sunday, a correspondent makes the important suggestion that friends who send reminders of the season should do so in time for their delivery on the Saturday, to save the labour of the postmen on the Day of Rest.

We hope some of our readers who labour among the poor may be able to respond to the appeal made by Mr. Besant, in our correspondence columns, for information with respect to the conditions that surround the lives of our working women. Any who can do so will be furnished with the requisite forms on application to him.

We are sorry to have to report that the slight improvement noticed in Mr. Denham Smith's condition last week, has been followed by the appearance of symptoms which have caused fresh anxiety to his physicians and family, and which are accompanied by an increased prostration. His mind, however, still preserves its wonted calm and peaceful confidence.

Just as air and food are adapted to sustain the physical life of all men of every nation, so is the Gospel of Jesus Christ adapted to their spiritual needs. By the Gospel of Jesus Christ we mean his oneness with the Father; his incarnation; his life on earth; his propitiatory death, being made a curse for us; He who knew no sin made sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him; his glorious resurrection and ascension; his giving of the Holy Ghost, and his coming again in the glory of the Father.

The Religious Tract Society has very opportunely published a book which makes this evident. GOSPEL ETHNOLOGY, by S. R. Pattison (5s.), is written to prove from experience and fact that men of every race and colour, men in every stage of ignorance or culture, find in receiving the Gospel peace and rest. In the words of Livingstone, "We introduce entirely new motives, and were these not perfectly adapted to the human mind and heart by their Divine Author, we should have no success." We venture to say that no more timely or useful discussion could be presented for consideration, and its narrative form and abundant illustration make the book interesting to young and old.

The decision to send a British envoy to congratulate the Pope on attaining the fiftieth year of his priesthood must cause sorrow and regret to all loyal Protestant subjects. To give and receive gifts to and from the acknowledged head of that anti-Christian and idolatrous system, which is and has ever been the arch-enemy of freedom of conscience, and of the Bible, is more than inexpedient: it is treachery to our country's best interests. Any steps which may tend to the resumption of diplomatic or official intercourse with the Vatican should be most strenuously resisted. But, alas! how slow our statesmen are to recognise that in all the tortuous windings of her policy Rome never loses sight of her darling project of bringing England once more under her cruel heel.

It is stated on good authority that the Duke of Norfolk's personal present to the Pope upon his jubilee will consist of the sum of £10,000. It is the custom to speak in terms of sympathy with the Pope as being a prisoner in the Vatican; but if there is any seclusion in the case it is self-chosen, and it is a matter of common knowledge that in the Vatican the Pope is surrounded by everything that wealth can obtain. We should have thought, therefore, that the Duke of Norfolk might, had he looked around, have found nearer home a better way in which to dispose of his surplus wealth.

Jubilee gifts are pouring in upon the Pope from every hand, but his dream of the resumption of temporal power appears to be receding further and further from any probability of realisation. The allocution which he delivered at the Secret Consistory a few days ago was very desponding in tone; perhaps it could not well have been otherwise, seeing that it dealt with recent and proposed legislation on the part of the Italian Parliament, in regard to the regulation of Church property. Senator Cadorna's Bill, which provides for all ecclesiastical property to be entrusted to lay management, and another measure for secularising education, are especially obnoxious to the Papal party.

Perhaps never were the relations so strained between the Pope and the Italian Government as at present; and while the Papal organs are referring to Cadorna as a modern Henry VIII., the national papers deal with the measures only as a further instalment of righteous legislation in the direction of freedom from priestcraft. Meanwhile, anything like agreement between the parties seems as improbable as it did when Victor Emmanuel gave utterance to his brief speech on entering Rome, "Here we are, and here we mean to remain."

The manner in which some of our English bishops countenance the most unblushing sacerdotalism is a sore grief to multitudes of the best churchmen in the land. Something of a like order must be felt by the best of the Romanists in Italy. They are bishops who are agitating the peninsula for the restoration of the temporal power of the Pope. In Tuscany there has been much ferment, and the clerical party are charged with pressing forward conspiracy and revolution.

An excellent point has just been made by the Hulsean Lecturer at Cambridge (Rev. J. H. Lupton). Scientists charge the Church with opposing the progress of discovery. But, on the contrary, many of the most important scientific discoveries have been made by men of Christian faith. Copernicus was a Church canon; Kepler was a Christian preacher; John Rae, Cartwright, Whately, and Whewell, occupied themselves with theology. The same was emphatically true of Newton and Harvey; and the most prominent founders of the Royal Society were clergymen. It would be useful to remind young men of these facts.

An appropriate text for Advent Sundays: "Christ having been once offered to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time, apart from sin, to them that wait for Him, unto salvation" (Heb. ix. 28, R.V.). What a blessed comprehension of the two supreme truths of our religion, and of the attitude of those who will be partakers of its glorious promises.

Professor de Launay is giving his lectures on the Catacombs, in London and the provinces. Letters may be addressed to him to our care. To those who have not the opportunity of hearing him, and, indeed, to those who have, we commend Mr. Benjamin Scott's "Contents and Teachings of the Catacombs of Rome" (Longmans, 4s.) It is profusely illustrated, and shows the purity of early Christianity, and its corruption under the Romish Apostasy.

A recent report, published by the German factory inspectors, tends to show that England is not the only country in which hapless and hopeless men, women, and children toil for a bare pittance; or where Factory Acts are flagrantly evaded. In the Düsseldorf district, it is stated, children only four years old are employed in the works of polishers, harness-makers, and weavers. In many parts the legal hours of labour (from ten to twelve hours a day) are quite disregarded, and the practice of employing young children in factories is on the increase. Whereas in 1884 only 18,000 children were working in certified establishments, in 1886 the number was 21,000. It is said to be a very common thing to employ them under the legal age of twelve.

Outside the area of the above official figures (which refer only to properly certified places) the condition of things is even worse. In the course of an inquiry a year or two ago into the very extensive home industries of Germany, in which large numbers of children are engaged, it was found that an entire family of four, working for thirteen hours a day, could only earn about 9d. a day. In other parts of the German Empire, weavers have been known to earn only 4d. for twelve hours' work. Has East London anything to show much worse than this?

A princely act of benevolence on the part of Baron Hirsch is likely to have a great influence upon the future of the Jewish race. The Baron has offered two millions for the foundation in Russia of primary schools for the children of poor Jews, and forty thousand pounds in addition for works of charity. Both offers have been accepted by the Czar, and the amounts will now be paid into the Bank of England, Baron Rothschild and Baron de Worms being the trustees responsible for the payment to the Russian Minister of the Interior of the interest, which will amount to £100,000 per annum. It is said that Baron Hirsch's intention is that 1000 schools shall be opened, so that 50,000 children may be educated and kept from the streets.

Canon Liddon's sermon on the text, "Give an account of thy stewardship," preached recently in St. Paul's Cathedral, was full of teaching applicable to Christians of to-day, when social questions are assuming so much importance. "The surest way to fight anti-social theories," said the preacher, "lies in constant obedience to Christian doctrine, and in devotion to our duty as stewards of God." The whole sermon was a pressing home of that duty in its highest and noblest form, and of what the Canon aptly termed "the warnings of the Redeemer." It is given at length in last week's Christian World Pulpit.

No amount of money giving can make up for that personal interest in the lot of the poor which is evinced by the Christian visit, and by hand-to-hand dealing with the neccessitous. We are glad to find that at Lord Compton's Conference at the Memorial Hall, Cardinal Manning, at the close of a speech which was full of deep sympathy with the distressed poor, and which showed an intimate knowledge of the poor law and other systems of relief, re-iterated that opinion, and said, in advocating the necessity for a large body of voluntary agencies :—

> As large a number of men, and women too, as possible should visit the homes of the poor. That remedy has never yet been properly tried. There is something in the heart of every man which will respond to such personal influence and help as could thus be afforded. Such action would have a most beneficial result on the unhappy condition of our poorest classes.

It needs no long journey, unfortunately, to find fitting objects for the exercise of this Christian tenderness, and we are satisfied that many a life which now, without definite aim and object, seems to lack interest, would blossom and bloom if even a little time were given to visiting the poor in their homes, and in endeavouring, for Christ's sake, to lessen the burdens and sorrows of others.

A correspondent asks, concerning Evangelical Doctrine and Evangelical Church Communion :—

> Has anything less than the following ever been understood to be characteristic of, and unalterably essential to, an evangelic faith, ministry, and communion? Viz., first and foremost, as the fundamental principle, the supreme authority of the Holy Scriptures, as Divinely inspired throughout, and as the necessary and sufficient revelation, standard, and rule of faith and duty. With (as vital truths or doctrines clearly revealed therein) say these :—the Fall of man, and his utter ruin of condition and nature thereby; redemption by the Lord Jesus Christ, as the sinner's Substitute and Surety, through his blood and righteousness, received and applied by faith; regeneration by the Holy Spirit, or the implanting of a new and heavenly life in those who so believe.
>
> If this be so (and essentially it is, and is known to be so), what an amount of uncertainty, mystification, and (often) equivocation as to terms and meanings, as well as waste of words, in writing and speaking, might be avoided by coming to a clear understanding on these points at the outset of any question such as above, and on the first principle especially, as governing all else.

Not many years ago a traveller in the regions of Burmah described the rude tribe of the Karens, which is located upon the Siam-Burmah (the Western) border, as the most intractable, bloodthirsty and warlike, of the human race. They afford an excellent example of the civilising and pacifying effect of Christianity upon otherwise wild tribes. Some years ago several American missionaries started a mission amongst this tribe, and they have acquired such great influence over them, that during the events which preceded the late overthrow of the King of Burmah, and the subsequent disorder in that country, they took no part in it. Though fighting was going on all round them, and considerable danger was expected by the British from that side of Burmah; though rebellion and be put down, were on every side, yet, in place of this lately irrepressible tribe joining in the disorder, they listened to the advice of the missionaries, and merely organised themselves to keep out of their own borders the Dacoits, and to preserve their own peace. Throughout the whole of this revolution the Karens have remained in peace, and though the British officials were at first fearful lest these men should relapse into a warlike state of mind and the missionaries should lose their control of them, now they do not trouble themselves any more about them, because they know the missionaries and their teaching have entirely changed the character of the tribe.

"The Gospel made use of a workshop in which to mould and perfect the human character of its Founder." Sir Emilius Laurie's thought is good, and exactly what is needed now; that the workshop with its toil and even with its noise has a part to play in moulding individual Christians, and in perfecting our grasp of truth. For assuredly a workman who is master of his craft, and who lives close to God, does attain by his very position to some sides of Bible teaching never grasped by his rich brother or by the student minister. "In all labour there is profit," and each man's peculiar labour fits him for some special knowledge of the Lord Jesus.

When will our churches, at least the most powerful of our churches, learn this fact? When will they admit to real power godly laymen, and that from among the artisans? It is done, we know, in some churches, but not in all. The absence of godly "working men" from church councils is greatly to be regretted, for they often are able to throw much more light on questions connected with the work of God than their richer brethren, while their deep practical piety, and their sanctified common sense, often enable them to see the real bearing of a controverted point of doctrine more readily than a Christian of more varied education.

Sir Arthur Blackwood is moving to obtain replies from corporations on the subject of Sunday Postal Labour, in response to the recommendations of the Select Committee on the subject. It is deeply to be deplored that in many places Christian people have been sorely apathetic in relation to this whole matter. Corporations and Commissioners have been left to decide without any influence of public opinion from without. To postmen, whose rounds in many towns involve more than a hundred miles of walking a week, no more merciful boon could be given than that of Sunday rest. If anything is to be done it should be done without delay, and it should be known that to avoid all labour, individuals can have their Sunday letters retained until Monday. Surely we have Christianity enough among us to make this sacrifice.

THE BRIGHTON BOYS.—Mr. Ashby Wiffen, who for two years was the popular and successful secretary of the Brighton Y.M.C.A., has just opened a Youth's Club and Institute in Brighton, which bids fair to become a great success. There are gymnastics, games, classes for carpentering, &c., and every branch of the work is fully appreciated. On the opening night over one hundred young men joined, but as the applications for membership have been out of all proportion to the limited accommodation, no more members will be enrolled until after Christmas. Mr. Wiffen's address is 193, PULPIT AND STAGE.

There is little to choose between the culture of the ancients and that compromising teaching which finds vent in some of the pulpits to-day. It confounds Christianity with civilisation, and treats it as a "cult" to be measured by intellectual standards with the religious "cults" of all kinds and of all times. Salvation is not the product of scholarship, nor is eternal life the fruit of learning. Civilisation is a habit, and culture a development of the brain. Habits change; the brain perishes; but the soul will live for ever, and seeks for the truth which is eternal, and which is found only in Christ. It is lamentable that there are preachers who declare, in phrases of ambiguous import, a professed Christianity which has no Christ in it; and who are content to amaze and amuse their hearers by elocutionary arts rather than warn them of "the wrath to come," and point them to the cross of Christ as the only safe refuge.

A favourite method of these preachers is to declaim concerning the Church of the future, which they represent will be a compromise between Christianity and the "instincts" of nature. Thus Mr. Haweis, preaching in the church of St. James's, Marylebone, on December 4, declared that "the Church of the future would have to make room for the drama among other things," because "man is essentially a dramatic animal." Then he proceeded to say :—

> The actor who impersonates a villain......is, in a well-balanced play, engaged in giving a true presentment of life with that right moral thrust to which he is indispensable......He is purified in the fire of the universal sympathy. He goes down to his house justified.

Strip these phrases of their glittering tinsel, and you find a commonplace excuse for theatre-goers. Because the villain gets punished in the play, a good moral lesson is taught by it. But no word of warning was given by the preacher against the suggestions of evil courses so often made by plays which point out to the excited minds of the audience new ways of perpetrating sin with cleverness. Nothing was said of the blighting effect of the delusive views of life young people get at a theatre, nor of the swift mental decline of the pleasure-seeker. A moral teacher ought to have pointed out these objections; a Christian preacher should have refuted the whole argument.

Speaking of the ballet, Mr. Haweis said that not the display of the human outline, or the exposure of the human body were wrong, but the conditions, times, and seasons of such display, which he did not define. This teaching seems to us highly dangerous in its speciousness. Where is the sanction for it? The teaching of Christ was widely different. He said, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." This is the Christian's faith, and in this he perceives and accepts his principle of life. Whatever tends in any degree to impurity of thought, to sully the purity of his heart, irrespective of "the conditions, the times, or the seasons," he must utterly reject. The Church of the future will not make room for the drama or the ballet, because it will be the Church of the spotless Jesus.

LEPER HOME AT JERUSALEM.

Leprosy still lingers in Palestine, in its frightful forms of corruption and death. In 1865, the Baroness von Keffenbrinck Ascheraden visited the Holy City, and, moved by compassion for the forlorn and pitiable condition of the lepers, whom she saw outside the gates of Jerusalem, she resolved to found a small asylum for such sufferers. In 1880, at the request of the foundress, the Moravian Church undertook the care and responsibility of the Home. The work has been carried on, not without spiritual blessing, for twenty years. Last spring, a breakdown in the nursing staff necessitated a call for volunteers, and an immediate response came from twelve Christian women in Germany and England. The three selected from these are now assisting Mr. and Mrs. Müller, the self-denying and indefatigable missionaries in charge of the Home.

A new hospital was opened last April. To this the patients of the old hospital have been transferred, and others have since been received. But with the most careful housekeeping the ability to admit more of these incurables involves enlarged expense of maintenance, nor is the cost of the new building entirely defrayed.

A letter received from Mr. Müller gives some idea of the terrible character of the disease which he and his helpers are seeking to alleviate. He says:—

"A few days ago one of these unfortunates, named Musa, died in our house. He had been here for ten years. On arrival he was quite active and comparatively strong, notwithstanding his fearful infection. Later his strength forsook him, and loathsome sores began to appear on his arms and legs. In spite of medicine and the application of salves, these spread more and more, gradually consuming the flesh, until in many places the bones could be seen. At last the sufferer was entirely confined to bed, and this for months. There he lay, a living skeleton, groaning and moaning piteously to be released from his torment. We were filled with indescribable horror and pity whenever we looked at him. Six days before his death he could no longer eat, his throat appearing to be completely closed. We could afford him no relief; the only thing to do was to pray the Saviour to release him from his suffering.

"We have seen many die of this terrible disease, some afflicted more and others less. At present we have twenty-two lepers in the Home. They have all to be bandaged daily and must be nursed like little children. Some of them have neither fingers nor toes, the leprosy having done its work. It pervades every portion of the body, but as soon as the throat is affected, death is sure to follow, because starvation ensues.

"The misery of the leper outside our walls is enhanced by the cruelty of his relatives. He is utterly forsaken by them and must die alone in some cave or hole, his only refuge. This would not be the case if he were willing at once to come to the Leper Home; but too frequently he is tardy to acknowledge the fact of his leprosy, considering it a shame and disgrace to be in such a loathsome condition. No real remedy for leprosy has yet been found, but good nursing and Christian treatment go a great way towards alleviating these frightful sufferings."

FIELD-LANE RAGGED-SCHOOLS.—A correspondent writes:—The other day I looked in at Field-lane Refuges about midday. In the infant schoolroom I saw nearly two hundred of the poorest children of the neighbourhood having a free dinner, perhaps the only hot and comfortable meal they have the whole day through. While some could be said to be clothed, many were only partially covered by their rags. I was cheered to find that four days a week these hungry little ones get a warm dinner, but sorry to learn that the Institution have to close the door against as many more for want of help. To sustain this work of relief, the workers need joints of meat, bags of rice, tapioca, sago, hominy, split peas, pea flour, turnips and carrots, and parcels of clothing. The secretary is Mr. P. Platt, Field-lane Schools, Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.

RATCLIFF STRANGERS' REST.

The workers' meeting last week took the form of a free supper to 200 hungry men. Some of them, says a correspondent, had just come out of jail; some were about to go to sea with every evidence of having been under treatment by "landsharks"; some seemed honest London "unemployed." During the frugal but ample meal Gospel songs were sung.

Addresses followed from Messrs. W. T. Lane, Ned Wright, Charles Inglis, and J. B. Wookey. These friends presented the Gospel message to the guests, some of them rehearsing scenes from their own experience well calculated to implant hope in the minds of the most forlorn and friendless. At the close of the addresses Mr. Isaac drew the net, when a dozen or more expressed a desire for salvation. Altogether, the gathering was a very interesting and hopeful one. If the generosity of Christian friends is extended to the workers, other meetings of a similar kind will be given.

GAMBLING-HOUSES IN LONDON.

In last week's issue of The British Weekly there is a further exposure of the practices in vogue at these centres of corruption that are thickly strewn about the Metropolis. In summing up the writer says:—

"In these dens, and by them, thousands of men reduce themselves, and what is more, those dependent on them, to various degrees of wretchedness and misery. It is not only the cases of absolute ruin which must be taken into account, but also the vastly more numerous cases of temporary ill. The evil is so great as to constitute a grave social scandal. The number of the clubs, their disposition throughout the whole of the Metropolis, the attraction which they exert for certain classes in particular, and the enormous extent of their influence in general, render it incumbent that some steps be taken to remove the scandal. It is a reproach upon society that most of us stand by quietly whilst in droves the foolish are contaminated by a pestilent crew who are allowed to carry on their poisonous traffic under our eyes.

"Who shall measure the direct material evil done by gambling-clubs? It cannot be measured. Its ramifications are far too subtle and contorted to be followed. And if this is the case with material harm, how is it possible to gauge the effect to the full of the infinitely more subtle moral ill which they spread? We have been too long blind, and the responsibility for the present state of things lies upon society, upon each and all of us. It behoves us to inquire whether the law makes provision for dealing effectually with gaming-houses. If it does not, then law must be made. But if it does, the further inquiry is necessary as to why the law is not carried out. In this case the blame rests on the shoulders of the officers of the law in the first place; but ultimately it is our own blame. If the public does but insist, the police, their servants, must obey. The matter is in our own hands. Shall we stand quietly by any longer?"

FLORENCE MEDICAL MISSION.—This Mission combines the advantages of a seaside Convalescent Home at Viareggio. The medical mission, Sunday-school, and soup kitchen were actively carried on during the winter and spring months. Gifts of clothing, &c., for the poor will be gratefully received by Rev. J. R. MacDougall, 11, Lung Arno, Guicciardini, Florence.

PICTORIAL SCRIPTURE MATCH-BOXES.—A correspondent sends us from Italy a specimen penny cardboard match-box, the exterior of which bears on one side the fifteenth verse of Genesis xxiv., and on the other a picture illustrating it. Our friend suggests that if manufacturers of match and chocolate boxes were to adopt this plan, with carefully selected texts, such silent messengers might do untold good. We commend the idea to the consideration of any of our readers who may have facilities for promoting such a scheme.

ASSURANCE.

"Now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known."—1 Cor. xiii. 12.

Thy will, my Father, choose for me,
Short is my tear-dimmed sight;
I fain would leave it all to Thee
Who dwellest in the light.

I know that Thou hast gifts in store
Far more than I can tell;
I see but darkly, yet am sure
Thou doest all things well.

I know thy choice for me is love
Beyond my fondest dream;
And through the sweeping clouds above
I see heaven's starlight gleam.

I know thy choice for me is light,
And I shall see it there,
When, passing from the shades of night,
I climb day's "golden stair."

All love, all light; my Father's will
Is my calm resting-place;
Lord, let me love and trust, until
I see Thee face to face.

Then shall I know as I am known;
With joy triumphant tell,
What now I know by faith alone—
Thou hast done all things well.

J. H. S.

REV. E. P. HAMMOND IN DENVER.

This evangelist has been conducting a mission at Denver, in the Far West, and, judging from the newspaper reports, he has been making some considerable stir among the people. His methods, as many know well on this side the Atlantic, are not at all of the conventional kind, and that of course is an element of attraction to the curious. At all events, from whatever motive, the people crowd to the meetings held by the evangelist, and he succeeds to a wonderful degree in getting a grip of their consciences by his presentation of the truth.

Fifteen years ago, Mr. Hammond visited the same place, and at that time had some remarkable experiences of preaching in gambling resorts, and inducing notorious sinners to relinquish their evil ways and turn to the Lord. During the present mission, he has related some of the most striking reminiscences of these stirring times, and in that way awakened fresh interest in connection with the work. The reports we have received bring the mission up to the end of the first week, and state that there have been many conversions, especially among children. On our page for the young, we reproduce a graphic account of a children's service.

WORKING MEN IN SUNDERLAND.—Weekly noonday services are conducted by ministers of different denominations in the shipbuilding yards and other centres of labour in Sunderland. Amid many difficulties and discouragements consequent upon the depression in trade, the work has been faithfully continued, and workers have seen not a little fruit resulting from their efforts in the changed lives of many of the men. Mr. Thomas Scott is the honorary superintendent

EDINBURGH MEDICAL MISSIONARY SOCIETY.—This Society contributes largely to the suppor of medical missions in all parts of the world. Th reports presented in its quarterly paper are of th utmost interest, and show that, whether in India o China, or in countries nearer home, the man wh goes about seeking to heal the sick has grand opportunities for sowing the seed of the Gospel. Dr Christie, in Northern China, and Dr. Fry, of th Travancore Mission, have received great encouragement in their work. Medico-evangelistic tours undertaken by these missionaries, have been especially fruitful in blessing. Good accounts hav also been received from Spain, Smyrna, and Cair Rev. John Lowe, 56, George-square, Edinburgh, i the secretary of the Society.

Letters to the Editor.

WORKING WOMEN: THEIR PRESENT AND THEIR FUTURE.

Sir,—I beg to be allowed to make an appeal for assistance of a kind which will certainly involve a considerable amount of personal activity and effort, and will call for the exercise of some tact, sympathy and discretion. It is proposed by certain persons interested in the present condition of working women, to hold a Conference towards the end of the year, at which the facts of the female labour market may be clearly and dispassionately set forth; the extent, area, and nature of the evils which undoubtedly exist may be laid down with some precision; and, if that may also follow, remedies or alleviation may be found.

Such a Conference might have been held at once, for the mere purpose of discussing methods of relief for the well-known and widely spread diseases of over work and under pay. There are in London and other large centres thousands of women continually occupied in miserable toil for wretched wages, who never venture to hope for any cessation or relaxation of the life sentence to which they were doomed at their birth. The Conference might have proceeded on the assumption that these things have long been notorious. Yet the case for the women will be undoubtedly strengthened tenfold by the collection, the classification, and the publication of all the facts, apart from feeling, sentiment, hasty blame, and perhaps misplaced sympathy. This has never been done. True, figures and facts have from time to time been printed in certain journals, and for certain trades: but the whole facts connected with women's industries—the hours and pay, the fluctuations of the demand, the competition of Germans and Jews, the effect of Free Trade, the freaks of fashion, the social and moral aspects of their work—have never been adequately investigated or treated. We do not aspire, of course, to collect and collate the entire facts in the brief time at command before the Conference, but we propose to attempt an indication of them, as it were, on as wide a scale, and in as thorough a manner as possible.

The Committee formed by those who have originated this enterprise, contains among others: The Hon. Miss Maud Stanley, Mrs. S. A. Barnett, Mrs. Rayner, Mrs. Heckford, Mrs. Alison, Mrs. Verney, Rev. S. A. Barnett, Rev. Brook Lambert, Rev. Fleming Williams, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, the Earl of Meath, Mr. George R. Sims, Professor Stuart, Mr. Arnold White, Mr. Verney, Mr. A. A. Knight, and Mr. William Hill. We have divided ourselves for convenience into three sub-committees: one, on existing agencies, associations, trades unions, &c., established by or for working women; one, on the relations of work to the social life; and one, on wages, hours, and the condition of the work. We have drawn up a set of questions for each of these sub-committees. The questions are not intended to be put seriatim and verbatim, but are proposed as a guide to any who will assist us in this inquiry.

We invite, through your columns, the assistance of all persons who have the power of collecting information, and can get access to working women. There are in every parish, and belonging to every church and chapel, ladies who spend the greater part of their lives in and among the houses of the working classes. It is more especially to these ladies, whose tact, disinterestedness, and sympathy have endeared them to the people, that we appeal for assistance. But the co-operation of men of all classes really interested in this movement is earnestly desired, and will be cordially accepted.

The Committee have no views of their own to advance, and no theories to defend.—Yours obediently,

Walter Besant,
Hon. Treasurer of the Committee of the Working Women Conference.

Adelphi Hotel, Adam-street, Strand, W.C.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.

Sir,—Will you kindly permit us to bring before your readers the claims of the work in which we are engaged in the London Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children?

The following facts speak for themselves:—In our three years' history, since our founding at the Mansion House in July 1884, we have dealt with 762 more or less cruel people for the most part by moral influence. In 132 worse cases, many almost incredible, we have had resort to the law, and have obtained 120 convictions. Of the total number of 762 cases, we find that 333 were cases of injuries inflicted by assault, 81 of starvation (some of these of farmed-out babies and children insured), 130 of dangerous neglect, 32 of desertion, 70 of cruel exposure to excite sympathy in the streets, and 116 of other wrongs.

Our efforts have not been confined to London, but have extended to many parts of the country. We do not interfere with mere parental indiscretion, but only with deeds of cruelty which render child-life unendurable—25 cases ending with the victims' death. When punishment is inflicted it is always followed with indirect, but real supervision.

At this season of the year we feel that our work must appeal very powerfully to all generous hearts. The following ladies will be glad to receive help on behalf of our work:—The Countess of Iddesleigh, 23, Manchester-square, W.; Lady Henderson, 4, Gledhow-gardens, S.W.; Lady Whittaker Ellis, Buccleuch House, Richmond.—Yours,

R. Ruthven Pym, Treasurer.
Benjn. Waugh, Hon. Sec.

7, Harpur-street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

A REMEDY FOR THE PRESENT DISTRESS.

Dear Sir,—Politicians and philanthropists are very busy. Schemes without number are suggested for the amelioration of the condition of the people. It is to be wished that there was a greater willingness to trace that condition to its chief cause.

It has been my lot to visit a large number of workhouses, reformatories, industrial schools, refuges, and hospitals, also the prisons at Hull, Glasgow, Edinburgh, and Greenock, and on very close and careful investigation, I have found that by far the larger proportion of the inmates of these institutions were the victims of strong drink; perhaps not all drunkards, but in some way the victims of our drinking customs. I have traced the history of the children in our industrial schools, and find the record, with scarcely any exception, something like this, "Father, a drunkard; mother, dead." "Mother, a drunkard; father, not known."

I have seen numbers of ragged creatures unwashed, uncombed, and many with naked feet, coming to accept a gratuity of soup and bread; and I have noted a terrible fact, that the greater number brought the publicans' cans, which they had retained, after draining them of the poison for which, probably, the last penny had been paid: thus, the effect of our well-meant efforts to feed, clothe, and educate, is to fill the pocket of the drink-seller.

At this moment in the midst of the "present distress" I suppose that two millions sterling per week is considerably below the amount spent in Great Britain and Ireland for intoxicating drink; to say nothing of tobacco, which would be about a quarter of a million more. Let us, for three months, otherwise appropriate this destructive expenditure of nearly thirty millions of money. We will say eight millions for good wholesome nutritious food, not excluding some luxuries, such as fish, game, fruit, and poultry; eight millions for all kinds of clothing, including hats, caps, boots, and a liberal allowance for millinery to satisfy the ladies; eight millions for building, furniture, repairs and decorations; three millions for innocent and healthful recreation, excursions, &c. We have still three millions surplus for charities, home and foreign missions, and other evangelistic work. Mark! all this is just one quarter of a year. Muliply it by four, and such would be the change on our beloved country that it would be something like a fulfilment of the promise, "The desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." The demand for everything useful would far exceed the supply; so would the demand for labour, with a corresponding advance in wages, and all this substantial gain would be accompanied by a rapid reduction in poor-rates, and in the cost of criminal prosecutions, prisons, and police.

Here is a remedy, involving nothing but the sacrifice of a superfluous and injurious luxury, and a filthy, disgusting habit. Let Great Britain try it, and let politicians and philanthropists take the lead. I would add to my own the testimony of the noble Samuel Morley, who stated his deliberate conviction that three-fourths of the destitution and degradation which we all deplore are self-inflicted. I believe he spoke the truth.

Sudbury, Suffolk. Jonathan Grubb.

EDUCATED "MOTHERS' HELPS."

Dear Sir,—Some time ago I read a letter in your paper in which the unpractical education given to middle-class girls was commented upon. The subject has just been brought before me by the fact that having advertised for a "Mother's Help" I have had scores of answers from young persons in all parts of England, Scotland, and Ireland. These girls almost all undertake the entire charge of children, having been trained for this, or having had experience either in their own families or in situations. Almost all have been well educated, are daughters of clergymen, professional men, farmers, &c., and from their letters and references seem bright, sensible, capable young women.

Why should not these girls take the place so often entrusted to an ignorant nurse-girl? I have had letters from mothers, recommending some of my correspondents with a warmth and affection begat of faithful, loving service. How much better would little children be trained by an educated nurse, who would teach them good English and refined manners. How happy a good girl might be with her little charge and with the affection of the parents, who would have the gratification of helping to cherish and train one who would in her turn make a wise and useful mother.

The general impression, however, is that such a situation causes a girl to lose caste. Cannot this cease to be, at any rate among God's people? Could not Christian mothers introduce their helper as a friend? Could not girls whose circumstances do not require such a position make friends and equals of their working sisters? Could not fathers and sons be as courteous to these working bees as to the butterflies of the drawing-room? On the other hand, the young woman should devote herself to her charge, not desiring to intrude into the tête-à-tête of the family, taking all the quiet time she can for keeping up and improving her education.

If any lady will write to me (enclosing stamped directed envelope for reply), I have many very superior girls among my recent correspondents, who would, I believe, be valuable mothers' helps.

Yours, &c., M. Fraser.

Sunnybank, Merton, Surrey.

WALDENSIAN CHURCH MISSIONS.—In the current number of that interesting little periodical, A Voice from Italy, there is much valuable information with reference to the work of the Waldensian Church. The Church has had this year to mourn the loss through death of many of her most prominent members. All information may be obtained of the Secretary, Major M Frobisher, 118, Pall Mall, S.W.

HOSTELS FOR LADY WORKERS.—Dear Sir,—Since leaving Snelston Rectory, Derbyshire, I have joined a small committee for the formation of hostels, or home-like boarding-houses, for lady workers. They are to be entirely self-supporting. The first of these will be opened on January 1, at 69, Lancaster-road, Notting-hill. Ladies who work among the poor, especially in night work, need fresh air, clean rooms, and good attendance, and their friends wish for them the security of good protection. We hope many refined and educated Christians may be induced by these London Hostels to come forward and devote themselves to home work for Christ.

Faithfully yours, Adelaide Ross.

38, Chepstow Villas, Bayswater, W.

GAMBLING.—At the Lichfield Diocesan Conference, Rev. H. P. Stokes, of Wolverhampton, read a paper on "Gambling," and protested against the countenance given to it by those occupying the highest positions in the country. He said they found the gentleman nearest the Throne in this country spending week after week at the headquarters of turfdom; and during the anxious times through which Ireland had been passing this year, the Queen's representative in the sister island had been frequently found on racecourses in England. It was time that the spiritual advisers of the Crown should give expression to the anxiety and fear which were widely felt. He also cautioned clergymen against gambling at bazaars, &c., and urged them to preach against betting in all its forms.

The Book World.

Mr. Spurgeon on Soul Winning.

Messrs. Passmore & Alabaster have just issued, at a penny, the admirable address on Soul Winning, delivered by Mr. Spurgeon to the members of the Open-Air Mission. It has been revised by the speaker, and is full of earnest, living matter. Every minister, missionary, and Christian worker should read it. One of the deacons of the Metropolitan Tabernacle declared, after its delivery, that he had seldom heard the famous preacher to greater advantage.

A Posthumous Work.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton issue a book by the late Dr. W. P. Mackay, of Hull, entitled Notes on the Books of the Bible. It is not unworthy of its well-known predecessor, "Grace and Truth," although it is very uneven in quality. We like best his notes on the Romans, the Hebrews, and the Revelation. From these any devout Christian, however well instructed, will be able to learn much for himself, and to gather many hints for teaching others. (2s. 6d.)

Scripture Doctrine of the Holy Spirit.

We cannot be too often reminded of the personality and power of the Third Person of the Trinity. Dr. Clement Clemance proves himself in this work to be a spiritual and Scriptural remembrancer. In the present day of many churches, societies, great meetings, and elaborate religious machinery, the source of all real power is apt to be overlooked. In recording the outburst of evangelical preaching and appearance of many evangelical societies at the opening of this century, Dr. Clemance does well to remind us that united agonising prayer at the close of the previous century was the cause of those revivals. "Prayer moves the arm that moves the world," and who is the author of true prayer but the Holy Ghost? (Snow & Co.)

Manual of Biblical Archæology.

Dr. Keil's name will be well known to many of our readers as the joint author of Keil and Delitzsch's Commentaries on the Old Testament, which are, taken as a whole, the best series of commentaries upon the Hebrew text. In them will be found continual reference to Keil's "Biblical Archæology." It is the new edition of this which is translated in the volume before us. As Dr. Crombie, the editor, truly says: "The amount of information which the work contains is immense, and it must long remain the standard treatise in a scientific form on Biblical Archæology." We are thankful to be able to add that it is written in a thoroughly orthodox and even devotional spirit. This, the first volume, deals chiefly with the Tabernacle and Temple and the Sacrifices, (10s. 6d. T. & T. Clark, Edinburgh.)

A Thrilling Story.

A more thrilling narrative we have seldom met with than Mr. E. J. Mather's book Nor'ard of the Dogger, just issued by Messrs. Nisbet & Co. (5s.) It contains the history, from its inception down to the present time, of the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen which Mr. Mather was instrumental in founding some six years ago, and which has proved such a priceless boon to these hardy toilers on the treacherous ocean. Talk of the "romance of missions"! This book is the record of one continuous miracle. Mr. Mather is fairly possessed by his subject, and well he may be. We shall be greatly mistaken if his story does not possess its readers to an unusual degree. Let those who question the efficacy of prayer read it, and they can question no longer. Let our "Mr. Feeblefaiths" and our "Mr. Ready-to-Halts" read it, that they may be inspired with courage and trust. Let those who are sceptical about the results of Christian work scan its pages, and their doubts must flee like the morning mists. Apart from its report of the wondrous changes that have come o'er the spirit of the smacksman's dream, in six short years, it would be sufficiently thrilling if only for its graphic portraiture of the perils encountered by fishermen round and about the Dogger Bank; and its stories of heroic deeds, beside which the reputation gained at the cannon's mouth is a hollow thing indeed. The telling pictures by Messrs. Wells and Staniland are worthy of the narratives they illustrate, and the whole forms in our judgment the book of the season. We hope in an early issue to give a consecutive narrative of the Missions with a portrait of its founder.

Studies in Scripture.

Seek and ye shall find. The four greater Prophets, Part I., Isaiah, Part IV., Daniel, arranged for household reading and use of schools. By C. M. and S. I. M. 1s. each. J. Nisbet & Co. This is an interesting attempt on the part of a Christian couple to make the results of their own Biblical reading available for their household. Of the two parts before us, we much prefer that on Daniel, in which the recent assured results of criticism are clearly apprehended and lucidly told. We fear the language is hardly simple enough for households, and we doubt if the work is consecutive and systematic enough for schools. We hope, nevertheless, that C. M. and S. I. M. will continue their labours.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Hymns and Meditations. By W. T. N. Wyman & Sons, Great Queen-street. These hymns are sound in doctrine, and likely to encourage many who are downcast. A few come very near to real poetry.

Christians and Christians. By Rev. F. S. Webster. 1s. Marshall Bros. This little collection of addresses by the Principal of the Church Army Training Home is quaint, and very excellent. We commend it to those who wish to find a small, neat, and attractive Christmas present.

Sermons from a Sick-room. By Rev. Alexander Mackennal, B.A., D.D. Simpkin, Marshall & Co. Very excellent sermons, too! especially the second, on the duty of sympathy with others in their joy. We hope, if a second edition is called for, it will be published in slightly larger type, so that, as it comes from a sick-room, it may be excellent for a sick-room.

Soul-Winning. By Rev. Forster Crozier. Introduction by Rev. Thomas Champness. 1s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. Mr. Champness's endorsement is a guarantee that this little volume contains useful hints and plain-spoken advice. The contents do not belie the expectation. Though especially intended for our Wesleyan brethren, we advise all who are in earnest about soul-winning to procure Mr. Crozier's book for themselves.

Those who have followed with interest the steps of that intrepid and devoted young Christian missionary, Mr. F. S. Arnot, of Glasgow, ought to read the pamphlet issued by Mr. J. E. Hawkins, "Six months more among the Garenganze," comprising letters from Mr. Arnot between September, 1886, and March of the present year. Such a record of work, undertaken single-handed in the name and strength of God, among heathen tribes, and far removed from the aids of civilised life and Christian companionship, is seldom met with in missionary annals.

Dan, by A. J. F., is a well-written and pathetic story for young readers, the characters and scenes drawn from life amongst the London poor. (1s. W. B. Whittingham & Co., 91, Gracechurch-street, E.C.).

A new development of The Quiver Bible-class, now established for about a quarter of a century, and numbering thousands of young Bible students, will be inaugurated in the January number of The Quiver. This new feature is entitled, "The Quiver Bible Reading Society"; in connection with which prizes will be offered for intelligent notes on a prescribed course of Bible-reading. The old Bible-class will not be absorbed into the Society, but will work hand in hand with it.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—Mountain Musings, and other Poems, by Rev. Newman Hall, LL.B.

Messrs. Rivingtons, Waterloo-place, S.W.:—The Faith of the Gospel, by Rev. Arthur James Mason, B.D.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin:—The Pharaohs of the Bondage and the Exodus, by Rev. Charles S. Robinson. 5s.

The Church Missionary Society, Salisbury-square, Fleet-street:—The Gleaner Pictorial Album. Vol. i. 5s.

Mr. Elliot Stock:—The Structure of the Book of the Acts of the Apostles in the light of "The Kingdom to Israel," by Zetetes.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—The Catacombs of Rome and their testimony relative to Primitive Christianity, by Rev. W. H. Withrow, 6s.

Messrs. T. & T. Clark, 38, George-street, Edinburgh:—The Life of Christ, by Rev. Professor Salmond, D.D. (Bible-class Primers Series). 6d.

Messrs. W. Hunt & Co., 12, Paternoster-row:—"Protestant Purgatory; Can it be Proved?" by Rev. H. Lindsay Young, vicar of St. John's, Portsea. 6d.

Mr. A. Holness, 14, Paternoster-row:—The Story of Isaac Levinsohn, a Polish Jew. Told by himself. 1s.—Faithful Words for Old and Young. Annual Volume. 1s. 6d.

The Topaz, the Christmas number of The Church of England Temperance Chronicle, contains an interesting budget of seasonable matter, mostly on temperance lines.

Messrs. J. Nisbet & Co.:—Notes on some Prophecies indicating the probable relation between England and Egypt in the last days, by the Author of "Notes on Daniel vii." 8s. 6d.

Mr. William Paterson, 8, Lovell's-court, Paternoster-row:—The Discoveries of Columbus and of the English in America, by Rev. Henry P. Dunster.—Young Benjamin Franklin, by Henry Mayhew.—Stories of the Conquests of Mexico and Peru, by William Dalton.—Emblems, Divine and Moral, by Francis Quarles.

Religious Tract Society:—De Incarnatione Verbi Dei, by Athanasius, Archbishop of Alexandria (Christian Classics Series, No. III.). 2s.—Gospel Ethnology. by S. R. Pattison. 5s.—Scripture Natural History: (1) The Trees and Plants mentioned in the Bible, by William H. Groser, B.Sc. 3s.—Present Day Tracts. Volume ix. 2s. 6d.—Present Day Tracts on the non-Christian Philosophies of the Age. 3s. 6d.

Pamphlets, &c., Received.—Messrs. Marshall Bros., 10, Paternoster-row:—"A Life on Fire" (for the New Year), by Miss I. Lilias Trotter. "The 'Fear not' of the Bible," by E. A. Arnold. 1d. each.—Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling, N.B.:—"No Hope," by Cheyne Brady. 1s. per dozen.—Mr. J. E. Hawkins, 17, Paternoster-row:—"Behold Jesus!" by Rev. Herbert Cooper, B.A. 9d. per dozen.—Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.:—"The Fourth Watch." A Christmas Story, by Mrs. Mary Georges. 1d.—Messrs Macniven & Wallace, 138, Princes-street, Edinburgh:—"The Place, the Power, and the Claims of Gospel Total Abstinence," by Canon Wilberforce. 3d.—Mr. E. Donajowski, 1, Little Marlborough-street, W.:—"The Art of Respiration," by B. Lütgen. 6d.—The South American Missionary Society:—"Allen Gardiner in Terra del Fuego."—Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co.:—"I've Got my Receipt": A true story by E. S. Elliott.—Scottish Temperance League, Hope-street, Glasgow:—Two pictorial New Year's tracts: "Drunkenness, its Curse, Cause, and Cure," and "The People versus the 'Public,'" by James Guthrie Brechin. 1s. 3d. per 100.—Mr. A. Stevenson, Edinburgh:—"More Stories for the Young," by J. Forbes Moncrieff. 1d.—Messrs. C. Glass & Co., Glasgow:—"A Little on a Large Subject," by J. Forbes Moncrieff. 1d.—Messrs. W. Hunt & Co.:—"Young Churchman's Scripture Searching Almanack. 1d.—Jarrold & Sons:—"Norwich Text Almanack." 1d.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

Mr. George Blaiklock has lectured on the temperance question in Cornwall and Devon.

Nine-tenths of the students at present in the Free Church of Scotland colleges are total abstainers.

At the Wesleyan Institution, Birmingham, of 55 ministerial students in residence 52 are total abstainers.

Speaking at Shoreditch, recently, Sir Charles Russell attributed much of the prevailing distress to the drink traffic.

Archdeacon Farrar's recent article in The Contemporary Review on the drink traffic with native races is being published as a pamphlet, with a preface by the author.

The Recorder of Cork has refused all applications for new public-house licences on the ground that nearly all the crime, and most of the distress, in the city of Cork is due to drink.

Professor Charteris, Dr. Affleck, Professor Calderwood, Rev. Principal Cairns, and Dr. P. A. Young addressed a recent social meeting of Edinburgh University Total Abstinence Society.

At a temperance conference of Glasgow Free Church Presbytery, it was resolved to correspond with Established and United Presbyterian Presbyteries, with a view to united action.

Mr. Francis Darwin, in the life of his father, the famous scientist, says: "He had a horror of drinking, and constantly warned his boys that anyone might be led into drinking too much."

Mr. W. Catlin, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, N., has reprinted, as a leaflet, the striking article on the evils of the drink, that recently appeared in The Echo entitled, "The Mother of Many Miseries."

At the meeting held at the Great Assembly Hall for the inauguration of a national Prohibition party, a resolution was passed strongly urging the Government to prevent the introduction of the liquor traffic into the island of New Guinea.

"Bright Eyes" (Mrs. T. H. Tibbles) is horrified at the drunkenness she has seen in Edinburgh and Glasgow, particularly among women. Drunkenness has been banished from her tribe, and how the people of this religious country should be unable to do the same is a puzzle to her.

FOREIGN.

Prohibition was lost in Oregon by a small majority.

The Supreme Court of the United States has declared the liquor Prohibition laws of the State of Kansas to be valid.

New South Wales Parliament has, by 46 to 13, passed Local Option resolution on the same lines as Sir Wilfri Lawson's.

A conference of Baptist missionaries, held at Calcutta have passed a resolution condemning exaggerated state ments that have been made as to the increase of intem perance among native Christians in India. They stat that it is an extremely small minority among the nativ Christians who have anything to do with intoxicatin drinks.

In a review of the work of the past year, at the annua convention of the National W.C.T.U. at Nashvill Tenn., Miss F. Willard spoke hopefully of the prospect of the work. A new department of the Union in th interests of international peace is being arranged. Mr Leavitt, the round-the-world missionary of the Unior now in India, intends to visit Madagascar, Africa, Asi Minor, and other places.

EVANGELISTS TO THE NEGROES.

The visit of Mr. Herbert R. Francis a few months ago to the United States has led in the providence of God to his returning there with Mrs. Francis, to preach the Gospel in the Southern States. Soon after our return Mr. Smithson called on us inquiring whether we knew any evangelists who would be likely to accept an invitation to labour among the coloured people in Virginia. We mentioned our above-named friends, and they will sail, God willing, on the 24th inst. Their address until the 22nd inst. will be Montrose, The Drive, Walthamstow, E., and after their arrival in America, Y.M.C.A., Norfolk, Virginia, U S.A. Mr. Smithson's request was stated in our columns, and was seen by Colonel Drury-Lowe, the brother of the late General Drury-Lowe.

At the noon meeting, 186, Aldersgate-street, on Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Francis spoke of the way in which they had been led, and Col. Drury-Lowe gave a very touching account of his conversion, on December 24, 1880, in his own room; of his gaining assurance of faith under Mr. Moody at St. Pancras, and of the exercises of heart which had convinced him that it was the will of God he should go out to Virginia on the same vessel with Mr. and Mrs. Francis, on December 24th, the seventh anniversary of his conversion. They were commended to God in prayer, and our readers will, we are sure, also remember them, that they may be blessed, and made a blessing on the great American Continent.

◆

OBITUARY.

MISS HELEN JEMIMA CHALMERS.

This lady, a daughter of the late Dr. Thomas Chalmers, died last week in Edinburgh in her sixty-first year. She took a deep interest in the territorial work that her father originated, and among her latest benefactions was the erection of the hall, opened the other day, in connection with Fountainbridge Church. She was not privileged herself to see the building she had provided. Three daughters of Dr. Chalmers still survive.

MR. D. STEWART.

Great regret will be felt in many parts of Scotland at the sudden death of Mr. Donald Stewart, of Kirkmichael, Perthshire, which took place at Dunoon on the 4th inst., aged seventy-one. The deceased gentleman, who belonged to one of the most ancient families in Scotland, was a zealous member of the Free Church. He threw himself heart and soul into the revival movements, and laboured for many years wherever he could most promote the cause of God. He especially devoted his energies to missions amongst the islands on the West Coast of Scotland, where he was much beloved, and where his loss will be especially mourned.

A SUCCOURER OF MANY.

Many of our Anglo-Indian and Continental readers will be grieved to hear of the death, on December 4, at Worthing, of Mrs. Clarke, the wife for forty-seven years of Mr. Thomas Clarke, a well-known member of the Madras Civil Service. The last thirteen years of her life were years of almost incessant suffering, borne with such wonderful patience, resignation, and unwavering faith in, and love for, the Saviour, that her demeanour during residence in the South of France and Switzerland, was but one long bright example of how suffering should be borne by a Christian. Missed and mourned for as she will be by many in India, the Riviera, and Switzerland, it is chiefly by the very poor that her loss will be mostly felt; her numerous schemes of charity and benevolence, unostentatiously carried out, were the means of lightening the burdens of many.

DOCK LABOURERS' MISSION.—We are doing all we can to alleviate the distress among the unemployed labourers. We have places open daily for each dock to supply the hungry with food, and tickets for lodgings for the homeless. We ask the prayers of your readers, for our workers have already commenced to flag from overwork.

26, Chamber-street, E. C. H. Coleman.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Haddington.—Mr. McKenzie, from Glasgow, has had a most successful fortnight's services in connection with home mission work carried on here.

A three weeks' mission in a Dorsetshire village, conducted by Mr. Arthur Cook, of the Evangelisation Society, was concluded on Sunday, December 4. The services were well attended and continued interest manifested. Several professed to receive blessing.

Mr. D. L. Moody is busy holding Gospel services at Pittsburg, Pa., the Sheffield of the United States. Much interest has been awakened in connection with his visit, and there was every appearance, by latest accounts, of a successful series of meetings.

Mr. Opie Rodway has recently conducted a series of evangelistic services at Gorsley, Herefordshire, with great success. Large congregations assembled and many decided for Christ. The people of this country district are deeply thankful for Mr. Rodway's visit.

Axmouth, Devon.—Special services were held here by Mr. Herbert Veasey, of Torquay, from November 20 to December 5. The meetings were well attended, souls being saved and saints greatly blessed. Mr. Veasey commenced work at Musbury on the 6th, and asks earnest prayer for much blessing on these services.

Mr. Wm. Nobbs has been holding meetings in Crewkerne with very encouraging tokens of blessing. Among the converts several are children of believers who had been praying for blessing on the people of the place, and inviting them in to hear the Gospel. Thus their prayers have been answered in their own families. The last two Sundays Mr. Nobbs preached in the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road.

Newport, Mon.—A seven days' Town Mission was closed on Saturday. A full, free, and present salvation was presented to the people, and the various pastors were constant in their attendance. Not a few outsiders, both old and young, have been reached, and professed decision for Christ. They will be duly visited and cared for. Unquestionably, the fullest blessing has fallen upon pastors and members of churches.

Tunbridge.—A very successful mission has been conducted in St. Stephen's Mission Hall by Mr. John Elliott, assisted by Rev. Noel Storrs and his earnest band of workers. Night after night anxious souls were dealt with. The meetings on Saturdays in connection with the Railway-men's Mission were of a deeply interesting character. Over forty gave short testimonies on one occasion, and most of these had been converted during previous missions held by Rev. L. Selwyn in the church and by Mr. Elliott in the mission hall. In some cases several members of one family have professed conversion to God.

Dublin.—A successful mission, conducted by Mr. Thomas Payne has been held in the mission Building, Townsend-street. From the outset it was evident that the Spirit of God was working among and upon the people, many of whom were poor and ignorant. Not a few Roman Catholics were influenced, and professed to have found joy and peace in believing. A real work of grace, too, was seen among the boys and girls in the Homes in connection with the Irish Church Mission, a large number of whom professed to give their hearts to the Lord. Some pleasant and profitable meetings for workers were held, at which Mr. Payne stirred us up to seek more and more to be filled with the power which comes through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. H. F.

Mr. J. B. Bain.—During November and part of this month Mr. Bain has conducted missions in Hastings, St. Leonards, Rye, and Deal. In all of them God's power has been seen in the salvation of souls, and the reviving of Christians. At St. Leonards there never was one night without some professing to decide for Christ, and some nights every worker was busy. At Rye winter seemed suddenly to change into summer, for the Lord gave much joy there. At Deal the friends at the Y.M.C.A. engaged the St. George's Hall. True signs of God's power were manifest. Many soldiers came to the meetings, and some were saved, while others were earnestly seeking peace, and were often seen to weep during the services. Mr. Bain began a mission on the 12th inst. at the Y.M.C.A., Eastbourne, and will (D.V) be in Hastings and St. Leonards in January. For these missions prayer is desired.

Egremont.—The Lord is continuing his blessing to us here. Mr. Dennis of Nottingham, has held special metings here and also at the Cottage Mission, Seacombe, when many souls decided for Christ. An unconverted man said when he knew of his son's conversion: "It made me feel five years younger when I heard it." The son is praying that his father may yield to the same love which has conquered him. We have commenced a Sunday morning service at Seacombe which is well attended by those who have been blessed through the meetings, some of whom went nowhere before.

8, Rice-lane, Egremont. G. Owen.

Lower Norwood.—Mr. Hilton, better known as Harry Hilton, of the Evangelisation Society, whose labours in the Gospel in the villages of the West of England during the past summer have been so much blessed of God, is now holding a fortnight's special services at Auckland Hall. Last Sunday the building was crowded to its utmost capacity, the people listening most intently to an earnest, pointed address on "The Thief at School," at the close of which three persons, moved to tears, remained behind to be spoken with. These, with others impressed during the week, it is believed, may be led to obtain "life in a look at the Crucified One."

◆

WORK AMONG ROMAN CATHOLICS.

Dear Sir,—It is now more than a year since I wrote to you in reference to Gospel work among Roman Catholics. I afterwards received more than twenty letters from people interested in the subject. I wish now to give the following information.

Quiet work is going on in various places among Roman Catholics, by visiting them in their homes, winning their confidence, and getting them to read or listen to the reading of the Douay Testament; by their coming to evangelistic or Gospel temperance meetings, or otherwise hearing the word of life. One minister has received about twenty to the Lord's table in the course of a few months, as he believes, truly converted to God. The universal testimony of those who have thus been made useful has been that Roman Catholics are won by presenting to them a living Saviour as the object of their trust. The fact is, that intelligent Roman Catholics find it very hard to believe the distinctive doctrines of their own Church, and when they trust Christ as a Saviour, these doctrines drop off of their own accord. There is, therefore, abundant encouragement to go on seeking the salvation of Roman Catholics.

Important as is the work of colporteurs and other paid agencies, the evangelisation of Roman Catholics will not be accomplished unless all Christians take up the work, each as they are given opportunity. In many cases the only way that Christians can influence their Roman Catholic neighbours is by showing them Christian kindness; but in many more a will will find a way to bring the truth before them. The great principles to be kept in view are that it is worse than useless to attempt merely to proselytise; that the conversion of Roman Catholics must be sought by presenting to them in a spirit of love Christ crucified and risen; and that quiet, unostentatious work is most likely to be successful.

My special work is as hon. secretary to the "Scottish Association for Irish Missions." I would ask the interest of your readers, especially in Scotland, in this Association. If friends of Ireland will communicate with me I will give them full information as to how they can help us.—Yours faithfully, A. W. Wallace, M.D.

Cardross, Dumbarton, N.B.

STUDENTS' MISSIONARY LEAGUE. — The annual meeting of the Students' Missionary League was held on Friday, December 2, at Harley House, Bow. Students from Cheshunt, Hackney, and New Colleges (Congregational), Regent's-park, and Mr. Spurgeon's (Baptist), Richmond (Wesleyan), as well as the students of Harley House, were present. The tone of the addresses was intensely earnest.

Notes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, DEC. 18.—JEREMIAH XLIX.

1.—Concerning the Ammonites.—"This people's territory was north of the Moabites with whom they were closely connected by descent. The carrying away of the tribes on the east of Jordan by Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria (2 Kings xv. 29), strengthened their hands, and it is the occupation of the portion of Gad on that occasion which forms the crime dwelt on in this prophecy." —Streane.

7.—Concerning Edom.—Much of the earlier part of this section (7—16) is almost verbally the same as Obadiah (1—8).

16.—O thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock.—"Edom had duped herself into believing that the strongholds and mountain fastnesses of the country, which were a source of such alarm to an invader, made her impregnable."—Streane. However vain Edom's confidence might be in her stronghold as against God; it is otherwise as to the "cleft of the rock" in which God Himself places his people. See Exod. xxxiii. 22, Cant. ii. 14. The safety of that stronghold is guaranteed by God Himself (Ps. xci. 1, Prov. xviii. 10).

19.—Behold, he shall come up like a lion.—"In these questions Jehovah identifies Himself with Nebuchadnezzar (see Dan. vii. 4), who was acting as his vicegerent, and shows the hopelessness of Edom's cause."—S.C.

23.—Concerning Damascus.—By Damascus is meant the whole of what we call Syria.

28.—Concerning Kedar.—By Kedar is denoted Arabia. "Kedar was the second son of Ishmael (Gen. xxv. 13). Kedar occurs among the ancestry of Mohammed."—Streane.

34.—The word of the Lord...against Elam.—Elam is the modern Chuzistan, a country to the east of Chaldæa, on the other side of the Tigris. It became subject to Babylon (Dan. viii. 2), and its capital, Shushan, was a favourite residence of the kings of Persia (Esther i. 2). Members of the nation were present at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost (Acts ii. 9), and some think that it is to this that ver. 39 refers. But its fulfilment is more probably yet future.

MONDAY, DEC. 19.—JEREMIAH L.

At the very time that the power of Babylon was at its greatest height, being raised thereto to carry out God's purposes of punishment upon Israel and the surrounding nations, Jeremiah is inspired to predict her fall, and the deliverance of Israel at the end of the captivity (ver. 4, 5, 20). But, as, in a sense, that captivity is not yet over, there is a further application and extension of the leading features of the prophecy to mystical Babylon in Rev. xvii. 18.

2.—Babylon is taken.—This is prophetic of an event yet fifty years future, if, as is supposed, the prophecy was uttered in the fourth year of Zedekiah (li. 59).

4.—They and the children of Judah together.—Though this may have had a primary fulfilment in the restoration under Cyrus, it seems, especially when compared with iii. 18, to point to a restoration of Israel and Judah still future.

5.—To Zion with their faces thitherward.—The Hebrew is "hitherward" (R.V. margin), showing that Jeremiah wrote in Jerusalem.

20.—For I will pardon them whom I reserve.—"'Reserve' is the verb from which 'remnant' is derived, a word pregnant with meaning in the language of the prophets; see Isaiah viii. 17." —S.C. "This promise points to the time of the New Covenant (xxxi. 34, xxxiii. 8)."—Keil.

21.—Merathaim...Pekod.—"Modern investigations have ascertained the existence of the latter name as that of a place in Babylonia; it is, therefore, at least possible that the former may have existed." The names, however, are significant. Merathaim means "double rebellion," and Pekod, "visitation," or "punishment."

24.—Thou wast not aware.—Both in the capture by Cyrus and in Darius's later capture of the city by the stratagem of Zopyrus, Herodotus speaks of the amazement of the inhabitants (i. 191, iii. 158).

TUESDAY, DEC. 20.—JEREMIAH LI.

6.—Flee out of the midst of Babylon.—As in Isaiah xlviii. 20, this goes far beyond the mere restoration of Israel from literal Babylon.

10.—The Lord hath brought forth our righteousness.—In the spiritual application we are here on Gospel ground. Israel's deliverance from Babylon typified the final deliverance of God's people from the mystical Babylon. See Rev. xix. 8.

13.—O thou that dwellest upon many waters.—See this expression applied to mystical Babylon (Rev. xvii. 1), and explained (15).

20.—Thou art my battle axe, &c.—It is much disputed to whom this is addressed. Some think to Cyrus, others to Israel. But most modern commentators agree with Keil, that "the context gives decided support to the opinion that Babylon (called, in l. 23, 'the hammer of the whole earth') is intended."

30.—The mighty men of Babylon have...remained in their holds.—"When Cyrus appeared before the walls a single battle was fought, and, when victory declared for the Persians, the Babylonians very contentedly retired within their defences, and thought to defy their enemy."—Rawlinson.

31.—One post shall run to meet another, &c.—"Post" means "running messenger." Herodotus (i. 191) thus describes the fulfilment of what is here predicted. "Owing to the vast size of the place, the inhabitants of the central parts (as the residents at Babylon declare) long after the outer portions of the town were taken knew nothing of what had happened; but, as they were engaged in a festival, continued dancing and revelling until they learnt the capture too certainly."

45.—My people, go ye out of the midst of her.—In the literal Babylon this was brought about by the proclamation of Cyrus (Ezra i. 1). In the mystical Babylon the same command "to come out of her" seems to have its fulfilment in the translation of the saints at the Lord's coming (Rev. xviii. 4).

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 21.—JEREMIAH LII.

This chapter is not prophetic, but historical. It is not from the pen of Jeremiah, as li. 64 testifies. It is very nearly identical with 2 Kings xxiv. 18—xxv., excepting the account of Gedaliah (xxv. 22—26), which having been given more fully by Jeremiah in chap. xl.—xlii., is not repeated here.

11.—Put him in prison till the day of his death.—"An addition to the narrative in 2 Kings, which takes leave of Zedekiah at Riblah."

20.—One sea, and twelve brasen bulls...which King Solomon had made in the house of the Lord.—We learn from 1 Kings vii. 23, 25, that this brazen sea "stood upon twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three toward the west, and three toward the south, and three toward the east," emblematical (no doubt) of the cleansing power of God's salvation, to be sent forth by the patient toil of his servants into all parts of the earth. That such an emblem of the Gospel should be taken captive to Babylon was a sad proof of Israel's failure. Christ's servants are now engaged in this work of preaching the Gospel in all the world to every creature.

30.—All the persons were 4600.—"To reconcile the total here given with the much larger number who remained with Ezra (ii. 64), we must remember those carried away with Jehoiakin before any of the three captivities here mentioned, and the probable constant emigration of Jews to Babylon and the lapse of time (equal to two generations) which intervened before their return."—Streane.

THURSDAY, DEC. 22.—LAMENTATIONS I.

"That the Book of Lamentations is the work of Jeremiah has been the apparently universal belief, first of the Jewish and then of the Christian Church from the earliest times. Jeremiah was, beyond question, the writer of this book."—Cambridge Bible for Schools.

Jeremiah wrote it "in the interval between the destruction of Jerusalem and his involuntary departure to Egypt."—Keil.

Each of the chapters contains a poem in itself; the first four are alphabetical in construction.

1.—How doth the city sit solitary, &c.—"It is the same sad image which appears in the well-known medal of Titus, struck to celebrate his triumph over Jerusalem. A woman sits weeping beneath a palm tree, and below is the legend, Judæa capta."—S.C. Jeremiah's lament for captive Jerusalem is in many ways more applicable to the final stage of captivity under the Romans than to the early stage of the Babylonish captivity. Viewed in the light of Dan. ii. and vii., the latter is by far the greater and more important of the two. Hence Jeremiah weeping (ver. 16) over the earlier stage foreshadows the Lord Jesus weeping (Luke xix. 41—44) over the later stage of the commencement of Judah's great captivity, which has now lasted eighteen hundred years. It is worthy of note that the destruction of the Temple by Nebuzaradan, and that by Titus, both took place on the same day (10 of Ab), and are commemorated together, though these events were 658 years apart!

12.—Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?—Jeremiah speaks as representing Jerusalem, but he also represents Christ, who is called in Isa. xlix. 3 "Israel."

18.—The Lord is righteous.—Compare John xvii. 25, where He "who knew no sin," when about to be "made sin for us," appeals to his Father in this character.

FRIDAY, DEC. 23.—LAMENTATIONS II.

"In ver. 1—10, the prophet describes the punishment that has fallen upon Zion; in ver. 11—17 we have his lamentation, followed by a summons to the wall of Zion to arise and pour out its heart in prayer before the Lord; after which (ver. 20—22) we have the prayer itself, which takes the form of expostulation with God for the great crimes permitted during the siege of Jerusalem."—S.C.

8.—The Lord hath purposed to destroy the wall.—A similar purpose with regard to the greater and more lasting destruction of Jerusalem is made known by our Lord (Luke xix. 44).

18.—Their heart cried unto the Lord.—"The pronoun 'their' must be the inhabitants of Jerusalem and not their adversaries. For the boldness of the appeal, 'O wall,' &c., compare Isa. xiv. 31, Jer. xxii. 29, Hab. ii. 11, Luke xix. 40."—S.C.

20.—Shall the women eat their fruit?—The next clause is better rendered by R.V., "The children that are dandled in the hands." The tender fondling that children receive from their mothers is put in contrast to the horrible and "inhuman outrage threatened as the most extreme form of Divine chastisement (Lev. xxvi. 6; Deut. xxviii. 50; compare Jer. xix. 9)."—Keil. Josephus testifies to this having taken place at the siege of Jerusalem by the Romans.

SATURDAY, DEC. 24.—LAMENTATIONS III.

1.—I am the man that hath seen affliction.—Jeremiah is here but a faint type of the "Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," whose sufferings at the hand of God for sin, when He was "made sin for us," form the deeper subject of this chapter.

6.—He hath set me in dark places, as they that be dead of old.—This verse is identical with the last part of Ps. cxliii. 3.

21.—Therefore have I hope.—These words form the transition to a passage of twenty-one verses containing "words of submission and hope." The change resembles that in Ps. xxii. at ver. 22, but, whereas there the language of triumph continues to the end, here the tone of sad complaint is resumed at ver. 43, though again broken by a vein of thanksgiving at ver. 55.

54.—Waters flowed over mine head; then I said, I am cut off.—This cannot refer literally to Jeremiah, as the dungeon into which he was cast was dry (Jer. xxxviii. 6). "I am cut off" is found in the same sense in Ps. lxxxviii. 5 and Isaiah liii. 8, which latter passage distinctly connects it with Christ. The "waters" are those of the baptism spoken of in Luke xii. 50, "I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I straitened till it be accomplished."

56.—Thou hast heard my voice.—A faint foreshadowing of the resurrection, but like a dissolving view, this rapidly passes away, and the chapter closes with Jeremiah's grief, and imprecation of judgment on his persecutors.

THE EARLSWOOD ASYLUM for IDIOTS

has accommodation for 700 Patients.
THE PRESENT INCOME ENABLES the COMMITTEE to RECEIVE ONLY 570.
150 APPLICANTS are EARNESTLY SEEKING ADMISSION by ELECTION
MANY OF THESE MUST BE DISAPPOINTED UNLESS FUNDS ARE FORTHCOMING.
CONTRIBUTIONS GRATEFULLY RECEIVED.
SUPERIOR PROVISION MADE for PRIVATE CASES on Payments regulated by the Board of Management.
Bankers—Messrs. Hoare, 37, Fleet-street, E.C.
H. GERARD HOARE, Esq., Treasurer.
JAMES DOWNING, Secretary.
Offices, 36, King William-street, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President.
HIS GRACE LORD PLUNKET, ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN.
Late President.
THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

Offices :—27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
And 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, Reports, &c., can be obtained on application to the Secretary,

CAPTAIN JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

THE UNLOADING OF THE

CHRISTMAS BOAT

Freighted with Gifts for Sailors of various nations, will, God willing, take place on THURSDAY, December 29, 1887, at

THE SAILORS' WELCOME HOME,

173, ST. GEORGE'S STREET (Corner of Princes St), RATCLIFF HIGHWAY, LONDON, E.

All Friends Welcome.

Tea and Coffee at 6 o'clock, followed by meeting in various languages.

Miss CHILD will gladly receive cargo at any time.

The Anchorage.

HEBREWS vi. 19.

To Shelter, and give Spiritual care to, Young Women lately Fallen into Sin, whether or not about to become Mothers, with a special annexe and suitable arrangements for such as are of gentle birth.

ANYONE desiring admission for such cases to apply (by letter only) to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End-road, N.W., London, also for Servants trained in the Anchorage House. Donations may be sent to Mrs. Stuart-Wortley for the Anchorage Mission, or to Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF

H.R.H. THE PRINCESS CHRISTIAN.

Mrs. Hilton's Creche, Infant Infirmary and Orphan's Home,

12, 14 and 16, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.

TRAINING AND CONVALESCENT HOME, THE LIMES, FELTHAM.

All communications
to be addressed to
Mrs. HILTON,
Founder and Hon.
Superintendent.

Langreld House,
Burdett Road,
Limehouse,
London, E.

DEAR FRIENDS,

The present is a time of such extreme need that, unless speedy and liberal help is forthcoming, our work for the dear children must be curtailed, and this at a time of exceptional distress. I therefore appeal to you in hope, feeling sure that the children in their mute helplessness will elicit your sympathy and aid, so that we may be enabled to maintain—if not to extend—the work. Even when all branches are in full operation we can only help a small proportion of those who seek our aid; but I feel sure that it is only necessary to make our need known to insure a liberal response. For seventeen years we have been enabled to shelter thousands of children, and to cheer the hearts of the toiling women whose lives are cast amid the shadows, by the sympathy of those to whom the Lord has given the means of blessing the poor, and they that have no helper.

Yours in the Master's service,
MARIE HILTON.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS

FARNINGHAM AND SWANLEY (Commenced 1863).

President :—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

THE COTTAGE HOMES AT FARNINGHAM

Are for 300 Little Boys, homeless or in danger of falling into crime. They are clothed, fed, educated, and taught a trade, and then provided with outfit and placed in situations, while they are looked after as "Old Boys."

THE ORPHAN HOMES AT SWANLEY

Are for 200 Orphan or Fatherless Boys, who are wholly maintained and educated, and receive technical instruction in lithography, telegraphy, photography, chemistry, and other subjects, to fit them for a working life.

BASIS :—"The Institution is Scriptural, but Unsectarian; and the boys are educated in the fear of God and in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures."

FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED to maintain the 500 Boys now in the Homes. Over 1000 have already been sent out into the world.

Annual Subscriptions, Donations, Congregational Collections, and Bequests are earnestly solicited, and will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN; or the Secretary,

Offices :—BANK-BUILDINGS, LUDGATE-CIRCUS, E.C. A. O. CHARLES.

Bankers :—MESSRS. SMITH, PAYNE & SMITH, 1, LOMBARD-STREET, E.C.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

Christmas Appeal.—Homes of the London Female Preventive and Reformatory Institution.

At the first meeting of the Committee in January last, after prayer, the following resolution was unanimously adopted :—

That, as in former years, all suitable cases be admitted to the Homes and Open-all-Night Refuge during 1687, irrespective of any fluctuation of income which may arise, believing such a course to be in perfect harmony with the mercy of God in Christ Jesus, and also in unison with the benevolent desires of all who co operate with this Mission of Mercy.

Approximate Results to November 30.

Admitted to the Homes, 536 Young Women and Girls. | Admitted to the Open-all-Night Refuge, 538.

EVERY SUITABLE APPLICANT has received prompt assistance, notwithstanding the dearth of contributions during this Autumn. Last June the operations of the Institution were extended by the opening of a NEW TRAINING HOME for friendless girls, at Parson's Green, to accommodate 50 inmates.

Considerable progress has been made for the proposed extension of the Open-all-Night Refuge.

£35 PER DAY it was estimated would be required from November 1 to December 31. Every reader is asked to send a contribution if possible before Christmas Day, to enable the Committee to close their 30th YEAR'S WORK free of debt.

Country Girls and Orphans.—The majority of those received into the Homes are country girls and Orphans.

COLLECTING CARDS.—Usually the Christmas Collection is greatly aided by LADIES TAKING COLLECTING CARDS and gathering small sums amongst their friends, and these are invited so to help this year. Reader, kindly contribute.

Donations will be THANKFULLY RECEIVED by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C., or 200, EUSTON ROAD, N.W. EDWARD W. THOMAS.

HOMES OF HOPE,

Nos. 4, 5, and 6, Regent Square,
Gray's Inn Road, London, W.C.

The Committee are obliged to make an urgent appeal for contributions:—

1. For the General Fund: the expenses of which amount to about £5 a day.
2. For the Child's Fund: a guinea or two to pay the nurses would in many cases rescue a mother and child. Five shillings would pay for a child for a week.
3. For law expenses: in every case where it is possible the men are compelled to pay the sum allowed by law for the child's support.

The applications are so distressing and urgent, that every shilling has been spent.

The Committee will feel grateful for £250 before the close of the year.

Henry Thompson, Esq., Treasurer, 38, Mincing-lane, E.C.
William Hornibrook, Secretary, 4, Regent-square, W.C.

THE Flower ♦ Girl ♦ Mission
AND BRIGADE

WILL BE GLAD TO SUPPLY
ALL KINDS OF ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS,
HOLLY WREATHING, PLANTS, &c.
SUITABLE FOR
CHRISTMAS AND TABLE DECORATION.
Flower Vases, Room Decorations, &c.

PLANTS, from 6d. to 5s. each.
HOLLY and other WREATHING from 3d. yard.
ROSES, CHRYSANTHEMUMS, &c., from 6d. Spray.
PACKAGES SENT BY PARCELS POST (SECURELY PACKED).

Orders to be sent to Hon. Superintendent,
Flower Girl Mission, 11 & 12, Clerkenwell Close, E.C.

21st Annual Report of Mission on application.

Wesleyan West Central Mission.

NOTES ON THE MISSION
AND A SERMON
BY REV.
HUGH PRICE HUGHES, M.A.,
OR REV.
MARK GUY PEARSE,
APPEAR EVERY THURSDAY (PRICE 1d.)
IN
The Methodist Times.

"The ablest and most energetic weekly organ of the Wesleyan Methodists."—Daily News.

Of all Newsagents. Office: 125, Fleet-street, E.C.

BRITISH SOCIETY
For the Propagation of the Gospel among the Jews.
ESTABLISHED 1842.

President—W. H. HABERSHON, Esq.

The Society has upward of 100 who carry the Gospel to the Jews in England, Italy, Germany, Austria, Russia, Turkey, and the Holy Land. Many Jews have, by this Society, been led to believe that Jesus is the Christ. Much good has been done among the thousands of Jews in London by the various Agents, and by the Mission House, with its important Medical Missions.

The "Scottish Home Mission to the Jews" has been affiliated to the British Society.

INCREASED FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED.
and will be thankfully received by the Secretary,
REV. J. DUNLOP,
At the Office, 96, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

All Choral Societies should use
THE CHORAL HANDBOOK,

A collection of Glees, Part Songs, Anthems, Choruses, &c., in the Staff Notation. Tonic Sol-fa Editions may also be had. 180 numbers ready.

Price 1d., 1½d., and 3d. per number.

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 and 9, Warwick Lane, E.C.

SYMINGTON'S
World Renowned PEA
GOLD MEDAL FLOUR
For Soups, &c., EASILY DIGESTED.
Sold in Packets and Tins, by all Grocers.
Export Agent—J. T. MORTON, LONDON.

Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen.

Patron—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

Treasurer and Chairman of General Council: THOMAS B. MILLER, Esq.
Chairman of Finance Committee: THOMAS GRAY, Esq., C.B.
Bankers: Messrs. LLOYDS, BARNETTS, & BOSANQUETS (Limited), Lombard Street, E.C.
Offices: BRIDGE HOUSE, BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE. LONDON, E.C.
Founder and Director: E. J. MATHER, Esq.

OBJECTS.

1. To carry the glad tidings of God's love, mercy, and salvation in our Lord Jesus Christ to the thousands of Fishermen employed in trawling and other modes of fishing in the North Sea and elsewhere, and in every possible way to promote and minister to their spiritual welfare.

2. To mitigate the hard lot and improve the condition of the Fishermen, physically and mentally, by all practicable means, and to meet many urgent needs for which heretofore there has been no provision, especially in supplying medicine and simple surgical appliances, books, mufflers, mittens, &c.

For the above purposes Mission vessels are already stationed with eight fishing fleets, but it is of urgent importance that more vessels should be fitted for similar service, in order that Clerical and Lay Missionaries and Agents of the Mission may visit the Smacksmen.

The Bishop of London.—"The undertaking is a blessed one, and will be accepted by our Heavenly Father as an offering of true devotion."

The Bishop of Exeter.—"It does one's heart good to watch the benefit conferred by these Mission Smacks. God bless them! They go forth in the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ."

The Times.—"Ample proof has been furnished of the genuine and successful character of the Society's operations."

The Graphic.—"Founded barely six years ago, its efforts have already been crowned with wonderful success."

During the year 1886 three thousand six hundred and thirty-three cases of accident and sickness were successfully treated in the Dispensary on board the various Mission Vessels. Help is urgently needed to carry on this work.

WORKING MEN'S MISSION,
Collingwood Street, New Cut.

Appeal to the Readers of "The Christian" on behalf of the Poor and Distressed of the New Cut and District.

Last year, through the sympathy of the Christian public, we were enabled to give some thousands of Meals to men, women, and children, besides Clothing. The distress is greater now than last Winter, and we are quite unable to alleviate it, owing to our Funds being exhausted.

Letter from Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in reference to the WORKING MEN'S MISSION.

Westwood, Beulah Hill, Upper Norwood, October 28, 1887.

Dear Brethren,—I heartily commend your work as one of the soundest and most real known to me. Knowing you as I do, and seeing your zeal and self-sacrifice, I hope you will never be at a loss for funds. I am up to the neck myself in the stream, and cannot therefore help you as I would like; but I recommend your holy service to all the Lord's stewards who have not yet exhausted their dedicated store.—Yours heartily,

C. H. SPURGEON.

We feel sure kind friends will continue to assist the good work of this Mission.

GEO. HATTON, J. PEARCE.
W. STUBBS, J. B. PARKER, } Finance Committee.

Contributions will be thankfully received by the Treasurer, F. A. Bevan, Esq., 54, Lombard-st., E.C.; the Superintendents, T. and J. Young, 32, Nelson-square Blackfriars-road, S.E.; or may be sent to Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

"SOLD UNDER SIN."

CHRISTIANS
Of all Denominations are Invited to a CONVENTION
UPON THE ABOVE SUBJECT,
To be Conducted by
MR. E. HUSKINSON
(Leader of the Holiness Church),
IN
Princes' Hall, Piccadilly, ON BOXING DAY.

Meetings at 11 a.m., 3 and 6.30 p.m.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The South American Missionary Society has received an anonymous donation of £1500.

The Islington Clerical Meeting will be held in Myddleton Hall on Tuesday, January 10.

A Pan-Anglican Synod of Bishops has been summoned by the Archbishop of Canterbury to meet at Lambeth early in July next year.

About one hundred and fifty working miners of Ilkeston have combined for the purpose of securing the erection of a "colliers'" church.

The Church Missionary Society's Almanack for 1888 contains portraits of Sir John H. Kennaway, M.P., president of the Society, and Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, the Society's treasurer.

Last year, Prebendary Harry Jones was appointed to the united livings of St. Philip's, Regent-street, and St. Peter's, Haymarket. He has now placed in the hands of Bishop Temple his resignation of the latter benefice; he is convinced that its true interests will be best attained by the appointment of a clergyman capable of giving his whole time and undivided attention to the work of the district.

The mission lately held by Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe at Oxford has been a time of blessing to many. Judging from the attendance at the different services, as well as from the numbers who remained behind at the short after-meetings, it would seem that not a few have received distinct help. Mr. Webb-Peploe had many inquirers to see him at his rooms, and he also conducted the daily prayer-meeting at 138, High-street.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. W. A. Meaton has held very successful missions at Eltham and Staines.

Rev. C. A. Berry, of Wolverhampton, has declined the call to succeed the late Mr. Ward Beecher, in Brooklyn.

Mansfield College, Oxford, has its first representative in the foreign mission field—Rev. Frank P. Joseland—who has gone to Amoy, South China.

Dr. R. W. Dale, of Birmingham, who is on a tour in Australia with Mr. Albert Spicer, was taken ill at Melbourne, and was unable to fulfil several of his engagements in that city. He returns to England almost immediately.

Mission work is vigorously carried on at Christ Church, Westminster Bridge-road. In the winter meetings are held among the very poor in the new Jurston-street schoolroom, Lincoln Tower of Christ Church, and elsewhere.

Speaking recently, Rev. Charles A. Berry, of Wolverhampton, said that the Christian churches in England play a greater part in the history of national progress and security than all our fleets and armies, and all our statesmen put together.

The Evangelical Magazine for December contains a portrait of Rev. Jonathan Lees, who has recently returned to Tientsin, after already spending over twenty-five years of his life in China as a missionary of the London Missionary Society.

In an address at an organ opening in Yorkshire, Rev. Dr. Henry Allon spoke strongly against mere choral singing, and stated that the choir at his church (Union Chapel, Islington) would refuse to sing anything in which the congregation could not unite.

Rev. Edward White has just resigned the pastorate of the church at Hawley-road, Kentish Town, after thirty-six years labour there, completing the forty-seventh of his ministry. Mr. White will, after the end of February next, fulfil occasional engagements in London, as his health may allow.

METHODIST.

Rev. Thomas Cook has concluded a most successful mission at Norfolk-road church, Brighton.

Mr. Charles Garnett, of Manchester, has concluded a ten days' mission at the Wesleyan Chapel, Stafford; large numbers have professed conversion.

A series of special evangelistic services has been held at Willenhall, in Staffordshire. The services have resulted in a wide-spread religious awakening.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of America has raised its "million (dollars) for missions by collections only" in twelve months, the total exceeding the sum aimed at, and amounting in all to nearly £210,000.

The London correspondent of The Manchester Guardian understands that an influential committee will meet shortly at the Centenary Hall, Bishopsgate-street, to inquire into the cause of decrease in the societies.

The sum of £100,000 having been offered for the Centenary Hall, Bishogsgate-street, the property, it is thought, will be sold, and the proceeds devoted to the erection of a "Wesleyan Church House" on some suitable site.

During the past year the agents of the Liverpool Wesleyan Mission have paid 20,000 visits, distributed 60,000 tracts, have held 200 cottage meetings, and 150 open-air services, and 670 persons have been persuaded to sign the pledge.

The current number of the Magazine of the Methodist New Connexion reports revivals in many circuits; Hanley, Burslem, Dudley, Nottingham, and Ashton-under-Lyne are amongst the places where "showers of blessing" have descended.

A large missionary demonstration of Primitive Methodists was held at Leeds on Sunday and Monday last week, and is regarded as one of the most important meetings ever held under the auspices of the Connexion in the provinces.

SALVATION ARMY.

General Booth will visit France and Switzerland early in the new year.

At the annual meetings of the Scotch work, Colonel Edmonds said over 12,000 persons had professed conversion during the year.

The Salvationists at Stowmarket are being badly treated. When two female officers arrived at the railway station, recently, an attempt was made to push them into the river.

A number of Swedes and Danes were recently converted in Utah, and a Russian Finn has been promoted to the rank of captain. He is a young man, full of fire, and burns with desire to carry the Gospel to his fellow-countrymen in Finland.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

As a result of mission work at Cardiff during the last two years a number of new members have been added to the Church, and there are other applications.

The lamented death of William C. Westlake, of Southampton, leaves a blank that will not be easily filled. For twenty-one years he ably edited The Friends' Quarterly Examiner.

George Satterthwaite and Norman Penny have been liberated for a visit to Mount Lebanon and Ramallah, in Palestine. The Friends' mission and schools there will be cheered by their presence.

BAPTIST.

Dr. Maclaren's current sermons will be published in The Freeman after the close of the year.

Mr. A. McLean, of Regent's-park College, having been accepted for mission service, has left for India.

Rev. James Dann and his helpers at New-road Chapel, Oxford, are making special efforts to bring the "lapsed" classes under Christian influence.

At the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday next Rev. R. H. Lovell, of Bromley, will preach in the morning, and Rev. Mark Guy Pearse in the evening.

Dr. Saunders, a Nova Scotia pastor, points out that the Associations there, unlike the Baptist Union in England, can cut off members who become unsound in the faith.

The Ten Cent Fund being collected by Dr. Edward Judson for the Memorial Church, in memory of his father, Adoniram Judson, the pioneer missionary to Burmah, now amounts to £5000.

Rev. A. G. Brown, of the East London Tabernacle, writes in a recent letter to a contemporary:—"Just now things are looking very bad indeed, and everything points to a hard fight with poverty all the winter."

Rev. D. L. Brayton has been fifty years a missionary in Burmah, in connection with the American Baptist Missionary Union. His chief work has been the translation of the entire Bible into Pwo Karen language.

Speaking at a meeting of the Bristol Baptist Association at Clifton, Rev. Charles Brown, of Nailsworth, said the hardships borne by Baptist ministers in their villages should make many a foreign missionary blush to speak of his sacrifices.

The Missionary Herald says the last Congo mail brought good news from all along the line. From Lukolela, Nshasa, Stanley Pool, Ngombe, San Salvador, and Underhill, "the brethren report good health, and much and manifest blessing."

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. W. Rigby Murray, of Brunswick-street Church, Manchester, devotes one Sunday evening in each month to a sermon to young men.

Dr. Horatius Bonar's hymn, "I heard the voice of Jesus say," &c., was lately sung in the highest style of art in the Roman Catholic Cathedral at Montreal.

The late Miss Jane Jeffrey, of Portobello, has bequeathed £5000 to found two scholarships in Edinburgh University for young men studying for the ministry.

An American paper states that the name of Professor Henry Drummond is mentioned as the choice of an influential number of Princeton Alumni to succeed Dr. M'Cosh.

Dr. Donald Morison, of Rampore Bauleah, who has recently recovered from a very severe illness, has decided to remain in India for the present, and to carry on the work.

Edinburgh Free Church Presbytery has instructed its Sabbath Observance Committee to confer with the other Churches on the question of the employment of cabs on the Lord's Day.

Mr. Macdonald, the successor to Rev. James Stalker, Kirkcaldy, received an exceedingly hearty welcome at a social gathering of the young people, at which he was elected vice-president of their guild.

Rev. Alex. Watt, of Thornhill Free Church, has celebrated his jubilee. He is the only Free Church minister now alive of those who marched in the procession on the occasion of the Queen's coronation.

Rev. Alexander Craib, of New Pitsligo, N.B., is delivering on Sunday evenings a series of Lectures on "Life in Large Cities." They deal with the great problems of the day, and are listened to by large congregations.

Sir William Collins presided at a missionary meeting held in the Waterloo Rooms, under the auspices of the Free Presbytery of Glasgow. Miss Rainy gave an interesting account of her recent tour of the foreign mission stations.

Mr. Moncur, Dundee, in opening a sale of work, recently, avowed the opinion that raising money by bazaars is not a very economical or excellent way. He should like to see Christianity so powerful in the heart that people would only require to be asked for money, and it would flow direct from the pocket into the Lord's treasury.

Professor Blackie, lecturing in Edinburgh, said that not one of the existing forms of church government is laid down authoritatively in the New Testament, and not one of them is forbidden except that, with all freedom as to official persons, an exclusive and privileged priesthood is denied.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A series of evangelistic services is to be held in each of the Presbyterian Churches of Belfast during the week commencing February 5.

A remarkable work of revival is reported as taking place in the Methodist congregation at Irvinestown. Altogether about two hundred are believed to have been led to the Saviour.

Successful evangelistic services have been held in the Methodist Church at Clones by Rev. J. S. McDade, and in the Methodist Church at Newcastle, co. Down, by Mr. J. Brandon, of Canada.

The Lord Lieutenant has refused to sanction the appointment of a Presbyterian chaplain to the Cork Lunatic Asylum, although the matter has been repeatedly and earnestly urged by the Cork Board of Guardians.

The death of Rev. Robert Lockart, Presbyterian minister, of Hilltown, Newry, in the fifty-ninth year of his ministry, is announced. Deceased was, with one exception, the oldest minister in the Irish Presbyterian Church, and was an earnest, faithful, laborious pastor.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Councillor James Whittaker, a prominent member of the Baptist denomination in Preston.—Mrs. Tilly, wife of Rev. Alfred Tilly, of Cardiff, who for upwards of twenty-six years has been minister of Tredegarville English Baptist Chapel.—Mrs. Cameron Lees, wife of Dr. Cameron Lees, of St. Giles Church, Edinburgh.—Mr. G. L. Hiley, for many years an earnest member of the Baptist church at Gilwern, Wales.—Rev. Stewart Wright, parish minister of Blantyre, N.B.—On Dec. 6 at the vicarage, Broughton-in-Furness, Elizabeth Ann Chorlton, aged 57.—Rev. Canon Crosthwaite, vicar of Knaresborough.—Rev. Thomas Addyman, superintendent minister of the Methodist New Connexion Churches, Nottingham.

◆

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE IN TORONTO.—The city of Toronto, Canada, has a population of 140,000, and prospers without Sunday horse cars and without a single Sunday newspaper.

RUSSIA.—A fresh example of religious intolerance has been given at St. Petersburg where Prince Barclay de Tolly, son of a well-known general, has had his name struck off the army list, because he had his son christened after the Lutheran rite.

PROBATION AFTER DEATH.—The New York Observer has received replies from 501 Congregational churches in New England respecting the attitude in which they stand to the Andover theory of a probation after death; and of these, 459 are emphatically opposed to it.

ROME.—Signor Gavazzi has commenced a series of conferences at the church by the Bridge of St. Angelo, to confute the letter of Leo. XIII. to Cardinal Rampolla. These political-religious discussions attract many, as the venerable minister, now in his eightieth year, has lost none of his eloquence or characteristic fire in speaking.

CHILD MARRIAGE IN INDIA.—The Central Indian News publishes a judgment delivered by two Hindoo judges, of Indore, in a case under the Hindoo marriage law. The plaintiff was a Hindoo who brought a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights, he having been married to the defendant when she was an infant. The plaintiff's petition has been refused.

COREA.—The inhabitants of Corea, during a recent visitation of cholera, were much impressed by the superior medical treatment of the American missionaries, Dr. Allan and Dr. Heron. Twelve students are making a scientific study of medicine, who all attend the English services in the missionaries' homes. The king of Corea patronises schools, hospitals, and orphanages.

WORSHIPPING THE POPE.—For the mass to be performed at the Pope's jubilee a sum of £40,000 has been subscribed; and the gifts he is receiving would fill a vast museum. No fewer than 27,000 chasubles have been sent; and among the donations there are 50,000 bottles of champagne! Pilgrims are swarming into Rome for the celebration from all parts of the world.—Christian Leader.

PUTNEY.—The first annual meeting of the Men's Adult School was held on Saturday evening. The Secretary's report showed a membership of one hundred. There is a well-used library, and mutual sick benefit society.

THEATRICAL TEA-MEETING.—Mr. William Forbes held one of these meetings for theatrical employés, last Tuesday week, at Whitefield schoolroom, Wilson-street, Drury-lane. Addresses were given by Revs. A. Norris, W. Burton Alexander, G. Brooke, and Mr. A. Robertson. The guests listened with the greatest attention.

HELPING THE POOR.—A correspondent writes:—For some years I have a few weeks before Christmas asked some of the well-known workers in London to recommend a poor family known to them to whom one could send a parcel with warm clothing for the winter, and some little gifts for Christmas, perhaps paying the rent for Christmas week, &c. If the thousands of Christians all over Britain would each try to help one poor family at this time of the year, much might be done to alleviate the distress.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—B.W. A.R. G.K. M.B. J.E.L. J.E. A.D. A.S.C. A.C.R. J.C. G.B. H.G. W.T. H.F.W. T.H.T. A.H. W.C. A. v. M. A.R.W. S.M. B.C. A.R.R. C.M.R. P.N.H. J.H. R.D.F. A.L.W. C.V. T.P. T.B.G. A.M. J.S. S.S. A.R.B. S.J.H. F.N.M. T.C. H.P. R.B.P. R.F.H. F.S. W.G. W.H.C. M.F. G.S. M.A.P. D.D.Y. H.P.H. H.N.C. M.D. T.E. F.C. C.B.S. T.S. G.H. M.K. M.W. L.S.E. R.H. J.G. W.R. W.J.H. C.C. W.P. J.C.P. H.V. G.H.B. J.A.A. C.S.T. B.L. O.P. E.M.C. H.V.M. F.H. M.B. A.L W. G B. C.M. W.A.I. C.H. C.E.P. W.A. C.B. T.G.S. K.E. M L. R.N. R.T.S. T.F. E.W. A.A.M. J.B. F.H.H. J.P.H. W.H.F. J.T.M. F.B. W.H. F.J.B. A.M. D.M. J.K. L.G. H.M. J.B.B. J.A.G. W.F. R.B. J.E.M. T.F. A.R.R. C.R. H.S. W.S. E.W.M. T.R. A.H. P.G. C.L. W.T.R. W.E.H.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—J. Whatley, 21, Eastfield-rd.; W. Drysdale, "Belville" Work, Whitehill, Gravesend, Kent; M. Williams, 44, High-st., Cefn Mawr, Ruabon; T. Glover, Grange House, Eastbourne; D. E. Potts, 19, Bryantwood-road, Drayton-park, Holloway, N.; M. A. Alford, Stonehouse, Gloucestershire; J. Shaw, 3, Wylie-street, off Wyatt-street, Liverpool; A. G. Bennett, 16, John-st., South-crescent, Lewisham, S.E.; H. Delamore, Seymour-terrace, Gateshead.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

HE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., NEW METAL EXCHANGE, Whittington-avenue, E.C.—Daily prayer-meeting at St. Peter's Vestry, Cornhill, 1.15 p.m. (Sat. excepted). Bible-reading by Mr. Reader Harris, Mondays, 6.30 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sunday, December 18, 7 p.m., Mr. E. J. Kennedy, of Exeter Hall. Young men's Bible-study, Tuesdays, 8.15 p.m., and Sundays, 3 p.m.

.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sunday, at 3.45, Mr. E. J. Kennedy (men only); subject—"Reality"; music by the string band; 7 (public), Dr. H. Grattan Guinness; subject—"The Possibilities of Life." Mon., 8.30 p.m., Mr. Axel Gustafson on "The Drink Problem." Tues., 8 p.m., Rev. C. Moinet's workers' training-class.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—Thursday, December 15, at 8.30, lecture by Rev. J. Sanger Davies on "A Pastor on Pasteur." Friday, 16, at 8.30, lecture by Rev. T. T. Waterman on "Evolution—Is Jesus Christ an Improved Rabbi?"

SOUTHWARK Y.M.C.A., 26 & 28, Newington-causeway, S.E.—Monday, December 19, 8.45 p.m., lecture by Mr. Handel Cossham: "Uncrowned Kings." Thursday, Dec. 22, 9 p.m., address to young men by Rev. Aubrey Price.

WESLEYAN WEST CENTRAL MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Fridays, at 12 noon, Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 7.30 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Sundays, 11 a.m., Rev Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Wardour Hall: Mondays, 8 p.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; daily prayer-meeting from 1.30 to 2 p.m. All seats always free.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Dr. McKilliam during December: Sundays, at 11 and 7; Wednesdays, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, 8 p.m.

FRIENDS' MEETING HOUSE, Mercers'-road, Holloway, N.—Conversational Bible-reading every Thursday, 8 p.m. Any friends will be heartily welcome.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.—Annual prayer-meeting, Baptist Mission House, Furnival-street, Holborn, Monday, December 19, 7 p.m. Address by Rev. James Stephens, of Highgate, on "The Motto for 1888" (Job xxxiv. 33).

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile-end-road, E.—Sunday, Dec. 18, at 11 and 6.30, Mr. Wm. Taylor, the Navvy.

HOME OF INDUSTRY, 29, Bethnal-green-road, E.—Monthly meeting for Christian workers, Wednesday, Dec. 21; tea at 6, meeting at 7. Address by Lord Radstock.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Friday, December 16, 7 p.m., "The Deepening of Spiritual Life."

STAFFORD ROOMS, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W.—December 16, Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe; Dec. 23, Rev. Henry Sharpe, 3.30 p.m.

THE GOSPEL IN BRAZIL.—Public meeting, Room No. 6, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N., Thursday, Dec. 15, 7.30 p.m. Rev. Emanuel Vanorden will give an address on "Work for God in the Empire of Brazil"; Mr. Robert Paton in the chair.

ST. ANDREW'S, LAMBETH.—The vicar and churchwardens earnestly ask help towards the relief of distress in this parish. Every case is carefully investigated. Gifts in money, clothing, &c., gratefully received by the vicar, Rev. TREVOR FIELDER, 108, Stamford-street, S.E.

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Monday, December 12, 1887.

	£	s.	d.
"Neighbours"—Kindly send full address.
Barbican Mission to Jews—J.W.M.	0	2	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—M.L. 10s.; R.W. £3 3s.; S.O.B. 5s.; J.B. £1; J.W. £1 10s.; H.T.N. £2; C.W.H. £5; O'C. £3; S. £3; Sympathy, £2; L.H. £1; J.G. £2 12s. 10d.	25	0	10
Home of Industry—M.L. 10s.; F.F. £1; S.O.B. 5s.; Mrs. J. £1; C.A. £1	3	15	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—M.L. 10s.; A.E.C.C. £1; E.N. 10s.; J.W. £1; J.W. & C.M.S. £5.	8	0	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—M.L. 10s.; E.C. 5s.; R.W. £3 3s.; R.R. 5s.; J.T. 10s.; J.W £1 10s.; J.A. 10s.; H.T.N. £2; O'C. £3; I.C. 10s.	12	3	0
Mr. Archibald G. Brown's Work—E.C. 5s.; Mrs. D. £1; A.T.O. 10s.	1	15	0
Golden-lane Mission (Mr. Orsman)—E.C. 5s.; M.A.W. 5s.; E.N. 10s.	1	0	0
Dock Labourers (Mr. Coleman)—Baroness de B. 10s.; E.C. 5s.; F.N.M.D. £1; Isa. lviii. 10, £5; H.T.N. £2; M.W. 5s.	9	0	0
Children's Free Dinners, &c.—E.C. 5s.; J.W. 10s.; M.W. 5s.; E.G.H. 1s. 6d.; Protestant Worker, 1s.	1	2	6
George-yard Ragged Schools—E.C. 5s.; R.R. 5s.; J.W. 10s.; E.G.H. 1s. 6d.	1	1	6
Mildmay Msn. to Jews—Bristol, 5s.; W.R.B.M. £2 2s.; J.W. 10s.; K.R., Aberdeen, £1.	[illegible]	17	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—Dorking, 15s.; E.N. 10s.; M.S. £3 3s.; I.C. 10s.	4	18	0
Halfpenny Dinners—R.R. 5s.; F.N.M.D. 10s.; E.N. 10s.; J.W. 10s.; H.T.N. £2	3	15	0
Friendless and Fallen—R.R. 5s.; A.E.C.C. £1; M.A.W. 5s.; J.T. 10s.; W.R.B.M. £2 2s.; H.T.N. £2; Gloucester, £1; M.A.M. 10s.: Sympathy, £2	9	12	0
Homes for Aged Poor—R.R. 5s.; L.H.R. 5s.	0	10	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—R.R. 5s.; A.E.C.C. £1; E.N. 10s.; J.W. 10s.; L.H.R. 5s.; E.G.H. 1s. 6d.	2	11	6
Field-lane Refuges, &c.—R.R. 5s.; H.T.N. £2; Mrs. S. 5s.; J.W. & C.M.S. £5	7	10	0
London City Msn.—R.R 5s.; J.W. & C.M.S. £5	5	5	0
Home Aged Christn. Blind Men & Women—P.W.	20	0	0
Bethel-Santhal Mission—H.C.B.	0	5	0
Christmas Help to the Poor—F.F.	1	0	0
Rescue Society—A.E.C.C.	1	0	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—A.E.C.C. £1; H.T.N. £2	3	0	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street—A.E.C.C.	1	0	0
Rescue Work, Poplar (Mrs. Wilkes)—A.E.C.C.	1	0	0
E. L. Training Institute (Rev. H. G. Guinness)—S.O.B. 5s.; V. £2 10s.; Mrs. S. 5s.; E.R.S. 5s.; Unprofitable Servant, 10s.; Protestant Worker, 1s.; (Foreign Missions) V. £2 10s.; (Christmas Dinners) J.G. £2 12s. 10d.	8	18	10
London Samaritan Society, &c.—Baroness de B. 10s.; Island, 10s.; Mrs. S. 10s.	1	10	0
China Inland Mission—A.D. £20; W.R.B.M. £2 2s.; J.W. £2 1s. 6d.; Miss W. 10s.; A.F.J. 5s.	24	18	6
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—E.T.L. £1; C.W.H. £5; Keturah, £2 2s.	8	2	0
Distressed Irish Ladies (Mrs. Lalor)—F.N.M.D.	1	0	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses—F.N.M.D.	1	0	0
Lord's Day Rest Association—F.N.M.D.	0	10	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—F.N.M.D. £1; E.N. 10s.; Sympathy, £2; I.C. 10s.	4	0	0
Cow Cross Mission (Mr. W. Catlin)—M.A.W. 5s.; M.S. £5	5	5	0
Latimer Church, Bow (Fuel, &c., for the Poor)—M.A.W. 5s.; E.N. 10s.; For My Sake, 5s.	1	0	0
North Bow Mission—E.N. 10s.; H.T.N. £1	1	10	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Sharman)—E.N.	0	10	0
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—E.N.	0	10	0
Bitter Cry of Outcast London—(Children's Breakfasts, &c.) J.T.	0	10	0
Church of England Zenana Missionary Society—Y.W.C.A., Bolton	5	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—W.R.B.M. £2 2s.; C.W.H. £5	7	2	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—J.W. £2; J.S.W.T. 12s. 6d.; I.C. 10s.	3	2	6
Famine in Central Turkey—J.W.	0	10	0
Relief of London Poor—J.W. 10s.; O'C. £4	4	10	0
Gray's-yard Ragged Schools, &c.—H.T.N. £2; H.W. 2s. 6d.	2	2	6
Thames Church Mission—H.T.N. £2; C.W.H. £5	7	0	0
Homes for Working Girls—H.T.N.	2	0	0
Stockwell Orphanage (Rev. C. H. Spurgeon)—Thank-offering	1	1	0
Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth—A.W.	1	0	0
Baptist Zenana Mission—A.T.O.	0	10	0
Latymer-road Mission—M.A.W.	0	1	0
Messrs. Willey and Llewellyn's Bible Carriage—R.C.	3	0	0
Evangelistic Mission—J.W. & C.M.S.	5	0	0
London Female Penitentiary—J.W. & C.M.S.	5	0	0
Working Men's Mission, New Cut—J.W. & C.M.S.	2	10	0
Irish Society (Achill Mission)—J.W. & C.M.S.	2	10	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—Sympathy	2	0	0
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—Sympathy	2	0	0
Work in Royal Navy (Miss Weston)—E.G.H.	0	1	6
Ladies' Samaritan Society—Keturah	0	10	6
Paralysed and Epileptic Hospital—Keturah	0	10	6
National Refuges Destitute Children—Keturah	1	1	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—A.B.	0	5	0
Society for Free Distribution of Scriptures—L.H.	1	0	0
Miss Leigh's Home, Paris—Unprofitable Servant	1	0	0
Cancer Hospital, Brompton—Unprofitable Servant	1	0	0
Reformed Church, England (Bishop Gregg)—Protestant Worker	0	1	0
Aldershot Mission Hall—M.S.	2	2	0
Colportage Work (Mrs. Gibson)—M.S.	1	1	0
Blue Ribbon Movement, Hoxton—M.S.	5	0	0
Baptist Home Missionary Soc., Scotland—M.S.	1	1	0
Poor French in London (M. Barbier)—M.S.	2	0	0
Church Army—M.S.	3	3	0
Hyde-park Mission Hall (Mr. C. Cook)—M.S.	3	0	0
John street Mission (Mr. W. T. Russell)—M.S.	2	0	0
Mount Hermon Orphanage—M.S.	5	0	0
Mr. H. Cook's Work, Gosport—M.S.	5	0	0
Mr. H. Toye's Orphanage—M.S	3	0	0
Middlesex Soup Kitchen—M.S.	1	1	0
Cage-lane Mission—M.S.	1	1	0
	£283	5	2

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Homes of Hope—H.W. 10s.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—Mrs. M.A.P. £1; Mrs. A. 10s.; Miss J.F. 2s.; J.W.M. 1s.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E. (towards £1,000)—Anon. £1. F. A. Bevan, Esq., Treasurer, 54, Lombard-st., E.C.

Mission Appeals.

CHRISTIAN BLIND RELIEF SOCIETY.—The annual tea given to the blind of the Metropolis, under the auspices of this Society, will be held at the East London Tabernacle on January 24. About five hundred of the blind and their guides will be invited. The Committee appeal for help in meeting the expenses.—T. CLARKE, hon. sec., 59, Burdett-road, E.

Y.W.C.A., DAWLISH.—A building, hitherto used as a coffee-room, &c., has been acquired by the Y.W.C.A. for the purposes of its work in this pretty Devonshire watering-place. £650 must be paid down as part of the purchase, and of this only £500 is in hand. Any who can help a good cause are requested to send their gifts to Mr. B. S. FISHE, Dawlish.

THE VERMONT-STREET GOSPEL MISSION, Kinning-park, Glasgow, has been in working order for about five years. It has in its connection a Sabbath evening meeting for adults, and two afternoon Sabbath-schools, with about 120 children in all. Assistance will be welcomed, either by prayer, money, or Christian literature to distribute among the poor.—S. H. FYFE, secretary, 72, Houston-street, Glasgow.

BIBLE CARRIAGE FOR GERMANY.—May I ask your readers to contribute to the purchase of a Bible-carriage for Blankenburg, Schwarzathal, so that God's Word may be carried to the outlying villages and districts where many a home is without the light of truth. W. Castleton Lockhart, 329, Brixton-road, S.W., will receive contributions.—ALICE MARTIN, Vereinshaus, Blenkenburg, Schwarzathal, Germany.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.—I would ask the help of your readers not merely for the general fund, but for the carrying out of a work which has been very deeply laid upon my heart—the extension of the Open-all-Night Refuge. This was established in 1867, and since then it has given shelter to 12,000 young women and girls, exclusive of those who have been admitted to the Homes.—EDWARD W. THOMAS, 200, Euston-road, London, N.W.

STRATFORD, E.—We are trying to raise a fund for relieving deserving poor, who are very numerous in this district. Money raised is used for purchase of coals, bread, grocery, &c., to be dispensed through the missionary, or by his recommendation. Old clothes would be greatly valued. Parcels may be sent to me, or to the missionary, 16, Buxton-road, Stratford. Mr. Boardman is the president of the Committee.—J. FORDHAM, hon. sec., 37, Idmiston-road, Forest-lane, Stratford, E.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN SAILORS' SOCIETY (Mercers-street, Shadwell, London, E.).—About the 28th inst. we shall make up our Christmas parcels for our stations in the different parts of the world. Our agents have exceptional opportunities of distributing on board of steamers and ships, small and great, as well as our reading-rooms on shore. We have a great demand, and any papers, magazines, almanacks, cards, books, old or new, &c., will brighten these Christmas parcels.—EDWARD W. MATTHEWS, secretary.

LONDON Y.W.C.A. (16a, Old Cavendish-street, W.).—The work of the Y.W.C.A. is increasing so rapidly that we cannot cope with it, with our present means. Several of our older institutes pressingly need enlarging, and we also have constant petitions to extend our efforts in new directions. Something must be done for the 150,000 factory girls employed throughout London, who are comparatively untouched by any existing agency. We are earnestly desiring to establish a centre for this work in the East-end, should funds permit. Can you help us to meet these urgent calls?—MARY WEITBRECHT, sec.

RANELAGH-ROAD MISSION HALL.—The important and thoroughly evangelical work carried on in this hall is threatened with extinction unless help can be speedily obtained. The hall is situated in a poor and populous district of Paddington, and many branches of work are carried on. A debt of £130 has been unavoidably incurred, and repairs to the amount of £34 are required. Unless £200 be raised before the close of the year, the committee will feel themselves obliged to surrender it. If this sum can be raised a valuable work would be saved from entire extinction. Contributions will be gratefully received by ROWLAND WEBSTER, 7, Surrendale-place, Sutherland-avenue, W.

SOMERS TOWN BLIND AID SOCIETY.—The special Jubilee Fund of £500, started with the kind object of adding twenty-five new members to the list of necessitous deserving blind, who have long been patiently awaiting admission, and intended to be expended over a period o ten years, for the benefit of these, in sums of £50 pe annum, is still incomplete by about £70. The workers are doubly anxious to realise this amount, as a grant o £100 from the trustees of "The Gardner's Trust" i made conditional on the remainder of the money being raised. Reports will be sent, or the fullest information gladly given, on application to the president, Rev. J Oswald Dykes, D.D., 49, Gordon-square, W.C.; or to th hon. sec., Mrs. STAREY, 53, Hilldrop-road, London, N.

NEW TALBOT TABERNACLE.

THE first contract for the New Building is now nearing completion. We have already received all the money needed, save a few promised sums yet to come in. But this secures us only the shell of the building.

The Powis Hall, in which we are at present holding our services, is greatly overcrowded, and many are deterred from coming because of the crush. Our Mission Hall, which takes some of the overflow, is also filled. Never in the history of the work has there seemed to be a greater desire to hear the Word. There are many other tokens also of the Lord's presence and blessing, which make it difficult to believe that He would have us stay our hand.

To dismiss the workmen at the present juncture would, I fear, involve us directly and indirectly in a greater outlay. My fellow-workers are of one mind to go forward. They are giving to their utmost. We propose to do only what is absolutely necessary. We could leave the gallery for the present. The walls, however, must be plastered. We must have the FLOORING—LOBBY to exclude draught—SEATS—LIGHTS—WINDOWS—a PLATFORM—and, before the winter of 1888, a HEATING APPARATUS. To do this, and meet other expenses, we need quite £1,500. Some of the items I have named are being taken up separately; thus, the School children are subscribing for two of the large windows (costing about £5 each). Others are sending offerings towards the seats. One kind friend has given the baptistery. It may be that the hearts of some who read this will be touched to take up some other portion of our much-needed undertaking.

No one feels more strongly than we do the urgent claims of the Poor, Home and Foreign Missions, &c., and in erecting a commodious building for the ministry of the Word, we believe we shall be doing the best thing to foster and promote these and the other good works, with which we have been so long and so closely identified.

Already eight from our fellowship have entered the Foreign Mission field, and another is preparing to follow. The accompanying extracts show in what light our effort is regarded by such, and others at home.

Donations may be paid into the LONDON AND COUNTY BANK, Westbourne-grove; sent direct to me; or to the Editor of THE CHRISTIAN. I need not say the smallest offering will be thankfully received.

Faithfully in the Gospel,

Frank H White

12, Princes-square, London, W.,
December 16, 1887.

COMMENDATIONS.

I can with all my heart commend to the generous help of all the Lord's servants the work under the care of my beloved brother, Frank White. He took up the work which was left by the excellent Mr. Gordon Forlong, who emigrated; and under his care it has grown, and been of eminent service in the West-end. Mr. White is not, I fear, a very bold beggar, and so I make bold for him, and venture to say that a worthier man there is not in London, nor a minister more intently set upon the maintenance of truth and the winning of souls. HIS NEEDS ARE GREAT JUST NOW, AND HE DESERVES HELP FROM US ALL.

C. H. SPURGEON.

I warmly commend Mr. White's appeal. He is engaged in a most important and much needed work at Bayswater, and as he is an old member of the Y.M.C.A., I am naturally interested in his project.

Much blessing has attended his ministry; indeed, the present effort to secure increased accommodation is a matter of necessity.

Mr. White preaches the pure unadulterated Gospel of Jesus Christ; and is actively engaged, in many ways, in promoting the spread of Evangelical truth.

His supreme desire is to open his New Building free of debt; and my hope is that the Lord's stewards may liberally come to his aid, and so enable him to accomplish this very desirable object.

71, St. Paul's Churchyard. GEORGE WILLIAMS.

I have the strongest objection to the incessant multiplication of buildings, save in cases where a very evident need is manifested. Here, however, the objection does not apply. The living agent is at work. His work has been blessed; the people have been gathered, and A BUILDING IS ABSOLUTELY REQUIRED, in order that the work should go on and prosper.

THE LATE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

In expressing my hearty sympathy with Mr. Frank White's undertaking, I trust that it may be borne in mind by those to whom the accompanying appeal may come that our dear brother's work being heavy, and his strength small, it is most desirable he should be spared toil and anxiety in raising money. His burden may be at least much lightened if those to whom his effort commends itself will kindly send him help as God may incline their hearts, WITH AS LITTLE DELAY AS POSSIBLE.

HENRY E. BROOKE.

Extracted from Letters of Missionaries.

DEAR MR. WHITE, China.

Seeing your appeal in The Christian of February 17 for help towards the New Tabernacle, I thought I would like very much to do something towards it, though I am sorry it is in so small a way. I had often talked to my Biblewoman about the Talbot Tabernacle, and as soon as I mentioned this to her, and told her you were hoping it would become a living Missionary Church, she was delighted, and brought me a dollar (3s. 6d.) at once.

This dear woman is only receiving a little more than four pounds yearly, and has to support her aged mother out of that. The mother, who is also a Christian, came to me with eightpence towards it, saying she was so sorry it was so little.

S. C.

From a London Medical Missionary.

DEAR MR. WHITE,

I have great pleasure in forwarding you a few shillings for your New Building Fund. It is the amount of a collection made on a Lord's day evening at our Mission Hall, amongst our poor—mostly patients and converts. It was their desire to send a mite towards providing a building for those who have so often helped us to minister to their sicknesses of body and soul. It was in no way asked for, but given voluntarily—'tis only a mite, but please accept it.

F. A. PRING.

From an English Evangelist.

MY DEAR MR. WHITE,

My reason for giving you my mite was simply because I felt that He who had so constantly provided me with good buildings required of me a thank-offering; and I felt it to be a dishonour on the cause of Christ that in wealthy England a man known to be doing His work as you are should want for means.

GEO. CLARKE.

"When so many delusions are abroad, arising largely from the want of sound doctrine from many pulpits, we trust the endeavour of our friend and brother, Pastor Frank H. White, to build his Tabernacle will meet with well-deserved support. We can say with confidence that the trumpet there will give no uncertain sound."—The Christian.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies', Children's, and Gentlemen's Dress. Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value. The Immense Variety of Patterns comprise Specialities to suit all Classes, all Climates, all Fashions, and all Purses, from 10½d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.

REGISTERED.

Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges

REGISTERED.

NEW PATTERNS FOR WINTER, 1887.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

All Orders are executed direct.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS

Trade-Mark Registered

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
MERINO WOOLS
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters

Prices and Patterns of which on Application.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.

If any difficulty is found in obtaining, apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide). Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES,
CURTAINS,
BLINDS,
DRAPERIES,
SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

Charming Christmas Musical Presents.

MUSIC IN THE HOUSE MAKES CHEERFUL HAPPY HOMES.

AN UNPARALLELED OFFER to the READERS of "THE CHRISTIAN."

OUR GRAND PRIZE MEDAL 'MINIATURE' MELODEON,

With Two Sets of Broad Reeds, Organ and Celestial Tone, and the Charming Bell Accompaniments, sent carefully packed and Carriage paid to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland on receipt of P.O.O. for 9s. 6d.

OUR GRAND 'PARAGON' MELODEON.

'By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent,' with Patent Visible Double Valves and Two Stops, Organ and Celestial Tone and Charming Bell Accompaniments, sent carefully packed and Carriage Paid to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland on receipt of P.O.O. for 13s. 6d.

OUR GRAND 'FAVOURITE' MELODEON.

'By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent,' with Patent Visible Double Valves, Two Stops, Organ and Celestial Tone and Charming Bell Accompaniments, sent carefully packed and Carriage Paid to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland on receipt of P.O.O. for 16s.

☞ ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND of our Patent Broad Reed Melodeons HAVE BEEN SOLD, and we have received the unprecedented number of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND TESTIMONIALS and PRESS NOTICES from all parts of the world. Before purchasing a Musical Instrument of any other description, send for our NEW PRIVILEGE PRICE LIST for 1888, entitling the holder to have any Instrument mentioned in the List sent, carefully Packed and Carriage Paid, to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland, at the very low price quoted. This valuable List contains numerous Illustrations of the Leading and most Popular Musical Instruments of the day, and is a Complete Guide to the purchase of Musical Instruments. All lovers of Music will find this Illustrated Catalogue a valuable acquisition. Upwards of One Hundred Thousand sent out yearly. Sent on receipt of One Penny Stamp to CAMPBELL & CO., Musical Instrument Makers, 116, Trongate, Glasgow. Established Fifty Years. ☜

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is INVALUABLE during the WINTER for PRESERVING the SKIN from the effects of FROST, COLD WINDS, HARD WATER, &c.

Entirely removes and prevents all
ROUGHNESS, REDNESS, CHAPS, IRRITATION, &c.,
and soon renders
THE SKIN SOFT, SMOOTH, and WHITE.

It is the most perfect Emollient Milk for the Skin ever produced, and no lady should ever be without it, as for the Toilet and Nursery it is INVALUABLE. The intense irritation caused by Chilblains is wonderfully allayed by its use, and breaking is entirely prevented.

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists.

Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham.

DEWHURST'S SEWING COTTON

TRADE MARK.

THE "THREE SHELLS BRAND,"

Strong, Even, Elastic, and free from Knots.

Dewhurst's Cottons have been awarded PRIZE MEDALS for general excellence of quality wherever exhibited.

LATEST AWARDS—

GOLD MEDALS—AMSTERDAM, 1883;
CALCUTTA, 1883-4; ANTWERP, 1885.

[The Inland Postage of this Issue is One Penny.]

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.

No. 934.] LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1887. REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER. [PRICE ONE PENNY.

REV. GEORGE BOWEN, BOMBAY,

Missionary and Editor.

IT is too true that the religion of Jesus Christ has suffered much at the hands of its professors. The fact that it has survived so many betrayals is one great proof of its Divine character. It is equally true, however, that the most unimpeachable evidence on behalf of Christianity that the world has ever known, has been furnished by the lives of its confessors. Such a witness to the power of the Gospel is the subject of our sketch—a witness both from the manner of his conversion and the methods of his after life.

Rev. GEORGE BOWEN has resided in India for about forty years, and has been greatly esteemed all that period, as a man of God, full of faith and good works. But that faith which has sustained him so long was purchased at no small cost. It was through great travail of soul that he entered the ranks of the believers in God and in His Christ. He has himself told the story of his conversion; and those who have read it as it is given in Dr. Hanna's introduction to Mr. Bowen's volume of "Daily Meditations," will not wonder at his firm grip of the Christian verities, ever since the scales fell from his eyes, and he felt the powers of the unseen world.

Mr. Bowen is a native of the United States; he was born in 1816. At seventeen, he tells us, he was led to doubt the truth of Christianity by reading a chapter in Gibbon's History. For eleven years he trod the dreary and darksome paths of unbelief; but God had not forsaken him, and the light of life was yet to arise in his heart. A young lady, to whom he was deeply attached, lay dying of consumption; but she was without hope in the view of her approaching dissolution. Through the ministrations of a former schoolmistress she was led to feel her need of Christ, and to accept his offer of salvation. Then the light of eternity streamed the assured conviction that she was going to be with Christ." The result upon himself of this change, in one so dear to him, may best be described in his own words. The narrative is worth reproducing, for the benefit of any who may be similarly situated.

(From a Photograph by Mr. E. Taurines, Bombay.)

The fact that arrested his attention was that that Jesus of Nazareth who had been so long disregarded and scorned by him should come to the dying one, and give her peace, and sweet content and joy, in the assurance of a blissful immortality: here was something marvellous and inexplicable. He was bewildered.

A Bible, bequeathed to him with a dying request that he would read it, he received with thankfulness, and proceeded to obey the injunction. He read it, and found much to admire in it; valued it he never for a moment doubted that he was right in his views regarding it, or suspected that it was really a revelation from God. One night, just before retiring, he said aloud in his room, "If there is a God who notices the desires of men, I only wish that He would make known to me his will, and I shall feel it my highest privilege to do it, at whatever cost." He had been brought to see that there was nothing more desirable than for a man to be conformed to the will of an all-wise Creator, and also to feel that there must be some Divine guidance, in order that he might know that will. The sequel showed that God was pleased to hear that bewildered cry—it could be scarcely called a prayer.

Two or three days after, he went to a public library from which he was accustomed to get out books, asked for and received one, put it under his arm, and returned home. The distance was about two miles. When nearly home he looked at the book, and found, to his surprise, that it was "Paley's Evidences," a very different book from the one he had asked after. He could not go back to the library that day, and had to keep the book till he could get an opportunity of returning it. He would not read it; he knew all about the evidences of Christianity; he had long ago finally settled that question. Before putting it away, however, he glanced at the first sentence, and was arrested by it. He read one page, and another, and another; was pleased with the style and the candour of the writer; and at last sat down and read a good portion of the book. To his surprise, he found that he was beginning to take a new view of the evidences, and then shut up the book, and put it aside, afraid of being surprised into any change of belief. He went away for a few days in the country, and on his return resolved to read the book carefully and calmly, and see if there was really any reason to believe the Bible to be from God. When about half-way through the volume, he offered the prayer, "Help Thou mine unbelief." When he reached the last sentence his doubts were all removed; he was perfectly convinced of the truth of

He turned to Gibbon, and read again the chapter which had first led him astray, and saw its sophistries and the weakness of its arguments most clearly. The Bible was now God's book, but he did not believe that it contained the doctrines that men pretended to find in it; he would read it for himself and by himself, and see what it really taught. But he had had a great lesson, and felt that humility best became him; he would read it in a humble spirit, and whatever he found there he would receive, no matter how repugnant it might be to his own ideas. Day after day, alone in his room, communicating to none the change he had experienced, he read it, and by degrees found there the very doctrines that he had so much disliked. He found that he was a sinner; that he needed a Saviour; that a Saviour was offered him. He took this Saviour, yielding himself up to his entire direction. He was led on to profess publicly his faith in Christ, and after some years to become a missionary in India.

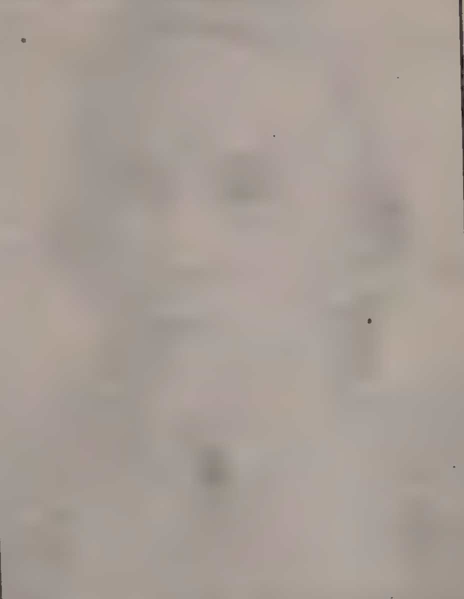
A man with such a soul-experience was not likely to take up Christian discipleship in any half-hearted or conventional way. His father was a rich man, but the son gave up friends, country, and fortune, and consecrated himself and his whole life to the service of Christ among the heathen. He proceeded to India at the beginning of 1848, in connection with the American Board of Missions. After a year's stay in the foreign field, he was led to believe that his influence among the heathen would be greater if he were not in receipt of a salary from any quarter. He gave up his assured income, but for several years longer retained his connection with the Society. In the preface already alluded to Dr. Hanna says:—

> The sphere of missionary labour which Mr. Bowen chiefly occupies is that of preaching to the natives in the vernacular. His own mode of life and sphere of labour is what he thinks most suited to himself, but he does not speak of it as the only right one, or universally the best. All who have known him in Bombay concur in the same loving admiration of one who for twenty-five years* has exhibited a kind and degree of self-sacrificing devotion to which there is perhaps no existing parallel in the whole wide field of missionary labour.

What Mr. Bowen's exact "mode of life" was we gather from himself, as well as from various other sources. As to his temporal support, he states in his reminiscences that for some years "he earned his livelihood by giving an hour daily to private tuition; for a still longer period he has trusted to the Lord to supply his need, without such occupation. It is unnecessary to say he has had enough and to spare." One friend who intimately knew him between the years 1854-68 thus writes to us:—"Like most of those who knew him, I loved him for his wonderful likeness to his Master. It was his aim to follow in the footsteps of the Apostle Paul. So he 'wrought with his hands'—or rather with his brain—to earn just sufficient to enable him to exist. I believe he earned thirty rupees (£3) a month by teaching, and on that he lived for years; a sum, I need hardly say, which called for the very utmost self-denial in eating, clothing, and living." His labours of love were thus undertaken without fee or reward, that he might remove one argument from the mouth of the heathen, who are slow to recognise any disinterestedness in their religious teachers. He was pressed again and again to accept the means of making himself more comfortable, and also to visit his friends in America; but he declined the offers, and refused to leave his post. Another friend of Mr. Bowen's, of long standing, writing fourteen years ago, says:—

> For many years he actually lived in the native bazaar, and among the sadly degraded population, until asked to become Secretary to the Religious Tract Society, at whose depôt he resides, managing the affairs, without fee, in addition to his other labours. He is a most accomplished and highly intellectual man, having travelled much in Europe at one time, knowing French, German, Spanish, Italian, and other European languages, in addition to Hindustani and Marathi. I believe eternity alone will reveal the amount of his unconscious influence, and the bearing his noble, self-sacrificing life has had on the hearts of others.

Since 1873 he has been a member of the missionary staff of the Methodist Episcopal Church of India, and is at present Presiding Elder of the Bombay District South India Conference. In 1871 his attention was drawn to Wm. Taylor's work in Bombay, which at once gained his hearty sympathy and co-operation, and in December of that year he became the leader of one of the so-called "Fellowship Bands," into which the converts were gathered for instruction, encouragement, and counsel. The work grew phenomenally until there was a demand for some church organisation, and Mr. Taylor organised the various gatherings. Helpers were called for, and Mr. Bowen at once threw himself into the breach, and became fully identified with the movement. The work in Bombay and vicinity was placed in his charge, and from that time to this he has done yeoman service. He has with characteristic liberality given (for him) princely sums for the general work. His humility is as characteristic as his generosity. The Indian Witness, in an account of the South India Conference, said: "The veteran George Bowen still retains his place as the Nestor of the Conference, unchanged and unchanging, unless, perhaps, a little more ripe for the rest which for twenty years he has seemed about to enter. With an appearance of feebleness, he has an amazing reserve of strength and endurance, although carrying on his shoulders the triple burden of an editor, a presiding elder, and a missionary preacher in two languages to the natives."



Mr. Bowen's editorial duties are in connection with The Bombay Guardian, which he has conducted, we believe, since 1854. This paper is one of our most acceptable foreign exchanges, and wields, we should speaking people in India, on behalf of evangelical truth and Christian living. A feature of the paper has ever been Mr. Bowen's expositions of Scripture, marked, as they are, by spiritual insight and rare skill in applying the teachings of the word to the life and testimony of the believer. Several volumes of these expositions have been published, among others the one we have mentioned, "Daily Meditations," also "The Amens of Christ," "Love Revealed," &c. They are worthy to rank beside our best standard works of the devotional class of literature. (Douglas, Edinburgh. 5s. each.)

It was with deep regret that we noticed, a month or two ago, that Mr. Bowen had met with an accident, in alighting from a tramcar, which impaired for the time his powers of locomotion. He has now passed his seventieth year, but we earnestly trust, in the good providence of God, a life and a testimony which have proved so effective in commending to others the Gospel of God's grace, may yet be spared to India for a season.

CHRISTMAS ECHOES.*

He comes! He comes!
O speed the tidings blest!
He comes! the Prince of Peace, the Man of Rest:
Where loyal hearts at anchor ride,
He comes, the Lord of Christmastide!

LUCY A. BENNETT.

All heaven keeps open house to-night,
Archangels burst the bounds of light,
And shepherds, on the midnight plain,
Start, dazzled by Jehovah's train.
For "Unto us a Child is born,
And unto us a Son is given;"
Hail, Daystar of the deathless morn,
Bring back to earth the days of heaven.

CHARLES A. FOX.

O Bethlehem! blessed "house of bread,"
On thy sweet loaf our souls have fed,
Our eyes have seen thy glory;
And now we live who once were dead,
And sing thy gracious story.

E. STACY-WATSON.

Once again this Christmas morning
Peal the bells upon the ear,
And in tones of sweetest music,
Call to men from far and near—
"List, ye troubled souls and weary,
Angels call to you from heaven,
Telling, with melodious voices,
God to us his Son has given."

CANON BELL.

---

* From "The Peniel" Series of Christmas Cards. Castell Brothers.

ATHEISM IN THE MISSION FIELD is a foe that devoted Christian workers are now called upon to meet. Into India especially great numbers of atheistic and immoral publication are being extensively imported, and those among the natives who can read English are eagerly purchasing and reading the mischievous literature. The Punjaub Auxiliary of the Religious Tract Society earnestly desire assistance to meet the active anti-Christian efforts which are now in progress.

SOLDIERS IN LIMERICK.—For nearly nine years a quiet but real work has been carried on among the troops in this garrison. Many of those who have attended the Gospel services can testify to blessing received, while others are bright witnesses for Christ in foreign lands. A more suitable house was secured last October, in a central position. As this is the only resort except the public-house open to soldiers, sailors, and police in Limerick, it is desired to enlist the sympathy of Christians on behalf of this work. Friends may communicate with Miss Wilkinson, 11, Newenham

THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS

"The desire of all nations shall come."—Haggai ii. 7.

Unanimous in all ages has been that desire. Look where and when we will, it is much the same story—brave endeavour, temporary success, lasting defeat. Empires have risen, triumphed in splendour, and then given place to others that have done the same. On all hands we see this principle of final failure, and no one can safely predict the future prosperity of the most promising nation. World without end there will be witnessed a repetition of the past, in its transfer of empire and civilisation, and its see-saw of garden and solitary place.

But when He shall come a new order begins, which has thrown forward the glorious shadows of its coming in Ps. lxxii.; Isa. xi. and xxv. Then the "desire of all nations" will be satisfied, and their long, fruitless struggles all fulfilled. Peace, prosperity, and happiness, the beacon lights of all nationality, will be perfect and eternal realities. Thus the aim of all governments will be attained. Every party will see its own conception more than realised. The Conservative, the Liberal, the Home Ruler, the Radical, Revolutionist, Socialist, and Anarchist, will all alike see whatever of right there may be in their favourite schemes infinitely fulfilled. We err in expression and policy—in the form we give our plans, and the means by which we would attain them. We seek things in impossible ways, and in ways that mean the very contradiction or ultimate destruction of the thing we seek. And though the nations desire Him not, yet shall the nations see that in Christ are all things that ever they desired.

Let us, then, transfer our faith from men to Christ, and believe verily that He has more to do with the world's prosperity than the best of statesmen. Let us transfer our faith from politics to religion, and believe that no Government can confer on a country ought in comparison to the Government of Christ. We need despise neither politics nor politicians—we have duties to both, and in them we shall find a fitting field for the exercise of the humanity of Christ's religion. But we will not exaggerate them with divinity, and credit them with a power they do not possess.

And let us transfer our affections from now to then, from earth to heaven. "The whole creation groaneth," and ever will, until He come. But then shall be made manifest that glorious kingdom whose foundation is righteousness, whose term is eternity, and whose music is everlasting joy. With eyes rightly directed, with hearts rightly tuned, we shall say with power, sincerity, and blessedness, "Even so. Come, Lord Jesus." W. F.

A GENEROUS OFFER.—The London, Baptist, and Free Church of Scotland Foreign Missionary Societies have received an offer of £15,000 from Mr. Robert Arthington, of Leeds, who has already given large sums to Central African missions, to enable them jointly to commence a mission to the tribes of the northern part of South America. The proposal is to place the money at the disposal of a council, consisting of representatives of the three great missionary societies, part to be applied to the purchase of a steamer, which shall ply on the Amazon River and its affluents, and the remainder to be expended in the working expenses of the mission. The offer is now under the consideration

SHAFTESBURY MEMORIAL HALLS.

Wednesday evening, the 14th inst., witnessed the opening of the second of these proposed mission halls in memory of the late Lord Shaftesbury, who for some fifty years was the foremost champion in the fight, not only in dealing with the sins and sorrows of our great city, but in connection with those evils which had culminated in the degradation of humanity, in workshop and mine, throughout our professedly Christian land. To not a few of the late Earl's friends and admirers it seems passing strange that so little has been done to perpetuate his memory in a befitting way. We are strongly of the opinion that if "the good Earl," who always so gloried in his dignity as a "coster," could have chosen his own monument, it would certainly have been some building, or buildings, in which day by day "the waste" of our great and wealthy Metropolis might be utilised, and the pure and immortal veins of gold extracted from the unlovely and uninviting mass of quartz lying everywhere about in our crowded centres.

This second hall, in Kerbey-street, Poplar, like the first in Bethnal-green, is in the East-end. This East-end has been often described, but never hit off with truer pencil than by Mr. Besant, to whom the public are indebted for the conception of the People's Palace:—"The great joyless city of the East-end, with its two millions of people, without a gentleman among them, or a rich man, or a nobleman, or an artist, or an author, or anybody at all lifted above themselves by culture and education, except the clergy." If some should think this picture overdrawn, anyone acquainted with the East-end will tell them that it is, at least, becoming truer and truer every year. In the recollection of one present at the opening of this Memorial Hall, the Commercial-road was the abode of well-to-do gentry, while the East India-road, off which the hall is situated, was the abode of aristocrats and merchant princes, who kept their carriages, and could vie with their brethren in the West. All these have now vanished: the one section to the locale of "The Forest," and the other to South Kensington, &c. But the poor remain, and every year their number is multiplied, and their poverty intensified by the "cruel cheapness," arising from the keen competition of twenty persons seeking to do one person's work. Happy will that day be, when, by a systematised emigration, and by wiser land laws, rendering our country districts more attractive, a man in the East-end shall be again "as precious as the gold of Ophir." As it is, the East-end is the last refuge of all the "out-of-work" people, and "ne'er-do-wells" of the three kingdoms, and latterly of the Continent as well. When will the economic factors in this our great social problem excite as much interest in the breasts of our statesmen as the Irish agrarian puzzle?

Whatever may be the solution, one thing is clear, and that is, that it is the duty of the Christian Church to save the lost; to seek to rescue those who have fallen in the battle of life, both socially and morally; to lift up Christ and his ideas of righteousness, justice, and mercy before both employers and employés; and to insist on the duty with every man, however poor, "to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness."

This second Memorial Hall is a commodious and well-constructed building, capable of accommodating some two hundred and fifty persons, and having all the necessary arrangements for carrying on the multiplied agencies both of a philanthropic and evangelistic character proposed. Tea having been provided in the Hall, it was thought prudent, on account of the dampness of the walls, to hold the meeting at the George Green schools.

Mr. T. Thornton, of South Kensington, who has taken great interest in the poor of the neighbourhood, presided. He said the vastness these Mission Halls, as centres for pleasant recreation, and, beyond that, for religious services. The late Lord Shaftesbury had done much for poor people, in fact, for every section of the population; and it was a pleasure to feel that the Hall had been erected partly to his memory for the carrying on of a work in which he had played so conspicuous a part. He then gave a brief sketch of the work to be carried on in it, which was further amplified by Rev. J. Chadburn, who has charged himself with the superintendence of all the secular agencies to be maintained in the building. The work will include a free breakfast every morning to 300 poor children. There are large numbers of women in the neighbourhood employed making shirts by a certain class known as "sweaters." In one instance a poor woman was ten minutes late with her work. Her employer sent her back with an empty pocket, to an empty cupboard, and no fire in the grate, having deducted her earnings by way of a fine, and pocketed them for his own benefit. For the making of these shirts these poor women get 2½d. per dozen, and for the sum of 5d. have to sew on about seventy buttons and twelve gussets, whilst for making a pair of trousers they obtain 5d. It is intended to carry on a work at this Hall by which he hoped 200 women would be employed, and whose wages would at once be raised 100 per cent., as Mr. William James Walker, who had greatly assisted him, had arranged with a large London firm for as much work as could be done at the latter figure. A cup of cocoa or coffee will be provided every day for the women at the price of 1d. per week. Mr. Chadburn concluded by stating that a lady from the West-end has promised to give lessons in cookery, and it is hoped to train a band of young women and fit them as good servants.

Mr. Sawell, the secretary of the Committee for Special Religious Services in Theatres, &c., 3, Bridewell-place, E.C., who have assumed the responsibility of taking the initial steps in the erection of these Memorial Halls to their late chairman, made the financial statement. The Hall would cost, with its internal fittings, £917. £500 was to be paid to the builder on the day of opening. Towards this latter sum he regretted to say only £368 7s. had been received. This amount included £100 from Mr. E. M. Stone; a Yorkshire Lady, £50; Dowager Lady Louisa Ashburton, £50; Mr. S. Hope Morley, £50; Mr. J. G. Barclay, £25, and Mr. T. Thornton, £20. Considering the work to be done in the Hall, he trusted that the friends of the late Earl would do something to perpetuate his memory among the poor beyond a statue in Picadilly and a bust in Westminster Abbey. Mr. Sawell subsequently dwelt on the security the subscribers would have against the teaching of all "down-grade" theology in these Halls by the constitution of the London City Mission, for whose use these Halls would be primarily erected. In his estimation the more that so-called "secular" work was done in them the more popular would they be with the people for religious services. Our Christianity must touch the masses at all points, or they will not accept it.

Capt. Bailey (Secretary of the East and West India Dock Company), Mr. James Rennie, and Mr. William James Walker also addressed the meeting.

The third Memorial Hall is about to be erected in Union-street, Bow. Towards this £400 have already been subscribed. The site is leased from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. Mr. F. A. Bevan is treasurer for this one.

CHRISTIAN EVIDENCES.—Mr. W. T. Lees has delivered at Plymouth a series of Sunday evening addresses on "Freethought in the Church," under the auspices of the Christian Evidence Society. The building, which seats 2000 persons, was overcrowded on each occasion. In addition to the great interest manifested by the audience, several distinct cases of conversion are reported. The committee of the Society are prepared to send Mr. Lees to any part of the West of England where his services would be useful in counteracting atheism and secularism. The secretary is Rev. T. T. Waterman, 13, Buckingham-

THE END OF THE YEAR.—I.

By Rev. WILLIAM GUEST.

It has been my privilege, during the last five years, to address at this season, through the columns of The Christian, those who are partakers in "the tribulation and kingdom and patience which are in Jesus." Every one of these years has grown in significance. The agitations, troubles, perplexities, and intensity of life have gone on increasing. More than ever do the auspicious and the ominous fill the thoughts of men as we close the year. Indifference respecting these contrary currents is not possible. Whatever touches the interests of Christ's cause has ever been supreme to faithful men. The most impressive word concerning the Forerunner is that which declares, "The same came for a witness." And rising higher, it can scarcely be questioned that no designation of the Lord Jesus has a more suggestive teaching than that wherein He is spoken of as "The Faithful Witness."

FIDELITY TO CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

has been the topic that has seriously and widely agitated many of the churches during the latter part of the year now closing. Separations, which are deeply to be deplored, have taken place. A strange thing has marked the controversy. On the one hand, there has been a firm and open protest, followed by secession; and on the other, claims asserted for all but identity of opinion on the matters in dispute. One who has been outside the discussion may be allowed to regret that charges and disavowals have been more vague than frank, and that opportunities for mutual explanations have not been sought. Preachers are suspected who ought not to be, and the enemies of our religion are furnished with a plea for unbelief. The utmost openness, and the most considerate caution, were surely demanded.

Nevertheless, the matters in controversy have been of INFINITE IMPORT.

One of the greatest theologians of this century (M. Vinet) has said:—"The infidelity which denies religion is a far less powerful opponent than the heresy which corrupts it. There has always been more success against the arguments of infidelity than against the subtleties of heresy. The latter is more specious in its language and more tempting in its delusions, than the former." The awful roll of woes recorded in Matt. xxiii. were not poured by Jesus over the heads of Sadducees, the sceptics of his day, but over Scribes and Pharisees who were the perverters of religion and the "blind guides" of the nation. Moreover, the heresy which is acknowledged is not so dangerous as that which is latent. Truth is dear to the people, and avowed teachers of heterodoxy cannot boast of their success. But this is the peril of the age. We as preachers may both profess the doctrines dear to Evangelical Protestantism and repudiate unfaithfulness in regard to them, and at the same time have such an inadequate conception of their exceeding import as that our relation to them may in effect be one of unbelief. For example, a man may preach from the text, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" and, aiming directly at the heart and conscience, may produce an overwhelming sense of the infinite urgency of the inspired interrogation. He may not be end—to exhibit the fearful danger, and the inconceivable doom of slighting the offer of salvation through the cross of Christ. He scorns on such a matter to please his hearers. His words are alarming and piercing. He expostulates and beseeches; and his own strong belief is contagious throughout the congregation he addresses. Another preacher may with graceful eloquence, polished rhetoric, and rounded periods, deliver an essay which offers an intellectual proof of the bearing of Christ's salvation upon man's treatment of it. It is a syllogism, argued logically, that neglect involves loss. There is no glow; no warning; no entreaty. The preacher is as one who plays upon an instrument, and when all is over his words are like "sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." Can such a preacher really believe that hell or heaven is the result of a man's conduct in relation to the "great salvation"? No. If a man saw his friend walking unconsciously towards a deep precipice, would he not warn? and would there not be in his looks and tones an expression of his alarm and concern? If there were neither one nor the other his friend would think he was jesting. Common humanity in this case would lead him to beseech; and if his friend persisted, to lay hold of his hand; to cast himself on his path; to arrest by any means a certain destruction. And if there be less than this yearning anxiety when speaking to men on the high matters of eternity, it is because Christian verities are not believed by us as preachers: we do not deny them, but our faith does not embrace them; we preach them to get through so much time, or to make Sunday services bearable to men who can neither be in business nor pleasure; and sure I am that this real unbelief on our part is mainly responsible for the scepticism as to the dangers of neglecting the supreme message of God which wraps in cold bonds of death so many of our hearers.

That is true which has been said by the distinguished servant of Christ who has originated this controversy: "At the back of doctrinal falsehood comes a natural decline of spiritual life." The cold preaching of morality by the Conformist clergy, and of Arianism by the Nonconformist, brought on the eighteenth century its soulless lethargy, infidelities, and vilenesses. Yet is it not also true, and is it not a truth of deep importance, that the prepares the way for doctrinal falsehood? Our age has its noble characteristics on the side of parochial activities, and a grand development among all religionists of benevolent zeal; but on the side of contemplation, secret devotion, and meditation on the law of the Lord, there is a disproportion and nervelessness which may be a devil's stratagem to neutralise our activities. If any one thing is taught us by the example of our Lord and his Apostles, it is that being alone with God is the necessary force of all energies for man. "Prayer is the nurse of faith." The great preachers of all the past centuries had their places of retirement, and acted practically on the principle that they could not fix the spirit of piety in others if they lost it in themselves. Even a Paley could say to the younger clergy, "Half your failures arise from your impatience of solitude." The early Methodists abounded in prayer, and taught the preachers and societies to keep their quarterly fast days for separation from business, and even from efforts to do riched, and their testimony rendered effective. Dissenting ministers of eminence are shown by their biographies to have spent whole days in self-examination, confession of ministerial sins, application of Scripture to themselves, and intercession for their congregations. They learnt the Gospel by habitual communion with its Author.

DECLINE OF SPIRITUAL LIFE

Alas! where are we? Too busy to spend an hour alone with our Master! Adopting the dictum, "To work is to pray," and forgetting that the maxim originated with one whose gloomy and misanthropic life gave it its refutation: filling our time with secularities, and disregarding apostolic authority in such matters—"Look ye out those whom we may appoint over this business; but we will continue steadfastly in prayer, and in the ministry of the Word": tempted to think less than our fathers of the need of the power of the Holy Ghost, because we have better material advantages —our choirs, and elaborate music, and æsthetics, and the shaped stone and carved wood of our elegant churches! As for our theological students, undesignedly, it may be believed, but most mistakenly, a modern sentiment fixes their thought on a curriculum of human learning as the best preparation for the ministry, instead of emphasising the truth that the indispensable qualification is the anointing of the Spirit of wisdom and grace. The difference in the result is all but infinite—the one looks to man and his works for the fitness; the other makes waiting upon God the necessity and the sine quâ non of the effective minister of Christ.

Merely human skill or learning cannot set forth Divine truth. And this is

OUR PRESENT DANGER.

It is not so much heresy, as a feeble hold of inspired revelations. We may vehemently assert our belief in great Christian doctrines while they are ignored in our preaching. We may theoretically accept that which fails to exert an adequate effect on our convictions and testimony. This may be the explanation of the painful controversy that has agitated so many during the last three months.

We must be honest to Scripture, or renounce our name of Christian believers. Inspiration avers that the soul-governed man, the man who has not the Spirit, and is "governed by the lower side of his immaterial nature, 'cannot know the things of the Spirit of God.'" Before Paul prays that disciples may know the love of Christ, he prays that they may be "rooted and grounded in love." He teaches, you will not be able to comprehend love unless you are first grounded in it. A coward cannot understand a hero, nor a miser a benefactor. There must be identity of nature before we can understand moral qualities. Hence there may be "sceptical believers." Faith, which has not love for its root, has no power to read the heart of God. How can cold intellect alone comprehend the Scripture doctrine of the atonement? That atonement means, most assuredly, infinite disinterestedness. It is Divine love surrendering itself in a self-denial beyond the possibility of language to describe. It is love so holy, on the one side, as to say to God, "Thou art righteous in taking judgment," and so compassionate on the other, as to identify itself absolutely with the condition and cause of sinners, so as to bear, in its perfect oneness with them, the wages of their sin, and to offer a sacrifice which shall be for all generations an

God. But this, involving as it does the awfulness of sin and the condemnation of the guilty, is inexplicable to the man whose deepest and holiest sensibilities have not been awakened by a solitary waiting upon God. If our private devotions mean no more than a few hurried and superficial prayers; if there is no solitude of the spirit with God; if we have never known what the Psalmist intends when he says, "My soul is silently waiting unto God," by which must be meant the quenching of self thoughts in speechless love and expectancy, then we cannot understand that sacrifice unto death in Jesus when He offered Himself up for us, and we shall have no spiritual perception of the soul-converting and sanctifying doctrines of Christianity.

On the contrary, if in the depths of our soul we have known the reality of the profound benediction, "The fellowship of the Spirit," we shall never talk of these doctrines as "lying secondary in religious belief;" we shall no more leave out these vital truths in preaching than a lecturer on astronomy would leave out a prominent reference to the law of gravitation. We shall not dare, or if daring, should not be able, to slur over evangelical doctrines in order to accommodate our sermons to men who dislike them because of their lofty requirements; we shall find it simply impossible to precede the holy commemoration of the Lord's Supper by a discourse in which the very mention of Jesus Christ is not made; we shall, in short, know what the great Apostle meant when, concerning teaching, he wrote to Timothy: "Continue in these things; for in doing this, thou shalt save both thyself and them that hear thee."

God willing, a second paper, next week, will continue this important topic in its relation to others as well as teachers and ministers.

◆

DR. SOMERVILLE IN VIENNA.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

None of the great evangelists who have of late years gone forth from England and the United States has ever found his way to our brilliant capital with its gay, pleasure-loving population. As an echo from afar we have heard the accounts of the wonderful things God has accomplished through those distinguished servants of his. At last we have been privileged to see and hear one of them. Dr. Somerville spoke here twice to the English Presbyterian congregation, and six times to mixed audiences, chiefly German; in the latter cases availing himself of the services of an interpreter. The large hall of the Association of Engineers and Architects, kindly placed at Dr. Somerville's disposal, which affords sitting room for 360 persons, was fairly filled each time.

But the greatest success, so far as we can judge, was achieved by the last and seventh ecture, on the subject, "What Christianity owes o the Jews." A good sprinkling of Jews had een present on all the previous occasions, but his time they came in compact numbers. Long efore the beginning of the lecture the hall was rowded to overflowing, and no further admission vas possible. With deep attention the audience ollowed the address, which may be described as powerful appeal to the Jews to believe in Jesus; t the close the hearers broke out into expresions of hearty approval. The day after, a paper n Jewish hands contained a very extensive report f the speech, expressing the utmost admiration f the preacher, and giving a very sympathetic eview of the chief points of the address. We ope and pray the Lord may put it in the hearts f many of his servants to come here, to refresh r faith, and help us to shake the mass of

FROM LONDON TO BOMBAY.—2.

BY A SECOND-CLASS PASSENGER.

The journey through the hundred miles of the Suez Canal was chiefly noteworthy for the additional glimpses it gave us of life in the land of the Pharaohs. Occasionally we passed small parties of Arabs, with from three to thirteen loaded camels, walking in single file, each attached by a cord to its neighbour. One pair of Arabs were driving the leanest herd of kine I ever saw. The word desert received a new emphasis in our minds from the barren sandy waste, stretching as far as the eye could reach, on both sides of us during the first half of our passage through the Canal. The latter half of the way, after we had passed Lake Timsah, was less barren and more hilly, and even mountainous in some parts.

The Canal ends at Suez, which, like Port Said, owes its importance to this great modern water-way between the Mediterranean and the Red Seas. The distance in the journey to India which is saved by the Canal is the difference between about 6500 and 11,500 miles. Our vessel received here a considerable influx of passengers, along with the overland mail from England viâ Brindisi. Among the passengers was the Duchess of Connaught, whose husband is at present stationed in India.

But the chief interest of Suez to me consisted in its nearness to the spot where the waters of the Red Sea divided, and formed walls, to make a passage for the Israelites to pass over on dry ground, in their flight from the Land of Bondage toward the Land of Promise. Although the exact locality of this marvellous interposition of God appears to be incapable of identification, the fact of being very near to it did not fail to inspire a feeling of devout thankfulness that our God is still the "God of deliverances" (Ps. lxviii. 20, R.V.) to his trustful and obedient children.

The Red Sea is mostly a beautiful blue. For a considerable distance it was so calm and quiet as to seem more like a lake of molten glass than a sea nearly 1200 miles long, and wide enough for the voyager to lose sight of the mainland for three days. The perceptible motion of our ship at that period of exquisite calm, although the engines were at full speed, was certainly no more, and perhaps less, than that of a London tramcar.

The range of mountains, embracing Mounts Sinai and Horeb, stretched majestically to the left of us as we proceeded down that portion of the Red Sea now known as the Gulf of Suez. "Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb. And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush" (Exod. iii. 1). That seemed a long while to look back to. A great deal of secular history has been made and forgotten in the more than 3000 years which have intervened. But through all that time the records of God's written Word, as if by miracle, have been preserved to us, as fresh and as intact as though the events to which they refer had occurred only yesterday.

Mount Horeb reminded us, too, of Elijah, in his moments of trial and depression, when God visited him, and spoke, not in the "great and strong wind," nor in the earthquake, nor in the fire, but in the still small voice, as He yet speaks by his Holy Spirit, in the solemn quietness, to every listening heart.

But our principal thoughts in passing the Sinaitic range centred upon Mount Sinai itself, for here God gave to mankind the law which has been the sheet-anchor of the morality of our race. What a beacon to us in these modern times of voluptuousness, and scepticism under the guise of culture, and of the exaltation of cleverness above character, is the history of the nations who, not heeding that law, have perished in their corruption.

In passing out of the Red Sea into the Gulf of Aden, numerous barren, but picturesque, islands of volcanic origin were objects of interest. The sight of some of them helped the spectator to I thought of Pompeii, and the power of the Creator of the world to use its elements as his ministers of judgment.

Aden consists of a peninsula and town on the south coast of the province of Yemen in Arabia Felix. The town is in a deep hollow, formed by the crater of an extinct volcano. There is a large harbour. Immediately we were at anchor, while the Royal Mail was despatched to the town, we were boarded by copper-coloured natives, and Arabian Jews of a lighter hue. The former wanted to change our sovereigns into rupees, or to sell us walking-sticks, blown ostrich eggs, sea shells, or oranges. The Jews were dealers in ostrich feathers, and seemed surprised to meet with several ladies who declined their wares at any price, believing that the best adornments of women professing godliness are a meek and quiet spirit, with good works.

Our ship was surrounded by perhaps thirty small canoes, each containing one or two diminutive native boys, whose business was to dive for coins thrown to them. This they did with much alacrity and skill, occasionally even from the rigging of our vessel, leaving their tiny crafts to float tenantless meanwhile.

During the remaining six days of the passage, the principal industry (next to feeding the passengers) of our miniature world attracted some attention—I mean the process of sorting the mail. There was a complete Post-Office on board, excepting of course the Telegraph and Savings Bank departments. The postmaster had five or six assistants. While the letters were sorted in the Post Office proper—the work going on all the time between Suez and Bombay—the large pile of bags containing newspapers and book packets was attended to in the baggage hold, from the top of which, as from a gallery, not a few of the voyagers now and again looked down upon the operations. I was delighted to recognise so large a number of copies of my old friend The Christian on their way to cheer the hearts and quicken the spiritual life and energy of many of God's children in India's sunny but dark land. What a pity that any copies should be wasted, when each, after being read at home, might have a mission to some one across the sea. Good religious literature, like the money of the Lord's stewards, should be well circulated.

We sighted Bombay in the early morning of the 25th day from our departure from London. Presumably on account of the tide not being in our favour our ship anchored some distance from the shore about 11 a.m. Expectant friends were waiting for us as well as for many of the other passengers, and quickly came in boats manned by natives to fetch us. As we were warmly greeted and welcomed, even by some whom we had never seen nor heard of before, how could we help rejoicing at the bond of loving union which unites the children of the same Heavenly Father! The transition from the beautiful calm which had prevailed for several days at sea to the busy scenes of the city of Bombay afforded a great contrast, but we were not sorry to experience it.

I am deeply impressed with the thought that the Churches at home ought to be hotter on the subject of missionary work in India, and not least because our so-called Christian Government has added to the blackness of heathenism the crowning abomination of Western civilisation — the official licensing of the sin of impurity. In the Churches of Great Britain, America, and Australasia there ought to be such a revival of interest in the progress of the kingdom of God in India that the ambassadors of Christ—a true "army of the Lord"—shall yearly pour into this vast land not by scores nor even by hundreds. The vision of faith sees in the near future a time when the hoarded treasures of those who call themselves by the name of Christ will be unlocked; when the Lord's people will practise consecration as much as they sing about it, and when many individual Christians, and nearly every Christian congregation in Christendom, rising to their responsibility, will support at least one missionary in some heathen land. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few."

CHRISTIAN LIVING.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

IV.—SIN AND SINS.

The nearer we live to God, the more sensitive we become to the presence of sin. Increasing light means increasing self-judgment; and things which were allowed in the twilight of the dawn, become abhorrent as the noontide light reveals their true character. You may gauge your growth in grace, and your increasing reception of the Holy Ghost, by the tenderness of your conscience with respect to sins which you once permitted without remorse, and almost without remark. In proportion as you comprehend the full beauty of Christ your Lord, you will find imperfection in your best moments, and discern blemishes in your holiest deeds. When we hear of God, we are self-satisfied, but when we see Him, we abhor ourselves, and repent in dust and ashes.

In view of these facts it is impossible for any true child of God to be contented with himself. He cannot speak of himself as having attained, or being already perfect. He is ever following after to apprehend and attain; and as he does so, he, who once described himself as the least of all saints, comes to call himself the chief of sinners. He is conscious of forgiveness; he knows that he is accepted in the Beloved; but, in proportion as he walks in the growing light, he feels his growing need of the precious blood, which cleanseth from all sin.

It is true that many claim to have attained to a condition of sinless perfectness; but they surely fail to discriminate between things which differ widely as the poles. They do not distinguish between the believer's standing in Christ Jesus, in the sight of God, and his practical realisation and appropriation of that standing, which can only be in proportion to his faith. According to our faith, so it is to us; and, as faith is ever growing towards perfect vision, is it not clear that there must also be a growth towards the perfect appreciation and enjoyment of our standing in Christ Jesus?

And is there not this also, that there is a whole world of difference between freedom from conscious sin and the attainment of the perfect glory of the stature of Christ? The one is negative; the other is positive. The one is according to the dim light of human consciousness; the other is according to the Divine standard of infinite excellence. The one is within the reach of the young disciple, and ranks among the elements of Christ; the other is still in advance of the holiest saint, among the ranks of the redeemed, and always will be.

As soon as we put ourselves in the true relation to the Spirit of God, we may expect to be kept from conscious sin; but surely this is a very different thing from the perfection of the New Testament, which is the maturity of the fully developed man. And, even if we have passed from the adolescence to the manhood of Christian development, there is still an infinite chasm between our uttermost attainment, and the surpassing loveliness of the One Perfect Man.

Who of us has not also had some such experience as this, that we condemn things which passed muster years ago? Is not this the law of growing excellence in all art, in all knowledge? Does not the singer, the painter, the writer, the poet, detect blemishes and flaws where once the which the energies of the soul may work? And if this be, is it not almost certain that we permit and harbour things to-day which we shall be the first to condemn when years have passed; just as we condemn things to-day which, for want of fuller light, seemed harmless enough in the days of our ignorance? But, under such circumstances, how can we say that we are perfect? How can we speak of ourselves as sinless? How can we ever get beyond the need of humbly confessing that we are sinners? How can we do without the constant washing in the laver of the priests?

There are three matters which must be considered in connection with the believer's inner experience of evil:—

I. The Tempter. — "Your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, goeth about, seeking whom he may devour: whom resist." It is not necessary to suppose that the prince of the power of the air is the author of temptation to every believer, the world over, for that would go near to investing him with the attributes of omniscience or omnipresence. But he is surrounded by legions of inferior spirits, the wicked spirits in heavenly places, as malignant in their hate as he is; and who are ever waiting to carry out his plans; and any one of these is sufficient to master the soul that has not learnt the secret of victory through faith in the stronger than the strong man armed.

It is a commonplace in Christian ethics, and yet it may not be realised by every reader of these lines, that temptation does not become sin to us, until the will assents to the suggestion of the tempter. So long as the will is resolute, exclaiming with Joseph, "How can I do this great wickedness,, and sin against God," there is no sin. Sin is the act of the perverted will. That temptation is not sin is proved by the fact that the Lord Jesus was tempted in all points, though without sin. Of course, there is a vast difference between Him and us; because there was nothing in Him, as there is in us, responsive to the tempter's suggestions. It is difficult for us to listen to the suggestion of sin without contracting any stain; but still it may be accepted as broadly true that the fact of our being tempted does not necessarily involve us in sin.

There is only one way by which the tempter can be met. He laughs at our good resolutions and ridicules the pledges with which we fortify ourselves. He has been dealing with these for sixty centuries, and well knows how to find their weakest point, and to sweep them away, as the tide does the child's barricade of sand. There is only One whom he fears; One who in the hour of greatest weakness conquered him; and who has been raised far above all principality and power, that He may succour and deliver all frail and tempted souls. He conquered the prince of this world in the days of his flesh; and He is prepared to do as much again, and yet again, in each one of us, if only we will truly surrender ourselves to his gracious and mighty indwelling.

In the days of knightly chivalry it was supposed to be enough for the true soldier of the cross to make the sacred sign upon his person; and instantly the foul spirits that had gathered in the murky gloom to do him harm, gave back, and let him through. It was not all legend and myth. There is a truth beneath the mediæval setting. And that truth is ours to-day, that the best resource for the hardly beset soldier of

There are many forms in which that appeal may be made. Some utter the name of the tempted and succouring High Priest: Jesus, Jesus. Some cry in the triumphant assurance of victory: Jesus saves me. Some do better still, and claim that grace in Him, the lack of which is hurrying them into sin; so that temptation becomes a positive means of grace to them, by showing their deficiency, and leading them to strengthen the things which remain, but which may be languishing to death.

But whichever method you adopt, reader, be sure you do it in one way or another. Swift as the chick to the shelter of the mother's wing, so do you betake yourself to the ever-offered protection of Jesus Christ whenever menaced by the tempter. The Lord God is not only a sun, but a shield. "The name of the Lord is a strong tower; the righteous runneth into it and is safe." He will cover thy head in the day of battle.

It may be that you have tried to do this, and have failed. You have entered upon the day's life, fully intending to make Jesus your shield of faith, and to hide in Him when threatened by the tempter. Yet you have found, to your dismay, that you have been overcome before you have bethought yourself of your refuge and deliverer. But there is an easy remedy for this, in the aid of the Holy Spirit. He is the Divine remembrancer. It is his office to maintain the spirit in a state of holy recollectedness; and, if the attack be as a thunderclap, He will be as the premonitory lightning flash, crying, "Beware, beware; get you to your stronghold, O prisoner o hope."

Be sure of this, that Satan cannot tempt you beyond what you have power to sustain or resist Powerless in yourself, you can do all things in Christ that strengtheneth you. Trust the Lord Jesus who bought you to keep you. "The Lord is thy keeper. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved. Surely He shall deliver thee from th snare of the fowler."

II. The Sinful Tendency within.—Regeneration is not the eradication of the principle o the old life, but the insertion beside it of th principle of a new life, the Christ life. An these two exist side by side; as the house o Saul and the house of David in the rent an distracted kingdom of Israel; but the one i destined to get weaker and weaker, whilst th other waxes stronger and stronger.

That which is born of the flesh is flesh, an can never be anything else than flesh. It ca never be improved into spirit. It can neve be anything but abhorrent in the eye of th Holy God. So that they who are in the fles cannot please God; and the flesh, which is i us, can never please God. The only thing to b done is to deny it; to say of it, as Peter did Christ, "I know not the man;" and to reckon as a dead thing, which has no place in the Hom of Life. "Bury thy dead out of thy sight."

Self is the anagram of flesh. The flesh principle is the self-principle, which so insidiously creeps into everything from which is not rigorously excluded by the grace of Go Before we are converted, self is the sole motive power of our lives; our kindest and best actio originate in this root. And after we are converted, it strives to insinuate itself into o religious life. Satan will not prohibit us fro being religious if only self is the mainspring our devotion. Hence it is that Jesus Christ so unrelenting in his demand for self-denia thyself." Sword in hand, we must pursue this evil thing through all the disguises beneath which it hides itself. We must allow it no quarter. We must believe that it is never more near or more dangerous than when it causes a rumour to be set on foot that it is no more. In the self-congratulation which arises on the receipt of this happy intelligence, there is a new and striking evidence of its continued and vigorous existence.

It is to this evil principle, which is very susceptible to the least suggestion from without, that the tempter appeals. His attacks would be less formidable if it were not for this traitor within the citadel of the soul. But, we may well fear the bombshells thrown in from without, when we remember the magazines of gunpowder within, awaiting the spark that shall hurry them into explosion, and shatter the rest of the soul.

There is no evidence, then, that the flesh shall ever be eradicated, because it is ourselves; and the Apostle clearly tells us that the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh. And in those who most earnestly asseverate its eradication in their own experience, there are frequent indications of its presence still.

But this is possible. The Holy Ghost is the deadly antagonist and all-sufficient antidote of the self-life. When He dwells in blessed fulness within the surrendered heart, He sets it free from the law of sin and death; He annihilates the power of the self-life, as an antiseptic cancels the death-dealing germs which proceed from the body of a patient who is stricken by an infectious disease.

When the Holy Spirit resides in power in the heart, He keeps the self-life so utterly in the place of death that temptation has no fascination, no power. The appeals of hell are flung against the ear of death; there is no response, no motion of obedience. Try it, reader; be not content to have the Holy Ghost within thee; see that He fills thee; and thou wilt experience that blessed condition, in which the sparks of temptation shall seem to be quenched in an ocean of water, as they touch thy heart.

But remember the evil thing is there still; not eradicated, not destroyed, only kept in the place of death by the Spirit of life. And if ever thou shalt quench or limit his gracious operation, so that He relaxes his restraining power, that accursed principle will arise with all its pristine force, join hands with the tempter, and hurry thee into sin. Watch and pray, therefore; keep in with the Holy Ghost; walk warily; that thou mayest never have to retrace thy steps, shedding tears of blood.

III. SINS.—Through neglect of watching and prayer; or by reason of carelessness in the walk and conversation; it is quite possible to break that holy connection between ourselves and Heaven which is the secret of deliverance, and the talisman of victory. There is always a Delilah ready to shear off the locks of our strength, if we allow ourselves to sleep in her lap. And our strength may be gone ere we know it. "He wist not that the Lord had departed from him."

And when we put ourselves outside those sacred influences which are intended to deliver us from the power of evil, there is no alternative, but that we should break out again into acts of sin. But there is a difference. They are not now the normal state of the soul. They are committed in opposition to the judgment and the into the old blessedness again. An old divine says that a sheep and a sow may each fall into the same quagmire; but the sow will wallow in it, whilst the sheep will bleat piteously, until she is extricated and cleansed. Such is the difference between the ungodly and the children of God. "He that abideth in Him sinneth not"; that is, sin can never become his normal and habitual state.

If ever this should be your unhappy lot, do not despair. The true test of Christian character does not consist in the inability to fall, but in the quick agony of repentance, and in the immediate restoration to the ways which had been left. Directly you are conscious of sin, turn at once to your compassionate Lord. Do not wait for the fever of passion to subside, or for the agony of your shame to die down; but, there and then, in the crowd or the street, lift up your heart, and ask Him to touch you with that finger, before which uncleanness cannot abide; ask Him to wash you as He did the feet of his disciples, soiled by jealousy and strife for mastery; ask Him to restore your soul to the place it occupied before you fell.

You may not be able to forgive yourself, but He will forgive you instantly; the stain will be instantly extracted from the spirit's robes; the foulness will immediately flee from the blemished dress; and the forgiven one shall occupy again the place which for a moment had been vacated, the place in the heavenlies, side by side with its Redeemer. Oh, do not doubt the Saviour's willingness, or power to forgive; or the efficacy of his blood to wash out each stain, as it may become manifest to the quickened conscience Remember that his blood ever cleanseth from all sin, as the water is ever flowing over the pebble, and as the tear-water is ever removing from the eye the motes that alight for a moment upon its surface.

It is not an easy world for any of us to traverse; no friend to grace; but it is possible to walk through it with clean and stainless robes. Sin may assail, but it will be as the waves that beat outside the goodly ship without finding admittance within its walls. And out of the pure and guileless heart shall spring all the loveliness of unselfish and helpful deeds, such as shall make this sad world happier, and dark hearts bright with the light of heaven.

Oh! souls, weary and sin-sick, hand yourselves over to the tender mercy of the Good Physician, sure that He will undertake the most desperate case; and give beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness.

◆

MR. H. THORNE AT SHEFFIELD.

THE Sheffield Y.M.C.A. has been busy with a united Gospel mission, extending from November 26 to December 8. Mr. Henry Thorne conducted the meetings. Rev. J. Gelson Gregson, of Bradford, was able to co-operate during the last few days, and gave powerful addresses on consecration. Every night there were good cases dealt with in the inquiry-rooms. The noonday prayer-meetings and the afternoon Bible-readings were times of real blessing and well attended. A special meeting for men only was a time of exceptional earnestness and power—many being led to Christ in the after-meeting.

The last evening was devoted to a tea for the workers and those who had been inquirers during the meetings. Mr. Thorne spoke some helpful words to those who had recently found Christ. The last meeting of all was a "praise meeting";

NEWS FROM NORTH CHINA.

MISS BARCLAY, of the China Inland Mission, writes from Lanchau, Kansuh Province:—

The robbery at Tsinchau last month, about which I wrote home last mail, has just turned out to the furtherance of the Gospel; for the Tao T'ai, the highest mandarin in the district, has issued a proclamation, giving religious liberty to the people of Tsinchau, forbidding anyone to interfere with those who wish to attend our services or "enter the religion." So now work will stand on a better footing than ever before. Mrs. Burnett, though they thought they had lost everything (most has since been returned), wrote so happily about it all, and said it was worth going through it again to have this proclamation out. The robbers only sacked one house.

The Christians, all who were there, behaved very well. We feel more sure of them than ever. The cause of the whole affair was, no doubt, hatred to the Gospel. So there is likely more trouble in store for the native Christians. They have a good deal to bear in the way of mockery and petty persecutions. Will you join us in praying for these converts that they may be kept firm, as well as that they may be multiplied. We want "showers of blessing."

I am spending the summer in Lanchau. We have had a number of visitors lately. The medical work has made us acquainted with many people, and creates a friendly feeling, which is a great thing, especially at the beginning of a work. More workers are greatly needed here. We are hoping some of the "hundred" will come up this way. We are very glad to hear how very much interest in missionary work has increased lately, but when one thinks how much heathenism still remains untouched, one longs for it to increase a hundredfold more.

You will probably have heard of the numbers who have lately been baptized in South Shan-si. The Lord has been doing great things there, and mostly through natives. One does feel more and more what a great advantage the natives have. Anything foreign they dislike, and, of course, a testimony from one of themselves goes very much farther than from us.

Mr. Parker, the missionary here, is just now travelling, doing colportage work. He intends visiting Kum-bum, a place near Li-Ning, where a large Thibetan fair is to be held. In Kansuh—especially north of here—there are many Thibetans and Mongolians. There is no missionary working among them yet. They mostly speak Chinese. There are also great numbers of Mahommedans. They keep very distinct from the heathen, whom they despise. As a rule, Mahommedans are very intelligent listeners, and we find they like to hear the Gospel; but there are no converts from among them that we know of yet. They are very well satisfied with their own religion—which certainly is more sensible than worshipping idols of clay. They pray every day to Jesus, whom they reckon as one of the five holy men: the others are Adam, Abraham, Moses, and Mahommed. They know all about Christ's life and death, but they trust to their own merits for salvation.

We come across so many religions here, and that is one great point in which they are different from us. Buddhists, Confucianists, Mahommedans, and Catholics—all are trying to get merit for themselves. Being justified through another's merits they do not understand at all.

To-day I had a very sad experience. At a little village a few miles away, where we have before had a very warm welcome, there had evidently been some bad things said about the foreigners, for they asked me not to come again, and their manner was quite altered from the other time. One woman said her husband had been abusing her for listening. It was very disappointing, for I had been quite looking forward to my visit, hoping to find some interested. The enemy is always trying to hinder the work, but he cannot conquer.

Will you pray for us here? It is very up-hill work. The one great thing we need is more of

For the Young.

A CHRISTMAS FEAST FOR NOTHING.

"A Christmas dinner of roast beef and plum pudding for poor children:" such was the programme. Invitations were given in the form of tickets. The feast was provided, and the guests came—rough children, ragged children, small children and large, each with knife and fork in hand, and not one paid a halfpenny, or a quarter of a penny.

Joints fresh from the oven, and steaming potatoes from the same warm region, were placed upon the tables. From the dishes the joints were transferred in portions to the plates, to be immediately transferred in smaller portions to hungry mouths, and so to disappear, a second helping being desired, to keep the first company and make things even.

Then came the "Pudding Procession," amid deafening cheers, each table receiving one of the fragrant articles to be served out by the lady helpers. Round and rich, the spherical shape of these delicacies was quickly destroyed, as they were divided and sub-divided, and distributed along the waiting rows of eager children, who ate till they could eat no more. Still not one paid half a penny or a quarter of a penny.

Then followed dessert. A gentleman had brought a number of boxes of dates, which were shared out by the presiding lady at each table. Apples came next, another gentleman having sent a barrel of fruit as his contribution to the feast. Good times for poor waifs! And not one paid half a penny or a quarter.

As soon as the tables were cleared, a sheet was hung, and an entertainment of dissolving views came on. Picture after picture brought down the house in ringing cheers of mirth, reaching a climax in the chromatrope, and the usual spontaneous song!—

Twinkle, twinkle, little star!
How I wonder what you are.

Happy? That they were. Yet not one had paid a penny, half a penny, or even a quarter.

But the liberality of friends was not yet exhausted; there was something for future enjoyment, a gentleman having brought £5 of new sixpences, to be given to the youngsters on leaving. A feast, an entertainment, and money to spend on the morrow. All for nothing; for not a single child paid a halfpenny, or even a quarter of that sum. It was all of grace—free; paid for by others.

Well, thought I, this is like Christ's Gospel Feast—no little, mean sup, but a sumptuous banquet, and something to enjoy after the first pleasure is over. And all free! Not a pennyworth of penance, not a halfpennyworth of prayer, not a farthingsworth of merit does He charge. Christ makes the feast, and poverty takes the feast. Nor does He claim even a waiter's fee.

Here is the story, as quaintly told by an old writer, John Berridge:—

A feast of fat things Jesus makes,
  With store of choicest wine,
And starving souls He calls and takes
  To sit with Him and dine.

Come, all ye poor, who cannot buy,
  Yet long for living bread;
The Saviour will your wants supply,
  And make you rich indeed.

Come, every sick and bruised soul,
  Who sighs with guilty smart;
The feast will make the maimed whole,
  And heal a broken heart.

Come, all ye lame and crippled throng,
  Who limp in Jesu's ways;
His table-food will make you strong
  To dance and sing his praise.

Come, all ye blind, who inly pine
  For faith's reviving light;
A cup of Jesu's precious wine
  Will clear your cloudy night.

The poor, the maimed, the blind, the lame,
  May come to Jesu's feast;
And all that come will bless his name
  When of his cheer they taste.

money, some could not realise that they were to have this extra and unexpected bounty; they were passing on without it, and seemed content to do so. It was too much: their faith could not grasp it. We are often like them; and if we get as far as the present enjoyment of Gospel blessings, we cannot believe there is a future blessing, a boon to be taken away for the morrow. And all free! A feast of fat things—pardon, joy, hope, peace, purity, fellowship, with grace for times of need yet unreached. All for nothing, and for a nobody like me! William Luff.

A CHRISTMAS ACROSTIC.

A message angels brought to earth,
When telling of the Saviour's birth.

(1) A slave who ministered to Paul in Rome.
(2) A king by madness driven from his home.
(3) The name of one who was restored to life.
(4) A wicked son, the cause of constant strife.
(5) A woman who protected Israel's spies.
(6) The sound at which 'tis said the dead shall rise.
(7) A flower growing in a desert place.
(8) What Scripture says we need to "run the race."
(9) A mighty bird who stirreth up her nest.
(10) The mountain where a floating ark found rest.
(11) A city where our Saviour lived and taught.
(12) An exiled prophet to whom food was brought.

Greta.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

"Why this merry throng, I pray?
Wherefore look ye all so gay?"
"Know ye not the reason why!
Christ the Lord hath left the sky,
Here on earth to live and die."

"Tell me who is Christ the Lord?
Why his praises are outpoured?"
"Lord of lords, and King of kings,
Mercy to the earth He brings:
Hark! with praise the heaven rings."

"Then 'tis God Himself descends?
Say what glory Him attends?"
"Glory He hath laid aside,
Stooping low with us to abide
At this holy Christmas-tide."

"Wherefore sing this gladsome morn,
'Unto us a child is born'?"
"Born our sinful race to aid;
See Him in a manger laid—
Him by whom the worlds were made."

"Hath He heralds of his name,
All these wonders to proclaim?"
"Yea, the heavens are flashing bright
With the messengers of light,
Telling of his love and might."

"This is news for us indeed!
Undeserving such a need."
"Oh! what gifts He hath in store!
Let us hasten and adore—
Worship Him for evermore."

Fred. Edmonds.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sunday, December 25, Matt. i. 18—25; Monday, December 26, Ps. xxxvi. 1—12; Tuesday, December 27, Ps. xxxvii. 1—20; Wednesday, December 28, Ps. xxxvii. 21—40; Thursday, December 29, Ps. xxxviii. 1—22; Friday, December 30, Ps. xxxix. 1—13; Saturday, December 31, Ps. xl. 1—17.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Martin J. Hall, Crosby, Liverpool, December 26 to January 2, 1888; Bournemouth, January 3—7; Southsea, January 8—13. Mr. George Banaster, Brooklands, Manchester, January 16—22; Yardley-end, Birmingham, Jan.

MRS. REANEY'S WORK IN LONDON.

BY ONE WHO HAS SEEN IT.

Few of our readers will question it when we say that in the tendencies of the age it is personal ministry rather than public life which will leave the most abiding impress upon the world's history. It is because of this conviction that we view with much regret the removal of Mrs. Reaney from the East-end of London to another sphere of work. No one can tell what that work has been, or how it will continue to affect the lives of those who have been its "crown of rejoicing." I would that your readers could have entered into the emotions of the congregation of men and women at her Sunday afternoon service on Sunday week. There has been no agency at Stepney Meeting-house from which the Church has received such an accession of members and of workers as this service, although wholly unsectarian, entirely free from official connections, and thus a ministry purely personal.

Now and then some poor wanderer has been prayed into the service, and come away a new creature. Here is one who vowed he would never cross the threshold of church or chapel; but from sheer curiosity goes to hear the "woman preacher." The arrow goes straight to the heart. The thin film of sceptical indifference is speedily brushed away; he has been born again, although he came, as it were, by night. The "penny collection," taken Sunday by Sunday from the twelve to fifteen hundred East-end toilers, was speedily dedicated by Mrs. Reaney to the rearing of a Convalescent Home, such as would afford "rest to the weary, joy to the dreary."* This splendid ideal was speedily realised. A visitor to Folkestone may occasionally see on the East Cliff a union jack flying gaily at a pole-head, and he will learn that this denotes the presence of Mrs. Reaney at her seaside Home, and among her patients. Sixteen hundred, the majority of them by necessity free patients, have, since it was established, recruited body and spirit at this happiest of Convalescent Homes.

A little while ago, when a few of the poorer friends desired to testify their love for Mrs. Reaney, at her request a substantial nucleus was raised for the purpose of establishing a London Home—a Refuge, in fact—for any outcast, man, woman, or child. The story of this Home is touchingly told by Mrs. Reaney herself in the December number of The Sunday Magazine, and your readers will be glad to hear that both the Convalescent Home and the London Refuge are likely to be carried on.

Perhaps Mrs. Reaney will be missed as much by the drivers and conductors of our public vehicles, as by any other class of society. The "Tram Men's Friend" is a title that will ever remain associated with her name, and, although the victory which she won for humanity may be said to be complete, we know that she still keeps a jealous watch upon the relations of the several companies to their faithful servants. But who is sufficient to penetrate into the hidden mysteries of the many lives to whose spiritua natures Mrs. Reaney has so ministered? "She is always at leisure for everyone who comes." London's loss is Manchester's gain; and may God give her strength, which the thought o being obliged to leave her "dear East-end" ha done much to impair.

---

* It is interesting to note that over eleven hundred pounds have been gathered in these penny collection in five years.

INDIAN MISSIONS.—Sir Charles Bernar late Chief Commissioner in Burmah, addressin the Missionary Association of Edinburgh Un versity, testified to the valuable work being dow in India and elsewhere by native pastors, and pr dicted that they will have a most importan share in the future evangelisation of that countr He repudiated the prevalent notion that th missionaries live in luxury and ease. He has brother-in-law, a missionary of fourteen year

REV. WILLIAM HASLAM.

COVENTRY.

Dear Sir,—I had arranged to have Mr. Haslam here last March, but, at the request of some of the clergy, the visit was postponed to Advent, when a general Church mission was arranged for. As two of the largest churches, for local reasons, have further postponed their missions, Christ Church was the largest church in which the special services were held. There is no parish attached, so that the ordinary parochial agencies, usually worked at mission times, had to be dispensed with. Notwithstanding this, large numbers were attracted to the services from the city generally, and from towns and villages, as far as twenty miles distant.

There is no need for anyone to praise the work of Mr. and Mrs. Haslam, but I am constrained to tell of the good results of this mission. Both my wife and myself were led to decide for Christ at one of Mr. Haslam's missions sixteen years ago. At this mission each of us has been greatly helped into the joy of faith. At a testimony meeting the night after the mission closed, several members of our Bible-classes and others publicly thanked God for great blessing experienced. Many, who a few days ago, were weeping with sorrow for sin, are now rejoicing in the love and peace shed abroad in their hearts. It has been a time of deep conviction and heart conversion.

We have inquiries coming in every day, and several have been helped into peace since the mission closed. One great hindrance is the lack of any church-room or school. Having no parish, I cannot hire any room without risking the charge of infringing Church order. Much work for God could now be carried on with the aid of our new converts, if a suitable room could be built on our own ground.

I have especially noticed the effect of the mission on our more educated people. Without an exception, the persons of the highest education have been very greatly impressed, and the converts include a larger proportion of educated people than of the working classes, though all ranks have their representatives amongst those benefited by the mission. I have never had such joy in my fourteen years' ministry as I am experiencing now, and I am very thankful that God led me to invite Mr. Haslam as our missioner.—Yours faithfully, W. K. Cox,

Incumbent of Christ Church.

ST. GEORGE'S, TUFNELL-PARK, N.

Ten days of special services, conducted by Rev. William Haslam, and meetings for women by Mrs. Haslam, have been a time of great blessing throughout St. George's parish. Many it is believed were brought under conviction of sin, and led to accept the Saviour. Christian workers have been led to realise their privileges, and to trust in a living Keeper and Leader for holiness of life and usefulness in the Master's service. Mr. Haslam's books were eagerly asked for and read, including his recent publication, "Gleanings from the Harvest." On the second Sunday evening the church could hardly contain the congregation which assembled. The aisles and chancels were lined with chairs, and a large number remained for the after-meeting.

The whole work has been characterised by great solemnity, and the Spirit of God has, we believe, been carrying on a work, the full results of which will only be known in eternity.

The vicar, Rev. M. Washington, with his curates and church workers, heartily seconded Mr. Haslam's efforts. At the daily meeting for prayer in the vestry, half an hour before the commencement of the evening service, the spirit of prayer was poured out in large measure. Many hearts have been stirred, and many homes made brighter through the ministrations and faithful teaching of this long-tried and honoured servant of God.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE have accepted a hearty invitation from Plymouth to hold the next yearly conference of the British organisation

LONDON BANKS' PRAYER UNION.

On December 13, at the Metal Exchange, City, under the presidency of Mr. F. A. Bevan, 140 members of this Mission assembled for the annual meeting. The report, read by Mr. Kenchington, hon. sec., stated that during the year they had held five meetings of a devotional character, two on behalf of foreign missions, three stirring Gospel meetings, one on Scripture evidences, one on Sabbath observance, one on the Holy Land, fourteen in all, with an average attendance of sixty-five. Much literature, bearing on foreign missions and Christian evidences, and other important questions, had been circulated.

Mr. F. A. Bevan said he thought such meetings as this would hardly have been possible some few years ago, and he deemed it one of the most encouraging signs of the times that Christians of all denominations, thrown together in one profession or business, were meeting on a a common platform for mutual benefit and encouragement.

Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston gave an admirable address on the study of the Word: its need, its manner, and the blessings resulting—faith, peace, depth, growth. Dr. H. Grattan Guinness followed with a practical address on working for Jesus, working with Jesus, working instead of Jesus as ambassadors, working by Jesus, and working until He comes. At the close, Dr. Guinness presented to those most interested in missions fifty copies of Mrs. Grattan Guinness's book, "The Wide World, and our Work in it."

YOUNG WOMEN IN LONDON.

Dear Sir,—Your readers, especially those residing on our southern coasts (such as St. Leonards, Bournemouth, Weymouth, Torquay, Ventnor, &c.), might render practical assistance to the Convalescent and Holiday Department of the Y.W.C.A. during the cold season. The winter months are trying for many, and doubly so for our poorer sisters, living in large towns, who, though out of work on account of health, cannot take advantage of this forced idleness to procure a much-needed change to milder resorts.

Two sisters, owners of a shop in a pleasant seaside place, have kindly put a room at our disposal for the whole winter, and warmly invited us to send such cases to live with them for a time, and enjoy a thorough rest and the sea breezes. A lady friend has kindly offered to pay all expenses for board and lodgings for any young visitors who may take advantage of this kind offer, having previously arranged matters with the two hostesses. Would that there were many such thoughtful helpers ready to welcome and provide for their town sisters. Our Holiday Fund is now more than exhausted, after enabling us to assist 430 tired workers to change of air during the summer months.—Yours truly, F. M. Fraser.

30, Onslow-gardens, S.W.

A GOOD IDEA.—The mistress of a young ladies' school at Reading decided, instead of "breaking up" with the usual entertainment at the close of the term, to bring the needs and interests of some benevolent institution before the pupils and their friends. Accordingly, Dr. Barnardo was invited to hold a drawing-room meeting, which was well attended, and presided over by Rev. G. I. Tubbs. Such an example is worthy of imitation.

TEMPERANCE CABMEN.—On Friday last the third anniversary of the Cabmen, 'Busmen, and Horsekeepers' division of the Church of England Temperance Society was held in the Burdett-Coutts Hall, Vincent-square, Westminster. Three hundred and twenty persons made their appearance. The report stated that continued success had attended this division of the Society. The membership has increased by 100 during the year, bringing up the total to 600. This number is but small when it is remembered that there are 14,000 cabmen and 11,000 'busmen in London. The secretary and his colleagues have attended and spoken at 250 meetings during the year. The cabmen's shelters constitute the chief work of the Society. In many cases the men in charge are Christians, and have pledge-books on their shelves. It is hoped that soon a new branch will be opened in Westminster.

BETHLEHEM.*

Not in halls of regal splendour,
  Not to princes of the earth,
Did the herald angels render
  Tidings of their Monarch's birth;
Not to statesman, priest, or sage,
  They proclaimed the golden age:
'Twas the poor man's heritage—
  For on shepherds lowly Burst the anthem holy—
    In excelsis gloria,
    Et in terra pax!

Not by worldly wealth or wisdom,
  Not by power of law, or sword,
But by service to win freedom,
  And by sorrow bliss afford:
Born to poverty and pain,
Born to die and thus to reign,
Rescuing man from Satan's chain—
  Jesus now rules o'er us:
  Swell the joyful chorus—
    In excelsis gloria,
    Et in terra pax!

Glory be to God in heaven,
  Peace on earth, good will to men!
In the highest, praise be given!
  Angels! strike your harps again.
Justice has on mercy smiled,
God and men are reconciled
Through Emmanuel, new-born child.
  Blend we then our vioces!
  Earth with heaven rejoices—
    In excelsis gloria,
    Et in terra pax!

Bid the new-born Monarch welcome,
  Pay Him homage every heart!
Hallelujah! let his kingdom
  Swiftly spread in every part:
War and bloodshed then shall cease,
Selfishness its slaves release,
Love shall reign, and white-robed peace;
  Then from earth as heaven,
  Praise shall aye be given—
    In excelsis gloria,
    Et in terra pax!

---

* From Mountain Musings, and other Poems, by Rev. Newman Hall, L.L.B. 1s. Hodder & Stoughton. These poems, mostly born of a close communion with the varied aspects of nature, are musical in form and truly devotional in tone. They give voice to the worship, aspiration, and trust of the believing soul, and are well fitted to minister consolation and cheer to the tried, the doubting, and the downcast.

TEMPERANCE IN WORKHOUSES.—On Wednesday afternoon, December 14, a Conference was held at the residence of the Earl and Countess of Meath, Lancaster Gate, to consider the promotion of temperance work in workhouses. Resolutions were passed confirming the desirability of temperance work being done in workhouses and casual wards; and of the formation of Bands of Hope in schools connected with workhouses. Amongst the points brought out by the speeches were the large decrease in the consumption of intoxicants in workhouses of late years, and the fact that a large percentage of the inmates would never come to the workhouse at all, save from the fact that they have ruined themselves by drink.

ROMISH IDOLATRY.—Some of our friends appear to doubt the idolatrous character of the Church of Rome. The following is from Rev. J. J. Varnier, of Messina, in a letter dated 2nd December:—"On the first Sunday of Advent (27th ultimo) there was a grand Thanksgiving Service at the Cathedral here, where the Archbishop of Messina officiated, decked in the greatest pomp of Romish vestments. But for whose glory, and to whom were thanks rendered for having delivered the city from the dire scourge of cholera? You may well guess. It was to the Virgin Mary! It was painful to see the statue of the Virgin Mary enthroned on the high altar in the midst of thousands of lighted wax tapers, and the smoke of incense ascending in clouds and filling the grand old edifice, and a great multitude of deluded people kneeling down and worshipping the image which the Nebuchadnezzar of modern Babylon had set up! I felt as if I could stand up and raise my voice of protest and indignation against such a

FEEDING THE HUNGRY.

POOR CHILDREN IN SOUTH LONDON.

DURING the winter season, Messrs. Young, of the Working Men's Mission, Collingwood-street, New-cut, purpose to give a series of halfpenny dinners for the deserving poor. Last week a meal of this kind was provided for 250 children, some of them being of tender years. The marks of dire poverty and suffering were visible on many of the little faces, but it was some small compensation to see the way in which they enjoyed the excellent provision made for them.

A SANDWICH MEN'S DINNER.

On Monday week, at mid-day, a remarkable dinner-party was held in Bloomsbury Hall, Meard-street, Soho. The guests invited by Mr. Harrison, through the kind generosity of Mr. Thomas Holt, consisted of 500 London sandwich men. They gave evident testimony to the freshness and strength of their appetites by the quantity of food they consumed. "When a man has not tasted meat for three weeks, he likes it, 'um," said one as he handed his plate for a third supply.

At the close of the substantial meal, Sir Robert Phayre gave the men an excellent address, illustrating the Gospel by incidents from his own life, as an officer in the army. Mr. William Harrison made reference to the life of a sandwich man, of whom there are about two thousand in the Western district. About a fourth of them had been soldiers, about another fourth ex-mechanics, an eighth seamen, and the rest may be described as all sorts and conditions of men. Many have been well trained in their younger days, but misfortune has overtaken them, or they have been reduced by their own evil ways. Mr James Welsh gave incidents of his experience as a police missionary, and Rev. Thomas Waddell read a printed letter from Mr. Holt to his guests, a copy of which was afterwards handed to them. Miss Odell closed the service with a few earnest words, relative to their present and future state.

Mr. Walter Holt was present, and also the Misses Holt. As the men left, they presented each with a cardigan jacket, a pair of gloves, a copy of the New Testament, and several other publications on behalf of Mr. Holt. The men, who knew nothing of these gifts before the dinners, went away surprised and delighted at the kindness they had received. On reaching the outside of the hall, many of them at once removed their outer garments to put on their jackets, and again re-clothed themselves with their coats, &c., and trotted off with the delight of school boys who had just received their Christmas rewards.

EAST-END POOR.

On Thursday afternoon as many as 1000 of the needy poor of the East of London assembled at the Edinburgh Castle, Rhodeswell-road, Limehouse, to partake of a substantial meal, and receive each a pair of blankets, also the gift of Mr. Holt. In order that the blankets might not be bestowed upon undeserving persons, a large staff of ladies were for days employed in investigating the claims of the applicants, and if appearances count for anything there was not a single person in the motley gathering which filled the Edinburgh Castle, to whom the blankets will not prove a great boon. The great majority of the recipients were women, something like 300 of them being widows with young families. In one case it was stated that eight fatherless children were dependent for their support upon the work of the mother. In many instances the married women came to receive the gift so as not to prevent their husbands losing any chance which might present itself of obtaining employment. That the distress in the East-end is very great was shown by the fact that not one of the recipients of Mr. Holt's charity, excepting some of the widows, were in anything like regular many skilled mechanics, such as shipwrights, carpenters, blacksmiths, bricklayers, and painters, and even one or two commercial travellers. The cause of poverty in most of these cases was want of employment, whilst in some it was sickness, and in others old age.

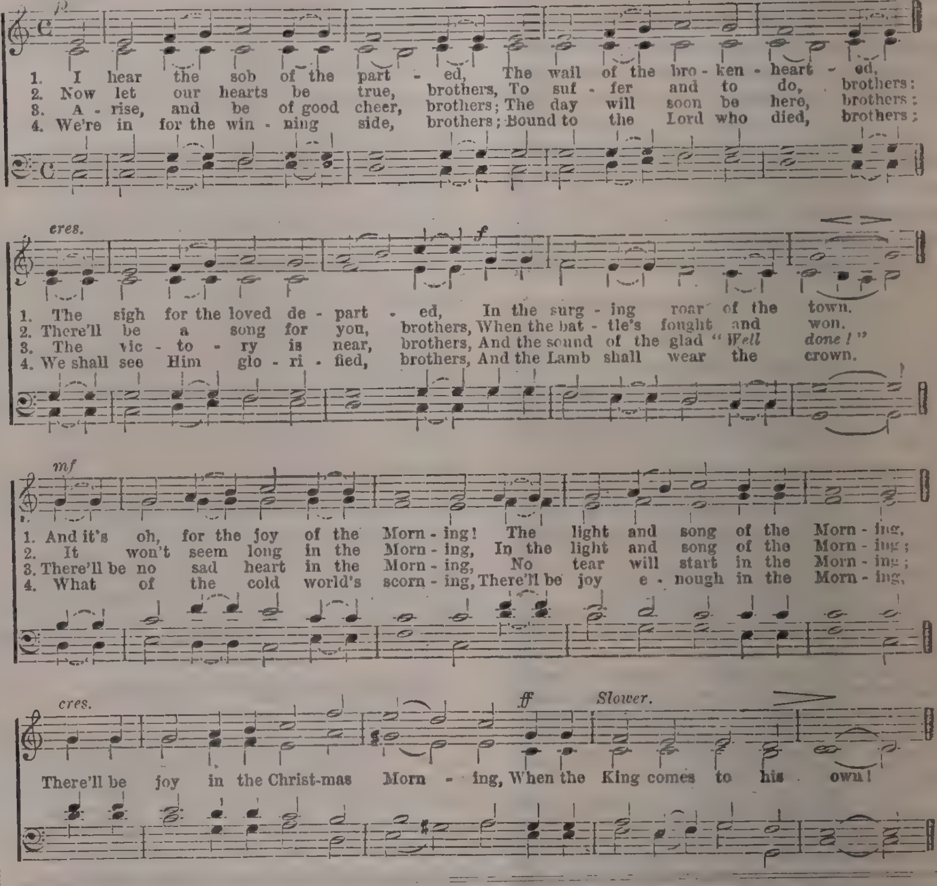
The meal to which the company were treated consisted of good pea-soup, with bread ad libitum, followed by meat sandwiches, weighing about one pound each, which were distributed in paper bags, so that those who chose might take the food home to their children. The Misses Holt were present, and superintended the presentation of the blankets. They were heartily thanked for their kindness. Following the dinner a short service was held, and brief addresses were delivered by Dr. Barnardo, Canon Girdlestone, and Mr. Spencer Walton.

On Friday free dinners of pea-soup were distributed to 1000 poor children at the Farm House, Borough. These meals are given four times a week. Mr. Slade, one of the Southwark magistrates, has given a donation of £20 towards this good object. On Friday he attended the feast, and expressed his gratification at the sight.

"When the King comes to his own."

Copyright. Miss E. S. ELLIOTT.



cres.
f mf
cres.
ff Slower.
1. I hear the sob of the part - ed, The wail of the bro - ken - heart - ed,
2. Now let our hearts be true, brothers, To suf - fer and to do, brothers:
3. A - rise, and be of good cheer, brothers; The day will soon be here, brothers;
4. We're in for the win - ning side, brothers; Bound to the Lord who died, brothers;
1. The sigh for the loved de - part - ed, In the surg - ing roar of the town.
2. There'll be a song for you, brothers, When the bat - tle's fought and won.
3. The vic - to - ry is near, brothers, And the sound of the glad "Well done!"
4. We shall see Him glo - ri - fied, brothers, And the Lamb shall wear the crown.
1. And it's oh, for the joy of the Morn - ing! The light and song of the Morn - ing,
2. It won't seem long in the Morn - ing, In the light and song of the Morn - ing;
3. There'll be no sad heart in the Morn - ing, No tear will start in the Morn - ing;
4. What of the cold world's scorn - ing, There'll be joy e - nough in the Morn - ing,
There'll be joy in the Christ-mas Morn - ing, When the King comes to his own!

LEPERS IN INDIA.—A meeting of the committee of this Mission was held in Dublin on Nov. 24. The following grants, in aid of work among lepers, were made:—To Gossner's Evangelical Mission, for Purulia, 500 rupees. To Mr. Theophilus, of the Free Church Mission, Madras, for the support of a Bible-woman, 144 rupees per annum. To Rev. D. Herron, for salary of native doctor, 150 rupees per annum; and building dispensary 500 rupees. To Rev. B. D. Wyckoff, American Presbyterian Mission, Subathu, towards repairs of asylum, 250 rupees, and for salaries of assistants 150 rupees per annum. To Dr. Fry, London Missionary Society, Neyoor, for special ward for lepers, in connection with the Medical Mission, 500 rupees. A grant was also made for the furtherance of mission work in Chumba, station of FAMINE IN CENTRAL TURKEY.

SIR,—The area of utter destitution is Eastern Cilicia. For fourteen months preceding May last hardly any rain fell, and the result has been failure of the crops, and consequent widespread distress. Mohammedan Turks, Christian Armenians and Greeks, and Evangelical Protestants, and all alike have been overtaken by want. The mass of the people, crushed under oppressive taxation, are always poor, but now they are reduced to the desperation of hunger. Some have committed suicide, many, unable to bear the distress of their wives and children, have gone to more favoured localities, and left their families dependent on charity; others have sold everything saleable for bread, and have been found lying almost naked on the bare earthen floor. The Government officials have done hardly anything in the way of relief. Again and again a supply of flour has been sent, but it was speedily consumed, and the authorities are at their wits' end. The people curse the apathy and indifference of their rulers, and have learned to look to the Christian missionaries as their benefactors and true friends. We have been able, as the result of former appeals, to remit £500, but that is only a drop in the bucket. Contributions, or warm clothing (much required) may be sent to me.

T. W. BROWN,
Secretary, Turkish Missions' Aid Society.
32, The Avenue, Bedford Park, Chiswick.

We heartily endorse and support the appeal of Rev. T. W. Brown, on behalf of the sufferers from famine in Cilicia.

EBURY. DONALD FRASER, D.D.
KINNAIRD. W. ARTHUR.

The Book World.

"Regions Beyond."

Miss Lucy Guinness has assumed the editorial care of this serial, and promises that it shall be issued regularly in future as a "quarterly journal" of the East London Institute for Home and Foreign Missions. The current number, dated December, is one of singularly varied interest; it contains a wonderful budget of missionary intelligence, and other matter closely bearing on Christian work at home and abroad. (6d. 58, Bow-road, E.)

Christian Classics.

De Incarnatione Verbi Dei, translated from Athanasius by J. Herbert Brindley, is a beautiful little volume, the third of the "Christian Classics Series." Athanasius was a redoubtable champion of the faith, and herein gives clear testimony to the person and work of Christ; his arguments touch many points of special interest and importance relating to present-day discussions. The introduction, analysis, synopsis, and notes are well executed, while the printing and style of the book leave nothing to be desired. (2s. Religious Tract Society.)

Stories of Adventure.

The Religious Tract Society publish a series of bright, attractive, and entertaining volumes, each containing a number of stirring stories of adventure from real life; they are mostly reprinted from The Leisure Hour, and are intended to take the place of the old "Leisure Hour Library." Four of these volumes have reached us—"The Black Troopers and other Stories;" "Strange Tales of Peril and Adventure;" "Remarkable Adventures from Real Life;" and "Adventures Ashore and Afloat." (2s. 6d. each.) They are very handsomely got up, in uniform binding, with gilt edges; they contain numerous illustrations, and cannot fail to interest.

Preaching by Poetry.

Christ, the Life of Lives, with other poems. By Rev. W. Wallace Brown. Marcus Ward & Co. The object of the writer, who is laid aside by ill-health, is to commend the Gospel of Christ by the emotional and poetic, as contrasted with the doctrinal, method. Such an object is laudable, but we do not think it within the scope of many. Fine conceptions are in this case marred by unmelodious verse, and even ungrammatical phrases. Christ's human perfections are dwelt on almost exclusively, and his atoning death very lightly touched upon. If the pious writer were to study Dr. Bonar's sacred verse he would see Gospel doctrines and Christian emotions much more skilfully combined.

A Missionary Album.

From the Church Missionary House there comes vol. i. of The Gleaner Pictorial Album, containing pictures of Africa and the Mohammedan lands of the East. It is a princely volume, giving an account, by means of about one hundred and fifty engravings and descriptive letterpress, of the nine missions included in the book. At a glance one may know not only the spheres and operations of this splendid Society, but, in many cases, the portraits of the missionaries are given. The portrait of Bishop Crowther's mother will interest all who know anything of that gentleman and his work. As an elegant gift-book for the drawing-room, or as a handsome school prize, this charming volume should find a large circulation; above all, we hope it will interest and instruct many in the work of the C.M.S. in Africa, Palestine, &c. (5s.)

The Religious Tract Society

send out a supply of good and interesting books to make the winter evenings pass profitably and pleasurably. Listening to Jesus gives Sunday reading for little ones, by E. M. Waterworth. (1s. 6d.) The writer truly takes the children by the hand to lead them to the Master. That Vulgar Girl, by Emma Leslie (1s.), is an interesting story with sufficient seasoning of adventure to make it acceptable to young readers. Betel Nut Island embodies personal experiences and adventures in the Eastern Tropics, by John T. Beighton. (2s. 6d.) Besides much valuable information on general subject, the book contains reliable missionary details. Winning her Way (1s. 6d.) is an excellent story for girls. Singed by the Fire, by Mrs. Grant (1s.), shows the danger of trifling with temptation, and also draws a capital picture of the good influence that may be exercised by a Reminiscences of Army Work.

In The Romance of the Ranks (Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling) Miss Herdman gives some deeply interesting details of her work among soldiers. It is well to be stirred up by reading of the spiritual needs of our army and of the efforts which are being made to meet them. Miss Herdman's work has been wonderfully owned and blessed by God.

New Book by the late Dr. Fleming Stevenson.

Anything from the pen of the author of "Praying and Working" must be well worth reading. This little book, The Dawn of the Modern Mission, edited by the writer's widow, comes with a specially sacred charm, being published after his death. By it the author still speaks to us in words of truth and wisdom. A good index enhances the value of the book, and Professor Charteris contributes a preface. (2s. 6d. Macniven & Wallace.)

By-paths of Bible Knowledge.

The tenth volume of this interesting series is Scripture Natural History: I.—The Trees and Plants mentioned in the Bible. Mr. W. H. Groser has here furnished us with a manual of information no teacher or preacher should fail to possess. It is full of light upon Bible lore, put in a condensed and yet wonderfully complete form. The table of Scripture references at the end fills more than four pages, showing how copiously Scripture is quoted and illustrated. Such books are a striking feature of our times, and their multiplication is a proof of the hold the inspired Word has upon the people, as well as of the demand there is for a fuller understanding of its contents. (3s. Religious Tract Society.)

Law and Morals.

We gladly welcome a third edition of Mr. Francis Peek's Social Wreckage. 3s. 6d. Wm. Isbister, Limited. Perhaps we ought to welcome it sorrowfully; but, since the need exists, we rejoice that one so capable and earnest-minded should enter the lists on behalf of good government and righteous administration of the law. Mr. Peek, while admitting that law cannot do everything, has no difficulty in showing that much good of a preventive kind may be and ought to be accomplished by improved legislation and by a consistent application of the necessary enactments. He shows, beyond dispute, how defective, from a moral standpoint, are many of our laws which affect the housing of the poor, the relief of the pauper, the care of the destitute and orphaned, the traffic in strong drink, the punishment of criminals, &c. Equally impressive is his protest against the inequality of some of our laws in their bearing upon the sexes. We heartily wish that every elector in the three kingdoms could study Mr. Peek's treatment of these problems that are crying out so loudly for solution. We scarcely know what it is to be, but clearly something must be done to secure greater time and attention in Parliament to the moral surroundings of our poorer classes, and the help that well-administered law may render in the improvement of their condition.

Helps for the Bible Student.

With the Prophets Joel, Amos, and Jonah. By Rev. A. C. Thiselton. New Edition. 4s. Elliot Stock. This is a companion volume to "Church and Home Lessons from Hosea," both of which have already won a worthy place amongst expository literature. It contains much fresh and striking thought.

The Biblical Treasury. Vol. viii. 2s. Sunday-school Union. This volume contains notes of the books from Ezekiel to Obadiah inclusive. Its force of illustration, description, information, and explanation of allusions to Oriental life and custom, render the series a most valuable addition to Sunday-school literature.

The Structure of the Book of the Acts of the Apostles in the Light of the Kingdom to Israel. The author, who withholds his name, dedicates his book to the members of the Y.M.C.A.'s throughout the United Kingdom, Australia, and America. While pursuing the history of the Acts of the Apostle "on lines hitherto unexplored and unexplained," he in no way trenches on truth already ascertained, but throws useful light on the dispensational character of the book, thereby meeting some modern arguments against its validity. The title, "Zetetes," meaning investigator or inquirer, is assumed as indicating the author's spirit and purpose, and readers will find his work to repay thoughtful reading, whether they fully endorse his

"The Good Earl."

The Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, by Henry Frith, is one of Messrs. Cassell's "World's Workers" series. It will be heartily welcomed by many who have not means to purchase the larger memoir. The holy and useful life of the good Earl is well sketched. (1s.)

A Satchel of Song.

Another collection of poems by Rev. C. A. Fox comes from Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co. Small flowers are often the most fragrant, and every song in this modest satchel is truly melodious. The subjects are as various as the clouds which the author delights in; but whatever Mr. Fox touches he turns, not to gold, but to true poetry. From themes religious Mr. Fox glides easily to things ordinary, and what some would term prosaic. "The Independent Statesman" is admirable, and we hope, for England's sake, not imaginary or deceased. With happy daring, Mr. Fox sings of "A Steam-engine" and "A November Fog," and evolves beauties out of both.

Books for Boys.

The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's. By Talbot Baines Reed. 5s. Religious Tract Society. This is a capital story of public school life, which has already met with a hearty reception when appearing in The Boy's Own Paper, from which it is reprinted. In fact, it owes its present form to many requests from boys, parents, and masters. It is wholesome food for a schoolboy mind.

Remarkable Adventures from Real Life (2s. 6d.) is also published by the Religious Tract Society, and forms a collection of papers that have appeared in The Leisure Hour and The Sunday at Home. The preface informs us that "most of the narratives have the higher purpose of impressing on the mind the reality of an overruling Providence, and some of them present in an attractive form lessons of Christian faith and duty." They are well depicted, and of stirring interest.

The Lads of Lunda. By Jessie M. E. Saxby. 3s. 6d. Nisbet & Co. Here is another collection of life stories, the scenes being this time laid in the Shetland Isles. They are of especial interest as bringing before the reader a corner of our dominion that is often overlooked.

Three boy's books come from Mr. William Paterson, Lovell's-court, E.C. Stories of the Conquests of Mexico and Peru, by William Dalton, are better than all the concoctions of fictitious writers. They are written in a most fascinating, yet impartial spirit. Columbus and the English in America, by Rev. Henry P. Dunster, is another book of the same description. Full of interest, information, and carefully gathered facts, we have no hesitation in saying that it is one of the best books of its kind for the season. In Young Benjamin Franklin, Mr. Henry Mayhew furnishes a feast for the boys, and the girls, too. They must on no account fail to read the preface. The author gives us a book about a boy who certainly may be taken as a model by other boys. We can honestly recommend these three books to the notice of parents and prize givers. (3s. 6d. each)

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Story of Isaac Levinsohn, a Polish Jew, told by himself. 1s. Holness. Deeply interesting, and showing the cruel persecutions endured by the Christian Jew for the sake of Christ. It ought to rouse Christians to their duty concerning "the Jew first."

The Minister's Pocket Diary and Clerical Vade Mecum, 1888, is truly "the minister's friend." It improves every year, and is now more useful than ever. An almost perfect multum in parvo, it commends itself to all in charge of congregations. (2s. Hodder & Stoughton.)

Rev. E. J. Hardy appears to be one of the most popular writers of the day, judging from the fact that fresh editions are issued of Manners Makyth Man, and his still more famous, How to be Happy though Married. These books treat, in a sensible and Christian spirit, of matters of every-day import, and that is sufficient to account for their great popularity. (3s. 6d. each. T. Fisher Unwin.)

Thoughts on Christian Joyfulness. By Rev. Hy. Sharpe. With a preface by Rev. H. C. G. Moule. 1s. Wm. Hunt & Co. We have read every word of this little volume, and regard it as an earnest expression of the holy joy of the servant in the finished work of his Saviour. Its pages will speak with heart-searching and quickening power to many, for the message they convey is clear, spiritual, Scriptural, and too little understood in the Christian Church.

A New Exodus is a story of the Protestants of the Tyrol by Catherine Ray, telling of heroic struggles for religious liberty. (J. Nisbet & Co.)

Parlour Pastimes will help to enliven many a party and cause plenty of fun. . All sorts of games, conundrums, and tricks are here given, many of which are quite new. (Wm. Paterson.)

Nothing to You, by E. C. Tidy, is a tale of lowly life, and of God's loving care for the poor. It should enlist the sympathies of those who seek to go about doing good. (1s. 6d. S. W. Partridge & Co.)

Bright Sundays, by a Mother, gives many excellent and sensible hints to parents as to how they may make the Day of Rest a "day most glad, most bright," for the lambs of the flock. (1s. Macniven & Wallace.)

Dickie's Secret. John F. Shaw & Co. Mrs. Catherine Shaw is a true lover of children, and one who knows well how to win their attention. We hope this story will awaken a spirit of love and helpfulness in many young hearts.

The English Publishing Company, 73, Ludgate-hill, have issued a little book containing two stories, by Helena Brooks, "Sister Ellen" and "Clare's Probation," teaching the importance of not being unequally yoked with unbelievers. If presented to young girls it may help to impress this truth on their minds. (1s. 6d.)

The Autobiography of an Acorn and Other Stories. Mr. James Crowther has the art of bringing some of the greatest marvels of nature before the attention of his young readers in a way that fascinates the imagination, rivets the attention, and leads their thoughts up to Him "who only doeth wondrous things." (Sunday-school Union.)

Mr. "Frank Briton" is the author of "a thrilling tale," entitled By and By, which embraces a strong impeachment of the half-way house to Rome—"Ritualism;" of Mr. Gladstone as the aider and abettor of the same, and the betrayer in general of his country; and of Free Trade. The reader will have to draw his own conclusions as to the veracity and sobriety of the narrative. (John Kensit)

The half-yearly volume of Great Thoughts (4s. 6d. A. W. Hall, 132, Fleet-street) reveals wonderful industry, as well as good judgment, in the search for, and selection of, the choicest products of "master minds," both ancient and modern. It may be described as the cream of literature done up in drinkable doses. For preachers, teachers, lecturers, and other public speakers, the volume is a rare treasure-house of quotation and illustration.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

Bible Light (Shaw & Co.) will help many to a fuller understanding of Holy Writ.

As usual, The British Messenger (1s. Partridge) is full of good things. Pointed anecdotes and original stories render it a general favourite, as it deserves to be.

The Mother's Friend. 2s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. We know several homes where this little paper is regarded as indeed a true "mother's friend." It must influence for good the homes in which it is read.

Faithful Words for Old and Young. 1s. 6d. A. Holness. The beauties of holiness and the means of attainment thereof are here clearly set forth. Christians would do well to give a copy to the domestics in houses where they visit.

The Illustrated Missionary News. The initial picture is Bishop Hannington's earnest face, and the last portrait in this wonderfully interesting volume is that of Rev. T. J. Comber. Between, these is a fund of missionary intelligence, wide in its range, and exact in detail. (2s. 6d. Partridge & Co.)

The annual volume of The Sower (Houlston & Sons) provides much good and profitable reading for cottage homes in the winter evenings.—The volume of The Little Gleaner, from the same publishers, has gleaned well in the interests of the young folks, who will not need much coaxing to study its pleasant pages.

Mr. J. E. Hawkins publishes a neat little "Autograph Album," entitled, Friendship, each of the sixty pages having a tasteful design in monochrome, and a space for signature.

The Sunday-school Teachers' Pocket-book and Diary for 1888 (1s. Sunday-school Union) contains a variety of general information, besides much that is specially valuable to those engaged in Sunday-school work.

A wonderful fund of information, of a sort indicated by the title, is given in The Protestant Dissenters' Almanac for 1888. (6d. R. Banks & Son.) A capital portrait of Mr. James Clarke, of The Christian World, appears as a frontispiece.

"Fair Faces, or Types of Female Beauty," is the title of a special series of full-page engravings, from drawings by Miss Margaret Thomas, to be commenced in the January number of Mr. Francis George Heath's pictorial monthly Illustrations.

Rev. George Hawker, of Camden-road Baptist Chapel, has published, through Messrs. E. Marlborough & Co., Old Bailey, a stirring sermon, preached in September last in memory of the late Rev. T. J. Comber. (Price 6d.) It is entitled, "A Finished Course," and is a loving and touching tribute to the memory of that noble pioneer missionary.

The volume of The Christian Ambassador (1s. Shaw & Co.), with its Gospel narratives and appeals, is, indeed, a bearer of glad tidings of great joy, and, therefore, well suited for circulation at the present season. The volume contains the monthly numbers for the past two years. Mr. Hurditch also sends copies of his "London Almanack" (1d.), and "A Message for 1888" (½d.).

Glory Gleams: Scripture Texts and Poems for a Month, selected by Charlotte Murray (1s. S. W. Partridge & Co.), is one of the prettiest books of its kind we have seen. The illuminations are exquisite.—Emmanuel (1s. Hodder & Stoughton) is similarly got up, and contains a carefully chosen text and verse for each day of the month, and beautifully executed views of a number of the cities connected with the life of our Lord.

Messrs. H. J. Drane & Co., Lovell's-court, Paternoster-row, issue a series of neat booklets, in leatherette covers, with floral designs printed in colours. "Fulness of Blessing" and "Pilgrim Songs" (1s. each), "Bible Fear Nots," "Love and Light" (6d. each), contain a text and stanza for every day in a month, set off with groupings of flowers or landscape scenes. "Forest Echoes," "Woodland Whispers," and "The Crown of Love" (6d. each) are smaller in size and varied in contents, but equally artistic in finish, and excellently suited for friendship's offerings.

The Writings of St. Patrick, Apostle of Ireland. Revised translation. With notes by Rev. G. T. Stokes, D.D., and Rev. C. H. H. Wright, D.D. 6d. Nisbet & Co. The beautiful hymn of St. Patrick here given is better known to ordinary readers than his prose writings. By the aid of a lately-discovered MS. it is easier to distinguish the genuine from the spurious. St. Patrick's epistle to Coroticus, the Welsh prince, is well translated by the learned authors. This revised edition is styled, "uncontroversial"; but as a Roman Catholic dignitary refused to be co-editor, we presume it is a faithful reproduction of the Saint's teaching. It is beautified by designs copied from the book of Kells; and is issued in connection with the Irish branch of the Evangelical Alliance.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Messrs. S. Bagster & Sons, 15, Paternoster-row:—Noonday Musings. 6d.

Messrs. John F. Shaw & Co.:—Dot your Prayers, by Miss Emily P. Leakey. 6d.

David Douglas, Edinburgh:—Thoughts for Heart and Life, by the late Dr. John Ker. With portrait.

Messrs. W. Hunt & Co., 12, Paternoster-row:—Thoughts on Christian Joyfulness, by Rev. Henry Sharpe. 1s.

Messrs. Virtue & Co., 26, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row:—Showell's Housekeeper's Account Book for 1888. 2s.

The Orphans' Printing Press, 10, Broad-street, Leominster:—Christian Solidarity, by Henry S. Newman. 2s.

London Bible and Domestic Female Mission, 2, Adelphi-terrace, Strand, W.C.:—Bible Work at Home and Abroad. Annual volume. 3s.

Messrs. James Nisbet & Co.:—The Covenant of Peace, by Rev. Marvin R. Vincent, D.D. 6s.—The Jewish Intelligencer. Annual Volume.

Messrs. Maclure, Macdonald & Co., Glasgow:—The Story of Jesus in the Words of Scripture, by Alexander Mackeith. Parts i. and ii. 1s.

Mr. James Gemmell, Edinburgh:—The Pastor's Diary and Clerical Record. Non-denominational. Prepared by Rev. Lewis H. Jordan, M.A.

Messrs. Macniven & Wallace, 138, Princes-street, Edinburgh:—Lectures to Young Men delivered before the Church of Scotland Young Men's Guild.

Messrs. Marshall Bros., 10, Paternoster-row:—Memoir of Rev. Henry Townsend. Compiled from his journals by his brother, Mr. George Townsend, of Exeter.

National Temperance Publication Depôt, 337, Strand, W.C.:—Quite by Accident, and other Temperance Readings in Prose and Verse. (Evan's Temperance Annual, 1888.) 6d.

Messrs. G. Norman & Son, Hart-street, Covent Garden, W.C.:—Arrows of Truth; Thoughts from the pen of the late Mr. Marcus Wright, of Birdsgrove. With Biographical Sketch. 2s. 6d.

Messrs. Suttaby & Co., Amen-corner:—Daily Truth: Selections from Holy Writ for every day in the year, by H. Bickersteth Cook. Part i.—Morning; Part ii.—Evening. 1s. each.—Family Prayers for a Month, by M. L. M. Dawson. 1s. 6d.

Mr. T. Woolmer, 2, Castle-street, City-road, E.C.:—The Coming of the King: Thoughts on the Second Advent, by Rev. J. Robinson Gregory. (Helps Heavenward, No. 5.) 1s.—Avice Tennant's Pilgrimage: A Story of Bunyan's Days, by Kate T. Sizer. 2s.—Fortunes and Misfortunes, and other Stories, by Rev. W. H. Booth, F.R.G.S. 2s. The Land of the Ghauts, by Rev. Jabez Marrat. 1s.—Steady Aim. 1s.

Pamphlets, &c. Received.—Messrs. William Hunt & Co.:—"Let him that is athirst, come": Thoughts on Rev. xxii. 17.—Perilous Times! Thoughts for the times, 1888.—"Always to Pray!": Thoughts on Luke xviii. 1, by Rev. J. C. Ryle, D.D., Bishop of Liverpool. 1s. per dozen.—The Christian's Victory over Sin, by Rev. H. C. G. Moule, M.A. 2d.—The Pattern shown in the Mount; or, What our Lives should be: An Address for 1888, by Rev. S. C. Morgan, D.D.—Begin at My Sanctuary: A Reflection for the Old Year, a Purpose for the New.

THE STAR IN THE EAST.

"We have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship Him."—Matt. ii. 2.

Bright herald of the sunrise, thou
Art radiant in the eastern sky;
With hope we lift our heads, for now
Our full redemption draweth nigh;
Rise, shine on us, O star of day,
Till lost in morning's perfect ray.

Ages have passed since thy clear light
Shone o'er the far-off Syrian plain;
The joy of that blest Christmas night
Doth fill our waiting hearts again;
While day is breaking, grey and dim,
We seek our Lord to worship Him.

Then angel anthems hailed his birth,
And wise men brought their offerings meet;
But yet how few were found on earth
In love to worship at his feet.
"No room for Thee," Thou royal Guest!
Come to our hearts and find thy rest.

Star of our King, lead not alone
To that poor inn at Bethlehem,
Lead to the Cross, the grave, the throne,
Then set within his diadem.
Fain would we now before Him fall,
And crown Him King, and Lord of all!

Light of the east, hope's first-born star,
Thou advent-herald in his train,
Bearing this message from afar
From Him who comes once more to reign:—
"Watch, till in yonder morning skies
The Sun of Righteousness shall rise."

J. H. S.

◆

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

Plymouth.—The Bible-class has increased to an average of about 130, and general prosperity is reported.

Torquay.—This Association is enlarging its operations by the employment of a missionary secretary. The recently held annual meeting, presided over by the Bishop of Exeter, and addressed by Mr. E. J. Kennedy, and others, was large and enthusiastic.

Taunton.—This Association has recently enlarged its premises, and engaged a missionary secretary. Inaugural meetings were held on the 8th inst., when the Vicar preached in St. Mary's Church a sermon to young men, the Congregational minister reading the Scriptures for the day. Mr. Benjamin Thomas, of Bristol, Mr. Hind Smith, and others, took part in the meetings of this eventful day.

Exeter.—We are glad to report considerable progress in Association work in this city. A large and representative meeting was held in the Royal Public Rooms on December 15, presided over by the chairman of the Association (Mr. Henry Godd), and addressed by Mr. Hind Smith, Mr. Alderman Andrews, and others. Mr. Hind Smith has been conducting a series of meetings for the past fortnight in the Arcade Lecture Hall, addressing the members on various phases of Y.M.C.A. work. It is resolved to employ a missionary secretary for this Association.

Y.M.C.A. Progress.—In 1883 there were in Great Britain 388 associations; in 1887, 630; showing an increase of 242. In 1883 there were in the world 2528 associations. In 1887 there are 3671; an increase in four years of 1143, or nearly one Y.M.C.A. formed per day. In 1879 there were in greater London twenty-two Y.C.M.A.'s. There are now seventy-seven. Will the readers of The Christian pray that the essential principles of a converted and missionary membership may ever have the ascendency in every Y.M.C.A.

THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS IN BRETON.—Very recently the Religious Tract Society have published an edition of Bunyan's great work for the Breton speaking people, and it has already proved to be acceptable. The Society have added to this service the publication of a number of beautifully illustrated broadsheets in large type. On receiving these pictures Pastor Lecoat, of Tremel, wrote, "The good your Society is doing is immense; but you have never sent a more needed grant."

Notes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, DEC. 25.—LAMENTATIONS IV.

"In the poem contained in this chapter the distinctive idea is that the miseries which have befallen Judah are the punishment of her sin, and will end, therefore, when chastisement has had its proper effect, in her restoration. In the first eleven verses the prophet describes the terrible sufferings of the inhabitants of Jerusalem during the siege, heightened by the contrast with the worth of the sufferers and the splendour in which they had lived. But this signal punishment has been occasioned by the sins, chiefly of the prophets and priests (12—16), and by the people having put their trust in man (17—20). But with repentance will come restoration, and thereupon malevolent Edom, as the type of those who rejoice over the downfall of God's people, will be visited (21, 22)."—S.C.

2.—The precious sons of Zion...are esteemed as earthen pitchers.—Christians are, in 2 Cor. iv. 7, compared to earthen pitchers (the allusion being to Judges vii. 16) who have their treasure within —i.e., "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, in the face of Jesus Christ."

3.—Even the sea monsters.—"Jackals," R.V.

6.—For the punishment of the iniquity, &c.—Better rendered "The guilt of the daughter of my people is greater than the sin of Sodom," which is very much what our Lord says of Capernaum (Matt. xi. 24). Guilt is enhanced by privileges.

13.—That have shed the blood of the just in the midst of her.—In the light of Matt. xxiii. 35, this passage is more applicable to the final siege of Jerusalem.

20.—The breath of our nostrils, the anointed of the Lord.—"Zedekiah was the one on whom the whole of the people's hopes depended for the continuance of their national life."—Streane. But the words more truly describe the Son of David, whose rejection brought final destruction upon Jerusalem.

21.—O daughter of Edom.—Jarchi, the Jewish commentator, regards this as a prophetic allusion to Rome, the destroyer of the second Temple.

MONDAY, DEC. 26.—LAMENTATIONS V.

"Beginning with a prayer to God to remember their misery (1), the rest is mainly occupied with the recapitulation of their sufferings (2—18), which are acknowledged (7, 16) to be the fruit of their own sins, and the sins of their fathers, while finally (19—22) the earnest prayer is renewed that God would not forget them for ever, but restore them to his favour as in olden time."—S.C.

7.—We have borne their iniquities.—"The fall of the kingdom had not been brought about by the guilt of that generation merely, and of none before; it was due also to the sins of their fathers before them in previous generations. But this does not mean that they were innocent. See ver. 16: 'We have sinned.'"—Keil.

19.—Thy throne from generation to generation. —"There is an implied contrast between the earthly sanctuary in ruins and the heavenly throne in unchangeable glory."—S.C.

21.—Turn Thou us unto thee, O Lord, and we shall be turned.—A quotation from Jer. xxxi. 18. "The prophet prays that God would grant his people grace to repent. Upon this would follow their "restoration and restitution to former privileges."—S.C.

22.—But Thou hast utterly rejected us, &c.—"Literally, 'Unless Thou hast utterly rejected us, art very wroth against us.' This is stated as an impossibility, so this is a gleam of hope.

TUESDAY, DEC. 27.—EZEKIEL I.

While Jeremiah prophesied at Jerusalem, and Daniel at Babylon, Ezekiel prophesied in the northern part of Mesopotamia, on the banks of the river Chebar, where, in a place called Tel-Abib, he lived amidst a colony of banished Jews, married, and in his own house. He was taken captive in the year B.C. 599 along with King Jehoiachin, and in the fifth year of his banishment (B.C. 595) he was called to be a prophet, and prophesied for twenty-two years. His call

1.—Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year. —What the æra is from which this date is reckoned is a disputed point. As this thirtieth year was the same as the fifth year of Jehoiachin's captivity (ver 2), and as this latter was B.C. 595, we arrive, by reckoning back thirty years, at (B.C. 625) the year that Nabopolassar became king of Babylon, and so many of the older expositors explained the allusion to be to this well-known Babylonian æra. This seems most probable, as Ezekiel lived in Babylonian territory.

4.—A great cloud and a fire unfolding itself.—The latter words are better rendered in R.V. "flashing continually." The cloud and the fire would recall the symbol of the Lord's presence both in the covenant with Abraham (Gen. xv. 17) and in the journeyings of Israel through the desert (Exod. xiii. 21).

5.—Four living creatures.—With some variation of form these "living creatures" seem to be the same as those in Rev. iv. 6, and as, from Ezek. x. 20, we know that "they were the cherubim," they are the same whose figures stood above the Ark, carved in gold on the mercyseat, and that were depicted on the veil and curtains of the Tabernacle (Ps. lxxx. 1). Whether they are typical of the Church (as some think), or of the new redeemed creation, they here appear as the chariot of the Divine Being, who appears in human form (ver. 26) enthroned above them.

18.—As for their rings.—"The felloes or circumference of the wheels."—S.C.

28.—As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain.—This reference to the "original message of forgiveness and mercy (Gen. ix. 13) is specially suited to Ezekiel's commission, first to denounce judgment, then to promise restoration."—S.C.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 28.—EZEKIEL II.

1.—Son of Man.—"The address 'son of man' occurs so frequently in Ezekiel that it must be regarded as one of the peculiarities of his prophecies. Elsewhere it occurs (as an address) only in Dan. viii. 17."—Keil. It seems intended to put in contrast the weakness of man (Ps. viii. 5, Job xxv. 6) with the strength of God, which is put at his disposal. Ezekiel means "whom God makes strong," and this is illustrated in the next verse.

3.—To the children of Israel, to a rebellious nation.—The Hebrew for nation is plural, so better in R.V. "to nations that are rebellious." This is explained by Keil. "The children of Israel have become heathen, no longer a people of God, not even a heathen nation (Isa. i. 4), but heathens." Or there may be an allusion to the two nations of Israel and Judah, both being included under the name "children of Israel."

5.—A rebellious house.—"Lit., 'house of rebellion.' This appellative is employed continually by Ezekiel in bitter irony, instead of 'house of Israel.'"—S.C.

8.—Eat that I give thee.—"To eat the book signifies to be thoroughly possessed of its contents. Comp. Jer. xv. 16, 'Thy words were found and I did eat them.' See iii. 10."—S.C.

10.—There was written therein lamentation, and mourning, and woe.—"Not that upon the roll was inscribed a multitude of mournful expressions, but that there was written all that the prophet was to announce, and what we now read in his book. These contents were of a mournful nature, for they related to the destruction of the kingdom, city, and Temple."—Keil.

THURSDAY, DEC. 29.—EZEKIEL III.

2.—He caused me to eat the roll.—"St. John has the same vision (Rev. x. 8, &c.), but there is expressed, what is here left to be inferred, that as soon as he had eaten it, he felt its bitterness. The sweetness in the mouth denoted that it was good to be a messenger of the Lord (Ps. xix. 10), but the bitterness which followed denoted that the commission brought with it much sorrow, for the tidings were sad and evil."—S.C.

7.—Will not hearken unto thee; for they will not hearken unto Me.—Compare the similar vein of thought in John xv. 20, "If they have kept My saying, they will keep your's also."

8.—I have made thy face strong against

"The metaphor is taken from horned animals." —S.C. There is a play upon the name of Ezekiel, as the word "strong" is that which occurs in his name, which means, "whom God makes strong." The same verb occurs ver. 14, "The hand of the Lord was strong upon me."

18.—But his blood will I require at thine hand. —"An awfully solemn statement for all ministers of the word."—Keil. See St. Paul's application of it to himself (Acts xviii. 6, xx. 26).

20.—I lay a stumblingblock before Him.—"It is true that God tempts no man in order to his destruction, but in the course of his providence He permits men to be tried, in order that their faith may be approved, and in this trial some who seem to be righteous, fall."—S.C.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 30.—EZEKIEL IV.

2.—Lay siege against it.—"By a common figure, the prophet is represented as doing that which he portrays. Compare Jer. i. 10."—S.C.

3.—Set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city.—"The iron pan, erected as a wall, represents a firm impregnable wall of partition, which the prophet, as messenger and representative of God, is to raise between himself and the beleaguered city, to signify "the impenetrable barrier which the sins of the people have interposed between themselves and God."—Keil. "It is the embodiment of the utterance, 'your iniquities have separated between you and your god' (Is. lix. 2)."—Hengstenberg.

6.—I have appointed thee each day for a year.—As this is one of the main arguments for the "year-day" system of prophetic interpretation, it will be seen that the R.V. even more strongly favours it. "Forty days, each day for a year, have I appointed it unto thee." See ver. 5 (R.V).

7.—Therefore shalt thou set thy face toward the siege of Jerusalem.—The siege of Jerusalem was to be the terminus towards which the typically represented years of guilt tended. "All the years of the kings of Judah, from the foundation of the Temple in Solomon's fourth year to its destruction under Zedekiah, give the sum of 430 years and six months. From this, taking forty years (Solomon's reign), we are brought to the fourth year of Rehoboam, in which Judah and Israel began to revolt from God (2 Chron. xi. 17)."—Vitringa. The 390 years will thus be those of Israel and Judah's combined guilt; while the forty years of Judah's special guilt (included in the 390) date from the reformation of Josiah, which began in his twelfth year (2 Chron. xxxiv. 3). In his thirteenth year began Jeremiah's prophetic ministry (Jer. i. 2), which lasted forty years, to the siege of Jerusalem. The rejection of God's message through this ministry involved Judah in this special guilt of forty years' duration.

15.—Thou shalt prepare thy bread therewith.—Better in R.V., "thereon." The reference is not to food, but to fuel. "In Eastern countries, where fuel is scarce, the want is supplied by dry cowdung laid up for the winter."—S.C.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31.—EZEKIEL V.

1.—Take thee a sharp knife.—Better rendered in R.V., "Take thee a sharp sword, as a barber's razor shalt thou take it unto thee."

3.—And thou shalt take thereof.—"Of the third part a few are yet to be taken, and kept in the fold of the garment, and yet of those few some are to be cast into the fire. Such was the fate of those left behind after the destruction of Jerusalem (Jer. xl., xli)."—S.C. There is a similar three-fold division in Zech. xiii. 8, 9.

5.—This is Jerusalem: I have set it in the midst of the nations.—"Egypt to the south, Syria to the north, Assyria to the east, and the isles of the Gentiles to the west, were to the Jew proofs of the central position of his land in the midst of the nations (Jer. iii. 19)."—S.C. Even in the present very altered condition of the state of nations, Palestine (as a glance at the map will show) continues to be the central site of the whole world. So far from using this central position for God's glory, that from Jerusalem might go forth light and truth into all nations, they were unfaithful to their trust, and profaned Jehovah's holy name, rather than glorified it.

13.—Thus shall my anger be accomplished.—"We have here a combination of the Chaldean and the Roman catastrophe."—Keil.

International S. S. Lesson.

Sunday Afternoon, January 1, 1888

Matt. xiv. 1—12 (also Mark vi. 14—29).

1.—The Tetrarch.—A tetrarch was, strictly speaking, ruler over the fourth part of a kingdom, but it is probable that at this time the title was used less strictly, and so was often applied to petty tributary princes generally. Josephus, however, teaches that the tetrarchies of Herod Antipas, and Herod Philip were regarded as being each a fourth part of the kingdom of their father, Herod the Great.

3.—His brother Philip's wife.—Not Philip the Tetrarch (Luke iii. 1), but another brother by a different wife, who, disinherited by the father, lived at Rome in comparative obscurity and poverty. Herod visited this half-brother and his wife during his stay in Rome. It is said that Herodias beguiled Herod, being ambitious of sharing his kingdom. So, in order to marry Herod Antipas, she got herself divorced from Herod, Philip; while Antipas, for the same purpose, divorced his first wife, the daughter of Aretas king of Arabia.

4.—It is not lawful for thee to have her.—Both these marriages were unlawful, for Herodias was granddaughter of Herod the Great, and so half-niece to both Philip and Antipas. Also there was double adultery, and the basest treachery towards both Philip and the wife of Antipas.

5.—And when he would have put him to death.—How can we harmonise this desire to kill John with ver. 9, "And the king was sorry"? Or with Mark vi. 20, R.V.? There may have been sudden, passionate anger which made Herod desire John's death at the time, but which soon died away; or, which is more likely, he may have been overpowered by Herodias, who burned to accomplish John's death. She would have used her weak husband as her tool, but for his fear of popular tumult. It is even likely that Herod was glad of this excuse to keep John alive, for he seems to have sent for him often, to have heard him gladly, being deeply moved by his preaching. Herodias, foiled for a time, lays a new and deeper plot.

8.—Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger.—"The sternest man there must have shuddered to hear from those beautiful young lips the blood-thirsty request, so atrociously specific. John is not only to lose his head, but the bleeding trophy is to be brought to her—to her there...Then she tells how it is to be brought. Not in a careless way... but in a dish; so that she—that young girl—may receive it into her own hands, without danger of soiling her rich dress with a prophet's blood. This is frightful."—Kitto.

9.—Nevertheless for the oath's sake.—Unlawful oaths are most honoured in their breach.

12.—His disciples...took up the body, and buried it, &c.—Machærus, the palace-fortress, in which, according to Josephus, John was imprisoned and murdered, lay either on Mount Nebo, or very near to it. "Thus the first great prophet of Israel, and the last one, were buried near to each other." But there is more; as Moses came to the border of the Promised Land, the great end of his great life, so John, who had lived only that he might prepare the way for the Coming One, came to the border of his Land of Promise, looked thereon, but entered not.

LESSONS.

We have here a man of this world contrasted with a man of God: Herod, the king, with John, his prisoner and victim.

I. Herod.—His history shows—

(1) How one sin leads to another.—Evil thoughts lead to unholy passions and conduct; these again to a settled bondage to evil—to evil circumstance and habit. When Herod desires to repent he cannot. Then comes the crowning act—murder. He who starts off down a smooth, icy mountain slope may enjoy the swift and easy motion, but he little knows over what precipice he may be dashed.

(2) How one sin deliberately indulged will ruin all.—Naturally, Herod was a quiet, modest, and able man. His impulses were noble, and his conscience tender. He feared John, honoured him for his goodness, loved to hear him preach, responded to his preaching ("he did many things"), and "kept him safe" (Mark vi. 20, R.V.). Yet he murdered John. Why? He indulged base desires, which mastered and entangled him. One hole may sink the finest ship: so one sin encouraged may ruin the noblest soul.

(3) That good feelings, desires, or even intentions may exist in the heart of a desperate sinner.—Herod had all these; yet he killed John. He killed him with deep regret: still he killed him. So Balaam (Num. xxiii. 10). Beware of relying on tender feelings, &c., instead of on Christ Jesus only, and while sin is allowed in the heart. Illustration: Two men, returning home late at night, get into a boat to cross a broad river. They pull till they are tired, yet make no progress. They try again and again, with like result. Morning finds them just where they started. They had been drinking, and so had forgotten to pull up the anchor. Just so, many make great efforts to reach the kingdom, who never enter in. Like Herod, they do many things; but they are held by some anchor of sin.

(4) That we should beware of any friendship which threatens our independence.—Herod sold himself to Herodias. Influenced by her, he commits sin upon sin, till he crowns all with murder. To her he sacrificed freedom, nobility, manhood. So boys, to keep in favour with other boys, often sacrifice conscience. There is nothing more sacred than our power of saying "No" to what is wrong. Friendships that weaken this power are to be dreaded. Let those "who are easily led" beware. This was Herod's character, and we know whither he was led. Count independence of character as above all price or pleasure.

(5) How terrible the evil one sinner may do.—"Among them that are born of women there hath not arisen a greater prophet than John." Yet this greatest of prophets is slain by one so base as Herod! "One sinner destroyeth much good."

II. John.—Observe—

(1) His unsullied righteousness.—His was the pure heart which saw sin as sin, no matter where he met it. No pleasantness or outward splendour could hide from him its hideousness. Always and everywhere he was a righteous man.

(2) His splendid courage—It is easy to denounce sin in general terms, or sinners in the mass; but to single out one sin, and to denounce that sin to the man who commits it—this is hard indeed. Where the wrong-doer is poor, or a stranger, this may be done at no great cost; but what if he be a king, and you speak before him to the certain peril of your life! Was ever a speaker braver or nobler than John!

(3) His failure.—Though he thus did God's work in God's spirit, he failed to convert Herod, and lost his head instead. Many, probably, blamed him for rashness, and excess of zeal. It is even likely that he sometimes blamed himself for his apparent failure. We know that there was no failure, and that both his death, and the faithfulness that caused it, were glorious. John was probably far more sensible of the mystery and darkness of his situation than of its glory. He simply endured, often wearily, but always faithfully. The glory was to follow. So, to-day, faithful Christ loving men may be in darkness, and may seem to fail, who will yet be crowned with honour.

Conclusion.—We learn what to do in perplexity and sorrow (ver. 12). John's disciples first paid every possible honour to their dead master, and then sped their way to Jesus to tell Him all. Thus their sorrow led them from the servant to the Master, from the dawn to the sunrise. Learn the blessing of going to Jesus with our troubles.

THE VICTORIA INSTITUTE.—All classes seem to have lost a friend in the late Sir William McArthur. He was one of the foundation members of the Victoria Institute, which now combines a large number of scientific and literary men and ministers of religion all over the world, in the work of defending religion from infidel attacks made in the name of quasi-science or pseudo-philosophy. At the opening of the Institute's new session, at its house, 7, Adelphi-terrace, this month, his death was specially referred to, and an address of condolence was prepared and forwarded to Sir William's family.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on missions at Sandwich and Deal, from Dec. 25 to Feb. 10, to be conducted by Mrs. Horton and Miss Parker.——For blessing on a series of daily meetings for young people and evangelistic services, at Edinburgh, from Dec. 31 to Jan. 7, and at Glasgow, from Jan. 8 to 12, to be conducted by Messrs. Vernon, J. Charlesworth, and J. Chamberlain, of Mr. Spurgeon's Tabernacle.——For blessing on a special united mission, to be conducted by Mr. Henry Thorne, at Oxford, from Jan. 7 to 16.——For a visit of Mr. Stephen Burrowes to Jersey and

WEEK OF UNIVERSAL PRAYER.

January 1—8, 1888.

This observance seems to be growing in extent, uniting Christians in all parts of the world, who gather together at the same time and have before them the same subjects for supplication as well as for praise. The Alliance circular is now translated into numerous languages, including Arabic, Hebrew, Syriac, Turkish, Chinese, Japanese Raratongan, and Tamul.

The following are the programmes of speakers we have received:—

Steinway Hall, Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square: 11.30 each morning.—Monday, Jan. 2: Thanksgiving; address by Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe. Tuesday: Confession; address by Rev. Mark Guy Pearse. Wednesday: Prayer for Families; address by Rev. Colmer B. Symes. Thursday: Prayer for the Church of God; address by Rev. Dr. MacEwan. Friday: Intercession for Missions; address by Rev. H. Grattan Guinness. Saturday: Intercession for Nations; address by Rev. J. F. Kitto.

City Meetings, Centenary Hall, 17, Bishopsgate-street Within.—Monday, 12 to 1, Rev. W. R. Mowll; 1 to 2, Messrs. Fullerton and Smith. Tuesday, 12 to 1, Rev. Henry Dening; 1 to 2, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Wednesday, 12 to 1, Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 1 to 2, Rev. Wm. Hay Aitken. Thursday, 12 to 1, Rev. E. A. Stuart; 1 to 2, Mr. Frank Bevan. Friday, 12 to 1, Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Leicester; 1 to 2, Mr. J. Herbert Tritton. Saturday, No meeting.

—Evening Meetings, Y.M.C.A. Hall, Whittington-avenue, Leadenhall-street.—Monday, Thanksgiving Service; Tuesday, Bishop of London; Wednesday, Rev. W. Hay Aitken. For young men—Subject: "Aggressive Purity"; Thursday, Rev. A. C. Lillingston; Friday, Mr. J. Hudson Taylor. All meetings at 6 p.m.

South London Branch of the Alliance.—Monday, 7 p.m., Metropolitan Tabernacle, Rev. J. A. Spurgeon; 7.30, Rye Lane Chapel, Peckham, Rev. J. T. Briscoe. Tuesday, 7.30, All Saints' Institute, Priory Grove, South Lambeth, Rev. Allen T. Edwards, jun.; 7.30, Wesleyan Chapel, Streatham, Rev. W. S. Tomlinson. Wednesday, 7.30, Presbyterian Church, Clapham-road, Rev. D. MacEwan, D.D. Thursday, 7.30, Congregational Church, Camberwell Green, Rev. C. Clemance, D.D. Friday, 7.30, St. Matthew's, Brixton, Rev. Marcus Rainsford, jun. Saturday, 8, St. James's, Clapham. Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston.

Down Lodge Hall, High-street, Wandsworth, 4 p.m.—Monday, Messrs. Fullerton and Smith; Tuesday, Rev. E. A. Stuart, Holloway; Wednesday, Rev. J. F. Andrewes, Harrow; Thursday, Rev. Chas. J. New, Hastings; Friday, Rev. F. B. Meyer, Leicester; Saturday, Service for young people at 3.30, conducted by Capt. Hon. C. Hobart-Hampden.

Among the other meetings to be held are: Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, daily. Mornings at 11, and evenings at 7 o'clock. Exeter Hall, daily (Saturday excepted) at 1 p.m. St. Paul's, Onslow-square (Church Room), daily at 5 p.m., but on Saturday at 7.30 p.m.

◆

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

Mr. William Forbes closed a seven days' mission on Sunday last at Bicester.

Three men have been fined £1500 for smuggling a large quantity of tobacco stems, packed like cotton, from America into England, at Liverpool.

The publican did a good thing when, after making some alteration at the entrance to his shop, he put up a notice on the door: "Beware of the first step."

By the vote of the negroes in the city, Atlanta, Georgia, has given a majority of over a thousand in favour of the sale of intoxicants after two years of Prohibition.

The British Women's Temperance Association has issued a sheet of "Simple Remedies" in the place of intoxicants. It is mounted on a roller, and suitable for hanging in public places as well as in the homes of the people.

The Postmaster-General again calls attention to the fact that to offer postmen drink whilst in the discharge of their official duties is an act of mistaken kindness which is calculated to bring them into trouble and disgrace.

At a recent meeting of the Manchester Women's Christian Temperance Association an interesting account was given of work at the Police-courts. Mrs. Bradley has been engaged to promote drawing-room meetings.

Local Option is making splendid progress in Missouri. It has carried thirty out of forty-six counties and fourteen out of nineteen cities for Prohibition. Nearly

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION,

47, ENDELL STREET, ST. GILES, W.C.

Average Medical Attendances	18,000 annually.
Average Admissions to Convalescent Home	118 annually.

THERE being a deficiency of £38 in the General Fund, and £51 in the Convalescent Home Fund, we ask the help of Christian Friends to enable us to clear off the same before December 31.

F. A. PRING, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., Med. Supt.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS, Farningham and Swanley.—In the Cottage Homes at Farningham and the Orphan Homes at Swanley there are just 500 Homeless and Orphan Boys taught trades, having technical education, and being fitted for a working life.

But the Funds are exhausted. No further debt can be incurred; and unless help is sent this Christmas, some of the Homes must be closed.

Will all readers of "The Christian" TRY and SEND SOME CHRISTMAS GIFT? A. O. CHARLES.
Offices: Bank-buildings, Ludgate-circus. Secretary.

Sale already exceeds 900,000.

The Oxford Bible for Teachers,

In twelve sizes, corresponding page for page with each other.

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon :—
"The very best."

The Bishop of Ripon :—
"Invaluable."

Rev. Dr. Osborn :—
"Has surpassed all competitors."

Archdeacon Watkins :—
"A noble gift to all English speaking peoples."

The "Times":—
"A library of Biblical information."

The "Christian World":—
"The most complete Bible yet published."

The "Christian":—
"Perfect."

The "Pall Mall Gazette":—
"Every Bible Student knows it to contain the best collection of Biblical information ever brought together in so small a compass."

At all Booksellers.

Henry Frowde,
Oxford University Press Warehouse, E.C.

SYMINGTON'S
World Renowned GOLD MEDAL
PEA FLOUR
For Soups, &c., EASILY DIGESTED.
Sold in Packets and Tins, by all Grocers.
Export Agent, J. T. MORTON, LONDON

UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF

H.R.H. THE PRINCESS CHRISTIAN.

Mrs. Hilton's Creche, Infant Infirmary and Orphan's Home,

12, 14 and 16, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.

TRAINING AND CONVALESCENT HOME, THE LIMES, FELTHAM.

All communications
to be addressed to
Mrs. HILTON,
Founder and Hon.
Superintendent.

Langveld House,
Burdett Road,
Limehouse,
London, E.

Dear Friends,

The present is a time of such extreme need that, unless speedy and liberal help is forthcoming, our work for the dear children must be curtailed, and this at a time of exceptional distress. I therefore appeal to you in hope, feeling sure that the children in their mute helplessness will elicit your sympathy and aid, so that we may be enabled to maintain—if not to extend—the work. Even when all branches are in full operation we can only help a small proportion of those who seek our aid; but I feel sure that it is only necessary to make our need known to insure a liberal response. For seventeen years we have been enabled to shelter thousands of children, and to cheer the hearts of the toiling women whose lives are cast amid the shadows, by the sympathy of those to whom the Lord has given the means of blessing the poor, and they that have no helper.

Yours in the Master's service,
MARIE HILTON.

GRAY'S YARD RAGGED CHURCH and SCHOOLS,

James Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

President—F. A. BEVAN, ESQ., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.

Funds are Urgently Needed to meet the current Expenses of this Institution. From 500 to 700 Casuals and Tramps are here supplied with Bread and Coffee every Sunday, after Gospel Services. Nearly £3 per week required for Food alone.

Contributions will be thankfully received and acknowledged by George Hanbury, Esq., Treasurer, 21, Portman-square, W.; Philip Gough, Esq., Hon. Sub-Treasurer, 33, Cambridge-street, Hyde-park, W.; or by Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

FUNDS GREATLY NEEDED!!

For sending Tracts through the post as private letters.
For Free Grants of Tracts in aid of Christian Missions.
For Free Distribution of Tracts at Home Exhibitions.
For Free Distribution of Tracts in Foreign Languages at forthcoming Exhibitions in Barcelona and Brussels
For Printing and Posting Spanish Tracts to the Upper Classes in Spain.
For Kiosk and Free Distribution of Tracts in all Languages at the Paris Exhibition in 1889.

Cheques and Postal Orders to be crossed and made payable to

J. R. MACKENZIE, Secretary,
Monthly Tract Society.

Bridge House, 181, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

Treasurer - - - - - - F. A. BEVAN, Esq.

N.B.—Mr. Mackenzie will be happy to give an Address on Tract Work wherever invited

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY.

ALL-NIGHT RESCUE WORK

ALREADY 12,000 poor Homeless and Starving Men have been gathered from the streets in the dead of night, Sheltered, Fed, and otherwise assisted, with most gratifying results.

This season has commenced with more than usual severity. Hundreds of poor men have been gathered in, and their need supplied, while scores have been turned away, for want of room, in the most destitute condition.

The continuance of this much-needed work must depend upon the liberality of those having the means to support it. Contributions will be gratefully received by the SECRETARY; or Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or by the EDITORS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

JAMES ATKINSON, Secretary.
28, Enfield Road, Kingsland, N.

SPECIAL APPEAL.

THROUGH the kindness of the readers of THE CHRISTIAN we were enabled last year to give 250 poor boys, gathered from the lowest streets of Deptford, a good Dinner on Christmas Day, and several Teas during the winter. It is proposed this year to increase the number to 300. Contributions will be thankfully received by H. A. PUNNETT, care of Mr. Fegan, Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.; or 79, Ravensbourne-street, St. John's, S.E.

HOMES OF HOPE,

Nos. 4, 5, and 6, Regent Square, Gray's Inn Road, London, W.C.

The Committee are obliged to make an urgent appeal for contributions:—

1. For the General Fund: the expenses of which amount to about £5 a day.
2. For the Child's Fund: a guinea or two to pay the nurses would in many cases rescue a mother and child. Five shillings would pay for a child for a week.
3. For law expenses: in every case where it is possible the men are compelled to pay the sum allowed by law for the child's support.

The applications are so distressing and urgent, that every shilling has been spent.

The Committee will feel grateful for £250 before the close of the year.

HENRY THOMPSON, Esq., Treasurer, 38, Mincing-lane, E.C.
WILLIAM HORNIBROOK, Secretary, 4, Regent-square, W.C.

THE

Flower ◆ Girl ◆ Mission

AND BRIGADE

WILL BE GLAD TO SUPPLY
ALL KINDS OF ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS,
HOLLY WREATHING, PLANTS, &c.
SUITABLE FOR
CHRISTMAS AND TABLE DECORATION.
Flower Vases, Room Decorations, &c.

PLANTS, from 6d. to 5s. each.
HOLLY and other WREATHING from 3d. yard.
ROSES, CHRYSANTHEMUMS, &c., from 6d. Spray.
PACKAGES SENT BY PARCELS POST (SECURELY PACKED).

Orders to be sent to Hon. Superintendent,
Flower Girl Mission, 11 & 12, Clerkenwell Close, E.C.

21st Annual Report of Mission on application.

BRITISH SOCIETY

For the Propagation of the Gospel among the Jews.

ESTABLISHED 1842.

President—W. H. HABERSHON, Esq.

The Society has upward of 100 who carry the Gospel to the Jews in England, Italy, Germany, Austria, Russia, Turkey, and the Holy Land. Many Jews have, by this Society, been led to believe that JESUS IS THE CHRIST. Much good has been done among the thousands of Jews in London by the various Agents, and by the Mission House, with its important Medical Missions.

The "SCOTTISH HOME MISSION TO THE JEWS" has been affiliated to the British Society.

INCREASED FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED.
and will be thankfully received by the SECRETARY,

REV. J. DUNLOP,
At the Office, 95, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

WHITAKER'S ALMANACK.—The Best, the Most Complete, the Cheapest and the Most Useful Almanack published. The 1888 Edition, considerably improved, will be ready in December.

Help for the Destitute.

CHILDREN AND ADULTS.

FIELD LANE REFUGES

FOR THE

HOMELESS POOR.

The Committee make a very earnest

CHRISTMAS APPEAL.

260 Persons maintained weekly.
Hot Dinners four days a week to 200 Poor Children.
3,500 Benefits conferred every week.

The Committee want to provide a CHRISTMAS DINNER for 600 Poor Families living in the neighbourhood, and also for 600 Homeless Men and Women.

£4,000 REQUIRED ANNUALLY TO CARRY ON THE WORK.

Donations will be thankfully received by the Treasurer, W. A. BEVAN, Esq. (Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co.), 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; Messrs. RANSOM & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, W.

PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary,
Field Lane Institute, Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.

URGENT APPEAL.

Sheltering Homes FOR Destitute Children

LIVERPOOL.

These Homes have now been at work for fifteen years, saving and placing in happy homes in Canada over 2,000 Children.

The Committee earnestly appeal for Special Contributions in aid of the Building Fund. £10,000 is needed, of which over £5,000 is already in hand; and the following sums were promised at the Annual Meeting, Dec. 1, 1887:—

	£	s.	d.
The ex-Mayor, Sir James Poole	10	0	0
Miss Ellis	2	2	0
John Curry	20	0	0
Mrs. Quinby	50	0	0
Henry Quinby, Esq. (£20 for five years)	50	0	0
The Mayor	50	0	0
Alexander Guthrie, Esq.	50	0	0
Thos. S. Timmis, Esq.	100	0	0
A Friend in Scotland	100	0	0
Stephen Williamson, Esq., M.P.	500	0	0

Contributions will be received towards the Building Fund by ROBERT F. LANG, Esq., 4, Chapel Street, Liverpool,

ABORIGINALS IN AUSTRALIA.

WARANGESDA.

In July we paid a visit of about six weeks to Warangesda, on the Murrumbidgee River. It is nearly half-way between Melbourne and Sydney, and situated in New South Wales. It was begun by Rev. J. B. Gribble, about eight years ago. After some years Mr. Gribble felt called to go and labour among the neglected aborigines of Western Australia. We had visited Warangesda twice during the time Mr. Gribble was there, but had not been there since he left till now. Our old friends gave us a warm welcome. Some had grown cold spiritually; but among those who gladdened our hearts by their steadfast Christian life was a half-caste young woman, named Annie Bright. She was brought to the Lord at Maloga, about eight years ago. She removed soon afterwards to Warangesda, and during all these years she has led a beautifully consistent Christian life; as a wife and mother she is an example to many white women.

With Annie we stood at the grave of Miss Hureb, a dear young Christian lady, who was formerly a worker with Dr. Barnardo. During a visit Mr. Gribble paid to England about three or four years ago, her heart was filled with love and pity for the poor aborigines of Australia, and she accompanied him back to these shores to labour among the natives at the Warangesda Mission. Not naturally robust, she soon wore herself out with her arduous labours; but she would not give up her work. After Mr. and Mrs. Gribble left Warangesda for Western Australia she remained at her post, gradually growing weaker and weaker. Surrounded by the natives for whom she had given her life, she quietly passed away at the mission, within a year of the time she had arrived there. She was much beloved by all, and has left a sweet savour of Christ behind her.

During our visit we generally had daily prayer-meetings in the cottages among the women. It was touching to hear their simple prayers; they were also glad to be helped in their readings, as they are anxious to read the Bible for themselves. Mr. Ardill, from Sydney, was at Warangesda for a few days during our visit. He had special meetings while there, and several of the natives professed to receive Christ as their Saviour during the after-meetings. We had also some opportunities of visiting the selectors' families (white people) scattered for miles round through the Bush, taking them Gospel books and having quiet talks with them about salvation, for it is a very neglected neighbourhood; generally many miles between each house, and no church or meetings for the people to go to, even if they felt so inclined.

MALOGA.

At the end of August we came to Maloga. There are a great number of natives here now; sometimes about 130, including the children. The day-school continues to flourish steadily and happily under the wise and loving management of Mr. James, a native of the Mauritius. The children have progressed wonderfully; they are in good discipline, and their bright, happy faces testify to the enjoyment they take in their school life.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews have shown much patient and perservering care of these people for many years, sowing the spiritual seed among them; and now it is bearing fruit in not a few. We are in hopes that Christians in other Colonies are beginning to see their responsibility towards the aborigines of this land. We would take this opportunity of saying how grateful Mr. and Mrs. Matthews feel towards the kind friend in England who so regularly sends them The Christian; it is a great boon in this far-away Bush district. We ask continued prayer for the aborigines of Australia. E. S. H. R.

Maloga Aboriginal Mission, Moame, N.S.W.

WARDOUR HALL, Soho, is now open for united prayer every day from 1.30 to 2, in connec-

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Church Missionary Gleaner will appear in January in a new and improved form.

The Church Missionary Society have issued a special appeal for men to strengthen, and, if possible, extend the Society's Mohammedan missions.

Rev. W. B. Collins, rector of Elvington, Yorkshire, and Mr. R. F. Ardell, have been accepted for foreign service by the Church Missionary Society.

At the annual service in connection with the Taunton Y.M.C.A., held in St. Mary's Church, Rev. S. Wilkinson, Congregational minister, read the lessons at the request of the vicar.

Bishop Parker has sent home a remarkable account of Mr. Mackay's dismissal from Uganda. The worry and anxiety caused by the vacillation and duplicity of King Mwanga were excessive.

Canon Hole, vicar of Caunton, Newark, has been appointed to the Deanery of Rochester, in succession to the late Dr. Scott. The English Churchman states that "Canon Hole is one of the most pronounced Romanisers in the Church of England."

The Guardian says that the scheme for making Allahabad the head of a new Indian See is rapidly taking a practical shape. The Rock hopes that the new Bishop of Allahabad will represent the views of the Church of England in a better way than is done by the dominant section of the existing Indian Episcopate.

Rev. A. H. Mackonochie, whose name was so well known several years ago, in connection with prosecutions for ritualism at St. Alban's Church, was found dead in Kinloch Forest on Saturday; he had been missing since Thursday. His death is believed to be the result of exposure, he having lost his way in a snow-storm.

PRESBYTERIAN.

This year 135 Bibles have been awarded to as many young people connected with the English congregations for memorising the Shorter Catechism.

Dr. Sinclair Paterson's congregation at Notting-hill have purchased an old music-hall close to their church, and have fitted it up for Sunday-school and mission work.

SALVATION ARMY.

We regret to learn that Miss Emma Booth has been prostrated by a most serious illness.

From Ceylon it is reported that religious awakenings are taking place in various towns and villages where the Army are working.

Mr. Albin Peyron writes that the Spirit of God is working in a remarkable way in Switzerland just now, especially in Geneva.

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn recently set apart twenty cadets of both sexes for missionary work. The meeting was at once solemn and enthusiastic.

This week's War Cry, Christmas Number, contains articles on "Our First Year's Work in Ceylon," with portrait group of Singalese officers; portraits and sketches of various leading officers; articles by the General and Mrs. Booth, &c.

En Avant strongly urges the Army to seek out the fallen and most miserable, the masses whose only "place of worship" is the theatre and the public-house: to fill their halls, and not to be content with a more or less respectable habitual congregation.

The War Cry for last week contains a portrait and biographical sketch of our esteemed friend, the late Mr. John Eason, of Dalston, who died on November 14. He was for many years a warm friend and supporter of the Army, and every good work. He has a son in China, labouring in connection with the Inland Mission.

METHODIST.

A mission, marked by great spiritual power, has been conducted at Eccles, Manchester, by Rev. Thomas Waugh.

Rev. J. T. Oliver has closed a series of evangelistic services at Herne Hill. A number of persons professed conversion.

Rev. Thomas Champness declares that the reason why so many Wesleyan village churches have fallen into decay is because of the laziness of the ministers.

A brass tablet to the memory of the late Mr. James Barlow was unveiled at Dr. Stephenson's Children's Home, Bonner-road, Victoria-park, E., on Tuesday, by Mr. James E. Vanner.

From accounts coming to hand from many parts of the country, says The Methodist Times, there seems to be a glorious increase of earnestness and success in soul-winning all along the line.

Mr. G. W. Taylor, J.P., a native of Rhos, near Wrexham, has offered to contribute £1000 towards the establishment of a Theological College for the Calvinistic Methodist Connexion of Wales.

Rev. William N. Barleycorn, native missionary from Africa, is expected to leave England early in January to spend some months in Spain, previous to his return to Africa. His services in this country have given a great impetus to missionary feeling.

On Sunday evening Rev. Thomas Nattrass was conducting the service in the Wesleyan Chapel, Vicarage-lane, Bowdon, when he was seized with illness, and died before medical aid could be procured. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause of death.

A new Society, called the "Out and Out Band," has been started by Revs. Peter Thompson, J. G. Mantle, and Thomas Cook. The object is to encourage and establish new converts; to band them together in mutual love, and earnest strivings for the salvation of

CONGREGATIONAL.

The committee of the "Rev. G. M. Murphy Memoria Fund" have received a donation of £10 from the Bishop of Rochester through Rev. Canon Pelham.

Rev. J. Hiles Hitchens preaches to young men on the second Sunday evening in each month, at Eccleston-square Church, Belgrave-road. Rev. Robert Balgarnie is about to conduct a six days' mission in the church.

The Australian auxiliary of the London Missionary Society have appointed their first missionary, Rev. Miles Moorhouse, of the Union Congregational College, Adelaide. Mr. Moorhouse goes to New Guinea about the end of the year.

Rev. J. Inches Hillocks has been rendering good service to some of the Congregational Churches in Devonshire during his recent visit to this county, by preaching, holding evangelistic services, and lecturing at Chudleigh, Buckfastleigh, and South Brent.

BAPTIST.

Rev. David Davies, of Brighton, will be the preacher at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday next.

All the students in the Baptist College at Haverfordwest have lately taken the double pledge against strong drink and tobacco.

The Baptists of the United States have organised a society for the collection and arrangement of material for a Baptist history.

A Gospel Mission Band, in connection with the chapel in Church-street, Edgware-road, has been started by the young men and women of the Bible-classes.

Mr. Archibald G. Brown has opened a new soup kitchen at Tryfena-place, Bow. Dock labourers, who have been unsuccessful in obtaining work, can secure for a penny a bountiful meal which suffices for the day.

In January last, Rev. Frank M. Smith undertook the pastorate of the Norfolk-street Chapel, Peckham. Since then upwards of one hundred have joined the church fellowship. The prayer-meetings have been largely attended. In August the Sunday evening services were transferred to the Peckham Public Hall, where there was more room for the growing congregation. Some of the conversions witnessed since then have been very striking.

A letter was read at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday from Mr. Spurgeon, written from Mentone, saying that he had now made up his mind to stay there until the second Sabbath of the New Year. He was now free from pain of body and refreshed in mind. Their earnest prayers had encompassed him like an atmosphere of peace. But he would ask for a double share just now, for he was entering upon a season wherein much wisdom would be needed.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

Successful evangelistic services have been held by Rev. J. S. McDade, Methodist missionary in Mohill, co. Leitrim.

Belfast has been visited by a band of students from Trinity College, Dublin, who have addressed evangelistic meetings under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A.

The Church representative body of the Church of Ireland have received an intimation that the sum of £10,000 has been left as a legacy to the Church by Mr. Denis Crofton.

The Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church, which met last week in Belfast, earnestly recommended that special prayer for Ireland should be offered in all their congregations and Sabbath-schools.

It is stated that, in consequence of advancing years, Rev. Dr. Murphy is about to resign the Chair of Hebrew in the Assembly's College, Belfast, the duties of which he has discharged for a long time with great acceptance.

The Presbyterian Church in Townsend-street, Belfast, of which Rev. Dr. Johnston, founder of the Presbyterian Orphan Society, is the pastor, seems in a flourishing condition. It has 711 church members, four Sabbath schools, with ninety-five teachers and 1000 scholars in average attendance.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Mr. Joseph Blomfield, for many years a deacon of the New Congregational Church, Halstead, Essex, and one of its most valued and useful members.—Rev. J. Samuel Broad, M.A., for twelve years vicar of Pentney and West Bingley, Swaffham, Norfolk, and formerly for thirty-five years vicar of St. George's, Newcastle, Staffordshire.—Rev. Alex. M'Neill, of the Free Gaelic Church, Paisley.—Rev. John Gray, senior minister of the U.P. Church, Freuchie, N.B.—Rev. Kerr Johnston, formerly a Congregational minister in Scotland, and subsequently pastor of Harrington-street Baptist Church, Hobart, Tasmania; he also founded the Seamen's Mission at Melbourne, to which he had devoted the later years of his life.—Rev. William Jones, for over fifty years a minister of the Methodist Free Churches Connexion.—Rev. Jonathan Makepeace, formerly Baptist missionary in Agra, India, and pastor of Salem Chapel, Cheltenham.—Rev. Thomas Nattrass, superintendent of the Wesleyan churches in the Altrincham Circuit.—Rev. James Ford, for nearly forty years a Wesleyan minister, and formerly a missionary in the Fiji Islands.—Rev. Samuel Finlay, Presbyterian minister of Kilraughts, Ballymoney, in the sixty-third year of his age, and thirty-seventh of his ministry.—Rev. John S. Joly, rector of Athlone, greatly respected by all who knew him.—Rev. Henry W. O. Fletcher, curate of St. Patrick's, Newry.

PORT SAID.—The British and Foreign Bible Society have a depôt and colporteur here. Mr. Royle boards the vessels that pass through the Canal, selling and giving the Holy Scriptures in sixty different languages, and evangelising among the sailors as opportunity offers. In this way about two hundred vessels are visited every month, and last year eight thousand copies

Forthcoming Meetings.

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., New Metal Exchange, Whittington-avenue, E.C.—Tuesday, January 3, Bishop of London, 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 4, Rev. Wm. Hay Aitken, 6 p.m.: "Aggressive Purity." Friday, Jan. 5, Mr. Hudson Taylor (China Inland Mission).

Conference Hall and Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sunday, December 25, 3 p.m., Mr. C. Boardman; 7 p.m., Mr. C. Boardman, jun. Prayer-meetings, Sundays, 7.45 a.m.; and Saturdays, 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.—Sunday, at 3.45, Mr. E. J. Kennedy (men only); subject—"Two Sides of Life"; 7, service of song by the choir. Address by Mr. Kennedy. Tuesday, workers' training-class, at 8.

Y.M.C.A., Burlington Hall, 23, Savile-row, W.—Thursday, December 22, young men's meeting, at 8.30. Friday, 23, at 8.30, lecture by Rev. T. T. Waterman: "Jesus Christ not the Invention of Enthusiasts."

Wesleyan West Central Mission.—St. James's Hall: Fridays, at 12 noon, Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 7.30 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Sundays, 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Wardour Hall: Mondays, 8 p.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; daily prayer-meeting from 1.30 to 2 p.m. All seats always free.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Sunday next, at 11 and 7, Dr. McKilliam; Wednesday, at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, 8 p.m.

Friends' Meeting House, Mercers'-road, Holloway, N.—Conversational Bible-reading every Thursday, 8 p.m. Any friends will be heartily welcome.

Gospel Temperance Prayer-Meeting first Friday in every month, at 11 to 12, young men's parlour, 186, Aldersgate-st. Requests for prayer sent to Hon Sec.

Deepening of Spiritual Life, Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W.—Friday, December 23, Rev. Henry Sharpe; Dec. 30, thanksgiving and praise, 3.30 p.m.

Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Christmas supper, Boxing Day, Dec. 26. Sailors' Christmas-tree, Tuesday, Dec. 27. Friday, Dec. 30, tea and Christmas-tree for the rough lads of the Highway. Monthly workers' meeting, Friday, January 6; tea at 6, meeting at 7. Mr. R. C. Morgan is expected to preside. Rev. F. B. Meyer will give a new year's address.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N.—Thursday, Dec. 22, 3 p.m., lecture by Mr. G. H. Pember; subject—"The Church." Tuesday, Dec. 27, at 7.30, lecture by Mr. C. Holliday; subject—"The Congo," with dissolving views. Sunday, Dec. 25, at 3.30, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7, Rev. John Wilkinson.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sunday, Dec. 25, at 11 and 6.30, Mr. William Taylor, the Navvy.

House of Rest, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Friday, December 23, 7 p.m., "The Deepening of Spiritual Life." Friday, Dec. 30, 4 and 7 p.m., special prayer-meeting; tea at 6. Friday, January 6, all-day meeting, from 11 a.m.; 3 p.m., address by Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, M.A.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday, Dec. 25, 11 a.m., Dr. Barnardo; 3 & 7 p.m., Mr. J. B. Wookey.

◆

Notices.

Will the friend who sends The Christian to Rev. Wilhelm Nübling, of the Basel Missionary Society, Honor, Bombay, India, kindly send us his address?

Communications Received with Thanks.—J.T.M. F.B.M. G.S.C. A.B. W.A.G. R.D. J.L. D.A.G. M.E.R. A.G. H.H.D. C.M.C. F.B.B. J.D. T.A. J.P. W.G.S. M.B. R.D.F. H.N.M. E.S. E.N.T. G.S. E.G. T.M. S.P. A.R.C. P.A.D. W.K.C. T.W.J.B. E.N. W.F.H. F.N.C. S.J.G. A.V.F. A.S. K.G.H.B. C.T.M. F.O.M. J.H. T.P. S.B.S. W.H.C. E.B. C.M. J.T.D. E.M.M. J.H.G. J.H.S. G.R.A. G.B. H.B. T.J. F.W.M. W.T.C. C.L. D.S. J.W. E.C.T. F.M.F. W.H.B. S.H.A. M.O'R. M.F. G.W. G.F. W.E.C. F.W.C. F.R.F. W.S.H. J.A.S. A.R.N. M.F.H. C.Z. A.W. D.W. J.E. T.J.Y. M.F.G.H. J.B.B. W.H.M. W.K. J.W.C. S.J.B. W.H.S. L.W. R.C. H.N.S. G.W.B. R.B. C.F. O.T. J.T.T. G.C. A.L.S. C.D. C.E.R.R. A.H. R.T.B. A.P. H.I.J. J.B. L.M.T. G.H.W. R.W. S.L.M. T.P. T.A.I. A.F. J.P.H. A.P.C. I.R. R.S.C. W.C.L. A.L.W. T.W.B. J.S. F.J.F. G.J. M.W. S.B. A.J.B. M.F. F.G. G.B. F.S. W.F. J.E.M. E.D.H. W.N. H.R. J.F.T.H. W.H.J. W.H.H. L.C. W.H.S. A.E.W. G.J.H. S.B. A.T. L.B. C.V. W.M.H. H.W.E.

Applicants for Tracts.—W. Widdinson, Missionary, 16, Lichfield-road, Bow, E.; A. Solomon, 28, Falkland-road, Kentish Town, N.; H. Garwood, care of Mr. J. S. Pratt, Cape Palmas, Liberia, West Africa; Miss M. Knight, Hospital-road, Colchester; Miss Sealy, Gosberton Vicarage, Spalding; W. Willcock, 271, Deansgate, Manchester; H. Walmsley, Captain's Old Houses, Pilling, near Fleetwood; J. J. Browne, City Missionary, Meadfield, South Norwood, S.E.; J. Derby, 8, Canora-

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Monday, December 19, 1887.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be ackowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
"M.R.S."—Please say which Medical Mission.
Kabyle & Berber Missions—J.C.G. 1s; M.R.S. 4s	0	5	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—E.T. 5s; Z.Y.X. £8; K.M.P. £1; M.V. £1 10s; C.D. 2s 6d; S.B. 2s 6d; H.N.D. £1; G.H.H. £1 ..	13	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—Belfast, 10s; C.M.G. 2s 6d; L.H. 2s 6d; Mrs. E.S. £2	2	15	0
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—Belfast, 10s; Z.Y.X. £5; H.N.D. £2..	7	10	0
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—Admiral Sir B.J S. £1; J.T.S. £1; G.S. £1; J.R. £3 3s; H.N.D. £1; W.R. 5s	7	8	0
Nine Elms Mission (Mrs. Meredith)—C.Y.R. 5s; J.P. £1; C. & E. £2; X.Y. £10..	13	5	0
N. E. London Gospel Mission—C.Y.R. 5s; E.E. 1s 3d; C. & E. £2; E. & A.W. 10s	2	16	3
London Samaritan Society, &c.—C. & A.C. 10s; J.J. 2s 6d; Friend, 10s; L.H. 2s 6d; Mrs. M. £3; M.V. £1 10s; C.D. 5s; J.P. £1; S.B. 2s 6d; T.N.J. 10s; Island, 10s; Mrs. G. £1; H.N.D. £2; G.H.H. £1; Mrs. F.F. 10s; C.J.H.B. £1; C.H.H. 5s; J.A.B. £1	14	17	6
Royal Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital—J.B...	1	0	0
Home Aged Blind Chstn. Men & Women—Miss H.	0	5	0
Home-teaching Society for the Blind—J.B... ..	1	0	0
Quiver Waifs—J.B.	1	0	0
Home of Industry—J.B. £1; Z.Y.X. £5; M.V. £1; J.P. £1; Natal, £2; G.H.H. £1; Nemie, 5s; (Poor Widows) M.V. £1; Miss G. 10s; Mrs. G. £1..	13	15	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—J.B. £1; Z.Y.X. £5; W.A. 5s; Una, 3s; M.V. £1; J.M.S.M. 5s; T.P. £1; Daisy C. £2; C.M.R.P. 10s; Natal, £2; G.H.H. £1 10s; W.S.M. 2s 6d; C.J.H.B. £1	15	15	6
Miss Rye's Work—J.B.	1	0	0
Sheltering Homes (Mrs. Birt)—J.B.	1	0	0
Orphan Homes (Mr. Quarrier)—J.B.	1	0	0
London Bible Women's Mission—J.B.	1	0	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Mittendorff)—J.J. 2s 6d; Z.Y.X. £5; M.R.S. 4s; Natal, £1	6	6	6
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—J.J. 2s 6d; M.V. £1; Natal, £1; G.H.H. £1; Mrs. R. £1	4	2	6
Theatrical Msn. (Mr. Forbes—(Special Case) M.S.	1	0	0
Maundrel Hall, Salisbury—M.S.	2	2	0
China Inland Msn.—Mrs. A.W. 10s; M.R.S. 4s.	0	14	0
Friendless and Fallen—Z.Y.X. £8; W.A. 5s; L.H. 2s 6d; C. & E. £5; C.B.M. £1; Miss H. £1; G.H.H. £1 10s; C.H.H. 5s	17	2	6
George-yard Ragged Schools—Z.Y.X. £5; Mrs. M. £3; M.V. £1; M.R.S. 2s; C.L.M. 5s; G.H.H. £1 10s; C.M. 10s; C. & E. £5	16	7	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Z.Y.X. £5; L.H. 2s 6d; Mrs. M. £2; J.P. £1; C. & E. £1; S.B. 2s 6d; C.B.M. £5; M.R.S. 2s; Z.R. 10s; H.N.D. £2; Natal, £2; G.H.H. £1 10s; E.H. £2; A.E.H. £1; E.W. 5s; W.S.M. 2s 6d; Mrs. R. £1; Mrs. F.F. 5s; Carlisle, 1s; C.W.H. £5; Nobody, £1	31	0	6
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—Z.Y.X. £5; Miss G. 5s; M.R. 1s; J.P. £1; C. & E. £1	7	6	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—C.H.H. 5s; Z.Y.X. £5; W.A. 5s; J.P. £1; C. & E. £5; T.P. £1; Z.R. 10s; Natal, £2; G.H.H. £1; A.E.H. £1; Mrs. R. £1; J. de C.M. £1 1s	19	1	0
Gratuitous Circ. of The Christian—Z.Y.X. ..	3	0	0
Salvation Army—Z.Y.X. £5; G.E. & W.H.N. £1	6	0	0
Church Army—Z.Y.X.	5	0	0
Penny Dinners in Dublin—Z.Y.X...	8	0	0
Free Breakfasts, &c.—Z.Y.X. £8; Mrs. G. 5s; G.H.H. £1; A.W. 5s; Mrs. F.F. 5s; C.H.H. 5s	10	0	0
Mission Work (Mr. Archibald G. Brown)—Z.Y.X. £5; A.S. £1; H.N.D. £2; C.H.H. 5s; (Orphans) R. £2 10s	10	15	0
Work among Soldiers (Miss Robinson)—Z.Y.X...	5	0	0
Work in Royal Navy (Miss Weston)—Z.Y.X. £5; C.B.M. £1; M.R.S. 2s; G.H.H. £1..	7	2	0
King Edward Ragged Schools—K.M.P.	1	0	0
Homes for Working Girls—K.M.P.	1	0	0
Evangelistic Mission—W.A. 5s; Melita, 4s; E.A.M.M. 3s; T.B. 2s 6d; Natal, £1; A.E.H. £1; C.W.H. £5	7	14	6
Distressed Irish Ladies—C.R.G. £1; E H. £1 ..	2	0	0
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work—G.E. & W.H.N.	1	0	0
Paris City Mission—G.E. & W.H.N.	1	0	0
South American Mission—G.E. & W.H.N... ..	1	0	0
McAll Mission, Paris—E.J. 3s 1d; L.C.W. £5..	5	3	1
Sermon-lane Mission—T.C.E. 7s 6d; Natal, £1; C.J.H.B. 10s; C.W.H. £5	6	17	6
Seven Dials Mission (Mr. W. Harrison)—T.C.E. 7s 6d; T.N.J. 10s	0	17	6
Jews in Jerusalem (Mr. D. C. Joseph)—J.H.P. ..	0	2	0
E. L. Training Institute—M.R.S. 7s 6d; (Christmas Dinners) E.V. £1; C. & E. £1; T.P. £1; Rev. R.D. 2s	3	9	6
Medical Mission at Tangier (Dr. Churcher)—C.P., Clifton	0	5	0
Gray's-yard Casuals—Barnes..	0	5	0
Gray's-yard Ragged Schools, &c.—Y.E. 5s; Mrs. M. £2; C.L.M. 5s; H.N.D. £1; Natal, £1;
Cow Cross Mission—Y.E. 5s; C. & E. £2; H.N.D. £1; Natal, £1; G.H.H. £1; C.W.H. £5..	10	5	0
Field-lane Ragged Schools, &c.—Y.E. 5s; Miss G. 5s; C. & E. £5; Mrs. G. 10s; C.M.R.P. 5s; H.N.D. £2; Natal, £1; C.M. 5s	9	10	0
Dock Labourers (Mr. Coleman)—Mrs. M. £2; S.S. 5s; G.H.H. £1; E.H. £2; Miss J.F. 10s; Two Young Ladies, 2s..	5	17	0
Spanish & Prtugse. Church Aid Soc.—H.M.A.S..	0	10	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—H.M.A.S. ..	0	5	0
Christian Community—H.M.A.S. 5s; Mrs. G. 5s; Natal, £1	1	10	0
Distress in Limehouse—Lady G.	0	10	0
Farthing Dinners (Mr. Sargent)—Mrs. C.M.D...	0	5	0
Robin Dinners—M.R. 1s; R.W.G. £1 1s	1	2	0
Latymer-road Mission—C. & E. £5; S.B. 2s 6d..	5	2	6
National Refuges for Homeless Children—C. & E.	5	0	0
Christmas Help to the Poor—Mrs. Y. 1s 6d; T.P. £1 19s; J.B. £1; Natal, £5; C.H.H. 5s ..	8	5	6
Home for Aged Poor—C. & E...	1	0	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses—C. & E. £1; G.H.H. £1..	2	0	0
North Bow Mission (Rev. J. F. Porter)—E.L. ..	0	5	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—C.B.M. £1; H.N.D. £2; G.H.H. £1 10s; J.B. £1	5	10	0
Soldiers' Homes (Miss Daniell)—C.B.M.	1	0	0
Somers Town Blind Aid Society—C.B.M.	1	0	0
National Vigilance Association—T.N.J.	0	10	0
Mission Hall for Paris Jews—T.N.J.	0	10	0
Scutari Medical Msn., Constantinople—Sir W.C.	2	0	0
Connemara Orphan Home—Mrs. B.	0	10	0
Golden-lane Mission (Mr. Orsman)—R...	5	0	0
London City Mission—R. £2 10s; Mrs. G. £1; H.N.D. £2; (Disabled Missionaries) Mrs. G. £1; X.Y. £25	31	10	0
Free Church of Scotland (Jewish Mission)—R. ..	5	0	0
Mildmay Conference Hall—R.	5	0	0
Mr. H. Cook's Work, Gosport—Mrs. G.	2	0	0
Rescue Society—Mrs. G. £2; G.H.H. £1	3	0	0
Poor Lepers—Mrs. G.	2	0	0
Ladies' Samaritan Society—(Paralysed and Epileptic) Mrs. G...	1	0	0
Woman's Mission to Women—Mrs. G...	0	10	0
Birds' Nest Mission, Dublin—M.R.S.	0	4	0
Orphans' Home (Miss Sharman)—M.R.S.	0	4	0
Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth—M.R.S.	0	2	0
Navvy Mission (Mrs. Garnett)—M.R.S.	0	2	0
Anchorage Mission—M.R.S.	0	1	0
Missionary Leaves Association—M.R.S.	0	1	0
Rescue Work (Rev. Marcus Rainsford)—M.R.S..	0	5	0
Fox-court Ragged Schools—C.L.M.	0	5	0
Gordon Hall Mission, Bethnal Green—C.L.M...	0	5	0
Blind Pension Society—H.N.D.	2	0	0
Lamb and Flag Mission—Natal	1	0	0
Working Men's Mission, New Cut—Natal	1	0	0
Strangers' Friend Society—Natal	1	0	0
Spitalfields Gospel Msn.—Natal, £1; G.H.H. £1	2	0	0
Hall at La Mancha, Spain—M.S...	2	0	0
Cancer Hospital, Brompton—G.H.H.	1	10	0
Halfpenny Dinners—G.H.H. £1; C.M. 5s	1	5	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—G.H.H.	1	0	0
West Central Institute (Mrs. Bramwell)—M.S...	10	0	0
Free Distribution of Scriptures—X.Y...	25	0	0
Poor Shirt Makers—E.W.	0	5	0
Rodriguez's Figueras Mission—X..	0	1	0
Latimer Church, Bow (Food, &c., for the Poor)—Senex	0	1	0
Relief of London Poor—C.M.	0	5	0
Dock Labourers—C.M.	0	5	0
	£467	3	4

◆

[Advertisements.]

Dr. Barnardo's Homes—Mizpah, H.M.A.S., £3.

Fox-court Ragged School and Mission—E.V. £1 and Parcel of Clothing.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—Mr. C.A.H. £1; Miss A.W. 10s; Miss H.W. 10s.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E. (towards £1,000)—H.W.W. £2 2s. F. A. Bevan, Esq., Treasurer, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

Ragged-school Union, Exeter Hall (Benevolent Fund)—The Secretary gratefully acknowledges the receipt of £2 from Mizpeh, H.M.A.S.

East London Institute for Home and Foreign Missions—Dr. Grattan Guinness begs to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of Parcels of Clothing for the Poor from Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Frere.

Evangelistic Mission (Christmas Appeal)—Received with thanks: R.V.B. (Paddington) £1 1s; E.A.T. 5s; A Poor Man (Leytonstone), 5s; Anon. (Harrogate) 5s; Mrs. R. (Girton) 1s; Anon. (Stamps) 1s; M.L. (Stamps) 1s; Anon. (Sandy) 1s; Mrs. F. (Leatherhead) 1s.

A SAILORS' HOME AND REST FOR FOWEY.—Dear Sir,—Our missionary at Fowey has just written to say that—"The necessity of a Sailors' Rest at Fowey becomes more apparent almost daily. Out of thirty-nine vessels visited in the harbour on a recent occasion, nineteen had crews who made inquiries after the 'Rest,' and in the street I have been stopped by seamen who have asked the way to the 'Rest.'" A suitable site has been obtained, and nearly £200 promised towards the £1000 required; but the local committee (of which Rev. H. N. Purcell, M.A., vicar of Fowey, is chairman) will not commence to build until they have received at least two-thirds of the money. Many of the seamen visiting this Cornish port have been led to the Saviour, but when on shore they have no place to go to. G. J. Hill, Sec.

Seamen's Christian Friend Society,

THAMES CHURCH MISSION.

Instituted A.D. 1844.

AN INTERNATIONAL WORK.

BIBLE TRUTH PREACHED TO REPRESENTATIVES OF ALL NATIONS.

Shall this work be carried on? Shall it be Enlarged and Developed?

Shall not these hard-working and noble Seamen be cared for with more loving concern, more generous sympathy, more practical help? Shall not Christian England, and especially wealthy London, be aroused to a liberal support of this endeavour to extend the light and life and power of salvation among these witnesses of God's works and wonders in the deep? Patriotism, humanity, and Christian love will unite in the only possible answer.

Information will be gladly supplied by the Secretary (the Rev. H. BLOOMER).

Christmas Offerings earnestly asked, and may be paid to the Society's Bankers, Messrs. LLOYDS, BARNETTS, BOSANQUETS & Co. (Limited), Lombard-street, E.C.; or to the Secretary, at the Society's Offices, 31, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, London.

MRS. MEREDITH

EARNESTLY

APPEALS FOR FUNDS

For Her Institutions.

The Prison Mission Laundry employed 857 women discharged from H.M. Prisons this year. The remarkable decrease of Female Prisoners is due to this and similar efforts.

£2,000 is pressingly needed to fit up the new premises for continuing and extending this successful work.

The Washing Charity attached to the Laundry helps the Sick and Needy.

SUMMARY OF WORK FROM JANUARY 1st, 1887.

Number of Women employed in Laundry	857
„ Days' Work given „	14,714
Prison Gate Breakfasts	3,135
Washing Done for the Public	489,202	537,760
„ „ „ Sick Poor (Gratis)	48,558
Gospel Addresses	928

The Medical Missions (connected with the Church of England's Missionary Association).

DISPENSARIES.

Conference Hall, Clapham Road, and Stewart's Road, Battersea.

Dispensary Attendances	4,849
Maternity Cases (Domiciliary)	337

Nursing and Nourishment are provided for the poor patients, in their homes.

Contributions of every kind for their relief are wanted.

Cheques for Laundry Extension Fund, payable to MRS. SUSANNA MEREDITH, crossed Union Bank, Charing-cross, for Medical Mission, to MESSRS. BARCLAY & BEVAN, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

"THE PERFECTION OF DRESS FABRICS."—Extract from the COURT JOURNAL.

PRIESTLEY'S

DRESS FABRICS FOR GENTLEWOMEN.

To be obtained from Leading Drapers.

Trade Mark:
THE VARNISHED BOARD.

In all the Newest Introductions, Tracings, Styles, and Shapes; and all at Most Exceptional Prices.

CHARMING NEEDLEWORK "NOVELTIES."

New Catalogue Price List for Present Season Now Ready, Free by Post. Containing the Price of many Hundred Novel Needlework Articles, Useful but Inexpensive.

Perforated, Traced and Depressed Needlework.

Charity Wheeling Yarns, at 1s. 11½d. and 2s. 4½d. per lb.

REAL SCOTCH FINGERINGS AND PETTICOAT WOOLS,
In 2, 3, 4, and 5 ply, in all the New Novel Shades and Heather Tinted.

SUPERIOR HOSIERY & SANITARY WOOL COMBINATION GARMENTS,
For Ladies and Children. Price List Free.

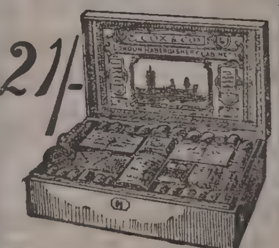
WAKEFORD BROS., Artistic Needlework, Wool, Knitting Yarn, and Fancy Emporium, 104 and 106, KING'S ROAD, SLOANE SQUARE, LONDON.

NEEDLEWORK CABINET



Size, 16 by 10 by 4 inches—which contains a Year's Supply of Useful Haberdashery and Needlework Requisites as follows:—Black and White Sewing Cotton, Coloured Sewing Cotton, Sewing Needles, Darning Needles, Bodkins, and assortment of Twilled Tapes, Hooks & Eyes, several Cards of Linen Buttons (different sizes), Pearl Shirt Buttons, Black & White Linen Thread, Two Boxes of Mixed White Pins, Black Pins, a Card of Round and Flat Elastic, Garter Elastic, Hair Pins, Embroidery Cotton, Darning Cotton, a Measure, Silvered Thimble, &c., in a Handsome Walnut Cabinet with Lock and Key. These very complete Cabinets are forwarded to any part of the world on receipt of P.O.O. for 22/- which includes a shilling for packing case, or 21/- free to any part of England.

COX & Co. 99, NEW OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

DE JONG'S PURE SOLUBLE COCOA.

The "ACME" of all Pure Cocoas
(And yet by far the cheapest).

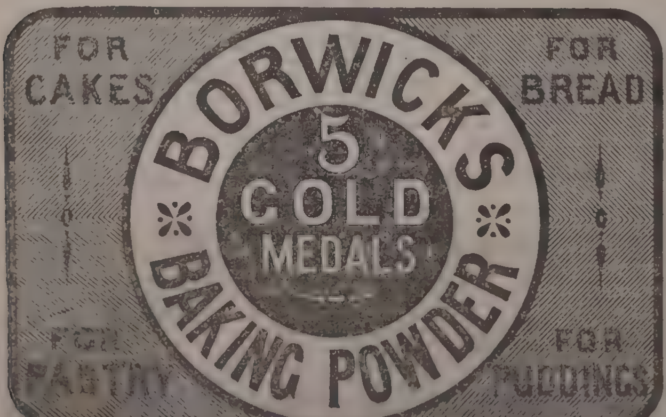
Makes the most Delicious HOT or COLD and ICED Cocoa and Chocolate
IN ONE MINUTE.

Dr. Hehner, the well-known Public Analyst, reports:—
"I found De Jong's Soluble Cocoa to be of absolute purity and of the highest excellence."
"It surpasses, in delicacy of aroma and richness of taste, the best kinds of similar cocoas which have hitherto been offered to the public."

SOLD by GROCERS, CHEMISTS, &c., &c., in 1-lb., ½-lb., ¼-lb., and ⅛-lb. Tins (full weight) at 3/4, 1/9, 11d., and 6d.

When not obtainable of the above will be forwarded direct, carriage paid, on receipt of Postal Order.

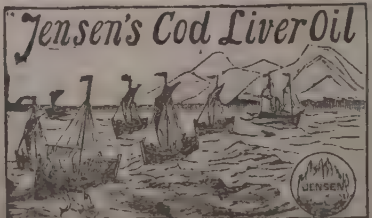
2-oz. Sample Tins, containing sufficient for 15 breakfast cups, free of charge and postage paid, may be had by addressing
THE CHIEF DEPOT OF DE JONG'S COCOA,
6 & 7, COLEMAN STREET, LONDON, E.C.
[All Rights Reserved.]



Recommended by the Royal Chelsea Hospital as the Cheapest and Best.

The Lancet: "Of excellent quality, and practically no taste."
British Medical Journal: "Children take it well."

JENSEN'S COD LIVER OIL



is acknowledged as the best, because the only Oil made from absolutely fresh livers. It prevents Coughs, Colds, Asthma, and Bronchitis; it makes the digestive organs act, and is the only effectual remedy in cases of Consumption. Sweet and pleasant without any after-taste.

Sold everywhere at 1/-, 2/-, 3/6, and 6/6.

Every bottle, if genuine, bears on the Wrapper the Registered Trade Mark—an Iceberg.

HERTZ & COLLINGWOOD, 101, Leadenhall Street.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Christian Testimony, Christian Work and Missionary Enterprise.

No. 935.] LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1887. REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

MR. JOHN GRUBB RICHARDSON,

Of Bessbrook, Co. Armagh.

ALL who can speak with authority agree that the great outstanding curse of our country is "the drink." An evening paper lately termed it "the mother of many miseries." We are roundly told by philanthropists that if the money which goes into the all-devouring maw of the publican's till were devoted to righteous uses, the pauperism of our great cities would recede almost to vanishing point. With one consent our judges say that the drink is the parent of nearly all the crime. Statisticians declare that it compasses, directly or indirectly, the premature death of 120,000 persons within these realms every solar cycle. Mr. Gladstone has made the startling assertion that the roll-call of its victims exceeds those of war, famine, and pestilence combined.

One might naturally suppose that, as a practical and sensible people, we would make all speed to relieve the nation from such a fearful incubus. Strange to say, we do not. The statesman we have named has done much to aggravate the situation—unintentionally, we doubt not—by his Grocers' Licences Bill; but neither he nor his colleagues have made any serious effort to ward off the giant evil he has so graphically portrayed. And other Governments have followed suit. What can be the cause of our amazing supineness? In plain, if somewhat inelegant, English, it is this: "There is money in it." While we have slept, the enemy has been stealthily but steadily sowing the tares, and a crop of so-called "vested interests" has sprung up. For these we calmly barter away hecatombs of the bodies and souls of men. Strangest fact of all, the professing Church of Christ is so implicated, by actual participation in, and patronage of, the traffic, or by the receipt of blood-money and hush-money from those whom it has enriched,

(From a Photograph by Mr. Francis Guy, Cork.)

A black enough picture truly; but none too black. We turn from it with all the greater relief to welcome a ray of light that comes from across "the silver streak." In these days we are almost ready to believe that no good thing can come out of poor, unhappy Ireland. And yet it is there that we find this great problem solved; not on a very extended scale, it is true, but large enough to show that it is possible and practicable. The name and fame of Bessbrook have gone throughout the world. Across the Atlantic we find great communities slowly struggling through seas of turmoil and conflict towards the peaceful shores of prohibition. Across the Irish Channel we find a veritable

> It is a fact that we are happy here without that which is separating so many from God. The people are quiet and contented, while the work of God is flourishing among the youth.

Surely that is a phase of Home Rule that "Whig and Tory," Radical and Nationalist should "all agree" to establish in the Green Isle, from the Giant's Causeway to Bantry Bay. Meantime, let us take a peep at Bessbrook, an Ulster town of nearly 4000 inhabitants. It was founded as a temperance colony some forty years ago by Mr. J. G. RICHARDSON, whose portrait it is our pleasure to present to our readers in this issue. He has now attained to an almost patriarchal age, having been born in 1813; for many years he has been a leading member in the Society of Friends, consistently carrying out their principles of a humble walk with God, and earnest labour for the good of others. Like his immediate ancestors, his worldly calling is that of a linen manufacturer, and his firm has a reputation for genuine, honest work in that branch of industry, as high as that enjoyed by "the house of Morley" in another branch. The Bessbrook damasks are unexcelled, we believe, in the markets of the world. It has been said of the goods that come from Mr. Richardson's looms: "You may purchase them in the dark." If we covered reams of paper we could formulate no higher praise than that. But our object in drawing attention to Bessbrook is mainly to gather from its history the light it throws on the only satisfactory solution of the ever-present and ever-pressing drink problem.

Mr. Richardson (and his partners who are now deceased) purchased this estate of six thousand acres in co. Armagh, erected their great linen factory, and established public-house." The natural corollary is that there is and has been no prison, no police, no paupers, and no pawnshop. Only think of London being without each of the five items in that small peck of p's! If our faith were strong enough, and our works did but correspond, we suppose it ought to be done. The hand of the Lord is not shortened; therefore the preventing cause must lie in our unbelief, because of which He cannot do his mighty work.

It is true, no doubt, that in Bessbrook they began well, and that is half the battle. The entire works, we are told, employ about four thousand men, women, and children. Though the accursed drink is not to be bought in the township for love or money, it can be had in Newry, which is not three miles distant. There is no sumptuary law in Bessbrook compelling the people to abstain. Some do walk to the neighbouring town to procure liquor, but the moral education of the temperance system has been such that the householders of the place have endorsed the prohibitory arrangement by a vote of six to one. And so Bessbrook, to quote the expressive words of an impartial correspondent of Land and Water, "stands out like a gem in this sombre and commonplace world, and like a star in the black sky of crime and intemperance."

There do not seem to be any workless workers in Bessbrook. From morn to eve the whirr of the wheels and the click of the spindles are heard; and the beautiful, well-compacted material is unceasingly turned out, to find acceptance with housewives, the wide world over, as the product of clear heads, and supple, steady hands. Some £70,000 per annum are distributed as wages, but it does not go to enrich the brewer and the publican, at the expense of the health and morals of the people. Mr. Richardson has erected pretty and suitable homes for his workers, and no Court is needed to reduce rack rents. There they live in comfort and independence. Every house has its garden, so that there is plenty for the men to do during the leisure hours. For winter evenings there is a Library Institute, with its reading, lecture, and recreation rooms. There is a dispensary, supported by a common sick fund, to which all contribute their quota. There are excellent schools, supported also by a small general tax, in proportion to the size of the family. There is a savings bank, the depositors in which receive five per cent. interest; some of these have placed there goodly sums to meet the calls of the inevitable rainy day. No sort of favouritism is shown in matters of religious creed; for there are five places of worship—Episcopal, Presbyterian, Wesleyan, Society of Friends, and Roman Catholic. All these are supported by their congregations without the aid of any crutch from the State. Like an enlightened and benevolent autocrat, Mr. Richardson is no slave to modern notions of political and social economy; for he restricts competition in the trades of the town so that all may have a fair chance of a decent livelihood. A fine grey granite quarry on the estate gives employment to many who cannot work in the mills.

The place, in short, has been well described as "a model town," and they seem to be a model population. We do not suppose they have succeeded in excluding original sin with the beer cask and the whisky bottle; but "the devil in solution" always brings with him seven other devils as bad as himself; and the one

All this, and more, has been accomplished by Mr. Richardson, aided by his like-minded earnest and devoted wife. We are delighted to know that Mr. Richardson, Jun., follows in his father's footsteps, and conducts the flourishing Sabbath-school in connection with the Friends' Meeting House. Mr. Richardson believes that many of the ills that afflict his native land would vanish if the drink were expelled. In a letter addressed to Mr. Gladstone some five years ago, when that gentleman was in office, he said:—

> I am firmly convinced that if the Ministry had done their first work, and had braved the opposition of the spirit trade, they would have had a greater blessing on their labours for Ireland as well as England. It is a well-known fact that not a meeting for rapine and murder takes place in Ireland at which whisky does not play a prominent part, and that our poor countrymen would be incapable of committing the outrages which have taken place without the stimulus of whisky. It is well known, too, that the amount drunk in whisky and beer at least equalled the rental paid during the last three years, and we have proof that where least rent was paid most whisky was sold. God only knows how many murders were hatched in public-houses, or how many publicans licensed by the Government have taken part in the disturbances! Apropos of licensed spirit dealers, how is it that no effort has been made even to prevent the increase of a class which, in case of temperance legislation, you and others have stated would be fairly entitled to compensation? The effect of this constant increase must surely be a corresponding increase in the liabilities of the nation, not to speak of all the acknowledged evils of which the trade is a fruitful source.

Mr. Richardson's manly and Christian appeal does not seem to have met with any favourable response, and the "Irish question" is as far off from solution, apparently, as ever. Most heartily do we re-echo the desire expressed by Mr. Richardson in a letter to Sir Wilfrid Lawson, written about the same time: "How one longs for men in the spirit of Wilberforce to arise on either side of the House and shake it to the centre, as he did on the slave question." All honour to our Bessbrook friends that they have given to the country, and to the world, an object-lesson of such pregnant meaning and importance. We believe it is largely in the line of such industrial colonies, where our people will have honest work, fair wages, and wholesome dwellings, without the temptations of the drink, and aided by religious influence, that a way will be found out of the labyrinth of evils clus-

FOR THE NEW YEAR.

BY REV. MARK GUY PEARSE.

FOR thee, dear friend, this one thing do I wish and pray:
That full of sunny peace, and rippling to the shore,
May be the tide of time that flows in day by day,
Bringing new life and fuller from its boundless store—
With no wild waves that dash and break in blinding spray,
With no wild winds that beat, no angry tempest's roar.
Be thine the glassy edge that glides along the sands
With music soft and sweet—God's "Fear not" to the soul,
Bringing the tokens fair that tell of sunnier lands,
Smoothing the roughened places, making all things whole.
The ill that was is buried underneath God's sea:
Now this one purpose shapes all things that come and go—
That God Himself be ever more and more to thee,
Till over all the soul his love's full tide shall flow.

—The Welcome.

◆

CHEER FOR THE WIDOWS.

THE Home of Industry has been the scene of one of those happy gatherings which link together the children of luxury and wealth and the children of want and toil in one Christian bond. Mr. Holt, whose name is now a household word in the mouths of the needy and poor of both East and West-end, has provided a portion for 100 widows of the Home. Among them were the feeble, the aged, the blind, the paralysed, and the toilworn. Some were poorly clad; some neat and respectable-looking. Some were lonely, with not a soul to care for them but the friends at the Home of Industry; others are burdened with the care of a large family wholly dependent on their labour.

All were provided with a substantial meal The greater part of the eatables were put in bags and conveyed home, a little sufficing most of them. Then the Misses Holt distributed t each a packet of books, &c., and a bright Jubile shilling. The little ones from the Hackney Hom had been brought over for a little treat, and the helped to make the meeting bright with thei action songs and well-trained singing.

Mr. Charles Inglis gave a message of lov from Luke vii. 47: "Her sins, which are many are forgiven." Other faithful and loving word followed, to press home the need we all have o salvation through Christ. As the widows file out, one by one, the Misses Holt placed in thei arms a pair of beautiful warm blankets. Th thanks they were unable to express will surel rise in prayers, and bring down answers of peac and joy in the heart of the giver.

TEMPERANCE IN THE CITY.—A meeting the City of London Total Abstainers' Union wa held on Dec. 16, in the warehouse of Messr Spreckley, White & Lewis, Cannon-street. Mr. D. Lewis, who presided, referred to the fact th two years since he signed the pledge, at a simil meeting; he was convinced that, in leaving t ranks of the moderate drinkers, and joining hi self to the abstainers, his influence for good w much increased. Mr. Robert Whyte, Jun., in able address, argued that for mind, body, and pu pose total abstinence was far preferable to ve moderate drinking. Rev. J. Ossian Davies al gave an eloquent address, in which he earnest

THE SEALED SCROLL.

A WORD FOR THE NEW YEAR.

THE end of the Old Year and the beginning of the New suggest much. We link with the thought of this minor transition that of a greater one—one confessedly not far off—the end of this dispensation of failure, yet lustrous with grace, and the beginning of the new, which, though dark with judgment, is yet radiant with glory. As we thus stand on this meeting-place of time, with the shrouded future stretching away before us, sealed and mysterious, we can but wonder what lies within the veil. How apt we are to fear as we enter into the cloud, forgetting that the cloud has in it our Father's voice and our Lord's presence.

But there is "strong consolation" for us in a majestic scene written by the beloved disciple in the visions of the Revelation. As we read it, in the fifth chapter, let us get beneath the benediction pronounced upon those who "read and hear the words of the prophecy of this book." How blessedly it comes, like a dew from the Lord, upon those simple and lowly souls who, while not failing to seek to discern the mind of the Spirit in the application of these prophecies to the actual events foretold, are not less desirous to learn the use they may put them to for personal, spiritual profit.

John saw One sitting upon the throne. Ah! how well our hearts know Him, and tremble not; though He is thus "very high." In his hand was a book or scroll, "written within and without, sealed with seven seals."

True, this is the scroll of God's decrees and judgments as to the nations. But none the less may the Father's child behold here, by faith, the year—the future—that reaches out before him. His entire life is a prepared scroll. (1) It is written, ordained, fixed, not by merciless fate, but by the hand of omnipotent and unerring love. Every providence is appointed. Every sorrow is decreed. Every joy is ordered. "Good works were afore prepared that we should walk in them" (Eph. ii. 10). Is tribulation to come? It is but for the fixed "ten days." (2) It is written within and without. There is not a blank space. Nothing is left to chance. What joy is here! (3) But though thus written and covered, it is likewise sealed—strongly sealed with seven seals—all the pages of thy entire life, O believer. Impenetrably mysterious until the seals are day by day loosed, as page after page is unrolled. So was even Christ's earthly life. He, too, walked by faith. He waited the intimation of the Father's will for every word and act.

But how often have we, like John, "wept much," that we could not open these seals. But One is found worthy. It is the enthroned Lamb, characterised by complete power (seven horns) and perfect discernment (seven eyes). Let us drink into the joy of heaven, and join in the coming New Year, in its "new song," seeing that "our times are in his hands"; that day by day the tender human eye of Jesus is on us, and his gentle human hand is breaking the seals of God's providential appointments for us. He is worthy. This is his right, us his own. "We shall reign," and every item the scroll contains has reference to the training of God's crown princes. Let us, then, trust Him this coming year, and, because He is thus worthy, view every providence, afflictive or joyous, as equal in God's "good and acceptable and perfect will."

◆

HOW TO DEAL WITH INQUIRERS.

BY DR. L. W. MUNHALL.

THE following hints may be helpful to some in doing personal work:—

(1) Workers should believe that Jesus is able and willing to save now (see Heb. vii. 25; 1 Tim. ii. 3, 4, R.V.; and 2 Cor. vi. 2).

(2) They should be able to make plain what and whom to believe (see Isa. liii. 6; 1 Peter ii. 24; John iii. 6; and John v. 24).

(3) They should be able to make plain how to believe (see John vii. 17, R.V.; 2 Cor. viii. 12; and John i. 12).

(4) They should be careful to make plain the results of believing—(a) Justification (Gal. ii. 16, and Acts xiii. 39); (b) The new birth (1 John v. 1, and John vi. 47).

(5) They should understand that feeling is neither an element nor condition of salvation. Nearly all inquirers have, at some time, heard Christians relate their experiences; and, in some instances, the relators have indulged in not a little poetic license. These experiences are in their minds, and they are not willing to rest their souls unless they can have similar experiences. Show them the unwisdom of such views (2 Cor. x. 12, and 2 Chron. xx. 20). Also their unscripturalness (Rom. xv. 13). Beside, it is quite easy to show the unreasonableness of looking for the result of believing before believing.

(6) They should always remember that each inquirer has one chief difficulty. Ascertain what it is. Then, and not until then, can God's remedy be rightly pointed out and applied.

They should meet all candid objections, but never engage in controversy. The person who has the spirit of controversy is not a sincere inquirer. Nothing is ever gained by controversy. God's Spirit alone can convict, quicken, and enlighten. This He does through the Word of Truth. Man's words are, therefore, vain. God has never promised to use them in the conviction and conversion of anyone. They are only of value as they are helpful in bringing to the mind of the inquirer the things God has spoken.

(8) They should address themselves to the work earnestly, prayerfully, and gladly. Unless we live very close to the Lord, our zeal, if we have any, will be but the energy of the flesh. Living in unhindered fellowship with Him—and it is our exalted privilege—we will realise continually a touch of the Divine passion, and, per consequence, be earnest at all times. Of course we receive guidance and help from God by asking. He can direct us to the right persons. He can give us the right word to speak to them. He can prepare their minds and dispose their hearts to receive the message He gives us for them. Therefore they should "continue instant in prayer." As "God's fellow workers" they have been honored as no other beings in the universe. The highest archangel that serves before the dazzling presence of God, would gladly, no doubt, leave his exalted place of service, and wing his way swiftly to earth, to enter upon the humblest task to which any child not. This most glorious privilege, of leading the erring to Christ and safety, is reserved for those who once were wanderers from God. A right apprehension of their high calling will make them glad gleaners.

(9) They should press the seeker gently, yet earnestly, to immediate decision. It is unscriptural and dangerous to tell one to take time to think it over; to read the Bible; to pray about it; to do certain, or any, good works; to join the Church; or to wait for a different frame of mind, or "a convenient season." Immediate repentance and absolute self-surrender to be made conformable to the revealed will of God, is required of every guilty, lost sinner. A knowledge of these two facts, viz, that one is guilty as a sinner, and lost, is all the conviction necessary to immediate repentance, and the exercise of faith unto salvation. And since God has not promised salvation five minutes hence, and says, "Boast not thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth" (Prov. xxvii. 1), it is, therefore, clearly unwise to hesitate for a moment to accept God's most gracious and glorious gift.

(10) In the matter of approaching the unsaved it is difficult to indicate an exact method that shall prove to be just the right thing. Usually something like this will be found to be most natural, and easiest, in an inquiry meeting:—Q.—Are you a Christian? A.—No! Q.—Have you a desire to become one? A.—No! An other question on the subject would be impertinent; therefore it should not be asked. Something like this might, properly, be said by the worker, as he or she passes on:—Am glad you are here; come again. If the answer should be "Yes!" then the way is open to deal with the case.

(11) It may be that, in answer to the interrogatory, "Are you a Christian?" the person may respond, "I am a backslider." Then ask them if they have ever really believed. If they respond, "No!" treat the case just as though they had never made a profession. If they reply, "Yes!" show them—First, that God is married unto them (see Jer. iii. 14). Second, that God loves them, and stands ready to restore them to his grace and favour (see Hosea xiv. 4). (These things are just as true of the Church as of Israel.) Third, that knowledge of having wandered will produce sorrow that leads to repentance (see 2 Cor. vii. 8—10). And, fourth, if their repentance be genuine, confession of sins will follow, and then belief of forgiveness is most natural and easy (see Prov. xxviii. 13, and 1 John i. 9). The case of the prodigal son (Luke xv. 11—24) is a good illustration of what is required of the backslider.

(12) If the inquirer surrenders wholly to the truth, the importance of immediately confessing Jesus, as Saviour and Lord, with the mouth, should be pointed out (see Rom. x. 9, 10; 1 John iv. 15). Thousands of believers are in darkness and doubt, because they have never confessed with the mouth.

(13) It is usually a wise thing to have a word of prayer with the person before leaving them. This can be done without kneeling, which is not always convenient to do, though, if it is, it is well to kneel.

THE BRITISH SYRIAN MISSION is just now saddened by a prospect of a deficit of £600. Friends of the Mission are invited to unite in prayer that this deficit may be met, and that God may in the new year give great increase of blessing to the work in Syria. The British secretary of the Mission

THE END OF THE YEAR.—2.

By Rev. WILLIAM GUEST.

In the first of these papers for the close of the year, I ventured to say that the charge of defection from what has, since the time of the Reformation, been termed the Protestant Evangelical faith, was not so much to be explained by a positive denial of the truth as by superficial apprehensions of its import and greatness. The subject has excited a wide and eager interest during the latter months of the year, and this second paper will deal with it in relation to Christian people as distinguished from ministers of religion, to whom the first paper more especially referred.

It is not, however, one topic that claims notice, as the year closes, but many. Very conflicting is the aspect of the present times, and very mingled are the emotions awakened by the outlook of the future. Three considerations, among others, press for attention: these are considerations relating to Certitude, to Apprehension, and to Unreadiness. Brief reflections upon these may prepare us for a few New Year's thoughts on the Duties of the times which are before us.

CERTITUDE

should be the strength of faithful men. Never were they more urgently called to be assured of the things which they have learned. Professor Huxley, in an article in The Nineteenth Century Review for this last November, speaks of the Books of the New Testament as of "unknown authorship and of unknown date." The language, if justifiable a quarter of a century ago, is no longer so. Great European critics hold the proofs to be now incontestable that at least three of the Gospels and four of the Epistles of Paul were written during the lifetime of men who were living at the period when Jesus appeared, and were held to be the work of the authors whose names they bear. Christianity had, therefore, been introduced at that period, with all its hopes for the race, and its purposes to open the gates of a new era. This is a stupendous achievement of modern Christian learning. And while sceptics can furnish no other adequate explanation of the sending forth of the Gospels and these Pauline Epistles at that period, and offer no other explanation than ours of the origin of the Christian religion, we maintain that we have an impregnable basis for our faith. It should be added that the evidence for the origin of the other Books of the New Testament follows on the same unanswerable lines.

Not only so: the supposition that a period of rapid degeneration, like that of the second or third century, could have invented the character of Christ is one that violently outrages all historic probabilities. The life of Jesus shows such habitual repression of ordinary human motives; such majesty, and impressiveness, and withal grand simplicity; such richness, and verisimilitude of detail; such serene and yet deep compassion; and such rounded and perfect symmetry, as biography in the purest and most cultured ages has never approached, much less attained. That life, moreover, records such far-reaching doctrine; such masterstrokes of insight and wisdom; such discourses and parables, that the genius of nearly nineteen centuries has not exhausted their meaning, and yet of such clearness that childhood can feel their charm; such lofty principles, that and point to a condition of society towards which our times are striving—such records, in short, as neither a Shakespeare nor a Milton could have imagined, and which no man can attribute to deliberate mendacity, or to factitious myths, or to the creation of a century of effeminacy and literary decay, without bearing witness to that which is utterly culpable in his unbelief.[*]

But our certitude has another ground to rest upon. Here all around us are the two proofs: of men and women, on the one hand, who are rising out of sin and misery through the Gospel of Christ; and of men and women, on the other, who, in the rejection of that Gospel, are sinking into corruption and wretchedness. Magnificent is the age for its progress of scientific research, its mechanical inventions, its splendid educational and literary developments. But these things are not able to heal men, because they do not touch the root of human wickedness; spite of them, there are high circles of English society that are putrid to the core; while discords and strifes, brutalities and remorse, tears and groans, are the woes of all peoples. Let us avow it frankly: the Socialistic agitation that would regulate labour without first subduing human selfishness; the Communistic schemes that would level society without supplying a motive for human brotherhood; the half truths that give Gospel invitations without Gospel warnings, that teach Christian duties without inspiring Christian love, and inculcate homage for Christianity without teaching the Christian doctrine of the creation of a new heart, and the renewal of a right spirit — these have always failed, will, must fail, because Christianity refuses to save man if it is not accepted in its completeness. There is anger just now because this complete Faith is contended for. Nor ought we to wish to control thought. We ought, however, to have convictions and to maintain that the religion of the New Testament is the supreme blessing of humanity; that it is impotent when impaired; that it ceases to be logical when modified; that it loses its power when it is divested of the sting that offends human pride; that it can only become divinely reasonable to a man who submits his will to it; and that to lower its spiritual demands is to leave a Christianity in name, but altogether changed and strengthless as a power unto human salvation.

We are thus led to a second reflection—one of APPREHENSION.

Strange that men should write and speak so strongly against warnings in reference to tampering with revealed truth, when they are foremost to admit that certain present huge corruptions of Christianity had their origin in small beginnings. Let us go back for a moment. The great principle that the Bible is the religion of Protestants, would have asserted itself triumphantly, had not the Reformation passed under the control of politicians. The object of the latitudinarian statesmen of Elizabeth was so to frame the constitution of the Church of England as that it might be a compromise between the old religion and the new, and susceptible of a Catholic or Protestant interpretation. In the reign of Charles I., the Laudian changes in the formulas and services made them increasingly sacerdotal. In despite of all this, the old English antipathy to Rome was prevailingly strong. Alas! about half a century ago the enemy sowed tares in this, goodly field. Alarm and abhorrence seized the country at the appearance of the "Tracts for the Times," and at their deliberate design to Romanise the Church. Recalling, as I am able, the indignant consternation of those days with the widespread acquiescence in the priestly Roman, assumptions of these, I cannot but feel that a grave and menacing apostasy from the truths which martyrs and confessors bequeathed to us has passed over this land.

Doubtless there is still a strong and vigorous party of Evangelicals among Conformists; and sure I am that there are in Nonconformist congregations not a few who are faithful to the grand Puritan traditions which their fathers delivered to them. A general defection among Dissenters from evangelical doctrine cannot truly be affirmed. Nevertheless, the false spirit of the age has fostered a latitude in relation to revealed truth which is next to disloyalty. The Scriptures have too much come to be regarded, not as an unchangeable revelation, but as a sort of mechanical discovery, which is to be adjusted to the fashion of the age. Theology, it is contended, must be made to look reasonable to men, which in effect means to men of all kinds of propensities and habits. There is boundless sympathy for the sinner, but no adequate teaching of the exceeding guilt of sin, and its unutterable wrong to the universe of God. Men do not hear, as the Scripture teaches, that there is forgiveness with God that He may be feared, but gather now that there is forgiveness with God that they may presume. The tremendous urgencies of the "accepted time" and the "day of salvation" are ruinously weakened by a delusive idea of a post-mortality salvation. And latitude of doctrine brings a license of living. My deep conviction is that the strenuous demand of by-gone days that truth and justice between man and man should at all costs be maintained, has suffered a grievous decline. A Christianity without godly self-denial has not only come in, but is defended. Notions have been adopted which would speak opprobriously of Paul, with his keeping down of his body, as an ascetic; Peter, with his second Epistle, as a pessimist; and John, with his lofty unworldliness, as a mystic.

UNREADINESS

must be the consequence of these tendencies. What can we learn from the close of our Lord's great discourse in Matt. xxiv. but that in the days before the end there would be deceivers, self-considerateness, and self-indulgence? What is the lesson of that weighty parable at the opening of the following chapter, but that a certain unreadiness would then be the danger of all the professing Church? Nor this only: He forewarns us that there will be half even of those who bear the name of his friends who, without the kindled lamp, will be covered with consternation and pale-facedness when the midnight cry is heard, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh."

Consider the present delusive temptation. "Higher thought" is often a revolt against the sublime spirituality of the New Testament. "Advanced thought," to many who adopt the misleading phrase, clearly means an advance to the level of the world. And here let me say, after a ministry in large while I have seen that the promises of Scripture have been richly fulfilled in the experience of the humble and contrite, I have in many cases seen a virtual rejection of the authority of Inspiration followed by growing dislike to the restraints of Christianity; by a deeper repugnance towards evangelical doctrine; by a more manifest casting aside of devotional customs; by a closing of the ears and eyes to Bible teachings; and by a downward course, until scarcely one principle of the Christian religion has been held. Memories arise before me as I write of men whose unbelief became their very personality; whose early profession of Christ was as a morning without clouds, but who drank in a "New Theology," which was to them a Loose Theology, and whereby they were lost to the cause of Christ. Ah, I have stood by the death-beds of some of these; have seen how the Saviour was remote and strange, and I have gone away from the painful uncertainties and hopelessness reminding myself of the Divine words, "To this man will I look, even to him that is of a poor and contrite spirit and that trembleth at my word." Surely it is in days when men pervert and deny the revelations of the Spirit that they come near to that of which the Saviour warned us — an "eternal sin."

---

[*] For the line of thought in this paragraph I am indebted to the recently published "Gospel of St. Mark," by Prebendary Chadwick (Hodder & Stoughton). A book invaluable for its reverent

In a paper for the New Year I shall have to speak of a growing number who in these days are giving themselves up more devotedly to the service of God. Meanwhile dark clouds are gathering. The end must be drawing near. Humanity is crying out that the evils which press on the world are becoming intolerable. Foreboding signs of a change are around us. Self-scrutiny, prayer, and submitting our lives to the teaching of Scripture, should be our posture of soul as the year closes. False teaching would make smooth the path, the end of which is destruction. A thousand voices claim our attention. There is one voice which it is life eternal to listen to. Let us, alone with God, look up and say, "Speak; for thy servant heareth."

◆

SPEZIA ORPHANAGE.

ON December 9 the doors of this institution were opened to receive eleven girls. They have come from a variety of districts, and are all bright and intelligent children. Those who have visited the Orphanage have expressed their great gratitude to God, who has raised up so many friends of Italian youth.

The expenses connected with an adequate sustaining of the Orphanage will necessarily augment the monetary responsibility of the Spezia Mission. We have recently received a noble contribution from a lady of £300 to the Mission. £5000 per annum would be needed to meet the necessities of the general Mission as it now exists, and help it to enter on some of the inviting fields of labour. EDWARD CLARKE.

Casa Alberto, La Spezia, Italy.

DR. SOMERVILLE IN AUSTRIA.—DEAR SIR,—Rev. A. N. Somerville, D.D., arrived in this town last Saturday night. Though very tired after his very trying work during the last three months in Bohemia, Moravia, Vienna, and Budapest, he spoke to a gathering of about 100 Christians in my dwelling on Sunday evening, on 1 Pet. i. 8, impressively dwelling upon Christ's love to us, and on his atoning blood. I had the pleasure of interpreting, and can testify that his discourse was blessed to many souls. We trust to have him here a little longer for the spiritual good of this town of 120,000 inhabitants.

Yours in Jesus, P. W. REINMUTH.

LITTLE BY LITTLE.

CARDINAL WISEMAN understood well the significance and power of the Romanising section of the Church of England, when, in a letter to the Earl of Shrewsbury, he used the following language:—

> We may depend upon a willing, an able, and most zealous co-operation, with any effort we may make towards bringing her (i.e., the Anglican Church) into the rightful position with the Holy See, and the churches of its obedience. It seems to me impossible to read the works of the Oxford Divines, and especially to follow them chronologically, without discovering a daily approach towards our Holy Church, both in doctrine and affectionate feeling. Our saints and popes have become dear to them, by little and little, our rites and ceremonies, our offices — nay, our very rubrics, are precious in their eyes, far, alas! beyond what many of us consider them.

Since this was written it has been made still more abundantly evident that the Church of Rome in her great aim of restoring her own supremacy in England, has found "a willing, an able, and most zealous co-operation" in a large and increasing portion of the Church of England. Some members of the Church of England cannot see what Cardinal Wiseman so clearly saw, that Tractarianism, Puseyism, Ritualism, are so many stages in the return pilgrimage to Rome. The process is indicated by the words "little by little." Our saints and popes, our rites and ceremonies, our offices, our rubrics, our conventual orders, our priesthood, our discipline, our attitude towards the Bible, our prayers for the dead, our exaltation of Mary, our elevation of the host, our purgatory, our articles of faith, little by little, little by little, have been accepted, till the Anglican Church is gradually assuming the form and lineaments of the Church of Rome.

And what is the principle involved in this process of "little by little"? It is something very different from the principle which our Lord recognised in Nathanael, when He said, "Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no guile." The principle is just this: Carefully disguise your ultimate aim; take good care that it be not even suspected; preach occasionally an evangelical sermon; denounce the monstrous pretensions of the Church of Rome, rarely and only up to a certain stage of the process; take from your system some little thing not very unlike something already in the Anglican Church, and offer it as a good thing, a little thing, which we may safely borrow from that corrupt Church of Rome. Wait till the people have got used to that and then bring forward the next little peculiarity of Rome, practising the same deception as to your final aim.

From beginning to end this process is characterised by duplicity and falsity. Protestants are accustomed to characterise by such terms a process that disguises ninety-nine particulars and exhibits one, and they therefore conclude that the Ritualists, being religious men, are quite incapable of following it, and thus they fall an easier prey to the system. Some time ago we extracted a piece of instruction given by Dr. Pusey through one of the Church papers, in which he made bold to show his cards, to lay bare the entire process of recreating the Church of England in the image of Rome, pointing out in so many words that the only method that would avail them was the "little by little" method. The Romanising influence has now been carried very far. The Rome-likeness in the daughter begins to be conspicuous.

On the bridge of the good steamer Tasmania, that night of the disastrous wreck, was her brave commander giving the right course, N. by W. 67°. He had taken account of eddies and currents. The second officer, leaving perhaps the currents out of consideration, came and directed the helmsman to make it N. by W. 57°, but to bring the ship round so gently that the captain would not notice it. Hence the destruction of this gallant ship. An insensible variation in her course did it all. Here, too, the process was one of deception.

We see how awfully religion is imperilled when once the church takes the place of Christ. Devotion to the Church of Rome condones all deception and perfidy. The tempter, whom Christ suffered not to interfere with his own life plan, has found the means of gaining the confidence of a lapsed Church, and is accepted as Counsellor and Tactician.

We have, then, in the war waged against the Protestantism of England in the last half of the nineteenth century, two great and formidable opponents, the Church of Rome and the Church of the Romanisers. Is there a third antagonist? There is. It is the World.

So many specious representations have been made of the æsthetic beauty of the Church of Rome, of her romantic associations, her patronage of the arts, of her toleration of worldliness, &c., &c., that the world has greatly altered its tone with reference to that Church. Her religion is after all a good deal more convenient than that of the Calvinists. And it is thought to be a sign of charity to desist from dwelling on her faults, and recognise her varied excellencies. The Church of Rome has her religious vows, involving self-mortification, but by the felicitous system of proxy, these laws are imposed on a few and the majority are allowed to go in for the enjoyments of the world to their hearts' content. Then we find that public sentiment, as it obtains expression in the public prints, lends itself to the promotion of the ends of Rome by putting a stigma on all endeavours to exhibit her in the light of God's Word.

Thus we have three great powers battling to obliterate the Reformation, not only in England, but in all countries where England is represented—"Going forth to the kings of the earth," to arm them for the encounter, the great battle of the Lord God Almighty.

The leaders of Anglican Ritualism begin now to come in sight of the mountain-top towards which they have been tending for half a century, if indeed they have not reached a position where they are so far in the ascendancy as to secure for themselves all the leading appointments in the Church.

BIBLE AND COLPORTAGE SOCIETY OF IRELAND.—This Society continues to carry on its work with great earnestness and success. The agents are found all over the country, and are welcome visitors to most houses. Ireland is still largely without book-shops, and depends on the colporteur for a supply of pure literature. In a broad, catholic spirit, supported by members of all the churches, the Society carries on its work; and not only are books being sold, but the agents of the Society record many cases of great spiritual change in the heart and life. Like all societies working in Ireland at present, there is great need of funds, and much fear that unless liberal aid be given the number of corporteurs must be lessened. It would be desirable to add greatly to the num

---

* This timely article is extracted from The Bombay Guardian, and is inserted at the request of

The DOCTRINE of the HOLY SPIRIT:

ITS IMPORTANCE AND RECENT DEVELOPMENTS.

By Rev. CHARLES MOINET.

The Church is the creation of the Holy Ghost. Its continuance, growth, and perfection are dependent upon Him. Born and baptized at the day of Pentecost by his descent from heaven, it has drawn its life and inspiration ever since from the same high source. To be distinguished in this respect from all other societies originated and maintained simply by the voluntary association of their members, its development is different also, proceeding in accordance with different laws, and directed towards a different end. We may say, therefore, no Holy Ghost no Church of Christ, and conversely no Church of Christ no Holy Ghost.

It being so, then, that the Holy Ghost inhabits and inspires the Church, the importance of correct views as to his Person and work becomes immediately obvious. It may be said that life may exist without any clear knowledge of its source or the laws that govern its action; and this is partly true in the spiritual as well as in the physical domain. But as spiritual life involves the deliberate choice of the will, and consists in fellowship with the Father and the Son, it will ever be proportioned to the depth and fulness of our knowledge and consciousness of God. And this consciousness we know to be a gift, a new creation, the work of the Spirit of God. When it becomes feeble, when it degenerates into sentiment, or the enthusiasm of humanity, or morality touched with emotion, its source becomes less clear, and the necessity for referring it to a Divine person correspondingly less apparent. To call in the Holy Spirit to account for it is felt to be a somewhat extravagant and presumptuous procedure. He drops out of the creed of the Church as He has practically dropped out of its life. And when He is spoken of at all it is simply as a synonym for the Divine influence, though, as a rule, He is quietly ignored and set aside.

Now, if it is true that a feeble spiritual life impoverishes the doctrine of the Holy Ghost, it is also true that it impairs the integrity of other doctrines also, and disturbs the relation of the Church to them. For life and doctrine are so closely united that any injury done to the one is sure to affect the other. Take, for example, the Person of Christ. Dorner has well said, "that the revelation or dominion of the Holy Spirit and the glorifying of Christ in the world are inseparably one." The Spirit takes of the things that are Christ's and shows them unto us. He makes the objective revelation which we have in the Son of God the subjective possession of the individual soul. He is the bond of connection between the believer and his Lord. But, if this bond is seriously relaxed, or severed, what is the result? Christ becomes a historical person and nothing more. He ceases to be the source of life and inspiration to the world, the Redeemer from sin and eternal death. I do not undervalue the influence of the historical Christ, or the elevating impulse which the study of his life and teaching has communicated to men, but Christ without the Holy Spirit acts upon humanity merely from without. He may gild it with something of celestial light and warmth, but He does not become the light of life, nor draw men into living fellowship with God. Again, if, apart from same time inevitably robbed of its supreme prerogatives. He ceases to be the Son of God in the full and Nicene sense of the term. For a conviction of this truth is not arrived at solely through the teaching of Scripture, though that is quite explicit on the point. But we are led to accept one out of many interpretations of that teaching as being undoubtedly true, and to condemn all others as fundamentally false, in obedience to the spiritual instincts of our own nature, or, to put it in other words, in virtue of our own experience informed and educated by the Holy Ghost. This experience consists in the conviction of sin and of our own absolute impotence either to atone for its guilt or to remove its impure and paralysing results. Hence awakens the need of forgiveness and cleansing, or, to combine these in one word, of redemption. And we know from what we have learned of the nature of our sin that this redemption must come from a Divine Person, that we require an atonement which no other can provide, a power equally Divine to make clean our hearts within us, and a Divine strength to deliver us from the dominion of evil, and quicken us into newness of life. In other words a Divine Saviour and sacrifice is the necessary complement of the Christian doctrine of sin, the answer which an awakened conscience demands in order to be at peace with God. But whence does that awakening come, if not from the Holy Ghost. "He, when He is come, shall convince the world of sin." And, "no one," says the Apostle, "can call Jesus Lord but by the Holy Ghost."

On the other hand, if you eliminate this unique conviction of sin, what are the conclusions which invariably follow? An atonement becomes unnecessary, for there is nothing in sin which may not be dealt with in some other way. A Divine Saviour is equally superfluous for there is nothing in us or about us from which we need to be saved that makes so tremendous a demand as that which is involved in the Godhead of Jesus. To allow that doctrine, to be true, is to acknowledge the existence of what is altogether out of proportion to the requirements of the case. It will soon be felt to be an awkward and excessive article of faith that embarrasses and upsets the system in which it finds a place, and through sheer stress of logic it will be driven out or reduced to an appropriate and symmetrical shape. The result will be an Arian or Socinian Christ, but not the Christ of the evangelists, the everlasting Son of the Father, very God of very God.

I have tried to indicate as briefly as possible how much depends on holding fast the teaching of Scripture on the subject of the Holy Spirit, and how closely this is connected with the life of God in the soul. It is, indeed, the most sensitive of all doctrines, that to which they all converge and in which they culminate. Here they receive their final interpretation and find their point of contact with the heart of man. If we lay wanton hands upon it, or touch it with the cold fingers of unbelief, the chill will enter into the whole body of truth and paralyse its power.

There are two dangers by which it seems to me at present to be threatened, and which call for vigilant and vigorous protest. They spring from entirely opposite points of the compass, but they unite in their ultimate effects.

(1) The first is due to an unscriptural theory of the Church and sacraments. Whenever the ministry is exalted into a of the sacraments. A priest must have something to do which is ultra vires of the laity, and he naturally finds this in the administration of the sacraments. It is when so doing he acts as a priest most conspicuously, and hence the temptation to frequent celebrations and to exaggerate the benefits which they confer. They are the links by which the disjecta membra of the body of Christ are gathered into one, the great, if not the only, means by which regeneration and spiritual nourishment are conveyed to the faithful. And as the Church, or the priest acting by the sacraments, usurps the place of Christ, so the sacraments themselves usurp the place of the Holy Spirit. Theoretically, room may still be reserved for Him; but, practically, He is quite superseded.

It is impossible to doubt that, in consequence of this, the Church suffers a serious and irreparable loss. And we must not lose sight of it when we see the apparent zeal and devotion which High Churchism develops. Much of it, in so far as it is spiritual, and genuine, is merely mysticism, but the most of it is of a much more questionable character. It may be Churchiness, but it does not follow that it is Christianity or Christlikeness.

(2) The other danger is due to the tendency, so powerful in our time, to reduce Christianity to a means of culture, and to minimise the supernatural as far as possible. The intention in many cases has been to claim for Christianity a wider area of influence, an affinity with every kind of excellence and every form of beauty. And this was in part a reaction from that narrow Evangelicalism, which, in its eagerness to maintain the distinction between nature and grace, decried and disparaged the one to exalt the other. But, however excellent the intention, the result has been to rarefy the work of the Spirit till it has lost its distinctive character and power. And this in a variety of ways. Inspiration has been diluted, and its uniqueness denied. The writers of Scripture shared the illumination common to all Christians, and were subject to the same liabilities to error. Or, still worse, they shared the genius which has been the possession or gift of all the great thinkers and poets of the world, only in their case the genius was religious, in accordance with their Semitic antecedents.

And as the doctrine of the Spirit in the Word has been thus impaired, so also has his presence and work in the individual heart. Man, it is argued, has natural affinities with God, and carries within him sparks of the divine—the light that "lighteth every man that cometh into the world." Regeneration is represented as just the awaking of this light, the recognition of truths and relations already existing, but which we habitually ignore until they are pressed upon our attention. God is the Father of all men, and we become his children when we acknowledge the relationship, and endeavour to act accordingly. It is difficult to see how such a theory satisfies the words, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot see the kingdom of God," or, "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature."

Of both these dangers we must beware. We cannot deny that they have weakened and benumbed the life of the Church, and are in sympathy with fashionable and prevalent currents of thought. I shall not say much as to recent developments of the that for two reasons. First, because the Sacramentarianism of the Lutheran Church has unfortunately obscured and displaced it; secondly, because it is the historical character of Christianity that has mainly engaged attention there. The Tubingen controversy has raised issues which require to be combated on historical ground, and, until the dust of the dispute has been well laid, other departments of theology will suffer somewhat by neglect.

In our own country the last decade or two have not much to show on the subject, though we have a rich literature, mainly the product of Nonconformity, lying further back. Anglican theology has been occupied with other and more congenial themes in keeping with its peculiar character, and religious thought elsewhere has felt the forces dominant in Germany, and followed in her wake. But there are signs of better things to come. Biblical criticism has shown us that there are fresh veins of truth waiting to be worked. We have still to exhibit the particular aspect which the doctrine presents in the Synoptists, in St. Luke's history of the Acts, in St. Paul and in St. John, by all of whom it receives certain characteristic developments. And there is a fact in the life of the Church which is certain to lead to a revived interest in this subject, and that is the extraordinary increase in missionary activity and enterprise. This is distinctly due to a quickening of evangelical life and will always carry with it a due recognition of the work and Person of the Holy Ghost.

To pass to phenomena which have appeared within the Church, and have claimed to owe their origin to the Holy Spirit—these do not demand more than a word or two. Some by their extravagances have been their own refutation, and others have been gradually brought under control.

In conclusion, may I remind you of certain words of our Lord, three sayings of his of special interest in this connection:—"These," He says, speaking of the Scriptures, "are they which bear witness of Me." "He," speaking of the Spirit of Truth, "He shall bear witness of Me." And, lastly, "Ye also," referring to the disciples, "shall bear witness, because ye have been with Me since the beginning." This triple testimony reaches its climax in the witness of the living Church to Christ. Thus it becomes visible and audible far and near, resonant in word and work, a vivâ voce testimony which he that hath ears to hear may hear. And to this it must be continually inspired by the Holy Ghost. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto Me." Have we received this power? Have our congregations done so? Let us observe the order. First, the Holy Ghost, and then, and then only, the power. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." And if the Church is to fulfil her great function, it will only be by the means of which our Lord has here spoken. The world will not be slow to recognise Him when the Church, while pointing to Him with one hand, shall cease to throw a veil over Him and darken his features with the other; when her testimony is so clear, explicit, and full, no discordant note or tremor of doubtfulness shall be detected in her voice.

REV. HENRY BARTRAM, vicar of St. George's, Ramsgate, says The Rock, has obtained a license to perform stage-plays at a theatre which has been transformed into a parish hall. A professional license was granted for three months, and the vicar

MISSION WORK IN JAPAN

AMONG the most zealous of Christian workers in Japan are the Methodists, whose missionaries were somewhat late in the field. The Episcopalians and Presbyterians had organised missions there thirteen years before four representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church of America were chosen in 1872 to introduce Methodist missions into Japan. They commenced their work in the autumn of 1873 in four places—Yokohama, Tôkyô, Hakodate, and Nagasaki. Now the mission staff numbers thirty, with other stations in the interior; and twenty native churches have been organised with 2500 members. The Mission maintains well-organised colleges at Aoyáma and Nagasaki, and excellent schools for girls in Tsukiji, Hakodate, and Nagasaki.

There is a kindred mission from Canada, which commenced its work about the same time, and possesses a staff of fourteen missionaries, with ten native churches having a membership of about eight hundred, and carries on most successful schools for boys and girls in the capital.

The Mission of the Evangelical Association of North America works in the capital with seven missionaries; the Methodist Protestant Mission has three representatives in Yokohama; and the American Methodists of the South have quite recently commenced to work at Kobe with three missionaries. All these missions are working successfully, yet there is room in Japan for many more Christian missionaries.

Striking proof of the correctness of this statement appears in an unexpected quarter. The Japan Weekly Mail, of October 22, which is the principal English newspaper published in Japan, contains a long and elaborate article upon the resignation of the Japanese foreign minister, and its probable effects on the future political history of that interesting country. Incidentally the writer, who demonstrates the importance of his opinions by the extent of his intimate knowledge of Japanese affairs, points out the present transition condition of Japanese methods of thought and life. The lately prevailing civilisation which Japan derived from China and India, and modified and elaborated to suit herself, is retreating before, and giving place to, the new civilisation which she is adopting from the Western world. The effect is to destroy the old moral code by exposing the errors of Confucianism, and, until Confucianism is replaced by Christianity, to weaken all the bonds of society, and endanger the political system of government.

Japan is littered with the débris of systems which the science of the West has destroyed, and the thoughtful Japanese, who have hailed with pleasure the progress of the destructive influences of Western civilisation, are now invoking its constructive power so that for the ruins of their ancient ethical cult they may obtain the efficient moral code and the religious comfort and safety of Christianity.

> It is here that the way is widely opened to Christianity. Japan must have some substitute for the wonderful chain of family ethics that through long centuries has bound China's hundreds of millions into a homogeneous nation. The creed of Christendom offers her such a substitute and she will accept it, at first from necessity, and ultimately from conviction.

These are the words of a politician writing, not upon Christianity, nor with any particular favour for it, but for the purpose of coldly dissecting the political condition fore, all the greater. They should give an impulse to missionary labour in Japan, because they express the opinion of the governing class in that country, an opinion which induces the Government to regard with favour the appearance and labours of missionaries. As Dr. C. S. Eby said in a lecture on this subject: "Christianity is, or should be, like the sunshine and the rain which pour down upon every spot of earth prepared for their influence, producing flowers and fruitful harvests," and we know of no spot of earth so well prepared for the influences of Christianity as Japan.

◆

"GIVE YE THEM TO EAT."

MATTHEW xiv. 16.

So hungry, faint, and weary, they are travelling on their way,
Such multitudes of people, who are starving day by day;
Yes! starving, truly perishing, for want of Living Bread,
The Bread which came from Heaven—sent that they might all be fed.
Methinks I hear the Master say in accents low and sweet:—
"If truly ye are my disciples, then give ye them to eat!"

"Ah, Lord, I am so frail, can I do aught indeed
To help to give these multitudes the Heavenly Food they need,
My time, and strength, and talents, yes, all, all I'd gladly give,
If only some poor hungry souls might hear of Thee and live;
To win some souls for Thee, my Lord, I fain would always seek,
But, Lord, 'I am not eloquent,' and I am poor and weak."

Is this what some are thinking, as they hear their Lord's command
To help to feed the fainting ones, in every clime and land?
Then pause and think a moment, of the story of that lad
Who gave those loaves and fishes, which was all our Saviour had Wherewith to feed the multitude so sadly needing bread;
He made it all-sufficient, so the multitudes were fed.

Oh! would that all who know the Lord would do their best to bring Poor weary, starving people to the knowledge of the King;
Then soon the glorious Gospel sound would fall on every ear,
And we have done our duty then, if e'en they will not hear.
If they refuse the Bread of Life, we shall have done our part
In telling of the love of Christ to each poor restless heart.

Oh! bring your all to Jesus, friend, and be content to rest
In his dear hand an instrument, He'll use you for the best.
However poor, and weak and small, you have your part to do,
And certainly and surely is there work, much work, for you.
"On them I have compassion," says the Lord in accents sweet.
If truly ye are my disciples, give YE them to eat."

A. M. L.

[To be obtained of Mr. Townsend, Printer, Exeter; or Miss Leakey, Exeter; in aid of the Church Missionary Society. 4s. per 100, 8d. a dozen, or 1d. each.]

CHELTENHAM.—A fortnight's mission to the "People" has been conducted here by the Yorkshire Bible-carriage missioner, Mr. John McAuliffe. The Gospel has been preached to the poor, many of whom, it is believed, have found peace in believing. The early morning prayer-meetings, afternoon Bible-readings, and out-door witness for Christ, have been also greatly blessed to the members of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. One desire seems to pervade the whole—namely, for

THE SHEPHERD'S VOICE.

By Mrs. ANNA SHIPTON.*

On one occasion, I was invited by a lady to break a long and fatiguing journey by resting at her house. I gladly availed myself of the invitation. The second day after my arrival, my hostess enlarged on the doctrine of sinless perfection, which engrossed her mind; nor would she allow that we were encompassed with infirmities, or that the roots of sin were still in the heart. I naturally inquired if she had herself attained this state of perfection; to which she replied that she had. It was evident she had not a clear idea of consecration, whatever the doctrine might be. I suggested as much to her.

My candour excited her displeasure, which was shown in coolness of manner unlike her cordial reception. She surprised me the following evening by saying, with some confusion, that she was expecting visitor, and that the room I occupied, being the largest, was the most suitable for their accommodation.

Soon after I had retired for the night, my hostess came to my room, and suggested that it would be more convenient to her servants if I could leave the next day, as they could then prepare the room for her expected guests. With the morning came a clearer sense of the Lord's presence and guidance, even to his appointing me distinctly the hour of the train by which I should leave; so that when the lady entered my room with the railway guide, to point out the departure of 10.10 a.m as the most suitable, I had firmly to protest that I could only leave at 2.30 p.m.......

By two o'clock I was at the station, in a crowd such as I had experienced but once before. Not a seat was vacant; and the holiday-makers seemed to emulate each other in their wild mirth and recklessness. The keen wind swept along the platform; I was weary with packing, and the internal conflict through which I had passed—this I should have escaped, if I had trusted the love of God that was thrusting me forth to fulfil his will, and the desire of my own heart for his service. How little do we honour Him who has undertaken our cause, when we doubt his immediate care, and so throw suspicion on his love!

The train was long overdue; and in my weariness I sat down on a bale of wool, and prayed that the Lord, who knew my weakness and need, would show me why I was sent forth among the disorderly crowd around me, unable to speak to anyone, and vainly trying to understand why I was there, or what was to come next—neither of which was necessary.

As I was praying, the train, crowded to its utmost, came steaming in: there was a rush to the carriages; not a vacant place could I find. When all the passengers were seated, the station-master inquired if I were not going on. I replied, "There is no room;" and a dark shadow of distrust fell over my spirit.

There was confusion; another carriage was rapidly put on; and, scarcely knowing how, I was hurried in; and the long, over-crowded train was in motion before I saw that the car was shared by one other occupant only. I lifted up my heart to my very present God, and was still.

My companion was a young man, of perhaps five-and-twenty, with an evident exclusiveness that was a barrier to accosting him; but some little courtesy shown by him in the care of my luggage opened the way, and soon I found my interest awaken, and I drew near the question which hovered on my lips.

The Lord saw my need, and had compassion on his stupid shrinking servant. So clearly came the invitation to the love of God to the stranger, that I felt the power of the presence of Him who had taken me from under the shadow of the gourd, and had sent me with this message whither He would.

I spoke. The young man listened, drew himself up haughtily, and replied, "My family do not approve of such questions."

Smiling consciously at his idea of escape, I said, "I am not speaking to your family, but to you."

He rejoined coldly, "Then I do not approve of such questions."

There was a pause.

I said—though gently, I thought (perhaps it sounded somewhat sternly, for he turned quickly at last and looked at me), "When you meet me before the Lord, in that day when the secrets of men are judged, how will you answer when the Lord tells you that He sent me with an invitation to you to come to Him, and that your reply was that you did not 'approve' of his message?"

He looked astonished and uncomfortable, but maintained a cold, though less haughty silence, while he gazed intently through the carriage window. I sat still, and prayed.

The mighty Arm of Jehovah had forced me into this place of testimony. Did He ever yet leave us to fight our battles alone when we asked Him to be our leader and defence? Never!

I waited before Him; content to be despised by man, but not content that my companion should go scathless, and God's message be scorned.

Neither of us spoke. Yet in that silence I was listening for the Voice that said, "Let there be light: and there was light." He was the same Lord who called the widow's son to life; who commanded Lazarus to come forth from the sepulchre; who took the little maiden by the hand, bidding her arise.

In that stillness, He for whom I waited spake: "Give him a tract."

Instantly I reached forward for my travelling bag, which had been placed in the net above his head, and, in the effort, it slipped from my hand, and the contents lay scattered around. This broke the painful constraint; my fellow-traveller forgot his dignity, smiled, and at length fairly laughed, in his unsuccessful chase after reels of cotton, pencils, and pens, and fluttering papers.

In the confusion, I sought vainly for a tract. Not a tract, nor a text, was there; and I sat almost stupefied, by what I feared must have been a mistake or a delusion.

Suddenly I remembered that my travelling dress had been worn once since my return to England. I searched its many pockets in feverish haste; and in the depths of one I found a tract I had replaced there long ago, as unsuitable for the person for whom I had intended it. There it was!—a tract, my only one, its title, "That Man Saved My Life."

I handed it to my companion, and asked his acceptance of it. He hesitated at first, and then reluctantly held out his hand for it.

I watched him as his eye glanced from the cover to the open page. The colour left his face; that face was softened by silence he said, in a subdued and broken voice, and with a startled look—

"Did you know, then, that I had just been saved from drowning?"

Ah, then I saw that this also was from the hand of God.

The barrier was broken; and I spoke of Him who was nearer and dearer to me than ever. He listened, like a child to a new story; like an exile in a far-off land to a letter from home; like the son upon the Father's neck, as he hears his welcome, "This my son was lost, and is found!"

His heart had been impressed at the time of his miraculous escape from shipwreck; but the impression had passed away with his deliverance. The Holy Spirit now showed him that the secrets of all hearts are open to Him, and that the heavenly Father yearned after his wandering child. It would be difficult to reproduce that testimony of the power and goodness of God in those hours; but he acknowledged that God has his messengers everywhere, and his power none can withstand. I doubt if in all that long line of carriages there were two more rejoicing, praiseful hearts, than this last carriage contained.

At the station before reaching London, my fellow-traveller prepared to alight.

I bade him "farewell."

"No," he replied, "I will not say 'Farewell,' but 'Good-day.' I must see you again."

"It is farewell," I said "We shall never meet again on earth. All I ask is that you will not forget the message that I was commissioned to carry to you; and do not part with the tract."

With tearful eyes and tremulous voice he answered—

"Never!"

The train swept by, leaving him to return to his home with new life and light in his heart, and carrying me a stage nearer to my journey alone to Italy. "He led them forth by the right way." "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men" (Psalm cvii. 7, 31).

MR. D. L. MOODY.

Mr. Moody concluded his labours in Pittsburgh on Sunday, December 11, and returned for a little space to his home in Northfield. From two to four meetings were held each day for three weeks, with a usual attendance at the Rink of between three and four thousand people. Many have been turned away at times, unable to find even standing room. The interest in the meetings has been so general that the daily papers have given reports, and in some instances published Mr. Moody's sermons in full. Thus the community has been thoroughly aroused to the things of religion. The Banner of last week says: "It is too soon to say much as to the permanent results of his labours, but there is every indication that nearly all the churches in this city and in the surrounding region have received or will receive a new impulse to activity, and that many men and women have already begun to lead a new life."

Mr. Moody is looked for in Louisville at the beginning of the new year. A tabernacle is being erected for the anticipated meetings, to seat 5000 people. Mr. Moody expects to spend the early Spring months on the Pacific Coast.—New York Evangelist.

DULVERTON, SOMERSET.—The Lord has greatly blessed the services conducted by Mr. John Elliott, of the Evangelisation Society, in the Congregational Chapel. Though the nights have been very dark, people have walked several miles with their lanterns in their hands. Some known as habitual drunkards have attended. On the second Sunday there was a complete breaking down, and several under deep conviction of sin went into the

THE VALUE OF MISSIONARY WORK.

Professor Max Müller, at a Missionary Conference held at Oxford on November 28, said: "It would be a very sad thing if, as according to Canon Taylor, religion is to depend upon majorities. Is the Christian missionary to count his converts? Is he to say, 'If I gain ten, then I am right; but if someone else gains twelve, then I am wrong?' A man who only thinks of the spirit of truth and not of the opinion of others is the man wanted to uphold the Gospel of Christ. Do not let us count heads, but simply go on preaching what everyone of us knows to be true."

The fallaciousness of estimating missionary success by "counting heads" is demonstrable by a brief comparison of missionary methods in China. There are three great classes of missionaries at present labouring in that Empire. They are the representatives of the various Protestant denominations, of the Roman Catholic religious orders, and of the Greek Church. We omit altogether the Mohammedan missionaries, because, if there are any in China, of which we are not sure, they are confined to obscure parts of south-west China, and nothing is known of them beyond those parts.

We may briefly dismiss the Greek missions from our comparative consideration by saying that, since the sending of an embassy of the Czar of Russia to China, nearly two hundred years ago, they have laboured in North China, and chiefly in Pekin, where they have been always closely connected with the Russian Embassy, whose official support and protection they have had. Their methods are silent and unobtrusive, and, as there are no public documents giving any account of their work, they attract little attention in the East. But the splendour of their ritual, their processions, and all the gaudy accessories of their ceremonies appeal powerfully to the imagination of the people in the East; and, as they have abundant means, which they distribute amongst the poorer members of their flocks, it is probable that if heads were counted their numbers would be found to be very considerable. All that can be said with positiveness is that, both in China and in Japan, the Archimandrite enjoys a degree of dignity and consideration, such as is not enjoyed by the heads of other churches.

Leaving the Greek Church out of the comparison, we confine it to the methods of propagation adopted by missionaries of the Roman Catholic Church, and Protestant missionaries.

The first point to be observed is that, while Protestant missionaries are comparatively new arrivals in the country, Roman Catholic missionaries have been there for centuries. Their missions to the various countries in the East extend back in an unbroken line at least as far as Francis Xavier. During all these centuries their missionaries have worked in China and Japan with brief intermissions. These intermissions, such as they were, were caused by the failings which still distinguish their missionaries, namely, their interference in native politics, their assumption of political importance, and their attempts, by means of their converts, to become a political power in the State. It is a historical fact that the refusal during many years by Japan to permit any outsider to reside in her borders was wholly due to the attempts of Roman Catholic missionaries to obtain political power there. Neither in China nor in Japan has there ever been a hatred or distrust of the people of another race as such; but the early Roman Catholic missionaries, which were sent to Japan mainly from the Philippine Islands by the Spaniards, and from Macao by the Portuguese, first quarrelled bitterly with each other, then the faction which got the upper hand ousted their rivals, and endeavoured, by means of the vast number of converts which they undoubtedly made in South Japan at the end of the sixteenth and the beginning of the seventeenth centuries, to grasp political power. This endeavour excited the suspicions of the Japanese, who feared that a plot was in progress to make their country the appanage of Spain as the Philippine Islands were, and the horrible persecutions, of which history tells a heartrending story, followed, and hundreds of thousands of native Christians were destroyed. Christianity in Japan was uprooted, utterly annihilated, and the country, by the most stringent regulations, hermetically sealed to foreigners.

Incidentally it may be remarked that it was the desire of Roman Catholic missionaries to interfere in native affairs in Madagascar which led to the recent conflict between France and the Malagasy Government; and it was such an interference which, in recent years, caused thousands upon thousands of Christian converts in Corea to be slain outright, or to be thrown into prison and allowed to die there of starvation. Time after time, during the last forty years, have French priests crossed the frontier from China into Corea, begun to exhibit pretensions of authority, and excited fresh persecutions, in course of which they have been hunted like wild beasts, and their converts killed.

During last century Roman Catholic missions flourished in China under two great Chinese emperors, who filled the throne during the greater part of that century. The first of these, Kien-Lung, who was a man of very elevated character, and of very liberal mind, probably one of the greatest rulers the world has ever seen, was very much attached to missionaries. He promoted them to important offices about his court, and, amongst the many things he did for them, he built for them at Pekin an astronomical observatory, and the instruments used by them are still to be seen there. They made a vast number of converts—it is impossible to say how many—but there are estimates which put the number at four millions, though it is doubtful whether that number, or anything like it, was ever attained. Subsequently they were driven out of China under circumstances which would well repay consideration, but which are beyond the scope of this article, and they did not return until Europeans generally were readmitted within recent years under treaty rights. The records of their work during that period were collected and published between 1780 and 1820 in a series of works, entitled "Memoires concernant les Chinois."

Roman Catholic missions in China since the treaty of 1858 down to about 1880 were under the nominal protection of the French Government. In 1858 Napoleon III. was the good son of the Church, and he took upon himself the duty of protecting its missionaries. This inflamed the usual political taint in their minds, and induced them to set up in China an imperium in imperio wherever they went. They not only claimed the right to travel throughout China where they liked without passports, but they claimed that when a man became their convert he was ipso facto removed from the jurisdiction of the Chinese Government, and was no longer responsible to his own officials, but only to his priest, and through his priest to the French Minister. The result was that all the bad characters of a town instantly declared themselves Roman Catholics when such a missionary appeared among them, in order to obtain his protection against their own authorities. Thus their numbers swelled, and, only "counting heads," their success astonished the superficial inquirer. But they seriously detracted from the dignity and authority of the native officials, who described themselves to their central Government, with passionate anger, as "losing face" before the people.

Now, the Chinese have not, as we have, police and soldiers to put down disorder, and maintain order; but the local officials have to rely for obedience upon the popular esteem for their authority, and for the maintenance of the local peace, upon the public consideration for their office, and, if they "lose face," they lose control. So that a local official would as soon have a caravan of wild beasts let loose in his district as have a French Catholic missionary come there. Every now and then during the last twenty years these officials have excited the people to make frenzied attacks upon the missionaries, and, usually, these attacks have ended in massacres. Take the very last massacre of Christians in China, namely, that which took place last year in Chung-King. It was entirely due to the ostentatious disregard by the Roman Catholic missionaries of the most sacred prejudices of the people amongst whom they lived, and to the arrogant assumption by those missionaries of superiority amongst them. Everybody who knows anything about China knows that the demonstrative use of yellow is specially and sacredly confined to the Imperial family in China, yet, in defiance of this fact and the entreaties of the local officials, the Roman Catholic missionaries at Chung-King insisted on building a chapel there with yellow tiles. It is not surprising that they and their chapel were swept away in a popular rising; but, unhappily, many an innocent native Christian suffered for the criminal folly of those missionaries.

It may be asked, Why has the Chinese Government not interfered to restrain these inconsiderate and haughty missionaries? It must be remembered that, when the treaties with the West were made, the Chinese had been severely defeated in two great wars. These wars were succeeded by serious rebellions in the Empire, which were put down with difficulty, and the orders circulated throughout the Empire amongst the officials were, "Do nothing which can create a dispute with those terrible Europeans." Next, the Chinese have now destroyed with a strong hand the so-called protection of Chinese Christians by the French Government. In their attempt to over-reach the government of Tonquin the French have lost their supremacy in China, and now "none so poor as do her reverence" there. The war in Tonquin was a Roman Catholic missionaries' war, as some day we will show, and their retribution includes the total loss of their boasted power in China. Now the Chinese have begun to understand that Europeans are not invincible, they have begun to measure aright their own strength, and their own rights, and they have distinctly refused to acknowledge the claim of the French Minister in Pekin to interfere in any manner whatever with Chinese subjects, whether they are Christians or whether they are not. The blow the Catholics struck in Tonquin shattered their own power in China.

It may be said generally that Protestant missions in China commenced with the cession of Hong Kong to Great Britain in 1842. Missions there certainly were before that time, but they were isolated, the efforts of two or three men rather than an organised system of work. As the rights of Europeans in China have been extended by various treaties, so the field of Protestant missions has been enlarged, for one of the vital distinctions between the labours of the Catholics and the Protestants as missionaries in China is that the latter have never claimed any right nor arrogated any power which has not been secured to the whole of their countrymen by Imperial treaties. As port after port was opened to trade, they were drafted thither. They availed themselves of the rights common to their countrymen of travelling into the interior under passports, teaching and preaching wherever their presence was not objected to.

In course of time they began to be better known, and the local authorities, finding they made no claim to political power, welcomed them and gave them permission to reside in their towns and conduct their work there. They have never claimed this as a right, and it has always been done with the knowledge and sanction of the proper authorities. They exhibit always the utmost consideration for Chinese officials and an attitude of conciliation to the people. They never pretend that by becoming Christians the natives cease to be Chinese and subject as completely as theretofore to their own officials, and Protestant missionaries have never got an atom of protection from their own ambassadors more than any other subject would get. They stand on their own merits, free from any adventitious support or official patronage. The circumstance that they have no external advantages to offer the native naturally prevents everybody but those who are really desirous of acknowledging themselves to be Christians from joining them. Moreover, they require a far more serious and trying period of probation before they will baptize a convert than that required by Roman Catholics. Their efforts appear to be directed to making sure that the applicant is really and sincerely anxious to be a professed Christian, rather than to cramming their reports with exaggerated figures.

We will pursue the comparison in a subsequent article, but already we think we have made it clear that "counting heads" is a fallacious method of determining the worth of missionary labour.

MESSRS. MATEER AND CHAMBERLAIN, of the Metropolitan Tabernacle have closed a successful week of evangelistic services in Kenyon Chapel, Brixton (Rev. James Douglas, pastor). A noon prayer-meeting was held, and in the evening Mr. Mateer preached the Gospel, Mr. Chamberlain singing with much pathos. Every evening at the close of the public services anxious ones visited the inquiry-meeting, and found peace in deciding for Christ. The services have also been blessed to many Christians.

PRAYER FOR MISSIONS.—The committee of the Baptist Missionary Society have resolved to hold a meeting for special prayer on behalf of foreign missions, on Monday next, at eleven o'clock, in the library of the Baptist Mission House, Furnival-street, Holborn, when it is hoped that Rev. Joseph Angus, D.D. will preside. The committee hope to have the presence and sympathy of representatives from other missionary and kindred institutions, and trust that a large number of friends from the various churches and congregations of the Metropolis will endeavour to be

For the Young.

THE LETTER "Y."

WORDS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

BY REV. W. T. HINDLEY,
St. Barnabas, Islington.

You have sometimes heard a sermon preached from one word, such as "Watch." I am going to talk to you about a letter, the last but one in the alphabet, the letter "Y." You learnt to know its shape when you were quite little. You have seen it since many times in your spelling and reading books. But have you ever noticed the difference between the two arms which branch out right and left from the trunk of the letter, as your arms do from your body? You will see, if you look well, one is narrower than the other—that on the left is broader than that on the right. The first time I noticed this it made me think of some solemn words which you will find in St. Matt. vii. 13, 14. They are our Lord Jesus Christ's own words. They tell us of two ways, Broad and Narrow, of people who walk along these ways, and in what they each end. This address, then, is to be about choosing a way. There are many foolish persons nowadays who talk of life as a mere "toss-up," who say they will "take their chance" how it turns out. But how are you to act differently, and know which way in life to take?

Look at that man on horse-back standing up in his stirrups with a lighted match carefully held between his two hands. What is he doing? The night is rough and dark: he has missed his road, and is trying to find out from the sign-post in front of him which way to take. He will go by its directions. That is what I want you to do—go by your directions. God has given them to you in his Holy Word. He says, and at the same time by his Holy Spirit opens your eyes to see it, "This is the way, walk ye in it."

He would have you choose the narrow way, the right-hand arm of the letter "Y," and not the left. These two ways are quite opposite to each other. One is narrow, and pleasant. The other is broad, and hard.

The first way (a) is narrow. You have to take care how you walk along it. There is not room enough for you to keep your sins. But it is not so narrow as that two cannot walk side by side. Jesus and you can go together. "Take my yoke upon you," Christ said. If you are under one part of the yoke, He is under the other. Will not this help you in your journey through life, to hear Him who loved you and gave Himself for you saying, as step by step you move onward, "I am with you."

The first way is also (b) pleasant. True Christians are the happiest of the happy. Ask any you know if they would like to give up Christ's service because it has made them miserable. Tell me what they say. If you are a true Christian yourself you will not need to ask the question. Like one who was a child such as you are, perhaps, you will say, "I feel like singing all the time."

Now let us think of the other road. (a) It is broad. "Many there be that go in thereat." Some seem to find comfort in this. But what would you think of a boy or a girl in a hospital who was heard saying, "I don't a bit mind going through all this sickness, and all this pain, because the wards are full of others just like me." "I will go wherever Charlie goes," said a boy, when remonstrated with about being seen in some bad company. "Will you go with him to hell?" was his teacher's solemn question. Young friends, be quite sure of this, it won't help you the least bit to find thousands by your side if you are on the wrong road.

(b) This second way is hard. The master of the way, "the prince of this world," as the Bible calls him, tries to hide this from us. But our Book of directions tells us plainly "the way of transgressors is hard." All travellers along it, all who serve Satan, find out before they have gone very far, the truth of this. What a prize-fighter said once, as he pointed to his battered master to me," many others would say also, if they would but speak the truth.

Boys and girls, have you yet chosen your way? Which arm of the "Y" is it? Such a question is never out of season, but it seems especially fitting to be asked now, when a new year has just begun.

To those who have chosen the narrow way, I would give these three simple rules:—

I. As you go along it, keep near to Jesus. Some children were once asked why Jesus was called the "Good Shepherd." Two capital answers were given. One child said, "Because He carries us up the hills." Another said, "Because He saves us from the lions." You will find Jesus will act thus towards you who are trusting in Him. (a) He will carry you up the hills, that is, He will help you when you reach hard bits of the road. He will lift you over difficulties. You find those difficulties (need I tell you?) at home and at school, in work and in play. Yes, it is not easy to play aright. There was a little girl, of whom a friend said, "I know she is a Christian, because she played like a Christian." Would your friends always be able to say that of you? So you need to keep near to Jesus in your games. It will not make them any less happy. There are difficulties in work. Hard lessons to learn, hard duties to do. Look to Jesus for help in these. "In everything ..let your requests be made known unto God." When the Bible says everything it means everything. (b) He will save you from the lions. I suppose you will guess what is meant by this. Bad temper, that is one lion which often leaps out upon us; lying, selfishness, greediness, disobedience, these are others which delight in attacking the young. Then there is the great "Roaring Lion" himself, of whom St. Peter writes. How are we to resist these? "Whom resist stedfast in the faith." Who will save us? "Jesus only." In a flock, those sheep or lambs which are nearest to the shepherd will be the safest when the lions come.

II. As you go along eat the food God gives. Some of you can tell me who the prophet was that heard an angel sent from God saying to him, "Arise and eat, for the journey is too great for thee." God knows that though you have chosen the narrow way, you will soon faint and grow weary if you are not strengthened with needful food. He has, therefore, got some ready for you. His own precious Word is one way which He has of feeding your soul. This is why we like to see many of you joining the Scripture Union, for we know that thus you will grow strong. Do not let a day go by without your little portion of Bible reading; "mark, learn, and inwardly digest it."

III. As you go along, take care with whom you walk. Keep near the other sheep in the Good Shepherd's flock. Let the friends of Jesus be your friends. Pray with them, read your Bibles with them. These are the best links for binding hearts together. Be like Jonathan, Saul's son, who "arose and went to David into the wood, and strengthened his hand in God." So cheer one another on as you travel together towards the bright home yonder.

[Extracted from a little book with the above title published by Messrs. W. Hunt & Co.]

ANSWER TO BIBLE ACROSTIC.

ON EARTH PEACE.—Luke ii. 14.

(1)	Onesimus	Philemon 16.
(2)	Nebuchadnezzar	Dan. iv. 33.
(3)	Eutychus	Acts xx. 10.
(4)	Absalom	2 Sam. xv. 16.
(5)	Rahab	Joshua ii. 4.
(6)	Trumpet	1 Cor. xv. 52.
(7)	Heath	Jer. xvii. 6.
(8)	Patience	Heb. xii. 1.
(9)	Eagle	Deut. xxxii. 11.
(10)	Ararat	Gen. viii. 4.
(11)	Capernaum	Matt. iv. 13.
(12)	Elijah	1 Kings xvii. 6.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER—For blessing on special services to be conducted by Mr. John Elliott, in the National School, Atworth, Wiltshire, from Jan. 1.——For blessing on a mission at Wimborne, Dorset, Jan. 1 to 8, to be conducted THROUGH FRANCE.

The McAll Mission.

In passing rapidly through France, it was the writer's privilege the other day, in Paris, to make the acquaintance of the veteran evangelistic worker, Rev. R. W. McAll, founder of the large and still growing "McAll Mission," as it has come to be familiarly known. Mr. Moody was not far out of the way when, in Chicago, he publicly designated this work as "the best organised mission in the world," and recommended the adoption of its methods in American cities. Here is, in actual practice, that which long since occurred to the writer as an admirable plan for reaching the multitudes with the Gospel in our large English and American cities—viz., short, varied, nightly services, with two or more addresses, with plenty of stirring singing and music, in well-lighted shops or other rooms opening immediately on leading thoroughfares.

With a number of these salles dotted about, in a large city, and with a band of zealous, Spirit-filled men and women speakers and singers, and all under wise direction, great good might be accomplished. The speakers should rotate from one room to another to give variety. Musical instruments could be employed. Brass instruments would not make a bad substitute for church bells. Let the shops or rooms be of moderate size; more smaller ones would be better than fewer large ones. The extreme accessibility of these "Gospel shops," with open fronts right on the thronged street, together with the brilliantly lighted interior and varied service, would unite to secure full audiences. The admirable training it would give earnest young workers would help to fill the ranks of future evangelists and missionaries. If this "McAll Mission" in France thus suggests and puts into operation a similarly wisely adapted agency in England and America, it will be admirable indeed.

Mr. William Soltau holds an important post in connection with the headquarters of this Mission. It gave us real pleasure to meet not only him but his like-minded wife, a niece of the beloved Pastor Theodore Monod. A weekly prayer-meeting of the McAll workers is held on Friday afternoon at about three o'clock, in one of their halls, near the Magdalene Church. Christian friends passing through Paris will be welcomed to this. I also attended a small near the Palais Royal, held each Wednesday afternoon at four. Much love seemed to bind together these French Christians, and the prayers were all marked by great fervency. Here we met our beloved brother, Mr. George Pearse, and his earnest wife. He it was who founded this tract depôt; and how much he has been used of God in starting and forwarding plans of Christian work of now large proportions, at home and abroad, many know. Infirmities seem to be increasingly pressing upon this honoured servant of the Lord Jesus, which drew tears from our eyes as we bade him adieu, greatly prizing his assurances that he ceased not to pray for us and the work in North Africa entrusted to our hands. He mentioned his desire to go over to England next year to stir up interest in the Mohammedan world.

PRAYER-MEETING AT THE TRACT DEPÔT,

SAILORS' REST, MARSEILLES.

An excellent work is being done here in Marseilles (where I write, awaiting the steamer), at the Sailors' Rest, called into existence, I believe, through Mr. Charles E. Faithfull. He, however, spends most of his time in Nice, the climate here being trying to him. A French brother and his wife look after the material part of the work. A young German sister does quiet personal work among German sailors.

The chief worker is Miss Kean, a young Scotch lady, who has been here some eighteen months. Not many sentences had passed between devotion and unmistakable spirituality. Great loneliness in this hard and distant outpost at first crept over her. But it only served to give her deeper acquaintance with her Lord. Public meetings in English every other night at the Rest, with visiting the ships and marine hospital, and correspondence with sailors who have been there, tax her frail frame to the utmost. I was touched when she told me how her noble mother had yielded up three of her children for foreign work, and had yet another who was going forth, and of how that mother once said with such humility, "I'm not able to serve the Lord as my children do, but I've never held one of them back when He called them." Can we all say this last?

E. F. Baldwin.

◆

THE PLACE OF BURNING OF THE SPANISH INQUISITION.

By Pastor FLIEDNER, Madrid.

The famous Quemadero de la Cruz, in the neighbourhood of Madrid, where the victims of the Inquisition used to be burnt, has been cut through by a new road, and so levelled and done away with. Of the autos de fé which used to be celebrated in the Plaza Mayor, lasting memorial is preserved in the Madrid picture gallery; but of the Quemadero and its terrors, a not less lively or less permanent memorial is left us in the eloquent speech of one of our first literary and dramatic celebrities. We still have also in our possession, and in the very convent which Philip II. occupied at the Escurial while the monastery of St. Lorenzo was being constructed, some of the ashes of the martyrs of Christ which were gathered in that place.

We do not, however, preserve them as relics to worship, but rather as a proof that even in this country the ashes of the martyrs are the seed of the Church. The great debates on the "Liberty of Worship in the Spanish Cortes in the year 1869," forming now a page of history, ought to be studied by the rising generation.

Our readers will certainly thank us for reproducing here a portion of a speech that refers particularly to the "Quemadero de la Cruz." The interesting words which follow are copied from the discourse of Don J. Echagaray pronounced in the defence of Liberty of Worship, and in answer to Sr. Canefa, on May 5, 1869. This gentleman, with the audacity that generally characterises Romanists, had flatly denied that the Roman Church had ever persecuted anyone. We already know the hypocritical formula by which that Church used to hand over heretics to the secular arm that they might be treated with clemency, that is to say that they might be burnt! In answer to this Don J. Echagaray stood up and answered him in the following words:—

"Let us put aside the word Church, and replace it by another. Can you sustain that the theocratic power never persecuted anyone? for if you affirm that, I would ask you to go up the street of St. Bernardo and into the field to your right, and there near to the statue of Daoiz and Velarde you will come to the Quemadero de la Cruz. Do you know what those words mean? I wish you would go and see for yourself. I wish that our debate was being held on that horrible monumental spot, and then afterwards say who could defend religious unity.

"The Quemadero de la Cruz is an extensive piece of ground, and, as it appeared, you might compare it to a geological section. Do you know what that means? Nature opens its great book and displays on its pages the formation of the earth, and you see in regular beds the sand, clay, slate, flint, &c. It is thus that the geologian studies the planet on which we live. Well, this Quemadero de la Cruz is also a great book, and has its pages, and one very dark page that contains useful, but, alas! sorrowful teachings.

"This burning-place, with its successive layers you may call geological, but which might also be called theological! In those alternate beds at this spot you will find ashes impregnated with human hair and fat, and remnants of calcined bones, and then a bed of sand spread over to cover all that, and then another layer of ashes, then more bones, and then again sand, and thus continues this horrible heap. Not many days since some boys were turning over the earth with a stick, and got out of these beds of ashes three different objects which each of itself speaks eloquently to us now, and each of them is a speech in favour of liberty of worship. They got out first a piece of rusty iron, then a human rib, and then a lock of hair burnt at one end. Each of these has its argument in our favour.

"I wish that those gentlemen who defend religious unity would submit each article to a rigid scrutiny. That they would ask that lock of hair what produced that cold sweat that damped the root when the burning flame of the stake came in contact with it, and why it stood on end at that moment on the victim's head. Then I would like them to ask that poor rib why the heart of the poor sufferer beat so hard; and finally I would ask them to interrogate that piece of iron which looks like a gag. How many sorrowful sighs and cries of anguish were drowned as it got rusty with the blood-stained breath of the dying one; but which hard iron had more tenderness and more compassion, and was more humane and became softer than those infamous torturers of that most infamous Theocracy!"

It is necessary that Spanish Christians, who, by the grace of God, now enjoy religious toleration, should not forget those men who obtained it for us, neither should our children forget such eloquent and powerful words. This is why we have considered it our duty to reproduce them in our periodical.—Extracted from La Revista Cristiana.

◆

"OUR CHURCH."

A correspondent writes:—In the South of England is a Convalescent Home, many of whose inmates are sent from one of our great London hospitals. A short time ago a man of the respectable working class became an inmate. Weak and sickly on first going down, he was given time partly to recover, and was beginning to hope that days of health and labour were yet in store for him, when one day one of the "sisters" asked, now that he was better, had he been to confession? "Yes," said T.; "night and morning." "How?" asked the sister in astonishment; "who was your confessor?" "I have confessed to the Lord Jesus Christ, who is my priest," answered T. "Oh, you are not within the pale of our church," said the sister. "I must send Father —— to speak to you." Accordingly the priestly "father" did come and question the sick man, trying at first with specious argument to show him the duty of confession. T. answered that he did not require an earthly confessor, as he went direct to the Lord Himself. Then the priest waxed wroth, and said, "You are quite outside the pale of our church; you are a rank heretic, and I do not know what can be done to you; but there is no salvation for your soul."

"Our Church!" Were these, then, Roman Catholics? No; they have indeed dropped the name of Protestant, but they still cling on to the Church of England, under the name of Anglicans. With stealthy yet steady footsteps Rome is advancing, holding her hands behind her back, keeping out of sight the chain, the prison, the stake; but only let her advance a little further into our midst, and then it will not be "You are a rank heretic, I do not know what can be done with you;" but "To the stake with the heretic!" Is the Church in our once-favoured land of England to be the Church of Christ, of the Bible, of free men and women, or the Church of the Pope, with its fetters for the mind and soul, or, when these are rejected, its chain and its stake for the body? Christians, awake to your danger; cry to your God! Do not sleep on till it is too late.

Notes and Comments.

IN our next issue we hope to give portrait and sketch of the late Earl Cavan.

Contributors and donors will please note that, in consequence of the Christmas holidays, we have had to prepare this issue for press earlier than usual. Communications received later than Saturday morning will be acknowledged in our next.

Before another issue of THE CHRISTIAN is published the year, of 1888 will be some days old, therefore we take this opportunity of sending the heartiest Christian greetings to all our readers, and of wishing them every blessing in the coming year. We accord our warmest thanks to the many friends whose kind contributions, sent from all parts of the world, have so largely helped to sustain and increase the usefulness of this paper. We shall endeavour, by the help and blessing of God, to do our part in making it a bearer of good tidings to all, and a messenger of comfort and cheer to the workers in Christ's vineyard. In these days of conflicting opinion and polemical strife, we increasingly feel the importance of emphasising the points on which all Christians are agreed, and of recording the acts of salvation and mercy that God is doing through his faithful servants.

In consequence of the absence of Rev. F. B. Meyer, who is enjoying a brief rest in Algeria, his fifth paper on Christian Living is deferred to our next number.

Mr. Alfred S. Dyer writes to us from Bombay a pungent and drastic letter, of which the following are the opening paragraphs. The whole of this terrible document will be found in The Sentinel for January :—

"Must India perish through Britain's sin? This is a truly serious and pressing question. If I could unfold to the view of the Christian Churches of Great Britain a living panorama of what is taking place to-day in Bombay, the world would hear a wail of agony such as has not gone up to heaven since the Huguenots were massacred on the black day of Bartholomew. God sees that the streets of Bombay are dyed with the blood not merely of the bodies but of the souls of the native population. Who are the murderers? A Government reputedly Christian; a Government supposed to reflect the character and will of the country which gave birth to modern Christian missions; but a Government whose members bear the mark of the murderer Cain upon their foreheads, legible enough to his eyes who will reward every man according to his works.

"In Bombay Christian missionaries have toiled and mourned and wept over the small fruit of their labours. The Government, professing the same faith as the missionaries, has checkmated them. The missionaries have preached repentance for sin, and holiness without which no man shall see God. The Government has thrown the weight of its official influence on the side, not of repentance, but of continuance in sin, and has licensed 'provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts thereof.' The Divine law thunders out in regard to impurity, 'Thou shalt not.' The law made and administered by the 'Christian' Government of India proclaims that the truth of God is a lie, that uncleanness is lawful, and that Sodomite science has outwitted God, so that he that soweth to the flesh shall not of the flesh reap corruption.

"As I have walked the thoroughfares of Bombay, and beheld the iniquity which exists under official licence, I have felt the need of a new prophet, inspired by the Holy Spirit, to call the Christian Churches of Great Britain and of India to humiliation and prayer, and then to action; and to witness, in a voice that cannot be drowned or hushed, against the authors of this abomination—'Woe to the bloody[*] Government of India. It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for you.'"

Truly, truth is stranger than fiction, and the realities that lie behind the stage are more startling and more sensational than the stage itself. If any doubt it let them read in Lady Hope's new book, "Loving Work in the Highways and Byways" (Nelson. 3s. 6d.), the story of the Theatrical Mission, and particularly that of Sally, the demon child. But the Theatrical Mission is only one of twelve which are sketched with the art which comes of Christian love and human sympathy, and few will read these pen-and-ink delineations without tears. No fitter book for prize or present, for drawing-room table or Sunday-school library, can be conceived.

In a letter recently addressed to The Liverpool Mercury, and reprinted as a leaflet, Mrs. Margaret Parker points a roseate picture of life in California. It seems to be an earthly Paradise for working women. Mrs. Parker says :—

> There are thousands of homes in California where an educated, sensible woman would be treated as a trusted friend and equal, if she was prepared to be a real help, for in that country labour stands on golden feet, and is honourable, while idleness is a disgrace. Ladies, even the wives of millionaires, are doing their own work rather than employ the Chinaman. They would welcome any number of sensible women skilled in housework—such as farmers' daughters, and the kind that go out as mothers' helps and nursery governesses at home; but let it be understood that no one need go out with an idea of teaching, for education of the best kind is absolutely free. A knowledge of cooking is important, and will command the highest wages. £36 a year is the lowest salary ever paid in Southern California, and £40, £50, and even more would gladly be given to the right kind of help—but let not the useless, frivolous woman think of going.

Mrs. Parker states that she arranged with influential committees in some of the large towns to receive and care for a number of such household helps who are teetotallers, and well recommended. Her account of the climate is enough to make one discontented with this fog-girt island. Any ladies who are interested, on their own account, or that of others, should write to Mrs. Parker, The Home Lea, Penketh, Warrington (with stamped envelope), for fuller details.

The somewhat remarkable correspondence between Rev. Charles Stirling and Her Majesty's Private Secretary, which we reproduce on another page, will not lessen the anxiety that is felt in many quarters at the present time, respecting the rumoured rapproachment between the Pope and the British Court. Seeing that such a widespread feeling exists on this subject, it seems to us that Sir Henry Ponsonby might fairly have given explanations which would have satisfied his correspondent that the visits of Her Majesty referred to could not be construed as in any way imperilling or affecting the Protestant constitution of the country.

If the Pope, as the recognised earthly head of the Romish communion, were content to occupy the place held by any other religious leader, we could see less inappropriateness in the Queen sending him courteous greetings on his Jubilee. That, however, we may say, is an honour which Her Majesty does not bestow on the leaders of other religious bodies comprising a far greater number of her loyal subjects than those who adhere to Rome. But the Vatican organs seem to expect something more than the interchange of courtesies from the Duke of Norfolk's mission. The Official Gazette states that the Duke of Norfolk, the Queen's envoy, said, when presented to the Pope :—

> Her Majesty has commanded me to say that in confiding to me this high mission she has been moved not only by a desire to acknowledge this proof of your Holiness's goodwill towards her, but also to give expression to her feeling of deep respect for the elevated character and Christian wisdom which you have displayed in your high position. The temperate sagacity with which your Holiness has corrected errors and assuaged differences, from which much evil might otherwise have arisen, inspires her Majesty with the earnest hope that life and health may long be granted to you, and that your beneficent action may be long continued.

The language with respect to the Pope's "beneficent action" is so vague that we could have wished, with all loyal respect to Her Gracious Majesty, that it had been somewhat more specific. We can only suppose that the Romish Duke has framed the message in accordance with his own ideas. It has called forth, among other responses, this from another Romish newspaper :—

> When the Duke of Norfolk had offered to the Pope the congratulations of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, the Holy Father replied with words of grateful warmth, from which we understand that the claims to the gratitude of the Pope, acquired by the gracious lady, are older and greater than her last kindness towards him. The Pope wished to testify, publicly and solemnly, that in the dominions of the English Crown the Catholic Church enjoys precious liberty, and to recognise that the merit of this is due to the Queen and her Government. This declaration, made by the very Head of the Church, gives to the courtesies recently exchanged between the two Powers a character more profound than that of common courtesies, and suggests something beyond the exchange of felicitations on the occurrence of two Jubilees.

Whatever hidden meaning may lie under the words we have italicised it is not for us to conjecture; but we may hope that any attempt on the part of the British Government to enter into formal diplomatic relations with the Pope will be strenuously resisted. We notice with much regret that some of the secular newspapers, representing both political parties, contemplate such an event with approval.

The words of the Prime Minister at the opening of the Beaconsfield Club in Darby, are deeply to be regretted, and have grieved many of the foremost philanthropists of the country. Said Lord Salisbury :

> My impression is that if some of our very enthusiastic friends who give themselves up to the preaching of teetotalism, would, instead of that, preach the erection of clubs, they would do a great deal more, not only for the comfort, but for the morality of all their fellow citizens than they do now.

The men and women who are reckoned 'enthusiasts," have originated a movement which has been followed by those "improved morals of the upper and richer classes," of which the Premier spoke; have diminished our enormous drink bill by hundreds of thousands; and have at least stayed somewhat the course of the greatest curse, and greatest source of crime and misery, that Great Britain has ever known. Surely these men were entitled to something better from the Prime Minister than what looks like scorn.

---

[*] See Ezekiel xxii. 1—12, xxiv. 6—14; and Nahum iii. 1—7.

Nor can we admit that the erecting of clubs will work the cure that Lord Salisbury claims for them. Letters in a provincial paper came lately under our eye, in which fathers bitterly complain that the first lessons in intoxication were given to their sons at newly-opened clubs. Modern working-men's clubs are declared by wives to be worse than taverns. There is no limit as to hours of closing; there is no supervision; the opportunity for games of chance is greater, and a cry is beginning to be heard for regulations in regard to them.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link. To assert that the parable of the Prodigal Son relates to the case of a backslider, and not to that of an unconverted sinner, is a very weak link indeed in the chain of reasoning against the doctrine of the universal Fatherhood of God. The series of parables of which this is one, arose out of the Pharisees' objection that "this Man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." Surely the publicans and sinners who drew near to Him, and to whom the Pharisees so objected, were not backsliders as distinguished from other sinners.

It is quite sufficient to reply to the doctrine of the universal Fatherhood, that the privileges of sonship to God as derived through Adam have been forfeited by sin, and the spirit of a son has been destroyed in his seed, who are "children of disobedience," "children of wrath," "children of the wicked one" (Eph. ii. 2, 3; Matt. xiii. 38). Only by regeneration can we become children of God in any saving sense. "To as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become sons of God, even to them that believe on his name: who were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John i. 13). They, and only they, "are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus" (Gal. iii. 26).

The people of God are divided and subdivided in many ways; just now, it is of importance to observe that there is a very real division into two classes—those whose great idea is to be loyal to the truth of God, and those whose chief aim is to benefit men. These are the two great characteristics of the religion of Jesus Christ, and instead of their respective advocates being in collision, every endeavour should be made by each to combine these two elements in their due proportions. Perhaps it would tend to this if we all sought, not for the weakness and error in others, but for that which is strong and true. The more we find fault with each other, the less disposed we are to walk together; whereas the endeavour to find out all the good in others, and all that is faulty in ourselves, begets kindly feeling and brotherly love, and tends to minimise and eliminate the error, and to "gather together in one the children of God who are scattered abroad."

There are no people in the world who are so benevolent themselves or so grateful for kindnesses from others as the Chinese. They have a vivid recollection still of the generosity of the Europeans and the devoted labours of the missionaries at the time of the terrible Shansi famine in 1877, when vast sums of money were collected from Europeans and spent by the missionaries in the distribution of food to the starving population. They treat with respect the missionaries among them, not only because of their own personal worth and service, but also because they remember that several missionaries lost their lives from famine fever and fatigue whilst helping them in their dreadful distress. The Chinese have long memories for benefits received, and the position of the missionaries among them to-day is higher and more assured because of the material assistance they tendered to the people whose spiritual welfare they chiefly desire. Missionaries have to win their way by works as well as by faith, and we who send them out are bound to enable them by all the means in our power to testify to the people the Samaritan-like character of Christianity by rendering a generous assistance to them when in distress.

Unhappily, such assistance is greatly needed now. Most deplorable news has been received from the missionaries in the Chinese province of Honan. The Yellow River has broken down its embankments, and now covers an immense tract of land like a raging sea. Its waves beat against the walls of towns and cities, and in the city of Cheochia-keo as many as fifty streets have been literally swept away. The loss of life has been fearful. The calamity is overwhelming. Millions have been made homeless, and are in a state of absolute destitution. The Chinese officials are said to be doing the best they can, but there is urgent need for all possible help from others. Our missionaries ought to receive our material support to enable them to alleviate some of the distress about them.

The great event of the year now closing has been the Queen's Jubilee. It gave us, on a bright summer day, the spectacle of a united people. The union of classes, and a remarkable obliteration in many places of political and religious sectarianisms, made a memorable and wholesome pageant. The commemoration was also useful, inasmuch as it helped us to remember the past with gratitude, and recalled an old English love for unostentatious virtues. To disparage the past has become such a modern fashion as to invest with abiding interest a year which has been marked by the memories of what God has done for the Empire during the half century that has gone.

The coming Week of Prayer has unusual demands on all Christian people. Europe is becoming breathless with anxiety and foreboding. The health of a distinguished Prince profoundly agitates the German Empire. Whatever our politics, we all must desire that Ireland should be conciliated as well as ruled. Vast masses of our people are crying out for work and bread, and a cure for the evil baffles human inquiry. Unrest is everywhere, but over the five hundred millions of heathens in the East a new day is dawning. These matters will form subjects of petition next week. But one prayer should be in the ascendant—the hallowing of the Divine Name. If, when the hour of His agony had come, Jesus prayed that God would glorify the Son, it was that the Son might glorify the Father.

OLD AND NEW.

Bright things of earth, like birds,
So filled my soul with song,
That God could find no room,
Amid the witching throng.

Then, smiting but to heal,
God with a grating key
Unlocked the cunning door
And let my treasures free.

First wealth took wing, and then
Her various broods untold,
Of pleasures, summer friends,
And such as follow gold.

He racked my bones with pain,
Laid loved ones in the tomb,
Took life's best wine away,
And left but woe and gloom.

He entered then, and filled
The soul, as his domain,
With such bright things of heaven
That former joys seemed pain.

Donemana, Ireland. J. K.

Mission Appeals.

Fox and Knot Schools and Mission (42, Charterhouse-street, E.C.).—The Committee are anxious before the close of the year to raise £150, which sum will enable them to clear off outstanding liabilities.—John Stabb, Hon. Sec.

Mr. Hampton's Mission for the Blind is doing a quiet, good work. A few shillings (with directed envelope to acknowledge any New Year's kind gift), would be gratefully received by the hon. sec., Mrs. Ritchin, Webber-row, London. Visitors would be welcomed any Friday evening.

Dock Labourers' Mission.—There are many thousands of poor men out of employment at present, and it has caused a great pressure upon our funds. Will your readers kindly lend us a helping hand, to enable us to feed these starving brethren?—C. H. Coleman, 32, Chamber-street, London Docks.

Cancer Hospital (free), Fulham-road, Brompton, S.W.—The ordinary expenditure of this hospital is some £3000 a year more than the reliable income, and to meet this deficit new annual subscriptions and donations are earnestly solicited, and will be thankfully received by Mr. G. T. Hertslet (treasurer), St. James's Palace, S.W.

Working Lads' Institute, Whitechapel.—This Institute provides for working lads healthy recreation, combined with mental and moral improvement. £6000 is urgently required to complete the building account. and £950 must be raised at once to pay pressing accounts. Treasurer, Mr. F. A. Bevan, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; hon. secretary, Mr. Henry Hill, 38, Bow-lane, E.C.

The Prayer-Book Revision Society has for its object the removal or amendment of those passages in the Book of Common Prayer which are the cause of stumbling to weaker brethren. Under its auspices Protestant lectures are delivered. The Council earnestly appeal for financial aid, as its exchequer is empty. The secretary is Mr. James Butcher, 17, Buckingham-street, Strand, W.C.

Lisson Grove Mission Schools.—We are planning how best to aid our girls and boys and their parents during the winter. We want to help those without employment, or who are in arrears with rent, or troubled with sickness. Clothing is always most acceptable, and should be sent, with all remittances, to the hon. superintendent, George T. Hunt, 5, St. Ann's-terrace, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

British Home for Incurables.—The Board of Management earnestly ask for contributions towards the general fund, which distributes a pension of £20 per annum to 284 incurable sufferers in all parts of the United Kingdom, besides providing for the inmates of the Home at Clapham. Very many more applications for these benefits are received than the Board can entertain. Contributions thankfully received by R. G. Salmond, secretary, at the offices, 73, Cheapside, E.C.

Children's Aid and Refuge Fund (32, Charing-cross, London, S.W.).—May I plead for the thousands of poor children who are sheltered in Refuges and Homes, and for the many more destitute and neglected boys and girls whom the boys' beadles and the rescue officers of the Children's Aid Fund are seeking to save from the streets, and from wretched homes? About five thousand such children are aided annually, and the need for increased help is very great. Many poor widows are at present struggling to obtain a livelihood for their children, and are utterly unable to support them. These are assisted by the Fund as far as possible. Contributions will be gratefully acknowledged by the Secretary, 32, Charing-cross, S.W.—W. E. Hubbard, 4, St. Helen's-place, E.C.

A NEW ALMANAC.—We have received from Messrs. John F. Shaw & Co. "The Worker's Almanac for 1888," elegantly got up, and conveniently ruled for notes and engagements.

THE OUTLOOK IN NORTH AFRICA.

Dear Sir,—I wrote to you a few weeks ago asking the prayers of your readers that my visit to the missionaries in North Africa might be blessed, and that fresh centres for work might be opened up. I have now returned from my tour, after passing through Algeria and Tunis, and visiting Tripoli. Quarantine regulations at Malta led me to defer my visit to Morocco for the present. I had most cheering interviews with the various missionaries scattered through Algeria.

The work is necessarily one of patience, but on every side there are encouragements. The missionaries everywhere seem to be gaining the confidence of the people, and at almost every mission station we were told of some natives of whom there was hope that they had believed the Gospel, and in one or two cases they had publicly confessed Christ. This public confession, however, is a severe test, and many, who will privately own their faith, are afraid to do so among their fellow Moslems. There are, of course, discouragements, both from within and without. The indifference of Christian friends at home, as shown by the slender support they give to those in the field; the unbelief of the Europeans around, and the evils of their own hearts, are not calculated to encourage the missionary; while it is evident that a mighty religious system like Mohamedanism can neither be sapped nor stormed without courage, and faith in God's purpose to save even among the blinded followers of Mohamed.

There cannot be the least doubt that as Mohamedanism loses its political power it becomes increasingly open to the Gospel. When we compare the state of things in Algeria fifty years ago with the condition of things now, one is positively startled with the change that has taken place. Then the country was only partly conquered by the French, and the people, proud and satisfied with their religion, would neither have tolerated nor heard Christian missionaries. But as French infidelity shook the power of Rome at the close of the last century, so it has now shaken the power of Mohamedanism in North Africa. The Lord has permitted these anti-Christian forces to fall upon one another, while we stand still and see the salvation of God. Now is our time; let us arise and evangelise them. Before Mohamedans become infidels, let us teach them what true godliness is, and reveal to them the love of Christ in the Gospel.

As yet they are ignorant of what Christianity really is; they repeatedly express their surprise that we know so much about God, and are amazed that the Christian religion does not teach people to get drunk. A young Moslem convert told us some time ago that he thought the 5th chapter of Ephesians one of the best in the Bible. When asked why, he replied, "Because it said, 'Be not drunk with wine.'" He had been telling this news to his Moslem friends—that after all the Christian religion did not encourage drunkenness.

I am thankful to say that, in response to the last letter I wrote you, several young men and young women have offered their services for this field, and a company of ladies are also hoping to go at their own cost to teach their North African sisters the way of life. We are specially thankful that God is raising up some who can go at their own cost, but we trust that many others will be stirred to give largely of their wealth to support those who cannot do so.

TRIPOLI.

After seeing the missionaries in Tunis, I went on to visit Tripoli. Journeying along the Tunisian coast was rather tedious, as our vessel called in from port to port for the purposes of trade. I found that there was nowhere any missionary to preach the Gospel. After three and a half days we reached the city of Tripoli, and through the good hand of God upon us were able to collect a considerable amount of information both as to the town and country. As far as we could hear, there is no Protestant missionary or Bible agent in the land, which is about six times as large as England, and has a population of between one and two million souls. The country is governed by a Pasha, who is appointed by the Sultan of Turkey, and who has 7000 Turkish troops to enforce his commands. In the interior, however, every man seems to do that which is right in his own eyes, but which is often unfortunately wrong in other people's.

Commercially, the country is not prosperous, while morally and religiously it is low in the extreme.

Turkish rule is not generally helpful to Gospel efforts; but I could find nothing in the law of the place which would hinder the establishment of a mission station there, although no doubt there would be those who would not view our work with friendly eyes. For the present it would seem to be almost impossible to penetrate to the Soudan from this point, but the road will probably be opened again some day, as it is the one by which most of the great travellers have reached Central Africa, and on which the number of hostile tribes is least.

One good friend has offered us funds for work in Tripoli, if it is carried on with a view to going across to Lake Tchad. This at present does not seem practicable. We hope, however, that other friends may be found who will help to establish a work in Tripoli for the benefit of the country itself. The city is clean and well supplied with water, and the country around is covered with thousands of palm-trees. The climate is more temperate than Tunis and Algiers, though further south, and is remarkably healthy.

I was only able to place a few Gospels there, and then leave the place again in the dreadful darkness in which it has groped for the last thousand years. I would ask the prayers of your readers that the Lord would thrust forth labourers into this totally unevangelised harvest-field.

I shall be glad to attend meetings, and tell of North Africa and its needs, showing maps and costumes, or to correspond with those who wish to help in evangelising these people.—Yours very heartily in Christ, Edward H. Glenny.

21, Linton-road, Barking.

SAILORS' REST AID SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of this Society was recently held in the Union Tabernacle, Wandsworth-road, Rev. D. M. Cameron presiding. Mr. Stephen Burrows, the superintendent, gave a report of the origin and progress of the movement. The foreign ports swarm with land sharks, who watch for our simple-minded seamen when they land from their ships. Through the efforts of the Society drunkenness has greatly diminished among seamen frequenting the port of Naples, and with the decrease of this great evil, their general behaviour is improving wonderfully. In 1884, Mr. Burrows took a tour round the Island of Sicily and the Adriatic ports. Previous to this, there were no seamen's institutes ashore in cities frequented by about 60,000 British seamen yearly. This Society took a lead in establishing Homes or "Rests" in two parts of Sicily, Naples, Pozzuoli, in the Bay of Naples, and this year in the island of Jersey. Other bodies followed, and it may be said that the effect is most encouraging. The whole movement is based on evangelical, unsectarian, and temperance principles. Some letters were read from friends of the cause in some of the chief cities of Great Britain and Ireland, where the superintendent had been lecturing for several months, and notices in the press show the deep interest taken in the movement.

Mr. Cameron and Mr. Burrows have gone to Jersey to conduct special meetings, and strengthen the cause. Mr. Burrows proceeds to Naples after Jersey has been visited, in order to consolidate the work, and we trust the friends of the sailors will give every encouragement to the cause, as the committee look upon Naples as a most important and needful centre for the Society's operations.

INSTITUTE FOR FACTORY GIRLS.

Miss Meredith Brown writes to us from 18, Upper Montagu-street:—

We are glad to state that we have received the sum required for the work amongst West-end factory girls for which the little book—"Only a Factory Girl"—pleaded. Through the interest it has created, together with meetings held in different quarters, contributions have poured in from all parts of England, Scotland, and Ireland, from Rome, and even from China; and we gratefully thank the friends whose hearts the Lord has opened to respond so generously.

The old rag factory, Harrow-street, Lisson-grove, W., is now transformed into a bright and cheerful home, to be known henceforth as "The Shaftesbury Institute for Girls." The arrangements for the opening are as follows:—

On Saturday, January 14, at 4 p.m., the Institute will be opened by the Dowager Lady Dynevor; those friends who would wish to be present are requested to send their names to the hon. secretary. In the evening a tea will be given to 200 factory girls. A special meeting for prayer and consecration, presided over by Lord Radstock, will be held in the Institute in the previous evening, January 13, at 8 p.m., to which all Christians are invited.

The accommodation in the Institute is as follows:—Basement: Kitchen for cookery classes, lavatories, laundry, recreation-room, small class-rooms. Ground floor: Hall to hold 200, coffee-bar and small room behind, registry office, and small back room. First floor: Four class-rooms, small kitchen, Miss M. Brown's private room. Second floor: Two dormitories to hold six or seven beds, matron's room, three extra rooms for resident workers.

The Hon. Constance Waldegrave will reside in the Institute as resident Mission Lady. For ladies who are willing to devote themselves to the work, and who can pay their own expenses, accommodation will be provided in the Institute, and they are requested to communicate with the hon. secretary. She would also be glad to have the names of ladies willing to give evenings for playing, singing, recitations, or conducting the classes which it is proposed to organise, such as cookery classes, sewing and mending classes, musical drill, Saturday night entertainments, Bible classes, Sunday evening meetings, registry office, cheap dinners, coffee-bar. About £350 is still needed for furnishing, and for starting the work. Collecting cards should be returned by January 6. The annual expenditure is estimated roughly at £350. The following articles will also be thankfully accepted: chairs, cups and saucers, tables, table-covers, towels, blankets, sheets, dusters, tea-pots, coffee-pots, harmonium, texts, Bibles, books, &c.

THE VALUE OF MISSIONARY WORK.—The necessity for brevity compelled the omission from our first article on this subject of the mention of several important works written by missionaries in China. Among the works we did not mention is the Chinese-English Dictionary, by the late Dr. Carstairs Douglas, a missionary of the Presbyterian Church in England to China, and who published that excellent work in London in 1873.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. GEORGE WILLIAMS.—An interesting gathering took place on Friday week at Messrs. Hitchcock, Williams & Co., St. Paul's-churchyard. The jubilee of the firm was celebrated by the presentation to Mrs. George Williams, on behalf of the employés of the firm, of a portrait of Mr. Williams, painted by the well-known artist, Mr. John Collyer, as an expression of affection and regard for Mr. Williams. The presentation was made in an appropriate address by Mr. Robertson, warehouse manager for many years with the firm. He said that from that establishment had gone forth, as well as merchants and tradesmen, recruits for the ranks of the clergy, ministers of the Gospel, and missionaries. Hardly a year passed without some contribution. Mr. Williams, on behalf of Mrs. Williams, offered her most hearty and cordial thanks for this expression of esteem.

A NEW YEAR'S PRAYER.

"Grace upon grace."
"Increasing in the knowledge of God."—COL. i. 10.

MORE like Thee, my God,
Is what I pray;
More like Thee, my Lord,
More every day.

More life to live, Lord;
More grace to pray;
More love to Thee, Lord,
More every day.

That I may walk, Lord,
Straight in the way,
Strengthen my feet, Lord,
More every day.

More light to see, Lord,
Clearer each day;
My will subdued, Lord,
More every day.

Thy Spirit shine, Lord,
With brighter ray,
Into this heart, Lord,
More every day.

That I may sing, Lord,
A purer lay;
And praise Thee, my God,
More every day.

Rome. GRACE FILDER.

◆

THE SEA AND ITS SAILORS.

THIS is the title of a charming little book, in which Miss Weston gives an account of her work during the past year. At the five Sailors' Rests nearly sixty-five thousand sailors and marines, were provided with beds during the year; and there is a humorous reference to other thousands lying down anywhere, on couches, on the floor, under the bagatelle boards, or on the reading table, where one night six men found comfortable quarters. There is no restriction in the invitation given by Miss Weston to her friends. "I've heard her say dozens of times," is the witness of one, "that we were never to stop away while she had a roof to cover us, even if we were drunk." And so it is that after ten years' work at Devonport, and five years at Portsmouth, there is an increase to report on every hand.

The new hall at Portsmouth, which seats one thousand persons, has, it is estimated, had a gross attendance at the various meetings of 150,000. It is pleasant to read that the Gospel temperance meetings on Thursdays, and the Saturday night temperance entertainments are not more crowded than the Gospel meetings on Sundays. The happy Bible-classes, and the open-air band that goes into the slums, complete Miss Weston's joy, and enable her to rejoice that "the kingdom of God has indeed come in the British Navy."

A great aid to the temperance work is found in The Naval Brigade News, which had a circulation last year of 122,000. Then, of course, there are the famous "Blue Backs," by means of which constant communication is kept up with friends in all parts of the world. Of these last year 270,000 were sent out, besides 50,000 written letters.

Miss Weston points with satisfaction to the fact that the large number of parcels sent out from the office—between two and three thousand a month—are forwarded by the Admiralty free of charge, as showing their approval of, and interest in, her work.

REV. ROBERT BALGARNIE has conducted a week's special services at Norwood Congregational Church, Liverpool, which have been attended with much blessing, many persons deciding for Christ. In one instance a gentleman from a distant town, who was spending a night in Liverpool previous to sailing for America the following day, seeing the church lighted up, and having nothing to do strayed inside. The Spirit of God met him, and he was brought to the Saviour, remaining to be henceforth a devoted servant of

MY DEAR OLD WOMEN.

By DR. T. J. BARNARDO.

(From the Christmas Number of "Night and Day.")

I HAVE a new scheme on hands which will, I hope, before long assume shape and substance. This time it is not for the children, but for "my dear old women." Down in East London, squalid London as it is called, where I work, there are many dear old souls whom I greatly esteem and respect, and whom I long to help in some effectual way that shall gild the close of their poor lives with a little bit of sunshine, and brighten their otherwise grey horizon.

Some of these old bodies are on the very brink of the grave, others are less feeble; but all those of whom I write are over 60 years of age. So you see I may well call them old women, and as they are also personal friends of mine, and have been so for from ten to twenty years, I am justified in prefixing the adjective dear. Hence the title "My Dear Old Women."

Those of whom I write are, to my personal knowledge, sober, frugal, honest, industrious creatures, who have kept themselves outside of the dreaded walls of the workhouse by what seems little less than a miracle. They don't receive even outdoor parish relief, to which, however, I think they are all fairly entitled. For all of my dear old women have certain sturdy notions of independence which they have striven to maintain and carry out by the work of their own now feeble hands, or because, in the parishes in which they live the theory of the immorality of out-door relief is highly fashionable.

Mrs. A. B—— is one of my dear old women. I have known her for fully twenty-one years. She is herself now sixty-two years of age, and though bent almost double, as if with the burden of a laborious life, managed until lately to earn 5s. 6d. a week with her thin worn fingers. She was a nurse—one of those kindly, old-fashioned, motherly nurses whose very presence has the power to charm aches and pains away. She is still able at a pinch to be useful in this capacity to her poorer neighbours, who greatly value her services. Mrs. A. B—— has not one in the world to help her, and, as may be imagined, her 5s. 6d. has to be calculated down to the nicest margin in the spending. Would my readers like to know the details of her weekly disbursements? Well, here they are! Rent swallows up 2s. 6d. That payment is never behindhand; sixpence a month, or 1½d. a week, goes to the burial society, an association of poor folk like herself who bury each other on co-operative principles. Do not smile at this curious intrusion of business foresight. Joining this society brought unspeakable peace to the mind of poor Mrs. A. B——, for she told me confidentially one day that what had haunted her thoughts for years was the fear of dying alone and of being buried by the parish, and how unspeakably thankful she was that that sickening thought was no longer now at her heart-strings. On the remaining 2s. 10½d. she lives; pays for fuel in winter, for food always, and for such items of poor clothing as her industrious old hands, expert in managing, can find it possible to convert into decent raiment.

Of course she never tastes meat. A herring or a bit of cod sometimes, when the market is overflowing, and when the costers cannot sell all their stock until they have brought down the price next door to nothing, is her chief luxury. Her staple commodities are bread—mostly dry—and tea, which may be described as the very staff of life to her.

To visit Mrs. A. B——'s clean and wholesome room in the poorest and most squalid of East-end streets does me good. The quiet contentment of her grateful heart seems to diffuse around an atmosphere of peace and harmony. The old Bible is there, and the horn spectacles. The old book will almost open of itself at her favourite passages, but every page is well not be long in learning the open secret of her grateful content: God's peace, Christ's love, the Comforter's presence known and felt and deeply enjoyed. Hers is truly a life which

> "Glides on as rivers that water the woodland, > Darkened by shadows of earth, but reflecting an image of heaven!"

But a dark shadow has lately fallen on that humble home. Work has failed more frequently of late than heretofore. Mrs. A. B——'s eyesight is not as of yore; and sometimes she trembles as she thinks that the day is not far off when there will be no work at all, or no power to do it. Yet she still maintains her quiet, calm peacefulness, and just shuts her poor old eyes, and trusts her Lord; and I, seeing her and knowing her all these years, feel as if the Master Himself bade me do his will, and answer the poor widow's secret prayer.

So after much musing I have devised a plan. I have taken a small house, to be called, perhaps, A QUIET RESTING PLACE, large enough to shelter at least six of "my dear old women." Each of the inmates will be over threescore years, all widows, and all children of the King. In this house they will each have a comfortable room, warm, and well ventilated, rent free, with coals and lights, and perhaps a few shillings weekly. It is not to be in the country—oh, no!—although that was my first thought. My dear old women don't care for the country, except for a day or two in the warm weather. They are lifelong denizens of the city. East London has always been their home. Stepney or Limehouse contains what friends or acquaintances they possess, and is nearest to such little work as they can still obtain and do. I felt it would never do to sever them from their little circle, or from their work if they can still obtain it, for round these things centres their chief interest in life.

The rent of A QUIET RESTING PLACE will be, I am sorry to say, £48 per annum, for house-rent is high in East London. The taxes will absorb another £10; add to this 5s. each per week for coals, light, and a small allowance, or £13 per annum for each aged pilgrim, and we reach a total expense for my six dear old women, including all possible disbursements, of £136 per year.

I think I have not been moved in vain to give this short narrative, for surely some loving hearts will wish to participate in the privilege of bearing the cost of a Quiet Resting Place, so that no part of the expense shall be taken from that now almost empty purse out of which payment is made for my larger family of more than 2200 poor boys and girls.

18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

◆

A COLONY'S DRINK BILL.

WHILE New South Wales is aiming at the peerless title of Australia, she seems to be qualifying for the somewhat significant title of Dipsomania. The capitation for drink in this colony places it at the top as to gullibility. For the cost per head is £5 14s. This is worse even than Victoria; nearly double that of New Zealand; and more than treble that of the United States. They may, however, plead that the quality is so bad that they must make it up in quantity; for the bulk of the stuff drunk at the publics is not "honest whisky" at all, but base fusil oil. This is a maddening compound; and it is not surprising that in Sydney alone there are 3,000 regular drunkards, known to be such. These figures are drawn from the report of a Royal Commission; and such a report ought to result in some action. Our own Government has shown a fatal facility in ignoring the counsels of its own commissions; but Sir Henry Parkes can scarcely pass over such an indictment as this. Since limited Sunday closing is practically inoperative, it is recommended that it be made absolute. At present only one-fourth of the houses observe the closure, and the working men themselves do not think closing will "rob the poor man of his beer," for their evidence and opinion are in favour of completely closing on Sunday. The commission urge the necessity of limiting the number of public-houses, so that there shall not be more than one for eighty electors; this would close one hundred—or one-eighth of the Sydney houses.—Christian Leader.

THE QUEEN AND THE POPE.

Rev. Charles Stirling, vicar of New Malden, having, in a letter to The Surrey Comet, called attention to the attendance from time to time of the Queen at the services of the Roman Catholic Church; Her Majesty's visit, when at Mentone, to the Romish Cathedral for the service of Blessing the Palms; her visit last April, by special dispensation from the Pope, to the monastery of the Grand Chartreuse; her visit to the Romish church at Weybridge; and, more recently, the visit of the Sovereign to a Jesuit College near Windsor, the following correspondence, which The Standard has been requested to publish, has taken place:—

"New Malden Vicarage, Surrey, Dec. 9, 1887.

"Sir,—I beg to forward herewith a copy of The Surrey Comet of December 3, in which I have endeavoured, as a loyal subject, to call attention to the danger threatening Her Majesty's throne from the Jesuitical influences with which our beloved Sovereign is now surrounded.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"Charles Stirling.
"To General Sir H. F. Ponsonby, Bart, Windsor Castle."

"Windsor Castle, Dec. 11, 1887.

"Sir,—I have received your letter and the accompanying copy of The Surrey Comet, with a communication addressed by you to that newspaper, containing various statements, many of which are 'curiously inexact.'

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"Henry F. Ponsonby.
"Rev. Charles Stirling."

"New Malden Vicarage, Surrey, Dec. 13, 1887.

"Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt this evening of your letter of the 11th inst., in which you speak of some of the statements in my letter to The Surrey Comet of Dec. 3 as 'curiously inexact.'

"As it is of the utmost importance that any statements respecting Her Majesty should be scrupulously correct, I shall feel greatly obliged by your at once pointing out any error into which I may have fallen.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"Charles Stirling.
"To General Sir H. F. Ponsonby, Bart."

"Windsor Castle, Dec. 14, 1887.

"Sir,—In reply to your letter I must refer you to the official records of the Queen's movements, wherein you will perceive that many of the statements, such as the reported visit of Her Majesty to the church for the Blessing of the Palms—to service at Weybridge—to a Jesuit College, &c., are inexact, and are so related as to lead to erroneous inferences. "I have the honour to be,
"Sir, your obedient servant,
"Henry F. Ponsonby.
"Rev. Charles Stirling."

"New Malden Vicarage, Dec. 16, 1887.

"Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th inst.

"The matter is of grave moment, and I shall feel extremely obliged by your kindly informing me of the precise mistakes into which you allege I have fallen, with a view to their correction in the next number of The Surrey Comet. I must, therefore, beg of you either to forward the official records to which you refer, and to which I have not access, or to do what is much more simple, give me in a few words the precise corrections of any erroneous statements in connection with Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen's visits to the Romish services and the Jesuit College. These shall receive immediate attention, and be at once made as public as any of the 'inexact' statements which you assert have been made."

"Her Majesty's loyal Protestant subjects are desirous of being put in possession of the truth.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"Charles Stirling.
"General Sir H. F. Ponsonby, Bart."

"Windsor Castle, Dec. 17, 1887.

"Sir,—In reply to your letter, I beg leave to inform you that the records of the Queen's movements are published daily in the newspapers.

"I must decline to continue this correspondence.

"I have the honour to be,
"Sir, your obedient servant,
"Henry F. Ponsonby.
"The Rev. C. Stirling."

"New Malden Vicarage, Dec. 20, 1887.

"Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 17th inst., and to say that a matter of this grave moment cannot be summarily dismissed.

"You refer me to authorised reports, and upon my asking to be furnished with them, or to be corrected in any error by yourself, you refer me to the newspapers, and decline further correspondence. There is but one inference to be drawn. It is this, that the statements which you pronounced to be 'curiously inexact,' are perfectly accurate, except in some matters so trivial that you do not care to point them out.

"As many of Her Majesty's Protestant subjects are persuaded that by the renewal of 'communion with the See of Rome' the Throne has, according to the Act of Settlement, become vacant, I deem it necessary to forward this correspondence to the public Press.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"Charles Stirling.
"To General Sir H. F. Ponsonby, Bart."

◆

The Book World.

Prayers for Children.

The Queen's Printers have issued a charming present for the little ones. It consists of children's prayers in verse, by Sarah Wilson, illustrated by sixteen exquisite engravings by Jane M. Dealy and Fred Marriott. The cost is only a shilling. The prayers are childlike, reverent, and loving. In our next issue we will give some extracts, in our page for the young.

Bible Topography.

Miss Frances H. Wood, Elmwood, Bromley-road, Beckenham, sends us some excellent maps which she has designed. The large pictorial map of Palestine (with latitudes, longitudes, and other improvements, mounted on linen and varnished, with roller and handbook; size 68 in. by 32 in., price 12s. 6d.) gives a splendid plan of the country. An autotype edition of this (size 22 in. by 17 in.) is also published at 2s. 6d. The companion map of "Jerusalem from the South" gives a capital view of the Holy City. These will make very valuable helps to Bible study. The handbook for the large pictorial map, with sketch lessons, will materially help the student.

January Magazines.

THE LEISURE HOUR.

The new and exceedingly tasteful cover is but the outward sign of new attractions within. The illustrations are delightful. These alone are cheap at the price of the whole number. The bill of fare is as varied as it is useful and attractive. Everybody should read "Health and Ill Health," by Alf. T. Schofield, M.D. But narrow space forbids our particularising. The number is altogether good. We congratulate the Editor on his fresh start.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME.

This is an old friend that never grows old. It begins the New Year fresher and brighter than ever. A new serial story, by Evelyn E. Green, author of "Barbara's Brothers," promises very well. There are several fresh, instructive papers of a descriptive character—e.g., "The French in the Pacific," "A Sunday in the Leeward Islands," "Paris at the Time of the Reformation," "A Night in Trafalgar Square," and "The Coptic Church." We are particularly interested with W. J. Gordon's description of Christian work in Glasgow. It is emphatically a good tale well told. Glasgow, the second city of the kingdom, probably stands first for its thorough-going Christian enterprise. There is a really delicious little poem in this number, by "Tom Brown," entitled "The Prayer-meeting." The illustrations are good; some of them excellent.

MISCELLANEOUS.

We have received from James A. O'Connor, publisher, Bible House, N. Y., the fourth bound volume of The Converted Catholic, a monthly magazine specially designed for the conversion of Roman Catholics to evangelical Christianity. This magazine is not only good for Catholics to read, that they may learn the evangelical way of salvation, but all Protestants will be interested in its contents. It is boldly and aggressively opposed to the Roman Catholic Church; but, as Luther said, it wars not with men but with the doctrines of that Church. Rev. James A. O'Connor, the editor, was formerly a Roman Catholic priest and is now doing a good work in New York. The subscription price is only $1.00 per year.

The Sunday Book of Story and Parable. 5s. Hodder & Stoughton. A handsome volume containing an excellent variety of bright, attractive and entertaining stories eminently suitable for Sunday reading. The book is beautifully illustrated by a number of full-page woodcuts.

The Blackgang Mission.—Mr. George Kelsey, of Walthamstow, has written a brief account of this work, which may be had of Messrs. Partridge & Co., price 1d.

The Children's Medical Missionary Society have issued a tastefully designed floral motto card with text. Copies may be had for members of medical mission meetings, or for general distribution, on application to Miss Annie R. Butler, at the Medical Mission House, 104, Petherton-road, N., one shilling a dozen, post free.

One of the prettiest little books we have come across is Noonday Musings, published by Messrs. S. Bagster & Sons, Limited, 15, Paternoster-row, price 6d. It consists of over sixty pages, each page containing several texts in which occurs one of the names of our Lord. It is very neatly got up, and can be conveniently carried in the waistcoat pocket.

The bound volume of the year's number of The Jewish Intelligence contains a large fund of deeply interesting information concerning the work being carried on by the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews. The articles on Palestine plants and Jewish customs will be very helpful to Bible students. Amongst the numerous illustrations we notice excellent portraits of the late Bishops Alexander, Gobat, and Barclay, of Jerusalem, and of Dr. Blyth, the recently appointed Bishop. (Nisbet & Co. 3s.)

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—The Expositor. Vol. vii. 7s. 6d.—Human Destiny, by Robert Anderson, LL.D. New edition. 3s. 6d.

Messrs. T. Nelson & Sons, Paternoster-row:—Loving Work in the Highways and Byways, by Lady Hope.

Mr. W. Reeves, 85, Fleet-street, E.C.:—Christian Socialism versus Present Day Unsocialism, by E. D. Girdlestone, B.A. 1s.

"Home Words" Office, 7, Paternoster-square:—Courtship: For all who intend to get married, by Rev. Charles Bullock, B.D.

Messrs. Gall & Inglis, 25, Paternoster-square:—Waymarks for Pilgrims, young and old, to the City of God, by Rev. James Inglis.

Mr. T. Woolmer:—Memorials of Elizabeth Ann Wesley, "the Soldiers' Friend," by her father, Rev. Samuel Wesley. Second Edition.

Woman's Temperance Publication Association, 161, La Salle-street, Chicago, U.S.A.:—Free Rum on the Congo, and What it is Doing there, by William T. Hornaday.

National Temperance Depôt, 337, Strand W.C.:—Our Mothers' Meetings, by Mrs. R. D. Bolton. 1s. 6d.—The National Temperance League's Annual for 1888, edited by Robert Rae. 1s. 6d.

Office of the Royal Hospital for Incurables, 106, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.:—Cured by an Incurable, by Rev. P. B. Power, M.A. Second edition. 6d.—At Stanton, Drew, and other places. Illustrated. 6d.

◆

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE, CROYDON.

A great blessing has been outpoured on Croydon, during a fortnight's mission, held at the Skating-rink, by Major and Mrs. Evered Poole. Many (over sixty in one evening) stood up in the after-meeting to confess surrender to God and acceptance of Christ as their Saviour; for only about four out of the fourteen nights was the total abstinence question pressed upon the people, and the results are very encouraging. Very vigorous and powerful were the addresses of Canon Wilberforce, Canon Barker, Rev. E. A. Foster, and Mr. W. Maynard, who kept the audience deeply interested each evening.

But the greater work was done through the evangelistic efforts of Major and Mrs. Poole, Lady Sebright, Mrs. Anderson, and Miss Kathleen Townend. After one of Mrs. Evered Poole's impressive addresses, the net was drawn in by Major Poole, and over sixty confessed to surrender and accept Jesus as their Saviour.

INDIGENT BLIND VISITING SOCIETY.—At St. Philip's Schoolroom, E., a very enjoyable social gathering in connection with this Society was held. The tea was provided by Mr. Goodwin, and given to a number of the blind and their guides. After the tea an interesting meeting took place. Among the speakers were Rev. S. Vetcher, Messrs. Mead, Tennent, and Maitland. The proceedings terminated with singing and prayer, and thus the blind of one quarter of the East-end finished a most enjoyable meeting. This good work is carried on by the Indigent Blind Visiting Society, which visits the blind folk in their own homes.

lotes on Daily Readings.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 1.—EZEKIEL VI.

The former prophecies concerned the city of erusalem, and the inhabitants of Judea. The resent is addressed to the whole land and eople of Israel, which is to be included in a ike judgment. The ground of judgment is dolatry, and the whole rests on Deut. xii. There n injunction was given to the people of God to oot out and utterly destroy idols and idle-vorship. This they had not done. Nay, they ad themselves joined in this false worship. Therefore, Jehovah will bring about that destruction which they had failed to inflict, and will include those who have thus joined themselves to the heathen. Hence the force of the 'I even I.' (I will myself do what you should have done.) The prophecy is against the mountains of Israel, not so much because the land of Israel was characterised by mountains and deep valleys, as because these were the seats of idol worship (2 Kings xvii. 10, 11)."—S.C.

9.—I am broken with their whorish heart.—Although the verb is passive in form, it is now generally rendered by Hebrew scholars as if it were active, or at least reflexive. "I have broken for myself" (Hengstenberg), who thinks there is an allusion to the broken heart of David (Ps. li. 12), as leading to his repentance and restoration. R.V., in margin, says, "According to most of the ancient versions, 'I have broken their whorish heart.'"

13.—The place where they did offer sweet savour to all their idols.—"Hebrew, savour of rest, the same expression used of the offerings for acceptance to Jehovah, and used (Eph. v. 2) of the acceptance of Christ's sacrifice, is here used in irony of offerings to idols."—S.C.

14.—More desolate than the wilderness toward Diblath.—"Diblath, the Moabitish city, whose desolation is announced by Jeremiah (xlviii. 22), lay on the border of the great wilderness of Arabia, which is here named after it."—Hengstenberg.

MONDAY, JANUARY 2.—EZEKIEL VII.

"This chapter is a dirge rather than a prophecy. The prophet laments over the near approach of the day wherein the final blow shall be struck, and the city made the prey of the Chaldean invader. It was probably written three or four years before the final overthrow of the kingdom of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar."—S.C.

10.—The rod hath blossomed.—"The figure is borrowed from Num. xvii. 3, where the prosperity of the priestly office is indicated by the blossoming rod of Aaron. The rod of wickedness in ver. 11 is the Chaldean despotism."—Hengstenberg.

13.—The seller shall not return to that which is sold.—See our Lord's similar warning as to the final siege of Jerusalem (Matt. xxiv. 17, 18).

19.—Their silver and their gold...the stumbling-block of their iniquity.—See Jer. vi. 13, "From the least of them even unto the greatest of them every one is given to covetousness." To this day a characteristic Jewish trait.

20.—As for the beauty of his ornament, he set it in majesty.—Or rather, "'he turned it to pride.' He, the people, called either he or they. What was for their ornament they used for pride."—S.C.

23.—Make a chain.—Better in R.V., "Make the chain." "Those who have escaped death by sword or famine at the conquest of Jerusalem have captivity and exile awaiting them. This is the meaning of the command to make the chain, i.e., the fetters to lead the people into exile."—Keil.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 3.—EZEKIEL VIII.

"A year and two months after his call, the glory of the Lord appears to the prophet a second time as he had seen it by the Chebar. He is transported in spirit to Jerusalem, into the court of the Temple (1—4), where the Lord shows him first the idolatry of Israel (5—18), and secondly, the judgment with which, on account of this smitten (ix.), the city burned with fire, and the sanctuary forsaken by God (cx.). Lastly, after foretelling the coming judgment, and to the exiles a future salvation (xi. 1—21), he describes how the Divine presence forsakes the city (xi. 22, 23)."—Keil.

. —The image of jealousy, which provoketh to jealousy.—"The image of a false god provoking Jehovah to jealousy (Deut. xxxii. 16—21; 2 Kings xiv. 2). It may be doubted whether the scenes described in this chapter are intended to represent what actually occurred, or are only ideal pictures to indicate the idolatrous corruption of priests and people."—S.C. In favour of this latter view is the expression (3), "brought me in the visions of God to Jerusalem," which points to things revealed in vision rather than in fact.

11.—Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan.—One of the princes of the people (xi. 1).

12.—Every man in the chambers of his imagery.—"'Chambers of imagery' or 'image-chambers' is the term applied to the rooms in the dwelling-houses of the people in which idolatrous images were set up and secretly worshipped."—Keil.

14.—Women weeping for Tammuz.—"Tammuz" is the Hebrew and Syriac name for Adonis, whom heathen legends describe as a deity, a lover of Venus, slain in the month of June and then restored to life again. Keil considers it a part of the ancient nature-worship in which the power of the sun over the vegetation of the earth was celebrated.

16.—They worshipped the sun toward the east.—These five and twenty men were probably "the heads of the twenty-four courses of the priests, with the high priest presiding over them."—S.C.

17.—They put the branch to the nose.—A contemptuous mode of describing how sun worshippers (as Strabo testifies) held to their mouths a vine branch when praying to the sun.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 4.—EZEKIEL IX.

"The sin has been described. This chapter portrays the punishment."—S.C.

1.—Them that have charge over the city.—Apparently "angels who have charge to execute God's sentence."—S.C.

2.—Six men...and one man among them was clothed with linen.—"Angels of wrath—figurative of destruction. They come from the north, the quarter from which invading armies entered the Holy Land. 'One among them,' a superior over the six (not one of the six), was 'the Angel of the Covenant, the great High Priest' (comp. Dan x. 3, Rev. i. 13)." With a writer's inkhorn—"to write in the book of life the names of those who shall be marked."—S.C. Or more probably to "set a mark upon their foreheads."

3.—The glory of the God of Israel was gone up from the cherub.—"Cherub" here is collective singular for "cherubim." God is represented as arising from between the cherubim to scatter his enemies (Numb. x. 35).

6.—Begin at my sanctuary.—Comp. 1 Pet. iv. 17, "Judgment must begin at the house of God." The twenty-five priests of viii. 16, "the ancient men which were before the house," would be the first upon whom judgment should fall. So shall it be at the second advent. Upon Antichrist will the blow first fall, who "sitteth in the temple of God, setting himself forth as God" (2 Thess. ii. 4, R.V.)

11.—I have done as Thou hast commanded me.—Compare the answer of the servant in Luke xiv. 22, "Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded." In both cases the speaker seems a Divine person. Here the Son of God; in Luke xiv. the Spirit of God.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 5.—EZEKIEL X.

The subject of this chapter is the withdrawal of the Shekinah or Divine presence—the glory of the Lord—from the doomed city.

4.—Then the glory of the Lord went up from the cherub.—Probably a recapitulation of ix. 3. "The movement of the glory of the Lord from the cherubim to the threshold of the house indicates that He will soon leave the house altogether, and corresponds with the preparations for kindling the material fire, which may then first break forth when the glory of the Lord

5.—And the sound of the cherubims' wings was heard.—"The cherubim also make ready for departure, the near approach of which they know from this, that the glory of the Lord, of which they are the inseparable companions, is moving in preparation to the threshold of the house."—Ibid.

11.—To the place whither the head looked they followed it.—The spiritual teaching of this is very significant. "They turned not as they went" finds its New Testament parallel in Luke ix. 57—62.

13.—It was cried unto them in my hearing, O wheel.—"O wheel" should rather be the imperative of the verb than the vocative of the noun. "Wheel," or "turn" (revolve), is the command addressed to the wheels. "This word gives the signal for departure, and so the uprising of the cherubim is related in ver. 15."—Keil.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 6.—EZEKIEL XI.

"This chapter contains the concluding portion of the vision: (1) The prediction of the destruction of the ungodly rulers (ver. 1—13); (2) The consolatory and consoling promise that the Lord would gather to Himself a people out of those who had been carried away into exile and would sanctify them by his Holy Spirit; (3) The withdrawal of the presence of God from the city of Jerusalem, and the transportation of the prophet back to Chaldea with the termination of his ecstacy (ver. 22—25)."—Keil.

1.—Behold at the door of the gate five and twenty men.—Not the same men as in viii. 16: they were representatives of the priests; these of the princes.

3.—This city is the caldron, and we be the flesh.—"Whatever devastation may rage around the city, we are safe within its walls, as flesh within a caldron is unburnt by the surrounding fire."—S.C.

10.—I will judge you in the border of Israel.—At Riblah, in Hamath (the northern border of Israel, 1 Kings viii. 65; 2 Kings xiv. 25), the king of Babylon judged and condemned Zedekiah, and "slew also all the princes of Judah" (Jer. lii. 9, 10).

16.—Yet will I be to them as a little sanctuary.—Better in R.V., "Yet will I be to them a sanctuary for a little while."

19.—And I will give them one heart.—Fulfilled in the Israel of God of this dispensation, and yet to be fulfilled in restored and converted Israel of the next.

23.—The glory of the Lord...stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city.—Afterwards known as the Mount of Olives. From it the Lord Jesus ascended to heaven, and on it He is again to stand at his return (Zech. xiv. 6).

SATURDAY, JAN. 7.—EZEKIEL XII.

"Ezekiel receives instructions to depict by a symbolical action the departure of the king and people from Jerusalem (3—7), and to explain the action to the refractory generation (8—16). After this he is to exhibit by another symbolical sign the want and distress to which the people will be reduced (17—20). And lastly he is to rebut the frivolous sayings of the people to the effect that what is predicted will never take place or not till a distant time."—Keil.

12.—He shall cover his face, that he see not the ground with his eyes.—"A sign of mourning (xxiv. 17), also of Zedekiah's blindness, alluded to again in ver. 13. Josephus (Ant. x. 10) says that Ezekiel sent this prophecy to Jerusalem, but that Zedekiah comparing Jeremiah's prediction that he should be taken to Babylon, with Ezekiel's that he should not see it, disbelieved both. Yet both were true, for Zedekiah was taken to Babylon with his eyes put out."—S.C.

22.—The days are prolonged, and every vision faileth.—See the same tendency to cavil at prophetic truth spoken of in 2 Pet. iii. 4 as a sign of the latter days.

28.—The word which I have spoken shall be done, saith the Lord God.—"The announcement of the prophet was terribly fulfilled. In five years Jerusalem with its Temple lay in ruins, and those who disbelieved the message either

International S. S. Lesson.

Sunday Afternoon, January 8, 1888.

Matt. xiv. 13—21 (compare Mark vi. 30—43; Luke ix. 10—17; John vi. 1—13).

Introduction.—Sketch the story as told by the four Evangelists:—The reasons given for this journey to the desert, (1) Mark vi. 30, 31, and (2) ver. 13; the journey, Jesus and his disciples going by boat some six miles across the northern end of the lake to the north-eastern shore, and the people walking round by land; the boat having the shorter journey to go, and arriving first, Jesus and his disciples retire to the quiet of the hills (John vi. 3); after a while come the vast multitude, bringing their sick friends with them (ver. 14; Mark vi. 34; Luke ix. 11; John vi. 5); Jesus, "moved with compassion," "healed their sick," and "began to teach them many things"; the people, hanging upon his words, forget the lapse of time, their hunger, and their distance from home; evening drawing near, the disciples take alarm, and come saying, "Send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages, &c."; Christ's calm, grand reply: "They need not depart; give ye them to eat"; their exclamation of astonishment—£30 to £40 worth of bread would barely suffice for so great a multitude (Mark vi. 37); our Lord's question: "How many loaves have ye?"; the search; the boy found by Andrew (Mark vi. 38, and John vi. 8, 9) with five loaves and two fishes; at Christ's command, these are brought to Him, and the people are seated in ranks of hundreds and fifties (John vi. 10 adds the pictorial touch, "Now there was much grass in that place," and Dr. Geikie says: "It was in Nisan, 'the month of flowers,' and the slopes were rich with the soft green of the spring grass—that simplest and most touching lesson of the care of God for all nature"); the simple, solemn thanksgiving and blessing; the orderly distribution by the hands of the disciples, and the marvellous multiplication which took place in the act of distribution:

> 'Twas spring time when He blessed the bread:
> 'Twas harvest when He brake;

the perfect satisfaction, the superabundance which far exceeded the original store, and the care taken to avoid waste (ver. 20, and John vi. 12, 13).

The story as a whole forms one GREAT LESSON ON DOING GOOD. We see here—

1.—Jesus as the Example of Compassion. (1) He was "moved with compassion" when He saw their sick—even though He knew He was about to heal them. He was ever deeply affected by the sight of human suffering. (2) He pitied them in their hunger, and relieved it by a miracle. When He Himself hungered as keenly perhaps as man ever hungered, during his temptation, He refused to relieve his wants by making stones into bread. On other occasions He hungered (e.g., at the barren fig-tree, and at Sychar); but we never hear of his satisfying hunger by miraculous means. Only for others will He do that. Personal suffering cannot move Him as pity does; "He saved others: Himself He cannot save." (3) He pitied them most in their spiritual darkness (Mark vi. 34). We might have thought that this greater pity for them in their spiritual wants would have overpowered his pity for them in their sickness and hunger. But, it was the opposite. So is it with all truly Christ-like men. We cannot make up for hardness towards men in their bodily wants by zeal for their souls' good. The more spiritual we are, the more human, the more broadly and tenderly pitiful shall we be.

2.—That Great Faith is necessary to Great Service.—There was a great public want: a vast multitude were very hungry, and far from home. The disciples were then men of little faith; therefore they saw no way of helping. "Send them away, that they may go and buy for themselves (Mark vi. 36)," is the best they can say. Contrast with them Jesus, the example of perfect faith in God. He knew the might of God the Holy Spirit. He knew, too, the love of God and his joy in delivering the needy when he crieth; so He replies: "They need not depart." So to-day men of no faith, or of little faith, see the vast wretchedness and ignorance and sin of men around, or of the heathen, or the power of sin over some one man, and cry: "Send them away; we pity, but we have no power to help." But others, the deeply godly, the men of faith, knowing God's power, cry: "They need not depart," and these are they who do great things for God and man.

3.—The Reward of Generosity; or, The Boys' Blessing (John vi. 8, 9).—When Jesus asked, "How many loaves have ye? Go and see," there was no doubt a general search made. Food is found only with one of the crowd. (Perhaps others present had some, but hid it, keeping it to themselves. If so, what an honour and blessing they lost!) Picture that lad, with his precious little store. Was it a mother's hand that packed his basket that morning? He had kept that food all day with great care, controlling his hunger, knowing he would need it all by and by. And now he is asked to give it all up! Imagine the struggle in that hungry lad's mind. But he wins the battle. Perhaps the words he has just heard have moved him. He yields, and gives all he has. How blest he was in that gift! Christ used his little basketful to feed both him and the many thousands besides. How much Jesus made of his gift! Any king might envy that boy his blessing (Prov. xi. 24; Luke vi. 38).

4.—The Privilege of Service.—Jesus might have done without the boy's bread and fishes—without the disciples' help. He might have made bread out of the very stones of the hillside. But no! In generous, condescending love, He calls for the lad's store and the disciples' help, that they may have the joy of giving to Him, and to their fellow-men, and also the splendid honour of being workers together with Him. So to-day, the Lord needs no man. He could do all the good that is needed to be done in the world without our aid; but his plan is to call for our help, that we may have the blessing and honour—the glorious privilege—of helping Him.

5.—That humility goes before success.—(1) The humility that felt its poverty. Observe how Jesus induced them to consider their helplessness (John vi. 5—9). (2) The humility that forgot self and its poverty in regarding Jesus and his word; for when Jesus bade them bring the loaves, &c., they did so without hesitancy. That humility which pleads poverty as a reason for sloth and disobedience is false: true humility quickens the obedience of faith, never hinders it. (3) The humility that sought the Lord's blessing before departing for his work. They did not take the loaves straight to the people as soon as Christ bade them feed them: they brought them first to Him, for his blessing made all the difference. It is possible to go to the Lord's work, at his bidding, and yet to fail, because we go presumptuously. We have not gone first to Him for his blessing. Loaves unblessed are loaves unmultiplied.

6.—The calm orderliness of Christ's service.—(Mark vi. 39, 40).—There is no bustle or haste. Christ wrought this miracle as God works in nature, with a majestic simplicity and quiet. Jesus loved order. Witness the folded napkin in the empty grave (John xx. 7). He is a God of order. Slovenliness and disorder were, and still are, very distasteful to Him.

THE LATE SIR WILLIAM McARTHUR, in his will, has left liberal legacies to religious and charitable institutions. He has bequeathed £1000 to the London City Mission, £1000 to the British and Foreign Bible Society, £1000 to the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Enniskillen, Ireland; the balance of a sum of £10,000 (promised during his lifetime), amounting to £9075, to the Wesleyan Metropolitan Chapel Building Fund; £15,000 towards the erection of a Home for daughters of Wesleyan ministers in Ireland; also a further sum of £15,000 to be invested, and the income applied for the support of such institution; £5000 to the Methodist College, Belfast; £10,000 towards the erection of a Wesleyan Theological Institution in Ireland; £1000 to the Orphan Working School, and £1000 to the Birmingham branch of Dr. Bowman Stephenson's Children's Home

Letters to the Editor.

THE BRIGHTON BOYS.

Dear Sir,—I regret that your informant does not give honour to whom it is due in regard to the institute opened on the 8th inst., the extensive premises, 85, Blatchington-road, having been hired, adapted, and furnished at the sole cost of a most practically benevolent lady of West Brighton. The fees received also will go to a sinking fund for the developing of the gymnasium, hire of cricket field, &c. Should any lady or gentleman desire to start and maintain a similar association for the working lads of any other town, I shall be most happy to furnish details; but it might be still better to apply to Mr. Quintin Hogg, of the Polytechnic, London.—Yours faithfully, Ashby Wiffen.

193, Ditchling-rise, Brighton.

MR. SPENCER WALTON.

Dear Sir,—May I ask the prayers of your many readers on behalf of a proposed trip to the Cape. It is not definitely fixed yet, although, owing to a statement in a recent number, many think it is. Obstacles are still in the way, which God alone can remove. I am willing to go when the time comes, and spend a few months, commencing at Cape Town, holding missions at the various centres as well as conferences on the Christian life.

Some extracts from letters recently received give a sad account of the drink ravages, and at the same time present the need of a spiritual revival in the churches.—Yours truly in the Master's service,

W. Spencer Walton.

11, Tierney-road, Streatham-hill, S.W.

INDIAN SOLDIERS AND THE DRINK.

Sir,—You have evidently been misinformed as to the statement in your issue of November 25, regarding the discontinuance of spirits in the Indian Army, and the canteen being a thing of the past. What has been suggested is that spirits in the canteen be discouraged; and the canteen made a drinking and refreshment bar, where hot suppers may be procured; and that, instead of the canteen being limited, as of old, to two pints of beer and one dram of rum per diem, the rum and beer will be issued to the men at increased rates (quantity unlimited). The only good I see likely to occur from this will be to lessen bazaar drinking.

The Commander-in-Chief of India has not the power to exclude spirits from the canteen without the sanction of the Council of India.—Yours,

Just from India.

SHADOW AND SUBSTANCE.

Sir,—In your issue of November 25 you refer to my letter on the Truro Cathedral. You add that it is not to be wondered at that I use strong language to express my righteous indignation. What more sickening justification could I have than the Church Pastoral Aid Society's appeal for funds in The Record, and a letter of Rev. G. Baskerville, of Brighton, in its correspondence columns? When the great Home Mission Society of the Church of England has to write to the incumbents of poor and populous parishes, "When the money does not come to us, what can we do?" and when that Society has to close its appeals for funds with such words as these, "May God avert the painful necessity of further reductions;" surely it is not the time to build gorgeous fabrics, and to mould chalices of pure gold, encrusted with jewels?

What surprises me most of all to-day is the willingness of the middle and upper classes to acquiesce in this waste of money on "sculpture and show," whilst myriads of immortal souls, in the haunts of sin and homes of suffering, are left to drag out existence towards the gulf of woe.

Yours truly, Wm. Adamson.

The Vicarage, Old Ford, London, E.

MONTHLY TRACT SOCIETY.—Mr. J. B. Mackenzie, secretary of this Society, writes:—We have heard that a tract we have been sending out monthly for thirty years was blessed to the recipient, and that since his death his son and the son's family have also been blessed. The son wrote me and sent £5 as a thank-offering. Our work in Spain will commence shortly. As to the Paris Exhibition in 1889, Mr. McAll has asked us to join him in the

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

THE WANING OF THE YEAR.

A few days, and the work of 1887 will be a subject of the past; and, in reviewing the experiences of the year, THERE IS MUCH to call forth PRAISE to our LOVING AND FAITHFUL GOD.

Concerning the work of the Six Homes and the Open-all-Night Refuge, nearly 600 YOUNG WOMEN and GIRLS have been admitted to the Homes, and a similar number TO THE REFUGE, the majority of whom (as in past years) were found to be ORPHANS and COUNTRY GIRLS.

EVERY SUITABLE APPLICANT has received prompt assistance, notwithstanding the dearth of funds at times. The GOSPEL OF THE GRACE OF GOD has been faithfully preached in the Homes, with much encouragement. Many have been induced to become total abstainers from intoxicating drinks, and the Bible-classes in the Homes have been attended with good results.

December 16th.—FINANCES.—DAILY EXPENSES, £13 throughout the year; and, assuming that £500 is received in donations before the 31st, the outlay involved in the work of 1887 will be met by the gifts of Christians who sympathise with the work of PREVENTION and RESCUE. GIFTS in MONEY TOWARDS THE £500 required will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, City, E.C., or 200, EUSTON ROAD, N.W. EDWARD W. THOMAS, Sec.

The Anchorage.

HEBREWS vi. 19.

To Shelter, and give Spiritual care to, Young Women lately Fallen into Sin, whether or not about to become Mothers, with a special annexe and suitable arrangements for such as are of gentle birth.

ANYONE desiring admission for such cases to apply (by letter only) to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End-road, N.W., London, also for Servants trained in the Anchorage House. Donations may be sent to Mrs. Stuart-Wortley for the Anchorage Mission, or to Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

Packet of 50 Assorted Tracts, 1s.; 100 copies, 2s.

Either Packet post free on receipt of Published Price.

A New Year's Gift.

A Four-page Quarto Tract, with Full-page Illustration.

Containing a variety of Interesting Reading Specially Suitable for the New Year.

CONTENTS OF ASSORTED PACKET.

THE EMPEROR'S PROCLAMATION.
TIT FOR TAT.
THE THREE HEBREW CAPTIVES.
GRIPPED BY AN OCTOPUS.
THE GATE LEFT OPEN.
BRAVE JOHN MAYNARD.
"WHAT ARE YOU GOOD FOR?"

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

FITS.

EPILEPSY OR FALLING SICKNESS.

GIDDINESS, SENSATIONS, AND FAINTS.

I will demonstrate to the whole world how that most dreadful of all complaints, "Epilepsy," which has been hitherto considered incurable, can be permanently cured without the chance of failure). All afflicted may write with full hope and confidence to Mr. WILLIAMS, 10, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, London; who will send full particulars to any person, free of all charge.

John Heath's PENS

SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

J. JOHN HEATH'S SELECTED

BLACK, 2/-
SILVERED, 3/-
GILT. 3/6
per Gross.

Or 6d. and 1/- Boxes. All Stationers. Sample Box (24 kinds) 7 stamps. BIRMINGHAM.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT.

ESTABLISHED IN 1859.

Over ELEVEN HUNDRED MEETINGS have been held by the Committee since the commencement of their work.

Mr. John H. L. Christien, Organising Superintendent, is arranging Meetings for FALLEN WOMEN in January, February, and March, 1888.

A donation of £5 will enable the Committee to hold a Meeting, and mission the district in which the Meeting is held.

A CAPITATION GRANT of £3 is paid with each reclaimed woman remaining in a Home over a month. Reader, kindly send a donation, immediately, to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, or to 8A, Red Lion Square, W.C. C. WILSON McCREE, Secretary.

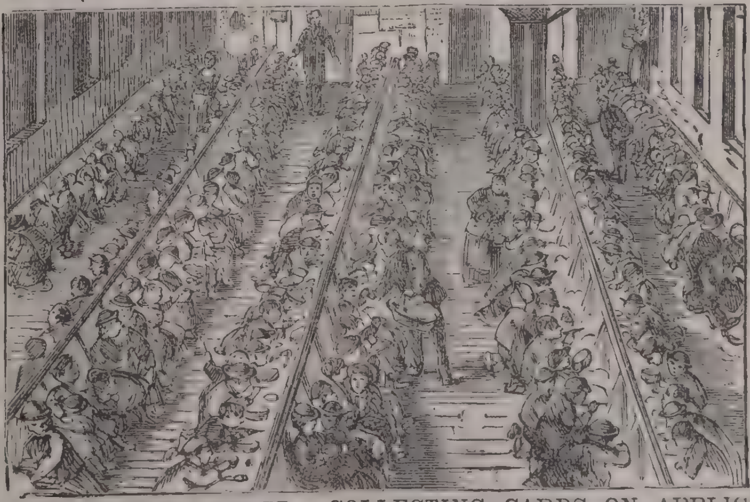
DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN IN CLERKENWELL.

(Address Letters and Parcels, 17, Claremont Square, Pentonville.)



THE COW CROSS MISSION,

WILLIAM CATLIN, Gen. Supt.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED. COLLECTING CARDS ON APPLICATION.

Just Published.

"WHAT MEAN YE BY THIS SERVICE?"

Thoughts on the Lord's Supper.

By SIR ARTHUR BLACKWOOD, K.C.B.,
Author of "The Number Seven in Scripture," &c.

Neatly printed on Tinted Paper, suitable for enclosing in the Modern Square Envelope.
Price One Penny. 12 Copies post free for 1s.
7s. per Hundred.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

Just Published. Demy 16mo, cloth, price 1s.

WAYMARKS FOR PILGRIMS

YOUNG AND OLD TO THE CITY OF GOD.

BY REV. JAMES INGLIS, Author of "Notes on Genesis," "The Sabbath School," "Bible Text Cyclopædia."

GALL & INGLIS, London and Edinburgh.

HOW TO STUDY THE BIBLE.

BY D. L. MOODY.

PRICE ONE PENNY; or 7s. per 100.

WINTER WOES.

No season of the year is so apprehensively awaited as the winter. Unfortunately, many have reason to dread it on account of increased difficulty in procuring daily bread and ordinary necessaries, but a far larger number of people do so because winter is to them inseparably associated with coughs, colds, rheumatic and other forms of suffering. The majority of such sufferers grow despondent when each succeeding winter finds out their weaknesses just as successfully as did its predecessor, proving that despite all their efforts they are as vulnerable as ever to winter influences.

The simple reason of their non-success lies in the fact that their efforts are misdirected. Folks may swallow physic, clothe themselves, adopt all sorts of means internal and external for "keeping out the cold," but while such means may lessen pain, relieve distressing symptoms, or even ward off an acute attack, they cannot overcome liability to weakness; hence they cannot render lasting service.

The human organism in a normal condition is capable of withstanding all changes incidental to the varying seasons of the year. When out of health, however, the protective powers are more or less inactive, and the system becomes unable to resist unfavourable influences or to rid itself of their ill-effects; hence we should be ever watchful to guard against laxity in this direction. A feeling of lassitude indicates a want of vigour, calling for prompt endeavours to assist the restorative forces. Seeing that medicine acts only upon symptoms, it follows that it does not assist these forces; therefore there is need for something that will act with them and at the same time strengthen them. Such a remedy exists in Odo-Magnetism, and those who have adopted it have speedily realised a change for the better, acute and distressing symptoms being relieved and permanently removed through the agency of the natural restorative forces, aided and quickened into efficient action by Magnetism.

Mrs. COUCHMAN, The Stud Farm, Fairfield, Yorks.

JULY 5, 1887.—"I am indeed thankful to say that I am by your Treatment cured of the severe periodical attacks of Neuralgia in my head from which I suffered for so many years. When I came to you in June '86, so dreadful were the paroxysms of pain that I was beginning to fear I should lose my reason. I had been suffering continually for four months, and was really tired of life, but when I had worn the Appliances a short time the pain was entirely gone. I thought it must return as usual with the approach of winter; but, no, not a sign of it. With the return of spring I waited with dread for the old ache, but to my happy surprise it never came. Such freedom from pain I have not known for many years, beside which I feel stronger and brighter. I cannot help telling all my friends of my cure, so grateful am I for it."

AUG. 16, 1887.—"Pray make what use you please of my former letter. I am happy to say I am still perfectly free from pain, and can thoroughly enjoy my holiday without the fatigue and headache which at one time invariably followed the least excitement." [18024]

It is a remarkable fact that many who have adopted this remedy are able to dispense with it before a second winter comes round, owing to the system having regained its natural self-protecting and restoring power.

The above is abridged from a pamphlet upon "Winter Ailments," just issued by Mr. Garratt, containing many valuable and encouraging hints for those who find winter trying, be it in ever so small a degree. Copies may be had post-free, with gratuitous advice, by personal or postal application to B. Copson Garratt, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

PRESENTATION VOLUMES SUITABLE FOR NEW YEAR'S GIFTS.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.

Compiled and Sung by IRA D. SANKEY. Containing 441 Pieces.

PRESENTATION EDITIONS.

WORDS ONLY.

MINION EDITION.
Size—4⅝ in. by 3 in. by ½ in.

		s.	d.
2C	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	1	0
3C	Morocco, gilt edges	2	6
4C	" flexible, kid-lined	4	6

MEDIUM TYPE.
Size—6¾ in. by 4 in. by ⅝ in.

		s.	d.
3D	Cloth boards	2	6
4D	Morocco, gilt edges	4	6

EXTRA LARGE TYPE.
Size—6⅜ in. by 5 in. by ⅝ in.

		s.	d.
3E	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	2	6
4E	Morocco, gilt edges	5	6
5E	" flexible, kid-lined	8	6

EXTRA LARGE TYPE.
Size—6 in. by 4⅜ in. by ½ in.

		s.	d.
9E	Morocco, gilt edges	4	6
10E	" flexible, kid-lined	6	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

OLD NOTATION.
Size—8¼ in. by 5⅝ in. by ⅞ in.

		s.	d.
4F	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	5	0
5F	Morocco, gilt edges	8	6
6F	" flexible, kid-lined	12	6
7F	Seal, yapped, kid-lined, silk sewn	21	0

OLD NOTATION.
Size—7⅜ in. by 4⅝ in. by ⅝ in.

		s.	d.
3H	Cloth boards, gilt edges	3	6
4H	Morocco, gilt edges	5	6
5H	" flexible, kid-lined	8	6

TONIC SOL-FA.
Size—8¼ in. by 5⅝ in. by ⅞ in.

		s.	d.
4G	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	5	0
5G	Morocco, gilt edges	6	6

TONIC SOL-FA.
Size—7⅜ in. by 4⅝ in. by ⅝ in.

		s.	d.
3R	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	2	6
4R	Morocco, gilt edges	5	6
5R	" flexible, kid-lined	8	6

Quarto Instrumental Editions.

OLD NOTATION.

For use at the PIANO, HARMONIUM, or ORGAN.

PRESENTATION EDITION.

Size—10½ in. by 8⅜ in. by 1¼ in.

	s.	d.
Cloth extra, bevelled boards, gilt edges	16	6
Morocco, gilt edges	30	0

SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION.

Size—9⅜ in. by 7½ in. by 1 in.

	s.	d.
Cloth back, paper sides	5	0
Cloth boards	6	0

A COMPLETE CATALOGUE OF THE VARIOUS EDITIONS (FIFTY-EIGHT IN ALL)—PRICES FROM ONE PENNY UPWARDS—WILL BE SENT POST FREE ON APPLICATION TO THE PUBLISHERS.

THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

A Volume of Music and Words. Edited and Composed by IRA D. SANKEY and JAMES McGRANAHAN.

Containing 79 Pieces.

PRESENTATION EDITIONS.

OLD NOTATION.
Size—9⅜ in. by 7½ in. by 5-16 in.

	s.	d.
Cloth boards	2	6
Elegantly bound in Morocco, gilt edges	7	6

TONIC SOL-FA.
Size—9⅜ in. by 7½ in. by 5-16 in.

	s.	d.
Cloth boards	2	6
Elegantly bound in Morocco, gilt edges	7	6

A COMPLETE CATALOGUE OF THE VARIOUS EDITIONS, BOTH WORDS ONLY, AND MUSIC AND WORDS—PRICES FROM ONE PENNY UPWARDS—WILL BE SENT POST FREE ON APPLICATION TO THE PUBLISHERS.

IN ONE VOLUME.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS AND THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

PRESENTATION EDITIONS.

WORDS ONLY.

EXTRA LARGE TYPE.
Size—6⅜ in. by 5 in. by ⅝ in.

	s.	d.
Cloth boards, gilt edges	3	0
Morocco, gilt edges	6	6
" yapped, gilt edges	9	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

QUARTO SIZE. OLD NOTATION.
Size—9⅜ in. by 7½ in. by 1¼ in.

	s.	d.
Cloth boards	7	6
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	9	6
Morocco, bevelled boards, gilt edges	17	6

A COMPLETE CATALOGUE OF THE VARIOUS EDITIONS—PRICES FROM SIXPENCE UPWARDS—WILL BE SENT POST FREE ON APPLICATION TO THE PUBLISHERS.

AN EXCELLENT GIFT-BOOK FOR THE PRESENT SEASON.

"We can give 'The Herald of Mercy' an unqualified, hearty recommendation as an attractive book, likely to do great good in 'humble homes,' for which it is designed. It is full of Gospel truth, its contents are varied and cheerful in character, and the plentiful illustrations at once strike the eye." King's Highway.

"As bright and attractive as could be desired. Full of good matter, and effective illustrations. Abundantly worthy of a wide distribution in the homes of the people."—Divine Life.

"If any of our readers are on the look-out for a thoroughly good book, suitable for presentation to some humble friend, we can confidently recommend to them 'The Herald of Mercy,' the annual volume of which is before us. Ninety-six pages of interesting and profitable matter, hundreds of illustrations admirably executed."—Work and Worship.

"Very good, cannot be better. The very thing for distribution in its monthly form; and not less suitable for a present when bound up." Sword and Trowel.

THE HERALD OF MERCY

1/- ANNUAL VOLUME. 1/-

EIGHTY-SIX ILLUSTRATIONS.

"Twelve months' numbers in nice binding, a very cheap shilling's work; every page full of plain Gospel, abounding in picture illustrations. It would be a welcome messenger to humble homes." Baptist Messenger.

"'The Herald of Mercy' has proved one of the most useful of all evangelistic agencies of our time, an invaluable ally to pastors, town and city missionaries, and Christian workers of all classes." Baptist Magazine.

"Here is a volume with numerous excellent illustrations, and a great variety of profitable and interesting reading, attractively bound in pictorial cover, and published at one shilling."—Christian Age.

"This Herald ought to be specially welcome. The illustrations that abound on every page will make Gospel truth attractive to the eye as well as to the heart, and the simple poetry by different writers ought to help many weary souls. We most heartily wish 'God speed' to 'The Herald of Mercy.'"—Congregational Magazine.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE STAR OF THE MAGI.

The following letter appeared in The Standard of Thursday last week:—

Sir,—Professor Pritchard's statement that "no star, planet, or comet could stand over any particular house in a town or village," though obviously true in an astronomical sense, is by no means true in the popular sense in which we certainly ought to read St. Matt. iii.

Will you allow me, as one who has travelled in Palestine, to point out a little more exactly than has hitherto been done the geographical bearing of the short journey from Jerusalem to Bethlehem on the expression—"The star went before them till it came and stood over the place where the young child was."

The trend of the road is not due south, but S.S.W., until the traveller reaches Rachel's Tomb, a little more than a mile from Bethlehem. From that point is far the most striking view of the Church of the Nativity, which stands out boldly on the left, and is, indeed, the easternmost end of the city. From it the hill slopes rapidly down into the valley. At Rachel's Tomb the road takes a bend, and, descending the side of the plateau it has been traversing, turns due south. Then it bends further still and ascends the hill into Bethlehem, running due south-east.

Now (dismissing, of course, all notion of the conjunction of planets) it is tolerably plain that if our travellers left the Jaffa gate in the early dawn of a winter morning, and saw a conspicuous object just rising, say, about E. by S., then it would appear before them, and as they went southward it also would appear to go southward with them, on their left hand. When the road began to bend from S.S.W. to S. the apparent motion of the object would be slower, but more distinctly before them. By the time they reached the point where the road turns S.E. the apparent motion of the object, arising from the diurnal motion of the earth, would have brought it to the south-east (in about two and a half hours), and it would be straight in front of them. All the while they were ascending the hill it would seem to stand, and to stand over, just visible over, some part of Bethlehem. As a matter of fact, if they went straight on through Bethlehem (and they knew they were not to go beyond) they would come to the traditional site of the birthplace.

The expressions "go before" and "stand over" may therefore well be true popularly, though not astronomically.

If I may add a word as to my own conception of what the heavenly object was, I will state the case briefly thus:—I think of the Magi as having seen, when in the East, a comet rapidly nearing its perihelion. They see it, I will suppose, in the Western sky, and are led, no matter how, to start on their journey westward. Every evening they see less and less of it, till it disappears as it approaches the sun; and they do not know that they will see it again. They reach Jerusalem; they inquire, and they are directed to Bethlehem. Perhaps they are several days there. Meanwhile the comet has, in the course, perhaps, of three months, more or less, outstripped the earth, and, though possibly visible a few days previously, has not been seen by the Magi till the eventful morning when they start for Bethlehem. Then, "when they saw the star," and recognised its form, "they rejoiced with exceeding great joy."

I think, Sir, this is simple, faithful to the narrative, and as beautiful in its plain prose as any more fanciful account.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
Alfred Kennion.

Vicarage, Gerrard's-cross, December 20.

THE LATE LORD CAVAN.—On Thursday afternoon the funeral of the late Lord Cavan took place in the cemetery at Weston-super-Mare. The cortége included several ladies, carrying handsome wreaths, and a large number of spectators gathered. The principal mourners were Lord Kilcoursie, M.P., Colonel the Hon. Oliver Lambert, Captain the Hon. A. Lambert, the Hon. R. Lambert, Colonel the Hon. E. Littleton, and the Hon. W. Littleton.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Dr. Vaughan, the Dean of Llandaff, has offered £1000 towards the deficiency in the Cardiff Savings Bank.

Archdeacon Farrar objects to shorthand writers going to St. Margaret's Church and taking down his sermons for publication in newspapers.

Rev. Edward Carus Selwyn, who has been head master of Liverpool College since 1882, has been appointed to the head mastership of Uppingham School.

A memoir of the late Rev. Henry Townsend, for forty years C.M.S. missionary in West Africa has been published by Messrs. Marshall Brothers, 10, Paternoster-row, E C.

It has been decided to erect a church to the memory of Bishop Hannington at Frere Town, Mombasa, the headquarters of the Church missionary's operations in Eastern Equatorial Africa.

We regret to hear of more failures of health in the C.M.S. East African Mission. Rev. H. K. Binns, of Kisulitini is unwell, and C. W. Hodder has broken down. Miss Harvey is also out of health.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken's recent mission at Christ Church, Everton, Liverpool, was productive of very good results. The mission lasted three weeks, and the large church was thronged every evening, while on Sundays numbers were unable to gain admission.

Rev. James Davies, of St. David's Welsh Church, Liverpool, has started a Welsh mission at Whiston, for the benefit of the colliers who have left the Flintshire Marches for Lancashire. He has secured, at a cost of £725, a site for a new Welsh Church at Kirkdale.

Rev. F. W. Paul, vicar of Emmanuel Church, Nottingham, on Sunday week denounced prize-fighting and its supporters. It has become a duty to speak out, he said, when the second person in the kingdom shakes hands with and patronises a pugilist whose object is to break the law.

BAPTIST.

Mr. Spurgeon is expected to preach at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday, January 15.

The Orissa missionaries of the General Baptist Missionary Society held their annual meetings at Cuttock, Orissa, India, from November 7 to 17.

According to a summary published in "The Baptist Handbook," the Baptists have in Europe, Asia, Africa, and America 37 478 churches, 22,150 pastors or missionaries, and 3 326,542 members.

The South Australian Baptist Association reports its membership at 3,655. Mr. George Müller was present, and gave a powerful address at the meeting of the Association at Flinders Chapel, Adelaide, on October 20.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. A. Gregory, of Wooler, proceeds to Amoy, South China, in February.

Dunfermline U.P. Presbytery has instructed its temperance committee to use every possible effort to establish Bands of Hope in every congregation.

Dr. Thain Davidson preached at the City Temple on Sunday evening, on "The Concurrence of Science and Scripture, as to the Final Dissolution of the Earth."

Rev. Dr. Steel, of Sydney, has baptized three natives of the New Hebrides, and a native of Ceylon, all of whom were taught by a Christian native of the New Hebrides named Makum.

Rev. John Dickson, of St. Ninian's Free Church, Leith, lecturing on the theatre and its influences, denied the assertion that the stage of to-day is an elevating agent, and warned parents against permitting their children to witness pantomimes, as one visit to a theatre often engenders a desire to go again.

At the thirty-third annual meeting of the Scottish auxiliary of the China Mission of the English Presbyterian Church it was reported that the total membership of the Mission is 5,778, the number of stations 106, there being, besides European missionaries, ninety-eight native agents and forty-six theological students.

METHODIST.

A three weeks' mission at Bridgend has resulted in very great blessing to all the churches.

A rustic, moveable chapel has been erected at Hoddesdon, Herts. The building is screwed together, and can be easily taken down for re-erection elsewhere.

A great revival is going on in the Primitive Methodist Churches of the Dudley Circuit. More than three hundred persons have professed to find salvation.

Rev. E. H. Sugden, a popular Wesleyan minister in the North of England, has sailed for Melbourne, to enter upon his duties as Principal of Trinity College in that city.

Messrs. Hall and Gilbert were ordained as Wesleyan missionaries to West Africa, at London-road Chapel, Derby, on Tuesday, December 13. Mr. Hall goes to Cape Coast Castle, and Mr. Gilbert to the Gambia.

As an illustration of the missionary spirit of the native churches of Bengal, The Indian Methodist Times states that the call it made for a Bengali preacher for the Bengali coolies in the Fiji Islands was responded to by ten eligible young men.

The work in Clerkenwell progresses under the superintendence of Rev. Edward Smith. The church at St. John's-square, which until the present movement was inaugurated was almost deserted, is now well filled, the communicants numbering 300.

The Committee appointed by the Wesleyan Conference to consider certain questions relating to church membership in the Wesleyan body, has decided that the class-meeting is not to be touched, and that any action which tends to weaken or discredit this institution is strongly to be deprecated. Means are to be taken to improve it, with a view of increasing its efficiency, and more attention is to be paid to communicants.

About twelve months ago a mission was started by the Wesleyans at New Southgate, in the Finsbury Park Circuit. The work has prospered, and additional accommodation has become necessary. A suitable site has been secured, and an iron building to seat 250 people is in course of erection.

During the past year 10,000 young people have joined the "Young People's Bible and Prayer Union," started by Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant. Mr. Sarjeant will be glad to hear from others who wish to join it, and also from Sunday-school teachers and others who are willing to act as local secretaries. His address is Friend's-road East, Croydon.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Reaney will hold their final services at Stepney meeting-house on Sunday. It has been arranged to continue the Sunday afternoon evangelistic services.

At a meeting of the London Missionary Society at Islington, Rev. I. H. Hacker, of Neyoor, Travancore, South India, said that in Travancore there are 45,000 native Christians, who contribute £1500 a year for the support of their chapels and pastors.

Rev. J. Rawlinson terminated his pastorate of Knot Mill Church, Manchester, on Sunday week, and in closing his sermon in the evening, said that during his thirty-four years' ministry there he has received over 600 persons into Christian fellowship.

The church at Withington, assisted by the churches at Staleybridge and Gallowtree Gate, Leicester, has raised a sum of £500 for the education of the two children of the late Rev. James Williamson, who held successively the pastorate of these three churches.

SALVATION ARMY.

New halls have been opened in three of the largest towns of Southern France, Marseilles, Montpelier, and Cetle.

A new barracks has been opened in Montreal, Canada. The meetings throughout were of a most enthusiastic character.

General Booth has sent out to the friends of the work an appeal stating that £45,000 will be needed for the operations during 1888.

A Swiss convert, who burnt a house down before being saved, has confessed, and delivered himself up to the magistrates, who have sentenced him to a year's imprisonment.

At Tyldesley, Yorkshire, where the work has been carried on for six months in the open-air, a new barracks has been secured and fitted up to seat eight hundred people.

Commissioner Tucker writes that Cadet Horatula has returned to India from Australia, where he went with two other Indian officers, and held many meetings for about six months, collecting £2000 for the Army, and getting fourteen volunteers for India.

In the Catholic town of Castres in France the officers have so gained the hearts of the Catholics that they come to ask them to pray for them and theirs with perfect confidence. The meetings have been crowded, and many persons have professed salvation.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

A new monthly meeting has been established in the city of Mexico. A weekly meeting for worship is also held.

There are in Madagascar 30,000 adherents of the Friends' Mission, of whom nearly 20,000 assemble every Lord's Day in places of worship.

Blessing is resting on the Adult School work in Ashford, Kent, after a recent social gathering which was full of interest and profit. Twenty-one new names were added to the school.

The Friends have a farm of 720 acres of land near Wabash, Indiana, U.S., in a high state of cultivation, on which are nearly one hundred young Indians receiving a Christian education.

Western quarterly meeting, held in Gloucester on the 13th and 14th inst., was a time of blessing. Jonathan Grubb, Albert J. Crossfield, and Sarah S. Bell were acceptably present, especially at the "Young Friends' Prayer Unions'" meeting.

The citizens of "Whittier," Southern California, who are mostly Friends, have decided "that they did not need, nor want, and will not have a saloon in that place." They are imitating Bessbrook, the Irish colony.

It is pleasant to read in The Christian Worker of one Friend in his seventy-ninth year and another over seventy, brothers, giving up smoking, after over fifty years' indulgence, and to know of their health improving afterwards.

Mr. Joseph Cosand writes from Japan that he has established at Tokio a girls' school, called "Furendo Jo Gakko," or "Friends' Girls' School." The building accommodates about forty children, and bids fair to be a success. Half an hour each morning will be devoted to the reading and study of the Bible.

In the Friends' meeting-house at Philadelphia a public meeting was held on Saturday week to celebrate the eightieth birthday of the Quaker poet, John Greenleaf Whittier. In his Massachusetts home the venerable octogenarian received a stream of visitors all day; they found him erect, brisk, and smiling; and he received all with simple cordiality. Letters, accompanied by gifts, poured in upon him from all over the country.

"FALLEN ON SLEEP."

Rev. Prebendary Thomas Lowe, for over thirty-five years vicar of Willingdon, Hawkhurst, Sussex.—Rev. William Jackson, superintendent of the Wesleyan churches in the Christchurch and Lymington Circuit.—Rev. Urban Smith, for fifty-two years vicar of Stony Middleton, near Sheffield, Derbyshire.—Rev. W. Corson, for nearly forty years parish minister of Girvan, N.B.—Rev. John Harrop, formerly Wesleyan missionary on the Gold Coast, West Africa.—Rev. Thomas Newsome, for nearly fifty years a Primitive Methodist minister.—Mr. William Headford, senior deacon of the City-road Baptist Church, Bristol.

Notices.

A.B.C.—We do not know.

Communications Received with Thanks.—W.E.H. F.R. S.H.F. W.H. A.S.A. L.L. E.C. A.H. J.D. P.A.D. J.F.T.H. C.C.L. F.G.T. W.W.C. G.A.H. M.S. M.H.T. J.H.S. J.F. A.M. B.B. J.T.T. C.A.H. J.E. G.T.H. M.B. F.W.M. A.M.G. A.O.H. J.P.W. J.S.A. S.H.W. W.J. A.W. R.C. J.H. E.H.J. J.H.S. J.T. W.M.S. E.W. J.D. L.R.

Applicants for Tracts.—E. D. Hughes. 8, Church-st., Rhosymedre, near Ruabon, North Wales; B. Bryant, 27, Windsor-place, Queen-street, Cardiff; F. Bailey, St. James-street, Taunton, Somerset; Rev. Anton Arbeiter, Moravian Mission, Blewfields, Moskito Coast, Central America; Mr. W. White, 8, West Block, Avenue-road, Gosport, Hants; C. E. Jackson, Evangelist, Mount Pleasant, Tadcaster, Yorks; J. Winton, 26, Washington-street, St. Leonards-street, Bromley-by-Bow, Middlesex; Hugh Wilson, 401, Rutherglen-road, Glasgow; Mrs. Hudson, 21, Albemarle-crescent, Scarboro'.

◆

Forthcoming Meetings.

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., New Metal Exchange, Whittington-avenue, E.C.—Tuesday, January 3, Bishop of London, 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 4, Rev. Wm. Hay Aitken, 6 p.m.: "Aggressive Purity." Friday, Jan. 5, Rev. J. Hudson Taylor (China Inland Mission).

Conference Hall and Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Gospel meetings, Sunday, 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. Prayer-meetings, Sundays, 7.45 a.m.; and Saturdays, 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., The Priory, 198, Upper-street, N.—Sunday afternoon, Jan. 1, 3.15, New Year's Address. Mr. W. Edwyn Shipton, 8 p.m. Wed., 4, 6 to 10, strangers and anxious inquirers.

Y.M.C.A., Burlington Hall, 23, Savile-row, W.—New Year's services for young men, Sunday, Jan. 1, 3.15 p.m., Captain T. T. Thompson. Thursday, Jan. 5, 8.30 p.m., Rev. W. R. Mowll.

Wesleyan West Central Mission.—St. James's Hall: Fridays, at 12 noon, Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 7.30 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Sundays, 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Wardour Hall: Mondays, 8 p.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; daily prayer-meeting from 1.30 to 2 p.m. All seats always free.

Friends' Meeting House, Mercers'-road, Holloway, N.—Conversational Bible-reading every Thursday, 8 p.m. Any friends will be heartily welcome.

Gospel Temperance Prayer-Meeting first Friday in every month, from 11 to 12, young men's parlour, 186, Aldersgate-st. Requests for prayer sent to Hon Sec.

Deepening of Spiritual Life, Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W.—Friday, December 30, thanksgiving and praise, 3.30 p.m.

Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Friday, December 30, tea and Christmas-tree for the rough lads of the Highway. Monthly workers' meeting, Friday, January 6; tea at 6. meeting at 7. Mr. R. C. Morgan is expected to preside. Rev. F. B. Meyer will give a new year's address.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sunday, Jan. 1, at 11 and 6.30, and week-nights at 8. Mr. Charles Inglis.

House of Rest, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Friday, December 30, 4 and 7 p.m., special prayer-meeting; tea at 6. Friday, January 6, all-day meeting, from 11 a.m.; 3 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes.

Mildmay Mission to the Jews.—Annual meetings for praise and prayer, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Monday, January 2. A brief account of the work will be given by Rev. J. Wilkinson. Colonel Puget will address the morning and Rev. W. Fuller Gooch the evening meeting.

Week of Prayer, Mildmay Conference Hall.—Monday, January 2: 11 a.m., Colonel Puget and Rev. J. Wilkinson; 7.30 p.m., Rev. W. Fuller Gooch and Rev. J. Wilkinson. Tuesday, 3: 12 noon, Rev. W. H. Burton; 7.30 p.m., Rev. W. H. Barlow. Wednesday, 4: 12 noon, Rev. G. A. Bennetts; 7.30 p.m., Rev. J. H. Shaw. Thursday, 5: 12 noon, Rev. D. B. Hankin; 7.30 p.m., Rev. Gordon Calthrop. Friday, 6: 12 noon, Rev. Dr. J. Edmond; 7.30 p.m., Rev. W. H. King. Saturday, 7: 12 noon, Rev. Henry Simon; 7.30 p.m., Dr. W. Gauld and Mr. P. S. Badenoch.

Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, London, N.—Saturday, December 31: 10.30 p.m., Watch Night Service. Addresses by Mr. James E. Mathieson, Rev. D. B. Hankin, and others. Sunday, January 1, at 3.30, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; at 7, Rev. Dr. Edmond.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday, January 1, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., Mr. J. Manton Smith; 7 p.m., Rev.

Subscriptions Received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Friday, December 23, 1887.

In consequence of the Christmas Holidays our Donation List is made up three days earlier. Donations received after mid-day, Friday, December 23, will appear in the next number.

⁂ Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

⁂ We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

⁂ Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
E.B.B.—Please send full address.
Dr. Barnardo's Homes — Bournemouth, 10s; K.H. (Sale of Waste-paper) 10s; E.P.C. £5 5s; J.S. £1; R.U. 5s; J.B.D. £10; Two Readers, 4s; E.H.C. 2s; M.M., Belfast, 10s; C.R.J. £5; E.S.L. £10; A Governess, 10s: E.W. 5s; V. £4; Dixie, £30; Christmas Boxes not Given, £1 7s 6d; Mother, £1; Tom & Katie, £1 8s; Jessie, 10s; Value of Gifts Less Expenses, £2 19s 6d; H.M.A. 2s 6d; J.J.W. £3; Mrs. W. £1; R.E.S. 5s; E.S.M. £1; G.W.P. £5; S.C.G. £1; S.R. £1 1s	87	14	6
Christmas Help to the Poor—E.S. £2; S.L.R. £1; S.M. 2s; V. £1; T.C. 10s; Miss B. 3s 2d; H.M. 5s	5	0	2
National Vigilance Association—E.S.	0	10	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—M.R. £5; E.P.C. £3 3s; J.S. 5s; R.W. £4 4s; J.B.D. £5; J. & T.M. 10s; E.H.C. 2s; Ramsgate, 7s 6d; S.L.R. 10s 6d; L.S. 5s; M.M. 5s; M.M., Belfast, 10s; M.A.J. 2s; X.K. £1; E.S.L. £10; S.M. 10s; Miss H. 2s; Amy & Maggie, 1s 6d; S.M.T. 2s 6d; J.B., jun., 4s 6d; E.V. 10s; H.F.B. £1; E.W. 5s; A.M.B. 6s; W.J.H. 4s; Friend, 10s; V. £1; A.M.S. 2s 6d; H.M.A.S. £1; A.B.L. £2; J.J.W. £3; D.M.E. 5s; S.A.T. 5s; R.E.S. 5s; J.B.P. £3; T.E.C. £1; H. £1; M.A.S. 5s; E.S.M. £1 T.C. 5s; Boreham, 1s; M.O. 5s; S.C.G. £1; C.A.E. 2s 6d; E.V. 10s; R.U. 5s	51	10	6
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—E.P.C. £5 5s; J.S. £1; E.H.C. 2s; S.E.S. £1; M.M. 5s; C.R.J. £5; E.S.L. £10; V. £3; A.B.L. £2; J.J.W. £5; T.B.W. 5s; J.B.P. £3; H. £1; G.N. 5s	37	2	0
George-yard Ragged Schools—E.P.C. £3 3s; E.S.L. £10; A.M.S. 2s 6d; H.M.A.S. 5s; A.B.L. £1	14	10	6
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—E.P.C. £3 3s; M.O. 5s	3	8	0
Field-lane Refuges, &c.—E.P.C. £5 5s; J. & T.M. 10s; E.H.C. 2s; G.W.P. £1 1s; A.M.S. 2s 6d; H.M.A.S. 10s; A.B.L. £1; J.J.W. £3; G.W.P. £2..	13	10	6
Mr. E. Wright's Work—J.B.D.	2	0	0
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work—E.P.C. £3 3s; M.F.L. 10s; H.B. £1	4	13	0
Gray's-yard Ragged Church, &c.—E.P.C. £3 3s; J.J.W. £3; G.W.P. £2; T.C. 5s	8	8	0
Colar Mission (Miss Anstey)—J.S...	1	0	0
Stockwell Orphanage (Rev. C. H. Spurgeon)—J.S. £1; J.J.W. £3; B.T. £10	14	0	0
Colportage Assoc. (Rev. C. H. Spurgeon)—J.S. ..	1	0	0
Freedmen's Missions' Aid Society—J.S.	1	0	0
East London Training Institute — J.S. £1; G.W.P. £4; (Christmas Dinners) R.W. £2 2s; C.E.R. 10s; C.E.S. 2s; M.A. & J.H.G. 10s; Mrs. W. 10s	8	14	0
China Inland Msn.—J.S. £1; J.V. 10s 6d; V. £1	2	10	6
Mr. Pascoe's Work, Mexico—J.S.	1	0	0
Mildmay Conference Hall—J.S..	1	0	0
British & Foreign Bible Society—J.S. £1; V. £2	3	0	0
Evangelisation Society—J.S.	1	0	0
Salvation Army—J.S.	1	0	0
Royal National Lifeboat Institution—J.S... ..	1	1	0
Thames Church Mission—R.U. 5s; H.B. £2 ..	2	5	0
Working-men's Mission, New Cut—R.U. 5s; M.A.V. £2 10s; F. & M.W. 5s	3	0	0
Evangelistic Mission—R.W. £4 4s; H.B. £1; J.B.P. £3; Supplied, 2s 6d..	8	6	6
Watercress and Flower Sellers' Mission—J.B.D. £5; V. £1; H.M.A.S. £1	7	0	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Mittendorff)—J.B.D. £6; V. £1	7	0	0
London Samaritan Society, &c. — E.H.C. 7s; N.M.D. 12s; X.A. 2s 6d; H.A.Y. 5s; A.B.L. £1; M.A.S. 5s; E.S.M. £1; T.C. 5s	3	16	6
Cow Cross Mission—Mullingar, 5s; L.S. 5s; E.S.L. £10; V. £1; A.M.S. 2s 6d; J.B.P. £3; T.C. 5s; Bristol, 1s	14	18	6
Orphan Homes (Mrs. Parsons)—M.F.L.	1	0	0
Free Breakfasts, &c.—A.K. 2s; V. £1; T.C. 5s; T.C. 5s	1	12	0
Dock Labourers—M.M.	0	5	0
Halfpenny Dinners—M.M. 5s; Mrs. A. 2s 6d; T.C. 5s; C.A.E. 2s 6d	0	15	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—X.A. 2s 6d; V. £1; H.M.A.S. 10s; Mrs. T. £3 3s; Redhill, 2s; R.E.S. 5s; T.C. 5s; R.B. 2s 6d; G.N. 2s	5	12	0
Grey's-yard Casuals—Mrs. T.	0	10	0
Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews—Mr. H.R.W. £2 2s; T. 2s; Bristol, 2s 6d	2	6	6
House of Rest (Miss Mason)—C.R.J.	5	0	0
Home of Industry—E.S.L. £10; Elusendi, 5s; M.O. 5s	10	10	0
Deacon Abraham's Work—Mrs. E.	5	0	0
Dock Labourers (Mr. Coleman)—M.A.V. £2 10s; V. £1; F.R. 2s 6d; D.M.E. 5s; T.C. 5s..	[illegible]	2	6
Mildmay Mission to Jews—A Governess	£0	10	0
Somers' Town Blind Aid Society—Elusendi ..	0	6	6
Children's Home (Dr. Stephenson)—Widow ..	0	2	0
Church Missionary Society—A.M.B.	0	6	0
London City Mission—Mrs. S.C.F. 5s; V. £2; H.M.A.S. 10s; E.S.M. £1; Friend, 2s 6d ..	3	17	6
Mission Deep Sea Fishermen—V. £1; E.S.M. £1	2	0	0
Distressed Irish Ladies—V.	1	0	0
Union Hall Mission—H.B.	1	0	0
Bitter Cry of Outcast London—V.	1	0	0
Christian Blind Relief Society—V.	1	0	0
Millwall Chapel (Christmas Help)—V...	1	0	0
Homes for Aged Poor—H.M.A. 2s 6d; M.A. & J.H.G. £1; R.E.S. 5s; T.C. 5s	1	12	6
Hospital for Diseases of the Heart—H.M.A.S...	1	0	0
Golden Lane Mission (Mr. Orsman)—H.M.A.S. 10s; T.C. 5s	0	15	0
Christian Tract Fund—H.B.	0	10	0
Kensal Town Msn. (Miss Thompson)—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Seamen's Christian Friend Society—H.M.A.S...	0	10	0
Chelsea Hospital for Women—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Homeless Poor Asylum, Banner-street—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Christian Community—H.M.A.S. 10s; M.A. & J.H.G. 10s	1	0	0
Bible and Colportage Society, Ireland—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Home for Aged Blind Christian Men & Women—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Distressed Widows' Society—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Hackney-road Mission—H.M.A.S...	0	5	0
Home for Blind Children, Hackney—H.M.A.S...	0	5	0
Latymer-road Mission—H.M.A.S. 5s; H.B. £1; T.C. 5s	1	10	0
Suppression of Opium Traffic with China (Lecturing and Travelling Agent)—D.W.	0	10	6
Homes for Working Girls, London—M.A. & J.H.G.	0	10	0
Friendless and Fallen—M.A. & J.H.G. 10s; H.B. £1; G.W.P. £2; T.C. 5s; Bristol, 1s	3	16	0
Latimer Church, Bow (Fuel, &c., for Poor)—M.A. & J.H.G...	0	10	0
Special Religious Services in Theatres—H.B. ..	3	0	0
York road Chapel (Rev. B. Allen's Fund)—M.A. & J.H.G.	0	10	0
Leicester-square Soup Kitchen—H.B.	3	0	0
Christian Colportage Association—H.B.	1	0	0
Cripples' Home, Marylebone—H.B	1	0	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—H.B. £2; G.W.P. £5; G.N. 3s	7	3	0
Marylebone Medical Msn.—H.B. £2; M.R.S. 2s	2	2	0
Ragged School Union—H.B.	0	10	0
Irish Church Mission—H.B.	1	0	0
Irish Evangelisation Society—H.B.	1	0	0
Drury-lane Mission—H.B.	1	0	0
Free Distribution of Scriptures—H.B. 10s; E.S.M. £1..	1	10	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses—M.	2	2	0
Mr. A. G. Brown's Work—E.S.M. £1; M.O. 5s; M.N. 1s; Bristol, 1s	1	7	0
Mount Hermon Orphanage—E.S.M.	0	5	0
New Talbot Tabernacle—E.S.M.	0	7	0
Rescue Society—T.C...	0	5	0
Relief of London Poor—S.C.G.	1	0	0
Orphan Homes (Miss Sharman's)—Bristol	0	1	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—Bristol	0	1	0
	£410	11	2

[Advertisements.]

Mrs. Hilton's Crèche.—A True Friend, 5s.

Archibald G. Brown (of 22, Bow-road, E.)—H.M.A.S. £2.

St. Giles's Christian Mission—M.F.B. 10s; M.A.H. £1; L.W.A. £2; "Three Friends," £1.

Field-lane Refuges, Ragged Schools, &c.—A Friend in Clifton, for free dinners to poor children, £1.

◆

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

A Juvenile Temperance Society has been formed at Abo, Finland.

A new temperance hall is in course of erection at Ossett, near Leeds.

Nottingham, says The Evening News of that town, spends about £10,000 weekly on drink.

Mr. H. Lambert, the new general manager of the Great Western Railway, is a total abstainer.

By a donation of £6000 from a generous friend, the London Temperance Hospital is now free of debt.

Dr. Horley, in a recent lecture to the Society for the Study of Inebriety, said that neither the nurse nor the friends of a patient should be allowed to give stimulants except with strict limitations as to quantity.

The Justices of Fife, by 26 to 17, have decided that after the April Licensing Court, 1888, licensed houses shall be closed at ten p.m.

The St. James's Gazette says that amongst the jubilee presents to the Pope there are no fewer than 50,000 bottles of champagne.

At the Finsbury Polytechnic, recently, Lord Wolseley commended that and similar institutions as very necessary rivals to the public-house.

On a recent Tuesday no less than £11,000 was received at the Belfast Custom House, the largest amount ever received there in one day. It is said the consumption of spirits in the town is increasing.

Miss Haslam (C.E.T.S.) has recently attended numerous meetings in Barnstaple, Bath, Newport, Monmouth, London, and Lincolnshire. Many new branches of the Women's Union have been started.

The National Temperance League offered this year £25 in prizes, open to male and female students in Training Colleges. One of the lady students at Whiteland's College headed the list. The ladies generally outstripped the males.

"New Year's draws" are a common public-house resource to get the working-man's money. The other day, says a correspondent, I saw a man who had been seven years in succession in public-house clubs. He had never taken his goose home; he always sold it cheap

BRITISH SOCIETY
For the Propagation of the Gospel among the Jews.

ESTABLISHED 1842.

President—W. H. HABERSHON, Esq.

The Society has upward of 100 who carry the Gospel to the Jews in England, Italy, Germany, Austria, Russia, Turkey, and the Holy Land. Many Jews have, by this Society, been led to believe that JESUS IS THE CHRIST. Much good has been done among the thousands of Jews in London by the various Agents, and by the Mission House, with its important Medical Missions.

The "SCOTTISH HOME MISSION TO THE JEWS" has been affiliated to the British Society.

INCREASED FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED.
and will be thankfully received by the SECRETARY,

REV. J. DUNLOP,
At the Office, 96, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS, FARNINGHAM and SWANLEY.—In the Cottage Homes at Farningham and the Orphan Homes at Swanley there are just 500 Homeless and Orphan Boys taught trades, having technical education, and being fitted for a working life.

But the Funds are exhausted. No further debt can be incurred; and unless help is sent this Christmas, some of the Homes must be closed.

Will all readers of "THE CHRISTIAN" TRY and SEND SOME CHRISTMAS GIFT? A. O. CHARLES,
Offices: Bank-buildings, Ludgate-circus. Secretary.

THE EARLSWOOD ASYLUM FOR IDIOTS
has accommodation for 700 Patients.
THE PRESENT INCOME ENABLES the COMMITTEE to RECEIVE ONLY 570.
150 APPLICANTS are EARNESTLY SEEKING ADMISSION by ELECTION.
MANY OF THESE MUST BE DISAPPOINTED UNLESS FUNDS ARE FORTHCOMING.
CONTRIBUTIONS GRATEFULLY RECEIVED.
SUPERIOR PROVISION MADE for PRIVATE CASES on Payments regulated by the Board of Management.
Bankers—Messrs. Hoare, 37, Fleet-street, E.C.
H. GERARD HOARE, Esq., Treasurer.
JAMES DOWNING, Secretary.
Offices, 36, King William-street, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

ESTABLISHED 1822.

President.
HIS GRACE LORD PLUNKET, ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN.
Late President.
THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

Offices:—27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin;
And 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Full particulars, Reports, &c., can be obtained on application to the Secretary,
CAPTAIN JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

Wesleyan West Central Mission.

NOTES ON THE MISSION
AND A SERMON
BY REV.
HUGH PRICE HUGHES, M.A.,
OR REV.
MARK GUY PEARSE,
APPEAR EVERY THURSDAY (PRICE 1d.)
IN

The Methodist Times.

"The ablest and most energetic weekly organ of the Wesleyan Methodists."—Daily News.

Of all Newsagents. Office: 125, Fleet-street, E.C.

People's Bible Union for 1888.

MEN'S BRANCH. YOUNG MEN'S BRANCH.
WOMEN'S BRANCH.

OBJECT.—To try and get the masses to read a short passage of the Bible daily.

Will those interested in Bible Classes, Mothers' Meetings, and Sunday Morning Schools and Young Men's Societies or Associations, try to introduce it?

For Specimen Copy of Calendar of Daily Passage, please send stamped envelope to Rev. HERBERT H. DIBBEN, 12, Oaks-crescent, Wolverhampton.

SYMINGTON'S
World Renowned PEA
GOLD MEDAL FLOUR
For Soups, &c., EASILY DIGESTED.
Sold in Packets and Tins, by all Grocers.
Export Agent—J. T. MORTON, LONDON.

Help for the Destitute.

CHILDREN AND ADULTS.

FIELD LANE REFUGES

FOR THE

HOMELESS POOR.

The Committee make a very earnest

CHRISTMAS APPEAL.

260 Persons maintained weekly.
Hot Dinners four days a week to 200 Poor Children.
3,500 Benefits conferred every week.

The Committee want to provide a CHRISTMAS DINNER for 600 Poor Families living in the neighbourhood, and also for 600 Homeless Men and Women.

£4,000 REQUIRED ANNUALLY TO CARRY ON THE WORK.

Donations will be thankfully received by the Treasurer, W. A. BEVAN, Esq. (Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co.), 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; Messrs. RANSOM & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, W.

PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary,
Field Lane Institute, Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.

GRAY'S YARD RAGGED CHURCH and SCHOOLS,

James Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

President—F. A. BEVAN, ESQ., 54, LOMBARD STREET, E.C.

Funds are Urgently Needed to meet the current Expenses of this Institution. From 500 to 700 Casuals and Tramps are here supplied with Bread and Coffee every Sunday, after Gospel Services. Nearly £3 per week required for Food alone.

Contributions will be thankfully received and acknowledged by GEORGE HANBURY, Esq., Treasurer, 21, Portman-square, W.; PHILIP GOUGH, Esq., Hon. Sub-Treasurer, 33, Cambridge-street, Hyde-park, W.; or by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

FUNDS GREATLY NEEDED!!

For sending Tracts through the post as private letters.
For Free Grants of Tracts in aid of Christian Missions.
For Free Distribution of Tracts at Home Exhibitions.
For Free Distribution of Tracts in Foreign Languages at forthcoming Exhibitions in Barcelona and Brussels.
For Printing and Posting Spanish Tracts to the Upper Classes in Spain.
For Kiosk and Free Distribution of Tracts in all Languages at the Paris Exhibition in 1889.

Cheques and Postal Orders to be crossed and made payable to

J. R. MACKENZIE, Secretary,
Monthly Tract Society.

BRIDGE HOUSE, 181, QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Treasurer - - - - - - - F. A. BEVAN, Esq.

N.B.—Mr. Mackenzie will be happy to give an Address on Tract Work wherever invited.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies', Children's, and Gentlemen's Dress. Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value. The Immense Variety of Patterns comprise Specialities to suit all Classes, all Climates, all Fashions, and all Purses, from 10½d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.

REGISTERED.

Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges

REGISTERED.

NEW PATTERNS FOR WINTER, 1888.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

All Orders are executed direct.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS

TRADE-MARK
REGISTERED

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
MERINO WOOLS
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety.

Special makes for Machine Knitters

Prices and Patterns of which on Application.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.

If any difficulty is found in obtaining apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION

ENDOWMENT Assurances on very favourable terms.

FOUNDED 1835.

FOR MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE.

Claims Paid, £7,000,000. Profits Declared, £3,400,000
Funds, £4,280,000.

ECONOMICAL MANAGEMENT. LIBERAL CONDITIONS. LARGE BONUSES.
CLAIMS PAID IMMEDIATELY ON PROOF OF DEATH AND TITLE.

ARTHUR SMITHER,
48, Gracechurch Street, London, E.C. Actuary and Secretary.

10/6-WATERBURY-15/-

THE WATERBURY WATCH.

A PERFECT TIMEKEEPER. GUARANTEED FOR 2 YEARS.

KEYLESS. RELIABLE.
DURABLE. ACCURATE.

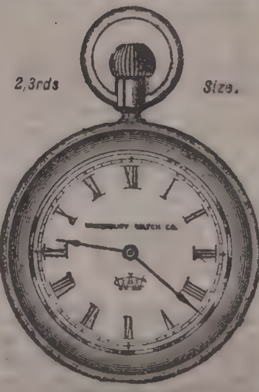
Runs 28 hours with one winding. Regulates to a Minute a Month. Rarely gets Out of Order. Repairs Never Exceed 2/6.

£100 INSURANCE will be Paid to the Next-of-Kin of any Person Killed in a Railway Accident while Wearing a Waterbury in Great Britain or Ireland, Railway Servants excepted.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

At the Depots of the Company, and at W. H. Smith & Sons' Bookstalls.

Head Office: 17, HOLBORN VIADUCT.



WATERBURY WATCH CO.

2,3rds Size.

NOW READY.

THE NEW SHORT-WIND

WATERBURY

Embodies all the qualities which have made the WATERBURY famous throughout the World as a Timekeeper, and possesses, in addition, the following advantages:—

1.—IT WINDS IN A DOZEN TURNS OF THE CROWN.
2.—THE HANDS SET FROM THE OUTSIDE.
3.—IT HAS A VISIBLE ESCAPEMENT.

For Testimonials, Press Notices, &c., apply

17, HOLBORN VIADUCT, E.C.

Possessing all the Properties of the Finest Arrowroot,

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

IS A HOUSEHOLD REQUISITE OF CONSTANT UTILITY

For the NURSERY, the FAMILY TABLE, and the SICK ROOM

NOTE.—First produced and designated CORN FLOUR by BROWN AND POLSON in 1856; not till some time afterwards was any other Corn Flour anywhere heard of, and none has now an equal claim to the public confidence.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide). Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES,
CURTAINS,
BLINDS,
DRAPERIES,
SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS. BURNLEY.